

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF HISTORIC PLACES

REVISED EDITION

COURTLANDT CANBY
& DAVID S. LEMBERG

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF HISTORIC PLACES

REVISED EDITION

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF HISTORIC PLACES

REVISED EDITION

by Courtlandt Canby
David S. Lemberg, Reviser

 Facts On File
An imprint of Infobase Publishing

Encyclopedia of Historic Places, Revised Edition

Copyright © 2007 by Courtlandt Canby and David S. Lemberg

© 1984 by Courtlandt Canby

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any information storage or retrieval systems, without permission in writing from the publisher. For information contact:

Facts On File, Inc.

An imprint of Infobase Publishing

132 West 31st Street

New York NY 10001

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Canby, Courtlandt.

Encyclopedia of historic places / by Courtlandt Canby, David S.

Lemberg, reviser. — Rev. ed.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN-13: 978-0-8160-5344-5 (hc : alk. paper)

1. History—Dictionaries. 2. Gazetteers. I. Lemberg, David S. II. Title.

D9.C29 2007

903—dc22

2007024673

Facts On File books are available at special discounts when purchased in bulk quantities for businesses, associations, institutions, or sales promotions. Please call our Special Sales Department in New York at (212) 967-8800 or (800) 322-8755.

You can find Facts On File on the World Wide Web at <http://www.factsonfile.com>

Text design by Kerry Casey

Cover design by Anastasia Plé/Salvatore Luongo

Printed in the United States of America

VB Hermitage 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

This book is printed on acid-free paper.

CONTENTS

LIST OF ENTRIES

vii

INTRODUCTION

xlix

ENTRIES A TO Z

i–i468

REGIONAL BIBLIOGRAPHY

i469

LIST OF ENTRIES

A

Aachen
Aalen
Aalst
Aarau
Aargau
Aba
Ābādān
Abae
Abaiang Atoll
Abbasid Caliphate
Abbeville (France)
Abbeville (United States)
Abdali
Abdera
Abemama Atoll
Åbenrå
Abensberg
Abeokuta
Aberdeen
Abergavenny
Aberystwyth
Abidjan
Abilene (Kansas)
Abilene (Texas)
Abingdon
Abkhazia
Abomey
Abraham, Plains of Abrantes
Abruzzi
Abucay
Abu Dhabi
Abuja
Abukir
Abu-Simbel
Abydos (Egypt)
Abydos (Turkey)
Acadia

Acapulco
Acarnania
Accra
Aceh
Aceldama
Acerra
Achaea
Achalpur
Acharnae
Achi Baba
Ackia
Acoma
Acre (Brazil)
Acre (Israel)
Acrocorinthus
Actium
Acushnet
Adamawa
Adams
Adana
Addis Ababa
Adelaide
Aden
Adige River
Adirondack Mountains
Admiralty Islands
Ado
Adra
Adrano
Adria
Adriatic Sea
Adulis
Adwa
Adygei, Republic of Aegean Sea
Aegina
Aegospotamos
Aemilian Way
Aeolis

Aetolia
Afghanistan
Africa, Roman Afyonkarahisar
Agadez
Agadir
Agartala
Agde
Agen
Agenais
Al-Agheila
Agincourt
Agira
Agnadello
Agoo
Agra
Agri Decumates
Agrigento
Aguascalientes
Ahmadnagar
Ahmedabad
Ahvaz
Ai
Aigues-Mortes
Aijalon
Ain Jalut
Aintree
Aire
Airolo
Aisne River
Aitape
Aix-en-Provence
Aix-les-Bains
Aizawl
Aizu-Wakamatsu
Ajaccio
Ajantā
Ajarian Autonomous Republic

Ajdā Biyah
Ajman
Ajmer
Ajnadain
Akhaltzikhe
Akhisar
Akhmim
Akita
Akkad
Akola
Akron
Akşehir
Akshak
Aksum (Empire)
Aksum (Ethiopia; city)
Alabama
Alagoas
Alalakh
Alamance Creek
Alamannia
Alameda
El Alamein
Alamo, The Alamogordo
Alamut
Åland Islands
Alappuzha
Alarcos
Alasehir
Alaska
Alaska Highway
Albacete
Alba de Tormes
Alba Iulia
Alba Longa
Albania
Albany
Albemarle Sound
Albenga

viii Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Albert	Almohad Empire	Amritsar	Ani
Albert, Lake	Almoravid Empire	Amroha	Aniane
Alberta	Alnwick	Amsterdam (Netherlands)	Anjou
Albi	Alps	Amersterdam (United States)	Anjuthengo
Ålborg	Alpujarras, Las	Amu Darya	Ankara
Albuquerque	Alsace	Amur River	Anklam
Alcácer do Sal	Alsace-Lorraine	Amyclae	Annaba
Alcacovas	Altamira	'Ana	Annam
Alcalá de Henares	Altamura	Anaconda	Annapolis
Alcalá La Real	Aldorf	Anactorion	Annapolis Royal
Alcántara	Altenburg	Anagni	Ann Arbor
Alcántara	Althiburos	Anaheim	Annecy
Alcatraz	Alton	Anahuac	Anniston
Alcázar de San Juan	Altona	Anapa	An-P'ing
Alcazarquivir	Altoona	Añasco	Anqing
Alcobaca	Altötting	Anáhuac	Ansbach
Alcolea	Altranstädt	Anazarbe	Anshan (Iran)
Aldeburgh	Alttun Ha	Ancenis	Anshan (China)
Aldermaston	Alwa	Anchorage	Antalya
Alderney	Alwar	Ancón	Antananarivo
Aleksandrov	Amalfi	Ancona	Antarctica
Alençon	Amana	Ancre River	Antequera
Aleppo	'Amara	Ancrum Moor	Antibes
Aléria	Amarapura	Ancud	Anticosti Island
Alès	Amaravati	Andalsnes	Antietam
Alésia	Amasya	Andalusia	Antigua
Alessandria	Amazon River	Andaman and Nicobar	Antigua and Barbuda
Aleutian Islands	Ambala	Islands	Antioch (Turkey)
Alexandretta	Ambarawa	Andaman Islands	Antioch (Turkey; ancient
Alexandria (Egypt)	Amber	Andechs	city of Phrygia, in Isparta
Alexandria (United States)	Amberg	Anderlecht	Province)
Alexandrouópolis	Amboina	Andernach	Antipolo
Alexinatz	Amboise	Anderson	Antofagasta
Alford	Ambridge	Andersonville	Antrim
Algarve	Amchitka	Andes	Antwerp
Algeciras	Ameameca	Andhra Pradesh	Anual
Algeria	Ameixial	Andorra	Anuradhapura
Alghero	Amelia	Andover (England)	Anyang
Algiers	Americana	Andover (United States)	Anzac Cove
Alicante	American River	Andreanof Islands	Anzio
Alice Springs	American Samoa	Andria	Aosta
Aligarh	Amersfoort	Andros	Apamea ad Orontem
Alisar Hüyük	Amesbury (England)	Androsovo	Apamea Cibotus
Aljubarrota	Amesbury (United States)	Andujar	Aparri
Alkmaar	Amhara	Angel Island	Apennine Mountains
Allada	Amherst	Angers	Aphrodisias
Allahabad	Amherstburg	Angkor	Apollonia
Allegheny Mountains	Amiens	Anglesey	Appalachian Mountains
Allegheny River	Amitemnum	Anglo-Egyptian Sudan	Appenzell
Allentown	Amman	Angmagssalik	Appian Way
Allia River	Ammon	Angola	Appleton
Almadén	Amol	Angoulême	Appomattox Courthouse
Almanza	Amorgós	Angoumois	Apra Harbor
Alma River	Ampfing	Angra do Heroísmo	Apt
Almaty	Amphipolis	Angri	Apulia
Almeida	Amphissa	Anguilla	'Aqaba
Almenara	Ampurias	Anhalt	'Aqaba, Gulf of
Almeria	Amrit	Anhui	Aquidaban River

Aquileia	Arkansas Post	Ashgabat	Attigny
Aquino	Arkhangelsk	Ashikaga	Attleboro
Aquitaine	Arklow	Ashingdon	Atyraū
Ara	Arles (France; ancient kingdom)	Ashland	Auburn (California)
Arabia, Roman Province of	Arles (France; city)	Ashmore and Cartier Islands	Auburn (New York)
Arabian Peninsula	Arleux	Ashqelon	Aubusson
Arachosia	Arlington (Massachusetts)	Ashur	Auch
Arad	Arlington (Virginia)	Asia	Auckland
Aragon	Arlon	Asiago	Audaghost
Arakan	Armagh	Asia Minor	Auerstedt
Aram	Armagnac	Asir	Aughrim
Aran Islands	Armenia (ancient West Asian nation)	Asmara	Augsburg
Aranjuez	Armenia (independent republic)	Asolo	Augusta (Italy)
Arapiles	Armentières	Aspendus	Augusta (Georgia)
Arara	Armorica	Aspern	Augusta (Maine)
Ararat, Mount	Arnhem	Aspromonte	Augustów
Araucania	Arno River	Assam	Auldearn
Arawe	Arnsberg	Assaye	Aulis
Arboga	Arnstadt	Assens	Aumale
Arbroath	Arunachal Pradesh	Assinarus	Auneau
Arcadia	Aroostook River	Assiniboine River	Aunis
Arcetri	Arpino	Assisi	Aurangabad
Arcis-sur-Aube	Arques-la-Bataille	Assos	Auray
Arcole	Arran	Assy	Aurelian Way
Arcos de la Frontera	Arras	Assynt	Aurich
Arcos de Valdevez	Arromanches-les-Bains	Assyria	Aurignac
Arcot	Arsinoë	Astana	Aurillac
Arctic, The	Arsuf	Asti	Auschwitz
Arcueil	Árta	Astorga	Austerlitz
Ardabil	Artaxata	Astoria	Austin
Ardahan	Artois	Astrakhan	Australia
Ardea	Aruba	Asturias	Austrasia
Ardee	Arunachal Pradesh	Asunción	Austria
Ardenne	Arundel	Aswān	Autun
Ardres	Arwad	Asyut	Auvergne
Arecibo	Arzawa	Atacama Desert	Auxerre
Arequipa	Arzew	Atbarah	Ava
Arezzo	Asaba	Atchison	Avallon
Argaon	Asansol	Athabasca Lake	Avalon
Argentán	Asbury Park	Athelney	Avanti
Argenteuil	Ascension	Athenry	Avebury
Argentia	Aschaffenburg	Athens (Greece)	Aveiro
Argentina	Aschersleben	Athens (Alabama)	Avellino
Argeş River	Ascoli Piceno	Athens (Georgia)	Avenches
Arginusae	Ascoli Satriano	Athens (Ohio)	Avernus, Lake
Argolis	Ascot	Athens (Pennsylvania)	Aversa
Argonne	Aseb	Athis-Mons	Avesnes
Argos	Asenovgrad	Athlone	Avignon
Arguin	Ashanti	Athos, Mount	Ávila
Argyll	Ashbourne	Athy	Aviz
Århus	Ashby-de-la-Zouch	Atienza	Avon
Ariano Irpino	Ashdod	Atlanta	Avon River
Arica	Asheboro	Atlantic City	Avranches
Ariccia	Asheville	Atlit	Axim
Arichat	Ashford	Atri	Axminster
Al-'Arish		Atsugi	Ayacucho
Arizona		Attica	Aydin (Turkey; city)
Arkansas			Aydin (Turkey; ancient emirate)

x Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Aylesford	Baja California (Mexico; peninsula)	Bar-le-Duc	Beauvais
Ayodhya	Baja California (Mexico; state)	Barletta	Beaver Island
Ayr	Baja California Sur	Barmen	Bebenhausen
Ayutla	Baku	Barnet	Bedford (England)
Ayutthaya	Balaklava	Barnstaple	Bedford (United States)
Azay-le-Rideau	Balearic Islands	Baroda	Bedfordshire
Azerbaijan (Iran; former province)	Balashwar	Barquisimeto	Bedzin
Azerbaijan (independent republic)	Bali	Barrakpur	Beersheba
Azores	Balikesir	Barranco	Behistun
Azov	Balikpapan	Barranquilla	Beihai
Aztec Empire	Balkans	Barre	Beijing
	Balkh	Barrow Canyon	Beira (Mozambique)
B	Ballarat	Barry	Beira (Portugal)
Baalbek	Ballia	Barysaw	Beirut
Babylon	Ball's Bluff	Basel	Beitang
Bacan	Baltic Sea	Bashan	Beja
Bacău	Baltimore	Bashkir	Béja
Bactria	Baluchistan	Basque Provinces	Bejaia
Badagry	Bamako	Basra	Belarus
Badajoz	Bambara States	Bassae	Belchite
Badami	Bamberg	Bassano	Belém
Bad Axe River	Bamburgh	Bassein	Belfast
Baddeck	Bamiān	Bastia	Belfort
Baden (Austria)	Banat	Bastogne	Belgaum
Baden (Switzerland)	Banbury	Bataan Peninsula	Belgian Congo
Baden (Germany)	Bandar Abbas	Batalha	Belgium
Baden-Baden	Bandar Seri Begawan	Batavian Republic	Belgorod
Baden-Württemberg	Bandirma	Batdambang	Belgrade
Bad Gastein	Bandung	Bath	Belize (Belize; Belize City)
Bad Homburg	Bangalore	Batoche	Belize (nation)
Bad Ischl	Bangkok	Baton Rouge	Bellary
Bad Kreuznach	Bangladesh	Batticaloa	Belleau Wood
Bad Mergentheim	Bangor (Northern Ireland)	Battle	Belle-Île-en-Mer
Badr	Bangor (Maine)	Battle Creek	Bellevue
Bad Reichenhall	Bangor (Wales)	Battleford	Bellinzona
Badrinath	Bangor (Michigan)	Batumi	Belluno
Baecula	Banha	Bautzen	Belmont
Baetica	Banja Luka	Bavaria	Belmopan
Baeza	Bannack	Bayamo	Belo Horizonte
Baffin Island	Bannockburn	Bayamón	Beloit
Bagamoyo	Banska Bystrica	Bayeux	Belsen
Baghdad	Bantam	Bay of Pigs	Bemis Heights
Baghelkand	Bantry Bay	Bayonne (France)	Bene Berak
Bagherhat	Bapaume	Bayonne (United States)	Benevento
Bagradas River	Bar (Serbia and Montenegro)	Bayreuth	Bengal
Baguirmi	Bar (Ukraine)	Baza	Benghazi
Bahama Islands	Baranof Island	Beachey Head	Bengkulu
Baharampur	Barbados	Beacon	Beni Hassan
Bahawalpur	Barbary States	Beaconsfield	Benin (country)
Bahía Blanca	Barca	Béarn	Benin (former empire)
Bahraich	Barcelona	Bear Paw Mountain	Bennington
Bahrain	Barddhaman	Beaucaire	Bentonville (Arkansas)
Baia	Bardia	Beaufort	Bentonville (North Carolina)
Baidyanath Dham	Bareilly	Beaugency	Bent's Fort
Bailén	Bari	Beaujolais	Benxi
		Beaulieu	Berar
		Beaumont	Berbera
		Beaune

Berchtesgaden	Biel	Black Forest	Bolu
Berdichev	Bielefeld	Black Hawk	Bolzano
Berestechko	Biella	Blackheath	Boma
Berezhany	Bien Hoa	Black Hills	Bomarsund
Berezina River	Big Bethel	Blackpool	Bon, Cape
Berg	Big Hole Battlefield	Black Sea	Bonampak
Bergamo	National Monument	Bladensburg	Bonifacio
Bergen	Bighorn River	Blagoveshchensk	Bonin Islands
Bergen Op Zoom	Bihar	Blair-Atholl	Bonn
Bergerac	Bijapur	Blaj	Bonny
Bering Sea	Bikaner	Blakistone Island	Bonnyrigg and Lasswade
Berkeley (England)	Bikini	Blankenburg	Bonny-sur-Loire
Berkeley (United States)	Bilainagar	Blasket Islands	Boomplaats
Berkshire	Bila Tserkva	Blaye-et-Sainte-Luce	Boonesboro
Berlin	Bilbao	Blekinge	Booneville
Bermuda	Bileca	Blenheim	Boonsboro
Bern	Bilnorod Dnistrovski	Blennerhassett Island	Boonville (California)
Bernburg	Billericay	Blickling	Boonville (Missouri)
Bernicia	Biloxi	Blida	Boothia Peninsula
Berry	Biminis	Bloemfontein	Boppard
Berwick-upon-Tweed	Binchester	Blois	Bordeaux
Besançon	Bingen	Blonie	Bordentown
Beskids	Binh Long	Blood River	Borders
Bessarabia	Biograd	Bloody Nose Ridge	Borgen Bay
Bethany	Bir Hacheim	Bloomsbury	Borgo Grappa
Bethel	Birjand	Blore Heath	Borgu
Bethlehem (Palestine)	Birka	Bludenz	Borisoglebsk
Bethlehem (United States)	Birmingham (England)	Blue Licks Springs	Borivli
Beth-Shan	Birmingham (United States)	Blunham	Borneo
Béthune	Biscay, Bay of	Bobbili	Bornholm
Bet She'arim	Bishapur	Bobbio	Bornhöved
Bettiah	Bishkek	Bobruysk	Bornu
Beverley	Bishnupur	Bocholt	Borobudur
Beverly Hills	Bishop Auckland	Bochum	Borodino
Bewcastle	Bishop's Castle	Bodega Bay	Boroughbridge
Bezetha	Bishop's Waltham	Bodh Gaya	Borrodale
Béziers	Bishopthorpe	Boeotia	Borsippa
Bhadgaon	Bisignano	Bogazköy	Boscobel
Bhagalpur	Biskra	Bogotá	Bosham
Bhainsrorgarh	Biskupin	Bogra	Bosnia and Herzegovina
Bharatpur	Bismarck (Germany)	Bogue, The	Bosporus
Bharuch	Bismarck (United States)	Bohemia	Boston (England)
Bhatpara	Bismarck Archipelago	Bohol	Boston (United States)
Bhavnagar	Bismarck Sea	Bohuslan	Bosworth Field
Bhilsa	Bissau	Boiano	Botany Bay
Bhilwara	Bistrita	Boise	Bothwell
Bhojpur	Biswan	Boizenburg	Botoşani
Bhopal	Bitche	Bolama	Botswana
Bhubaneswar	Bithoor	Bolan Pass	Botwood
Bhutan	Bithynia	Bolesławice (Poland; town)	Bougainville Island
Biafra	Bitlis	Bolesławice (Poland; village)	Bouillon
Biak	Bitola	Bolgar	Boulogne
Białowieża Forest	Bitonto	Bolingbroke	Bound Brook
Białystok	Bizerte	Bolivia	Bourbon-l'Archambault
Biarritz	Blaauwberg Strand	Bologna	Bourbonnais
Bibracte	Blachownia	Bolsena	Bourg
Bida	Blackburn	Bolton	Bourges
Bidar	Black Country, The		Bourg-Léopold

xii Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Bourlon	Bressuire	Buchach	Bustam
Bourne	Brest (Belarus)	Bucharest	Buthrotum
Bouvines	Brest (France)	Buchenwald	Butte
Bowery, The	Brétigny	Buckfastleigh	Butuan
Bowes	Bretton Woods	Buckingham	Bützow
Bowling Green	Briançon	Buckinghamshire	Buxar
Boyacá	Brice's Cross Roads	Budapest	Buzancy
Boyne River	Bridgeport	Budaun	Buzau
Bozcaada	Bridgewater	Bude-Stratton	Buzuluk
Bozeman Pass	Bridgnorth	Budva	Byakar
Bozrah	Bridgwater	Buea	Byblos
Brabant	Brielle	Buena Vista	Bydgoszcz
Brač	Brienne-le-Château	Buenos Aires	Byland
Braddock	Brieulles-sur-Meuse	Buffalo	Bytom
Bradford-on-Avon	Brig	Bug	Byzantine Empire
Braemar	Briga-Tenda	Buganda
Braga	Brigham City	Buinaksk	C
Braganza	Brighton	Bujumbura	Caballo
Braila	Brihuega	Buka	Cabanatuan
Braintree	Brindisi	Bukhoro	Cabezón
Bramham Moor	Brioude	Bukit Timah	Cabinda
Bran	Brisbane	Bukovina	Cabra
Brandenburg	Bristol (England)	Bulacan	Cabul
Brandenburg an der Havel	Bristol (United States)	Bulandshahr	Cáceres
Brandy Station	British Columbia	Bulawayo	Cadasa
Brandywine Creek	British Empire	Bulgaria	Cádiz
Braniewo	British Indian Ocean	Buna	Caen
Brantford	Territory	Bünde	Caerleon
Bras D'or	Brittany	Bundelkhand	Caernarvon
Brasília	Brive-la-Gaillarde	Bundi	Caerphilly
Braslav	Briviesca	Bunker Hill, Battle of	Caerwent
Braşov	Brixham	Burauen	Caesarea Palestinae
Brass	Brno	Burdur	Cagayan
Bratislava	Broadstairs	Burgdorf	Cagliari
Brattleboro	Brocken	Burgenland	Cahir
Braunau am Inn	Brody	Burgh by Sands	Cahokia
Brava	Bronkhorstspruit	Burgos	Cahors
Brazil	Bronx, The	Burg Stargard	Cairo (Egypt)
Brazzaville	Brooklyn	Burgundy	Cairo (United States)
Brechin	Brownsville	Burhanpur	Caistor
Brecon	Bruchsal	Burkatow	Caistor St. Edmunds
Breda	Bruges	Burkina Faso	Caithness
Bregenz	Brühl	Burkittsville	Cajamarca
Breisach	Brunei	Burlington (Iowa)	Calabar
Breisgau	Brunei Bay	Burlington (New Jersey)	Calabria
Breitenfeld	Brunete	Burlington (Vermont)	Calafat
Bremberg	Brunkeberg	Burma Road	Calah
Bremen	Brunswick (Germany; city)	Burntisland	Calahorra
Bremerhaven	Brunswick (Germany;	Bursa	Calais
Bremerton	former duchy)	Burundi	Calatafimi
Brémule	Brussels	Bury	Calatayud
Brenner Pass	Brustem	Buryat Republic	Calatrava
Brentford and Chiswick	Bryansk	Bury Saint Edmunds	Caldera
Brescello	Brzeg	Bushbury	Calderón Bridge
Brescia	Brzeziny	Bushire	Caldiero
Breskens	Bsharri	Bushnell	Caldiran
Bressanone	Bubastis	Busk	Caldy Island
Bresse	Bucaco	Busra	Caledonia

Calgary	Cañete	Carmona	Castres
Calhoun	Cangas de Onís	Carnac	Castricum
Caliano	Çankiri	Carniola	Castro Urdiales
California	Cannae	Carnuntum	Castulo
Calixtlahuaca	Cannes	Carolina	Catalaunian Plains
Callanish	Canonsburg	Caroline Islands	Çatalca
Callao	Canopus	Carpathian Mountains	Çatal Hüyük
Callicula	Canosa di Puglia	Carpentras	Catalonia
Callinicum	Canso	Carrara	Catania
Calne	Canterbury	Carrickfergus	Catanzaro
Calpulálpam	Cantigny	Carrizal	Cathay
Caltanissetta	Canton	Carson City	Catoctin Mountain
Calvados	Canton Atoll	Cartagena (Colombia)	Caucasia
Calvary	Caparra	Cartagena (Spain)	Caucasus Mountains
Calven	Cape Breton Island	Cartago	Caudine Forks
Calvi	Cape Coast	Carteia	Caulonia
Camagüey	Cape May	Carteret	Cavan
Camarina	Cape Province	Carthage (Tunisia)	Cavite
Cambaluc	Capernaum	Carthage (United States)	Cavtat
Cambodia	Cape Town	Casablanca	Cawdor
Cambrai	Cape Verde Islands	Casa Grande National Monument	Cayenne
Cambridge (England)	Cap Haitien	Casale Monferrato	Cayman Islands
Cambridge (United States)	Capitolias	Casalmaggiore	Cazane Defile
Cambridgeshire	Capitoline Hill	Casal Novo	Cebu
Cambuskenneth	Cappadocia	Casas Grandes	Cedar Creek
Camden (England)	Caprera	Cascina	Cedar Mountain
Camden (New Jersey)	Capri	Caseros	Cefalú
Camden (South Carolina)	Caprivi Strip	Caserta	Cegléd
Camelot	Capua (Italy; town)	Cashel	Celaenae
Camerino	Capua (Italy; ancient city)	Caspe	Celaya
Cameroon	Capuzzo	Casper	Celje
Camino Real	Carabobo	Caspian Sea	Celle
Camirus	Caracas	Cassano D'adda	Celles
Camotes Sea	Carahue	Cassel	Celtiberia
Campā	Caranqui	Cassell	Cemetery Ridge
Campaldino	Caransebes	Cassian Way	Central African Republic
Campania	Caravaca	Cassino	Central America
Camp David	Carberry Hill	Castalla	Central American Federation
Campeche	Carcassonne	Castelfidardo	Central Asia
Camperdown	Carchemish	Castel Gandolfo	Central City
Campobasso	Cardedeu	Castellamare di Stabia	Central Park
Campo Formio	Cardiff	Castellón de la Plana	Central Region
Campo Maior	Cardigan	Castelnaudary	Centuripe
Camposanto	Cardston	Castelo Branco	Cepeda
Camranh Bay	Carenage Bay	Castel San Giovanni	Cephalonia
Cana	Carentan	Castiglione delle Stiviere	Ceram
Canaan (Israel)	Caria	Castile	Cerdaña
Canaan (United States)	Caribbean Sea	Castilleja de la Cuesta	Ceresole Alba
Canada	Carini	Castillejos	Cerignola
Çanakkale	Carinthia	Castillon	Cerisy-la-Forêt
Canal Zone	Carisbrooke	Castine	Cernavodă
Canandaigua	Carlisle (England)	Castlebar	Cerro Gordo
Canary Islands	Carlisle (United States)	Castle Bolton	Cerveteri
Canaveral, Cape	Carlow	Castledermot	Cervione
Canberra	Carmarthen	Castle Hill	Cesena
Cancha Rayada	Carmel	Castle Pinckney National Monument	Cêsis
Candé	Carmel, Cape	Castletown	Český-Brod
Canea	Carmel, Mount

xiv Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Cetinje	Charleroi	Cherokee Outlet	Cholet
Ceuta	Charleston (South Carolina)	Cherry Valley	Cholula
Cévennes	Charleston (West Virginia)	Chersonesus, Tauric	Chong-Jin
Chablais	Charlestown	Chesapeake Bay	Chongqing (China; city)
Chacabuco	Charles Town	Cheshire	Chongqing (China; municipal level city)
Chachapoyas	Charleville-Mézières	Chesmé	Chonju
Chaco Boreal	Charlotte	Cheste	Chorrillos
Chaco Canyon	Charlotte Amalie	Chester (England)	Chorzów
Chad	Charlottenburg	Chester (United States)	Chotusitz
Chaeronea	Charlottesville	Chetate	Christchurch (England)
Chalcedon	Charlottetown	Chevilly	Christchurch (New Zealand)
Chalchuapa	Charolais	Cheyenne	Christiansted
Chalcidice	Charsadda	Chhattisgarh	Christmas Island
Chaldea	Chartoriysk	Chiang Mai	Chrysler's Farm
Chalfont Saint Giles	Chartres	Chiapas	Chunar
Chalgrove	Chartreuse, La Grande	Chiari	Chur
Chalmette	Châteaudun	Chiba	Churchill
Châlons-sur-Marne	Chateaugay	Chicago	Churchill River
Chalon-sur-Saône	Châteauneuf-de-Randon	Chichén Itzá	Chuuk
Chalukya Empire	Château-Thierry	Chichester	Ciano d'Enza
Châlus	Chatham (Canada)	Chichicastenango	Cibola
Chambersburg	Chatham (England)	Chickahominy River	Cienfuegos
Chambéry	Châtillon	Chickamauga Creek	Cilicia
Chambly	Châtillon-sur-Seine	Chickasaw Bluffs	Cîmpulung
Chambord	Chattanooga	Chidambaram	Cincinnati
Chamonix	Chaumont	Chieti	Cinque Ports
Champa	Chauny	Chihuahua	Circassia
Champagne	Chautauqua	Chile	Cirencester
Champassak	Chaves	Chilianwala	Cisalpine Gaul
Champaubert	Chavín de Huantar	Chilkoot Pass	Cisalpine Republic
Champigny-sur-Marne	Cheat Mountain	Chillán	Cispadane Republic
Champion's Hill	Cheb	Chillicothe	Cis-Sutlej States
Champlain, Lake	Chechaouén	Chillon	Citium
Champoege	Chechnya	Chiloé	Ciudad Bolívar
Chancelade	Cheduba Island	Chilpancingo	Ciudad Guzmán
Chancellorsville	Cheju	Chilung	Ciudad Juárez
Chan Chan	Chelles	China	Ciudad Real
Chandannagar	Chelm	Chindwin	Ciudad Rodrigo
Chandigarh	Chelmsford	Chinhae	Civiale del Friuli
Chandragiri	Chemillé	Chin Hills Special Division	Civitavecchia
Chandrapur	Chemin des Dames	Chinhut	Clackmannan
Changchun	Chemnitz	Chinon	Clairvaux
Changde	Chengalputtu	Chioggia	Clamecy
Chang-Ku Feng	Chengde	Chios	Clare
Changsha	Chengdu	Chippawa	Clarendon Park
Changzhi	Chennai	Chippenham	Clarksburg
Channel Islands	Chenonceaux	Chisholm Trail	Clazomenae
Chantilly (France)	Chepstow	Chişinău	Clermont-Ferrand
Chantilly (United States)	Cherasco	Chita	Cleveland (England)
Chapel Hill	Cherbourg	Chitoor	Cleveland (United States)
Chapra	Cherchell	Chitral	Clinton
Chapultepec	Cherdyn	Chittagong	Clipperton
Charasia	Cherkasy	Chlumec	Clonmacnoise
Charenton-le-Pont	Chernaya	Choga-Zambil	Clontarf
Chârikâr	Chernihiv	Choisy-le-Roi	Cloyne
Charing Cross	Chernivtsy	Chojanice	Cluj
Charité, La	Chernyakhovsk	Chola
Chärjew

Cluny	Concepción del Uruguay	Corsica	Cuenca (Ecuador)
Clusium	Concón	Corte	Cuenca (Spain)
Clwyd	Concord (Massachusetts)	Cortenuova	Cuernavaca
Clyde River and Firth of Clyde	Concord (New Hampshire)	Cortona	Culiacán
Cnidus	Condeixa	Corunna	Culloden Moor
Coalbrookdale	Condé-sur-Noireau	Corupedion	Cumae
Coa River	Condom	Corydon	Cumaná
Cobleskill	Condore	Cosa	Cumberland (England)
Coburg	Confederate States of America	Cosenza	Cumberland (United States)
Cochin China	Confederation of the Rhine	Cosne-sur-Loire	Cumberland Gap
Cocos Islands	Congo	Cospicua	Cumberland Road
Cod, Cape	Congo, Republic of	Costa Rica	Cumbria
Codogno	Congo River	Côte d'Ivoire	Cumières
Cody	Connaught	Cotentin Peninsula	Cunaxa
Coeur D'Alene	Connecticut	Cotonou	Cuneo
Cognac	Constance	Cottbus	Curaçao
Cohoes	Constança	Cotyora	Cures
Coimbatore	Constantine	Coulmiers	Curragh, the
Coimbra	Constantinople	Council Bluffs	Curupáity
Colchester	Contalmaison	Courcellette	Curzon Line
Cold Harbor	Contreras	Coutances	Custoza
Coldstream	Conway	Coutras	Cuthah
Colenso	Cooch Behār	Covadonga	Cuttack
Coleroon River	Cooch's Bridge	Covelong	Cuxhaven
Colesberg	Cook Islands	Coventry	Cuzco
College Park	Cooktown	Covington	Cyclades
Colmar	Coolgardie	Cowpens	Cynoscephalae
Cologne	Cooperstown	Coyoacán	Cynossema
Colombey	Copán	Craigavad	Cyprus
Colombia	Copenhagen	Craiova	Cyrenaica
Colombo	Copiapó	Crannon	Cyrene
Colonia	Coptos	Cranston	Cythera
Colonus	Coral Sea	Craonne	Cyzicus
Colophon	Corato	Crécy	Czarnovo
Colorado	Corbeil-Essonnes	Crema	Czaslau
Colorado River	Corbridge	Cremona	Czechoslovakia
Colorado Springs	Córdoba (Argentina)	Crépy	Czech Republic
Colossae	Córdoba (Mexico)	Creswell Crag	Czestochowa
Columbia	Córdova	Crete
Columbia River	Corfinium	Cricklade	D
Columbus (Georgia)	Corfu	Crimea, The	Dabie
Columbus (Mississippi)	Corinth (Greece)	Crimisus	Dabromierz
Columbus (New Mexico)	Corinth (United States)	Crimmitschau	Dabrowa Górnicza
Columbus (Ohio)	Corioli	Cripple Creek	Dabrownó
Comana	Cork	Crisa	Dachau
Comayagua	Corleone	Croatia	Dacia
Combe-Capelle	Corniche	Cropredy	Dacre
Combles	Corning	Cross Keys	Dadra and Nagar Haveli
Commagene	Cornwall	Crotone	Dagahpur
Commonwealth, The	Coro	Croton-on-Hudson	Dagestan
Como	Coromandel Coast	Crowland	Dagu
Comoros	Coronea	Crown Point	Dagupan
Compiègne	Coronel	Cruz Point	Dahlak Archipelago
Comstock Lode	Corpus Christi	Ctesiphon	Dahlonga
Comtat-Venaissin	Corral	Cuautla	Dahshūr
Conakry	Corregidor	Cuba	Daiquirí
Concepción	Corrientes	Cúcuta	Dairsie
		Cuddapah	Dajabón

Dakar	Darab	Deauville-les-Bains	Dendera
Daka River	Darby	Deba Habe	Dendermonde
Dakhineswar	Dardanelles	Debar	Den Helder
Dalarna	Dardistan	Deblin	Denia
Da Lat	Dar-es-Salaam	Deboyne Islands	Deniliquin
Dale	Darfur	Debra Tabor	Denison
Dalhart	Dargun	Debrecen	Denizli
Dalhousie	Darién	Decapolis	Denmark
Dalian	Darien (Connecticut)	Decatur (Alabama)	Denmark Strait
Dalkeith	Darien (Georgia)	Decatur (Georgia)	Dennewitz
Dalkey	Darjeeling	Decatur (Illinois)	Denton
Dal Lake	Darling River	Deccan	D'Entrecasteaux Islands
Dallas (Georgia)	Darlington	Děčín	Denver
Dallas (N Texas)	Darlowo	Decorah	Deoband
Dalles, The	Darmstadt	Dedham	Deogarh
Dalmatia	Daroca	Deeg	Déols
Daloa	Dartford	Deep River	Deorai
Dalriada (Northern Ireland)	Dartmoor	Deerfield	Deoria
Dalriada (Scotland)	Dartmoor Prison	Dee River	De Pere
Dalsland	Dartmouth (Canada)	Deer Park	Depew
Dalton (Georgia)	Dartmouth (England)	Defiance	Deptford
Dalton (Massachusetts)	Dartmouth (United States)	Deganiya "A"	Dera Ghazi Khan
Daltonganj	Dar-ul-Fanun	Degema	Dera Ismail Khan
Daly City	Darwin	Deggendorf	Deraiyeh
Daly River	Daryal Pass	Dego	Dera Nanak
Daman	Datia (India: town)	De Grey River	Derbent
Daman and Diu	Datia (India: former princely state)	Dehradun	Derby (Australia)
Damanhur	Datong	Deidesheim	Derby (England)
Damascus	Daugagriva	Deira	Derby (Connecticut)
Dambadeniya	Daugavpils	Deir al-Bahri	Derbyshire
Dambulla	Daulatabad	Deir el-Medina	Derdepoort
Damery	Dauphin	Deir ez Zor	Derg, Lough
Damghan	Dauphiné	Dej	Derna
Damietta	Dauphin Island	De Kalb	Derwent Water
Damloup	Daura (Nigeria; town)	Delagoa Bay	Deshima
Dammam	Daura (Nigeria; region)	De Land	Deshio
Damme	Davao (Philippines; city)	Delaware (Ohio)	Des Moines
Damoh	Davao (Philippines; province)	Delaware (State)	Des Moines River
Dampier Land	Davenport	Delaware Bay	Desmond
Dan	Daventry	Delaware River	Desna River
Da Nang	David	Delémont	De Soto
Danbury	Davis Strait	Delft	Despeñaperros
Dandi	Davos	Delhi	Des Plaines River
Danelaw	Dawlish	Delhi Sultanate	Dessau
Danevirke	Dawson	Delitzsch	Dessye
Danger Atoll	Dawson Creek	Delium	Detmold
Dannoura	Dax	Delmenhorst	Detroit
Danskoya	Dayton (Ohio)	Delos	Dettingen
Dansville	Dayton (Tennessee)	Delphi	Deurne
Danube River	Daytona Beach	Delray Beach	Deutz
Danubyu	Dead Sea	Del Rio	Deva
Danvers	Deadwood	Delyatin	Devenish
Danville (Kentucky)	Deal	Demak	Deventer
Danville (Virginia)	Dean, Forest of	Demetrias	Devil's Island
Danzhu	Dearborn	Demmin	Devil's Lake
Daphnae	Death Valley	Demopolis	Devin
Dapitan		Denain	Devizes
Dar'ā		Denbigh	Devon

Devonport (Australia)	Dodecanese	Dry Tortugas	Duque de Caxias
Devonport (New Zealand)	Dodge City	Dubienka	Duquesne
Dewangiri	Dodona	Dublin	Dura-Europos
Dewas	Dogger Bank	Dubno	Durand Line
Dew Line	Dogubayazit	DuBois	Durango (Mexico: city)
Dewsbury	Dol	Dubovka	Durango (Mexico: state)
Dhaka	Dôle	Dubréka	Durango (Colorado)
Dhamar	Dolores	Dubrovnik	Durant
Dhar	Dolores Hidalgo	Dubuque	Durazno
Dharmapuri	Dolwyddelan	Duck Lake	Durban
Dharmat	Domazlice	Due West	Durbuy
Dharwar (India; district)	Dombes	Duisburg	Düren
Dharwar (India; former city)	Domfront	Duke of York Islands	Durg
Dhiban	Dominica	Dukla Pass	Durham (England; city)
Dholpur (India; city)	Dominican Republic	Dulag	Durham (England; county)
Dholpur (India; former princely state)	Domodossola	Dülken	Durham (New Hampshire)
Dhrangadhra	Domokos	Dülmen	Durham (North Carolina)
Dhrol	Donaldsonville	Duluth	Durlach
Dhule	Donauwörth	Dulwich	Dürnstein
Diamantina	Donegal	Dumbarton	Duro River
Diamond Head	Donets Basin	Dumbarton Oaks	Durrës
Diamond Mountains	Donetsk	Dumdum	Durrington
Dibbah	Donner Pass	Dumfries and Galloway	Durrow
Dibrugarh	Don River	Dumont	Düsseldorf
Dickinson	Dor	Dunajec	Dust Bowl
Didyma	Dorchester (England; town)	Dunamase, Rock of	Dwarka
Didymoteikhon	Dorchester (England; village)	Dunaújváros	Dybbol
Diego Garcia	Dordogne	Dunbar	Dyfed
Diégo-Suarez	Dordrecht	Dunbarton	Dzhambul
Dien Bien Phu	Dorestad	Dunblane	Dzhida River
Dieppe	Doris	Duncan	Dzhizak
Dighton	Dorset	Dundalk	Dzierżoniów
Digne	Dortmund	Dundas	Dzungaria
Dijon	Dorylaeum	Dundee (Scotland)	E
Diksmuide	Dothaim	Dundee (South Africa)	Eagle Pass
Dinant	Douai	Dundonald (Scotland)	East Anglia
Disappointment, Cape	Douala	Dunedin	Eastbourne
Dismal Swamp	Douaumont	Dunfermline	East Cape Province
Dispur	Douglas (England)	Dungannon	East Dereham
District of Columbia	Douglas (Scotland)	Dungarpur	Easter Island
Dithmarschen	Dover (England)	Dungarvan	Eastern Rumelia
Diu	Dover (Delaware)	Dungeness	East Friesland
Diyarbakir	Dover (New Hampshire)	Dunhuang	East Granby
Dizful	Dover, Strait of	Dunkeld	East Grinstead
Djadjapura	Downpatrick	Dunkirk (France)	East Hampton
Djambi	Drachenfels	Dunkirk (United States)	East London
Djenné	Drangiana	Dunk Island	East Prussia
Djibouti	Drenthe	Dún Laoghaire	East Saint Louis
Dmitrov	Dresden	Dunmore	Ebbsfleet
Dneproges	Drewry's Bluff	Dunmow	Eberswalde
Dnieper River	Drocourt	Dunnottar	Ebla
Dniester River	Drogheda	Dunnville	Eboli
Dnipropetrovsk	Drogobych	Dunoon	Ebro River
Dobbs Ferry	Dromore	Dunqulah	Echmiadzin
Dobruja	Drummond Island	Dunsinane	Echternach
Dobsina	Drummondville	Dunster	Écija
	Dryanovo	Dunwich	Eckernförde
		Duplin Moor

Ecuador	Elizabethtown	Ereğli (Turkey: port)	Eu
Edenton	Elk	Ereğli (Turkey: town)	Euboea
Edessa	Ellis Island	Eretria	Eupen
Edfu	Ellora	Erfurt	Euphrates River
Edgehill	Elmina	Eridu	Eutaw Springs
Edinburgh	Elmira	Erie	Eutin
Edirne	Elmshorn	Erie, Lake	Everest, Mount
Edmonton	Elne	Erie Canal	Everglades
Edom	El Paso	Eriskay	Evesham
Edwards	El Realejo	Erith	Évian-les-Bains
Egadi Islands	El Salvador	Eritrea	Évora
Eger	Eltekeh	Erlangen	Évreux
Eggmühl	Elton	Ermeland	Exeter (England)
Egnatian Way	Eltville	Ermine Street	Exeter (New Hampshire)
Egypt	Eluru	Erythrae	Exmoor
Ehrenbreitstein	Elvas	Eryx	Eynsham
Ehringsdorf	Elverum	Erzgebirge	Eziongeber
Eibar	Ely	Erzincan	Ezra Church
Eichstätt	Ely, Isle of	Erzurum
Eidsvold	Embrun	Eschwege	F
Eilenburg	Emden	Eschweiler	Fabriano
Einbeck	Emilia-Romagna	Esdraelon, Plain of	Faenza
Eindhoven	Emirau Island	Esfahān	Faeroe Islands
Ein Gev	Emmaus (Israel)	Eshowe	Faial
Ein Harod	Emmaus (Palestine)	Eskisehir	Faid Pass
Einsiedeln	Emmerich	Esparta	Fairbanks
Eisenach	Empoli	Esperance, Cape	Fairfax
Eisenberg	Empress Augusta Bay	Espíritu Santo	Fairfield
Eisenstadt	Endor	Esquimalt	Fairhaven
Eisleben	Enfida	Esquipulas	Fairhope
Ekaterinburg	Engaño, Cape	Esquivias	Fair Lawn
Ekron	En-Gedi	Essaouira	Fairmont (Minnesota)
Elam	Engels	Essen	Fairmont (West Virginia)
Elandslaagte	Enghien	Essex (England; county)	Fair Oaks
Elat	England	Essex (England; early kingdom)	Faiyum
Elatea	English Channel	Essex (Connecticut)	Faizabad (Afghanistan)
Elba	English Turn	Essling	Faizabad (India)
Elbasan	Enguinegatte	Esslingen	Falaise
Elbe River	Eniwetak	Este	Falerii
Elbeuf	Enkhuizen	Estela	Falkirk
Elbląg	Enna	Estepa	Falkland
El Callao	Enniscorthy	Esterwegen	Falkland Islands
El Caney	Enniskillen	Estonia	Falköping
Elche	Enns	Estremadura	Fallen Timbers
Elda	Enos	Estremoz	Fall River
Eldena	Entebbe	Esztergom	Falls Church
El Dorado	Épernay	Etah	Falmouth (England)
Elea	Ephesus	Étampes	Falmouth (Massachusetts)
Elephanta Island	Ephraim	Étapes	Falun
Elephantine	Ephrata	Etaawah	Famagusta
El Escorial	Epidauros	Ethiopia	Fano
Eleusis	Épinal	Etla	Fanti Confederacy
Eleuthera	Epirus	Etna, Mount	Farah
Eleutheropolis	Episcopi	Eton	Fargo
Elgin	Epsom and Ewell	Etowah River	Farmington
Elis	Equatorial Guinea	Etruria	Farnborough
Elizabeth	Erbil	Ettlingen	Farne Islands
Elizabeth City	Erech		Farnham

Faro	Flodden	Fort Hall	Frascati
Farrukhabad	Florence (Italy)	Fort Henry	Fraser River
Fars	Florence (United States)	Fort Kearney	Frauenfeld
Fashoda	Flores (Guatemala)	Fort Knox	Frayser's Farm
Fatehpur Sikri	Flores (Indonesia)	Fort Laramie	Fredericia
Fátima	Flores (Portugal)	Fort Larned	Frederick
Faversham	Florianópolis	Fort Lauderdale	Fredericksburg
Fayetteville (Arkansas)	Florida	Fort Leavenworth	Fredericton
Fayetteville (North Carolina)	Florida Island	Fort Lee	Fredonia
Fazughli	Flórina	Fort Macleod	Freehold
Fécamp	Florissant	Fort McHenry	Freeman's Farm
Federal Republic of Germany	Flushing	Fort Madison	Freeport
Fehrbellin	Foçsani	Fort Meigs	Free State
Feldkirch	Foggia	Fort Mims	Freetown
Feltre	Foix	Fort Monroe	Freiberg
Fens, The	Foligno	Fort Moultrie	Freiburg im Breisgau
Feodosiya	Folkestone	Fort Myers	Freising
Ferentino	Folsom	Fort Necessity	Fréjus
Fergana Valley	Fond du Lac	Fort Niagara	Fremantle
Fermanagh	Fondi	Fort Pickens	Fremont (California)
Fermo	Fontainebleau	Fort Pierce	Fremont (Ohio)
Fernandina Beach	Font-de-Gaume	Fort Pillow	French Community
Fernando de Noronha	Fontenoy (Belgium)	Fort Pulaski	French Equatorial Africa
Fernando Po	Fontenoy (France)	Fort Riley	French Guiana
Ferney	Fontevrault-L'abbaye	Fort Saint David	French India
Ferrara	Forbach	Fort Saint John	French Polynesia
Ferrol	Forez	Fort Sam Houston	French Union
Ferryland	Forfar	Fort Scott	French West Africa
Fertile Crescent, The	Forlì	Fort Sill	Fresnillo
Fès	Formia	Fort Smith	Fresno
Fezzan	Formigny	Fort Stanwix	Fréteval
Field of Cloth of Gold	Forres	Fort Sumter	Fribourg
Fiesole	Fort Abercrombie	Fort Union (Montana)	Friedrichshafen
Fife	Fort Albany	Fort Union (New Mexico)	Friesland
Figueras	Fortaleza	Fort Washington	Frisian Islands
Fiji	Fort Beauséjour	Fort Wayne	Friuli
Findlay	Fort Benning	Fort William Henry	Front Royal
Finistère	Fort Benton	Fort Worth	Frosinone
Finisterre, Cape	Fort Bliss	Foshan	Fuente Obejuna
Finland, Republic of	Fort Bowie	Fosse Way	Fuenterrabía
Finnmark	Fort Bragg	Fotheringhay	Fuentes de Oñoro
Finschhafen	Fort Bridger	Fougères	Fuji, Mount
Fire Island	Fort Caroline	Foula	Fujian
Firozpur	Fort Charnisay	Four Forest Cantons, The	Fukuoka
Firuzabad	Fort Clatsop	Fowey	Fulani Empire
Fishbourne	Fort Collins	Fox River	Fulda
Fisher's Hill	Fort Davis	France	Fulton (Missouri)
Five Forks	Fort Dearborn	Franche-Comté	Fulton (New York)
Flaminian Way	Fort-de-France	Franconia	Funafuti
Flanders	Fort Dix	Frankenthal	Funchal
Fleet Street	Fort Dodge	Frankfort	Funj
Flensburg	Fort Donelson	Frankfurt	Furness
Fleurus	Fort Duquesne	Frankfurt an der Oder	Fürstenberg, Duchy of
Fleury	Fort Edward	Frankish Empire	Fürstenwalde
Flint (United States)	Fort Erie	Franklin (Pennsylvania)	Fürth
Flint (Wales)	Fort Fisher	Franklin (Tennessee)	Fushun
	Fort Frederica	Franklin, State of	Füssen
	Forth	Franz Josef Land	Fuzhou

xx Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Fyn	Gaur	Gilgit	Gorizia
Fyrkat	Gauteng	Gillingham	Gorlice
G	Gaya	Gingi	Görlitz
Gabès	Gaza	Giornico	Gorno-Altai Autonomous Oblast
Gabii	Al-Gazala	Giresun	Gorno-Badakhshan
Gabon	Gaza Strip	Girga	Gorodok
Gaborone	Gdańsk	Girnar	Gortyna
Gadara	Gedrosia	Gisors	Görz-Gradisca
Gadsden Purchase	Gela	Gitschin	Gorzów Wielkopolski
Gaetulia	Gelderland	Giurgiu	Goshen (Egypt)
Gaillac	Genadendal	Givet	Goshen (South Africa)
Gainesville	Geneva	Giza	Goslar
Galápagos Islands	Geneva, Lake	Gjinokastër	Gosport
Galatia	Genoa	Glamis	Göteborg
Galatina	George, Lake	Glarus	Gotha
Galatz	Georgetown (Guyana)	Glasgow	Gotham
Galena	Georgetown (United States)	Glastonbury	Gotland
Galesburg	Georgia	Glencoe	Göttingen
Galicja (Poland, Ukraine)	Georgia, Republic of	Glendale	Gottorp
Galicja (Spain)	Gera	Glendalough, Vale of	Gouda
Galilee	Geraardsbergen	Glenlyon	Gournia
Galilee, Sea of	Gerasa	Glens Falls	Gourock
Galle	Gergovie	Gliwice	Governors Island
Gallipoli (Italy)	Gerizim	Glogów	(Massachusetts)
Gallipoli (Turkey)	German Confederation	Gloucester (England)	Governors Island (New York)
Gallipoli Peninsula	German Democratic Republic	Gloucester (United States)	Gower
Galloway	German Empire	Gloucester City	Gozan
Gallup	Germania	Gloucestershire	Graaff Reinet
Galveston	Germantown	Gmünd	Gradisca d'Isonzo
Galway (Ireland; port, town)	Germantown	Gnadenhutten	Grado
Galway (Ireland; county)	Germany	Gniezno	Grafenwöhr
Gambia	Gerona	Goa	Grafton
Gambier Islands	Geshur	Gobabis	Graham Land
Gander	Gethsemane	Goch	Grahamstown
Gandersheim	Gettysburg	Godthåb	Grain Coast
Gandhara	Gezer	Golan Heights	Grampian
Gandía	Ghana	Golasecca	Granada (Nicaragua)
Ganges River	Ghana Empire	Golconda	Granada (Spain)
Ganja	Ghardaïa	Gold Coast	Gran Chaco
Gansu	Ghazipur	Golden	Gran Colombia
Ganzhou	Ghazni	Golden Gate	Grand Banks
Gaochang	Gheluvelt	Golden Horde, Khanate of	Grand Canal
Gap	Ghent	Goldfield	Grand Canyon
Garda, Lake	Ghor	Goliad	Grand Couronné
Gardiners Island	Ghudamis	Gomorra	Grandcourt
Garhwal	Gibeah	Gonaïves	Grand Forks
Garmisch-Partenkirchen	Gibeon	Gonder	Grand Pré (Canada)
Garonne River	Gibraltar	Gondokoro	Grand Pré (France)
Gary	Giessen	Gondwana	Grand Rapids
Gascony	Gifu	Gonzales	Grandson
Gaspé Peninsula	Giglio	Good Hope, Cape of	Grangemouth
Gatchina	Gijón	Goose Bay	Granicus
Gath	Gila Cliff Dwellings National Monument	Göppingen	Gran Quivira National Monument
Gaugamela	Gilan	Gordium	Grantham
Gauhati	Gilboa, Mount	Gorée	Granville
Gaul	Gilead	Gorgan
	Gilgal	Gori
		Gorinchem

Grappa, Mount	Grosseto	Guisse	Haikou
Grasmere	Grossgörschen	Guiuan	Hail
Grasse	Groton	Gujarat	Hailar
Graubünden	Grottaferrata	Gujranwalla	Hainan
Graupius, Mount	Groznyy	Gujrat	Hainaut
Gravelotte	Grudziadz	Gulbarga	Hainburg
Gravesend	Grumentum	Gulistan	Haiphong
Gravina in Puglia	Gruyères	Gunib	Haiti
Gray	Gryneion	Guntur	Haiyang
Graz	Guadalajara (Mexico)	Gupta Empire	Hajdúböszörmény
Great Barrington	Guadalajara (Spain)	Gurkha	Hakapehi
Great Bear Lake	Guadalcana	Gusev	Hakodate
Great Britain	Guadalete, Battle of	Gustav Line	Hakone
Great Falls	Guadeloupe	Güstrow	Halberstadt
Great Plains	Guadalupe	Gütersloh	Halden
Great Salt Lake	Guadalupe Hidalgo	Guthrie	Halen
Great Serpent Mound	Guadix	Guwahati	Halepa
Great Slave Lake	Guam	Guyana	Halesowen
Great Smoky Mountains	Guanajuato	Gwadar	Halfaya Pass
Great Trail	Guangdong	Gwalior	Haliartus
Great Wall	Guanghua	Gwangju	Halicarnassus
Great Zimbabwe	Guangzhou	Gwelo	Halicz
Greece	Guanxi Zhuangzu	Gwent	Halidon Hill
Greeley	Guantánamo	Gwynedd	Halifax (Canada)
Green Bay	Guastalla	Gyöngyös	Halifax (England)
Greeneville	Guatemala	Györ	Halifax (United States)
Greenfield	Guatemala City	Gythium	Halle (Belgium)
Greenfield Village	Guayaquil	Gyula	Halle (Germany)
Greenland	Guaymas	Gyumri	Hallein
Greenock	Gubbio	H	Hallstatt
Greensboro	Gubin	Haarlem	Halmahera
Greensburg	Gudbrandsdal	Habbania, Lake	Halmstad
Greenville	Guelph	Hachinöhe	Hälsingborg
Greenwich (England)	Guémappe	Hachioji	Haltemprice
Greenwich (United States)	Guérande	Hacilar	Ham
Greenwich Village	Guéret	Hackensack	Hama
Greenwood	Guernica	Hackney	Hamadan
Greifswald	Guerrero	Hadamar	Hamamatsu
Greiz	Al-Guettar	Haddington	Hamar
Grenada	Gueudecourt	Haddonfield	Hambach
Grenoble	Guiana	Hadejia	Hamburg (Germany)
Gretna Green	Guienne	Hadera	Hamburg (United States)
Grijalva	Guildford	Haderslev	Hamden
Grimaldi	Guildford Courthouse	Hadhramaut	Hämeenlinna
Grimma	Guilford	Hadley	Hameln
Grimsby	Guilin	Hadrian's Wall	Hamhüng
Grindelwald	Guillemont	Hafnarfjörður	Hami
Griqualand East	Guimarões	Hafnsfjord	Hamilton (Bermuda)
Griqualand West	Guinea (Africa; historic region)	Hagåtña	Hamilton (Canada)
Griquatown	Guinea (Africa; country)	Hagen	Hamilton (New Zealand)
Grochów	Guinea-Bissau	Hagerstown	Hamilton (Scotland)
Groningen (Netherlands; city)	Güines	Hagi	Hamilton (New York)
Groningen (Netherlands; province)	Guines	Hagia Triada	Hamilton (Ohio)
Groote Schuur	Guingamp	Hague, The	Hamina
Grossbeeren	Guisborough	Haguenau	Hamm (Luxembourg)
Grossenhain	Guiscard	Haïdra	Hamm (Germany)
		Haifa	Hammamet
			Hammerfest

Hammersmith	Harrodsburg	Hebei	Hermonthis
Hammond	Harrow	Hebrides, The	Hermopolis Magna
Hammondsport	Harstad	Hebron	Hermosa
Hampden-Sydney	Hartford	Hecatompylos	Hermosillo
Hampole	Hartlepool	Hechi	Hermoupolis
Hampshire	Hartmannsweilerkopf	Hechingen	Herrin
Hampstead	Harvard	Hedeby	Herrnhut
Hampton (England)	Harwell	Hedon	Herstal
Hampton (New Hampshire)	Harwich	Heerlen	Hertford
Hampton (Virginia)	Haryana	Heide	Hertfordshire
Hampton Roads	Harz Mountains	Heidelberg (Germany)	Herzliyya
Hamtramck	Al-Hasa	Heidelberg (South Africa)	Hesdin
Hanau	Hasbeyā	Heidenheim	Heshbon
Hancock	Hasbrouck Heights	Heihe	Hesse
Hanford (California)	Haslemere	Heilbronn	Hesse-Kassel
Hanford (Washington)	Hasselt	Heilongjiang	Hettstedt
Hangö	Hassuna	Hejaz	Hickory
Hangzhou	Hastenbeck	Hejiang	Hidalgo
Hankou	Hastings (England)	Hekla	Hidalgo del Parral
Hannibal	Hastings (Minnesota)	Helena (Arkansas)	Hiei-Zan Mountain
Hanoi	Hastings (Nebraska)	Helena (Montana)	Hierakonpolis
Hanover (Canada)	Hastings-on-Hudson	Helgoland	Hierapolis
Hanover (Germany)	Hatay	Helice	Hierro
Hanover (Massachusetts)	Hatfield (England)	Helicon	Highgate
Hanover (New Hampshire)	Hatfield (United States)	Heligoland Bight	Highland
Hanover (Pennsylvania; city)	Hatra	Heliopolis	Highland Park (Illinois)
Hanover (Pennsylvania; township)	Hatteras, Cape	Hell Gate	Highland Park (Detroit)
Hanover (Virginia)	Hattin	Hellín	Highland Park (New Jersey)
Hanseatic League	Hattingen	Helmand River	Highlands
Hanyang	Haugesund	Helmstedt	Highlands, The
Haora	Haulbowline	Helsingør	High Point
Hapsburg	Hausaland	Helsinki	High Wycombe
Haran	Havana	Helvellyn	Hiiumaa
Harappa	Havel River	Helvetia	Hikone
Harar	Haverford	Hemet	Hildesheim
Harare	Haverfordwest	Hempstead	Hill 60
Harbin	Haverhill	Henan	Hill 70
Harbour Grace	Havering	Henderson (Kentucky)	Hill 102
Harburg	Haverstraw	Henderson (Texas)	Hill 192
Harderwijk	Havre de Grace	Hengyang	Hill 304
Hardwar	Havrincourt	Hénin-Liétard	Hill 609
Harfleur	Hawaii	Hennebont	Hillerød
Harghessa	Hawara	Henry, Cape	Hillsboro (North Carolina)
Haringey	Hawarden	Heppenheim	Hillsboro (Oregon)
Harkány	Hawick	Heraclea	Hillsborough
Harlech	Haworth	Heracleopolis	Hill X
Harlem	Hawran	Heraklion	Hilo
Harlingen	Hayange	Herāt	Hilversum
Härnösand	Hayes River	Herculaneum	Hilwān
Harpers Ferry	Haymarket Square	Heredia	Himachal Pradesh
Harput	Hay-on-Wye	Hereford	Himalayas, The
Harrisburg	Hay River	Hereford and Worcester	Himeji
Harrismith	Hays	Herford	Himera
Harrison	Hayward	Héricourt	Hindenburg Line
Harrisonburg	Hazard	Herjedalen	Hindu Kush
	Hazel Park	Herkimer	Hindustan
	Hazleton	Hermann	Hingham
	Hazor	Hermon, Mount	Hinnom

Hinsdale	Honey Island	Hudson River	Idstedt
Hipswell	Honfleur	Hue	Iesi
Hira (ancient kingdom)	Hong Kong	Huejutla de Crespo	If
Hira (Iraq)	Honiton	Huelva	Ife
Hirado	Honolulu	Huesca	Ifni
Hirosaki	Honshū	Hugli-Chinsura	Igaliko
Hiroshima	Hook of Holland	Hukawng	Iglesias
Hisar	Hoorn	Hull (Canada)	Iguala
Hispania	Hoosac Range	Hull (England)	Iishima
Hispaniola	Hoover Dam	Humboldt River	Ijebu-Ode
Hissarlik	Hope, Point	Hunan	Ikaria
Hit	Hopedale	Hunedoara	Iki
Hitachi	Hopetown	Hungary	Ilchester
Hitchin	Hopewell (New Jersey)	Huntingdon	Île-aux-Noix
Hitoyoshi	Hopewell (Virginia)	Huntingdon and	Île-de-France
Hittite Empire	Hopkinsville	Godmanchester	Île de la Cité
Hjørring	Hoquiam	Huntington (Indiana)	Île d'Ouessant
Hlučín	Hor, Mount	Huntington (New York)	Ilesha
Hobart	Horgen	Huntington (West Virginia)	Ilfracombe
Hobbs	Hormuz	Huntsville (Alabama)	Ili River
Hobkirk's Hill	Horn, Cape	Huntsville (Texas)	Ilkley
Hoboken	Horsens	Hunza	Illinois
Al-Hoceima	Horseshoe Bend	Hurley	Illkirch-Graffenstaden
Hochelaga	Horsham	Huron, Lake	Illyria
Ho Chi Minh City	Horten	Hurstmonceaux	Illyrian Provinces
Hochkirch	Horton	Huși	Illyricum
Höchst	Horyuji	Husinec	Ilmenau
Höchstädt	Hoshangabad	Huy	Ilocos Norte
Hoddesdon	Hoshiarpur	Hüyük	Iloilo
Hodeida	Hotan	Hvar	Ilorin
Hof	Hot Springs	Hyannis	Imerina (Madagascar)
Hofuf	Houdain	Hyde Park	Imeritia (Georgia)
Hohenlinden	Houffalize	Hyderabad (India; city)	Immingham
Hohenzollern	Houplines	Hyderabad (India; former	Imola
Hohhot	Housatonic River	state)	Imperia
Hokkaidō	Houston	Hyderabad (Pakistan)	Imperial Valley
Holguín	Howland Island	Hydra	Imphal
Hollabrunn	Hoxne	Hyères	Imroz
Holland (Netherlands)	Hoy	Hymettus	Inari
Holland (United States)	Hradec Kralové	Hythe	Inca Empire
Hollebeke	Hrodna		Inchkeith
Hollidaysburg	Hrubieszów	I	Inchon
Hollywood	Hsin-Chu	Ialysus	Inchtuthil
Holstein	Huancayo	Iași	Independence (Kansas)
Holtz Bay	Huang He	Ibadan	Independence (Missouri)
Holyhead	Huangpu	Ibagué	India
Holy Island	Huánuco	Ibarra	Indiana
Holyoke	Huánuco Viejo	Iberia	Indianapolis
Holy Roman Empire	Huarás	Iberian Peninsula	Indian Territory
Holywell	Huari	Ibiza	Indochina
Homestead	Huascarán	Ica	Indonesia, Republic of
Homildon Hill	Hubbardton	Iceland	Indore
Homonhon	Hubei	Icknield Way	Indrapura
Homs (Libya)	Hubli-Dharwar	Ida, Mount (Greece)	Indre River
Homs (Syria)	Huddersfield	Ida, Mount (Turkey)	Indus River
Homyel	Hudson	Idaho	Inebolu
Honduras	Hudson Bay	Idaho Falls	Ingaví
Honesdale	Hudson Falls	Idalium	Ingelheim

Ingolstadt	Isandhlwana	J	Jefferson, Territory of
Ingombe Ilede	Isauria	Jabalpur	Jefferson City
Ingria	Ischia	Jabal Shammar	Jeffersonville
Ingushetia	Ise	Jablonec nad Nisou	Jehol
Inhambane	Iserlohn	Jaboatão	Jelenia Góra
Inisheer	Isérnia	Jaca	Jelgava
Inishmore	Isigny-sur-Mer	Jáchymov	Jemappes
Inkerman	Isin	Jackson (Michigan)	Jena
Inner Farne	İskenderun	Jackson (Mississippi)	Jenin
Innermessan Moat	Isker	Jackson (Tennessee)	Jerash
Inner Mongolia	Islamabad	Jacksonville	Jerba
Innerpeffray	Island No.10	Al-Jadida	Jerez de la Frontera
Innsbruck	Islay	Jaén	Jericho
İnönü	Îsle-aux-Coudres	Jaffa	Jersey
Inowrocław	Isle la Motte	Jaffna	Jersey City
Interlaken	Isle Royale	Jagersfontein	Jerusalem
Intotto	Isleta	Jaghub	Jerusalem, Latin Kingdom of
Inveraray	Islington	Jaintia	Jezreel
Inveresk	Islip	Jaipur	Jhabua
Invergarry	Isly	Jaisalmer	Jhalawar
Invergordon	Ismailia	Jājau	Jhang-Maghiana
Inverkeithing	Isna	Jajce	Jhansi
Inverness	Isokyrö	Jakarta	Jharkhand
Inverness-shire	Isola Bella	Jalalabad	Jhelum
Ioánnina	Isonzo River	Jalandhar	Jhelum River
Iolcus	Israel	Jalapa	Jiangling
Iona	Issoire	Jalisco	Jiangsu
Ionia	Issoudun	Jalor	Jiangxi
Ionian Islands	Issus	Jaluit	Jiaxing
Iowa	Issyk-Kul	Jamaica	Jidda
Iowa City	Istakhr	James Bay	Jihlava
Ipiranga	Istanbul	James River (Dakota)	Jijelli
Ipoh	Istria	James River (Virginia)	Jilin
Ipsus	Iswariapur	Jamestown (England)	Jinan
Ipswich (England)	Itá	Jamestown (United States)	Jind
Ipswich (United States)	Italian Somaliland	Jammu	Jingtezhén
Iquique	Italica	Jāmnagar	Jinhua
Iquitos	Italy	Jamnia	Jinji
Iran	Ithaca (Greece)	Jamrud	Jinzhou
Iranshahr	Ithaca (New York)	Jämtland	Jiujiang
Irapuato	Itsuku-shima	Jan Mayen	João Pessoa
Iraq	Ituraea	Japan	Jodhpur
Ireland	Ituzaingó	Jargeau	Jogjakarta
Ireland, Northern	Itzehoe	Jarlshof	Johannesburg
Irian Jaya	Ivano-Frankivsk	Jarmo	Johnson City (Tennessee)
Irkutsk	Ivanovo	Jarnac	Johnson City (Texas)
Ironbridge	Ivrea	Jaroslāv	Johnston Atoll
Ironton	Ivry-la-Bataille	Jarrow	Johnston (New York)
Ironwood	Ivry-sur-Seine	Játiva	Johnstown (Pennsylvania)
Irrawaddy River	Iwo	Jaunpur	Johor Baharu
Irtys River	Iwo Jima	Java	Johore
Irún	Izabal, Lake	Java Sea	Johore Strait
Irvine	Izamal	Al-Jawf (Saudi Arabia)	Joliet
Irvington (New Jersey)	Izhevsk	Al-Jawf (Yemen)	Jolo
Irvington (New York)	Izmayil	Al-Jazirah	Jonesboro (Georgia)
Isabela (Dominican Republic)	İzmir	Jebba	Jonesboro (Tennessee)
Isabela (Philippines)	İzmit	Jebel ed Druz	Jönköping (Sweden)
	Izu-Shichito	Jefferson, State of

Jordan	Kaithal	Kano	Kasongo
Jordan River	Kajaani	Kanpur	Kassala
Jorhat	Kakambona	Kansas	Kassel
Jos	Kakhetia	Kansas City (Missouri)	Kasserine
Josselin	Kakinada	Kansas City (Kansas)	Kastamonu
Jotunheimen	Kalabsha	Kaohsiung	Kastav
Juan de Fuca Strait	Kalach-na-Donu	Kapaa	Kastoria
Juan Fernandez	Kalahari Desert	Kapilavastu	Kasvin
Juba	Kalamata	Kapingamarangi	Kathiawar
Jubaland	Kalat	Kápolna	Katmandu
Juchitán	Kalaunur	Kappel	Katowice
Judaea	Kalavryta	Karachayevo-Cherkess Republic	Katsina
Judah	Kalemi	Karachi	Katwijk
Judenburg	Kalgoorlie	Karaganda	Katyn
Jujuy	Kalinga	Al-Karak	Katzbach
Julianehåb	Kaliningrad	Karakorum (Mongolia; ancient site in Arhangay Province)	Kauai
Jülich (North Rhine– Westphalia)	Kalinjar	Karakorum (Mongolia; Ulan Bator)	Kaufbeuren
Jülich (former duchy)	Kalisz	Karaman	Kaunas
Jumièges	Kalka River	Karanovo	Kaupang
Jumilla	Kallo	Karatepe	Kavalla
Junagadh (India; former state)	Kalmar	Karatsu	Kavieng
Junagadh (India; city)	Kalmykia	Karauli	Kawa (Sudan; ancient colony)
Junction City	Kalocsa	Karbala	Kawa (Sudan; town)
Juneau	Kalpi	Karelia	Kawasaki
Jungfrau	Kaluga	Karikal	Kaynardzha
Junín (Argentina)	Kalundborg	Karim Shahīr	Kayseri
Junín (Peru)	Kalyani	Karkar	Kazakhstan
Jura Mountains	Kamakura	Karli	Kazan
Jutland	Kamatapur	Karlovac	Kazanlūk
K	Kambodja	Karlovy Vary	Kazembe
Kabacan	Kamboja	Karlskrona	Kealakekua
Kabardino-Balkar Autonomous Republic	Kamchatka Peninsula	Karlsruhe	KecsKemét
Kabba	Kamenets-Podolski	Karlstad	Kedah
Kabul	Kamenka	Karlstadt	Kedesh
Kabylia	Kamenz	Karmøy	Kediri
Kachchh	Kamiena Góra	Karnak	Kefau
Kachemak Bay	Kamina	Karnal	Keighley
Kachin State	Kaminaljuyu	Karnataka	Kelantan
Kadesh	Kampala	Karanga	Kelham (England)
Kadesh-Barnea	Kampen	Karpathos	Kelheim (Germany)
Kadisiya	Kampil	Karpenísion	Kells
Kadmonites, Land of the	Kanagawa	Kars	Kelso
Kaduna	Kananga	Karshi	Kempen
Kaesöng	Kanara	Karur	Kempton
Kaffraria	Kanatha	Karviná	Kendal
Kagoshima	Kanazawa	Kasatka	Kenilworth
Kahlenberg	Kanchipuram	Kasba Tadia	Kenitra
Kahun	Kandahar	Kashgar	Kennebec River
Kaifeng	Kandy	Kashihara	Kennebunk
Kailas	Kanem	Kashira	Kennebunkport
Kailua (Hawaii Island)	Kaneohe Bay	Kashmir	Kennesaw Mountain
Kailua (Oahu)	Kanesh	Kasia	Kenora
Kairouan	Kanghwa	Kasimov	Kenosha
Kaiserslautern	Kangnūng	Kaskaskia	Kensington
	Kangra		Kensington and Chelsea
	Kankan		Kent
	Kannauj		Kent Island
	Kannur

Kent's Cavern	Kilkis	Klis	Kostrzyn
Kentucky	Killaloe	Kłodzko	Koszalin
Kenya	Killarney, Lakes of	Klondike	Kota
Keokuk	Killiecrankie	Klosterneuburg	Kota Bahru
Keos	Kilmainham	Klungkung	Kota Kinabalu
Kerala	Kilmallock	Knaresborough	Köthen
Kerch	Kilmarnock	Knin	Kotor
Kerguelen Islands	Kilronan	Knossos	Kottayam
Kerkenna Islands	Kilsyth	Knoxville	Kötte
Kerkrade	Kilwa	Knutsford	Kovel
Kermān	Kilwinning	Kobarid	Kozáne
Kermānshāh	Kimberley	Köbe	Kragujevac
Kernstown	Kincardine	Koblenz	Krakatau
Kerry	Kinderhook	Kochi	Kraków
Kesselsdorf	Kingisepp	Kodagu	Kraljevo
Keswick	King's Lynn	Kodiak	Kras
Ketama	Kings Mountain	Kōfu	Krasnodar
Kew	Kingsport	Køge	Krasnoye Selo
Key Marco	Kingston (Canada)	Koguryu	Krefeld
Keyser	Kingston (Jamaica)	Kohala	Kremenchug
Key West	Kingston (New York)	Kohima	Kremenets
Kezmarok	Kingston (Rhode Island)	Kokand	Krems
Kfar Sava	Kingston upon Thames	Kokkola	Krishnagar
Khabarovsk	Kingstown	Kokomo	Krishna River
Khafaje	Kingswood	Kokopo	Kristiansand
Khairpur	Kingussie	Kokubunji	Kristianstad
Khalkis	King William Island	Kola	Krk
Khambāt	Kingwilliamstown	Kolding	Kroměříž
Khan Baghdadi	Kinsale	Kolhapur	Kronshlot
Khandwa	Kinshasa	Kolín	Krugersdorp
Khara Khoto	Kinston	Kolkata	Kruševac
Khargon	Kipparisia	Kollam	Kryvyi Rih
Khārk	Kiribati	Kołobrzeg	Kuala Lumpur
Kharkiv	Kirjath-Sepher	Kolomna	Kuch Bihār
Khartoum	Kirkcaldy	Komárno	Kuche
Khazar Empire	Kirkcudbright	Komotini	Kudalur
Kherson	Kirkholm	Konarak	Al Kufah
Khirbat Qumran	Kirkintilloch	Kong	Kukawa
Khiva	Kirkklareli	Kongju	Kulikovo
Khmelnitski	Kirkuk	Kongo, Kingdom of the	Kulmbach
Kholmogory	Kirkwall	Königswinter	Kulu
Khorāsān	Kirov	Köniz	Kumamoto
Khorezm	Kirovohrad	Konya	Kumanovo
Khorramshahr	Kirşehir	Koper	Kumasi
Khorsabad	Kirtland Hills	Korçë	Kumbakonam
Khotin	Kisangani	Korčula	Al-Kuneitra
Khozhikode	Kish	Korea	Kungälv
Khudjand	Kishangarh	Kormantine	Kunming
Khuzestan	Kismayu	Korone	Kunowice
Khvoy	Kittery	Korosten	Kurdistan
Khyber Pass	Kitty Hawk	Korsun-Shevchenkovski	Kuril Islands
Kidwelly	Kitzbühel	Kortrijk	Kurland
Kiel	Kizil Islands	Kos	Kurnool
Kielce	Klagenfurt	Kosala	Kursk
Kiev	Klaipeda	Kosam	Kurukshetra
Kilcoman	Klerksdorp	Kosice	Kurunegala
Kildare	Kleve	Kosovo	Kush
Kilkenny	Klin	Kostroma	Kushan Empire

Al-Kut	Lahaina	La Paz (Bolivia)	Leavenworth
Kutaisi	Lahn	La Paz (Mexico)	Lebadea
Kutná Hora	La Hogue	Lapland	Lebanon
Kuwait	Laholm	Lappeenranta	Lebanon (Connecticut)
Kwajalein	Lahore	Laprairie	Lebanon (Missouri)
KwaZulu-Natal	Lake District	Lapua	Lebanon (Pennsylvania)
Kwidzyń	Lake George	La Puerta	Lebanon Mountains
Kyongju	Lakehurst	Lapwai	Le Bardo
Kyōto	Lakemba	L'Aquila	Le Bec-Hellouin
Kyrenia	Lake Placid	Larache	Lebork
Kyrgyzstan	Lake Providence	Laramie	Le Bourget
Kyūshū	Lake Success	Laredo	Lebrija
Kyustendil	Lakeville	Largs	Le Cateau
	Lakhnau	Larissa	Lecce
L	Lakshadweep	Laristan	Lecco
La Albuera	Lalibala	Larnaca	Lech
La Asunción	Lalitpur	Larne	Lechfeld
La Bassée	Lalsot	La Rochelle	Lecompton
Labé	La Madeleine	La Roche-sur-Yon	Le Creusot
Labrador	La Malbaie	Larsa	Lectoure
Labuan	La Mancha	Las Bela	Ledo
Labuha	Lambaréné	Lascaux	Leech Lake
Labyrinth, The	Lambessa	Las Cruces	Leeds (England; village, Kent)
La Carolina	Lamego	La Serena	Leeds (England; city, Yorkshire)
Laccadive, Minicoy, and Amindivi Islands	Lamia	Las Guásimas	Leedstown
La Chaux-de-Fonds	Lampedusa	Lashkar	Leeuwarden
Lachine	Lampsacus	Las Palmas	Legaspi
Lachish	Lamu	La Spezia	Legnano
Lacolle	Lanark	Las Piedras	Legnica
Laconia (Greece)	Lancashire	Lassigny	Legnickie Pole
Laconia (United States)	Lancaster (England)	Las Vegas	Leh
La Crosse	Lancaster (United States)	Laswari	Le Havre
Lacui Peninsula	Lanciano	Latacunga	Lehighton
Ladakh	Landau	Latakia	Lehman Caves National Monument
Ladd Field	Landes de Lanvaux	La Tène	Leicester
Lade	Landrecies	Lathom and Burscough	Leicestershire
Lado Enclave	Landsberg	Latin Way	Leiden
Ladoga, Lake	Landshut	Latium	Leinster
Ladysmith	Landskrona	Latrun	Leipzig
Lae	Landstuhl	Latvia	Leiria
La Fayette (Georgia)	Langeais	Lauenburg	Leith
Lafayette (Indiana)	Langemarck	Lauffeld	Le Kef
Lafayette (Louisiana)	Langensalza	Laupen	Lek River
La Fère	Langley Air Force Base	Laurium	Le Mans
La Ferté-Bernard	Langport	Lausanne	Le Mas D'Azil
La Ferté-Milon	Langres	Lava Beds National Monument	Lemnos
Lafia	Langside	Laval	Le Mort Homme
Lafiagi	Lang's Nek	Lavaur	Le Moustier
Lafitte	Lang Son	La Vega	Lenkoran
La Fleche	Languedoc	La Venta	Lens
Lagash	Lansdowne	La Victoria	Leoben
Laggan	L'Anse au Meadows	Lavinium	León (Nicaragua)
Laghout	Lansing	Lawrence (Kansas)	León (Spain, city, province)
Lagos (Nigeria)	Lanxi	Lawrence (Massachusetts)	León (Spain; former kingdom)
Lagos (Portugal)	Lanzhou	Lead
La Guaira	Lao Cai	Leadville
Laguna	Laon	Lea River
	Laos

Leonforte	Libya (Africa)	Little Rock	Loudoun Hill
Leontini	Libya (Socialist	Little Saint Bernard Pass	Loughborough
Leontopolis	Peoples' Libyan Arab	Liverpool (Canada)	Loughrea
Lepanto	Jamahhiriya)	Liverpool (England)	Louisburg
Lepreum	Libyssa	Livingstone	Louisiade Archipelago
Leptis Magna	Licata	Livonia	Louisiana
Leptis Minor	Lichfield	Livorno	Louisiana Purchase
Le Puy	Lidice	Ljubljana	Louisville
Lérída	Lidzbark Warmiński	Llantwit-Major	Lourdes
Lerma	Liechtenstein	Llivia	Louth
Lerna	Liège	Loano	Louvain
Leros	Liepaja	Locarno	Louviers
Lerwick	Lier	Loches	Lovech
Les Andelys	Liévin	Lockerbie	Lovek
Les Baux-en-Provence	Ligny	Locmariaquer	Lovosice
Lesbos	Liguria	Locri	Lowell
Les Combarelles	Ligurian Republic	Lod	Lower Austria
Les Éparges	Lille	Lodi	Lower Saxony
Les Eyzies	Lillebonne	Lodomeria	Lowestoft
Lesh	Lima	Łódź	Loyalty Islands
Lesotho	Limburg	Logroño	Lozi Kingdom
Les Trois-Évêchés	Limerick	Loire River	Lu
Leszno	Limoges	Loja	Luanda
Letchworth	Limon (Costa Rica)	Lokeren	Luang Prabang (Laos; city)
Leticia	Limon (Philippines)	Lokoja	Luang Prabang (Laos; former Lao Kingdom)
Leubus	Limousin	Lombardy	Luan He
Leuctra	Limpopo	Lombok	Luba Empire
Leukas	Limpopo River	Lomé	Lubbock
Leuna	Linares	Lomonosov	Lübeck
Leuthen	Lincoln (England)	Łomża	Lublin
Leuze	Lincoln (United States)	Lonato	Lubumbashi
Levant	Lincolnshire	London	Lucania
Leven, Loch	Lindau	Londonderry	Lucca
Levidi	Lindos	Long Branch	Lucena
Lévis	Lindsey	Long Island	Lucera
Levoca	Line Islands	Long Island Sound	Lucerne
Lewes (England)	Lingayen Gulf	Longjumeau	Lucerne, Lake
Lewes (United States)	Lingen	Longling	Luckau
Lewiston (Idaho)	Lingling	Longwy	Luckenwalde
Lewiston (Maine)	Linhai	Longzhou	Lüdenschaid
Lewistown	Linköping	Lons-le-Saunier	Lüderitz
Lexington (Kentucky)	Linlithgow	Lookout Mountain	Ludhiana
Lexington (Massachusetts)	Linz	Loos	Ludlow
Lexington (Missouri)	Lipari Islands	Lop Buri	Ludwigsburg
Lexington (Virginia)	Lipova	Lora Del Río	Ludwigshafen am Rhein
Leyte	Lippe	Lorca	Lugano
Leyte Gulf	Lippstadt	Lorelei	Lugdunensis
Lgov	Liri River	Loreto	Lugo
Lhasa	Lisbon	Lorient	Lugoj
Liaoning	Lisburn	Lorraine	Luino
Liaoyang	Lisieux	Lorsch	Lugouqiao
Libén	Liskeard	Los Alamos	Lüleburgaz
Liberec	Lismore	Los Angeles	Lu Mountain
Liberia	Litchfield	Los Baños	Luna
Liberty Island	Lithuania	Lostwithiel	Lund
Libourne	Little America	Lotharingia	Lundaland
Libreville	Little Armenia	Lothian	Lundy's Lane
Liburnia	Little Bighorn River	Lötschen Pass

Lüneburg	Mâcon	Maine (France)	Mammoth Cave
Lunenburg	Macon	Maine (United States)	Man, Isle of
Lunéville	Macquarie Island	Mainland (Shetland Islands)	Manado
Lunga	Macroon	Mainland (Orkney Islands)	Managua
Luoyang	Mactan	Mainz	Manassas
Luque	Madagascar	Maipo	Manaus
Luristân	Madang	Majâz-al-Bâb	Manchester (England)
Lusaka	Madauros	Majdanek	Manchester (United States)
Lusatia	Madeba	Majorca	Manchuria
Lusignan	Madeira Islands	Majuba Hill	Mandalay
Lusitania	Madhya Bharat	Majunga	Mandali
Lutsk	Madhya Pradesh	Majuro	Mandan
Lutter am Barenberge	Madinat Ash Shab	Makarska	Mandasor
Lützen	Madison (New Jersey)	Makasar	Mandhata
Luxembourg (grand duchy)	Madison (Wisconsin)	Makhachkala	Mandi
Luxembourg (city and capital of the grand duchy)	Madiun	Makin	Mandu
Luxeuil	Madjapahit Empire	Makkedah	Manduria
Luxor	Madrid	Maknassy	Manfredonia
Luzon	Madura	Maktar	Mangalia
Luzzara	Madurai	Makuria	Mangalore
Lviv	Maebashi	Malabar Coast	Manhattan Island
Lyakhovichi	Maes Howe	Malabo	Manikiala
Lycaonia	Mafikeng	Malacca	Manila
Lycia	Magadha	Málaga	Manila Bay
Lycosura	Magdala (Ethiopia)	Malakand Pass	Manipur
Lycus	Magdala (Israel)	Malakhov	Manisa
Lydia	Magdalena River	Malang	Manitoba
Lyme Regis	Magdeburg	Mälaren	Mankato
Lymington	Magellan, Strait of	Malatya	Mannerheim Line
Lynchburg	Magenta	Malawi	Mannheim
Lynn	Magersfontein	Malay Peninsula	Manresa
Lyonnais	Maggiore, Lago	Malborghetto	Mansfield (England)
Lyons	Maghreb	Malbork	Mansfield (United States)
Lystra	Maginot Line	Malden	Al-Mansûra
	Maglemose	Maldives	Mantes-la-Jolie
	Magna Graecia	Maldon	Mantineia
	Magnesia (Turkey; ancient city of Lydia)	Malegaon	Mantua
M	Magnesia (Turkey; ancient city on the Hermes River)	Mälame	Manus
Maaleh-Acrabbim	Magnitogorsk	Mali	Manzanares
Ma'an	Magog	Mali Empire	Manzanillo
Maarianhamina	Mahabalipuram	Mali Federation	Manzhouli
Maassluis	Maharajpur	Malindi	Manzikert
Maastricht	Maharashtra	Malmédy	Manzini
Macao	Mahdia	Malmesbury	Maon
Macapá	Al-Mahdiyah	Malmö	Maputo
Macclesfield	Mahé	Malmstrom Air Force Base	Maracaibo
Macedon, Empire of	Maheshwar	Malolos	Maracay
Macedonia (region)	Mahoba	Malone	Maragheh
Macedonia (Yugoslav republic)	Mahón	Maloyaroslavets	Marah
Maceió	Maida	Malplaquet	Marais
Macerata	Maiden Castle	Malta	Marajó
Machilipatnam	Maidenhead	Małujowice	Maranhão
Machpelah, Cave of	Maidstone	Malvern	Maraş
Machu Picchu	Maihar	Malvern Hill	Maratha Confederacy
Maciejowice	Maikop	Malwa	Marathon
Mackinac	Maimana	Mamaroneck	Marazion
Macomer		Mamluk Empire	Marblehead
			Marburg

xxx Encyclopedia of Historic Places

Marche (Belgium)	Martinique	Mauritania	Mehun-sur-Yèvre
Marche (France)	Martinpuich	Mauritius	Meiktila
Marchena	Martinsburg	Maurya Empire	Meiningen
Marches, The	Martins Ferry	Mauthausen	Meiringen
Marchfeld	Maryland	Maxen	Meissen
Marcoing	Maryport	May, Isle of	Meknes
Marco Polo Bridge	Maryville	Maya Empire	Mekong River
Marcus Island	Marzabotto	Mayapán	Melanesia
Maree, Loch	Masada	Maybole	Melbourne
Maremma	Mascara	Mayen	Meleda
Marengo	Mascarene Islands	Mayenne	Melfi
Mareth Line	Maserfield	Mayerling	Melilla
Margarita	Maseru	Maynooth	Melitopol
Margate	Mashhad	Mayo, County	Melk
Margilan	Mashonaland	Mayu Point	Melle
Margum	Mason and Dixon's Line	Mazanderan	Meloria
Mari	Masovia	Mazara del Vallo	Melos
Mariana Islands	Masqat	Mazār-i-Sharīf	Melrose
Marianao	Massa	Mazovia	Melton Mowbray
Mariánské Lázně	Massachusetts	Mbala	Melun
Mari Autonomous Republic	Massacre Bay	Mbandaka	Memmingen
Maria Wörth	Massacre Hill	Mbuji-Mayi	Memphis (Egypt)
Mariazell	Massah	McDowell	Memphis (United States)
Marib	Massawa	McKeesport	Menai Strait
Maribor	Massicault	Mdina	Menasha
Marietta (Georgia)	Massillon	Meath	Mende
Marietta (Ohio)	Masuria	Meaux	Menderes
Marignano	Masyāf	Mecca	Mendes
Marinette	Matabeleland	Mechanicsville	Mendip Hills
Marino	Matagorda Bay	Mechelen	Mendoza
Marion	Matamoros	Al Mechili	Menen
Maritsa River	Matanzas	Mecklenburg	Mêng Chiang
Mariupol	Matapan, Cape	Mecklenburg County	Mengzi
Mariveles	Matara	Mecklenburg-Western Pomerania	Menlo Park
Market Bosworth	Mataram	Medellín	Menominee
Market Drayton	Mataró	Medemblick	Mentana
Market Harborough	Matera	Médenine	Menteith
Markham	Mateur	Medfield	Menton
Marks	Matewan	Medford (Massachusetts)	Mentor
Marlboro	Mathura	Medford (Oregon)	Menzel-Bourguiba
Marlborough	Matlock	Media	Merano
Marlow	Matmata	Medina	Mercer
Marly-le-Roi	Mato Grosso	Medina-Sidonia	Mercia
Marmande	Matopo Hills	Medinipur	Mergentheim
Marmara, Sea of	Matruh	Mediterranean Sea	Mérida (Mexico)
Marmarica	Ma-Tsu	Medūm	Mérida (Spain)
Marne River	Matsue	Medway River	Mérida (Venezuela)
Marquesas Islands	Matsumae	Meerssen	Meridian
Marrakech	Matsuyama	Meerut	Merioneth
Marsala	Mattancheri	Megalopolis	Merkus, Cape
Marseilles	Mattoon	Mégara	Meroë
Marshall	Mauban	Megara Hyblaea	Merrimack River
Marshall Islands	Maubeuge	Meghalaya	Merseburg
Marshfield	Mauchline	Megiddo	Mers-el-Kebir
Mars-la-Tour	Mauer	Mehádia	Mersin
Marston Moor	Maule	Mehidpur	Merthyr Tydfil
Martaban	Maumee	Mehsana	Merton
Martha's Vineyard	Mauretania		Merv

Mesa Verde National Park	Milvian Bridge	Mohenjo-Daro	Montélimar
Mesilla	Milwaukee	Möhne	Montello
Mesolóngion	Minchinhampton	Moissac	Montenegro
Mesopotamia	Mindanao	Mold	Montepulciano
Messapia	Minden	Moldavia	Montereau
Messenia	Mindoro	Moldova	Monterey
Messina	Minehead	Môle Saint-Nicholas	Monterrey
Messines	Mineo	Molino del Rey	Monte Sant'angelo
Metapona	Mingrelia	Molise	Montevideo
Metapontum	Minneapolis	Molokai	Montezuma Castle
Metauro	Minnehaha	Molossis	National Monument
Meteora	Minnesota	Moluccas	Montfaucon
Methone	Minorca	Mombasa	Montferrat
Methven	Minsk (Belarus; city)	Monaco	Montgomery (United States)
Metuchen	Minsk (Belarus; region)	Mona Island	Montgomery (Wales)
Metz	Minster-in-Sheppey	Monasterboice	Montiel
Meudon	Minturnae	Mönchengladbach	Montijo
Meuse River	Minturno	Monchy-le-Preux	Montilla
Mexico	Mirandola	Moncontour	Montluçon
Mexico City	Mirzapur	Mondoñedo	Montmartre
Miami	Misantla	Mondovi	Montmédy
Miani	Misenum	Monemvasia	Montmorency
Michigan	Miskolc	Monfalcone	Montoro
Michigan, Lake	Misratah	Mongol Empires	Montpelier
Michmash	Missionary Ridge	Mongolia (region)	Montpellier
Michoacán	Mississippi	Mongolia (state)	Montreal
Michurinsk	Mississippi River	Monhegan	Montreuil
Micronesia (island group)	Missoula	Monkwearmouth	Montreux
Micronesia (independent nation)	Missouri	Monmouth	Montrose
Middelburg (Netherlands)	Missouri River	Monmouthshire	Mont-Saint-Jean
Middelburg (South Africa)	Mistra	Monocacy	Mont-Saint-Michel
Middleboro	Mitanni Empire	Monongahela	Montserrat (Great Britain)
Middlebury	Mitchelstown	Monongahela River	Montserrat (Spain)
Middle Kingdom	Mithila	Monreale	Monywa
Middlesex	Mitla	Monroe (Louisiana)	Monza
Middletown (Connecticut)	Mito	Monroe (Michigan)	Moores Creek Bridge
Middletown (Rhode Island)	Miyazaki	Monrovia	Moorestown
Mid-Glamorgan	Miyazu	Mons	Moosburg
Midian	Mizoram	Mons Badonicus	Moose Factory
Midland	Moab	Monschau	Moradabad
Midlothian	Mobile	Montalto Uffugo	Morar
Midway	Mocha	Montana	Morat
Migdal-El	Mochica	Montargis	Moravia
Migdol	Mochlos	Montauban (France; city)	Moravian Gap
Mikulov	Modder	Montauban (France; village)	Moray
Milan	Modena	Montauk	Mordovian Autonomous Republic
Milazzo	Modica	Montbéliard	Morelia
Mildenhall	Modjokerto	Montbrison	Morelos
Miletus	Modlin	Montclair	Moreno
Milford	Moeris, Lake	Mont-de-Marsan	Moresnet
Milford Haven	Moesia	Montdidier	Morgantown
Millau	Mogadishu	Monte Albán	Morgarten
Milledgeville	Mogilev	Monte Carlo	Moriah
Mille Lacs Lake	Mogilev-Podolski	Montecatini	Morlaix
Millom	Mogul Empire	Monte Cristo	Morley
Mill Springs	Mohács	Montefiascone	Morocco
Milne Bay	Mohawk	Montefrio	Morotai
	Mohawk Trail	Montego Bay

Morristown	Munger	Nagoya	Nassau (Bahamas)
Morrisville	Munich	Nagpur	Nassau (Germany)
Morro Castle	Munster	Nagykanizsa	Nasser, Lake
Mortagne	Münster	Nagykörös	Nasugbu
Mortain	Münster am Stein	Naha	Natal (Brazil)
Mortara	Münsterburg	Nahāvand	Natal (South Africa)
Mortimer's Cross	Muntenia	Nain	Natchez
Moscow	Murano	Nairnshire	Natchez Trace
Moscow, Grand Duchy of	Murcia	Nairobi	Natchitoches
Moselle	Muret	An Najaf	Natick
Moselle River	Murfreesboro	Nájera	National Road
Moshi	Muri	Najibabad	Natural Bridge
Mosquito Coast	Murmansk	Nakagusuku Bay	Naucratis
Moss	Murom	Nakatsu	Naugatuck
Mossel Bay	Murshidabad	Nakhichevan	Naugatuck River
Mossley	Muş	Nakhichevan Autonomous Republic	Naulochus
Mostaganem	Musa, Gebel	Nakhon Pathom	Naumburg
Mostar	Musa Daği	Nakhon Ratchasima	Nauplia
Mosul	Music Pass	Nalchik	Nauru
Motyá	Muskegon	Namangan	Nauvoo
Moulins	Muskogee	Namibia	Navan
Moulmein	Musselburgh	Namsos	Navarre
Moundsville	Muzaffarabad	Namur	Navas de Tolosa, Las
Mountain Meadows	Muzaffarnagar	Nanaimo	Navasota
Mountain Province	Mwanamutapa	Nanchang	Navy Island
Mount Desert Island	Myanmar	Nancy	Nawabganj
Mount Holly	Mycalé	Nanded	Naxos (Greece)
Mount Vernon, New York	Mycenae	Nandi Drug	Naxos (Italy)
Mount Vernon, Virginia	Myitkyina	Nanjing	Nayarit
Moyale	Mykonos	Nankou	Nazareth
Mozambique (city)	Mylai	Nanning	Nazca
Mozambique (nation)	Myra	Nanticoke	N'Djamena
Mozdok	Mysia	Nantucket	Neagh, Lough
Mozhaisk	Mysore (India; city)	Nanumea	Neah Bay
Mozyr	Mysore (India; former state)	Nanxiong	Neanderthal
Mpumalanga	My Tho	Napata	Nebo, Mount
Msus	Mzab	Naples	Nebraska
Mtsensk	N	Naqada	Nebraska City
Mtskheta	Naas	Narayanganj	Neenah
Muckross	Nabadwip	Narbonne	Neerwinden
Mudhol	Nabataea	Narew	Negaunee
Mudki	Nabeul	Narmada	Negeri
Muhammad, Ra's	Nablus	Narni	Negev
Mühlberg	Náchod	Naroch	Negombo
Mühldorf	Nacogdoches	Narragansett	Neisse River
Mühlhausen in Thüringen	Nadvornaya	Narragansett Bay	Nejd
Mukachevo	Nadzab	Narva	Nellore
Mukāwir	Näfels	Narvik	Nelson River
Mülheim an der Ruhr	Naga	Naseby	Nemacolin's Path
Mulhouse	Naga Hills	Nashik	Neman River
Mull	Nagaland	Nashoba	Nemea
Mullan Trail	Nagano	Nashua	Nemi, Lake
Mullingar	Nagaoka	Nashville	Nemours
Multan	Nagapattinam		Nenagh
Mumbai	Nagasaki		Nepal
Muncie	Nagercoil		Nephi
Munda (Solomon Islands)	Nagod		Nérac
Munda (Spain)	Nagorno-Karabakh Republic		Nerchinsk
Münden

Nesvizh	New England	Nicosia	Norrköping
Netanya	New Forest	Nicoya	North Adams
Netherlands, The	Newfoundland	Nieuwpoort	Northallerton
Netherlands Antilles	New France	Niğde	Northampton (England)
Nether Stowey	New Georgia	Nigel	Northampton (United States)
Nettuno	New Granada	Niger	Northamptonshire
Neubrandenburg	New Grange	Nigeria	North Andover
Neuburg	New Guinea	Niger River	North Anna
Neuchâtel (Switzerland; town)	New Hampshire	Nijmegen	North Attleboro
Neuchâtel (Switzerland; canton)	New Harmony	Nikkō	North Brabant
Neuchâtel, Lake of	New Haven	Nikolayev	North Braddock
Neuf-Brisach	New Iberia	Nikopol (Bulgaria)	North Carolina
Neuf-Château	New Ireland	Nikopol (Ukraine)	North Chicago
Neuilly-Plaisance	New Jersey	Nikšić	North Dakota
Neuilly-sur-Seine	New Lanark	Nile River	Northern Cape
Neunkirchen	New London	Niles (Michigan)	Northern Neck
Neuruppin	New Madrid	Niles (Ohio)	Northern Rhodesia
Neusiedler, Lake	Newmarket	Nîmes	Northern Territory
Neuss	New Market	Nineveh	Northfield
Neustadt an der Weinstrasse	New Mexico	Ningbo	North German Confederation
Neustrelitz	New Milford	Ningsia	North Holland
Neustria	New Netherland	Nioro	North Ingermanland
Neuve-Chapelle	New Orleans	Niort	North Kingstown
Neuve-Église	Newport (England)	Nippur	North Korea
Neuville-Saint-Vaast	Newport (Ohio)	Niš	North Little Rock
Neuwied	Newport (Rhode Island)	Nishapur	North Olmstead
Nevada	Newport (Wales)	Niterói	North Ossetia-Alania
Nevers	Newport News	Nitra	North Platte
Neville's Cross	New Providence	Nive	North Pole
New Albany	New Rochelle	Nivernais	North Rhine–Westphalia
Newark (England)	New Romney	Nizhnevartovsk	North Sea
Newark (New Jersey)	Newry	Nizhni Novgorod	North Tarrytown
Newark (Ohio)	New Salem	Nizip	Northumberland (England)
New Bedford	New Siberian Islands	Noailles	Northumberland (United States)
New Bern	New Smyrna Beach	Nogales (Mexico)	Northumbria
New Braunfels	New South Wales	Nogales (United States)	North West
New Britain (Papua New Guinea)	New Spain	Nogent-le-Rotrou	North-West Frontier Province
New Britain (United States)	New Sweden	Nogent-sur-Seine	Northwest Passage
New Brunswick (Canada)	Newton (Kansas)	Noginsk	Northwest Territories
New Brunswick (United States)	Newton (Massachusetts)	Nok	Northwest Territory
Newburgh	Newtownards	Nola	Northwich
Newbury (England)	Newtown Butler	Nolichuckey River	Norwalk (Connecticut)
Newbury (United States)	New Ulm	Nombre de Dios	Norwalk (Ohio)
Newburyport	New Westminster	Nome	Norway
New Caledonia	New York	Nomenkan	Norwich (England)
Newcastle (Australia)	New York City	Nootka Sound	Norwich (United States)
Newcastle (South Africa)	New Zealand	Norcia	Notium
New Castle (Delaware)	Nezhin	Norden	Nottingham
New Castle (Indiana)	Ngesebus	Nördlingen	Nottinghamshire
New Castle (Pennsylvania)	Nha Trang	Nord-Ostsee Kanal	Nouakchott
Newcastle-under-Lyme	Niagara Falls (cities)	Nore, The	Nouméa
Newcastle upon Tyne	Niagara Falls (falls)	Norfolk (England)	Novara
New Delhi	Niagara-on-the-Lake	Norfolk (United States)	Nova Scotia
New Echota	Niamey	Norfolk Island	Nova Sofala
	Nias	Noricum	Novaya Zemlya
	Nicaea	Norman
	Nicaragua	Norridgewock
	Nice	Norristown
	Nicopolis

Nové Zámky	Oder River	Omuta	Oruro
Novgorod	Odessa	Onega	Orvieto
Novi Ligure	Odon	Oneida	Ôsaka
Novi Pazar	Offaly	Onitsha	Osawatomie
Novi Sad	Offa's Dyke	Onondaga, Lake	Osh
Novi Slankamen	Offenbach	Ontario	Oshawa
Novocherkassk	Ogaden	Ontario, Lake	Oshkosh
Novogradok	Ogaki	Opava	Oshogbo
Novokuznetsk	Ogbomoshu	Opelousas	Osijek
Novorossiysk	Ogden	Opequon	Oskaloosa
Novosibirsk	Ogdensburg	Ophir	Oslo
Nowa Sól	Ohio	Opis	Osnabrück
Nowy Sącz	Ohio and Erie Canal	Opobo	Osorno
Noyon	Ohio River	Opole	Osroene
Nubia	Ohrid	Oporto	Ossetia
Nueva Galicia	Oil City	Oradea	Ossetian Military Road
Nueva San Salvador	Oil Rivers	Oraibi	Ossining
Nuevo Laredo	Oise River	Oran	Ossory
Nuevo León	Oita	Orange (France)	Ostend
Nuku Hiva	Okayama	Orange (United States)	Ostia
Numantia	Okazaki	Orangeburg	Ostian Way
Numfoor	Okeechobee, Lake	Orange Free State	Ostrava
Numidia	Okinawa	Oranienburg	Ostrog
Nunavut	Oklahoma	Orbetello	Ostrogothic Kingdom
Nupe	Oklahoma City	Orchomenus	Ostrołęka
Nuremberg	Okmulgee	Örebro	Osuna
Nusaybin	Öland	Oregon	Oswego
Nuuanu Pali	Olawa	Oregon City	Oswestry
Nuwara Eliya	Olbia	Oregon Country	Otavallo
Nuzi	Old Deer	Oregon Trail	Otranto
Nyborg	Oldenburg	Orekhovo-Zuyevo	Otsego, Lake
Nyíregyháza	Old Lyme	Orel	Ôtsu
Nyköping	Old Panama	Orenburg	Ottawa (Canada)
Nymphaion, Cape	Old Sarum	Orense	Ottawa (Illinois)
Nymphenburg	Old Sturbridge Village	Øresund	Ottawa (Kansas)
Nyon	Olduvai Gorge	Orientale	Ottawa River
Nysa	Oléron	Oriente	Otterburn
Nyssa	Oleśnica	Orihuela	Ottoman Empire
O	Olinda	Orillia	Ottumwa
Oahu	Olives, Mount of	Orinoco River	Otumba
Oakland	Oliwa	Oriskany	Ouagadougou
Oak Park	Olomouc	Orissa	Quargla
Oak Ridge	Olonets	Orizaba	Ouchy
Oaxaca	Olongapo	Orkney Islands	Oudenaarde
Oban	Oloron-Sainte-Marie	Orlando	Oudh
Oberammergau	Olshdyn	Orlando, Cape	Ouidah
Oberhausen	Oltenița	Orléanais	Oujda
Oberlin	Olustee	Orléans	Oulu
Obock	Olympia (Greece)	Orleans, Island of	Ourique
Ob' River	Olympia (United States)	Orleans, Isle of	Ouro Prêto
Ocean Grove	Olympus	Ormoc	Ovalau
Ocean Island	Olynthus	Ormskirk	Overijssel
Ochakov	Omaha	Oro Bay	Overland Trail
Ocmulgee River	Omaha Beach	Orontes River	Oviedo
Odendaalsrus	Oman	Orsha	Oviedo Province
Odense	Ombos	Orsk	Owatonna
Oder-Neisse Line	Omdurman	Orthez	Owensboro
	Omsk	Ortona	Owyhee River

Oxford (England)	Palwal	Pasadena	Pekan
Oxford (Massachusetts)	Pamir	Pasargadae	Pekin
Oxford (Mississippi)	Pampanga	Pasay	Pelagian Islands
Oxfordshire	Pamphylia	Pascagoula	Pelée, Mount
Oxyrhynchus	Pamplona	Pasco	Peleliu
Oyo	Panaji	Pas-de-Calais	Pelham Manor
Oyster Bay	Panama	Passaic	Pella
P	Panama Canal	Passaic River	Peloponnesus
Paardeberg	Panama City	Passau	Pelotas
Paarl	Panay	Passchendaale	Pelusium
Pabianice	Pančevo	Passero, Cape	Pemba
Pachácamac	Pandharpur	Pasto	Pembina
Pachuca	Pandosia	Patagonia	Pembroke (Canada)
Pacific Islands, Trust	Panevėžys	Patan (India)	Pembroke (Wales)
Territory of the	Pangasinan	Patan (Nepal)	Pembrokeshire
Pactolus	Pangkor	Patara	Penang
Padang	Panipat	Patay	Penang Island
Paderborn	Panjdeh	Paternò	Pendelikon
Padre Island	Pankow	Paterson	Pendleton
Padua	Panmunjom	Patiala	Penetanguishene
Paducah	Pannonia	Pátmos	Penghu
Paekche	Pantelleria	Patna	Peninsula, The
Paeonia	Pápa	Patos	Penmarch
Paestum	Papal States	Pátraí	Pennsylvania
Pag	Papantla	Pattani	Penn Yan
Pagan	Papeete	Pátzcuaro	Penobscot Bay
Pago Pago	Paphlagonia	Pau	Penobscot River
Pahang	Paphos	Paulsboro	Pensacola
Paimpol	Papua New Guinea	Pavia	Penshurst
Paisley	Pará	Pavlodar	Penthièvre
Pakistan	Paracale	Pavlovsk	Penza
Pakokku	Paracel Islands	Pawhuska	Penzance
Palaikastro	Paradise	Pawnee	Peoria
Palanan	Paraguairí	Pawtucket	Peraea
Palatinate	Paraguay	Payerne	Perak
Palatine Hill	Paraíba	Paysandú	Percé
Palau Islands	Paramaribo	Pazardzhik	Perche
Palawan	Paramus	Pazin	Perekop, Isthmus of
Palazzolo Acreide	Paramushir	Pazyryk	Pereslavl-Zalesski
Palembang	Paran, Wilderness of	Peabody	Pereyaslav-Khmelnitski
Palencia	Paraná	Peace River	Perga
Palenque	Paranaguá	Peach Tree Creek	Pergamum
Palermo	Paray-le-Monial	Pea Ridge	Périers
Palestine	Parchim	Pearl Coast	Périgord
Palestrina	Pardubice	Pearl Harbor	Périgieux
Palghat	Paris	Peary Land	Perim
Palikou	Parkersburg	Peć	Perlis
Pallava Empire	Parma	Pechenga	Perm
Palma	Parnassus	Pecos	Péronne
Palma Soriano	Parnu	Pecos River	Perpignan (France)
Palm Springs	Páros	Pécs	Perryville
Palmyra (Syria)	Parramatta	Peekskill	Persepolis
Palmyra (United States)	Parras de la Fuente	Peel	Persia
Palmyra Island	Parris Island	Peenemünde	Persian Gulf
Palo Alto (California)	Parrot's Beak	Pegu	Perth (Australia)
Palo Alto (Texas)	Parrsboro	Peipus, Lake	Perth (Scotland)
Palos de la Frontera	Parsnip River	Peiwar Pass	Perth Amboy
	Parthia	Pekalongan	Perthshire

A

AABENRAA See ÅBENRÅ

AACHEN [Bad Aachen] [French: Aix-la-Chapelle; Latin: Aquis Granum] (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 40 mi WSW of COLOGNE, near the Belgian and Dutch borders. An ancient Roman thermal station, it was founded by Granus in 124 B.C. and was later the favorite residence of Charlemagne, who is buried here. From 813 to 1531 it was the coronation city of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, and in 1166 it was the seat of the schismatic council that canonized Charlemagne. Two treaties were signed here in 1668 and 1748 ending, respectively, the War of Devolution and the War of the Austrian Succession. In 1794 it was captured by the French and was annexed to FRANCE in 1801. Part of PRUSSIA after the Congress of VIENNA of 1815, it was occupied by the Allies after World War I until 1930. During World War II it was badly damaged by bombing and was the first important German city to fall to the Allies, on October 21, 1944. It has since been rebuilt. The first cross-frontier industrial park in Europe, Avantis, is situated N of Aachen on the Dutch border.

AALBORG See ÅLBORG

AALEN (Germany)

Town in BADEN–WÜRTTEMBERG, 44 mi E of STUTTGART. It grew up around a large Roman fort and was a free imperial city from 1360 to 1803, when it passed to WÜRTTEMBERG. It was almost destroyed by fire in 1634. Remains of the Roman fort still stand.

AALST [French: Alost] (Belgium)

City in East FLANDERS province, on the Dendre River, 16 mi NW of BRUSSELS. An ancient capital of the counts of Flanders, it was the birthplace of Maartens, who established one of the first printing presses in Europe here in 1473. Part of FRANCE from 1667 to 1706, it was occupied by GERMANY during both world wars.

AARAU (Switzerland)

City and capital of AARGAU canton, on the Aare River, 25 mi W of ZÜRICH. Founded in the 13th century, it was under Hapsburg rule until conquered by BERN in 1415. From 1798 to 1803 it was the capital of the HELVETIC REPUBLIC before joining the Swiss Confederation as the capital of the revived Aargau canton.

AARGAU [French: Argovie] (Switzerland)

Canton of N Switzerland, N of Luzern canton. In the 11th century it was the homeland of the Hapsburg dynasty, but following its capture by the Swiss Confederation in 1415, was divided between BERN and LUCERNE. In 1803 it was reunited as a canton, with its capital at AARAU.

AARHUS See ÅRHUS

AARLEN See ARLON

ABA (Nigeria)

City 40 mi NE of PORT HARCOURT, on the Aba River. Starting as a small settlement of the Ibo tribe, in the

2 Ābādān

20th century it became a British administrative center. In 1929 the women of Aba revolted against direct taxation and Britain's arbitrary choice of local rulers.

ĀBĀDĀN [Abadan] (Iran)

City in Khuzestan province, on Abadan Island in the Shatt al-Arab, near the head of the PERSIAN GULF, 70 mi S of AHWAZ. Strategically located in the oil-rich region of KHUZESTAN, it is a pipeline terminus and a huge oil refining center. During the 1980 Iran-Iraq War it was therefore a prime target of the Iraqis. See also IRAQ.

ABAE (Greece)

Archaeological site in Phocis department, N of Lake Copais, approximately 8 mi SE of ELATEIA. The site was famous for its oracle of Apollo, which was sacked by PERSIA in 480 B.C. during its second invasion of Greece, and again during the Sacred War of 356 to 347 B.C. The ruins of the temple and part of the town walls are still visible today.

ABAIANG ATOLL [Apaiang, Apia] [former: Charlotte Island] (Kiribati)

Coral atoll in the former Gilbert Islands, W central Pacific Ocean. Discovered by John Marshall in 1788, it was occupied by the Japanese during World War II from 1941 to 1943. Captured by U.S. forces, it was used as a base for the offensive against the MARSHALL ISLANDS.

ABALLO See AVALLON

ABBASID CALIPHATE

The ruling dynasty of Islam from 749 to A.D. 1258. At its height, the Islamic Empire of the Abbasids comprised southwestern Asia, extending into AFGHANISTAN, UZBEKISTAN, and North Africa. The Abbasids were not recognized by the Muslims in SPAIN, nor west of EGYPT after 787. In theory, the caliph was both temporal and spiritual ruler of all Muslims and governor of other lands under Muslim control. In practice, some regions refused to admit his authority, and in others his rule was at times nominal.

The Abbasids were an Arabic family, descended from Abbas, an uncle both of Muhammad the Prophet, founder of Islam, and of Ali the fourth caliph. In the early eighth century, disputes within Islam over the succession to the caliphate and other spiritual matters resulted in a split into Shiite and Sunni factions. The Sunnis supported the Umayyads, who had held the caliphate at DAMASCUS since 661. In 749 a revolt under the leadership of Abu Muslim made Abu al-Abbas as-Saffah the first Abbasid caliph.

Under the second Abbasid caliph, al-Mansur (754–75), the capital was moved from Damascus to BAGHDAD, which the caliph founded in 762. Here Persian influence became strong, and a brilliant court civilization developed. Culture and science flourished, especially under Harun al-Rashid, caliph from 786 to 809, and his son, al-Mamun, caliph during the period 813–33. In 836 the Abbasids founded SAMARRA, now in north-central IRAQ, on the site of a Prehistoric settlement and briefly made it their residence.

The glory of the Abbasids did not last. By the mid-ninth century, decline had set in. There were periods of disorder, assassinations, and intrigues. Turkish troops, introduced to support the caliphate, came to hold the real power, and in 1055 the Seljuk Turks captured Baghdad and ended the temporal power of the caliphs. The empire then split into kingdoms and other power centers, leaving the caliphs as spiritual leaders only. During the period 1218–24 the Mongol conqueror Genghiz Khan overran TURKISTAN, TRANSOXIANA, and Afghanistan and raided PERSIA. This further reduced the power and reputation of the Abbasids. In 1258 Hulagu Khan, Genghiz Khan's grandson, assailed Baghdad, sacked and burned it, massacring the inhabitants. The 37th and last Abbasid caliph died in the catastrophe. A member of the family escaped to Egypt where he was recognized as the Islamic caliph, but he and his successors were dominated by the Mamluks, non-Arabic warriors who had gained power in Egypt. This surviving Abbasid line continued in this situation until the OTTOMAN EMPIRE conquered Egypt in 1517.

ABBATIS VILLA See ABBEVILLE (France)

ABBENDUN See ABINGDON

ABBEVILLE [Latin: Abbatis Villa] (France)

Town in PICARDY, on the SOMME RIVER, 28 mi NW of AMIENS. It was founded as a dependency of the abbey of St. Riquier in the ninth century and became part of English territory as the capital of PONTTHIEU in 1272. In 1514 it was the site of the marriage of Louis XII and Mary, sister of Henry VIII of ENGLAND. In 1844 remains of an early Paleolithic stone industry were discovered here, making it the type site for the Abbevillian culture. An Allied base during World War I, it was occupied by the Germans in World War II.

ABBEVILLE (United States)

City in NW SOUTH CAROLINA, 65 mi NW of AUGUSTA, GEORGIA. Important in the history of the Confederacy, it was here that the first organized secessionist meeting was held on November 22, 1860. The last Confederate cabinet meeting took place here under Jefferson Davis on May 2, 1865.

ABDALI (Yemen)

Former sultanate of S ARABIAN PENINSULA, now in the Second Governorate, N of ADEN. Its capital was LAHIJ. An independent Sultanate from 1728, it occupied Aden and became one of the most powerful sultanates of the southern Arabian Peninsula. Following the British occupation of Aden in 1839, it signed the first of a series of treaties that led to the establishment of Aden as a British colony in 1937. In 1967, it became part of South Yemen, now part of the Republic of Yemen.

ABDERA [Avdira] (Greece)

Town 12 mi SE of XÁNTHI, on Cape Bulustra, in THRACE. Founded c. 655 B.C. by colonists from CLAZOMENAE, it was destroyed by Thracians c. 550 B.C. but was rebuilt by Ionian refugees from TEOS c. 545 B.C. Captured by Philip II of MACEDON in 352 B.C., it was sacked by the Romans c. 170 B.C. and it declined thereafter. It was the birthplace of the Greek philosophers Protagoras (c. 490 B.C.) and Democritus (c. 460 B.C.). It is still inhabited today and contains many archaeological remains.

ABDERA (Spain) See ADRA

ABDOU See ABYDOS

ABELLINUM See AVELLINO

ABEMAMA ATOLL [Apamama] [former: Roger Simpson Island] (Kiribati)

Coral atoll in the former Gilbert Islands in the W central Pacific Ocean. In the 19th century it was the seat of the region's ruling family. The British formally annexed the Gilbert Islands here in 1892. During World War II it was held by the Japanese during the period 1942–43, when it fell to U.S. forces.

ÅBENRÅ [Aabenraa] [German: Apenrade] (Denmark)

City, port, and capital of Sønderjyllands county, at the head of Åbenrå Fjord, 15 mi S of HADERSLEY, SE JUTLAND. Attacked by Wends in the 12th century, it became a flourishing port in the 17th and 18th centuries. It was part of GERMANY from 1864 to 1920, after which it joined Denmark by plebiscite.

ABENSBERG (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, 18 mi SW of REGENSBURG. During the Napoleonic Wars it was the scene of a series of engagements that composed the battles of Abensberg-Eckmühl (or Eggmühl) during the period April 19–23, 1809. During the fighting, the French under Napoleon forced the Austrians under Archduke Charles to retreat. This defeat cost AUSTRIA the support of the German states who either remained neutral or stayed allied to FRANCE.

ABEOKUTA (Nigeria)

Town and capital of Ogun State, 60 mi N of LAGOS, on the Ogun River. Founded c. 1830 by Egba refugees from civil wars and slavers, it was also settled by Yoruba refugees and Anglican and Baptist missionaries. It became important as a trading center and the capital of the Egbas. Consequently it clashed with BENIN (then Dahomey) but twice defeated Dahomey raiders, once in 1851 and again in 1864. After the Yoruba civil wars in 1893, the independence of the Egba United Government was recognized by the British, who incorporated Abeokuta into the colony of Nigeria in 1914.

ABERBROTHOCK See ARBROATH

ABERBROTHWICK See ARBROATH

ABERCONWY See CONWAY

ABERCROMBIE, FORT See FORT ABERCROMBIE

ABERDEEN [ancient: Devana] (Scotland)

City and port on the NORTH SEA, 95 mi NNE of EDINBURGH, the administrative headquarters of GRAMPIAN region. Created a royal burgh in 1176, it had become a major port by the 14th century, but was burned by the English under Edward III in 1336. As a Royalist and Episcopal stronghold it suffered severely during the Civil War in the 1650s. An important industrial center today, it has expanded since the North Sea oil boom of the 1970s.

4 Abergavenny

ABERGAVERNYY [earlier: Gobannium] (Wales)

Town in GWENT, at the confluence of the Gavenny and Usk Rivers, 16 mi N of NEWPORT. Strategically positioned on the route between the Black Mountains and the Brecon Beacons, it was fortified by Romans and Normans and was attacked several times between the 11th and 17th centuries.

ABERHOND See BRECON

ABERTEIFI See CARDIGAN

ABERYSTWYTH (Wales)

Town on Cardigan Bay, 54 mi N of SWANSEA, Ceredigion. A fortress-castle was built here in the 13th century by Edward I, and the town was chartered in 1277. It became a center of Welsh culture and in 1872 saw the opening of the first college of the University of Wales. In the suburb of Llanbadarnfawr is a church that was a center of learning and of Celtic Christianity in the Dark Ages.

ABIDJAN (Ivory Coast)

City and port on the Ébrié Lagoon of the Gulf of GUINEA, West Africa. It is the capital and largest city of the Republic of the Ivory Coast. Abidjan was a small village until it became a railway terminus in 1904, and it grew still more after the French enlarged its facilities in the 1920s. Abidjan became the capital of France's Ivory Coast colony in 1934 and of the independent nation when it became free in 1960. The Museum of the Ivory Coast is here.

ABILENE (United States)

City in central KANSAS, on the Smoky Hill River, 132 mi W of KANSAS CITY. Settled in 1859, it was an important "cow town," a cattle transit point, from 1867 to 1871, after Joseph McCoy made it the terminus of the CHISHOLM TRAIL from TEXAS. President Eisenhower, who spent his youth here, is also buried here.

ABILENE (United States)

City in NW central TEXAS, 150 mi SW of FORT WORTH. Founded as a terminus of the Texas and Pacific Railroad in 1881, it was named after ABILENE, Kansas. Today it is an educational center.

ABINDONIA See ABINGDON

ABINGDON [Latin: Abbendun, Abindonia] (England)

Town in OXFORDSHIRE, at the confluence of the THAMES RIVER and the Ock River, 6 mi S of OXFORD. It was the site of a wealthy Benedictine abbey, which was founded c. 675 and was an important seat of learning in medieval times. The abbey was dissolved on February 9, 1538. Today only parts of the abbey and its churches remain. The town was chartered in 1556.

ABKHAZIA [Apsny, Abkhasia, Abkhaz Autonomous Republic] (Georgia)

Autonomous republic in NW Georgia, between the CAUCASUS Mountains and the BLACK SEA. Its capital is SUKHUMI. Colonized by Greeks in the sixth century B.C., it later came under the control of the ROMAN EMPIRE and the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. In the eighth century it became an independent kingdom under the leader of the Abkhaz tribe and was incorporated into Georgia in the 10th century. Conquered by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1578, it became a Russian protectorate in 1810 and was fully annexed in 1864. It was made an autonomous republic of the Soviet Union in 1921. After Georgian independence in 1991, Abkhazia has become an autonomous republic with little Georgian control after Georgian forces were ejected in armed conflict during the period 1992–93. Thousands of ethnic Georgians also left during and after the conflict, while Russian peacekeeping forces maintained the cease-fire. The acting authorities have declared independence for the republic as the Republic of Apsny. The majority of the voters approved a constitution in 1999. While the country has been self-ruling since 1993, there has been little international recognition of Abkhazia's independence, and there have been some international pressures to come to an agreement since Georgia's "Rose Revolution" in 2003.

ÅBO See TURKU

ABO CHUKU See UMUAHIA

ABOMEY (Benin)

Town in Zou department, 65 mi NW of PORTO NOVO. It was founded c. 1625 by King Aklin as the capital of the kingdom of Abomey, which later became Dahomey, then BENIN. It was captured and burned in 1892 by the French under General Alfred Dodds. The royal palace and tombs can still be seen today.

ABONOUTEICHOS See INEBOLU

ABOUKIR See ABUKIR

ABRAHAM, PLAINS OF (Canada)

Plateau bordering the upper W part of the city of QUEBEC, on the ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, in Quebec province. The final and decisive battle of the French and Indian Wars was fought here on September 13, 1759, when the French under the marquis de Montcalm were defeated by the British under James Wolfe. Both generals died in the battle, which established British supremacy in Canada.

ABRANTES [Latin: Aurantes] (Portugal)

Town in Santarém province, on the TAGUS RIVER, 32 mi ENE of SANTARÉM. Strategically placed on the route to LISBON, it marked the Portuguese border after being captured from the Moors in 1148 by Alfonso I of Portugal. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, the French under Jean-Andoche Junot won a battle here, on November 24, 1807, after which Junot assumed the title of duke of Abrantes.

ABRUZZI [Italian: Abruzzo] (Italy)

Region in the central Apennines, between LATIUM and the ADRIATIC SEA. L'AQUILA is its capital. It came under Roman rule in the fourth century B.C. and became part of the Lombard duchy of SPOLETO from the sixth to the 11th centuries. It was part of the Kingdom of NAPLES from 1266 to 1860, when it joined the Kingdom of Italy. Until 1965 it formed part of the region known as Abruzzi e Molise.

ABRUZZO See ABRUZZI

ABUCAY (Philippines)

Municipality in Bataan province, LUZON, 3 mi N of BALANGA. It was an important U.S. defensive position following the Japanese invasion of the Philippines in 1941, during World War II. In January 1942 it was the site of especially heavy fighting.

ABU DHABI [Arabic: Abū Zabi, Abū Zaby] (United Arab Emirates)

Emirate of the E ARABIAN PENINSULA, on the Persian Gulf, W of OMAN and DUBAI. Its capital is the city of Abu Dhabi. It became a British protectorate in 1892, and following independence on December 2, 1971, became part of a federation of six other emirates to form the United Arab Emirates. It is the largest and wealthiest of the emirates and the site of the federation's capital.

ABUJA (Nigeria)

City and capital territory in central Nigeria, and capital of the country since 1991. Abuja was picked to be the capital of Nigeria in 1976, but construction was slow and expensive. Abuja is a planned city, but is still under development, and some of the government ministries are still in LAGOS, which is still the major city and center of business in the country.

ABUKIR [Aboukir] [Egyptian: Abu Qir] (Egypt)

Battlefield in Behara province, 14 mi NE of ALEXANDRIA on Abukir Bay. During the Napoleonic Wars, it was the site of battles that restored English power in the MEDITERRANEAN SEA and put an end to French ambitions in Egypt. At the Battle of the Nile, fought in Abukir Bay on August 1, 1798, the French fleet was defeated by the British under Admiral Lord Horatio Nelson. On July 25, 1799, the Turkish army was defeated here by Napoleon. The French were again defeated by the British under General Ralph Abercromby on March 21, 1801.

ABULA See ÁVILA

ABU QIR See ABUKIR

ABURY See AVEBURY

ABU SHAHRIN See ERIDU

ABU-SIMBEL [Abu-Sunbul, Ipsambul] (Egypt)

Archaeological site in Aswān province, 145 mi SW of ASWĀN, on the NILE RIVER. Situated in ancient

6 Abu-Sunbul

NUBIA, it was the site of two temples built in the sandstone cliffs along the Nile c. 1250 B.C. during the reign of Ramses II. The temples were discovered in 1812 but were later menaced by the rising waters of the Aswān High Dam. This resulted in a salvage operation in the 1960s, coordinated by UNESCO, in which the temples were cut apart and reassembled 200 ft higher up. The larger of the temples has on its facade four colossal statues that are 60 ft high.

ABU-SUNBUL See ABU-SIMBEL

ABU ZABI See ABU DHABI

ABU ZABY See ABU DHABI

ABYDOS [Arabic: Araba al-Madfuna; Egyptian: Abdou, Ebot] (Egypt)

Archaeological site on the NILE RIVER, 50 mi NW of THEBES, in Girga province. Founded c. 3100 B.C., it was the seat of the first two Egyptian dynasties. Under the Fourth Dynasty it became a religious center associated with the worship of the god Osiris. Many remarkable temples can be seen at Abydos today, including some dating from the time of Ramses II (1292–1225 B.C.) and Seti I (1313–1292 B.C.).

ABYDOS (Turkey)

Town of ancient PHRYGIA, 4 mi NE of modern ÇANAKKALE, on the Hellespont (DARDANELLES) now in Çanakkale province. Founded c. 670 B.C. by colonists from MILETUS, it figures in the legend of Hero and Leander. On his way to invade GREECE c. 480 B.C., Xerxes I, king of PERSIA, built a bridge of boats across the Hellespont here for his army. A free city, it was captured by Philip V of MACEDON after a heroic resistance c. A.D. 200.

ABYSSINIA See ETHIOPIA

ACADIA [French: Acadie] (Canada)

Region of E Canada, the location of which has constantly shifted. The name was first given to NOVA SCOTIA, and included New Brunswick. The region was first settled at Passamaquoddy Bay in 1604 by Pierre de Monts. Port Royal, which was settled in 1605, was burned by the British in 1613. Nova Scotia was ceded to FRANCE in 1632 by the treaty of SAINT-GERMAIN-EN-LAYE but was overrun by the British in 1654. Although returned to France in 1670, the French were gradually dislodged from Acadia in the first half of the 18th century. In 1755 and 1758 thousands of Acadians were deported by the British, many to LOUISIANA.

ACADIE See ACADIA

ACAPULCO [Acapulco de Juárez] (Mexico)

City, port, and famous resort in GUERRERO state, on the Pacific Ocean, 190 mi SSW of MEXICO CITY. The site of one of the finest natural anchorages in the world, it was discovered by Hernando Cortes in 1531 and settled in 1550. During the period 1565–1815 it was the chief Spanish port for trade with the PHILIPPINES and for the exploration of the Pacific Ocean. Nearby is the ruined city of Ciudad Perdida, believed to be 2,000 years old.

ACAPULCO DE JUÁREZ See ACAPULCO

ACARNANIA [Greek: Akarnan] (Greece)

Ancient region between the Ionian Sea and the Acheulous River. Colonized in the seventh century B.C. by Corinthians, it remained isolated from the main currents of ancient Greek history. With the help of ATHENS in the fifth century B.C. it maintained its independence against CORINTH and SPARTA but fell under Spartan domination during the period 390–375 B.C. In 314 B.C. the Acarnanian League was formed and engaged in a struggle with AETOLIA. The region enjoyed autonomy during Roman times until the Christian era. With the fall of CONSTANTINOPLE in 1204, it passed to EPIRUS. It became part of Greece in 1832.

ACCAD See AKKAD

ACCHO See ACRE

ACCI See GUADIX

ACCRA [Akkra] (Ghana)

City and capital of Ghana, on the Gulf of Guinea, 100 mi SSE of KUMASI. In the 17th century it was the site of three European trading fortresses, which were all in British hands by 1871. It became the capital of the British colony of the GOLD COAST in 1876 and was made capital of independent Ghana in 1957.

ACEH [Atjeh, Acheh, Achin] (Indonesia)

Province in northernmost SUMATRA. A Muslim sultanate from the 13th century, it became powerful in the 17th century following the decline of the kingdom of MADJAPAHIT. Dutch occupation began in 1873, but it took 30 years before they controlled the whole region. It became part of Indonesia in 1949 and was the scene of a rebellion in 1953. Its creation as a separate province in 1956 failed to stem aspirations toward independence. Aceh was the closest point to the earthquake and tsunami off its Indian Ocean coast in 2004. Approximately 200,000 died and another 500,000 were made homeless. The Indonesian government and the Free Aceh movement signed a peace agreement on August 15, 2005.

ACELDAMA [Aramaic: Hāgēl Dēmā; Greek: Akeldama; Syriac: Okel Dama] (Israel)

Potter's field S of JERUSALEM, in Jerusalem district. According to the New Testament it was the site of Judas Iscariot's suicide following his betrayal of Jesus. The bribe of 30 pieces of silver offered by the priests for the betrayal of Jesus, which was returned by Judas before his suicide, was used by the priests to purchase the field as a burial ground for strangers.

ACELUM See ASOLO

ACERRA [Latin: Acerrae] (Italy)

Town in Napoli province, in CAMPANIA, 9 mi NE of NAPLES. An ancient town, it was destroyed by Hannibal in 216 B.C. during the Second Punic War but was rebuilt in 210 B.C. It was the Roman headquarters in 90 B.C. during the Social War.

ACERRAE See ACERRA

ACHAEA [Achaia] [Greek: Akhaïa] (Greece)

Region in the N PELOPONNESUS, between the Gulf of Corinth and the Erimanthos Mountains. It was settled c. 1200 B.C. by the Indo-European Achaeans. In the fifth century B.C. its 12 main cities formed a defensive confederation, and c. 280 B.C. the Achaean League was renewed against MACEDON. The League, supported by ROME, subdued the whole Peloponnese c. 190 B.C. It attacked SPARTA in 146 B.C. but was defeated by the Romans at Leucopetra. Achaea thereafter became a Roman province. In A.D. 1205 Achaea fell to the troops of Geoffrey de Villehardouin, a French nobleman, in the Fourth Crusade. It remained a Latin principality until 1278. In 1460 it was taken over by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. It went back to Greece in 1828.

ACHAEAN LEAGUE See ACHAEA

ACHAEMENID EMPIRE See PERSIA

ACHAÏA See ACHAEA

ACHALPUR [former: Elichpur, Ellichpur] (India)

Town in MAHARASHTRA state, 110 mi W of NAGPUR. Believed to have been founded in the 11th century, it became the seat of the Imad Shah dynasty of BERAR in 1484. The dynasty lasted until the 19th century.

ACHARNAE [Greek: Akharnai] (Greece)

Village 6 mi N of ATHENS, in Attica department. In ancient times it was inhabited by charcoal burners whose name Aristophanes took for his play The Acharnians.

ACHEH See ACEH

ACHI BABA [Turkish: Alçi Tepe] (Turkey)

High ground at the tip of the GALLIPOLI PENINSULA, Canakkale province. In 1915 this high ground was the chief defensive position of the Turks during the Gallipoli campaign of World War I.

ACHIN See ACEH

ACKIA (United States)

Battleground in NE MISSISSIPPI, 4 mi N of TUPELO. In 1736 British troops and Chickasaw Indians defeated French troops and Choctaw Indians here. This victory opened the region to British colonization. The battleground was incorporated into the NATCHEZ TRACE National Parkway in 1961.

ACOMA (United States)

Pueblo in NEW MEXICO, 55 mi W of ALBUQUERQUE, on the Acoma Rock, a 400 feet sandstone mesa. The oldest continuously inhabited village in the United States, it was founded by Acoma Indians c. A.D. 1100 and was discovered by the Spanish in 1540. It was conquered by Juan de Onate in 1599 and took part in the Pueblo Indian revolts of 1680 and 1696. The mission church of San Estaban Rey was built by the Spanish in 1641. Both the pueblo and the mission are registered National Historic Landmarks.

8 Aconcagua

ACONCAGUA See SAN FELIPE

ACONCAGUA, MT. See ANDES

AÇORES See AZORES

ACQUACKANONK See PASSAIC

ACRAE See PALAZZOLO ACREIDE

ACRA-LEUCA See ALICANTE

ACRE (Brazil)

State bordering PERU and BOLIVIA in N Brazil. A heavily forested region, it was only penetrated extensively in the 1850s and 1860s and was ceded to Bolivia by Brazil in 1867. Following a local revolution, a short-lived independent Republic of Acre was proclaimed on July 4, 1899, by Luís Gálvez Rodríguez. In 1903 the region was reincorporated into Brazil and became a state of that country in 1962.

ACRE [Akko] [Arabic: Akka; earlier: Accho, Ptolemaïs, St-Jean-d'Acre] (Israel)

City and port in GALILEE, 9 mi NNE of HAIFA, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Strategically positioned, it was a Muslim city from A.D. 638 and was captured in 1104 by Baudouin I during the First Crusade, after which it was renamed St-Jean-d'Acre. Thereafter it changed hands several times until being taken by the Turks in 1517. The city was vainly besieged by Napoleon from March 19 to May 20, 1799. It was occupied by the British during World War I and became part of Israel after the War of 1948.

ACROCORINTHUS (Greece)

Rock in CORINTH. At a height of 1,887 ft, it was in ancient times the acropolis of Corinth, with a citadel and temple of Aphrodite. During the Middle Ages a Byzantine fortress occupied the rock.

ACRUVIUM See KOTOR

ACTIUM [Aktion] [Greek: Akra Nikolaos] (Greece)

Promontory and town in Acarnania department, 20 mi SW of ÁRTA, at the mouth of the Ambracian Gulf. The naval battle that ended the Roman civil war between Octavian and Mark Antony was fought here on September 2, 31 B.C. Octavian's forces under Agrippa defeated the fleet of Mark Antony and Cleopatra. The victory prepared the way for Augustus's control over the ROMAN EMPIRE.

ACUNUM ACUSIO See MONT IMAR

ACUSHNET (United States)

Town in SE MASSACHUSETTS, 3 mi N of NEW BEDFORD, on an inlet of Buzzards Bay. Settled c. 1660, it was severely damaged during King Philip's War. In September 1776, during the American Revolution, it was the scene of a battle between British troops and American minutemen.

ADAK See ALEUTIAN ISLANDS

ADALIA See ANTALYA

ADAMAKHA See MARIUPOL

ADAMAOUA See ADAMAWA

ADAMAUA See ADAMAWA

ADAMAWA [French: Adamaoua; German: Adamaua] (Nigeria, Cameroon)

Former kingdom of W central Africa, around the Benue River basin. Its capital was YOLA. Settled by Fulah tribes in the 14th century, it was united under Modibba Adama c.1805. Following the fall of Yola to the British in 1901, the kingdom was partitioned between British Nigeria and the German Cameroons. During World War I the Germans lost their share to the Allies who placed it under British and French mandates in 1922.

ADAMS (United States)

Town in NW MASSACHUSETTS, 14 mi NNE of PITTSFIELD, on the Hoosic River. Settled by Quakers in 1766, it was known as East Hoosuck until 1778, when it was renamed for Samuel Adams, patriot of the Revolutionary period. There is a Society of Friends meetinghouse, built in 1782. Susan B. Anthony, daughter of a Quaker abolitionist and an early leader of the women's movement, was born here in 1821. Decorative textiles have been produced here since 1862, and the town is a popular resort.

ADANA [former: Ataniya] (Turkey)

City and capital of Adana province, on the Seyhan River, 20 mi E of TARSUS. Strategically located near a pass through the Taurus Mountains, it was an ancient Hittite town and was settled as a military station by the Romans in 66 B.C. It flourished under the Abbasid Caliph Harun-al-Rashid, who fortified the city after decisively defeating the Byzantines in A.D. 782. It became part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1608. Massacres of Armenians took place here in 1909. Winston Churchill held a conference here with Turkish officials on behalf of the Allies in 1943.

AD DIR'YAH See DERAIEYEHADDIS ABABA [Italian: Addis Abeba] (Ethiopia)

City and capital of Ethiopia, in Shewa province, 50 mi NW of Hadama. Founded by Menelik II in 1887, it became the capital of independent Ethiopia on October 26, 1896. Captured by the Italians in 1936, it was the capital of Italian East Africa but was captured during World War II by the British under Sir Alan Cunningham in 1941. Since May 1963 it has been the headquarters of the Organization of African Unity (the African Union since 2002). See also ITALY.

ADDIS ABABA See ADDIS ABABAADELAIDE (Australia)

Capital city of SOUTH AUSTRALIA, 400 mi NW of Melbourne, on the Torrens River. Founded in 1836 by Colonel William Light as the center of an immigrant colony, it is the oldest city in South Australia. In 1840 it became the first Australian city to be incorporated.

ADEN [Arabic: Al'Aden] (Yemen)

City and former capital of the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen (South Yemen), on the Gulf of Aden, 150 mi NE of DJIBOUTI, on the SW coast of the ARABIAN PENINSULA. A strategic port linking the MEDITERRANEAN SEA and the Indian Ocean, it has been a trading center since the first millennium B.C. Captured by the British on January 19, 1839, it was made a Crown colony in 1935. Following the establishment of independent South Yemen on November 30, 1967, the British shut down their naval base here. It was the capital of South Yemen from 1968 until the country's unification with the Yemen Arab Republic in 1990. It gives its name to the Gulf of Aden.

ADEN PROTECTORATE See YEMENADERNÓ See ADRANOADIGE RIVER [German: Etsch; Latin: Athesis] (Italy)

River that rises in the Tyrolean Alps and flows S and then E to the ADRIATIC SEA. The second largest river in Italy, it has been the scene of many battles, the most famous of which occurred in 1799 when the French, under their minister of war Barthélemy-Louis-Joseph Schérer, defeated the Austrians. During World War I it was a battlefield in the Austro-Italian campaign of 1916. See also AUSTRIA.

ADIGEY See ADYGEIADIRONDACK MOUNTAINS [Adirondak Mountains] (United States)

Mountain range in NE NEW YORK State, S of the ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, at the northernmost end of the APPALACHIAN MOUNTAINS. They are bordered on the E by LAKE CHAMPLAIN and LAKE GEORGE, on the S by the MOHAWK VALLEY, and on the W by the Tug Hill plateau. Much of the Adirondacks are contained in the six-million acre Adirondack State Park, the largest state park in the United States. The region has a long history as a recreation area. During the late 19th century through the early 20th century, it was the site of the great camps, the summer retreats of wealthy New York families and origin of the Adirondack style of rustic design. In the early 1900s the mountains hosted a number of sanitariums for victims of tuberculosis who were drawn to the mountain air. LAKE PLACID, well known as a winter resort, was site of the Winter Olympics in 1932 and 1980, and also continues to be a training site. The abolitionist John Brown had a farm near Lake Placid and is buried there.

10 Adjar

ADJAR See AJARIAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLIC

AD MEDIAM See MEHÁDIA

ADMIRALTIES See ADMIRALTY ISLANDS

ADMIRALTY ISLANDS [Admiralties] (Papua New Guinea)

Island group in the BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO, in the SW Pacific Ocean, N of NEW GUINEA. Discovered in 1616 by the Dutchman Willem Schouten, they became part of German New Guinea in 1884. Captured by AUSTRALIA at the start of World War I, they became an Australian mandate in 1921. During World War II they were occupied by JAPAN during the period 1942–44. They are now part of the Manus province of Papua New Guinea.

ADO [Ado-Ekiti] (Nigeria)

Town in Ondo state, in the former Western State. Founded in the 15th century as the capital of the Yoruba state of Eketi, it was continually engaged in a struggle for independence against the neighboring states of BENIN and IBADAN. It was conquered by the British in 1893.

ADO-EKITI See ADO

ADOWA See ADWA

ADRA [ancient: Abdera] (Spain)

Town in S Spain, in the historic ANDALUSIA region, approximately 30 mi WSW of ALMERIA. It is a port on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. The ancient town of Abdera was founded by Phoenician traders at the foot of the hill on which the modern town stands. ROME later conquered the area. Adra was the final stronghold of the Moors who, under Boabdil, were defeated here in January 1492, ending the Moorish rule of Spain. See also PHOENICIA.

ADRANO [former: Adernó, Latin: Adranum, Hadranum] (Italy)

Town in Catania province, in E SICILY, on the W slope of MOUNT ETNA, 21 mi NW of CATANIA. Founded c. 400 B.C. by Dionysius I, tyrant of SYRACUSE, it came under ROME in 263 B.C. During World War II it was captured by the Allies in August 1943. It is the site of extensive Greek and Roman remains and of a 12th-century Norman castle built by Roger I of Sicily.

ADRANUM See ADRANO

ADRIA [Etruscan: Atria, Hatria] (Italy)

Town in Rovigo province, originally on the ADRIATIC SEA but now 14 mi inland, on the Tartaro River, 30 mi NE of FERRARA. Founded by the Etruscans in the sixth century B.C., it was their main seaport on the Adriatic. It flourished as a naval base and commercial center after its conquest by the Romans in 132 B.C. It gives its name to the Adriatic Sea. See also ETRURIA.

ADRIANOPOLE See EDIRNE

ADRIANOPOLIS See EDIRNE

ADRIATIC SEA

An arm of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA between ITALY and DALMATIA separated from the main sea by the Strait of OTRANTO between the heel of Italy and ALBANIA. Named for the Etruscan port of ADRIA, the Adriatic has been a route of trade, colonization, and conquest for Etruscan, Greek, Roman, Byzantine, and Venetian empires.

ADUA See ADWA

ADUATICA TUNGRORUM See TONGEREN

ADULIS (Eritrea)

Ancient town on the Gulf of Zula, 50 mi E of ASMARA, in Eritrea. Founded by Ptolemy III Euergetes in the third century B.C., it was a world trade center until sacked by the Arabs c. A.D. 700, a devastation that completed the isolation of the neighboring AXUM Kingdom. The modern town of Zula is nearby.

ADUWA See ADWA

ADWA [Adowa, Aduwa] [Italian: Adua] (Ethiopia)

Town in Tigre province, 75 mi S of ASMARA, on a 6,000 feet plateau. On March 1, 1896, King Menelik II defeated the Italians under General Oreste Baratieri here, winning Ethiopia's independence. This victory and the subsequent expulsion of the Italians from Abyssinia established the country as a symbol of resistance for colonized Africans. Adwa was bombed and captured by the Italians on October 6, 1935, an event that accelerated the rise of nationalism throughout Africa. It was captured by the British in 1941 during World War II.

ADYGE See ADYGEI, REPUBLIC OFADYGEI, REPUBLIC OF [Adyge, Adigey, Adyghe, Adygei Autonomous Oblast] [Russian: Adygheiskāia] (Russia)

Administrative division of Russia, bounded to the N and E by the Kuban River and to the W by the BLACK SEA. Strategically located between Europe and Asia, the region is the home of the Circassian people, the Adyghes. It was incorporated into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the 17th century and passed to RUSSIA in 1864. Owing to this, many Islamic Adyghes consequently migrated south to Turkey and the Middle East. The autonomous oblast was established in 1922 in the USSR. During World War II the USSR recaptured it from GERMANY on January 31, 1943. In 1991, it declared itself a republic within Russia and became a member of the Russian Federation.

ADYGHE See ADYGEI, REPUBLIC OFADZHAR See AJARIAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLICADZHARIA See AJARIAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLICADZHARISTAN See AJARIAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLICAEGABRO See CABRAAEGADIAN ISLES See EGADI ISLANDSAEGAE See EDESSAAEGATES INSULAE See EGADI ISLANDSAEGEAN SEA [ancient: Archipelago; Greek: Aigaion Pélagos; Turkish: Ege Deniz] (Greece, Turkey)

Arm of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA between mainland Greece on the W, ASIA MINOR and Turkey on the E, and CRETE on the S. On the NE the strait of DARDANELLES connects it with the SEA OF MARMARA and thence with the BLACK SEA. The Aegean has many islands, some of volcanic origin and some a continuation of promontories off mainland Greece. The Aegean was the site of two major early Bronze Age civilizations, those of Crete and of Greece, called as a whole the Aegean civilization. After 1400 B.C. the civilization of the mainland, though heavily influenced by Crete, is referred to as the Mycenaean, after MYCENAE, the most important early center in Greece. The earlier civilization on Crete is called the Minoan, after the legendary King Minos. In the CYCLADES islands the Bronze Age culture is called Cycladic, and on the mainland of Greece the early civilization is referred to as Helladic.

After the disruption of the Aegean civilization c. 1200 B.C. and the subsequent Dark Ages, the civilization of classical Greece gradually emerged during the Archaic Period of the eighth and seventh centuries B.C., culminating in the Classical Period in the sixth and fifth centuries B.C. This had a profound impact on all later civilizations of the West. Centering on the cultural and, at times, political hegemony of ATHENS, classical Greece was tested during the Persian Wars of the fifth century B.C., and its decline was hastened by the Peloponnesian Wars of 431 to 404 B.C. The Aegean islands played a central part in all of this. The northern islands sided with PERSIA during the Persian Wars of 490 to 479 B.C., but the eastern islands, under the influence of the Greek cities of IONIA, allied themselves with Athens. From 478 to 404 B.C., after the Persian Wars, many of the islands became allied under Athenian leadership, then mastery, in the Delian League, which evolved into the Athenian Empire. Subsequently most of the islands, except the Cyclades, were controlled by the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE until taken over by ROME in the second century B.C.

From the fifth through the 13th centuries A.D. they were ruled by the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. Several were overrun by Roger II of SICILY during the Second Crusade of 1147. VENICE established NAXOS as the center of the duchy of Naxos in 1207, and during the 13th century Venetian families and traders were dominant in the area. In 1261 the Byzantines took IMBROS, SAMOTHRACE, and LESBOS, but the western islands remained under the Venetian duchy of the archipelago. The Genoese held CHIOS from 1261 to 1329, and the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem held RHODES from 1310 to 1522. During the 15th and 16th centuries there were a series of Venetian wars with the OTTOMAN EMPIRE during which the Turks gradually prevailed, so that from the death of Suleiman I in 1566 until the Greek revolt of 1821 the Aegean islands were part of the Ottoman Empire.

12 Aegialeia

Most of them came under independent Greece by the Treaty of ADRIANOPLE in 1829. During World War I the Allies attempted to reach ISTANBUL through the Dardanelles during the GALLIPOLI campaign in April 1915 but were forced to withdraw in 1916. See also AEGINA, DELOS, DODECANESE, EUBOEA, LEMNOS, SPORADES, THASOS, THERA.

AEGIALEIA See SICYON

AEGEDIA See KOPER

AEGINA [Aigina] [Greek: Aíyina] (Greece)

Island in the Saronic Gulf, 20 mi SW of ATHENS, in ATTICA. A leading commercial city-state of ancient Greece, it was allied with SPARTA in 457 B.C. when it was defeated in battle by Athens in the First Peloponnesian War. In 431 B.C. its inhabitants were expelled by Athens, and the island lost its commercial importance. In 210 B.C. it was sacked by the Romans. In 1537, as a colony of VENICE, it was overrun by the pirate Barbarossa. During the period 1826–28 it became the first capital of modern Greece.

AEGOSPOTAMI See AEGOSPOTAMOS

AEGOSPOTAMOS [Aegospotami] [Turkish: Indjelimen] (Turkey)

River in NW Turkey, it flows through the GALLIPOLI PENINSULA to the DARDANELLES then the HELLESPONT. In August 405 B.C., at the mouth of the river, the Athenian fleet under Conon was annihilated by the Spartans under Lysander. This decisive victory ended the Peloponnesian Wars.

AEGYPTUS See EGYPT

AELANA See 'AQABA

AELIA CAPITOLINA See JERUSALEM

AELIUM CETIUM See SANKT PÖLTEN

AEMILIA See EMILIA-ROMAGNA

AEMILIANUM See MILLAU

AEMILIAN WAY [Latin: Via Aemilia] (Italy)

Ancient Roman road, approximately 175 mi long, constructed in 187 B.C. between Ariminum, now RIMINI and Placentia, now PIACENZA, in the present EMILIA-ROMAGNA region of northern Italy. This extension of the FLAMINIAN WAY, later continued to Mediolanum, now MILAN, was built by the consul Marcus Aemilius Lepidus as an elevated causeway because of frequent flooding in the area.

AEMINIUM See COIMBRA

AENARIA See ISCHIA

AENOS See ENOS

AENUS See ENOS

AEOLIA See AEOLIS

AEOLIAE INSULAE See LIPARI ISLANDS

AEOLIAN ISLANDS See LIPARI ISLANDS

AEOLIS [Aeolia] (Turkey)

Ancient region of W Turkey, on the AEGEAN SEA, N of IONIA. It was settled in the 11th century B.C. by the first important wave of Greek colonization. The cities of Aeolis, of which CYME was the most important, became tributaries of the kingdom of LYDIA and were finally annexed by PERSIA in the sixth century B.C.

AESERNIA See ISÉRNIA

AESIS See IESI

AETHALIA See ELBA

AETNA See ETNA, MOUNT

AETOLIA [Aitolia] (Greece)

Ancient district on the Gulf of Corinth, in Aetolia-Acarnania department. It became politically important in the fourth century B.C. when its cities united to form the Aetolian League with its capital at THERMON. The League reached its peak in the third century B.C. when it was the leading power in Greece, but was defeated by Philip V of Macedon in 217 B.C. Allied with ROME it defeated Philip V at CYNOSCEPHALAE in 197 B.C., but was in turn defeated by the Romans at THERMOPYLAE in 191 B.C. It became a tributary state of Rome and was incorporated with ACHAEA into the Roman province of Macedonia in 146 B.C. See also MACEDONIA EMPIRE.

AETOLIAN LEAGUE See AETOLIA

AETSTRETFORDAE See STRATFORD-UPON-AVON

AFARS AND ISSAS See DJIBOUTI

AFGHANISTAN [Greek: Bactria] (Afghanistan)

This country in S Central Asia is bounded on the N by TURKMENISTAN, UZBEKISTAN, and TAJIKISTAN, on the E by CHINA, on the S by PAKISTAN, and on the W by IRAN. It is central to passage to and from the above countries and its very centrality explains its turbulent political history, with countless changes of government, boundaries, and allegiances. Afghanistan had a civilization long before Darius I annexed it to PERSIA. It subsequently became part of Alexander's empire. The Seleucid dynasty finally gained effective control and founded many Greek towns in eastern Iran after c. 310 B.C. In 255 B.C. the satrap of Bactria took the opportunity to found the independent Greek kingdom of BACTRIA. Many examples of Greek architecture may be found in Kashmir and the Peshawar valley, but otherwise Greek influence waned fairly rapidly.

Western Afghanistan was conquered by Muslims in the seventh century A.D. In spite of all the later political reorganizations, Islam became the stable religion of the region. This has been the one solid unifying factor at the core of later Afghan history and has much to do with the cohesion and fierce sense of independence of its people.

In 1747 Afghanistan was established as a kingdom. At the death of the Persian Ahmad Shah Durani in 1773, the Afghan kingdom consisted of Eastern Persia, Afghanistan, BALUCHISTAN, KASHMIR, and the PUNJAB. Under a succession of rulers, various territories were lost. In 1809 Afghanistan joined the British against the Russians and the Persians. However, they were attacked by the British in the First Afghan War of 1838–42. Throughout the 19th century Afghanistan had a troubled history and was caught between rival British and Russians in the Second Afghan War of 1878–80. A degree of independence was gained under Abd-er-Rahman Khan between 1880 and 1901, when he ceded the KHYBER PASS, long the gateway for invasions of INDIA, to the British. He also settled the boundaries with India in 1893 and with RUSSIA in 1895.

Afghanistan stayed neutral during World War I and by various treaties was recognized as independent by Britain, Russia, TURKEY, and Persia. The progressive Amanullah Khan assumed rule in 1919 and adopted a constitution in 1923. However, his Westernization provoked opposition, and he was overthrown in 1929. His successor, Nadir Shah, was assassinated in 1933. Nadir Shah's son, Mohammed Zahir Shah, formed the Oriental Entente in 1937 with Turkey, IRAQ, and Iran and continued to modernize the country.

Afghanistan again remained neutral in World War II. In 1940 it signed a trade pact with the USSR, and in subsequent years became a member of the United Nations. In the 1950s and 1960s the government took broad measures to modernize and improve the economy. In 1973 the monarchy was abolished and a republic established. After a coup, in December 1979 the country was occupied by the USSR in order to bolster its pro-Russian government, which had nearly collapsed. The occupation was a stormy one, and the Russians faced much organized resistance. The Afghan resistance and internal problems in the USSR pushed the Soviet occupation out by 1989. In 1992 an Islamic State was declared, but fighting continued among factions and warlords. In 1996, the government was taken over by the Taliban, an Islamic extremist group that became world renowned for its militancy, suppression of women, and xenophobia.

In 2001 the 9-11 attacks on NEW YORK CITY and WASHINGTON, D.C., focused attention on Afghanistan as the home base for Osama bin Laden's al-Qaeda terrorist organization. In October of 2001 the United States and Britain, supporting an offensive by the Northern Alliance coalition of Uzbek, Tajik, and Hazara tribespeople, bombed Taliban and al-Qaeda positions. The Taliban were forced from the capital of KABUL, and their home bases in KANDAHAR. Many fled to the Pakistan border area or took refuge in Pakistan. The leaders of the Taliban and al-Qaeda are still at large as of 2006. In 2002 a loya jirga (tribal council) chose Hamid Karzai, a Pushtun, as interim leader. Karzai was subsequently elected president. Much of the country outside of the cities is still in conflict as Afghan, U.S., and other forces continue the fighting.

14 Afiunkarahissar

AFIUNKARAHISSAR See AFYONKARAHISAR

AFON DYFRDWY See DEE RIVER

AFRICA, ROMAN [Latin: Africa Proconsularis] (Tunisia) Ancient Roman province, now in Tunisia. The first African territory of the ROMAN EMPIRE, it was created in 146 B.C. following the Roman conquest of CARTHAGE in the Third Punic War. It flourished under Caesar and Augustus but later was conquered by Vandals under Gaiseric who seized Carthage in A.D. 439. The Byzantines under Belisarius reconquered it in 534. It fell to the Arabs in the 7th century. See also LEPTIS MAGNA.

AFRICA PROCONSULARIS See AFRICA, ROMAN

AFYON See AFYONKARAHISAR

AFYONKARAHISAR [Afyon] [earlier: Afiunkarahissar, Kara Hisar; Greek: Nicopolis] (Turkey) City and capital of Afyonkarahisar province, 140 mi SW of ANKARA. Strategically located on a crossroads of trade routes through the plateau of ASIA MINOR, it was originally part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE but was conquered by the Seljuk Turks in the 11th century and became part of the SULTANATE OF RUM. During the Greco-Turkish War of 1919–22, it was a major battlefield, changing hands several times until falling finally to the Turks in August 1922.

AĞAÇLI See ANAZARBE

AGADE See AKKAD

AGADÉS See AGADEZ

AGADEZ [Agadès, Agades] (Niger)

Town and capital of Agadez department, in the Air Mountains, 450 mi NE of NIAMEY. Located on a crossroads of caravan routes between North Africa and the SUDAN, it was originally a Tuareg center until falling to the SONGHAI Empire in 1515. After the fall of the Songhai Empire in 1590 it became an important Islamic center of learning. It was under French control during the period 1900–60.

AGADIR (Algeria) See TLEMSEN

AGADIR [Portuguese: Santa Cruz] (Morocco)

City and port on the Atlantic Ocean, 130 mi SW of MARRAKECH, in Agadir province. Agadir was the center of a crisis that nearly precipitated war when, on July 1, 1911, the Germans sent a warship, the Panther, to the port to check French influence in Morocco. The crisis was defused by an agreement on November 4 by which Germany obtained a share of the CONGO in return for recognizing a French protectorate over Morocco. In World War II the Allies made a landing here in November 1942. Almost totally destroyed by an earthquake in 1960, today it is largely rebuilt.

AGANA See HAGÂTÑA

AGARTALA (India)

City in the western part of TRIPURA, on the Haroa River, 100 km west of DHAKA. Agartala was part of a Hindu kingdom that was taken over by the Moguls in 1733. The British took control in 1808, and Tripura was a princely state until 1956 when it became a Union Territory. When Tripura gained statehood in 1972, Agartala became the state capital.

AGATHA See AGDE

AGAUNUM See SAINT-MAURICE

AGDE [Greek: Agatha] (France)

Town in the Hérault department, 30 mi SW of MONTPELLIER. Settled by Greeks from PHOCAEA in the sixth century B.C., it was later taken by the Visigoths. It was an episcopal see from 400 to 1790, when it was secularized during the French Revolution.

AGEDINCUM See SENS

AGEN [Latin: Aginnum] (France)

City and capital of Lot-et-Garonne department, on the GARONNE RIVER, 75 mi SE of BORDEAUX. The site of a Roman station, it became the seat of a bishopric in the fourth century A.D. Captured by the Franks under Clovis in 509, it became the capital of the countship of AGENAIS. Historic remains include a Roman bridge and aqueduct.

AGENAIS [Agenois] (France)

Former countship of SW France, roughly coextensive with the modern department of Lot-et-Garonne. Its capital was AGEN. The area was made a hereditary countship in 1038, and as part of the duchy of AQUITAINNE it passed to the English in 1154. Possession of the countship seesawed between ENGLAND and France until it passed to the French duchy of GUIENNE. It was united to the French Crown in 1472.

AGENDICUM See SENS

AGENOIS See AGENAIS

AGGERSBORG See SLAGELSE

AL-AGHEILA [Al-'Uqaylah, El-Agheila] (Libya)

Town in Benghazi province, near the Gulf of Sidra, 140 mi SW of BENGHAZI. During World War II it was the scene of many battles between Axis and Allied forces and changed hands several times. German field marshal Erwin Rommel's campaign against the British opened in Al-Agheila in January 1942. It was finally captured by the British on December 17, 1942.

AGHRIM See AUGHRIM

AGINCOURT [French: Azincourt] (France)

Village in the Pas-de-Calais department, at the foot of the Artois Hills, 44 mi N of AMIENS. On October 25, 1415, during the Hundred Years' War, the English under Henry V defeated a numerically superior French feudal army here. The battle, in which much of France's knighthood died, led to the conquest by ENGLAND of a large part of France.

AGINNUM See AGEN

AGIRA [Latin: Agyrium] (Italy)

Town in Enna province, central SICILY, 15 mi ENE of ENNA. Originally a town of the Siculi, it was colonized by Greeks under Timoleon of Corinth in 339 B.C. During World War II, it fell to Allied forces on July 29, 1943.

AGMAHAL See RAJMAHAL

AGNADEL See AGNADELLO

AGNADELLO [French: Agnadel] (Italy)

Town in Cremona province, 12 mi E of MILAN, in LOMBARDY. On May 14, 1509, during the Italian Wars, the French under Louis XII defeated the Venetians here. This victory secured France's possessions in Italy and forced VENICE to make concessions to Pope Julius II. See also FRANCE.

AGOO (Philippines)

Municipality in La Union province, on LUZON, 21 mi S of SAN FERNANDO. Among the oldest towns of the Malay Archipelago, it was twice the site of fighting during World War II: in December 1941, when it fell to Japan, and January 1945, when it was recaptured by the United States.

AGOSTA See AUGUSTA

AGRA [former: Akbarabad] (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH, on the JUMNA RIVER, 120 mi SSE of NEW DELHI. Conquered by the founder of the MOGUL EMPIRE, Babur, in 1526, it was established as the Mogul capital by Akbar in 1564. The city is famous for its Indo-Islamic mausoleums and mosques. These include the Taj Mahal, built by Shah Jehan, under whom the city reached its peak during the period 1628–58. It was besieged in the Sepoy rebellion in 1857. The Taj Mahal was named a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1983.

AGRAM See ZAGREB

AGRI DECUMATES (Germany)

Region of the ROMAN EMPIRE, between the MAIN RIVER, the RHINE RIVER, and the DANUBE RIVER, now within BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG. Roman annexation of the region began in A.D. 74 in order to improve communications between the armies on the Rhine and the Danube rivers. Later the region was given to Roman veterans as free lands. The area was conquered by the Alemanni c. A.D. 260.

16 Agrigento

AGRIGENTO [Greek: Akragas, former: Girgenti, Latin: Agrigentum] (Italy)

City in S SICILY, overlooking the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 57 mi SSE of PALERMO. Founded c. 580 B.C. by Greek colonists from GELA, it reached its peak under Theron in the fifth century B.C. but was sacked by CARTHAGE in 406 B.C. Today it is famous for its remains of several Greek temples, including the Doric temples of Zeus and Hercules.

AGRIGENTUM See AGRIGENTO

AGROPOLIS See TÎRGU-MUREȘ

AGRO PONTINO See PONTINE MARSHES

AGUA See GUATEMALA

AGUA CALIENTE See PALM SPRINGS

AGUASCALIENTES (Mexico)

City and capital of Aguascalientes state, 270 mi NW of MEXICO CITY. Founded as a military outpost by the Spanish in 1575, it was built above the so-called perforated city consisting of a labyrinth of tunnels built by an unknown pre-Columbian people. The city was the scene of a meeting in October 1914, during the Mexican civil war, including the revolutionary factions of Carranza, Villa, and Zapata, which attempted to organize a government and end hostilities. Many of the city's old colonial buildings are still standing.

AGYLLA See CERVETERI

AGYRIUM See AGIRA

AHMADABAD See AHMEDABAD

AHMADNAGAR [Ahmednagar] (India)

City in MAHARASHTRA state, on the Sina River, 125 mi E of MUMBAI. Founded in 1494 by Ahmad Nizam

Shah, it became the capital of one of the five Muslim kingdoms of the DECCAN. It was conquered by the MOGUL EMPIRE under Akbar in 1599. Captured by the Marathas in 1760, it fell to the British in 1803.

AHMEDABAD [Ahmadabad] (India)

City in GUJARAT state, on the Sabarmati River, 280 mi N of MUMBAI. Founded by Ahmad Shah in 1412, it was conquered by the Moguls under Akbar in 1573 and became a prosperous trade center. In 1619 a trading post was opened by the English, who controlled the city within 200 years. In modern times it was a center of the nationalist activities of Mahatma Gandhi, who was arrested here in 1933. It is the site of many remarkable mosques and temples.

AHMEDNAGAR See AHMADNAGAR

AL-AHSA See AL-HASA

AHVAZ [Ahwaz] (Iran)

City and capital of KHUZESTAN province, on the Karun River, 70 mi N of KHORRAMSHAHR. An important Arab trading center in medieval times, it expanded rapidly in the 20th century, becoming a transportation and industrial center of the oil-rich Khuzestan province. As such it was a prime target for the Iraqis in the 1980 Iran-Iraq War, during which it was badly damaged.

AHVENANMAA See ÅLAND ISLANDS

AHWAZ See AHVAV

AI (Palestine)

A city in ancient CANAAN, W of JERICHO where, according to the Bible, Joshua defeated the Canaanites c. 1200 B.C. during the Exodus.

AIDIN See AYDIN

AIGAÍON PÉLAGOS See AEGEAN SEA

AIGINA See AEGINA

THE AIGUES-MORTES (France)

Walled medieval town in the Gard department, PROVENCE, 22 mi SSW of Nîmes, near the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Built by Louis IX in 1241, it was connected to the sea by a canal and thus gave the French Crown an outlet to the Mediterranean. The Seventh (1248) and Eighth (1270) Crusades were launched from here in the 13th century by Louis IX, who died during the latter. The town's old ramparts are still well preserved.

AIGUN See HEIHE

AIHUN See HEIHE

AIJALON [Ajalon] [Israeli: Yalo] (Israel)

Ancient town of CANAAN, on the border of the kingdoms of JUDAH and EPHRAIM, 13 mi NW of JERUSALEM. It was the scene of the episode mentioned in the Bible in which Joshua commanded the sun and the moon to stand still.

AIJAL See AIZAWL

AIN JALUT ['Ayn Jālāt] (Israel)

Battlefield near NAZARETH. On September 3, 1260, the Mongols under Hulagu were severely defeated here by the Mamluks of EGYPT under Baybars I. As a result SYRIA was liberated and the Mongol expansion westward stemmed.

AINOS See ENOS

AINTREE (England)

Village 5 mi N of LIVERPOOL, in MERSEYSIDE. The Grand National steeplechase has been run here in March annually since 1839.

AIRE [Aire-sur-l'Adour] [Former: Atura; Latin: Vicus Julii] (France)

Town in the Landes department, 20 mi SE of MONT-DE-MARSAN. In the Dark Ages it was the residence of the Visigothic kings and became a bishopric in the fifth century.

AIRE-SUR-L'ADOUR See AIRE

AIROLO (Switzerland)

Village in TICINO, canton at the southern end of the St. Gotthard Pass, on the Ticino River, 25 mi NW of LOCARNO. During the French Revolutionary Wars, the Russians under Field Marshal Alexander Suworov, after driving the French out of northern ITALY, defeated them here again on September 23, 1799, in an attempt to force them out of Switzerland and secure the passes of the Alps. Suworov was later defeated, and he returned to RUSSIA.

AISNE RIVER [Latin: Axona] (France)

River that flows from the ARGONNE Forest in the department of Meuse, NW and W for 175 mi to the OISE RIVER, above COMPIÈGNE. During World War I the river was an important battle line. It was the scene of fighting on September 13, 1914, when Anglo-French forces recaptured SOISSONS, in 1917 when the Allies launched several costly but ineffective offensives, and on May 27, 1918, when the Germans launched an offensive that was only halted at the MARNE RIVER.

AITAPE [Eitape] (Papua New Guinea)

Town and port in N NEW GUINEA, 540 mi NW of PORT MORESBY. During World War II, in the Allied invasion of New Guinea, U.S. forces landed here and at HOLLANDIA, INDONESIA, on April 22, 1944, thus cutting off a large Japanese force. On July 17, 1998, the town was struck by a tsunami from a 7.0 under-sea earthquake that killed more than 2,000 people. See also DJAJAPURA.

AITOLIA See AETOLIA

AIX-EN-PROVENCE [Latin: Aquae Sextiae] (France)

Town in the Bouches-du-Rhône department, 18 mi N of MARSEILLES. It is located near thermal springs. It was founded in 123 B.C. by Sextius Calvinus. In 102 B.C. the Romans under Marius defeated an invasion by the Teutones nearby. It became the capital of PROVENCE in 1189 and grew into an important cultural center. It was here that the Estates General of Provence met in 1486 to decide upon Provence's union with the French Crown.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE See AACHEN

AIX-LES-BAINS [Latin: Aquae Gratianae] (France)

Town in the Savoie department, on the Lake of Bourget, 10 mi N of CHAMBÉRY. Founded by the Romans in 125 B.C., it has been a popular resort and spa ever since. On August 22, 1955, a conference took place here between the French and the Moroccan nationalist leaders that led to the independence of MOROCCO from France.

AÍYINA See AEGINA

AIZAWL [Aijar] (India)

Capital city of northeastern Indian state of MIZORAM, 150 miles E of DHAKA. Aizawl was a part of ASSAM until 1972 when it was made a Union Territory. There were insurgency problems in the region until 1987, when it was declared a state. Since the region became its own state, the area has been peaceful.

AIZU-WAKAMATSU (Japan)

City in Fukushima prefecture, N HONSHŪ, 115 mi N of TOKYO. An important commercial and manufacturing center during the Tokugawa period, from 1603 to 1867, its surrender to imperial forces in 1868 brought an end to the civil war in Honshū. The city was razed in the fighting.

AJACCIO (France)

Town and port on the SW coast of CORSICA, 95 mi SW of BASTIA. A Genoese colony since 1492, it became part of France on May 15, 1768, by the Treaty of Versailles. Napoleon Bonaparte was born here on August 15, 1769. Occupied by the Italians during World War II, it was liberated on September 13, 1943, by Free French forces. Ajaccio is the regional capital of Corsica. See also GENOA.

AJALON See AIJALON

AJANTĀ (India)

Archaeological site in MAHARASHTRA state, in the Ajanta Hills, 65 mi NNE of AURANGABAD. It is famous for its cave sanctuaries and temples, whose frescoes and sculptures are remarkable examples of Buddhist art. Dating from c. 200 B.C. to c. A.D. 650, the temples and sanctuaries are cut into rocky cliffs. They were discovered in 1819. The monuments are early examples of the art of GANDHARA in India.

AJARIAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLIC [Adjar, Adzhar, Adzharia, Adzharistan] (Georgia)

Autonomous republic of SW GEORGIA, on the BLACK SEA, N of Turkey. The region was much disputed by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE and RUSSIA until the latter's control was confirmed by the treaties of ADRIANOPLE in 1829 and SAN STEFANO in 1878. The region's capital, BATUMI, was occupied by the Turks following the Russian Revolution of 1917. The Russians regained control in 1921, and the region became an autonomous republic. After Georgian independence, Adzharia maintained its autonomy, and in 2004 the local strongman Aslan Abashidze attempted to break control of the central government by breaking transportation links to the rest of Georgia. A popular revolt within Adzharia restored Georgian control as Abashidze fled the republic.

AJDĀ BIYAH [Agedabia] (Libya)

Town in Benghazi province, near the Gulf of Sidra, 95 mi S of BENGHAZI. Colonized by Romans and Byzantines, it became a caravan junction during the early Middle Ages. From 1919 until its occupation by Italy in 1923 it was the administrative center of the emir of CYRENAICA. During World War II it was an Italian military base, and in January 1942 was the site of a battle between the Germans and the British, which resulted in the first retreat of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps.

AJMAN ['Ajman] (United Arab Emirates)

A sheikdom and city, smallest member of the United Arab Emirates on the PERSIAN GULF NE of DUBAI. A British protectorate as one of the Trucial States from 1892, Ajman joined with the other sheikdoms to form the United Arab Emirates in 1971.

AJMER (India)

City in RAJASTHAN, 225 mi SW of DELHI. A stronghold of the Chauhan dynasty, it became capital of the state of Ajmer after the battle of Tararori in 1192. After falling to Akbar in 1556, it became a military base and a residence of the Mogul emperors. See also MOGUL EMPIRE.

AJNADAIN [Jannabatain] (Israel)

Village SW of JERUSALEM. In A.D. 634 Theodoras, brother of the Byzantine emperor Heraclius, was defeated here by the Arabs, who subsequently conquered all of SYRIA.

AJODHYA See AYODHYA

AKABA See 'AQABA

AKAMAGASEKI See SHIMONOSEKI

AL-AKANT See ALICANTE

AKARNANIA See ACARNANIA

AKBARABAD See AGRA

AKELDAMA See ACELDAMA

AKHAÍÁ See ACHAEA

AKHALTSIKHE (Georgia)

Town in S Georgia, 65 mi E of BATUMI. As part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, it was the capital of Turkish ARMENIA from 1579 to 1828 and was a center of the slave trade. It was ceded to RUSSIA in 1829 by the Treaty of ADRIANOPLE.

AKHARNAÍ See ACHARNAE

AKHETATON See TELL AL-AMARNA

AKHISAR [Greek: Thyatira; later: Pelópia] (Turkey)

Town in Manisa province, on the Great Zab River, 52 mi NE of IZMIR. Originally a town of LYDIA, it was colonized in 280 B.C. by Seleucus Nicator and was incorporated into the kingdom of PERGAMUM in 190 B.C. In the Book of Revelation in the Bible it is mentioned as one of the Seven Churches of ASIA MINOR. It later came under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

AKHMIM [Ekhmim] [Ancient: Chemmis; Greek: Panopolis] (Egypt)

City in Sawhaj governorate, on the NILE RIVER, 66 mi S of ASYUT. An ancient linen weaving center, it was the capital of a department of Ptolemaic Upper Egypt. In Hellenistic times it was a center of worship of the god Pan. In the 18th century it was sacked during the Mamluk civil wars. It has necropolises dating from the Sixth Dynasty of c. 2345 B.C. to c. 2181 B.C.

AKHTIAR See SEVASTOPOL

AKITA (Japan)

City, port, and capital of Akita prefecture, N HONSHŪ, on the Sea of Japan, 115 mi NW of SENDAI. It was founded in 733 A.D. as a military outpost against the aboriginal Ainu people and was important throughout the feudal period. The original fortress still stands.

AKKAD [Accad, Agade] (Iraq)

City and region of MESOPOTAMIA, NW of SUMER and Babylonia, now in modern Iraq. Colonized in the fourth millennium B.C. by Semitic peoples, Akkad flourished under Sargon, who founded the dynasty of Akkad c. 2350 B.C. and conquered Sumer. Within 50 years he had established the first world empire, which extended from the PERSIAN GULF to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. The brilliant civilization of Akkad declined following its invasion by Gutu tribes c. 2160 B.C.

AKKERMAN See BELGOROD-DNESTROVSKY

AKKO See ACRE

AKKRA See ACCRA

AK MECHET See SIMFEROPOL

AKMOLINSK See TSELINOGRAD

AKOLA (India)

City in Central North MAHARASHTRA state, 25 miles SW of AMARAVATI. The city developed as a cotton trading center in the early 20th century.

AKRAGAS See AGRIGENTO

AKRA NIKOLAOS See ACTIUM

AKRA NIMFAION See NYMPHAION, CAPE

20 Akron

AKRON (United States)

City on the Little Cuyahoga River, 30 mi SSE of CLEVELAND, OHIO. Founded by Simon Perkins in 1825, it became the site of a rubber factory in 1869 belonging to B.F. Goodrich. Following rapid expansion in the early 20th century, Akron was the largest rubber-manufacturing center in the world. The last half of the 20th century saw a major decline in the rubber industry in Akron as employment was halved from its heyday.

AKROTIRI See THERA

AKŞEHİR [former: Akshehr; Greek: Philomelion] (Turkey)

Town in Konya province, 70 mi NW of KONYA. Probably a part of the ancient Greek kingdom of PERGAMUM, it was known to the Romans and became an important point on the frontier of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It was taken by the Seljuk Turks c. 1400.

AKSHAK (Iraq)

Ancient city of MESOPOTAMIA. Its location is not known but is believed to be near TELL ASMAR in the Diyala River valley. Situated on the northern frontier of AKKAD, it was conquered in 2500 B.C. by Eannatum, king of LAGASH. A century later it grew to dominate both SUMER and Akkad.

AKSHEHR See AKŞEHİR

AKSUM [Axum] (Ethiopia)

A city and an ancient empire of northern Ethiopia. The kingdom of Axum developed by the first century A.D., deriving strength from its agricultural wealth and its favorable position for trade with MEROË (KUSH) to the N and YEMEN across the Red Sea to the east. By the fourth century Aksum had grown greatly in strength and had destroyed the fading empire of Merëo in NUBIA. Coptic Christianity was introduced into Axum at this time and quickly became a dominant force in the kingdom. The fifth and sixth centuries saw Axum's commerce with PERSIA and the MEDITERRANEAN prosper.

This flourishing contact was broken in the seventh century when the great surge of Islamic conquest swept over North Africa and the eastern Mediterranean. Christian Askumite rulers retreated behind the formidable natural barriers surrounding their highland empire and thereafter lost almost all contact with the rest of the world. Aksum appears to have concentrated its energies on the conquest and conversion to Christianity of southern Ethiopia. In the 12th century, Aksum's long rule was ended when a southern Ethiopian dynasty gained ascendancy. The empire of Aksum quickly fell into decline.

AKSUM [Axum] (Ethiopia)

City in TIGRAY province in N Ethiopia. It was the center and capital of the empire of Aksum from the first century A.D. to the 12th century. The city is still a center of Ethiopian Orthodox Christianity and is a major pilgrimage center. The church of Our Lady Mary of Zion is claimed to be the resting place of the biblical Ark of the Covenant. Aksum was made a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1980.

EL-AKSUR See LUXOR

AKTION See ACTIUM

ALABAMA (United States)

State in the SE part of the country, with the GULF OF MEXICO forming part of its southern boundary. Alabama takes its name from an Indian tribe that was a division of the Creek Indians. It was admitted to the United States as the 22nd state in 1819. Before Europeans came the area was inhabited by four large Indian groups, the Creek and Cherokee in the east and the Choctaw and Chickasaw in the west. The first Europeans to arrive were explorers from SPAIN, Cabeza de Vaca in 1528 and Hernando de Soto in 1540. The first settlers here came from FRANCE with Jean Baptiste de Bienville to the MOBILE area in 1702. The British and French contended for the fur trade until the region was ceded to GREAT BRITAIN at the end of the French and Indian War in 1763. Twenty years later the land became part of the new United States. Mississippi Territory, which included part of present Alabama, was established in 1798.

There were few settlers until after the War of 1812. After General Andrew Jackson crushed the Creek Indians at the Battle of HORSESHOE BEND on March 27, 1814, settlers in large numbers rushed in to raise cotton in the fertile, untouched bottomlands. In 1817 Alabama Territory was organized. The economy of the state depended on slavery, and on January 11, 1861, the state voted to secede from the Union. The government of the CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA was formed at MONTGOMERY, Alabama, on February 4, 1861. One of the largest naval engagements of the Civil War was fought in MOBILE BAY on August 5, 1864, when a Union flotilla under Admiral David G. Farragut forced its way into the bay and overcame the defending ships and fortifications.

Soon after the Confederacy was defeated, a new Alabama government rescinded the secession ordinance and in 1865 ratified the Thirteenth Amendment, which ended slavery. However, in 1867 the legislature refused to ratify the Fifteenth Amendment. As a result, the state was placed under Federal military rule. A new government ratified the amendment the next year, but troops remained in the state until 1876.

In the latter part of the 19th century, the agriculture and economy of Alabama revived, while the iron and steel industry and cotton textile manufacturing began to grow. Both World Wars stimulated industry and farming alike, but the Great Depression of the 1930s brought hard times, especially for small farmers and sharecroppers. Cotton production became less important, while industry and commerce continued to grow.

Beginning in the mid-1950s, Alabama was the scene of bitter struggles over civil rights. The movement started with a year-long boycott of buses by blacks in Montgomery in 1955 and 1956 and included a Freedom March from Montgomery to SELMA in 1965 that attracted supporters from all over the nation. There was also a riot in February 1956, when an attempt to register the first black student at the University of Alabama was resisted by whites.

The southern end of the Appalachian Mountains reaches down into the northeastern part of the state, while the rest of the state is a rolling plain of low elevation. Montgomery is the capital; BIRMINGHAM is the largest city; HUNTSVILLE is a center for rocket research; Mobile is a major port and industrial city; and TUSCALOOSA is the site of the University of Alabama. At Russell Cave National Monument are caves that were inhabited as far back as 6000 B.C. The Tuskegee Institute at TUSKEGEE, founded in 1881, was one of the first schools to provide higher education for African Americans.

ALACA HÜYÜK See HÜYÜK

ALAGOAS (Brazil)

State in the NE, on the Atlantic Ocean, N of the SÃO FRANCISCO RIVER. Its capital is MACEIÓ. Under Dutch occupation during the period 1632–54, it was the site of the republic of Palmares, which was founded by fugitive black slaves and which lasted until 1697. In 1823 it became a province of the Brazilian Empire and a state of the federal republic in 1889.

ALAIS See ALÉS

ALALAKH [modern: Tell Atchana] (Turkey)

An ancient city, capital of a minor city-state that existed from c. 2600 to c. 1190 B.C. It was located on the lower Orontes River in southwestern Turkey, approximately 10 miles E of ANTAKYA, ancient Antioch. It was an outpost of Sumerian civilization, passing on that culture, including cuneiform writing, to the Hittites and others. For quite a long time it controlled trade in ivory and cedar wood from LEBANON between MESOPOTAMIA and the eastern Mediterranean region. It was rediscovered by archaeologists digging in a hill locally called Tell Atchana. The remains included those of a large palace. See also HITTITE EMPIRE.

ALALIA See ALÉRIA

ALAMANCE CREEK (United States)

Small stream in N central NORTH CAROLINA. Before the American Revolution a battle was fought on its banks, 20 mi W of HILLSBORO, in which a rebellion by the North Carolina Regulators was put down by the British governor, William Tryon, on May 16, 1771.

ALAMANNIA (France, Germany)

Ancient region on either side of the Upper RHINE RIVER. Originally inhabited by the Alamanni, it became a Frankish province when Clovis I defeated them in 496 and subdued the region in the early sixth century. It became a duchy c. 1000. See FRANKISH EMPIRE and SWABIA.

ALAMEDA (United States)

City and port on an island in SAN FRANCISCO BAY, W CALIFORNIA. Settled in the 1850s, it was the starting point for the first China Clipper flight on November 22, 1935. It was the site of the Alameda Naval Air Station, a large U.S. Navy air base built during the period 1938–40, and shut down in 1997.

EL ALAMEIN [Al-Alamein] [Arabic: Al-'Alamayn] (Egypt)
Town on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 62 mi WSW of ALEXANDRIA. During World War II it was the farthest point reached in the offensive against Egypt launched by the Axis forces under General Erwin Rommel. The Axis advance was halted on June 30, 1942, by the Allies under Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery whose Eighth Army counterattacked on October 23. In the ensuing battle, which lasted until November 3, the Allies won one of their most decisive victories of the war, preventing German occupation of Egypt.

ALAMO, THE (United States)

Fort in SAN ANTONIO, 75 mi SW of AUSTIN, TEXAS. Originally a Franciscan mission founded in 1718, it was converted to a fort in 1793. During the Texas Revolution it was besieged by Mexicans under Santa Anna. The siege, which lasted from February 23 to March 6, 1836, ended in the fall of the fort and the massacre of its defendants, whose heroic resistance became a symbol of the Texan struggle for liberty.

ALAMOGORDO (United States)

City in NEW MEXICO, 80 mi NE of EL PASO, W of the Sacramento Mountains. Nearby is the White Sands Missile Range, where the first atomic bomb explosion took place on June 16, 1945.

ALAMUT (Iran)

Fortress in the Elburz Mountains, 40 mi N of KASVIN, in Kasvin province. Built as a stronghold c. A.D. 870 under Hasan ibn al-Sabbah, c. 1090 it became the headquarters of the Ismaili sect of Islam, a kind of underground terrorist group known as the Assassins. The fortress was captured in 1256 by the Mongol Hulagu Khan, who destroyed most of the sect during his campaign in PERSIA.

ÅLAND ISLANDS [Ahvenanmaa] [Swedish: Åland-söerna] (Finland)

Archipelago in the BALTIC SEA of approximately 300 islands, 80 inhabited, at the entrance of the GULF OF BOTHNIA, between SWEDEN and Finland. Of great strategic importance, they were taken from Sweden by Peter the Great's fleet in 1714, but were returned in 1721. The islands were ceded, with Finland, to RUSSIA in 1809. In spite of a plebiscite in favor of reattachment to Sweden after World War I, they were assigned to Finland by the League of Nations on June 29, 1921, and were then demilitarized.

ÅLAND-SÖERNA See ALAND ISLANDS

ALAPPUZHA [Allepey] (India)

City in KERALA state, 20 miles SSE of KOCHI. Known as the VENICE of the East, Alappuzha has been the focus of trade and commerce since antiquity. An early center of Christianity, Saint Thomas, one of the Twelve Apostles of Jesus, landed nearby in the first century A.D. The district flourished under the second Chera empire (9th–12th century). The city was under the Portuguese, the Dutch, and the English from the 16th through 19th centuries. Alappuzha is home to the famous serpent boat races including the Nehru Trophy Boat Race.

ALARCOS (Spain)

Town in Ciudad Real province, New Castile, 8 mi W of CIUDAD REAL. On July 19, 1195, during the Christian reconquest of Spain, Alfonso VIII of CASTILE suffered a severe defeat here at the hands of Yakub al-Mansur, the leader of the Moorish sect of the ALMOHADES, then at the height of their power.

ALASEHIR [Alashehr] [Greek: Philadelphia; Turkish: Alaşehir] (Turkey)

Town in Manisa province, 80 mi E of Izmir, at the foot of the Tmolus Mountains. An ancient Greek city, it was founded in 150 B.C. by King Attalus II of PERGAMUM and became an important cultural and religious center. In 1391 it was the last independent Greek city of ASIA MINOR to fall to the Turks.

ALASHEHR See ALASEHIR

ALASKA (United States)

Admitted to the Union as the 49th state in 1959, Alaska occupies the far NW peninsula of the North American continent and is bounded on the E by the YUKON of CANADA, on the S by the Pacific Ocean, on the W by the BERING SEA, and on the N by the Arctic Ocean. It includes many islands, particularly the ALEUTIAN ISLANDS. Alaska is a native Aleutian word meaning "mainland."

The first Europeans reached Alaska from Russian SIBERIA in 1741 under the leadership of Vitus Bering, a Dane in Russian employ. The Russians established the first settlement in Alaska in 1784 on KODIAK, an island SE of the peninsula. British explorers, including James Cook and George Vancouver, visited the area, but RUSSIA made good their claim to Alaska with the establishment of the Russian-American Company in 1799. SITKA was founded that year as the company's headquarters, and the organization held a trade monopoly until 1861. Russia claimed ownership of an area far down the Pacific coast, but in 1824 agreed to the present southern boundary.

In 1867 the United States purchased Alaska from Russia for $7 million. The purchase was arranged by Secretary of State William H. Seward, who was derided in many quarters for buying "Seward's Ice-box." For some years Alaska was governed, in order, by the army, the navy, and a federal civilian regime. It was not given territorial status until 1912. After the discovery of gold in the KLONDKIKE region of the Canadian Yukon in 1896, thousands of prospectors, mainly Americans, traveled through Alaska to the goldfields. During the period 1898–99 and again in 1902 gold finds in Alaska itself brought more thousands, and for a few years Alaska became the land of the sourdoughs. In 1903 a boundary dispute concerning the Alaskan panhandle was arbitrated with GREAT BRITAIN and Canada in favor of the United States, while in 1911 a treaty between Russia, Great Britain, and JAPAN restricted seal hunting here.

During World War II, in June 1942, Japan seized ATTU and KISKA Islands in the Aleutians. They were driven out of Attu in May 1943 and abandoned Kiska in August of the same year. As a result of the war, Alaska became the site of strategic defense installations. The tip of the Seward Peninsula is only a few miles from Russia.

Alaska's economic situation began to change dramatically in 1968 with the discovery of large oil reserves on the North Slope on the Arctic coast. Large-scale drilling has produced great wealth, in which the state has shared. Beginning in 1975 an oil pipeline was built across Alaska from the North Slope to VALDEZ on the south coast. The prospect of oil elsewhere, and of other valuable natural resources in the vast, wild, and unexplored areas of the state, has aroused controversy. Those who would open wild areas to exploitation, including many Alaskans as well as commercial and industrial interests, are pitted against environmentalists who want to control development while keeping much of the state in its natural condition. Oil drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge became a political issue in the George W. Bush administration after his election in 2000.

Alaska is mountainous, with a number of ranges. Mt McKinley, 20,320 ft in elevation, is the highest peak in North America. The Yukon is the largest river. Oil production and mining are the best-known elements of the Alaskan economy, but fishing is also important. The federal government is the largest employer. In March 1964 the strongest earthquake ever recorded in North America struck Alaska, killing 114 people and doing great damage. Alaska's cities, none of which is very large, include the capital, JUNEAU; NOME, the gold rush center; ANCHORAGE; FAIRBANKS; and Kodiak.

ALASKA HIGHWAY [former: Alcan Highway] (Canada, United States)

Road, extending from DAWSON CREEK, BRITISH COLUMBIA, 1,523 mi NW to FAIRBANKS, ALASKA. It was built by the United States during World War II between March and November 1942 as a strategic military road to supply their forces in Alaska against Japanese invasion. Shortly after the war, the highway was sold by the United States to the Canadian government.

ALAVOINEN See OLONETS

ALAWITES, TERRITORY OF See LATAKIA

ALBACETE (Spain)

City in SE Spain, approximately 140 mi SE of MADRID. Of Moorish origin and known as al-Basit, it was the scene of two fierce battles between Christians and Moors in 1145 and 1146. Under the Moors it was part of the kingdom of MURCIA, but in 1269 it was annexed by CASTILE. The city was refounded as Albacete in 1365. During the War of the Spanish Succession, Philip V of Spain won a victory at the Battle of ALMANZA near here. Albacete has long been noted for its manufacture of knives and daggers and for its 16th-century cathedral of San Juan Bautista, which was restored after a fire in 1936. Albacete is in the La Mancha region where Don Quixote had his fictional adventures.

ALBA DE TORMES (Spain)

Town in Salamanca province, on the Tormes River, 13 mi SE of SALAMANCA. A Carmelite convent was founded here in 1570 by St. Teresa, the founder of the discalced or barefoot order of the Carmelites. She died here in 1582. The convent contains her relics.

ALBA IULIA [Alba Julia] [Latin: Apulum; Hungarian: Gyulafehérvár; German: Karlsburg] (Romania)

Town in TRANSYLVANIA, on the Mureșul River, 45 mi N of HUNEDOARA. A center of Romanian nationalism in Hungarian Transylvania, it was the site of the proclamation of the union of Transylvania and Romania on December 1, 1918. In 1922 King Ferdinand I and Queen Marie were crowned here. Once the Roman colony of Apulum, the town has the tomb of the Hungarian national hero, János Hunyadi, in the cathedral and an upper fortress built by Emperor Charles VI.

ALBA JULIA See ALBA IULIA

ALBA LONGA (Italy)

Ancient city of LATIUM, on Lake Albano, 12 mi SE of ROME, in modern Roma province. By legend founded by Ascanius, the son of Aeneas, it is thought to be the oldest city of Latium. The legendary birthplace of Romulus and Remus, it was the mother city of Rome, but was destroyed by the Romans under Tullus Hostilius in 665 B.C.

ALBANIA [Albanian: Shqiperi, Shqipni, Shqipri]

A Balkan nation on the ADRIATIC SEA, bordered by SERBIA and MONTENEGRO and MACEDONIA to the N and E, and GREECE to the S. The Albanians, a people whose ethnic roots may have been in the Illyrian and Thracian tribes who lived nearby in ancient times, have traditionally been isolated from outside influence by their mountains, forests, and swamps. The Greeks and Romans barely left their mark on this land. Albania was under the sway of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE from 395 to 1347; the Serbs made inroads in the seventh century; and 200 years later the Bulgarians controlled parts of the area. VENICE colonized it in the 11th century, and NAPLES soon became politically dominant, remaining so until the 14th century, when it was replaced first by the Serbs and then the Turks, who introduced Islam.

Albania was part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE when Balkan nationalism swept southeastern Europe in the 19th century. In 1912 the Albanians took advantage of the first Balkan War to declare their independence. This was upset by Serbian invasion the following year. World War I brought virtual dissolution of the state as various nations and ethnic groups fought to control the territory. Independence and territorial integrity were achieved once again following the war. Liberals and conservatives vied for power in the newly independent nation, with the latter winning out in 1925. The conservative leader, Ahmed Zogu, became King Zog in 1928. In 1939 Mussolini seized Albania for ITALY.

During World War II Albanian partisans, led by Enver Hoxha, although clearly communists, received aid exclusively from GREAT BRITAIN and FRANCE. Thus the communist government set up in 1946 came to power without Soviet assistance—the only communist government in Europe to do this. More Stalinist than the nation that spawned Stalin, Albania broke with the USSR in 1961 and allied itself with the then more ideologically pure Chinese. Albania was the most independent communist state of Eastern Europe, one of the most isolated, and also one of the most rigidly governed and controlled. By 1990, economic conditions were so bad that antigovernment demonstrators challenged the regime. In 1992 a noncommunist government replaced the communist regime and Albania opened itself to the world. In 1997 the country fell into economic collapse as a large percentage of the population participated in a pyramid investment scheme. The economic conditions became worse after 1999 as ethnic Albanian refugees fled to Albania from ethnic strife in neighboring Kosovo, but have improved after 2000 with growth rates of 9% per year slowing somewhat after the global economic slowdown in 2002.

ALBANY [former: Beverwyck, Fort Orange] (United States)

City in NEW YORK State, on the W bank of the HUDSON RIVER, approximately 145 mi N of NEW YORK CITY. In the colonial era it was a fur-trading center and the site of meetings between Indians and Europeans. Henry Hudson, sailing up the Hudson River in 1609, reached a point near modern Albany. In 1614 the Dutch explorer Hendrick Christiaensen built Fort Nassau on Castle Island in the Hudson, a little south of Albany's site. When this was destroyed by a flood in 1617 it was replaced by building Fort Orange on the present location. Seven years later a group of civilian settlers arrived.

When the English took control of the colony of NEW NETHERLAND in 1664, they renamed the settlement Albany. The Albany Congress of 1754, which met here, was the first attempt of the American colonists to organize a union of the colonies. Representatives from seven colonies negotiated with the Iroquois Indians and voted favorably on Benjamin Franklin's Plan of Union, which was later rejected by colonial legislatures. The New York state capital was moved to Albany in 1797. With the building of the ERIE CANAL, completed in 1825, the city grew economically. It is today a deepwater port and a busy commercial center.

ALBANY, FORT See FORT ALBANY

ALBA REGIA See SZÉKESFEHÉRVÁR

ALBAY See LEGASPI

ALBEMARLE SOUND (United States)

Inland body of water in NE NORTH CAROLINA, approximately 55 mi long and three to 14 mi wide. It is separated from the Atlantic Ocean by a narrow barrier island. The sound was explored in 1585 by Ralph Lane, one of the settlers of the ill-fated ROANOKE ISLAND colony. On the barrier island is KITTY HAWK, near which the Wright Brothers, Orville and Wilbur, made the first successful airplane flight on December 17, 1903. An important link in the Intra-coastal Waterway, the sound is connected to CHESAPEAKE BAY to the north by a canal.

ALBENGA [Latin: Albingaunum, Album Ingaunum] (Italy)

Town and port in Savona province, on the LIGURIAN SEA, 22 mi SW of SAVONA. A port in Roman times, it has a well-preserved Roman bridge and a 14th-century Gothic cathedral.

ALBERT [former: Ancre] (France)

Town in the Somme department, 17 mi NE of AMIENS. During World War I it changed hands four times and was completely destroyed in the fighting. Rebuilt, it was damaged again during World War II.

ALBERT, LAKE [Albert Nyanza] (Uganda, Congo)

Lake on the border of Uganda and the Congo, NW of LAKE VICTORIA, in the Rift Valley system. It was the last source of the NILE RIVER to be discovered when it was reached by the Englishman Sir Samuel Baker in 1864.

ALBERTA (Canada)

One of the Prairie provinces of the Dominion of Canada, in the west. The first Europeans in the area were fur traders and trappers. In 1670, as a result of an enormous land grant made by Charles II of England, this region became part of the Hudson's Bay Company territory. Sir Alexander Mackenzie, a Scottish explorer and trader, crossed it in 1793, and in 1794 a fort was built on the present site of EDMONTON. The fort was destroyed by Indians and rebuilt in 1806. In 1870 the Dominion bought the company's territory, and Alberta became part of the NORTHWEST TERRITORIES. It was made a separate administrative district in 1882. The first railroad was built across Alberta in the 1880s, and until the early 1900s the region was known for its ranching. Immigration then brought in many farmers, and Alberta became an important wheat-growing region. It was admitted as a province in 1905.

In 1935, during the Great Depression, the Social Credit Party won control of the government, but its attempts to change the banking and currency systems were declared unconstitutional. As producer of 85 percent of Canada's gas and oil, Alberta engaged in a long, bitter controversy over the sharing of revenues from these resources with the Dominion government until the dispute was settled in September 1981. Alberta's largest city is CALGARY and its capital is Edmonton. Alberta has the world's largest deposit of oil sands in the northern part of the province.

ALBERT NYANZA See ALBERT, LAKE

ALBERTVILLE See KALEMI

ALBI [Latin: Albiga] (France)

Town in the Tarn department, on the Tarn River, in LANGUEDOC, 40 mi NE of TOULOUSE. In the 12th and 13th centuries it was a center of the Catharist religious sect, which at this time flourished in southern France. The town gave its name to the Albigensian heresy, which was stamped out by the Albigensian Crusade (1208–13) under Simon de Montfort and by the Inquisition, set up in 1233 by Pope Gregory IX. Albi was annexed to the French Crown in 1229. Its huge red-brick Gothic cathedral resembles a fortress. The painter Toulouse-Lautrec was born here.

ALBIGA See ALBI

ALBINGAUNUM See ALBENGA

ALBIS See ELBE RIVER

ALBIUM INTEMELIUM See VENTIMIGLIAÅLBORG [Aalborg] [Latin: Alburgum] (Denmark)

City and port on the Limtjorden, in Nordjylland county, 60 mi NNW of ÅRHUS. Chartered in 1342, it was the scene of the surrender of the forces of Christian IV of Denmark to the Catholic imperial forces of Albrecht von Wallenstein in 1629 during the Thirty Years' War. During World War II it was occupied by the Germans and was used as an air base for their attack on NORWAY.

ALBUM INGUANUM See ALBENGAALBUQUERQUE (United States)

City in NEW MEXICO, on the RIO GRANDE, 60 mi SW of SANTE FE. Founded by Spanish settlers in 1706, it became an important trading center due to its position on the Santa Fe and Chihuahua trails. After the Mexican War it was a U.S. military outpost during the period 1846–70. It has been the seat of the University of New Mexico since 1892, two years after the town was incorporated. It is now the state's largest city.

ALBURGUM See ÅLBORGALCÁCER DO SAL Latin: Salacia Imperatoria

Village in Setúbal district, 25 mi SE of SETÚBAL. An important city of the ROMAN EMPIRE, it was later a Moorish stronghold until captured in 1217 by Alfonso II of Portugal.

ALCACOVAS (Portugal)

Town in Évora district, 19 mi SW of ÉVORA. On March 6, 1480, a treaty was signed here between SPAIN and Portugal that settled the ownership of regions in GUINEA, West Africa, and of the Atlantic islands.

ALCALÁ DE HENARES [Latin: Complutum] (Spain)

Town in Madrid province, on the Henares River, 21 mi NE of MADRID. It is the site of a famous university, founded in 1498 by the archbishop of TOLEDO, Francisco J. de Cisneros. During the period 1514–17 there was published here the Biblia Complutensis, the first polyglot Bible. The university moved to Madrid in 1836. The writer Miguel de Cervantes was born here in 1547.

ALCALÁ LA REAL (Spain)

Town in Jaén province, ANDALUSIA, 34 mi NW of GRANADA, in the Sierra de Lucena. Of strategic importance, it was named "La Real" to commemorate its reconquest from the Moors by Alfonso XI of CASTILE in 1340. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, the Spanish were defeated here by the French under General Sebastiani on January 27, 1810.

ALCAN HIGHWAY See ALASKA HIGHWAYALCÁNTARA (Spain)

Town in Cáceres province, above the TAGUS RIVER, 50 mi NW of CÁCERES. Reconquered from the Moors in 1214 by Alfonso IX, it was entrusted to the military religious order of the Knights of Alcántara in 1217.

ALCÂNTARA (Brazil)

A city across the bay from SÃO LUIS. It was founded in the early 1600s as a sugar and cotton center. The city is known for its plantation-era architecture. Alcântara is also home to Brazil's space launch facility, which has so far not developed to its potential as one of the best locations on earth for launching both equatorial and polar orbital trajectories.

ALCATRAZ (United States)

Island in San Francisco Bay, 1 mi NW of SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA. The site of a U.S. military prison from 1859 to 1934, it then became a federal prison until it was closed in 1963. It was known as a place for unreformable prisoners from which escape was impossible. Today the island is a tourist attraction as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

ALCÁZAR DE SAN JUAN [Latin: Alces] (Spain)

Town in Ciudad Real province, 90 mi SE of MADRID. It was taken by the Romans in the second century B.C. Reconquered from the Moors by the Spanish Knights of St. John in 1186, in 1292 it was captured by Sancho IV of CASTILE. From the 14th to the 16th centuries it was a center of the Order of San Juan (St. John).

ALCAZARQUIVIR [Al-Ksar al-Kabir, Kasr el Kebir, Al-Qsar al-Kbir] (Morocco)

Town on the Lucus River, 60 mi S of TANGIERS. On August 4, 1578, it was the site of the Battle of the Three Kings, in which the sultan of Fès defeated King Sebastian of Portugal, who had come to aid the deposed Mohammed XI. All three kings died in the battle, which opened the way to the great reign of Sultan Ahmad al-Mansur of the Saadian dynasty. PORTUGAL came under the rule of Philip II of SPAIN, as a result of the battle.

ALÇI TEPE See ACHI BABAALCOBACA (Portugal)

Town in Estremadura, in the LEIRIA district. It is the site of a Cistercian abbey that was founded in 1153 by King Alfonso I. The abbey became one of the greatest and wealthiest in Europe, playing a major role in the cultural and economic history of Portugal. Within are the tombs of Peter I and Inés de Castro. Both monuments are remarkable examples of Gothic sculpture.

ALCOLEA (Spain)

Village in Córdoba province, on the Guadalquivir River, 6 mi NE of CÓRDOVA. During the Spanish revolution of 1868, on September 29, revolutionary forces under Marshal Francisco Serrano defeated the last Spanish royal troops here. This led to the abdication and flight to France of Queen Isabella II.

ALDEBURGH (England)

Town in SUFFOLK, on the Alde estuary, 20 mi ENE of IPSWICH. An important commercial center since the 16th century, it was the first town in England to elect a woman mayor when Dr. Elizabeth Garrett Anderson was elected in 1908. Today it is the site of an annual music festival initiated by the late composer Benjamin Britten. The poet George Crabbe was born here in 1754.

ALDERMASTON (England)

Village in BERKSHIRE, 10 mi WSW of READING. The site of the British Atomic Weapons Research Institute, from 1956 to 1963 it was the scene of marches organized by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

ALDERNEY [French: Aurigny] (United Kingdom)

Island in the ENGLISH CHANNEL, it is the northernmost of the CHANNEL ISLANDS OF ENGLAND, 9 mi off the COTENTIN PENINSULA. During the 19th century it was fortified as a British military outpost and held a large garrison until 1930. During World War II, its inhabitants were evacuated before the German occupation and were repatriated in 1946.

ALEKSANDROV (Russia)

City in Russia, 65 mi NW of VLADIMIR. It was the residence of Ivan IV, known as the Terrible, during the period 1564–81, and the site of the first printing press in Russia, set up during his reign.

ALEKSANDROVSK See ZAPOROZHYEALEKSANDROVSK-GRUSHEVSKI See SHAKHTYALEKSINAC See ALEXINATZALEKSINATZ See ALEXINATZALEKTOR See OCHAKOVALENÇON (France)

Town in the Orne department, NORMANDY, on the Sarthe River, 30 mi N of LE MANS. The capital of a countship since 1082 and of a duchy since 1285, it passed to the French Crown in 1549. Margaret of Navarre, sister of Francis I, held her court here after 1525. It is famous for the manufacture of point d'Alençon lace, introduced by Colbert in 1665. St. Teresa (Thérèse) of Lisieux was born here in 1873.

ALEP See ALEPPOALEPPO [Alep; Arabic: Haleb, Halep; Assyrian: Halman; Greek: Berea, Beroea] (Syria)

City and capital of Aleppo province, NW Syria. Situated at the crossroads of caravan routes between Europe and Asia, it was for centuries one of the world's main trade centers. Originally a Hittite town, it was contested by EGYPT in the second millennium B.C. and was under the kingdom of URARTU in the ninth and eighth centuries B.C. Thereafter it came under many rulers, including the Assyrians, Persians, Romans, Byzantines, and Arabs. It was vainly besieged by the crusaders in 1118 and 1124 and fell to Saladin in 1183. Sacked by the Mongols in 1260 and 1401, it only recovered when incorporated into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1517. During World War I, it was captured by the British in 1918, and was made a state under the French mandate of Syria in 1920. In 1925 it was united with DAMASCUS to form the state of Syria.

ALÉRIA [Alalia] [ancient: Aleria] (France)

Modern village, on the east coast of the island of CORSICA, 23 mi SE of CORTE. One of the chief cities of Corsica in antiquity, it was the site of ancient Ionian and Roman colonies. Interesting Greek ceramics have been discovered here.

ALÈS [former: Alais] (France)

Town in the Gard department, 28 mi NW of NÎMES, in LANGUEDOC. A stronghold of the Huguenots, its capture by Louis XIII and the ensuing Peace of Alais, signed on June 27, 1629, ended the French Wars of Religion. The Huguenots were allowed to worship freely but lost their political and military privileges.

ALÉSIA [French: Alise-Sainte-Reine] (France)

Ancient town and mountaintop fortress of GAUL, 43 mi NW of DIJON, now in Côte-d'Or department, BURGUNDY. It was the site of the last stand of the Gauls under Vercingetorix following Caesar's invasion. Its fall to the Romans in 52 B.C. completed Caesar's conquest. The Roman siege works are still visible.

ALESSANDRIA (Italy)

City and capital of Alessandria province, in PIEMONTE, 45 mi SE of TURIN, on the Tanaro River. It was founded in 1168 as a stronghold by the Lombard League during its struggle for independence against the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick I. It was occupied by FRANCE for nearly 14 years following the Battle of MARENGO in 1800, during the Napoleonic Wars. It was also the center of the pro-Mazzini conspiracy of 1833.

ALESSIO See LESH

ALEUTIAN ISLANDS [Aleutians] (United States)

Archipelago that separates the BERING SEA from the Pacific Ocean and extends from the ALASKA peninsula to the Kamchatka peninsula. Discovered by a Russian expedition under Vitus Bering and Alexei Chirikov in 1741, the islands were purchased from RUSSIA by the United States in 1867, along with Alaska. Of great strategic importance, they were partly occupied by the Japanese during World War II. Among those occupied during the period 1942–43 were Attu, Dutch Harbor, Agattu, and Kiska. Today the islands are an important part of the U.S. defense network as the site of military bases and radar stations.

ALEUTIANS See ALEUTIAN ISLANDS

ALEXANDRETTA [French: Alexandrette; Turkish: Iskenderun] (Turkey)

Province and city along the MEDITERRANEAN SEA on the Gulf of Iskenderun. Today the province is coextensive with HATAY province in Turkey. The city, founded by Alexander the Great in 333 B.C. and of great strategic importance, was the object, with its province, of an international dispute between World Wars I and II. Transferred to SYRIA under a French mandate by the Treaty of SÈVRES on August 10, 1920, it prompted an international crisis that was temporarily resolved when the whole province became autonomous as the Republic of Hatay on September 2, 1938. The matter was finally settled by treaty on June 23, 1939, when the area was reincorporated into Turkey.

ALEXANDRETTA See ISKENDERUN

ALEXANDRETTE See ALEXANDRETTA

ALEXANDRIA [Al-Iskandariya, Iskindireyya] (Egypt)

Egypt's chief seaport and former capital, situated on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA 129 mi NW of CAIRO. The city was founded by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C., and within a century his successors built it into a center of trade between Europe and the East, surpassing CARTHAGE in size and importance. Alexandria grew into a city with major European (Greek) and Jewish populations in addition to its Egyptian one. It was the capital of the Ptolemies, Macedonian rulers of Egypt, and gained world renown because of their Hellenic passion for knowledge. The library at Alexandria held the greatest collection of books in the world. As ROME rose in power, the city came under its influence and in 80 B.C. was officially incorporated into the ROMAN EMPIRE by Augustus.

Alexandria generally prospered under Roman rule in spite of periodic calamities visited upon it. The great library suffered destruction through a series of fires and attacks, and in A.D. 215 a general massacre of the city's population was ordered by the Roman emperor Caracalla to revenge a perceived insult. Alexandria became a major Christian theological center but found itself increasingly isolated from the rest of Egypt. When the Roman Empire began to disintegrate in the third century, the city began a speedy decline.

The Persians took Alexandria in A.D. 616 and the Arabs in 640, after a 14-month siege. The BYZANTINE EMPIRE struggled with the Arabs for control and in the process destroyed the city's fortifications and importance. Its decline accelerated, and Alexandria became totally eclipsed when Cairo rose to prominence in the 10th century. Its main canal to the Nile became clogged with silt causing trade to bypass the city.

Reduced in stature to a small town, it was notable only as the scene of a battle between Napoleon and ENGLAND in the late 18th century. Mehmet (Muhammad) Ali resurrected Alexandria in the first half of the 19th century when he decided to develop it as a deep-water port of strategic importance. Energetic construction and renewed commerce made Alexandria a major city again. In 1882 it was the scene of a major riot in which 400 European residents were killed. England used this as a reason to occupy all of Egypt and administer it as a colony. Alexandria in the 20th century has been prosperous.

ALEXANDRIA [former: Belhaven] (United States)

City in VIRGINIA, on the POTOMAC RIVER, 5 mi S of WASHINGTON, D.C. Settled by Scots in 1731 and called Belhaven, it was renamed in 1749. During the Civil War it was occupied by Federal troops beginning in May 1861, and it became an important base for the conquest of Virginia. It was George Washington's home at one time and the boyhood home of Robert E. Lee.

ALEXANDRIA See JACKSON, TENNESSEE

ALEXANDRIA ARACHOSIORUM See KANDAHAR

ALEXANDRIA ESCHATE See KHUDJAN

ALEXANDROPOL See KUMAYRI

ALEXANDROÚPOLIS [Turkish: Dedeagach] (Greece)

City, port, and capital of Evros department, on the Gulf of Ainos, in THRACE, 70 mi SSW of EDIRNE. Of great strategic importance, it was strongly contested by the Balkan states. Captured from the Turks by BULGARIA during the Balkan Wars of 1912–13, it was ceded to Greece by the Treaty of NEUILLY on November 27, 1919. It was reoccupied by Bulgaria during World War II.

ALEXINATZ [Aleksinat] [Serbian: Aleksinac] (Serbia)

Town in the Republic of Serbia, about 100 mi S of BELGRADE. On September 1, 1876, during the Serbo-Turkish War, the Serbs were decisively defeated here by Turkey. The harsh conditions imposed on the defeated Serbs by the Turks led to the Russo-Turkish War of 1877. See OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

ALFORD (Scotland)

Town in GRAMPIAN region, 21 mi WNW of ABERDEEN. On July 2, 1645, during the English Civil War, the Scottish Covenanters under General William Baillie were defeated here by the Marquis of Montrose James Graham, who thus gained control of most of Scotland. See also ASSYNT, AULDEARN, NASEBY, TIPPERMUIR.

ALGARVE [Arabic: Al-Gharb] (Portugal)

Former kingdom coextensive with modern Faro district, in the most southerly part of Portugal. A Moorish kingdom since the eighth century, it was the last stronghold of the Moors to be conquered by Alfonso III in 1249. Thereafter it was incorporated into the kingdom of Portugal.

ALGECIRAS (Spain)

City and port on a bay of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, in Cádiz province, ANDALUSIA, 55 mi SE of Cádiz. The southernmost seaport of Spain, opposite GIBRALTAR, it was the first town to be captured by the Moors following their invasion of the Iberian Peninsula in 711. It was reconquered by Alfonso XI of CASTILE in 1344. In 1704 the Spaniards destroyed the Moorish town. On January 16, 1906, it was the scene of a European conference that settled the first Moroccan crisis and established the privileged position of FRANCE and Spain in MOROCCO.

ALGERIA [Peoples Democratic Republic of Algeria]
[French: Algérie]

Country in North Africa bounded by TUNISIA and LIBYA to the E; NIGER and MALI to the S; MAURITANIA and MOROCCO to the W; and on the N by the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, which has been the key to its history.

CARTHAGE established trading posts at ANNABA, SKIKDA, and ALGIERS (then Icosium) on the route to SPAIN shortly after 1200 B.C. Algeria passed into Roman possession in 104 B.C., becoming part of AFRICA PROCONSULARIS. At the time its eastern part was called NUMIDIA. ROME initiated tremendous building projects across Algeria and Tunisia, erecting cities, roads, aqueducts, and bridges.

In the fifth century A.D. the Vandals briefly controlled the country as they moved from Spain to TUNISIA, and Algeria collapsed into anarchy. By 700 the emerging Arab rule of North Africa, centered in MOROCCO and Tunisia, swept over Algeria. The people adopted Islam and were divided into small Arab principalities until the end of the 15th century, when resurgent Christians from Spain captured several Algerian ports in their offensive against Islam. Turkish forces were appealed to for aid, displaced the Spanish, and took control of Algeria.

The OTTOMAN EMPIRE ruled it directly until 1671, when Algeria was granted largely autonomous status as a Turkish vassal state under a ruler called the dey. The country's international position rested on the large fleet of privateers that it maintained. During the 16th and 17th centuries Algeria levied tribute from Christian European states and preyed on the ships of nations not protected by treaty. The growth of European naval strength, however, lessened Algeria's influence during the 18th and early 19th centuries to that of nuisance piracy.

In 1830 FRANCE ended the Turkish regency in Algeria with the capture of Algiers. France slowly gained control of the coastline and determined to rule central and eastern Algeria. In 1840 this aim resulted in warfare with the Berber nationalist Emir Abd el Kader. He was defeated by 1847, but sporadic rebellions erupted until 1880.

Under French control a ruling minority of approximately one million European settlers built extensively and prospered, but the aftermath of World War II saw an intense growth of anticolonial Arab nationalism in Algeria. Terrorism and reprisals began to be commonplace, leading to a state of full-scale civil war. By 1960 at least 100,000 nationalist soldiers had been killed and 10,000 French, and civilian casualties were high. In 1962 French president Charles de Gaulle signed the EVIAN Accords, which halted the fighting and set up an independent Algeria closely allied with France. During the next year most of the European populace fled to France. The nation's economy was greatly disrupted, and the only steady source of income came from its productive oil fields in the Sahara region. These were nationalized in 1971, and the rising price of oil catapulted Algeria into a position of enormous power. Its economy made enormous strides throughout the 1970s. Algeria supported the Polisario rebels in Western SAHARA against Morocco after Morocco annexed the region after the Spanish left the former colony. The rebels, based in W Algeria, preside over large refugee camps, but have not been actively fighting since a cease-fire in 1991.

Algerian Berbers rioted in 1980 over legislation making Arabic the only official language. In the same year a massive earthquake struck NW Algeria, killing an estimated 4,500 people. Algeria has been ruled by the military, which has overseen an Arab socialist model of development. In the 1990s, an Islamic group opposing the military government brought the nation close to all-out civil war. Elections in 1999 were won by Abdelaziz Bouteflika, the candidate of the military, while opposition candidates boycotted the elections. In 2003, a large earthquake east of Algiers killed more than 1,200. In the 2004 elections, Bouteflika was reelected with more than 80% of the vote. See also BARBARY STATES.

ALGÉRIE See ALGERIA

ALGHERO (Italy)

Town and port in Sassari province, NW SARDINIA. Founded by the Genoese in 1102, it became a Catalan colony under Peter IV of ARAGON in 1354. It was the residence of the Emperor Charles V after 1541 and passed to SAVOY in 1720.

ALGIERS [Arabic: Al-Djaza'ir; French: Alger; Latin: Icosium] (Algeria)

City and capital of Algeria, on the Bay of Algiers, SW MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Founded by the Phoenicians, and later a Roman town, it disappeared after the fall of the ROMAN EMPIRE. It was revived under the Zirid dynasty c. A.D. 980 and became the main stronghold of the BARBARY STATES following its capture by the pirate Barbarossa in 1516. On June 30, 1815, a treaty was signed here between Algeria and the UNITED STATES that ended the Algerian War. It was conquered by the French in 1830 at the start of their conquest of Algeria. The city fell to the Allies on November 8, 1942, during World War II, and was thereafter an Allied headquarters. From June 23, 1943 to August 31, 1944 it was the provisional capital of FRANCE under President Charles de Gaulle. It was a major center of activity during the Algerian struggle for independence and was the site of General Salan's putsch of May 13, 1958, which toppled the French Fourth Republic and restored de Gaulle to power.

ALHAMBRA See GRANADA (Spain)

ALHUCEMAS See AL-HOCEIMA

ALICANTE [Arabic: al-Akant; Greek: Acra-Leuca; Latin: Lucentum] (Spain)

City, port, and capital of Alicante province, on a bay of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 77 mi S of VALENCIA. Founded by Phocaeans from Greece in 325 B.C., it was captured in 201 B.C. by ROME, which established a naval base here. It was occupied by the Moors from A.D. 718 to 1249, and was besieged by FRANCE in 1709 and by the Federalists of CARTAGENA in 1873. During the Spanish civil war it was under Republican control from 1936 to 1939.

ALICAR HÜYÜK See ALISAR HÜYÜK

ALICE SPRINGS [former: Stuart] (Australia)

Town in S central NORTHERN TERRITORY, 954 mi S of DARWIN, lying almost at the center of the continent. It was founded in 1871 and was the capital of the short-lived Territory of Central Australia during the period 1926–31. It is the northern terminus of the Central Australia Railway.

ALIGARH [Koili-Aligarh] (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH state, 43 mi N of AGRA. In 1759 it became an important MARATHA fort under Sindhia and was stormed by the British on August 28, 1803, during the Second Maratha War. It is the site of the leading university for Indian Muslims, which was founded in 1875 as the Anglo-Oriental College.

ALIRIA See ALÉRIA

ALISAR HÜYÜK [Alishar Hüyük] [Turkish: Alicar Hüyük] (Turkey)

Archaeological site of an ancient Hittite town in Yozgat province, on the Kanak River, 32 mi SE of YOZGAT. Excavations here have revealed layers of habitation from the Chalcolithic period to Phrygian times. Fine examples of Cappadocian ware as well as some of the famous Hittite Cappadocian tablets have been discovered here. See also CAPPADOCIA.

ALISE-SAINTE-REINE See ALESIA

ALISHAR HÜYÜK See ALISAR HÜYÜK

ALJUBARROTA (Portugal)

Village in Leiria district, 18 mi SSW of LEIRIA. On August 14, 1385, John I of Portugal defeated John I of CASTILE here, thus assuring Portuguese independence and initiating the greatest period of Portugal's history, under the Aviz dynasty. See also BATALHA.

ALKAZARES See CÁCERES

ALKMAAR (Netherlands)

Town in North HOLLAND province, on the North Holland canal, 22 mi NW of AMSTERDAM. An important commercial center since the 13th century, it was the first Dutch city to successfully resist SPAIN during the Netherlands war of independence in 1573. Following their defeat by FRANCE in the War of the Second Coalition, Anglo-Russian forces signed a convention here on October 18, 1799, by which they evacuated the Netherlands.

ALLADA (Benin)

Town in Atlantique department, 35 mi NW of PORTO-NOVO. In the 17th and early 18th centuries it was the capital of the kingdom of Allada, the leader of the Aja states. It was captured by the kingdom of ABOMEY, later Dahomey, in 1724 during the wars to control the SLAVE COAST and the slave trade.

ALLAHABAD [ancient: Prayag] (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH state, at the junction of the GANGES RIVER and the Jumna River, 75 mi W of

32 Alleghany

VARANASI. On the site of an old Indo-Aryan holy city, it was rebuilt under Muslim rule from 1194. Akbar, the Mogul emperor, lived here in the 16th century. During the colonial period it was captured and fortified by the British. It was a center of the Indian Mutiny of 1857. It is an important Hindu pilgrimage center. Mahatma Gandhi's ashes were dispersed on February 12, 1948, within the waters of its two holy rivers.

ALLEGHANY See ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS

ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS [Alleghany] (United States)

Western section of the APPALACHIAN Mts, extending approximately 500 mi SW from SW NEW YORK through MARYLAND and WEST VIRGINIA to SW VIRGINIA. The highest point is approximately 4,860 feet. While the eastern Alleghenies are rugged, the western section is a plateau that extends into KENTUCKY and OHIO. The rocky, forested mountains were a formidable barrier to early American colonists who wished to push west into the OHIO RIVER valley and the GREAT LAKES region. The Cumberland Gap, near where KENTUCKY, TENNESSEE, and Virginia meet, was discovered by Thomas Walker in 1750, and it became the main route through the mountains for many years. In 1755, during the French and Indian War, British general Edward Braddock built a road across the Alleghenies on his disastrous march to attempt to capture FORT DUQUESNE, now PITTSBURGH, from the French. American colonists thought that the victory won by themselves and the British in this war would allow them to cross the Alleghenies to settle the western regions. They were angered when on October 7, 1763, the British established a line on the crest of the Appalachians, beyond which the colonists were not to settle until the Indians had been pacified and a land policy established. By winning the American Revolution, however, the colonists acquired the land in dispute, and pioneers could now move across the mountains.

Meanwhile, in 1755 the famous woodsman Daniel Boone blazed the WILDERNESS ROAD from the SHENANDOAH VALLEY SW and W through the Cumberland Gap, and for approximately 50 years from 1790 this was the principal route followed by settlers westward. Construction of the NATIONAL ROAD began in 1815, and three years later it ran through the Alleghenies from Cumberland, Maryland, to WHEELING, West Virginia. The Pennsylvania Canal, completed in 1854, included the Allegheny Portage Railroad on which canal boats were put in cars and hauled on tracks over the crest of the mountains to help link PHILADELPHIA and PITTSBURGH. The Alleghenies are now noted for their scenic vistas.

ALLEGHENY RIVER (United States)

Rising in NW PENNSYLVANIA, the river flows NW into SW NEW YORK State, then SW and S to join the MONONGAHELA RIVER at PITTSBURGH, Pennsylvania, to form the OHIO RIVER. It is 325 mi long. Before the coming of the railroads the river was important for transportation. During the American Revolution it was used in 1779 by colonial troops going north from Fort Pitt, now PITTSBURGH. Following an encounter with Seneca Indians, they burned an Indian village near Warren, Pennsylvania. The expedition reached the present site of SALAMANCA, New York. The Seneca were forced to relocate again after the construction of a dam on the upper Allegheny below Salamanca. The Allegheny valley was home to America's earliest oil wells in TITUSVILLE and OIL CITY.

ALLENSTEIN See OLSZTYN

ALLENTOWN [former: Northampton] (United States)

City in PENNSYLVANIA, on the Lehigh River, 50 mi nnw of PHILADELPHIA. Founded by William Allen, it was incorporated as a city in 1867. During the American Revolution it sheltered the Liberty Bell, which was brought there in 1777 and housed in the Zion Reformed Church.

ALLEPEY See ALAPPUZHA

ALLIA RIVER (Italy)

Ancient small river, a tributary of the TIBER RIVER. Although its exact location is not known, it ran approximately 12 mi N of ROME. Livy writes that the Romans were defeated here during the attack on Rome by the Gallic Senones tribe under Brennus, on July 18, 390 B.C. The victory enabled Brennus to sack Rome.

ALMA-ATA See ALMATY

ALMADÉN [earlier: Sisapon; Spanish: Almadén del Azogue] (Spain)

Town in Ciudad Real province, in the Sierra Morena, 50 mi WSW of CIUDAD REAL. Situated in one of the richest mercury-producing areas of the world, its mines were worked in Roman times. It was occupied by the Moors until 1151, when it was captured by Alfonso VII and given to the Knights of CALATRAVA. The mines were leased to the Fuggers, the German merchant bankers, in 1525. The Rothschilds of London ran them in the 19th century. Today the mines are still in operation, the largest of which is directly under the town.

ALMADÉN DEL AZOQUE See ALMADÉN

ALMANSA See ALMANZA

ALMANZA [Spanish: Almansa] (Spain)

Village in Albacete province, 46 mi E of ALBACETE, in MURCIA. During the War of the Spanish Succession, on April 25, 1707, Anglo-Portuguese forces under the Earl of Galway were decisively defeated here by Franco-Spanish forces under the duke of Berwick. This secured the Spanish throne for the Bourbon king Philip V at the expense of the Hapsburg archduke Charles.

ALMA RIVER (Ukraine)

River of the CRIMEA, it flows for approximately 80 mi from the Yaila Mountains W to the BLACK SEA, N of SEVASTOPOL. The first battle of the Crimean War was fought here on September 20, 1854, when the Russians under Prince Menshikov were defeated by the Anglo-French army under Lord Raglan and Armand de Saint-Arnaud. This victory cleared the path for the Allied advance on Sevastopol.

ALMATY [Alma Ata] [former: Vernyi, Vyernyi] (Kazakhstan)

City and former capital of Kazakhstan, in the foothills of the Trans-Ili Ala-Tau Mts, 430 mi ENE of TASHKENT. Founded in 1854 as a Russian military post, it was built on the site of a settlement destroyed by the Mongols in the 13th century. It became the capital of the Kazakh SSR in 1929 and capital of the independent state of Kazakhstan in 1991. In 1997, the capital was moved from Almaty to the more centrally located ASTANA.

ALMEIDA (Portugal)

Town in Guarda district, 25 mi NE of Guarda. One of Portugal's most important strongholds against SPAIN, it fell to Spain in 1762 but was returned soon after. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars it was captured by FRANCE in 1810. In 1811 the British and Portuguese recaptured it.

ALMENARA (Spain)

Town in Castellón de la Plana province, 20 mi NNE of VALENCIA. An old Roman town, it was occupied by the Moors until captured by James I of ARAGON in 1238. Emperor Charles V defeated the comuneros of Valencia here in 1521.

ALMERIA [ancient: Unci; Latin: Portus Magnus] (Spain)

City in Almeria province, on a gulf of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, in ANDALUSIA, 68 mi ESE of GRANADA. An important seaport since Roman times, it flourished from the eighth to the 15th centuries as a small independent Moorish kingdom. Later it served as an outlet for the Moorish kingdom of Granada. In 1489 it was captured by Ferdinand the Catholic, in his war to rid Spain of the Moors.

ALMOHAD EMPIRE

A short-lived Islamic empire originating with the Zenata Berbers of MOROCCO. It seized control of the ALMORAVID EMPIRE in the 12th century and ruled much of North Africa and SPAIN. Within a century its rule had disintegrated, and the empire had splintered into many small states.

ALMORAVID EMPIRE

An ancient Islamic empire extending from northern SPAIN to modern SENEGAL and encompassing much of Africa's Mediterranean coastline. A charismatic Berber holy man named Ibn Yasin launched a crusade to restore Islamic purity in 1042. His followers carried out a remarkable campaign of conquest. By the end of the century they had defeated the great empire of GHANA to the south and swept north from MOROCCO into Spain. The empire was maintained by Almoravid emirs until the 12th century when they were succeeded by the ALMOHAD EMPIRE, which derived from Morocco's Zenata Berbers.

ALN Wick (England)

Town in NORTHUMBERLAND, on the Aln River, 32 mi N of NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE. The site of a strategic feudal castle, it was the scene of many Anglo-Scottish battles. In November 1093 William II of England defeated Malcolm III of SCOTLAND here. William II of Scotland was defeated here in July 1174. It was besieged by the Scots on and off until the mid-16th century. The Percy family purchased the castle in 1309, and it became the seat of the dukes of Northumberland.

ALOST See AALST

ALPES See ALPS

ALPESA See ELVAS

ALPIS GRAIA See LITTLE SAINT BERNARD PASS

ALPS [Latin: Alpes] (Europe)

Mountain range of S central Europe, extending approximately 660 mi from the MEDITERRANEAN SEA along the Franco-Italian border, through SWITZERLAND and AUSTRIA into SLOVENIA, and reaching N into S GERMANY. The passes of the Alps have been important routes for invaders, as well as for trade throughout the centuries. In 218 B.C., during the Second Punic War, Hannibal led his Carthaginian army over the Alps in order to invade ROME. The mountains were brought under Roman control by Caesar but were crossed during the first centuries of our era by Germanic tribes invading ITALY. Charlemagne's armies crossed the Alps in 773, as did those of Napoleon in 1800. The ascent of the highest peak, Mont Blanc (15,771 ft), in 1786 by M. G. Paccard and J. Balmat marked the beginning of mountaineering as a sport. The Alps are noted for their impressive scenery. They are also the source of the DANUBE, RHINE, RHÔNE, and Po rivers.

ALPUJARRAS, LAS (Spain)

Mountain region S of the Sierra Nevada, in GRANADA and Almería provinces. Following the fall of Granada in 1492, many Moors took refuge in this region and continued to fight the Spanish until 1571 when the area was finally subdued.

ALRE See AURAY

ALSACE [German: Elsass; Latin: Alsatia] (France)

Region and former province between the RHINE RIVER and the Vosges Mts, now within the modern departments of Bas-Rhin, Haut-Rhin, and the Territory of BELFORT. Included in what was to become the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE in 870, it was united with France in 1697 following the Treaty of RYSWICK, with STRASBOURG as its capital. After the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 all of Alsace except Belfort was annexed by the GERMAN EMPIRE as part of the territory of ALSACE-LORRAINE. See also LORRAINE.

ALSACE-LORRAINE [German: Elsass-Lothringen] (France)

Region on the borders of SWITZERLAND, LUXEMBOURG, and GERMANY, within the modern departments of Bas-Rhin, Haut-Rhin, and Moselle. The territory was created by the Treaty of FRANKFURT in 1871 from lands captured by GERMANY from the French in the Franco-Prussian War. France recovered the region after World War I, but it was once again under German control during World War II, from 1940 to 1945, when it was retaken by the Allies. See also ALSACE, LORRAINE.

ALSATIA See ALSACE

ALTA CALIFORNIA See CALIFORNIA, LOS ANGELES

ALTAMIRA (Spain)

Prehistoric caves in Santander province, 16 mi SW of SANTANDER. Among the finest examples of Paleolithic caves, they are famous for their polychrome frescoes of animals dating from the Upper Magdalenian Age. They were among the first prehistoric painted caves to be discovered when they were found by Marcelino de Sautuola in 1879. A painted sculpture of the same period was found in a cave nearby in 1981. See also LASCAUX.

ALTAMURA [Latin: Lupatia] (Italy)

Town in Bari province, APULIA, 28 mi SW of BARI. Rebuilt c. 1200 A.D. by Emperor Frederick II, it was settled by Saracens and Jews. It has a 13th-century cathedral begun by Frederick II.

ALTBREISACH See BREISACH

ALTDAMM See DABIE

ALTDORF [Altorf] (Switzerland)

Town and capital of URI canton, 22 mi SE of LUCERNE, on the Lake of Lucerne. It figures prominently in the story of William Tell, who according to legend shot an apple that had been placed upon his son's head. This story is linked to the emergence of the Swiss nation and the formation of the Everlasting League against the Hapsburgs in 1291.

ALTENBURG (Germany)

City in THURINGIA, on the Pleisse River, 26 mi S of LEIPZIG. An old German city and an important trading center, it became an imperial free city in 1134. The Hussites burned it in 1430, and it played a prominent role in the Reformation. It was the capital of the duchy of SAXE-ALTENBURG during the period 1603–72 and 1826–1918.

ALTHIBUROS [Arabic: Al-Mada 'Inah] (Tunisia)

Ancient city of NUMIDIA, between CARTHAGE and Tabassah, North Africa. During Roman times it received municipal rights from Hadrian and became prosperous in the second and third centuries A.D. It was the seat of a Christian bishopric from 400 to 700. It has Roman remains.

ALTIMARLACH See CAITHNESS

ALTINIACUM See ATTIGNY

ALTON (United States)

City in SW ILLINOIS, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, 18 mi N of ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI. On November 7, 1837, Elijah P. Lovejoy, the Abolitionist newspaper editor, was killed here by a proslavery mob, and his printing plant was wrecked. His death is commemorated by the Lovejoy monument. The last Lincoln-Douglas debate was held here in 1858.

ALTONA [former: Altwasser] (Germany)

Former city, now a district of HAMBURG, in Hamburg state, on the ELBE RIVER. Originally a fishing village, it fell to the Danes in 1640 and was granted special privileges making it a rival of Hamburg. It became the first free port of Northern Europe and was made a district of Hamburg in 1937.

ALTOONA (United States)

City in S central PENNSYLVANIA, 87 mi E of PITTSBURGH. An important railroad center, it was founded in 1849 by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as a base for crossing the ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS. In 1862, during the Civil War, it was the scene of a conference of governors that pledged support to President Lincoln. In the early 20th century, it boasted a railroad industry, but by the beginning of the 21st century it was mostly gone.

ALTORF See ALTDORF

ALTÖTTING (Germany)

Town in BAVARIA, 50 mi E of MUNICH. A famous pilgrimage center, it is the site of a Benedictine abbey and a ninth-century chapel. Its 13th-century Romanesque church contains the grave of Count Johannes Tilly, general of the Thirty Years' War.

ALTRAGUSA See CAVTAT

ALTRANSTÄDT (Germany)

Village in HALLE district, 15 mi W of LEIPZIG. Two treaties were signed here during the Great Northern War of 1700–21. In the first, of September 24, 1706, Charles XII of SWEDEN forced Augustus the Strong of POLAND to renounce his claim to the Polish crown. By the second treaty, of September 1, 1707, the Holy Roman Emperor Joseph I guaranteed to Charles religious tolerance for the Protestants of SILESIA.

ALTUN HA (Belize)

Archaeological site in Central America, 20 mi NNW of BELIZE CITY. The site of an ancient Maya center, it has rich tombs dating from the classical Maya period, from A.D. 300 to 600, containing hieroglyphic texts and jade sculptures. See also CHICHEN ITZA, TIKAL, UXMAL.

ALTWASSER See ALTONA

ALWA (Sudan)

Former kingdom of NUBIA, in NE Africa, with its capital at SOBA. The southernmost of Nubian kingdoms, Alwa was in the region formed by the junction of the Blue and White NILE RIVERS, which is near present KHARTOUM, in the Sudan. Converted to Christianity as early as the sixth century, Alwa was at the height of its power in the ninth and 10th centuries.

Alwa and other parts of Nubia long resisted the spread of Islam, but by the end of the 15th century the kingdom was invaded and occupied by Sudanese Muslims. In 1504, along with other regions, it came under the rule of the FUNJ dynasty. The king of Alwa retired S along the Blue Nile to FAZUGHLI, near the Ethiopian border. From here Alwa threatened the Funj militarily until c. 1685, when the latter took Fazughli. In 1821 Mehmet (Muhammad) Ali, khedive of EGYPT, conquered the Sudan. See KUSH, MEROË.

ALWAR (Mewar) (India)

City in RAJASTHAN, 100 miles SW of NEW DELHI. Alwar came under Muslim rule in the 13th century after fierce resistance and was reconquered in 1771 by Maharaja Pratap Singh, a Rajput prince. The city is dominated by the Bala Quila fort overlooking the city.

AMAKUSA See SHIMABARA

AMALFI (Italy)

Town in Salerno province, CAMPANIA, on the Gulf of Salerno, 23 mi SE of NAPLES. It was settled by the Byzantines and was one of the first Italian cities to become an independent republic, in 839. It was a great maritime power from the ninth to the 11th centuries and was a center for trade with the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. Conquered by the Normans, it was later sacked by PISA in 1135 and 1137. Its maritime code, the Tavole Amalfitane, was used throughout the MEDITERRANEAN world until the mid-18th century.

AMALIENBORG See CHARLOTTE AMALIE

AMANA (United States)

Village in E central IOWA, 17 mi SW of CEDAR RAPIDS. It was founded in 1855 by a German Protestant Pietist sect originally located near BUFFALO, NEW YORK. Under Christian Metz it expanded into a settlement of seven villages known as the Amana Church Society. It became a cooperative corporation in 1932, with religious and economic activities separated. It has been one of the most successful communal societies in America.

'AMARA [Kut-el-Amara] (Iraq)

Town in 'Amara governorate, on the TIGRIS RIVER, 100 mi NW of BASRA. It was captured in June 1915 by General Charles Townshend in the Mesopotamian campaign of World War I, during the British advance on BAGHDAD.

AMARAPURA (Myanmar)

Town in Mandalay district, on the IRRAWADDY RIVER, 4 mi S of MANDALAY. It was founded as the capital of Burma in 1783 by King Bodawpaya and, except for the period 1823–37, it remained the capital until 1860, when it was replaced by Mandalay.

AMARAVATI (India)

Archaeological site in ANDHRA PRADESH, on the Krishna River, 22 mi NW of GUNTUR. It was the ancient capital of the Buddhist ANDHRA kingdom from the first century B.C. to the third century A.D. It is famous as the site of an elaborately carved Buddhist shrine of the first century A.D.

AMARNA See TELL AL-AMARNA

AMASIA See AMASYA

AMASYA [Ancient: Amasia] (Turkey)

Town in Amasya province, on the Yesil Irmak River, 48 mi SW of SAMSUN. It was the ancient capital of the Greek kingdom of PONTUS from the fourth century B.C. until the first century A.D. The Romans under Pompey conquered Amasia in 65 B.C. and made it a free city. Later it was an early residence of the Ottoman sultans. Remains in the city include rock-cut tombs of the kings of Pontus and part of the walls of the ancient capital. The geographer Strabo was born here c. 60 B.C.

AMAZON RIVER [Portuguese: Rio Amazonas; Spanish: Rio de las Amazonas, Orellana] (Peru, Brazil)

River of South America. The largest river in the world in terms of volume, it flows from the Ucayali River in the ANDES MOUNTAINS of Peru, E through N Brazil, approximately 4,000 mi to the Atlantic Ocean. Discovered by the Spanish explorer Vicente Yañez Pinzón in 1500, it was further explored by Francisco de Orellana during the period 1540–41. Steam navigation began in 1853. In 1867, Brazil decreed the Amazon open to ships of all flags. It was the site of a crude rubber boom from 1880 to 1910.

AMBALA (India)

City in HARYANA state, 150 m N of NEW DELHI. The city was founded in the 14th century and became a cantonment under the British in 1843. The city developed as a railway center and has become a center of manufacturing.

AMBARAWA (Indonesia)

Town in Central Java province, 20 mi S of SEMARANG, JAVA. It was the site of fighting between British troops and Indonesian nationalists from August to December 1945, just before the declaration of Indonesia's independence.

AMBER (India)

Town in E RAJASTHAN, 5 mi N of JAIPUR. Seized by the Rajputs in 1037, it became the capital of the Kachwaha Rajputs in the 12th century and remained a political center for 700 years. The ruins contain many impressive Rajput buildings.

AMBERG (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, 35 mi E of NUREMBERG, on the Vils River. A trading center and important fortress town from the 14th to the 16th century, it was the capital of the Upper PALATINATE until 1810. On August 24, 1796, during the War of the First Coalition, the French under Marshal Jourdan were defeated here by Archduke Charles of AUSTRIA.

AMBOINA [Amboyna] [native: Ambon] (Indonesia)

Island in the MOLUCCA Islands, in the Banda Sea, 8 mi off the SW coast of CERAM Island. One of the Spice Islands, it was discovered by the Portuguese. It was settled by them in 1521 and became important in the spice trade. The island was the cause of much colonial rivalry, which resulted in the Ambon Massacre of 1623, when a British settlement was sacked by the Dutch. Following Indonesian independence, the islanders revolted in April 1950 and formed the short-lived South Moluccan Republic.

AMBOISE (France)

Town in Indre et Loire department, TOURAINE, on the LOIRE RIVER, 16 mi E of TOURS. It is famous for its Gothic castle, built between 1492 and 1498 by Charles VIII, which became a royal residence. During the Wars of Religion it was the scene of a Huguenot conspiracy that ended in a massacre on March 17, 1560. By the edict of Amboise of March 19, 1563, Catherine de Médicis granted the Protestant nobility freedom of worship in designated places. See also NANTES.

AMBON See AMBOINA

AMBOYNA See AMBOINA

AMBRACIA See ARTA

AMBRIDGE (United States)

Borough in W PENNSYLVANIA, on the OHIO RIVER, 18 mi NW of PITTSBURGH. A communal settlement called Economy was established here from 1825 to 1906 by members of the German Harmony Society led by George Rapp. See also NEW HARMONY.

AMCHITKA (United States)

Island in the ALEUTIAN ISLANDS, 60 mi ESE of KISKA, off the coast of ALASKA. A U.S. air base was set up here in 1942 during World War II for operations against the Japanese. In 1967 the island was chosen as a site for underground testing of nuclear weapons. The first test took place on November 6, 1971.

AMECAMECA [Amecameca de Juárez] (Mexico)

City in Mexico state, at the foot of the volcanoes of Popocatepetl and Ixtacihuatl, 32 mi SE of MEXICO CITY. The site of the famed Christian sanctuary of Sacro Monte, it is one of the most venerated places in Mexico. See also GUADALUPE.

AMECAMECA DE JUÁREZ See AMECAMECA

AMEIXIAL (Portugal)

Village in Évora district, 25 mi NNE of ÉVORA. Here, on June 8, 1663, during the Portuguese war of liberation against SPAIN, the Portuguese under the duke of Schomberg defeated the Spanish under John of AUSTRIA. This was the first of a series of victories that led to Spain's recognition of Portuguese independence in 1668.

AMELIA [Latin: Ameria] (Italy)

Town in Terni province, 12 mi W of TERNI, in UMBRIA. According to Pliny, it was founded three centuries before ROME. It became an episcopal see in A.D. 340. It has Roman ruins, a medieval cathedral, and the remains of splendid polygonal city walls.

AMERIA See AMELIA

AMERICANA [former: Villa Americana] (Brazil)

City in São Paulo state, 70 mi N of SÃO PAULO. In 1868, following the American Civil War, it was settled by immigrants from the Confederacy. It became a municipality in 1924.

AMERICAN RIVER (United States)

River in CALIFORNIA. It rises in the SIERRA NEVADA and flows 30 mi SW to the Sacramento River at SACRAMENTO. The discovery of gold on the river's bank at SUTTER'S MILL on January 24, 1848, started the famous California gold rush.

AMERICAN SAMOA [Eastern Samoa] (United States)

Group of islands comprising the E half of the island chain of SAMOA, in the SW central Pacific Ocean. Now an unincorporated territory under the Department of the Interior, it passed to the United States in 1899 after a treaty with GREAT BRITAIN and GERMANY. The islands were administered by the U.S. Navy until 1951, when the naval base at PAGO PAGO, the capital, was closed. The de facto seat of government is in the village of Fagatogo.

AMERSFOORT (Netherlands)

Town in Utrecht province, on the Eem River, 13 mi ENE of Utrecht. Important commercially since the Middle Ages, the town has many well-preserved medieval monuments, including the old city walls. In 1547 it was the birthplace of the Dutch statesman Jan van Oldenbarnevelt.

AMESBURY (England)

Town in WILTSHIRE, on the AVON RIVER, 7 mi N of SALISBURY. It is in the center of an area rich in prehistoric sites of which the most famous is nearby STONEHENGE. In A.D. 932 it was the scene of a witenagemot, or gathering of the king's counselors. It is the site of a 10th-century nunnery built by King Edgar's widow Aelfthryth. According to Arthurian legend, it was here that Queen Guinevere died.

AMESBURY (United States)

Town in MASSACHUSETTS, on the MERRIMACK RIVER, 16 mi NE of LAWRENCE. The history of Amesbury draws on the supernatural, for Susanna Martin of this town was hanged here as a witch on July 19, 1693. Josiah Bartlett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born here in 1729. It was the home of the poet J.G. Whittier from 1836 to 1876. See also SALEM.

AMFÍ POLIS See AMPHIPOLIS

AMHARA (Ethiopia)

Former kingdom of NE Africa, now in N Ethiopia. Its capital was GONDER. It dominated Ethiopia from 1270 until 1855, when Ethiopia was unified under Theodore II. Modern Ethiopia has inherited its official language and much of its culture from the kingdom of Amhara.

AMHERST [French: Les Planches] (Canada)

Town in W NOVA SCOTIA, 30 mi ESE of MONCTON. A village of ACADIA, it was captured by the English from the French in 1759 and renamed. The remains of two 18th-century forts can be seen here today.

AMHERSTBURG (Canada)

Town in S ONTARIO, on the Detroit River, 20 mi SE of DETROIT, MICHIGAN. Following the evacuation of Detroit in 1797, Fort Maiden was built here by the British. During the War of 1812 it served as a frontier post, but it was captured by the Americans in 1813. Today it is the site of Fort Maiden National Historic Park.

AMIDA See DIYARBAKIR

AMIÉNOIS See AMIENS

AMIENS [Latin: Ambianum, Samarobriva] (France)

City and capital of the Somme department, in PICARDY, on the SOMME RIVER, 80 mi N of PARIS. Originally the capital of the Gallic Ambiani tribe, it was incorporated into the Roman province of Belgica Secunda and later became an episcopal see. In the Middle Ages it was the capital of the countship of Amiénois. It was captured by Louis XI from Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY in 1471. Thereafter until 1790 it was the capital of Picardy. On March 27, 1802, it was the scene of the signing of an Anglo-French treaty that ended the Napoleonic War of the Second Coalition. During World War I, in November 1916, tanks were used for the first time, nearby on the riverbank of the ANCRE in a successful Allied advance on the Germans. In 1918 it was again the site of an Allied offensive against the Germans. Occupied by Germany in World War II, it suffered severe damage.

AMISUS See SAMSUN

AMITERNE See AMITERNUM

AMITERNUM [Amiterne] [Italian: San Vittorino] (Italy)
Ancient town in L'Aquila province, in LATIUM, 60 mi NE of ROME. Originally a Sabine town, it was conquered by the Romans in 293 B.C. It was the birthplace of the historian Sallust in 86 B.C. There are extensive Roman remains.

AMMAEDARA See HAÏDRA

AMMAN [Greek: Philadelphia; Hebrew: Rabbath, Rabbath Ammon] (Jordan)
City and capital of Jordan, on the Jabbok River, 48 mi ENE of JERUSALEM. Occupied since prehistoric times, it was the capital of the Ammonites from the 13th to the sixth centuries B.C. During this time it was engaged in a struggle with the Israelites that ended when King David captured the city c. 1010 B.C. It was later captured by Ptolemy Philadelphus of EGYPT who rebuilt the city between 285 and 246 B.C. In 63 B.C. it became a city of the DECAPOLIS. Under Abdullah ibn Hussein it became the capital of TRANSJORDAN, now Jordan, in 1921.

AMMOCHOSTOS See FAMAGUSTA

AMMOEDARA See HAÏDRA

AMMON (Jordan)
Ancient biblical kingdom of the Ammonites in CANAAN, E of the JORDAN RIVER and N of MOAB. The kingdom flourished from the 13th century B.C. to the eighth century A.D. The Semitic Ammonites took their name from their presumed ancestor, Ben-Ammi, son of Lot, citizen of the biblical city of SODOM. They warred frequently with the Hebrews. Nahash, an Ammonite king with a reputation for cruelty, was defeated by Saul, the first king of the Hebrews. Saul's successor, David, who reigned from 1010 to 972 B.C., defeated them and captured their capital, Rabbath-Ammon (present AMMAN), after King Hanun insulted David's messengers by cutting off parts of their beards and clothes. The war was also over control of north-south trade routes east of the Jordan River. The Ammonites regained independence after Solomon succeeded David as king of the Hebrews in 972 B.C. Ammon was absorbed by the Arabs in the eighth century A.D. Excavations in Jordan have revealed a highly developed civilization. One of their chief gods was Milcom.

AMMONIUM See SIWAH

AMOL [Amul] (Iran)
Town in Māzanderān province, on the Harhāz River, 78 mi NE of TEHERAN. In the ninth century it was a provincial capital of the Abbasids. Many important old buildings still stand, including the mosque of Bozorgmehr. See also ABBASID CALIPHATE.

AMORGÓS (Greece)
Island of the CYCLADES, in the AEGEAN SEA, 20 mi SE of Naxos. The Athenian fleet was destroyed off Amorgós in 322 B.C. during the revolt against MACEDON following the death of Alexander the Great. This led to the complete domination of ATHENS by Macedon and to the suicide of Demosthenes, who had called for the Athenian uprising.

AMOY See XIAMEN

AMPFING (Germany)
Village in BAVARIA, on the Isen River, 40 mi NE of MUNICH. During the struggle for the crown of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE the battle of MÜHLDOF was fought here on September 28, 1322. In the battle, Louis the Bavarian, the champion of the House of LUXEMBOURG, defeated his rival, Frederick of Hapsburg.

AMPHIPOLIS [Amfiolis] (Greece)
Ancient city of MACEDON, overlooking the mouth of the Struma River, on the AEGEAN SEA, 68 mi ENE of THESSALONIKI. It was founded in 437 B.C. by ATHENS as a military garrison to control the mines and timber of Mt Pangaeus. Captured by SPARTA during the Peloponnesian Wars, it was the scene of a battle in 422 B.C. in which the leaders of both armies, Cleon of Athens and Brasidas of Sparta, were killed. Its capture by Philip II of Macedon in 357 B.C. caused a war with Athens. A modern town is on the site.

40 Amphissa

AMPHISSA [Sálona] [Greek: Ámfissa] (Greece)

Town in PHOCIS, at the W foot of Mt PARNASSUS, 96 mi NW of ATHENS. In ancient times it was an important city of central Greece. Its attempt to resettle CRISA on a plain sacred to Apollo in 340 B.C. caused the Fourth Sacred War. The town was destroyed in 339 B.C. by Philip II of MACEDON following his defeat of the Athenian coalition.

AMPURIAS [Greek: Emporion; Latin: Emporium] (Spain)

Village and archaeological site in Gerona province, in CATALONIA, on a gulf of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 35 mi NE of GERONA. There are extensive remains here of an ancient Greek town founded by settlers from MARSEILLES in the sixth century B.C., as well as of the Roman city founded by Julius Caesar in the first century B.C.

AMRIT [Warathus] (Syria)

Town in Latakia province, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 30 mi N of TRIPOLI. Founded by colonists from PHOENICIA in the second millennium B.C., it is today the site of the only well-preserved Phoenician temple in the world.

AMRITSAR (India)

City in PUNJAB state, 32 mi E of LAHORE. The religious center of the Sikhs, it was founded by the fourth Guru, Ram Das, in 1574. It is famous as the site of the Golden Temple built by Arjun, the fifth Guru. Here, on April 13, 1919, occurred the Amritsar Massacre in which several hundred followers of Gandhi, demonstrating against the antiseditious laws, were killed by troops under British control. In 1984, the Indian Army removed militants from the Golden Temple, causing heavy damage and civilian casualties.

AMROHA (India)

Town in UTTAR PRADESH, on the Sot River, 20 mi NW of MORADABAD. An important pilgrimage center, it has many mosques and is the site of the shrine of the Muslim saint Sheikh Saddu. A Mogul invading army was destroyed nearby in 1304 by King Alaudin of the Khilji dynasty.

AMSTERDAM (Netherlands)

City and capital of the Netherlands in North HOLLAND province, near the NORTH SEA, at the confluence of the IJ and Amstel Rivers, 30 mi NE of the HAGUE. Chartered in 1300, it became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1369. In 1578 it took part in the rebellion against rule by SPAIN. In the 17th century it was a flourishing commercial center and expanded rapidly by welcoming refugees from all over Europe. Occupied by the Prussians in 1787, it was taken by FRANCE in 1795 during the French Revolutionary Wars and was made capital of the BATAVIAN REPUBLIC. In 1806 it became capital of the kingdom of Holland and in 1810 was included in the French Empire. Following the fall of Napoleon in 1814, it became the capital of the kingdom of the Netherlands. During World War II it was occupied by GERMANY from May 1940 to May 1945 and lost most of its Jewish population of 75,000. Today it is the largest city in the Netherlands.

AMSTERDAM [former: Veedersburg] (United States)

City in E central NEW YORK State, on the MOHAWK RIVER, 30 mi NW of ALBANY. Settled in 1783, it was a colonial outpost on the MOHAWK TRAIL and later evolved into an important industrial center. It is the site of Guy Park Manor and Fort Johnson, built by Sir William Johnson, the British superintendent of Indian affairs from 1755–74. See also LAKE GEORGE.

AMU DARYA [Amudarya] [ancient: Oxus; Arabic: Jayhun] (Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, Tajikistan, Afghanistan)

River of Central Asia, it flows from the PAMIR MOUNTAINS for approximately 1,580 mi W and NW to the ARAL SEA. In ancient times it was an important route for migrations, invasions, and trade. It formed the border between SOGDIANA and BACTRIA and was strategically important during the conquests of Cyrus of PERSIA from 550 to 530 B.C., and later of Alexander of MACEDON. During the Middle Ages it formed the border between various Muslim and Mongol states. Anglo-Russian agreements in 1885 and 1895 set the disputed RUSSIA-AFGHANISTAN border along 200 mi of the river. It is now the border between Uzbekistan and Turkmenistan for some of its course and the border between Afganistan and Uzbekistan and Tajikistan. Water withdrawals from the Amu Darya and its tributaries have caused a shortage to the Aral Sea which has manifested in retreating shorelines, increasing salinity, and regional health problems from saline dust from the emerging lakebed.

AMUL See AMOL

AMUR RIVER [Chinese: Heilong Jiang] (China, Russia)
River of E Asia, it flows SE along the Sino-Russian border for 1,100 mi before turning NE through Russia to the Tatar Strait opposite SAKHALIN Island. Explored by Khabarov during the period 1649–51, it has been the scene of frequent territorial disputes between China and Russia. Chinese sovereignty over the two banks was recognized by Russia in 1689 at the treaty of NERCHINSK, but Russia regained control of the left bank and the right bank below the Ussuri confluence at the treaty of AIGUN in 1858. The Chinese still contest this treaty.

AMYCLAE [Amyklai] (Greece)

Ancient town of the SE PELOPONNESUS, 4 mi S of SPARTA, in Laconia department. In ancient times it was the leading Achaean city of the plain of LACONIA. After a long struggle it came under the rule of SPARTA in the eighth century B.C. According to Greek legend it was the home of Castor and Pollux. See also ACHAEA.

'ANA ['Anah] (Iraq)

Town in Dulaim governorate, on the EUPHRATES RIVER, 100 mi NW of RAMADI. In existence before 1000 B.C., it controlled transport on the Euphrates River. In medieval times it was the point of origin for camel caravans bound W across the desert to SYRIA.

ANACONDA [former: Copperopolis] (United States)

City in MONTANA, 25 mi WNW of BUTTE. Settled in 1833 by Marcus Daly, it developed with the Anaconda Copper Mining Company whose copper smelting plant, built in 1894, became one of the largest in the world.

ANACTORION [Anaktorion] (Greece)

Ancient town in Árta department, on the Ambracian Gulf, 48 mi S of IOANNINA. It was founded by CORINTH in 630 B.C. After the Battle of ACTIUM, in 31 B.C., its inhabitants were forced by the future Roman emperor Augustus to settle the city of NICOPOLIS, which had been founded in his honor.

ANAFARTA BAY See GALLIPOLI PENINSULA

ANAGNI [Latin: Anagnia] (Italy)

Town in Frosinone province, LATIUM, 14 mi NW of FROSINONE. A bishopric since the fifth century, it was a papal residence in medieval times. During the papacy's struggle against the secular heads of state, Boniface VIII was taken hostage here on September 7, 1303, by Philip IV of FRANCE, who attempted to force his resignation. The pope died shortly after this humiliation.

ANAGNIA See ANAGNI

ANAHEIM (United States)

City in CALIFORNIA, 26 mi SE of LOS ANGELES. Founded as an experimental community in 1857 by 50 German families, it was the first cooperative settlement in Southern California. It was incorporated in 1870. It is now well known for its manufacture of aircraft and electronic parts. It is also the site of the Disneyland complex.

ANAHUAC (United States)

Town in TEXAS, on GALVESTON Bay, 42 mi E of HOUSTON. Originally a Mexican military post, it was attacked in 1832 and 1835 by American Texans who were trying to release their leaders held prisoner there. Among these were William B. Travis, later in command of the ALAMO, where he died. The clashes were a factor leading to the Texan War of Independence in 1836.

ANAKTORION See ANACTORION

ANALAMANGA See TANANARIVE

ANAPA (Russia)

Town and port on the BLACK SEA, in W KRANSNODAR Krai, 20 mi NW of NOVOROSSISYK. Founded by the Turks in 1781 as a fortress to guard links with the CAUCASUS, it was taken twice by the Russians. It passed to Russia finally in 1829 under the Treaty of ADRIANOPLE.

42 Anarajapura

ANARAJAPURA See ANURADHAPURA

AÑASCO (Puerto Rico)

Town on the Añasco River, 8 mi NNW of MAYAGÜEZ. In 1511, the last rebellion of the Arawak Indians against the islands' Spanish conquerors under Juan Ponce de Leon took place here.

ANATOLIA See ASIA MINOR

ANÁUAC (Mexico)

Central plateau comprising the Federal district and the state of Mexico. It was the region occupied by the AZTEC EMPIRE, which, with its capital at TENOCHTITLÁN, began to flourish after A.D. 1325. See also MEXICO CITY.

ANAZARBE [Anazarbus] [Greek: Justinopolis, Latin: Caesarea ad Anazarbum] (Turkey)

Ancient city of CILICIA, now in İçel province, 28 mi E of ADANA. Founded by Augustus in 19 B.C., it became capital of the Roman province of Cilicia Secunda and later flourished under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. Conquered by the Muslims in the seventh century A.D., it was recaptured by the Byzantines in 964. Following its capture by the crusaders it became the capital of the Christian principality of Cilicia, or LITTLE ARMENIA. In 1375 it was destroyed by the Mamluks of EGYPT. The modern village of Ağuçlı is the site of extensive ancient ruins.

ANAZARBUS See ANAZARBE

AN BÓINN See BOYNE RIVER

ANCENIS (France)

City in the Loire-Atlantique department, on the LOIRE RIVER, 24 mi NE of NANTES. In 1468, following Francis II of Brittany's abortive rebellion against the French Crown, it was the scene of a treaty by which BRITTANY was united with France. Its 15th-century castle was at that time a stronghold of the duchy of Brittany.

AN-CHING See ANQING

AN CHLÁIR See CLARE

ANCHORAGE (United States)

City in ALASKA, at the head of Cook Inlet, 275 mi SSW of FAIRBANKS. Founded in 1915 as the headquarters of the Alaskan Railroad, it expanded rapidly during World War II when it became the headquarters for the entire Alaska command following the construction of Elmendorf Air Force Base and Port Richardson. It suffered a severe earthquake on March 27, 1964. Oil and natural gas industries, including pipelines, are a major driver of economic growth.

ANCIENT MICHILIMACKINAC See MACKINAC

ANCÓN (Peru)

Town and port on a bay of the Pacific Ocean, in Lima department, 24 mi N of LIMA. A treaty was signed here on October 20, 1883, between CHILE and Peru that ended the War of the Pacific. Peru ceded the mineral-rich province of Tarapacá as well as TACNA and ARICA for 10 years, with final disposition to be determined by plebiscite. This was never held and the provinces were disputed until 1929. The UNITED STATES became the arbitrator for the final, complex agreement.

ANCONA (Italy)

City, port, and capital of Ancona province, in the MARCHES, on the ADRIATIC SEA, 105 mi ESE of FLORENCE. Founded by Greeks from SYRACUSE in 390 B.C., it became a prosperous Roman naval base after the Illyrian War in 178 B.C. Charlemagne gave the city to the papacy in A.D. 774 and it became a semiautonomous maritime republic. It fell under direct papal rule in 1532. After many shifts in rulers, during the struggle for the unification of Italy it was the scene of the capitulation of the papal forces on September 29, 1860, after the Battle of CASTELFIDARDO. In World War I it was bombarded by the Austrian navy. In World War II Polish forces took it on July 19, 1944. See PAPAL STATES.

ANCRE See ALBERT

ANCRE RIVER (France)

River of N France, in Somme department, flowing into the SOMME RIVER 9 mi E of AMIENS. During World War I it was the scene of several battles between 1916 and 1918. In November 1916, during a successful Allied advance against the Germans, tanks were used here by the Allies for the first time in history.

ANCRUM MOOR (Scotland)

Scene of battle in BORDERS region, on the Teviot River, 38 mi SE of EDINBURGH. On February 25, 1545, an English invading force under Lord Evers was stopped here by a Scottish army under Archibald Douglas.

ANCUD [San Carlos de Ancud] (Chile)

Town in Chiloé province, on the N coast of Chiloé Island, 50 mi SW of PUERTO MONTT. It was settled by SPAIN in 1769. The town was the last Spanish naval base to surrender to Chile, in 1826, eight years after Chilean independence had been secured at the Battle of MAIPO.

ANCYRA See ANKARAANDALSNES (Norway)

Town in Møre og Romsdal county, at the head of Romsdalsfjord, 45 mi SW of KRISTIANSUND. Following the invasion of Norway by GERMANY in World War II, Anglo-French forces landed here on April 16, 1940, and held off German forces for two weeks before being obliged to withdraw.

ANDALUCÍA See ANDALUSIAANDALUSIA [Arabic: al-Andalus; Latin: Baetica; Spanish: Andalucía] (Spain)

The southern part of Spain, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, the Strait of GIBRALTAR, and the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, now consisting of the provinces of Almería, Córdoba, Huelva, Málaga, Jaén, Granada and Seville, and Cádiz. From the 11th century B.C. Andalusia was successively colonized by Phoenicians, Greeks, and Carthaginians. The Romans, who appeared in Spain as early as the third century B.C., set up Andalusia as the province of BAETICA. After the end of brief Visigothic rule in A.D. 711 until the fall of GRANADA to the Christians in 1492, Andalusia was the center of Moorish power and culture on the European continent, excelling in both architecture and learning. Following the Christian conquest Andalusia went into economic decline, though the ports of CÁDIZ and SEVILLE were active in the maritime seafaring to the New World. In 1833 Andalusia was divided into the present eight provinces. During the 1930s, before falling to General Francisco Franco's nationalists in the Spanish civil war, Andalusia was, with CATALONIA, a hotbed of anarchism. See also TARTESSUS.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS (India)

Union territory of India in the Bay of Bengal, 400 mi W of the coast of S MYANMAR. Early references were made to these islands by Ptolemy, Chinese, and Arabian travelers. The British used them as a penal colony and the islands were occupied by the Japanese in World War II. The Andaman and Nicobar Islands were constituted into a Union Territory of the Indian Union in 1956. The islands were hit by a large tsunami generated by an earthquake off SUMATRA in 2004. See also ANDAMAN ISLANDS, NICOBAR ISLANDS.

ANDAMAN ISLANDS [Andamans] (India)

Archipelago in the ANDAMAN and NICOBAR ISLANDS group, in the Bay of Bengal, 400 mi W of the coast of S MYANMAR. The islands were settled in 1789 when Great Britain established the penal colony of Port Cornwallis here. The colony was reestablished as PORT BLAIR in 1858 after the Indian Mutiny. The British viceroy of India, the earl of Mayo, was murdered here by a convict on February 8, 1872.

ANDAMANS See ANDAMAN ISLANDSANDECHS (Germany)

Abbey on Ammer Lake, 25 mi SW of MUNICH, in BAVARIA. A Benedictine abbey was founded here in 1456 by Albert III of Bavaria on the site of a stronghold of the counts of Andechs destroyed in 1248. The abbey became part of the abbey of St. Boniface in Munich in 1846. Its 15th-century church attracts many pilgrims because of its famous relics.

ANDEMATUNNUM See LANGRES

ANDERLECHT (Belgium)

Town in BRABANT, 4 mi SW of BRUSSELS. On November 13, 1792, during the War of the First Coalition, the French under Dumouriez defeated the Austrians here and were thus able to enter Brussels. The town has many medieval buildings, including the home of Erasmus from 1517 to 1521.

ANDERNACH [Latin: Antunnacum] (Germany)

Town in RHINELAND-PALATINATE, on the RHINE RIVER, 12 mi NW of KOBLENZ. Charles the Bald, king of the West Frankish kingdom, was defeated here in 876 by Louis the Younger, who was thus able to annex eastern Lotharingia (LORRAINE) to his kingdom. In 939 the founder of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, Otto I, ended a rebellion led by his younger brother Henry here. The Holy Roman Emperor Henry V was defeated here in 1114 by Lothair III while trying to assert control over the duchy of SAXONY. See also FRANKISH EMPIRE.

ANDERSON (United States)

City in E central INDIANA, on the White River, 35 mi NE of INDIANAPOLIS. Founded in 1823, it grew as an industrial center after 1887 when natural gas was discovered. It is the site of Mounds State Park, which contains prehistoric Indian mounds.

ANDERSONVILLE (United States)

Confederate prison in GEORGIA during the Civil War, 60 mi SW of MACON. The prison was established here in November 1863 by the Confederacy. Conditions were so bad that more than 13,000 Union soldiers died here in one year. There is now a large national cemetery here.

ANDES [Spanish: Cordillera de los Andes, Los Andes] (South America)

Mountain system of W South America, extending for 4,500 mi parallel to the Pacific coast, from the CARIBBEAN coast of COLOMBIA and VENEZUELA, S through ECUADOR, PERU, BOLIVIA, CHILE, and ARGENTINA to TIERRA DEL FUEGO. The Andes were explored and studied between 1799 and 1804 by Alexander von Humboldt and Aimé Bonpland. In 1897 Matthias Zurbriggen and Stuart Vines first climbed the Aconcagua, at 22,835 ft the highest peak in the Western Hemisphere.

ANDES (Italy) See VIRGILIOANDHRA See ANDRA PRADESHANDHRA PRADESH (India)

Current state in India and former kingdom, in the DECCAN, between the Godavari and Krishna rivers. Founded by the Telugu people, the kingdom ruled most of the Deccan from the first century B.C. until the third century A.D. It is famous for its Buddhist art, remains of which can still be seen at sites, such as AMARAVATI. Its capital is HYDERABAD.

ANDORRA [French: Andorre]

Small independent state on the Franco-Spanish border, in the PYRENEES Mountains, between the French departments of Ariège and Pyrénées-Orientales and the Spanish province of Lérida. It has long been a center for smugglers. It was freed from Muslim rule by Charlemagne in A.D. 801. Andorra, then part of the country of URGEL, was placed by treaty in 1278 under the joint suzerainty of the bishops of Urgel and the counts of FOIX. It still pays homage to both FRANCE and SPAIN each year by a gift of a small sum of money to each. The nation prospers with tourism, duty free shopping, and banking as a tax haven. In 1999, Andorra switched currency to the Euro. Though not in the European Union, Andorra enjoys a special status, treated as a member for trade in manufactured goods, but not for agricultural goods.

ANDORRE See ANDORRAANDOVER (England)

Market town in HAMPSHIRE, 22 mi N of SOUTHAMPTON. The Viking and future king of NORWAY, Olaf I Tryggvason, was baptized here in 994 during one of his raids on England. He later spread Christianity throughout Norway.

ANDOVER (United States)

Town in NE MASSACHUSETTS, on the MERRIMACK RIVER, 25 mi N of BOSTON. Settled in 1643, it is the site of the Phillips Academy for boys, founded in 1778, and of the Abbot Academy for girls, founded in 1829. In 1886 it was the scene of the Andover Controversy, when five professors were charged with theological liberalism. The words of the song "My Country, 'tis of Thee" were written here in 1832 by Samuel Francis Smith. Harriet Beecher Stowe lived and was buried here.

ANDRAPA See KIRSEHIR

ANDREANOF ISLANDS (United States)

Group in the ALEUTIAN ISLANDS, between the BERING SEA and the Pacific Ocean, off the SW coast of ALASKA. Discovered in 1760 by the Russian Andreyan Tolstikh, they passed to the United States in 1867 as part of the Alaska purchase. Because of their strategic location they became the site of several military bases during World War II.

ANDRIA (Italy)

City in Bari province, 32 mi WNW of BAN, in APULIA. Founded in 1046 by Pietro I, the first Norman count of TRANI, it was the favorite residence of the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II in the 13th century. Frederick was responsible for building the nearby Castel del Monte in 1240. The cathedral has an eighth-century crypt.

ANDROS (Greece)

Island in the AEGEAN SEA, 2 mi N of TENOS. It is the most northerly of the CYCLADES ISLANDS and was much fought over in ancient times. Conquered in 490 B.C. by the Persians under Xerxes during the Persian Wars, it rebelled against ATHENS during the Peloponnesian Wars but was recovered by the Athenians in 394 B.C. It was the scene of a naval battle in 245 B.C. when the Egyptian Ptolemy lost the Cyclades to the victorious Macedonians under Antigonus. The island was conquered by ROME in 133 B.C. It was later a small principality under the suzerainty of VENICE until falling to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1566.

ANDROSOVO [former: Andrusov, Andrussovo] (Russia)

Village in Russia, 30 mi SW of SMOLENSK. A treaty was signed here on January 20, 1667, which ended a long territorial conflict between POLAND and Russia. Russia gained KIEV and Smolensk by the treaty.

ANDRUSOV See ANDROSOVO

ANDRUSSOVO See ANDROSOVO

ANDUJAR [former: Isturgi; Latin: Illiturgis] (Spain)

City in Jaén province, on the GUADALQUIVIR RIVER, 25 mi NW of JAÉN, in ANDALUSIA. Serious antigov-ernment riots here in 1766 led to the expulsion of the Jesuits from Spain in 1767.

ANFA See CASABLANCA

ANGEL ISLAND (United States)

Island in San Francisco Bay, 2 mi N of SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA. A U.S. military base from 1863 to 1946, it was also the site of an immigration station, particularly for people from Asia. During World War II it was used as a camp for prisoners of war.

ANGERMÜNDE See POMERANIA

ANGERS [Latin: Juliomagus] (France)

City in the Maine-et-Loire department, on the Maine River, in ANJOU, 54 mi W of TOURS. From 866 until 1203 it was the seat of the powerful counts of Anjou, among whom was Geoffrey Plantagenet, father of Henry II of ENGLAND. In 1203 it fell to the French king Philip Augustus. It was the capital of the duchy of Anjou from 1360 to 1481. During the Wars of the VENDEE it was captured by the Royalists on June 18, 1793, but was the scene of a Republican victory on December 4 that led to the decisive battle of SAVENAY.

ANGKOR [native: Yasodharapura] (Cambodia)

Ruined site of one of the largest city complexes ever created, ceremonial center, and capital of the KHMER EMPIRE, 4 mi N of Siem Reap, near the NW shore of Lake Tonle Sap. The magnificent buildings, covered with reliefs and statues glorifying the Hindu gods, include the famous shrine of Angkor Wat, largest religious building in the world, and many other temples.

Angkor Wat was built in the early 12th century A.D. Angkor Thom, the capital city to the north, was built in the early 13th century by the last great Khmer king, Jayavarman VII. The capital city, after being captured by the Thais, was finally abandoned in favor of PHNOM PENH in 1434. It was rediscovered, buried in jungle growth, in 1861 by the French naturalist Henri Mouhot. Its restoration was begun in 1907. The Angkor UNESCO World Heritage Site was established in 1992.

ANGLESEA See ANGLESEY

ANGLESEY [Anglesea] [Latin: Mona] (Wales)

Island and County in the IRISH SEA, off the NW coast of Wales, separated from Bangor by the MENAI STRAIT. Of religious importance from early times, the island is the site of many megalithic monuments from the Late Neolithic Age and later. In A.D. 61 it was the last Druidic stronghold to be conquered by the Roman general Suetonius Paulinus. Edward I of ENGLAND conquered the island in 1282.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN (Sudan)

Former colony, comprising what is now the republic of Sudan in NE Africa. In the 1890s the British became determined to control this region and achieved their goal in a series of military campaigns between 1896–98 in which, with the aid of EGYPT, they defeated the Mahdists, followers of a Muslim religious leader. In 1899 GREAT BRITAIN and Egypt formed a condominium government to rule the Sudan, but real control was exercised by the British. Sudanese opposition to this rule was constant, even though in 1924 Britain separated North and South Sudan in an attempt to isolate dissident elements. In 1952 Great Britain and Egypt agreed to grant Sudan independence in 1956, and this was done.

ANGMAGSSALIK (Denmark)

Town on the S coast of Angmagssalik Island, GREENLAND, 400 mi NE of NUUK. Used as a landing site by Danish explorers in 1472, it became the site of a trading post in 1895 and held the island's first radio-meteorological station. During World War II Denmark gave the UNITED STATES permission to establish an air base there.

ANGOLA [former: Portuguese West Africa]

Country located in SW Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. NAMIBIA lies to the S, the CONGO to the N, and ZAMBIA to the SE. The CONGO RIVER flows for 100 mi along the N border.

Angola existed as a prosperous component of the African kingdom of KONGO when Portuguese explorers and emissaries first began to establish themselves in the region at the end of the 15th century. PORTUGAL swiftly subdued the country and through the 19th century exploited the African population as a major source for the highly profitable slave trade with BRAZIL. During 1884–85 Portugal's claims to Angola were ratified at the Berlin Conference at which Africa was parcelled out to European colonial powers.

During the 20th century Portugal turned to intensive colonization and exploitation of the agricultural and mineral resources of the colony. Armed rebellion against Portuguese rule erupted in 1961 and raged unabated until 1975, when Angola was granted independence. Most of the Portuguese population of bureaucrats, businessmen, and farmers then fled to Europe and left Angola's internal economy in shambles.

A struggle between competing factions immediately ensued, and Angola became a stage for a major power confrontation. By 1976, the Marxist Popular Movement for Angolan Freedom, or MPLA, had gained control over most of the nation. Guerrilla activity by the ousted factions continued, and in April 1978, 5,000 Cuban troops were brought in to help defeat them. Forces from SOUTH AFRICA invaded the country repeatedly in 1978, 1980, 1981, and 1982, ostensibly hunting insurgents from Namibia, or South-west Africa. The war between the MPLA government of President Eduardo dos Santos and the UNITA rebels led by Jonas Savimbi devastated the country. The LUSAKA accords in 1994 created a peace, but further fighting broke out in 1998 that spread Angola's conflict into the Congo. The fighting mostly ended in 2002 with Savimbi's death. LUANDA is Angola's capital and the country benefits from oil resources in the enclave of CABINDA N of the Congo River.

ANGORA See ANKARA

ANGOSTURA See CIUDAD BOLÍVAR

ANGOULÊME [Latin: Iculisma] (France)

City in Charente department, on the Charente River, 70 mi NNE of BORDEAUX. Originally part of the Carolingian kingdom of AQUITAINE, it became the seat of the counts of ANGOUMOIS in the ninth century. Later ruled by the counts of Angoulême, it was ceded to ENGLAND by the Treaty of BRÉTIGNY on May 8, 1360, but was retaken by Charles V of FRANCE in 1373. Angoulême was finally joined to the French Crown when Francis I, the last count of Angoulême, became king of France in 1515.

ANGOUMOIS (France)

Former province, roughly equivalent to present-day Charente department. Its capital was ANGOULÊME.

Originally occupied by the Gallic Santones and Pictones tribes, it became a part of AQUITAINE under the Carolingian Empire, and a county in the ninth century. In 1360, by the treaty of BRÉTIGNY, it became English territory. Reconquered in 1371, it passed to the dukes of BERRY and was finally joined to the French Crown in 1515 under Francis I.

ANGRA See ANGRA DO HEROÍSMO

ANGRA DO HEROÍSMO [Angra] (Portugal)

City, port, and capital of Angra do Heroísmo district, in the AZORES, on Terceira Island, approximately 1,200 mi W of LISBON. Founded by the Portuguese in 1534, it was the capital of the Azores until 1832 and was an important port for ships going to South America and the WEST INDIES. It is still important to transatlantic travel by sea and air.

ANGRA PEQUENA See LÜDERITZ

ANGRI (Italy)

Town in Salerno province, CAMPANIA, 11 mi WNW of SALERNO. The battle of Mons Lactarius, in which the Byzantine general Narses defeated the Ostrogoths in A.D. 553, regaining dominion over Italy for the Eastern Roman Empire was fought just S of Angri. See BYZANTINE EMPIRE.

ANGUILLA (Great Britain)

Island and colony of Great Britain, in the Leeward Islands of the Lesser Antilles, in the WEST INDIES, 58 mi NNW of SAINT KITTS. Discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1493, it was settled by English colonists in 1650. In 1967, as a member of the Saint Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla federation, it rebelled against rule from St. Kitts. In 1969, British marines "invaded," but were welcomed by the Anguillans, and in 1971 the island returned to direct British rule as a colony with a high degree of home rule.

ANHALT (Germany)

Former duchy and state of central GERMANY, in SAXONY-ANHALT. In 1212 Anhalt separated itself from the duchy of SAXONY and after 1218 was ruled by Henry, grandson of Albert the Bear. The duchy was frequently divided thereafter by inheritance. It was reunited as the duchy of Anhalt-DESSAU in 1863 under Leopold IV. From 1919–33 it was a free state of the Federal Republic of Germany and became part of East Germany in 1949. The area became part of the new state of Saxony-Anhalt in 1990.

ANHILWARA See PATAN, INDIA

ANHUI [Anhwei] (China)

Inland province spanning the YANGZI and Huai Rivers, E central China. Anhui's monsoonal climate causes frequent droughts and flooding, which limits agricultural and industrial productivity. Anhui was the first southern province to be settled by the Han Chinese (300 B.C.). The identity of Anhui as a province first emerged in 1667 when ANQING and HUIZHOU were combined. When the People's Republic of China was founded in 1949, Anhui was briefly split into two separate administrative regions: Wanbei (North Anhui) and Wannan (South Anhui). They were merged into a province in 1952. HEFEI is the capital.

ANI (Turkey)

Ancient town of ARMENIA, in Kars province, 20 mi E of KARS. In the 10th century Ani was chosen by Ashot III the Merciful to be capital of Armenia, and it flourished under the Bagratid dynasty. During the 11th century it was occupied by the Byzantines and sacked by the Seljuk Turks. The town was finally destroyed by an earthquake in 1319, though extensive remains of the old town can still be seen today.

ANIANE (France)

Town in the Hérault department, 18 mi E of LODÈRE. In 782 St. Benoit d'Aniane founded a Benedictine abbey here whose customs became the rule for the monasteries of the Carolingian Empire in 817. The abbey was suppressed during the French Revolution. See FRANKISH EMPIRE.

ANICIUM See LE PUY

ANJENGO See ANJUTHENGO

ANJOU (France)

Former countship of W central France, now comprising the modern department of Maine-et-Loire and parts of Mayenne, Sarthe, and Indre-et-Loire departments. Given by Charles the Bald in 866 to Robert the Strong to defend against the Normans, it officially became a countship under Fulk I in 929. It expanded throughout the 11th century. In 1144 the duchy of NORMANDY was conquered by Fulk's descendant Geoffrey Plantagenet, whose son later became Henry II of ENGLAND. His marriage to Eleanor of AQUITAINE in 1152 led to a prolonged and famous dynastic power struggle between France and England that contributed to the Hundred Years' War of 1337–1453. Between 1196 and 1214 Philip Augustus of France captured Anjou and most of its possessions from King John of England. Anjou was finally joined to the French Crown in 1481 on its inheritance by Louis XI, after the death of the last of the Angevins.

ANJUTHENGO [Anjengo] (India)

Village in SW India, on the KERALA coast, approximately 20 mi NW of THIRUVANANTHAPURAM. Established by the English in 1684 in what was then TRAVANCORE, it was one of their earliest trading posts in India.

ANKARA [ancient: Ancyra; former: Angora] (Turkey)

City and capital of Turkey and Ankara province, at the confluence of the Ankara and Cubuk rivers. Probably founded by Hittites in the second millennium B.C., it was an important commercial center during the Phrygian period. It became the capital of the Roman province of GALATIA in 25 B.C. Thereafter the city was occupied by many invading armies. On July 28, 1402, it was the scene of the defeat and capture of Bayazid I of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE by the Mongol conqueror Tamerlane. In 1920 Kemal Atatürk established his nationalist government in Ankara, which became the capital of the Republic of Turkey on October 14, 1923. See PHRYGIA.

ANKING See ANQING

ANKLAM (Germany)

City in MECKLENBURG–WESTERN POMERANIA, on the Peene River, 45 mi NW of STETTIN. Chartered in the 11th century, it became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in the late 13th century. In 1720 it became part of PRUSSIA. An important industrial center, it was heavily bombed by the Allies toward the end of World War II. The aeronautical pioneer, Otto Lilienthal, was born here in 1848.

ANKOLE, KINGDOM OF See UGANDA

AN LOC See BINH LONG

ANNABA [former: Bona, Bône; Latin: Hippo, Hippo Regius] (Algeria)

City, port, and capital of Annaba department, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 75 mi NE of CONSTANTINE. Founded by CARTHAGE in the sixth century B.C., it flourished from the third century B.C. as a favorite residence of the kings of NUMIDIA. An early center of Christianity, it was the episcopal see of Saint Augustine from A.D. 396 to 430, but declined after being sacked by Vandals in 431. During medieval times many European and Arab powers held it. It revived after 1832 following its capture by the French who developed its harbor installations.

ANNAM (Vietnam)

Region and former kingdom in SE Asia, on the E coast of INDOCHINA, comprising the central portion of present Vietnam. Until this century, Chinese influence was great in the region for approximately 2,000 years. The northern part of Annam was conquered by the Han dynasty of CHINA in 111 B.C., while the southern section was conquered by the kingdom of the Chams, or CHAMPA, in the late second century A.D. The Annamese became independent in 939, driving out the Chinese, and maintained their self-rule except for the period 1407–28, when the Chinese again held power. Le Loi, who defeated the Chinese in 1428, set up the Le dynasty. After a long period of warfare with the Chams, they were driven out in 1471, and Annam expanded southward. The Le dynasty, however, declined in the next century, and in 1558 the kingdom was divided among two powerful families, the Trinh, who ruled in the north, and the Nguyens, who held sway in the south. Meanwhile, the first Europeans to see the area landed in 1538. The Trinh ruled from TONKIN, now HANOI, while the Nguyens ruled from HUE. The latter drove south in the 17th century into CAMBODIA and in the 18th century controlled parts of LAOS. The Trinh, however, were overthrown in 1786 and the Nguyens in 1778.

In 1802 the two domains were united under Nguyen Anh as the empire of Vietnam. The French began to occupy Vietnam in 1858 and in 1884 proclaimed a protectorate over the Annam region, which in 1887 became part of the Union of Indochina. The region was occupied by the Japanese in World War II. Bao Dai, who was emperor of Annam 1932–45 and chief of state of Vietnam 1949–55, cooperated with the Vichy French and the Japanese invaders. After the war the Annamese and the Tonkinese demanded independence, and the area became involved in a conflict that lasted until 1975 when Annam, Tonkin, and COCHIN CHINA were united as Vietnam.

ANNAPOLIS [former: Anne Arundel Town, Providence] (United States)

City, port, and capital of MARYLAND, on CHESAPEAKE BAY, 30 mi E of WASHINGTON, D.C. Founded by Puritan refugees from VIRGINIA in 1649, it was the scene of a session of the U.S. Congress from November 26, 1783 to June 3, 1784. It was here that George Washington resigned as commander-in-chief of the Continental Army on December 23, 1783. The Treaty of PARIS, ending the American War of Independence, was ratified here on January 14, 1784. The Annapolis Convention, which opened the way to the 1787 Federal Constitutional Convention in PHILADELPHIA, was held here in September 1786. The United States Naval Academy was founded here in 1845.

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL [former: Port Royal] (Canada)

Town in W NOVA SCOTIA, at the mouth of the Annapolis River, 95 mi W of Halifax. The oldest European settlement in Canada, it was founded in 1605 by Samuel de Champlain and the Sieur de Monts and became the capital of the French province of ACADIA. Captured in 1613 by English colonists, it later changed hands many times until finally passing to the English in 1710. It was the capital of Nova Scotia until 1749, when it was superseded by HALIFAX.

ANN ARBOR (United States)

City in SE MICHIGAN, on the Huron River, 35 mi W of DETROIT. Settled in 1824 by John Allen and Elisha W. Rumsey, it became the seat of the University of Michigan in 1841 and has grown since as a major research and educational center.

ANNE ARUNDEL TOWN See ANNAPOLIS

ANNECIACUM See ANNECY

ANNECY [Latin: Anneciacum] (France)

City and capital of the Haute-Savoie department, on Lake Annecy, 22 mi S of GENEVA. Originally the capital of the counts of Genevois, it was ceded to the duchy of SAVOY in 1401. Much of the medieval town remains intact.

ANNISTON [former: Woodstock] (United States)

City in NE ALABAMA, 58 mi ENE of BIRMINGHAM. Founded by Samuel Noble and Daniel Tyler in 1872 as a private, iron-manufacturing, company town, it was opened to the public in 1883. Fort McClellan, the headquarters of the Women's Army Corps, is nearby.

ANNOUAL See ANUAL

ANOUAL See ANUAL

AN-P'ING [Anping] (Taiwan)

Port on the South China Sea, 3 mi NW of T'AINAN, in Painan county. Settled in the 16th century, it is the oldest Chinese settlement of southern Taiwan. Under the Ming dynasty in the 17th century, the Dutch were allowed to establish a trading settlement and fort here, but they were expelled in 1662 by the Manchus and not allowed into Taiwan again until the Treaties of TIENTSIN in 1858.

ANQING [Anking, Nganking] [former: Huaining, Hwaining] (China)

City and port on the YANGZI RIVER, 150 mi SW of NANJING, in SW ANHUI province. The city was captured by rebel forces in 1852 during the anti-Manchu Taiping rebellion and remained one of their principal bases until 1861, when it was retaken with British help. It was opened to foreign trade by an Anglo-Chinese commercial treaty of September 5, 1902.

ANSBACH [former: Anspach] (Germany)

City in W BAVARIA, 25 mi SW of NUREMBERG. It grew up around an eighth-century Benedictine abbey and became a principality. It was the residence of the Franconian Hohenzollerns from 1131 until 1791 when it passed to PRUSSIA. Napoleon gave it to Bavaria in 1806. The Congress of Vienna gave its confirmation to the transfer in 1815.

ANSEDONIA See COSAANSHAN [Anzan] (Iran)

Ancient city state of ELAM, now in Khuzestan province. Known since the second millennium B.C., it was under the rulers of Elam, who bore the title kings of Anshan and SUSA. It was the birthplace of Cyrus the Great, king of Anshan, who founded the Persian Empire in the sixth century B.C. See also PERSIA.

ANSHAN [An-Shan] [former: Shaho] (China)

City in LIAONING province, 55 mi SW of SHENYANG. A Ming stronghold against the Manchus from the 15th to the 17th centuries, it declined until 1918 when steelworks were built here. It expanded greatly during the occupation by JAPAN from 1931 to 1944 and is now one of the largest metallurgical centers in the world.

ANSPACH See ANSBACHANTAKIRA See ANTEQUERAANTAKYA See ANTIOCHANTALYA [ancient: Adalia, Attaleia, Attalia, Satalia] (Turkey)

City, port, and capital of Antalya province, on the Gulf of Antalya, 85 mi WNW of ALANYA. The city was founded in the second century B.C. by Attalus II Philadelphus of PERGAMUM. It became an important port and was later part of the ROMAN EMPIRE. St. Paul and his disciple Barnabas sailed from here in A.D. 43 on their way to ANTIOCH during a missionary journey. It was later a stronghold of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE and the Seljuk Turks, and became part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the 15th century. There are extensive remains from all periods of the city's history.

ANTANANARIVO [Tananarive, Antannarivo former: Analamanga] (Madagascar)

City and capital of Madagascar and of Tananarive province, 135 mi WSW of Tamatave. Established in the 17th century, it was for a long time the capital of the Hova rulers. Captured by the Imerina kings in 1794, it was controlled by them until 1895, when it fell to FRANCE.

ANTANNARIVO See ANTANANARIVOANTARADUS See TARTUSANTARCTICA

Continent roughly centered on the SOUTH POLE and lying almost entirely within the Antarctic Circle. It has the coldest climate on earth and an enormous ice cap. The ancient Greeks believed a continental expanse of land lay at the southern end of the world, and medieval and Renaissance geographers presumed a huge landmass must lie there to counterbalance the known world. In 1772 James Cook of England became the first known human to cross the Antarctic Circle, which is at latitude 66.5°S. In January 1820, two British navigators, William Smith and James Bransfield, sighted the Antarctic Peninsula, and in November of that year an American, Nathaniel Palmer, also saw the continent. John Davis, another American, was the first to land there, on February 7, 1821. This early exploration was the result of ships hunting for seals. During the period 1830–32 a British navigator, John Biscoe, circumnavigated the continent. In the 1830s and 1840s knowledge of Antarctica was increased by a Russian expedition led by T. T. Bellingshausen; a six-ship American expedition of 1840 under the command of Charles Wilkes; a French expedition of 1840 commanded by Jules S. C. Dumont D'Urville; and a British expedition led by Sir James Ross during 1841–43.

Antarctica was then neglected for about half a century until whalers took an interest in the region. A British group led by the Norwegian naturalist Carsten E. Borchgrevink established the first base for wintering on the continent in 1899. Between 1907 and 1909 Sir Ernest Shackleton of Great Britain commanded an expedition that found the South Magnetic Pole, climbed Mt Erebus, one of the highest volcanoes in the world, and came within 100 miles of the South Pole. The pole was first reached on December 14, 1911, by Roald Amundsen of Norway, while Robert F. Scott of Great Britain arrived a month later on January 18, 1912. In this period expeditions from nine countries visited Antarctica. In the 1920s airplanes began to be used for exploration. Sir Hubert Wilkins of Great Britain was the first to fly over the continent, in 1928, and on November 29, 1929, the Americans Richard E. Byrd and Bernt Balchen flew over the pole. Lincoln Ellsworth, another American, made the first flight across the continent in 1936, while Sir Vivian Fuchs of GREAT BRITAIN was the first to make a complete overland crossing in 1957–58.

Discovery and scientific investigations in the 1930s led to international rivalry, with a number of nations claiming portions of the continent. Some of the claims overlapped. The UNITED STATES made no claims and does not recognize those of other nations. Large permanent scientific stations have been established, and valuable scientific data has been gathered. The South Orkney Islands have or have had stations of Great Britain and ARGENTINA; the Weddell Sea has stations of Great Britain, the United States, and Argentina; the Palmer or Antarctic Peninsula, due S of South America, has stations of Argentina, CHILE, and Great Britain; Marie Byrd Land has stations of the United States; the Ross Ice Shelf and Ross Sea, on the Pacific Ocean, have stations of the United States and NEW ZEALAND; Wilkes Land, S of AUSTRALIA, has stations of FRANCE, Australia, and the United States; the American Highland, S of the Indian Ocean, has stations of Australia, CHINA, and RUSSIA; Queen Maud Land, S of the Atlantic, has stations of SOUTH AFRICA, GERMANY, JAPAN, INDIA, and Russia. At the South Pole is the Amundsen-Scott station of the United States. In 1959, 12 nations that participated in the International Geophysical Year of July 1957 to December 1958 signed the Antarctic Treaty. It provides for freedom of movement and scientific cooperation and prohibits military operations and nuclear explosions in the area.

ANTEBARIUM See BAR, MONTENEGRO

ANTEQUERA [ancient: Antakira, Anticaria, Antiquaria] (Spain)

City in Málaga province, ANDALUSIA, 20 mi NW of MÁLAGA. An ancient pre-Roman town, it was occupied by the Moors from the eighth century until captured by CASTILE in 1410. The city became famous in 1842 when the first of three huge Copper Age megalithic burial chambers was discovered. The tomb contained human figures carved on its walls.

ANTIBES [Greek: Antipolis] (France)

Town and port on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 7 mi ENE of CANNES, in the Alpes-Maritimes department. Founded as a Greek Phocaeen colony in the fourth century B.C., it was the first city of GAUL to become a municipium under Roman Law. A Christian episcopal see from 400 until A.D. 1244, it was ravaged by the Saracens in the ninth century. It was the residence of the Grimaldi family from the 14th to the 17th centuries. It has Roman remains.

ANTICARIA See ANTEQUERA

ANTICOSTI ISLAND [former: Assomption] (Canada)

Island in QUEBEC province, at the mouth of the ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, 50 mi NE of GASPÉ. Discovered by the Frenchman Jacques Cartier in 1534, it passed to the British colony of NEWFOUNDLAND in 1763 and became part of Quebec in 1774. In 1895 it was sold to a French chocolate manufacturer, and later to a paper company, and has been privately owned since then.

ANTIETAM (United States)

Battlefield in NW MARYLAND, 50 mi NW of WASHINGTON, D.C., along Antietam Creek at Sharpsburg. On September 17, 1862, during the Civil War, Union forces under George B. McClellan defeated Confederate forces under Robert E. Lee. Although the battle was indecisive, it halted Lee's first attempt to invade the Union. It was the bloodiest day of the war with about 23,000 casualties evenly divided.

ANTIGONEA See TEPELENË

ANTIGONIA (Greece) See MANTINEA

ANTIGONIA (Turkey) See NICAEA

ANTIGUA [Antigua Guatemala] (Guatemala)

City and capital of Sacatepéquez department, 18 mi SW of GUATEMALA CITY. Founded in 1542 to replace CIUDAD VIEJA, destroyed by a volcano, it flourished as the capital of Spanish Guatemala, but it was plagued by natural disasters. Following its almost complete destruction by earthquakes in 1773, the capital was moved to Guatemala City. Many colonial buildings still stand.

ANTIGUA AND BARBUDA (Antigua)

Island and nation in the LEEWARD ISLANDS of the Lesser Antilles, 60 mi ESE of SAINT KITTS, in the WEST INDIES. Discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1493, it was settled by English colonists in 1632. A member of the West Indies Federation 1958–62, they were granted internal self-government as an associated state of GREAT BRITAIN in 1967 and independence within the Commonwealth in 1981 with Vere Bird of the Labor Party as the nation's first prime minister. In 1994, Bird was succeeded by his son, Lester Bird, as prime minister. In 1995, the islands suffered extensive damage from Hurricane Luis. In 2004, Balwin Spenser of the United Progressive Party became prime minister, ending Labor's continuous rule in the islands.

52 Antigua Guatemala

ANTIGUA GUATEMALA See ANTIGUA

ANTIOCH [Greek: Antiochea; Latin: Antiochia; Turkish: Antakya] (Turkey)

Ancient city about 50 mi N of LATAKIA on the Asi (Orontes) River, just before it enters the MEDITERRANEAN. It was founded as a Greek city by Seleucus I c. 300 B.C. and named for his father. Lying at the crossroads of two great trade routes, it became so large and wealthy that it rivaled ALEXANDRIA in EGYPT for power. It was the capital of SYRIA until conquered by Pompey in 64 B.C. Thereafter it became an early center for Christianity. It was here that the followers of Jesus first called themselves Christians, and it was the site of many Christian assemblies. It was also subject to the Roman passion for grandiose architecture.

It was conquered, first by the Persians in A.D. 540, and then by the Arabs in 638. The crusaders took it in 1097–98 and it became the most powerful of Crusader states. Sultan Baybars of Egypt conquered it in 1268, after which it declined. After many shifts in ownership, it was returned to Turkey in 1939. Unfortunately, throughout its history it was subject to major and minor earthquakes, but its ruins have yielded many valuable archaeological finds. There are many who believe that the Great Chalice of Antioch, found here, is the Holy Grail.

ANTIOCH [Greek: Antioch in Pisidia; Latin: Caesarea Antiochia] (Turkey)

Ancient city of PHRYGIA, 25 mi SW of AKŞEHİR, in Isparta province. Founded in the second century B.C. by Seleucus I Nicator, the founder of the SELEUCID EMPIRE, it became a military garrison of the Roman province of GALATIA under Augustus in 25 B.C. St. Paul visited Antioch several times between 41 and A.D. 54.

ANTIOCHEA See ANTIOCH

ANTIOCHIA See ANTIOCH

ANTIOCHIA MARGIANA See MERV

ANTIOCH IN PISIDIA See ANTIOCH

ANTIPOLIS See ANTIBES

ANTIPOLO (Philippines)

Municipality in S Rizal province, LUZON, 12 mi E of MANILA. It is a pilgrimage center for the miracle-working image of Our Lady of Peace, brought to the church here from MEXICO in 1626. Antipolo was the scene of fighting toward the end of World War II and fell to the United States on March 10, 1945.

ANTIPYRGOS See TOBRUK

ANTIQUARIA See ANTEQUERA

ANTIUM See ANZIO

ANTIVARI See BAR, SERBIA AND MONTENEGRO

ANTOFAGASTA (Chile)

City, port, and capital of Antofagasta province, on the Pacific Ocean, 700 mi N of SANTIAGO. A Bolivian port, it was developed from the 1860s by Chileans in order to exploit the rich mining region of ATACAMA. Its occupation by Chilean troops in 1879 led to the War of the Pacific. Control of Antofagasta and its coastal strip was granted to Chile by the Treaty of VALPARAÍSO in 1884.

ANTRIM (Northern Ireland)

Town in Antrim district, on the NE shore of Lough Neagh, 15 mi NW of BELFAST. The United Irishmen were defeated here during the anti-English rebellion of 1798. The town's 10th-century round watch tower is considered to be one of the finest in Ireland.

ANTSIRANA See DIÉGO-SUAREZ

ANTSIRANE See DIÉGO-SUAREZ

ANTUNNACUM See ANDERNACH

ANTWERP [Flemish: Antwerpen; French: Anvers] (Belgium)

City, port, and capital of Antwerp province, on the SCHELDE RIVER, 28 mi N of BRUSSELS. Important since the 12th century, it flourished during the 15th century under Philip the Good of BURGUNDY at the expense of BRUGES and GHENT. It was at this time that its famous academy of painting was founded. During the 16th century, while under the rule of SPAIN, it was sacked twice, in 1576 during the “Spanish Fury,” and in 1585. These sackings produced a decline that was accelerated by the forced closing of the Schelde River. The city’s importance returned when the river was reopened and the harbor improved during the Napoleonic period, enabling Antwerp to challenge LONDON as a trade center. Included in the Kingdom of the NETHERLANDS after the Congress of VIENNA, it was bombarded during the Belgian struggle for independence on October 27, 1830. It suffered severe damage during both world wars when it was under German occupation. Despite this, many famous buildings still stand.

ANTWERPEN See ANTWERP

ANUAL [Annoual, Anoual] (Morocco)

Village in Al-Hoceima province, 15 mi SW of MELILLA. On July 21, 1921, a large Spanish force under Fernandez Silvestre was severely defeated here by the Nationalist leader Abd-el-Krim. This defeat started a political crisis in SPAIN. Abd-el-Krim was finally defeated in 1926.

ANURADHAPURA [earlier: Anarajapura; native: Anuradhapura] (Sri Lanka)

Archaeological site in North Central province, 105 mi NNE of COLOMBO, on the Aruvi River. It was the site of the ancient Sinhalese capital, founded in 437 B.C. In the third century B.C. Buddhism reached the city, brought by Mahinda, son of Asoka, the MAURYAN emperor of INDIA. As a result, the Bo Tree, grown from a slip of the tree under which Buddha attained enlightenment, was planted. This is now the oldest living historical tree. In the eighth century A.D. Tamil invasions from India caused the capital to be moved south to POLLONNARRUA. The old site, discovered by the British in 1833, is now a pilgrimage center and the most important archaeological site of Sri Lanka.

ANVERS See ANTWERP

ANXA See GALLIPOLI (Italy)

ANXANUM See LANCIANO

ANXUR See TERRACINA

ANYANG [An-Yang] [ancient: Chang-te] (China)

Archaeological site in N HENAN province, 120 mi NNE of ZHENGZHOU. It was the last capital of the Shang dynasty from c. 1300 to c. 1025 B.C. Excavations of the site, begun in 1928, have revealed extensive ruins that have helped shed light on the early history and culture of China. Among the discoveries were oracle bones, the first extant Chinese inscriptions.

ANZAC COVE (Turkey)

Bay on the GALLIPOLI PENINSULA, S of Anafarta Bay. During World War I it was the scene of the landing of the Anzacs on April 25, 1915, at the start of the Gallipoli campaign. Fighting around the bay continued until June 30, and all troops were withdrawn in January 1916.

ANZAN See ANSHAN

ANZIO [former: Porto d’Anzio; Latin: Antium] (Italy)

Town in Roma province, on a promontory above the TYRRHENIAN SEA, 32 mi S of ROME. The ancient capital of the Volsci, it was conquered by Rome in 341 B.C. and then became much favored by Romans as a resort. Caligula and Nero were born here. In the 18th century it became important as a papal residence. During World War II, on January 22, 1944, Allied troops landed here before capturing important German positions at CASSINO on May 25, 1944. The Allied drive on ROME started here. The town has many Roman remains, among which is Nero’s villa.

AORNOS See TASHKURGHUN

AOSTA [Latin: Augusta Praetoria] (Italy)

City and capital of VALLE D'AOSTA region and Aosta province, on the Dora Baltea River, 48 mi NNW of TURIN. Strategically situated at the junction of the Great and Little St. Bernard passes, it was originally a Salassi town. It was conquered and garrisoned by the Romans in 25 B.C. The city became a bishopric in the fifth century. It was occupied many times by the French during the 18th and 19th centuries. It has extensive Roman remains, including the town walls. St. Anselm was born here in 1033.

APAIANG See ABAIANG ATOLLAPAMAMA See ABEMAMA ATOLLAPAMEA AD ORONTEM [Arabic: Famieh; Greek: Pharnake; later: Pella] (Syria)

Town in Hamah governorate, 60 mi SSE of ANTIOCH. Rebuilt c. 300 B.C. by Seleucus I Nicator, it was raided twice by the PERSIA of the Sassanid dynasty, in A.D. 540 and 611, during its wars against the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It became famous during the Crusades and was conquered by Tancred in 1111. An earthquake destroyed it in 1152.

APAMEA CIBOTUS [Apamea ad Maeandrum] [Greek: Apamea Kibôtos] (Turkey)

Ancient town in Afyonkarahisar province, on the MAEANDER RIVER, 58 mi SW of AFYONKARAHISAR. Founded in the third century B.C. by Antiochus I Soter, it was the scene of the treaty following the battle of MAGNESIA that finally acknowledged the Roman victory over the SELEUCID empire in 188 B.C. After the treaty, the town was incorporated into the kingdom of PERGAMUM, an ally of ROME.

APARRI (Philippines)

Town in Cagayan province, on NE LUZON, at the mouth of the Luzon River, 60 mi N of TUGUEGARAO. The Spanish first came into its fine harbor in 1572. During World War II, on December 9, 1941, it was the site of the first Japanese landing during their invasion of the Philippines. It was recaptured by U.S. forces in June 1945.

APENNINE MOUNTAINS [Italian: Appennini] (Italy)

A mountain range bisecting the Italian Peninsula from NE to SW. The Apennines fall off steeply to the E to the ADRIATIC SEA, but more gradually to the W to a broad plain where many of the major Etruscan, Roman, and Italian cities are located. In the Italian Campaign of World War II, the Germans used the Apennines as a defensive barrier, the "Gothic Line" that delayed the capture of German forces from 1943 to 1945.

APENRADE See ABENRAAPHRODISIAS (Turkey)

Ancient city in CARIA, 50 mi ESE of AYDIN. Center of a cult of Venus/Aphrodite, it gained the favor of the Romans Sulla, Caesar, and Augustus and became immensely wealthy. Owning good marble quarries, it soon became a city of marble and developed a flourishing school of sculpture. It was an important city into the early Byzantine period. Now deserted, it has been excavated by Kenan T. Erim of Turkey, revealing many fine pieces of sculpture now in a museum on the site. A temple, theater, stadium, and an odeum survive in a remarkable state of preservation.

APIA See ABAIANG ATOLLAPOLLINOPOLIS MAGNA See EDFUAPOLLONIA [modern: Sozopol] (Bulgaria)

Greek colony on the BLACK SEA, SSE of BURGAS, one of the more important of the many ancient towns called Apollonia. It was founded c. 620 B.C. by Ionian Greeks, probably from MILETUS, and it became a fairly important trading center for salt, amber, and iron from northern Europe. The village of Sozopol is now on the site.

APOLLONIA (Israel) See ARSUFAPPALACHIAN MOUNTAINS (United States and Canada)

Mountain range in E North America, extending 1,600 mi SW from the GASPÉ PENINSULA in QUEBEC to N ALABAMA. Mount Mitchell in W NORTH CAROLINA is the highest peak in the range at 6,684 ft. The range is split by the Great Appalachian Valley, a series of lowlands that include the HUDSON VALLEY, the Lehigh Valley, the Cumberland Valley, and the SHENANDOAH VALLEY. The Appalachians are the dividing range between the Atlantic coastal plain and the continental interior. The range was a barrier to westward expansion by the American colonists. Developing roads and canals over the Appalachians was an early objective of the United States. The early routes included the WILDERNESS ROAD through CUMBERLAND GAP between VIRGINIA and KENTUCKY, the NATIONAL ROAD from BALTIMORE to WHEELING, the Forbes Road between PHILADELPHIA and PITTSBURGH, and the MOHAWK TRAIL between ALBANY and BUFFALO. The Mohawk Trail route proved to be the most feasible for a canal through the Appalachian barrier. The ERIE CANAL, completed in 1825, allowed cheap and easy passage of goods and material from the GREAT LAKES to the Atlantic Coast and helped to make NEW YORK CITY the preeminent port in the United States. The Appalachians are rich in wood, coal, iron, oil, and natural gas, and the local economy in the valleys has been concentrated on resource extraction and industry. The Appalachian region has been noted for its poverty, and federal programs in the 1930s and 1960s have attempted to improve the regional infrastructure and diversify the economy. The Appalachian Trail runs along the ridges of the Appalachians from Springer Mt GEORGIA to Mt Katahdin MAINE.

APPENZEL (Switzerland)

Canton surrounded by ST. GALL canton. Originally a possession of the Benedictine abbey of St. Gall, it revolted against the abbot in 1403, allying itself with the Swiss Confederation in 1411 and joining it as a canton in 1513. For religious reasons it was divided into two half cantons in 1597. The town of Appenzell, on the Sitter River, was traditionally the capital of the region. An old home of the abbots, it became capital of the Catholic half canton of Appenzell Inner Rhodes in 1597.

APPIAN WAY [Latin: Via Appia] (Italy)

Ancient Roman road, extending for 360 mi between ROME and BRINDISI. The first paved Roman road, it was begun in 312 B.C. by Appius Claudius Caecus in order to connect Rome and Brundisium, now Brindisi. It is famous for the monuments and tombs that border it just south of Rome. Part of the road is still used today.

APPLETON [French: Grand Chute] (United States)

City in E WISCONSIN, on the Fox River, 20 mi NNE of OSHKOSH. Incorporated in 1857, in 1882 it became the site of the first hydroelectric plant in the country.

APPOMATTOX COURTHOUSE (United States)

Village in central VIRGINIA, 20 mi E of LYNCHBURG. The Civil War ended here on April 9, 1865, when the Confederate troops under Robert E. Lee surrendered to Union forces under Ulysses S. Grant. The site became a national historic monument in 1940.

APRA HARBOR [Port Apra] [Spanish: San Luis d'Apra] (United States)

Port on the W coast of GUAM, in the MARIANA ISLANDS of the W Pacific Ocean, 5 mi SW of AGANA. On July 21, 1944, during World War II, the Allies landed here prior to their reconquest of Guam from JAPAN, which had held the island since December 1941. The Orote Peninsula, on the south side of the harbor, was the site of Japan's last battle for the island.

APT [Latin: Apta Julia] (France)

Town in Vaucluse department, 29 mi E of AVIGNON. The capital of the Vulgientes tribe, it was occupied by the Romans during the conquest of GAUL. The town was favored by Julius Caesar, who gave it his name, Julia, and embellished it. Beginning in the third century A.D., it was an episcopal see. Today it has many Roman remains and a Romanesque church.

APTA JULIA See APT

APUANIA See CARRARA

APULIA [Italian: Puglia] (Italy)

Region between the ADRIATIC SEA and the Gulf of TARANTO. Its capital is BARI. Originally the home of Apulians and Greek colonists, it came under Roman rule in the third century B.C. and later fell successively to Goths, Lombards, and Byzantines. In 1059 it became a duchy under the Norman, Robert Guiscard. In 1130 it became part of the successor kingdom of the Two SICILIES. As part of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, it was later the favorite residence of Emperor Frederick II. It became part of the kingdom of Italy in 1860.

APULUM See ALBA IULIA

'AQABA [Akaba] [Arabic: Al-'Aqabah; Latin: Aelana] (Jordan)

Town and port at the head of the GULF OF AQABA, 60 mi SW of MA'AN. Probably built on the site of ancient ELAT, it was a Roman military outpost on the road built by Trajan between CAIRO and DAMASCUS. Conquered by the crusaders in 1115, it was a fortress of the kingdom of JERUSALEM until 1187 when it fell to Saladin. During World War I it was captured from the Turks by Lawrence of Arabia. It passed to Jordan in 1924, becoming the country's only seaport. During the Suez crisis it was occupied by ISRAEL from November 1956 to March 1957.

'AQABA, GULF OF [Gulf of Elat] [Arabic: Khalij Al-'Aqabah; Latin: Sinus Aelaniticus]

NE arm of the RED SEA, between SAUDI ARABIA and the SINAI PENINSULA. It is entered through the Strait of Tiran. Of strategic importance, it has often been an object of dispute since it provides both ISRAEL and JORDAN with an outlet to the Indian Ocean. During the Suez crisis, it was occupied by Israel from November 1956 to March 1957, but in 1958 was declared an international waterway by the United Nations. The Strait of Tiran was demilitarized. EGYPT's closure of the strait to Israel on May 22, 1967, was a major cause of the Six Day War that followed.

AL-'AQABAH See AQABA

AQUAE AUGUSTAE See DAX

AQUAE FLAVIUS See CHAVES

AQUAE GRATIANAE See AIX-LES-BAINS

AQUAE HELVETICAE See BADEN

AQUAE MATTIACORUM See WIESBADEN

AQUAE PANONIAE See BADEN

AQUAE SEXTIAE See AIX-EN-PROVENCE

AQUAE SOLIS See BATH

AQUAE TARBELLICAE See DAX

AQUIDABÁN See AQUIDABAN RIVER

AQUIDABAN RIVER [Spanish: Aquidabán] (Paraguay)
River approximately 150 mi long, in Concepción department, flowing into the Paraguay River N of CONCEPCIÓN. The final battle of the war of 1865–70 between Paraguay and the allied forces of BRAZIL, URUGUAY, and ARGENTINA took place on its banks. The Paraguayans were severely defeated and their leader, Marshal López, killed.

AQUILA See L'AQUILA

AQUILEIA [Aquileja] (Italy)

Town in Udine province, on the Natisso River, 22 mi WNW of TRIESTE. A Roman military outpost in 181 B.C., it became an important center for trade between Italy and ILLYRIA and was the administrative capital of ISTRIA and VENETIA. Sacked by the Huns in 452, it was later the see of a patriarch and was the site of a schism between patriarchs in the seventh century. It declined after passing to VENICE in 1420. The patriarchate was abolished in 1751. From 1509 to 1918 it was ruled by AUSTRIA, then passed to Italy.

AQUILEJA See AQUILEIA

AQUINCUM See BUDAPEST

AQUINO [Latin: Aquinum] (Italy)

Town in Frosinone province, 30 mi SE of Frosinone. Situated on the Via Latina, it flourished in Roman times, but was sacked by the Goths in the sixth century A.D. The poet Juvenal was born here c. A.D. 60. St. Thomas Aquinas was born nearby at Roccasecca Castle c. 1225. The town has extensive Roman remains. See LATIN WAY.

AQUINUM See AQUINO

AQUIS GRANUM See AACHEN

AQUITAINE [Latin: Aquitania Prima] (France)

Region of SW GAUL extending from the PYRENEES MTS to the GARONNE RIVER. Conquered by ROME in 56 B.C., the region was made a province by Augustus in 27 B.C. It soon stretched NE to the LOIRE RIVER and E to the MASSIF CENTRAL. It was invaded by the Visigoths in the fifth century A.D. After the Battle of VOUILLE in 507, Aquitaine fell to the Frankish king Clovis. It was made a subordinate kingdom by Charlemagne in 778, but royal control by his descendants loosened. By the 11th century the dukes of Aquitaine had established their power. In 1154, after the marriage of Eleanor of Aquitaine to Henry II of ENGLAND, Aquitaine passed to the English Crown. Although it returned to France in 1243, part of the province was again passed to England in 1259 by the Treaty of Paris. By the end of the Hundred Years' War France had recovered all of the province, which in 1453, as the province of GUIENNE, became part of France under Charles VII. See also ANJOU, FRANKISH EMPIRE.

AQUITANIA PRIMA See AQUITAINE

AQUITANIA SECUNDA See GUIENNE

AQUITANICUS SINUS See BISCAY, BAY OF

ARA [Arrah] (India)

City in BIHAR state 36 mi W of PATNA. Ara was the scene of fighting during the Indian Mutiny of 1857 when the British were attacked by Kunwar Singh.

ARABA AL-MADFUNA See ABYDOS

'ARABESTĀN See KHUZESTAN

ARABIA, ROMAN PROVINCE OF

Middle Eastern province of the ROMAN EMPIRE in the NW part of the ARABIAN PENINSULA. It extended from the W coast of the SINAI PENINSULA, then NE to a line below DAMASCUS, and turned down the SE coast of the RED SEA to EGRA in the HEJAZ. The NW part, including the Sinai, was known as Arabia Petraea because it is so rocky. From the fourth century B.C. until A.D. 106 the kingdom of NABATAEA, centered in present JORDAN, controlled the region. Although Rome invaded northern Arabia briefly in 24 B.C., it was not until A.D. 106 that the empire conquered the area. In that year the Emperor Hadrian formally annexed it with BUSRA, now a ruined town in southwestern Syria and known to the Romans as Bostra, as the capital. The Emperor Diocletian (284–305) divided the province in two, adding two parts of PALESTINE to the northern section. Constantine the Great (306–337), reunited the sections, but in 357 under Constantius II the southern part was detached once more and called Palaestina Salutaris. Arabia then became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. The Arabs conquered the region between 632 and 636.

ARABIAN GULF See PERSIAN GULF

ARABIAN PENINSULA

The peninsula of SW Asia between the RED SEA and the GULF OF AQABA on the W, the PERSIAN GULF and Gulf of OMAN on the E, the Gulf of ADEN and the Arabian Sea on the S, and IRAN and IRAQ on the N. It is the heart of Arabic culture, the cradle of Islam and of its Arabic language. Although the Hyksos, of probable Arabian origin, conquered neighboring regions, such as EGYPT, as early as 1800 B.C., and the Semitic Hebrews moved into CANAAN even earlier, little is known with certainty about Arabia except for evidence from inscriptions dating to c. 1000 B.C. At that time Arabia was the seat of the Minaean and Sabaean kingdoms. Political stability in SHEBA apparently came about when Darius of PERSIA conquered northern Arabia and established a satrapy there. Romans invaded northern Arabia in 24 B.C. but withdrew after a few years, although they remained in HEJAZ much longer. Semitic tribes from Ethiopia held YEMEN and HADRAMAUT twice, from 300 to 378 and from A.D. 525 to 570, but were driven out in 570 by the Sassanians of Persia, who held power here briefly. No major power ever attempted a total conquest because of the size of the Arabian Desert.

Consolidation of Arabia started with Muhammad, the founder of Islam, who was born in MECCA c. A.D. 530. When enemies arose around him in 622 he fled to MEDINA, approximately 210 mi N of Mecca. This flight, marking the start of the Islamic era, is known as the Hegira. Although Muhammad died in 632, the religion of Islam flourished and was spread rapidly by Arabs who conquered Egypt, SYRIA, Persia, North Africa, and SPAIN, even extending briefly into FRANCE. This geographical diffusion diluted the original Arabic character of the religion. The seat of the caliph, or Islamic head, was transferred from Medina to DAMASCUS, and eventually to BAGHDAD under the ABBASID

CALIPHATE. After this, Muslim political cohesion disintegrated, under pressure from invading Turkish and Mongol tribes.

In 1517 the Turkish Ottoman sultan Selim I conquered Egypt and also added Hejaz to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. His successor, Suleiman I, added new buildings in the Holy Cities of Mecca and Medina on a lavish scale. The Ottoman influence waned by the middle of the 18th century and was undermined in Arabia by the Wahabi, a reform movement within Islam. The Wahabi converted the Saud tribe c. 1785, and the latter waged war on the orthodox Muslims, capturing Medina in 1804 and Mecca in 1806. By 1811, the Wahabi capital was at RIYADH, and it ruled all Arabia except Yemen. The Ottoman sultan had become only nominal ruler of Arabia. He appealed to Egypt for help, and the Wahabi were driven into the desert by 1818.

The movement waned until Ibn Saud recaptured Riyadh in 1902 and proceeded to reconstitute nearly all of the Wahabi's old domains. During World War I he supported the British against the Germans, but played a relatively inactive part in the war in spite of intense British attempts to align Arabs against Turks in southern Iraq. During this time British intelligence officer, T. E. Lawrence, Lawrence of Arabia, joined the Arab forces of Faisal I and helped win a number of battles against Turkish armies, but failed to win Arab independence. Saud, however, conquered Hejaz after a bitter war in 1925 and united it with NEDJ as SAUDI ARABIA in 1932. This is still the largest political unit on the peninsula, although a number of smaller kingdoms, emirates, and protectorates exist.

ARABIA PETRAEA See ARABIA, NABATAEA, PETRA

ARABISTAN See KHUZESTAN

AL-'ARABĪ YAH AL-MUTTAHAHIDAH See UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC

ARABONA See GYOR

ARACHOSIA [Persian: Harahuvatish, Harauvatish] (Afghanistan)

An ancient province in the S part of Afghanistan, bounded on its S by BALUCHISTAN. It was a province of the Achaemenid, Seleucid, and Parthian Empires. Its capital city was founded by Alexander the Great and was known as Alexander-of-the-Arachosians, more usually identified as KANDAHAR. See PERSIA.

ARAD (Romania)

City and capital of Arad district, on the Moreșul River, 30 mi N of TIMISOARA. A fortress of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE from 1551, it passed to AUSTRIA by the Treaty of KARLOWITZ in 1699. It was captured by the Hungarians who made it their headquarters during their revolt against Austria from 1848–49. After the failure of the revolt the rebel leaders were executed here. The city passed to Romania in 1919.

ARADUS See ARWAD

ARAGON [Spanish: Aragón] (Spain)

Old region in the NE, bordering on the PYRENEES. In A.D. 850 the Carolingians succeeded the Carthaginians, Romans, Visigoths, and Moors as masters of the area. Aragon became an independent kingdom in 1035 under Ramiro I when it was detached from NAVARRE. It then expanded to the S, annexing Navarre in 1076 and uniting with CATALONIA in 1140 through a dynastic marriage. Beginning in 1282, it controlled SICILY, SARDINIA, and NAPLES. The marriage in 1469 of Ferdinand of Aragon to Isabella of CASTILE united their kingdoms 10 years later. During the War of the Spanish Succession, from 1701 to 1714, rebellion cost the Aragonese their political privileges. In 1833 the region was divided into the modern provinces of Huesca, Teruel, and Saragossa.

AL-ARAISH See LARACHE

ARA JOVIS See ARANJUEZ

ARAKAN (Myanmar)

Region and administrative division between the Bay of Bengal and the Arakan Yoma Mountains. Conquered and incorporated into Burma in 1057 by Anawratha, king of PAGAN, it became an independent kingdom in 1287 after the Mongol invasion. In 1784 it was again conquered by Burma but revolted in 1824. The repression of this revolt provoked the First Anglo-Burmese War. On February 24, 1826, by the treaty of Yandabu, the region was annexed by the British East India Company and incorporated into Lower Burma.

ARAM (Syria)

Ancient country, roughly equivalent to modern Syria, that stretched from the LEBANON Mts to beyond the EUPHRATES RIVER. It was named after the Aramaeans who occupied the region between the 14th and 12th centuries B.C., establishing many illustrious city kingdoms in the 10th century B.C. Of these the most famous was DAMASCUS. Aram is frequently mentioned in the Bible. The Aramaic language used by Jesus carries its name.

ARANA NAOMH See ARAN ISLANDSARAN ISLANDS [Irish: Arana Naomh] (Ireland)

Three islands—Inishmore, Inisheer, and Inishmaan—at the entrance of GALWAY Bay, off the W coast of Ireland. Inishmore is the largest, and KILRONAN on it is the main town of the islands. There are remains of both prehistoric and early Christian structures, including hill forts and circular stone huts dug partly into the ground.

ARANJUEZ [ancient: Ara Jovis] (Spain)

Town in Madrid province, on the TAGUS RIVER, 30 mi S of MADRID. It was made a royal residence in the 16th century under the Hapsburg Charles V of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. On March 18, 1808, it was the scene of an insurrection against the pro-French government of the Bourbon Charles IV that forced his abdication and led to Napoleon's intervention in Spain. It is noted for its splendid palace, built under Philip II. The palace burned several times but was rebuilt in 1727.

ARANMORE See INISHMOREARAN-NA-NAOMH See INISHMOREARAPILES (Spain)

Village in Salamanca province, 4 mi SE of SALAMANCA. It was the site of the battle of Salamanca fought during the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars. Here, on July 22, 1812, the British under Wellington defeated the French under Marmont. This victory marked the start of the French retreat from Spain.

ARAR See SAÔNE RIVERARARA [Arare] (Indonesia)

Village on the N coast of NEW GUINEA, 130 mi W of DJAJAPURA, in IRIAN BARAT province. During World War II, on May 17, 1944, the U.S. Sixth Army under General Walter Krueger landed here at the outset of the Allied reconquest of northern New Guinea from the Japanese.

ARARAT See URARTUARARAT, MOUNT [Armenian: Masis; Persian: Koh-i-Nuh; Turkish: Ağrı Dağı] (Turkey)

Peak in E Turkey, near the Iranian and Armenian borders. At 16,947 ft Great Ararat is the highest peak in Turkey and is considered holy by the Armenians, as the traditional landing place of Noah's Ark after the Flood. It was first climbed on September 27, 1829. See also ARMENIA.

ARARE See ARARAARAUCANIA (Chile)

Region S of the Bio-Bio River. For more than three centuries the region was the scene of the struggle of the Araucanian Indians to maintain their land and independence. The Araucanian Wars began in 1541, when the Spaniards entered central Chile. They ended only after the subjugation of the Indians by the Treaty of TEMUCO in 1881.

ARAUSIO See ORANGEARAWÉ (Papua New Guinea)

Peninsula on W NEW BRITAIN ISLAND. On December 20, 1943, during World War II, the Allies landed here at the start of their invasion of Japanese-held New Britain.

ARBE See RABARBELA See ERBILARBIL See ERBILARBOGA (Sweden)

City in Vätmanland county, on the Arboga River, 30 mi SW of VÄSTERAS. An important commercial center during the Middle Ages, it was chartered in 1330. In 1435 the first diet of Sweden was held here.

ARBROATH [Aberbrothock, Aberbrothwick] (Scotland)

Town and port on the NORTH SEA, in TAYSIDE region, 18 mi ENE of DUNDEE. It is the site of a famous Benedictine abbey founded on August 9, 1178, by King William the Lion. In April 1320 the Scottish Estates met here to issue the Declaration of Arbroath to Pope John XXII and to European countries in order to assert Scotland's independence from ENGLAND.

ARBŪNAH See NARBONNE

ARCADIA [Greek: Arkadhia] (Greece)

Historic region in the central PELOPONNESUS, roughly coextensive with the modern department of Arcadia. Subjected to the influence of SPARTA in the seventh century B.C., it asserted its independence after Sparta's defeat at LEUCTRA in 371 B.C. and joined a league whose capital was at MEGALOPOLIS. The league broke up in 365 B.C. Arcadia then became part of the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE. In 1204 the Fourth Crusade captured the region from the Byzantines and included it in the Latin principality of ACHAEA. The BYZANTINE EMPIRE gradually reconquered the region, including it in the Despotate of Morea in 1340. It passed to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1460. The region played a major part in the Greek war of independence 1821–29. The pastoral character of the region has been the inspiration for an abundance of bucolic literature from ancient times on.

ARCADIA See KIPPARISIA

ARCAE REMORUM See CHARLEVILLE-MÉZIÈRES

ARCETRI (Italy)

Village in Firenze province, S of FLORENCE. It is famous as the residence of Galileo, who was sentenced to seclusion here on July 21, 1633, by the Inquisition. He produced some of his most important works here before his death in 1642.

ARCHANGEL See ARKHANGELSK

ARCHIPELAGO DE COLÓN See GÁLAPAGOS ISLANDS

ARCHIPELAGO, DUCHY OF See AEGEAN SEA, NAXOS

ARCIS-SUR-AUBE (France)

Town in Aube department, 17 mi N of TROYES. Between March 20 and 26, 1814, during the Napoleonic Wars, the French under Napoleon were defeated here by the Allies under Field Marshal von Schwarzenberg. Georges Danton, a revolutionary, was born here in 1759.

ARCOBRIGA See ARCOS DE LA FRONTERA

ARCOLA See ARCOLE

ARCOLE [Italian: Arcola] (Italy)

Village in Verona province, on the Alpone River, 16 mi ESE of VERONA. Between November 15 and 17, 1796, during Napoleon's first Italian campaign, the French won an important victory here over the Austrians under Field Marshal Jozsef Alvinczy.

ARCOS DE LA FRONTERA [Arabic: Medina Arkosh; Latin: Arcobriga] (Spain)

Town in Cadiz province, above the Guadalete River, 30 mi NE of CADIZ. A Moorish stronghold from the eighth century, it was taken by Alfonso X of CASTILE in the 13th century. The town has many fine old buildings.

ARCOS DE VALDEVEZ (Portugal)

Town in Viana do Castelo district, on the Lima River, 25 mi N of BRAGA. During Portugal's struggle for independence in the 12th century, Afonso I Henriques, Portugal's first king (1139–85), repulsed Alfonso VII of LEON and CASTILE here.

ARCOT (India)

Town in TAMIL NADU, on the Palar River, 68 mi WSW of CHENNAI. After 1712 it was the capital of the Muslim nawabs of the CARNATIC. An ally of FRANCE, it was captured on August 31, 1751, by Robert Clive for the British East India Company and thereafter changed hands several times before finally passing to the British in 1801.

ARCTIC, THE

Northernmost region of the Earth, with the NORTH POLE at its center. It includes some areas S of the Arctic Circle, marked roughly by the northern limit of tree growth. The Arctic includes the Arctic Ocean, the BERING SEA, the SVALBARD Archipelago, GREENLAND, and the northern sections of ALASKA, CANADA, NORWAY, RUSSIA, and ICELAND. The indigenous population is sparsely distributed, the Inuit, Siberian peoples, and the Sammi of northern SCANDINAVIA. The first European to write of the Arctic was Pytheas of MASSILIA who sailed into the Arctic around 300 B.C. and whose chronicle describes sea ice and the shorted summer days. Pytheas may have visited Norway, the FAEROES, or Iceland. Irish monks are documented as visiting Iceland in the eighth century, but were soon supplanted by the Vikings, who between the ninth and 11th centuries, visited Iceland, Greenland, and probably SPITSBERGEN. In the 16th century European navigators sought the NORTHWEST PASSAGE through the Arctic from E to W. First to explore this route was Sir Martin Frobisher of England who made voyages in 1576, 1577, and 1578. Henry Hudson in 1610 and William Baffin in 1615 and 1616 attempted to find the passage for England but failed. Many others tried in the early 19th century, and by 1854 the existence of a Northwest Passage had been proven, but no one was able to negotiate it until Roald Amundsen of Norway accomplished it between 1903 and 1906.

Explorers also sought the Northeast Passage, a water route along the northern coast of Europe and Asia, to reach the Pacific from the Atlantic. William Barents of Holland attempted the feat in the late 16th century and Henry Hudson in the early 17th century, but the voyage was not accomplished until Nils A. E. Nordenskjöld, a Swede, started out in 1878 and reached CHINA. Meanwhile, Sir James Ross had located the North Magnetic Pole in 1831. By the late 19th century a race was on to be the first to reach the North Pole, and Robert E. Peary of the UNITED STATES won the race on April 6, 1909. Richard E. Byrd and Bernt Balchen of the United States were the first to fly over the pole in a plane, in 1926.

Since the 1930s exploration has been carried on by a number of nations for scientific purposes, and much valuable data has been accumulated. The U.S.

nuclear powered submarine Nautilus reached the pole in August 1958, pioneering an undersea route; while the U.S. nuclear submarine Skate surfaced at the pole in March 1959. Efforts to make use of the Arctic's natural resources have also been undertaken. These efforts have been aimed especially at developing energy resources and were highlighted by the discovery of valuable oil reserves on the Alaska North Slope in 1968. At the end of the 20th century, global warming was evident in the Arctic regions as mean temperatures rose, summer sea ice packs receded from the shores of the Arctic Ocean, and permafrost thawed. Longer term impacts of glacial melt-off, coastal erosion, and impacts on wildlife and indigenous lifestyles are global concerns. The Arctic is viewed as an "early warning" for more widespread climatic change.

ARCUEIL [Latin: Arculi] (France)

Town in the Val-de-Marne department, just S of PARIS. It is famous for its aqueducts, built in the fourth century A.D. by Julian and in the 17th century by Marie de Médicis. The Roman aqueduct survives only as a ruin. A third was built onto the second one in the 19th century.

ARCULI See ARCUEIL

ARDABIL [Ardebil] (Iran)

Town in AZERBAIJAN province, 120 mi E of TABRIZ. It was the place of origin of the Safavid dynasty, whose foundation in 1501 by Shah Ismail is considered to mark the beginning of modern PERSIA. It remained the capital of the Safavids until this was moved to Tabriz.

ARDAHAN (Turkey)

Town in Kars province, on the Kora River, 48 mi NW of KARS. Following the Russo-Turkish War, it was ceded to RUSSIA on March 23, 1878, by the treaty of SAN STEFANO. In 1920 it was recaptured along with Kars by the Turkish nationalist Mustapha Kemal. Turkish control was finally recognized by Russia on March 16, 1921.

ARDEA (Italy)

Village in Roma province, LATIUM, near the TYRRHENIAN SEA, 25 mi S of Rome. The ancient capital of the Italic Rutuli people, it allied with ROME in the fifth century B.C. and became a military outpost against the Volsci. During World War II, on March 24, 1944, the Germans massacred more than 300 members of the Italian Resistance in the nearby Ardeatine Caves. Ardea has extensive remains of Roman fortifications.

ARDEAL See TRANSYLVANIA

ARDEANTINE CAVES See ARDEA

ARDEBIL See ARDABIL

ARDEE [Gaelic: Baile Atha Fhirdiath] (Ireland)

Town in County Louth, on the Dee River, 40 mi NNW of DUBLIN. It was sacked by the Scot Edward Bruce in 1315. The town changed hands several times during the Irish rebellion of 1641 and during the struggle between James II and William III in Ireland from 1688 to 1691.

ARDENNES (Belgium, Luxembourg, France)

Plateau covering the Ardennes department of N France, SE Belgium, and N Luxembourg. In modern times it has frequently been a battlefield. During the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 Napoleon III was defeated at SEDAN. During World War I the plateau was the site of the battles of the Ardennes and of the ARGONNE. During World War II, the Battle of Sedan, in 1940, and the Battle of the Bulge of 1944–45 were fought here.

ARDRES (France)

Village in the Pas-de-Calais department, 10 mi SE of CALAIS. It was the headquarters of the French king, Francis I, during his famous meeting of the Field of the Cloth of Gold with Henry VIII of ENGLAND, from June 4 to 24, 1520. The Peace of Ardres, signed on June 7, 1546, ended the war between England and France and her ally, SCOTLAND. The treaty restored BOULOGNE to France. See also GUÎNES.

ARECIBO [Spanish: San Felipe Apóstol del Arecivo] (Puerto Rico)

City on the Atlantic Ocean, 45 mi W of SAN JUAN. Settled in 1556, it was the scene of an Anglo-Spanish battle in 1702 during the War of the Spanish Succession. Nearby is the Arecibo Ionospheric Observatory, one of the largest radio telescopes in the world, completed in 1963.

ARELAS See ARLES

ARELATE See ARLES

AREMORICA See ARMORICA

ARENACUM See ARNHEM

AREQUIPA [former: Villa Hermosa de la Asunción] (Peru)

City and capital of Arequipa province and department, on the Chili River, 200 mi S of CUZCO. On the site of an ancient Inca city at the foot of a dormant volcano, it was built in 1540 by Francisco Pizarro, Spanish explorer and soldier. It became a bishopric in 1577. Despite several earthquakes, it remains an outstanding example of Spanish colonial architecture with buildings of white sillar lava stone.

AREZZO [Latin: Arretium] (Italy)

City and capital of Arezzo province, in TUSCANY, 40 mi SE of FLORENCE. One of the 12 ancient cities of ETRURIA, it became an ally of ROME in the third century B.C. In A.D. 1289 it was defeated by Florence at CAMPALDINO and was subsequently annexed in 1384. It was damaged during World War II and taken by the British on July 16, 1944. The city, which retains much of its medieval character, has extensive archaeological remains and was a noted artistic center, the birthplace of Maecenas, Petrarch, Giorgio Vasari, Guido d'Arezzo, and Pietro Aretino.

ARGAON [Argaum] (India)

Village in N MAHARASHTRA state, 137 mi W of NAGPUR. On November 29, 1803, the British under General Arthur Wellesley severely defeated the Marathas here in the final struggles of the MARATHA CONFEDERACY. See also ASSAYE.

EL ARGAR See IBERIAN PENINSULA

ARGAUM See ARGAON

ARGENTA See NORTH LITTLE ROCK

ARGENTAN (France)

Town in the Orne department, 23 mi NNW of ALENÇON. Between August 18 and 23, 1944, in the NORMANDY campaign of World War II, the Germans suffered a severe defeat near here when six divisions were trapped in the FALAISE pocket. This defeat started the German withdrawal to the SEINE RIVER.

ARGENTEUIL (France)

City in the Val d'Oise department, on the SEINE RIVER, 10 mi NNW of PARIS. It is famous for its Benedictine abbey, which was built in the seventh century as a convent. It was later destroyed by the Normans and rebuilt in the 11th century by Robert II the Pious. In the 12th century it was connected with Héloïse, who became its prioress after her separation from Abélard. It housed the Seamless Tunic, a garment said to have been worn by Christ, which was given to the abbey by Charlemagne.

ARGENTIA (Canada)

Village in SE NEWFOUNDLAND, on Placentia Bay, 68 mi WSW of ST. JOHN'S. In 1940 it became the site of the first U.S. military base on lease from GREAT BRITAIN. In August 1941, during World War II, the Atlantic Charter was signed offshore by U.S. president Franklin D. Roosevelt and British prime minister Winston Churchill.

ARGENTINA [Argentine Republic]

Nation occupying much of southern South America, with its capital at BUENOS AIRES. It is bounded by BOLIVIA and PARAGUAY on the N; on the E by BRAZIL, URUGUAY, and the Atlantic Ocean; and by CHILE on the W and S. The first Europeans in the area were led by Amerigo Vespucci, an Italian in Portuguese service, who in 1502 discovered the LA PLATA RIVER, the estuary formed by the PARANÁ and Uruguay Rivers. He was followed in 1516 by Juan Díaz de Solís, a Spanish navigator; by Ferdinand Magellan, in Spanish service, in 1520; and by Sebastian Cabot, also in Spanish service, in 1526. It may have been Cabot who gave Argentina its name, meaning silvery.

The first settlement for SPAIN was made at Buenos Aires in 1536 by a conquistador, Pedro de Mendoza, but Indian attacks and food shortages forced its abandonment. It was reestablished in 1580 by Juan de Garay, who had founded SANTA FE in 1573. In 1617, under Hernando Arias de Saavedra as governor, Buenos Aires became semi-independent within the Spanish viceroyalty of PERU.

Cattle were introduced to the pampas, the extensive grassy plains of Argentina, in the 1550s, and by the early 18th century wild herds roamed the plains. They were hunted by the gauchos, the equivalent of the cowboys of the UNITED STATES. The gauchos also fought the Indians. The separate viceroyalty of La Plata, including most of present Argentina, Bolivia, Uruguay, and Paraguay, was established by Spain in 1776, with Buenos Aires as the capital. In 1806, during the Napoleonic Wars in Europe, when GREAT BRITAIN was fighting the French and the Spanish, a British force captured Buenos Aires, but the next year the Spanish retook the city.

A revolt against Spanish rule began on May 25, 1810, when the viceroy was deposed. The revolutionists, under Manuel Belgrano, won an important victory in 1812 at SAN MIGUEL DE TUCUMÁN. Other leaders were José de San Martín and Juan Facundo Quiroga. The latter was a gaucho chief, an example of the caudillos, or charismatic military leaders, who became common in Latin America. The independence of the United Provinces of La Plata was proclaimed on July 9, 1816, also at Tucumán. Two factions contended for power; the Unitarians wanted a strong central government, but a Federalist group feared Buenos Aires would dominate such a system. The country was not stabilized until the regime of Julio Argentino, a Federalist, president from 1880 to 1886 and 1898 to 1904. He conquered the remaining Indians, opening large areas to settlement. Many immigrants came from Europe, and Argentina became a grain and meat exporter.

In a war in 1827, Argentina was allied with Uruguay against Brazil and won the Battle of ITUZAINGÓ, leading to the independence of its ally. During the period 1865–70, with Brazil as an ally, it fought an aggressive Paraguay. The settlement of boundary disputes with Chile through papal arbitration in 1902 was symbolized by the erection of a commemorative statue, the Christ of the ANDES, atop the mountain border in 1904. In 1914, acting with Brazil and Chile as the ABC Powers, Argentina helped mediate a dispute between the United States and MEXICO. The country remained neutral in World War I, but during Ramon S. Castillo's dictatorial rule (1940–43), it showed partiality for GERMANY during World War II. Castillo was ousted in 1943, and Argentina entered the war on the side of the Allies in 1945.

The postwar years were marked by the rise to power of Juan Domingo Perón, an army officer with fascist tendencies, who was president from 1946 to 1955. He was aided in his dictatorial rule by his wife, Eva Duarte Perón, whose social welfare measures were popular. The armed forces deposed and exiled Perón in 1955, but his successors failed to solve the nation's serious economic and social problems. Perón returned in triumph in 1973 and resumed the presidency. When he died in July 1974, he was succeeded by his third wife, Isabel Martínez Perón. Her failure to improve conditions caused her overthrow by the military in 1976. Under two succeeding generals, however, terrorism, arbitrary arrests, and economic distress have continued. The period 1976–83 saw an internal conflict known as the Dirty War. Opponents and critics of the government were kidnapped and killed by paramilitary death squads that operated with the government's complicity. Somewhere between 10,000 and 30,000 people "disappeared" during these years. In April 1982 Argentina, which had long laid claim to the FALKLAND ISLANDS, seized them by force, but by late June a strong British task force had recovered the islands. The disaster led to the emergence of new popular demands for reform, changes within the military government, and promises of elections and the return of civilian rule. During civil elections in 1983, Raúl Alfonsín, of the Radical Civic Union, was elected president, but the term was fraught with friction with military and the public issues stemming from the Dirty War. Peronist Carlos Saúl Menem won the 1989 presidential elections and instituted market and monetary reforms that helped to curtail Argentina's hyperinflation. In 1999, RCU alliance candidate, Fernando de la Rúa took the presidency, but was forced out of office in 2001 by a debt crisis during which foreign debt defaults led to a devaluation of the currency and renewed inflation. Three governments followed in quick succession, and the Peronists returned to power in the 2003 elections.

ARGENTORATUM See STRASBOURG

ARGEŞ RIVER (Romania)

River rising in the Transylvanian Alps and flowing S to the DANUBE RIVER at OLTENITA. During World War I, between December 1 and 5, 1916, it was the scene of a battle in which the Romanians were defeated by the forces of AUSTRIA and GERMANY.

ĀRGHOS See ARGOS

ARGINUSAE (Greece)

Group of islands in the E AEGEAN SEA, off the W coast of ASIA MINOR, near LESBOS. In 406 B.C., during the Peloponnesian Wars, the Athenian fleet under Conon defeated the Spartans under Callicratidas here. After this victory, which was to be its last triumph in the war, ATHENS refused SPARTA's overtures for a truce.

ARGIROCASTRO See GJINOKASTËR

ARGOLID, THE See ARGOLIS

ARGOLIS [The Argolid] (Greece)

Region in the NE PELOPONNESUS, approximately 55 mi WSW of ATHENS, with its capital at NAUPLIA. The area is generally the same as the ancient Argive plain, centered on ARGOS, a rich agricultural region. Argolis is one of the most ancient inhabited areas in Greece and was a center of the Late Bronze Age Mycenaean civilization whose chief city states were MYCENAE, TIRYNS, and Argos. The entire plain is believed, without much evidence, to have been controlled by Mycenae at this time. It fell to the Dorians c. 1200 B.C. Little is known of the region in the Early Iron Age. In the Archaic Period of ancient Greece, Argos became its principal city and was often at odds with neighboring Nauplia. The area was ruled by the Heraclids until its conquest by Sparta in 520 B.C. It was later an ally of Athens and shared the history of Argos through the Hellenistic, Roman, and Byzantine periods.

With the Frankish conquest of CONSTANTINOPLE in 1204 during the Fourth Crusade, it fell to the Latin principality of the MOREA. VENICE contested control of its coast from Nauplia and at times from Argos, but the region finally fell to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE along with the rest of the Peloponnesus. The area was a center of Greek resistance in the War of Independence in the 19th century. It saw some fighting in World War II during the British withdrawal from Nauplia between April 24 and 30, 1941. In addition to its Mycenaean sites, the region contains the classical remains of EPIDAUROS, LERNA, and ASINE, and Venetian and Turkish fortifications.

ARGONNE [Argonne Forest] (France)

Region in the NE extending from the AISNE to the MEUSE rivers. A region of wooded hills, it has been of strategic importance as a barrier between LORRAINE and CHAMPAGNE. During the French Revolutionary Wars it was the scene of a campaign that ended on September 20, 1792, when the French defeated the Prussians at VALMY. During the Franco-Prussian War it was again a theater of war until the French defeat at SEDAN on September 1, 1870. The Meuse-Argonne offensive of World War I was launched here by U.S. troops, who captured the German HINDENBURG LINE between September and November 1918. Germany took it in June 1940 during World War II. It was retaken by U.S. forces on August 31, 1944.

ARGONNE FOREST See ARGONNEARGOS [Greek: Ārghos] (Greece)

City and capital of Argolis department, in the NE PELOPONNESUS, 10 mi NNW of NAUPLIA. One of Greece's most ancient cities, it was founded by Pelasgian people in the second millennium B.C. and was a center of the Mycenaean civilization from 1300 to 1200 B.C., when it fell to the Dorians. Thereafter it dominated the Peloponnesus until the seventh century B.C. when SPARTA became powerful. Pyrrhus, king of EPIRUS, was killed here while attacking the city in 272 B.C. Argos became the center of the Achaean League after the Romans sacked CORINTH in 146 B.C. Under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE it was sacked twice and its inhabitants enslaved in 1397 and 1500. During the Greek war of independence it was the scene of the first meeting of the Greek Parliament in 1821. In ancient times, it had a famous sculpture school where Ageladas and Polycleetus worked. Archaeological remains in the city include several temples and a Mycenaean necropolis. The modern town is partly on the site of the ancient one. See also ACHAEA.

ARGOVIE See AARGAUARGUIN (Mauritania)

Island in the Bay of Arguin, 55 mi SE of NOUADHIBOU. Discovered by the Portuguese in 1441, it became the first European trading post on the coast of W Africa. It was conquered by the Dutch in 1621, and passed to the French in 1677.

ARGYLL [Argyllshire] (Scotland)

Former county of W Scotland, now in the HIGHLAND and STRATHCLYDE regions, on the Atlantic Ocean. Settled by Celts from IRELAND in the second century B.C., it became known as the kingdom of DALRIADA. In A.D. 843 Kenneth I MacAlpin united it with the Pictish kingdom. From 1457 to 1761 it was the seat of the famous Campbell clan of Lochow and later of the Campbells of Mamore.

ARGYLLSHIRE See ARGYLLARGYROKASTRON See GJINOKASTÅRHUS [Aarhus] (Denmark)

City and port on Århus Bay, E central JUTLAND, in Århus county, 30 mi E of Silkeborg. One of Denmark's oldest cities, it was a flourishing commercial center throughout the Middle Ages but declined in the 16th century after the Reformation.

ARIA See HERAĀTARIANO DI PUGLIA See ARIANO IRPINOARIANO IRPINO [former: Ariano di Puglia] (Italy)

Town in Avellino province, in the APENNINES, 30 mi E of BENEVENTO. During the rule of the Norman king Roger II, it was the scene of the assizes of 1140 that drew up a legal code for the Kingdom of Two SICILIES. The town has a Norman castle.

ARICA [Spanish: San Marcos de Arica] (Chile)

City and port on the Pacific Ocean, in Tarapacá province, 130 mi N of IQUIQUE. Lying on the Peruvian border, it has long been disputed by Chile and PERU. Built on the site of an Inca town, it was founded by Spaniards in 1570 and was a Peruvian city until captured by Chileans during the War of the Pacific in 1880. Chile's possession of the city was confirmed by a settlement on June 3, 1929, that made Arica a free port for Peru. See also ANCÓN, TACNA.

ARICCIA [Latin: Aricia] (Italy)

Town in Roma province, LATIUM, on the APPIAN WAY, 18 mi SE of ROME. One of the oldest cities of Latium, it was an opponent of Rome in the sixth century B.C. and was part of the Latin League that defeated the Etruscans c. 505 B.C. It took part in the battle of LAKE REGILLUS c. 495 B.C. in which Rome defeated the Latins. It was famous as the center of the cult of Diana Nemorensis. The modern and ancient towns occupy the same site.

ARICHAT (Canada)

Village in E NOVA SCOTIA, on the S coast of Madame Island, near CAPE BRETON ISLAND. A port was founded here by the French in 1713. This passed to the British in 1763. It was raided by John Paul Jones in 1778, during the American Revolution.

ARICIA See ARICCIA

ARIHA See GILGAL, JERICHO

ARILICA See PESCHIERA DEL GARDA

ARIMINUM See RIMINI

AL-'ARISH [El-'Arish] [earlier: Rhinocolura] (Egypt)

Town, port, and capital of Sinai governorate, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 95 mi E of PORT SAID. Captured by Napoleon in February 1799 during his Egyptian campaign, it was later the scene of a treaty, on January 24, 1800, between the British and the French by which the French evacuated Egypt. During World War I it fell to the British on December 20, 1916. Following the Six Day War of 1967, it remained in Israeli hands, but its return, together with the return of SINAI to Egypt, was pledged by the CAMP DAVID meeting of September 1978. It was returned to Egypt in 1979. See also ISRAEL.

ARIUS RIVER See HARI RUD

ARIZONA (United States)

Admitted in 1912 as the 48th state, it is in the far SW of the country, and its southern limit forms an international boundary with MEXICO. Arizona is derived from Papago Indian words meaning "place of the small spring." PHOENIX is the capital.

Indians lived in Arizona as far back as 25,000 years ago. A culture called the Hohokam flourished from c. A.D. 500 to 1450. These people were pit dwellers and built irrigation systems. From the 11th to the 14th centuries the pueblo and cliff-dwelling Anasazi culture was dominant, while Apaches and Dineh came here from CANADA c. 1300. The first European to enter the region was probably Cabeza de Vaca c. 1535. A Franciscan friar, Marcos de Niza, arrived in 1539, followed the next year by the expedition of Francisco Vázquez de Coronado, who was searching for the Seven Golden Cities of CIBOLA. The GRAND CANYON was discovered at this time. Father Eusebio Kino founded a mission in 1692 and another in 1696. Indian uprisings led SPAIN to build a fort at Tubac in 1752, which was moved to TUCSON in 1776. Mexico took control of the region following its war for independence from Spain in 1810–21. American mountain men, such as Kit Carson, trapped in the territory in the early 1800s, but there were few settlers. At the end of the Mexican War in 1848, Arizona was part of the large expanse of land ceded to the United States, and in 1850 it became part of the Territory of NEW MEXICO. By the GADSDEN PURCHASE of 1853 the United States bought from Mexico the land from the Gila River south to the present boundary.

Arizona sided with the Confederacy in 1861. In the one major engagement fought here during the Civil War the Confederates were defeated at the Battle of Picacho Pass. In 1863 the separate Territory of Arizona was formed. For a quarter of a century after 1861 there was intermittent war with the Indians, which ended when the famous Apache chief Geronimo surrendered in 1886. Mining flourished in the 1870s when silver was discovered at TOMBSTONE in 1877. This was also the scene, in 1881, of the famous gun fight at the OK Corral, involving Wyatt Earp and his brothers.

Cattle and sheep raising expanded, and by 1900 many irrigation projects had been built. World War II brought defense industries to the state. In the past two decades Arizona has been one of the fastest growing states in the Union. In 1963 the U.S. Supreme Court had to decide how the water of the COLORADO RIVER system should be allocated between Arizona and CALIFORNIA. Its dry climate has attracted many retired people. This population increase is now causing water shortages. Large water projects supply both irrigation and hydroelectric power. Best known of the dams are HOOVER, Roosevelt, and Glen Canyon. Arizona is a mining state, supplying more than half the copper mined in the United States. Manufacturing is also important.

In N Arizona is the Colorado Plateau and S of the Grand Canyon are the San Francisco Peaks. The NE corner of the state is covered with the reservations of the Hopi and Dineh (Navajo) nations. The S half has desert basins that are broken up by rocky peaks. The main cities are FLAGSTAFF; Phoenix, the capital since 1869; PRESCOTT, the first capital; SCOTTSDALE; Tucson; and YUMA. Arizona became one of the fastest growing areas in the United States at the end of the 20th century as Phoenix became a major metropolitan area.

ARKADHÍA See ARCADIA

ARKANSAS (United States)

State located in the S central part of the country, with the MISSISSIPPI RIVER forming most of its E boundary. It was admitted to the Union in 1836 as the 25th state. Arkansas was the name of an Indian tribe and village and was first recorded by the French.

The Bluff Dwellers, who lived in caves, were the first known people to inhabit the area, probably before A.D. 500. They were followed by the Mound Builders, whose culture spread over much of the Mississippi and OHIO RIVER valleys. These people built mounds for burial and ceremonial purposes. The first Europeans in Arkansas were the Spanish Hernando de Soto and his men in 1514. The French explorers Père Jacques Marquette and Louis Jolliet reached Arkansas on a southward trip in 1673, while the sieur de La Salle and Henri de Tonti arrived here in 1682. Tonti established the first European settlement at ARKANSAS POST in 1686. Arkansas was part of a large region claimed by FRANCE and ceded to SPAIN in 1672. The region was turned back to France in 1800 and sold to the United States in 1803 as part of the LOUISIANA PURCHASE. Prior to this, John Law, a Scottish financier operating in France, developed his Mississippi Scheme in 1719. This colonization plan brought hundreds of European settlers, with their slaves, into the Arkansas Post area. However, when Law's scheme collapsed in 1720, most of the settlers left. The cotton boom of 1818 was responsible for the first large influx of settlers, who carried the plantation system with them into S and E Arkansas. Arkansas became a Territory in 1819.

In May 1861 Arkansas seceded and joined the Confederacy. Union troops defeated the Confederates at PEA RIDGE in March 1862, at PRAIRIE GROVE in December, and at Arkansas Post in 1863. Union soldiers occupied N Arkansas, and the capture of VICKSBURG on the Mississippi River in July 1863 separated the state from the eastern part of the Confederacy. Union troops entered LITTLE ROCK in September 1863. In January 1864 Unionist supporters set up a government that abolished slavery and repudiated secession. The state was not, however, readmitted to the Union until 1868. Violence broke out in 1874 between two rival Republican governors, Elisha Baxter and Joseph Brooks, but ended when President Ulysses S. Grant recognized Baxter. During the Reconstruction era there was much corruption, but there were also advances in education and the general economy, including railroad construction. In 1882 Arkansas was the center of an organized farmers' revolt against the power that financial and transportation interests held over the farmers, and the reforms the movement demanded were gradually adopted.

A disastrous Mississippi River flood in 1927 covered a fifth of the state with water, while the collapse of the cotton market brought hardship during the Great Depression of the 1930s. Many refugee Arkies joined the Okies in a flight westward. World War II drew population out of the state to the N, but it also spurred war industries. To offset the economic decline after the war, a development commission formed in 1955 has worked to attract new industry, and the state has joined with OKLAHOMA to develop water transportation in the Arkansas River basin. Racial problems remained, and federal troops had to be sent to Little Rock in 1957 to insure the integration of the city's public schools.

Arkansas is the nation's leading bauxite producer, and oil was discovered at EL DORADO in 1921. The chief cities are Little Rock, the capital and largest city; FORT SMITH; FAYETTEVILLE; HOT SPRINGS; PINE BLUFF; and BENTONVILLE, home of the Wal-Mart Corporation.

ARKANSAS POST (United States)

Village in SE ARKANSAS, on the Arkansas River, 38 mi ESE of PINE BLUFF. Founded as a fort in 1686 by the Frenchman Henri de Tonti, it was the first white settlement in the lower MISSISSIPPI RIVER valley. A part of the LOUISIANA Territory, it became the capital of the Arkansas Territory during 1819–21. It was held by Confederates during the Civil War until falling to Union forces on January 12, 1863.

ARKHANGELSK [Archangel] (Russia)

City, port, and capital of Arkhangelsk Oblast, in E Russia, on the Northern Dvina River, 28 mi from the White Sea. Until ST. PETERSBURG was founded in 1703, it was the only Russian port for trade with the West. During the Russian Revolution it was occupied by Anglo-French forces from August 2, 1918, to September 30, 1919, in a move to support the White Russians' struggle against the Bolsheviks. During World War II the Allies supplied the Russians through Arkhangelsk.

ARKLOW [Gaelic: Inbhear Mór] (Ireland)

Town and port on the Irish Sea, in County Wicklow, 40 mi S of DUBLIN. An Anglo-Norman stronghold, it was captured by Oliver Cromwell in 1649 from James Butler, duke of Ormonde. During the rebellion of 1798, the United Irishmen were defeated here by General Jack Needham.

ARLES (France)

Ancient kingdom extending from W SWITZERLAND S to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. An important kingdom of France from A.D. 933 to 1378, it was founded when Rudolf II of BURGUNDY annexed the kingdom of PROVENCE and established his capital at ARLES. In 1032 it came under the rule of the Holy Roman Emperor Conrad II and was ceded to the future Charles VI of France in 1378.

ARLES [Greek: Théliné; Latin: Arelate, Arelas] (France)

City in Bouches-du-Rhône department, on the RHÔNE RIVER, 50 mi NW of MARSEILLES. Originally a colony of Ionian Greeks, it became a Roman colony under Caesar in 46 B.C. and grew to be one of the most important cities of the early ROMAN EMPIRE. A bishopric from the first century A.D., it was the site of numerous councils and synods and was the residence of Constantius II from 350 to 361. In 395 it became the seat of the prefecture of the Gauls but was sacked by the Visigoths and the Ostrogoths in the fifth century and by the Saracens in the eighth century. In 933 it became the capital of the kingdom of ARLES and was made a free city in the 12th century, retaining its privileges until the French Revolution. It is remarkable for its extensive Roman remains, which include an amphitheater and forum.

ARLEUX (France)

Village in the Nord department, 8 mi S of DOUAI. During the closing stages of World War I, in October 1918, a fierce battle was fought here between German and Anglo-Canadian forces aiming for CAMBRAI. The Allied victory was decisive.

ARLINGTON (United States)

Town in E MASSACHUSETTS, 5 mi NW of BOSTON. Settled c. 1630, it received its present name in 1867. It was the scene of some of the earliest fighting of the American Revolution when 12 minutemen were killed by British soldiers here in April 1775.

ARLINGTON (United States)

National Cemetery in N VIRGINIA, on the Potomac River, opposite WASHINGTON, D.C. The site of the Custis-Lee mansion, built in 1802, it became a Confederate headquarters in 1861 after Robert E. Lee took command of the Virginian forces in the Civil War. In 1864 it was established as a National Cemetery and today contains over 60,000 American war dead as well as many other notable Americans. See also ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA.

ARLON [Flemish: Aarlen; Latin: Orolaunum] (Belgium)

Town and capital of Luxembourg province, in the ARDENNES Mts, 100 mi SE of BRUSSELS. The oldest known settlement in Belgium, it was founded and fortified by the Romans in the fourth century B.C. During the French Revolutionary Wars, in 1794, the Austrians were defeated here by the French under General Jean-Baptiste Jourdan.

ARMAGEDDON See MEGIDOARMAGH (Northern Ireland)

Town in Armagh region, 35 mi SW of BELFAST. A religious center of Ireland, it was founded c. 450 by St. Patrick, who became its archbishop. Its school of theology became famous throughout Europe. Today it is the seat of a Protestant archbishop.

ARMAGNAC (France)

Region roughly coextensive with the modern department of Gers. Originally part of the county of Fézensac, it became a separate county in 960 and reached the height of its power in the 15th century when it struggled against BURGUNDY for control of France. In 1473 it was conquered by Louis XI of France and was finally united with the French Crown in 1607.

ARMENIA [Armenian: Hayasdan, Hayq; biblical: Minni; Old Persian: Armina] (Iran, Turkey, Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan)

Ancient W Asian nation, synonymous with the kingdom of VAN c. 1270 to 850 B.C. It was situated in the mountainous territory around MT ARARAT, SW of the CASPIAN SEA and SE of the BLACK SEA, and it included the sources of the EUPHRATES RIVER and the lakes of Sevan and Van. Legend tells of a descendant of Noah, named Haig or Haik, who founded the original kingdom. Historians propose, however, that the Armenians crossed the Euphrates in the eighth century B.C., entered ASIA MINOR and invaded the state called URARTU by the Assyrians. Skilled from early times in crafts and metallurgy, they had formed a definable nation by the sixth century B.C. but were soon invaded and subjugated by MEDIA.

A provincial governorship of the Persian Empire from the late sixth to the fourth centuries B.C., Armenia was conquered by Alexander the Great in 330 B.C., and a short time later became part of the domain of the SELEUCID EMPIRE under one of Alexander's successors, Seleucus I. Although Armenia then gained independence for a while, it remained divided into greater and little Armenia until its two parts were united by Tigranes (95–55 B.C.). He established his capital at ARTAXATA and was the most powerful ruler in a vast region until his defeat by ROME, under Lucullus in 69 B.C. and Pompey in 67 B.C. The country was then allied to Rome. It became the first nation in the world to formally adopt Christianity as a religion, in A.D. 303. Its people endured persecution as Christians in the fourth and fifth centuries, as well as numerous changes in government in bitter wars lasting until the mid-seventh century between Rome and the Sassanid dynasty of PERSIA. Following a period under Muslim caliphates, struggle and tumult again ruled as the Byzantines, Arabs, Seljuk Turks, Khazars, and Mongols fought one another for control of the region.

From the ninth to 11th centuries Armenia was independent under the leadership of the native Bagratid dynasty. Conquered again by the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in 1046, it was soon retaken by the Seljuk Turks following their victory over the Byzantines at the Battle of MANZIKERT in 1071. Its repeated subjugation prompted a segment of the Armenian population to found the kingdom of LITTLE ARMENIA in CILICIA in 1080, which was sustained until the MAMLUK invasion of 1375. Following devastation of the country by Mongolian hordes in the mid-13th century, many Armenians fled to the W under the leadership of Prince Reuben. During 1386–94 Tamerlane swept over Greater Armenia, murdering thousands in his path. When he died in 1405, the Ottoman Turks moved in, and by the 16th century all of Armenia was under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. Although they were often harassed for their Christian beliefs, the Armenians did thrive economically under the Turks. Enclaves of Armenian financiers and merchants developed in all the important Ottoman cities. The economic flowering continued despite political alterations in which a portion of eastern Armenia was ceded to PERSIA in 1620. Russia occupied Georgia in 1802.

As in so many regions, the 19th century brought a rise of nationalist sentiment among the widely dispersed Armenian peoples. It proved impossible to revive the nation, however. Religious persecution continued under the decadent Ottoman Empire despite pressures by Western Europe to carry out reforms. The treaty of BERLIN in 1878 formalized the call for reform, but it was largely ignored by Turkey. In 1878 the Armenian nation was further splintered when Russia acquired a portion of the country under the Treaty of SAN STEFANO. Turkish massacres of Armenians occurred from 1893–94 on and continued through World War I, including the tragic massacre at MUSA DAGI. Armenian suffering increased during World War I when Armenians generally supported Russia in the intensified hostility between that country and Turkey.

Following Turkey's defeat, the Treaty of BREST-LITOVSK in 1918 between GERMANY and the SOVIET UNION moved to make Russian Armenia an independent republic under German supervision. In 1920 the Treaty of SÈVRES called for an independent Greater Armenia that would include both the Turkish and Russian regions, but later that year the Soviets moved into Russian Armenia and made it a separate Soviet republic, the ARMENIAN SSR.

ARMENIA [Armenian: Huyasdan; Russian: Armianskiä] Independent republic, formerly a republic of the USSR, in S TRANSCAUCASIA, between GEORGIA and IRAN. Proclaimed a Soviet Republic on December 3, 1920, it was joined to Georgia and AZERBAIJAN to form the Transcaucasian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic on March 12, 1922. Later that year it was included in the USSR and became a constituent republic on December 5, 1936. In 1991, Armenia became independent. There has been ethnic conflict and ongoing territorial dispute with Azerbaijan in NAGORNO-KARABAKH, an Armenian enclave in Azerbaijan that has now been essentially annexed by Armenia, and in NAKHICHEVEVAN an Azerbaijani enclave surrounded by Armenia. Its capital is YEREVAN. See also ARMENIA (ancient West Asian nation).

70 Armenia Minor

ARMENIA MINOR See LITTLE ARMENIA

ARMENIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC See ARMENIA

ARMENTIÈRES (France)

Town in the Nord department, near the Belgian border, 10 mi NW of LILLE. It inspired the World War I song, "Mademoiselle from Armentières, parlez-vous?" During the World War I battle of the Lys River, in April 1918, it was captured and destroyed by the Germans but was recaptured by the Allies in October, and rebuilt after the war. It was occupied by the Germans in World War II.

ARMIANSKAÏA See ARMENIA

ARMINA See ARMENIA

ARMORICA [Aremorica] (France)

Ancient region of NW GAUL, equivalent to BRITANY. The home of five tribes during the Roman occupation of Gaul, it was part of Gallia Lugdunensis but was never thoroughly Romanized. In the fifth century A.D. the NW of the region was invaded by Celts from Britain, and Armorica became known thereafter as Brittany.

ARNHEIM See ARNHEM

ARNHEM [German: Arnheim; Latin: Arenacum] (Netherlands)

City, port, and capital of Gelderland province, on the lower RHINE RIVER, 35 mi ESE of UTRECHT. The seat of the dukes of Gelderland by 1223, it was conquered by Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY in 1473. During World War II, on September 17, 1944, the British under Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery launched a major airborne offensive against Arnhem in a disastrous attempt to capture and secure the bridges across the Rhine. Arnhem was finally liberated on April 13, 1945.

ARNO RIVER [ancient: Arnus] (Italy)

Italian river 150 mi long. It originates in the Florentine APPENINES and flows SW through FLORENCE into the Ligurian Sea, seven mi W of PISA. During World War II it was the scene of heavy fighting as Allied forces fought northward from Rome between June and August 1944.

ARNSBERG (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, on the RUHR RIVER, 40 mi SSE of MÜNSTER. It was founded as the seat of the counts of Werl in 1077. The city was also a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. It was the principal seat of the WESTPHALIA Vehmire counts from the 15th to the 16th centuries. In 1815 it became part of PRUSSIA.

ARNSTADT (Germany)

City in Erfurt district in THURINGIA, on the Gera River, 15 mi SW of ERFURT. Known in the eighth century, it was the seat of the counts of Schwarzburg from 1306 to 1716. In the early 18th century the composer J. S. Bach was the organist at the church of St. Boniface here. It has a 13th-century church and a 16th-century town hall.

ARNUS See ARNO RIVER

AROOSTOOK RIVER (United States, Canada)

River that flows from Piscataquis County in MAINE, 140 mi E to the ST. JOHN RIVER in NEW BRUNSWICK. The river runs through a formerly disputed area that was the cause of the Aroostook War between Canada and the United States that started on February 12, 1839. The war was ended by a truce, and the boundary was fixed by the Webster-Ashburton Treaty of 1842.

ARPINO [Latin: Arpinum] (Italy)

Town in Frosinone province, 20 mi E of FROSINONE. An ancient stronghold of the Volsci, it was conquered by ROME in 305 B.C. It was the birthplace of Agrippa and Cicero. In 1215 it became a stronghold of the PAPAL STATES. It has extensive Volscian remains.

ARPINUM See ARPINO

ARQUES-LA-BATAILLE (France)

Village in Seine-Maritime department, on the Arques River, 4 mi SE of DIEPPE. During the French Wars of Religion, on September 21, 1589, the Catholic League under the duke of Mayenne was defeated here by Henry IV in the first year of his reign. Henry, formerly a Protestant, was later responsible for the Edict of NANTES.

ARRAGOSA See DUBROVNIK

ARRAH See ARA

ARRAN (Scotland)

Island in the Firth of CLYDE, STRATHCLYDE region, off the SW coast of Scotland. It is the site of standing stones dating from c. 2000 B.C. Inhabited by Norse invaders until the defeat of Haakon IV in 1263, it was the refuge of Robert the Bruce in the early 13th century. In 1503 it was granted by Royal Charter to Sir James Hamilton, first earl of Arran. It later became the seat of the dukes of Hamilton.

ARRAS [Latin: Nemetacum, Nemetocenna] (France)

City and capital of Pas-de-Calais department, on the Scarpe River, 28 mi SW of LILLE. The ancient capital of the Atrebates, it was destroyed by the Vandals in A.D. 407 but was rebuilt by St. Vaast c. 500, when it became an episcopal see. In 863 it passed to the counts of FLANDERS, flourishing as a commercial and cultural center famous for its tapestry. It passed to the French Crown in 1180. On September 21, 1435, a treaty was signed here between Charles VII of France and Philip the Good of BURGUNDY, ending the war between the Armagnacs and Burgundians. In 1493 it passed to AUSTRIA, later to SPAIN, and was returned to France in 1640. Occupied by the Germans during World War I, it was heavily shelled and was the objective of an Allied offensive from April 9 to May 15, 1917. It was again occupied by the Germans during World War II. Robespierre was born in Arras in 1758. See also ARTOIS.

ARRETIVM See AREZZO

ARRHOE See URFA

ARRIACA See GUADALAJARA

ARROMANCHES-LES-BAINS (France)

Village in the Calvados department, on the English Channel, 6 mi NE of BAYEUX. In World War II the Allies landed here on June 6, 1944, during the Allied invasion of NORMANDY and established an artificial harbor that was to become their principal supply point.

ARSENAL ISLAND See ROCK ISLAND

ARSENARIA See ARZEW

ARSINOË, CYPRUS See FAMAGUSTA

ARSINOË [former: Crocodilopolis] (Egypt)

Ancient city on Lake Qārūn, near AL-FAIYUM. Founded c. 2300 B.C., it was the chief Egyptian center for the worship of the crocodile. It was renamed after the sister and wife of Ptolemy II Philadelphus, Hellenistic ruler of Egypt in the third century BC.

ARSINOË, LIBYA See TOCRA

ARSUF [Latin: Apollonia] (Israel)

Ancient town of CANAAN, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 10 mi NNE of TEL AVIV. Captured in 1101 by the crusader king Baudouin I, it became the capital of a Frankish principality. During the Third Crusade, on September 7, 1191, Richard I the Lion Heart defeated Saladin here. Arsuf was conquered and destroyed in 1265 by Baybars, the MAMLUK sultan of EGYPT. The site has not been resettled, but has undergone extensive archeological excavations since the 1950s and is home to Appolonia National Park, opened in 2002.

ÁRTA [ancient: Ambracia; Turkish: Narda] (Greece)

City and capital of Árta department, on the Arachtus River, 35 mi SE of IOANNINA. Founded as Ambracia in the seventh century B.C. by Corinthian colonists, it became the capital of EPIRUS under Pyrrhus in 294 B.C. It was taken by ROME in 189 B.C. After Rome's decline the new town built here became an important fortress of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It was captured by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1449, and in 1881 it was restored to Greece.

ARTAXATA (Armenia)

Ancient city of ARMENIA, on the Araks River, 16 mi S of YEREVAN. Founded as the capital of Armenia in 188 B.C. by Artaxias, it was destroyed by the Roman general Domitius Corbulo in A.D. 58. The ruins are visible.

ARTEMISIUM See SALAMIS

ARTESIUM See ARTOIS

ARTOIS [Flemish: Atrecht; Latin: Artesium] (France)

Region of N France, roughly coextensive with the modern department of Pas-de-Calais. Inhabited originally by the Atrebrates, it passed to the counts of FLANDERS in 863 and was joined to the French Crown in 1180. In 1237 it was made a county by Louis XI but passed to AUSTRIA in 1493 by the treaty of SENLIS and later to SPAIN in 1529. It was returned to France by the Peace of the Pyrenees in 1659. It gave its name to three inconclusive Allied offenses of World War I, in 1914 and 1915. See also ARRAS.

ARUBA (Netherlands)

Island in the NETHERLANDS ANTILLES in the WEST INDIES, off the NW coast of VENEZUELA, approximately 50 mi W of CURAÇAO. It is not known exactly when Europeans first landed here, but SPAIN had claimed the island by 1499. The Dutch acquired it in 1634. Since 1925, Aruba has become an important refining center for oil brought from Venezuela and as a transshipment point. German submarines shelled and damaged refineries in February and April 1942 during World War II. There are caves in which Indians decorated the walls with sketches that may be as old as those at ALTAMIRA, Spain, and LASCAUX, France.

ARUNACHAL PRADESH (India)

State in India on the N boundary with CHINA (TIBET), with BHUTAN to the W, and MYANMAR to the E. Formerly called NEFA (North East Frontier Agency), Arunachal Pradesh was part of the state of Assam until 1987, when it became a state. Chinese claims to the parts of the state led to the Sino-Indian war of 1962 during which the Chinese occupied the area until 1963.

ARUNDEL [ancient: Harundel] (England)

Town in W SUSSEX, on the Arun River, 18 mi WNW of BRIGHTON. Due to its strategic importance, it was chosen as the seat of an earldom in the 12th century and passed to the dukes of NORFOLK in 1580. It became a flourishing port and in 1813 was connected by canal to LONDON, but later declined. It has a well-preserved 12th-century Norman Castle.

ARUNDEL See KENNEBUNKPORT

ARVAD See ARWAD

ARWAD [French: Île Rouad; Hebrew: Arvad; Latin: Aradus] (Syria)

Island and port in the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 2 mi off the coast of Syria, near TARTUS. In ancient times it was an important port of PHOENICIA. During World War I it was the first point on the Syrian coast to be occupied by the French, and it came under the French mandate of LATAKIA after the war.

ARZAWA (Turkey)

Ancient kingdom whose location is believed to have been in either W or SW Turkey. A rival of the HITTITE KINGDOM, it reached the peak of its power during the Hittite decline, in the late 13th century B.C. In the 14th century B.C. it was conquered by the Hittite Mursilis but was seized by Madduwattas, a Hittite rebel, during the reign of Arnuwandas III (1220–1190 B.C.). The Hittites never recovered the kingdom, which subsequently lost its political identity.

ARZEU See ARZEW

ARZEW [Arzeu] [Latin: Arsenaria] (Algeria)

Town and port on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, in Oran province, 20 mi NE of ORAN. An ancient Roman and ALMOHAD town, it was captured and fortified by the Turks in the 16th century and was conquered by the French in 1833. In World War II it was one of the landing places of the Allied forces on November 8, 1942, during their invasion of French North Africa.

ASABA (Nigeria)

Town in Bendel State, on the NIGER RIVER, 80 mi E of BENIN CITY, opposite ONITSHA. While exploring the Niger River in 1830, Richard Lander was captured by natives and ransomed by the Ibos here. It became a British trading post and then the headquarters of the Royal Niger Company, which was chartered on July 10, 1886, to administer British Nigeria. See OIL RIVERS.

ASANSOL (India)

City 120 miles NW of KOLKATA. Asanol developed as a major railway, coal, and iron center under the British and continues in that role today.

ASANTE See ASHANTI

ASBURY PARK (United States)

City on the Atlantic Ocean, 6 mi S of LONG BRANCH, E NEW JERSEY. Founded in 1870 by James A. Bradley, it was named for Francis Asbury, the first Methodist bishop in North America. It was the scene of a disaster at sea when, on September 8, 1934, the steamship Morro Castle caught fire and beached here, killing 130 people.

ASCALON See ASHQELON

ASCENSION (Great Britain)

Island in the S Atlantic Ocean, 700 mi NW of St. Helena. Discovered by the Portuguese on Ascension Day, 1501, it became a British military station in 1815 when Napoleon was exiled to St. Helena. In 1922 it was made a dependency of the British colony of St. Helena. A U.S. air base was built here in 1942, and there is now a U.S. satellite tracking center. Ascension was used as a staging base by Great Britain in the FALKLAND ISLANDS crisis of 1982.

ASCENSION (Micronesia) See PONAPE

ASCHAFFENBURG (Germany)

City and port on the MAIN RIVER, 22 mi SE of Frankfurt am Main, in BAVARIA. The site of a Roman garrison, it passed to the electors of MAINZ in the 10th century. In 1447 it was the scene of an imperial diet that prepared the Concordat enacted in VIENNA in 1448. It established the papacy's primacy over the German nobility. It was sacked by the French in 1672, during the War of Devolution. The city passed to Bavaria in 1814 and was the scene of a Prussian victory during the Austro-Prussian War in 1866. The victory led to the fall of Frankfurt.

ASCHERSLEBEN (Germany)

City in SAXONY-ANHALT, 28 mi SW of MAGDEBURG. In the 12th century it was the home of the Ascanian counts. It passed to the bishops of HALBERSTADT in 1315. In 1648, by the Treaty of WESTPHALIA, it passed to BRANDENBURG. It became part of PRUSSIA in 1813.

ASCOLI PICENO [Latin: Asculum Picenum] (Italy)

City and capital of Ascoli Piceno province, 60 mi SE of PERUGIA. The ancient capital of the Piceni, it was annexed by ROME in the third century B.C. In 90 B.C., during the Social War, it revolted against Rome and massacred its Roman population. The city was a bishopric from the eighth century A.D. It was a free republic from 1183 to 1266, when it was joined to the PAPAL STATES. It has extensive Roman remains and medieval buildings.

ASCOLI SATTIRIANO [Latin: Asculum, Ausculum Apulum] (Italy)

Town in Foggia province, 20 mi S of FOGGIA. In 279 B.C. the Romans were defeated here by Pyrrhus, king of EPIRUS. Pyrrhus's losses were so great that the term "Pyrrhic victory" was coined to refer to a victory won at great cost.

ASCOT (England)

Village in BERKSHIRE, 26 mi WSW of LONDON. Ascot Heath, established by Queen Anne in 1711, is the site of the famous Ascot Gold Cup horse races, held annually in June since 1807.

ASCRIVIU See KOTOR

ASCULUM See ASCOLI SATTIRIANO

ASCULUM PICENUM See ASCOLI PICENO

ASDUD See ASHDOD

ASEB [Assab] (Eritrea)

Town in Eritrea and a port on the RED SEA, 50 mi NW of the Bab el Mandeb. For hundreds of years it was the eastern terminus for caravans crossing the Danakil desert of E Africa. With the opening of the SUEZ CANAL in 1869 Aseb's importance was increased, and that same year an Italian shipping company acquired the town. In 1882 the Italian government took over, and thus Aseb became Italy's first African colonial possession. In 1890 it became part of the Italian colony of Eritrea.

ASEB See ERITREA

ASENOVGRAD [former: Stanimaka] (Bulgaria)

Town in Plovdiv district, on the Avenovitsa River, 10 mi SE of PLOVDIV. An ancient Bulgarian fortress, it passed to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the late 14th century. It has the remains of an 11th-century castle and monastery.

ASFI See SAFI

ASHANTI [Asante] (Ghana)

Former kingdom of West Africa, which at the height of its power included the southern half of modern Ghana. KUMASI was its capital. It was founded in 1697 by Osei Tutu as a federation of the Akan states united under the symbolic Golden Stool. Successful military campaigns brought the kingdom into contact with British settlements on the GOLD COAST. In 1824 a war broke out with the British that led to the establishment of a protectorate over Ashanti in 1896. In 1901 the protectorate was incorporated into the British Gold Coast Colony, now part of Ghana.

ASHBOURNE (England)

Town in DERBYSHIRE, on the Dove River, 15 mi NW of DERBY. It is the site of the 13th-century church of St. Oswald and of the oldest of the famous almshouses, founded in 1640. Charles I was defeated here by the Parliamentarians in 1644.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH (England)

Town in LEICESTERSHIRE, 18 mi NW of LEICESTER. The town was granted to Sir William Hastings by Edward IV in 1461. It was a Royalist stronghold during the Civil War and was taken by the Parliamentarians after the battle of NASEBY in June 1645. Mary Queen of Scots was held prisoner here. The town appears in Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe.

ASHDOD [Arabic: Asdud; Greek: Azotos; Latin: Azotus] (Israel)

Ancient and modern cities in SW present Israel, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 35 mi W of JERUSALEM. The site, excavated since 1962, was inhabited in the Bronze Age and in the 12th century B.C. was conquered by the Philistines. On the great trade route between Syria and Egypt, it was one of the five chief cities of PHILISTIA. King Uziah of JUDAH captured Ashdod in the eighth century B.C., but it was taken from him by the Assyrians. Psamtik, king of EGYPT who died in 609, besieged the city unsuccessfully for 29 years. In 148 B.C. Jonathan, of the Jewish Maccabee family, led a successful assault on Ashdod and the city was destroyed. It was later revived by the Romans and became part of the province of SYRIA. Ashdod was a bishopric during a period of Byzantine control, but its importance declined in the Middle Ages. Modern Ashdod was founded in 1955, approximately 4½ miles NNW of the ruins of the ancient city. Ashdod was a center of worship of the fertility god Dagon. See also ASSYRIA, PALESTINE.

ASHEBORO [former: Asheborough] (United States)

Town in central NORTH CAROLINA, 26 mi S of GREENSBORO. Chartered in 1796, it was built on the site of an ancient village of the Keyauwee Indians. In 1936 a prehistoric Indian burial ground was discovered and excavated near here.

ASHEBOROUGH See ASHEBORO

ASHEVILLE [former: Morristown] (United States)

City in W NORTH CAROLINA, 120 mi W of CHARLOTTE, at the confluence of the Swannanoa and French Broad Rivers. Founded in 1794 and a city by 1835, it is now an important tourist center at the eastern entrance to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. The novelist Thomas Wolfe was born and lived here in his youth. The Biltmore House and gardens of the Vanderbilt family are nearby.

ASHFORD (England)

Town in KENT, on the Great Stour River, 15 mi SW of CANTERBURY. It was chartered as a market town in the 13th century. It was here that Jack Cade started his march on LONDON during the rebellion of 1450.

ASHGABAT [Ashkhabad, Ashkabat, Ashgabad][former: Poltoratsk] (Turkmenistan)

Capital of Turkmenistan near the Iranian border, 280 mi WSW of CHARDZHOU. The city was founded as a military outpost in 1881. Following the Russian Revolution it was the scene of a revolt of White Guards against the Bolsheviks from July 1918 to July 1919. It became the capital of the TURKMEN SSR on October 27, 1924. In 1948 it was severely damaged by an earthquake. In 1991 after Turkmen independence, the city converted to its Turkmen name Ashgabat from its Russian name of Ashkhabad.

ASHIKAGA [Asikaga] (Japan)

City in Tochigi prefecture, central HONSHŪ, 48 mi N of TOKYO. Founded by Ashikaga Takauji in 1378, it was the native town of the Ashikaga shogun dynasty, a major influence on the political and cultural life of Japan until 1573. It is the site of the Ashikaga Gakko, a school founded in the ninth century. The school is famous for its library.

ASHINGDON (England)

Village in ESSEX, 40 mi ENE of LONDON. On October 18, 1016, it was the scene of the battle of Assandun in which the Danes under Canute defeated the English king Edmund II Ironside. The victory gave Canute the throne of England.

ASHKELON See ASHQELONASHKHABAD See ASHGABATASHLAND (United States)

City and port on Chequamegon Bay of LAKE SUPERIOR, 62 mi E of DULUTH, N WISCONSIN. It was founded as a mission in 1665 by the French Jesuit missionary, Father Allouez. The city became a railroad terminus in 1877 and was incorporated in 1887.

ASHMORE AND CARTIER ISLANDS (Australia)

Group of islands in the Indian Ocean, 250 mi off the NW coast of Australia. Claimed by GREAT BRITAIN in 1878, these uninhabited islands were ceded to Australia in 1931 and became part of the NORTHERN TERRITORY in 1938.

ASHQELON [Ascalon, Ashkelon] [*Arabic:*TelAshqelon] (Israel)

Archaeological site in Israel, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 15 mi NE of GAZA. An ancient city settled in the third millennium B.C., it was taken over by the Philistines in the 12th century B.C. and became one of their five city-states. It flourished under many rulers as a major port and trade center between SYRIA and EGYPT. During the First Crusade, in August 1099, Godfrey de Bouillon defeated the Muslim Fatimids of Egypt here. Captured by Baldwin III in 1153, it became an important Crusader port but was destroyed in 1270 by Baybars, the Mamluk sultan of Egypt. Excavation of the city's important remains began in 1920. The modern city is nearby. See PHILISTIA.

ASH SHAM See DAMASCUSASH SHĀM See SYRIAASHUELOT EQUIVALENT See DALTONASHUR [Assur] (Iraq)

Archaeological site of ancient ASSYRIA, on the TIGRIS RIVER, 60 mi S of MOSUL, in al-Mawsil governorate. An ancient city, it was settled in the fourth millennium B.C. and was the earliest capital of Assyria until replaced by CALAH in the ninth century B.C. It was destroyed by the Medes in 614 B.C. Excavation of the city began in 1903 under a German team led by Walter Andrae.

ASHUR See SHARQATASHUR See ASSYRIAASIA (Turkey)

Ancient Roman province of W ASIA MINOR. It was created in 129 B.C. out of territories bequeathed to ROME in 133 B.C. by Attalus III, king of PERGAMUM, which became its capital. It included MYSIA, LYDIA, CARIA, and PHRYGIA, among other districts. Between 88 and 84 B.C. the province revolted and allied with Mithridates of PONTUS until it was subdued and reorganized by the Roman Sulla. In 27 B.C. it became a senatorial province with its capital at EPHESUS but lost its political unity when divided into seven provinces by Diocletian (284–305). See also ROMAN EMPIRE.

ASIAGO (Italy)

Town in VICENZA province, at the foot of the Dolomite Mts, 25 mi SE of TRENT. During World War I it was the scene of heavy fighting between the Austrians and Italians that destroyed the town. It was entirely rebuilt between 1919–24.

ASIA MINOR [ancient: Anatolia] (Turkey)

Region and peninsula, roughly the same area as present Turkey. It is the extreme W part of the continent of Asia. On the north is the BLACK SEA, on the W the AEGEAN SEA, and on the S the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. The SEA OF MARMARA on the N is connected with the Black Sea by the BOSPORUS and with the Aegean by the DARDANELLES. Because of its location and its water routes, N and W by sea, and S by the TIGRIS and EUPHRATES Rivers to MESOPOTAMIA, Asia Minor has for centuries been a crossroads where E and W cultures have met and where contending powers have fought. The fertile lands of Asia Minor's west-central regions have long supported a hardy peasant population and urban life that have been the bulwark of many cultures and political units.

Beginning c. 1800 B.C. with the HITTITE EMPIRE, which was centered in CAPPADOCIA, many states and empires have ruled some or all of the peninsula: Greek colonists, especially in IONIA, ARMENIA, PHRYGIA, and LYDIA; the PERSIAN EMPIRE; MACEDONIAN EMPIRE; PONTUS; BITHYNIA; ROME; the BYZANTINE EMPIRE; the Seljuk Turks; the Latin Empire of CONSTANTINOPLE; the empire of NICAIA; the empire of TREBIZOND; the OTTOMAN EMPIRE; and, finally, modern Turkey.

Other ancient regions and political entities included CARIA, LYCAONIA, LYCIA, MYSIA, PAMPHYLIA, PAPHLAGONIA, and PISIDIA. There are numerous cities of historical interest: ADANA, ANKARA, BOGAZKÖY, BURSA, DIYARBAKIR, EPHEBUS, ERZURUM, ESKISEHIR, ICONIUM, ISKENDERUN, ISTANBUL (Constantinople), İZMİR, KARAMAN, KARS, MILETUS, NICOMEDIA, PERGAMUM, SAMSUN, SARDIS, TARSUS, and TROY.

ASIKAGA See ASHIKAGA

ASINAROS See ASSINARUS

ASINE See KORONE

ASI NEHRI See ORONTES RIVER

ASIR [Arabic: 'Asir] (Saudi Arabia)

Province on the SW coast on the RED SEA. Occupied by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1872, it revolted under the Idrisi dynasty, with support from Great Britain, in 1910. It joined Ibn Saud, king of HEJAZ, in 1926 and was incorporated into Saudi Arabia in 1934 after the treaty of AT-TĀ'IF.

ASISIUM See ASSISI

ASIUT See ASYUT

ASMARA [Asmera] (Eritrea)

City and capital of ERITREA, on the Hamasen plateau, 40 mi SW of MITS'İWA. Captured by the Italians in 1889, it became the capital of the Italian colony of Eritrea in 1900. It was captured by the British on April 2, 1941, during World War II. It remained under British administration until 1952 when Eritrea became federated with Ethiopia. Asmara was the site of a U.S. communications base. In February 1972 it was the scene of an army mutiny. This sparked off the revolution that led to the abolition of the Ethiopian monarchy in 1974 and the establishment of a socialist state. Asmara became capital of Eritrea in 1993 after independence from ETHIOPIA.

ASMERA See ASMARA

ASOLO [Latin: Acelum] (Italy)

Town in Treviso province, VENETO region, 18 mi NW of TREVISO. An old Roman settlement, it became an episcopal see in the sixth century A.D. From 1489 to 1510 it was the home of Queen Caterina Cornaro of Cyprus, who abdicated her throne to VENICE. Roman baths, a theater, and an aqueduct remain.

ASPENDUS [Aspendos] [modern: Belkis] (Turkey)

Greco-Roman port and archaeological site on the Eurymedon River, 31 mi E of ANTALYA. The site boasts the best preserved Roman theater in the world, dating from the second century A.D., with superb acoustics. It is still used for outdoor entertainments. Remnants of the city walls survive, with an agora, a basilica of later date, a stadium, and other classical buildings, along with an aqueduct to the north.

ASPERN (Austria)

Town in Donaustadt, the 22nd district of VIENNA, on the DANUBE RIVER, 4 mi E of Vienna. During the Napoleonic Wars it was the scene of the bloody battle of Aspern-Essling, fought on May 21 and 22, 1809. Here the French under Napoleon were defeated by the Austrians under Archduke Charles Louis. This was Napoleon's first important defeat. In 1912 the Aspern Airfield became Vienna's major civilian and military airfield until the construction of the Vienna International Airport in 1954. The airfield was closed in 1977.

ASPROMONTE (Italy)

Mountainous area at the S end of the APPENINES in REGGIO DI CALABRIA province, between the STRAIT OF MESSINA and the IONIAN SEA, 15 mi E of MESSINA. On August 29, 1862, while en route to take ROME from the papacy, Giuseppe Garibaldi was defeated and taken prisoner here by the forces of King Victor Emmanuel II, who opposed Garibaldi's plan.

ASSAB See ASEB

ASSAM (India)

State between BANGLADESH and MYANMAR. Its capital is DISPUR. Originally it was the site of the kingdom of Kamarupa, which in the 13th century was invaded by Muslims from the S and by Ahoms from the N. By the 17th century most of Assam was ruled by the Ahoms. The Burmese invasion of 1816 led to the first Anglo-Burmese War. In 1826 it was annexed by the British East India Company through the Treaty of Yandabu. It was made a separate province in 1919. During World War II it was the scene of prolonged fighting between the Allies and Japanese. It became a constituent state of India in 1950 and was invaded by Chinese forces in 1962. Rebellions by various tribes in the state led to the setting up of two separate states within Assam, NAGALAND in 1963 and MEGHALAYA in 1971. The capital of Assam was in SHILLONG until 1971, when the capital became the new capital of Meghalaya, and Dispur became the new capital of Assam.

ASSANDUN See ASHINGTON

ASSAYE (India)

Village in MAHARASHTRA state, 50 mi NE of AURANGABAD. On September 23, 1803, the British under General Arthur Wellesley defeated the Sindhia dynasty of GWALIOR here, thus ending the Second MARATHA War. See also ARGAEON.

ASSENS (Denmark)

Town and port on the Lille Bael, 25 mi SW of ODENSE, on FYN ISLAND. On June 11, 1535, Danish and Swedish forces here defeated Count Christopher of OLDENBURG who was allied with LÜBECK and HOLSTEIN.

ASSHUR See ASSYRIA

ASSINARUS [Asinaros] (Italy)

River of SE SICILY that flows into the Gulf of Noto, 20 mi SW of SYRACUSE. The last battle of the Sicilian campaign of ATHENS against Syracuse was fought here in September 413 B.C. The Syracusans under Gylippus destroyed the last Athenian division that was retreating under Nicias. Nicias and Demosthenes were captured and later put to death.

ASSINIBOINE RIVER (Canada)

River that flows from SE SASKATCHEWAN for 600 mi S then E to the RED RIVER at WINNIPEG. Discovered by the Frenchman Pierre de la Vérendrye in 1736, it became an important route for fur traders. Forts and trading posts were built along its course.

ASSIOUT See ASYUT

ASSISI [Latin: Asisium] (Italy)

City in Perugia province, on Mt Subasio, 15 mi SE of PERUGIA. It is famous for its connection with Saint Francis of Assisi, who was born here in 1182 and died here in 1226. There are Etruscan and Roman remains and numerous landmarks, including the 12th-century cathedral of San Rufino and the 13th-century convent of St. Francis. In two Gothic churches above his tomb are frescoes by Giotto and Cimabue. St. Clare, the founder of the Poor Clares, was also born here.

ASSOMPTION See ANTICOSTI ISLAND

ASSOS [Greek: Machramion; Latin: Assus] (Turkey)

Ancient city in AEOLIS, on the Gulf of Adramyttium, 50 mi S of CANAKKALE. The city was founded by Greek colonists from LESBOS in the ninth century B.C. In the fourth century it became the site of a Platonist school where Aristotle taught. St. Paul visited it during his missionary journeys. There are extensive ruins today. The modern village of Behramköy is on the old site.

ASSOUAN See ASWĀN

ASSUAN See ASWĀN

ASSUR See ASHUR, ASSYRIA

ASSUS See ASSOS

ASSY (France)

Health resort in the Haute-Savoie department, 10 mi N of SAINT-GERVAIS. It is the site of the church of Notre-Dame-de-Toute-Grâce, which was consecrated in August 1950. The church was decorated by artists such as Pierre Bonnard, Georges Braque, Marc Chagall, Fernand Léger, Jean Lurçat, Henri Matisse, and Georges Rouault, whose efforts led to bitter controversies about the modern movement of art sacré.

ASSYNT (Scotland)

Area of HIGHLAND region, at the end of Loch Assynt, 58 mi NW of INVERNESS. Following his defeat at Carbiesdale on April 27, 1650, during the English Civil War, the marquis of Montrose was captured here by Neil MacLeod of Assynt, in whose castle he had sought refuge. Montrose was taken to EDINBURGH and hanged on May 21 by the order of Charles II.

ASSYRIA [ancient: Ashur, Asshur, Assur] (Iraq)

Ancient empire in W Asia covering much of the FERTILE CRESCENT. First appearing as a state centered around the city of ASHUR on the TIGRIS RIVER at the beginning of the second millennium B.C., Assyria was heavily influenced by the culture of SUMER and AKKAD. Bereft of natural barriers against foreign invasion, the Assyrians were forced to become fierce warriors in order to defend and expand their state.

They sacked BABYLON in 1247 B.C. One hundred years later, under Tiglath-Pileser I, Assyria dominated most of the Middle East, but the empire quickly faded after his death.

The empire was reconstituted in the ninth century under Ashurnasipal II. Territory was added by succeeding rulers, including Shalmaneser III, Tiglath-Pileser III, Sargon II, conqueror of ancient ISRAEL, and Sennacherib. By the reign of Ashurbanipal in the mid-seventh century, Assyria, with its capital at NINEVEH, stretched from EGYPT to the PERSIAN GULF. Monumental architecture and fine stone carving were notable aspects of Assyrian culture. Bloody and brutal subjugation was a characteristic of the empire's relations with its conquered territories.

Assyrian power quickly faded following Ashurbanipal's death. The first state to politically unify and centrally administer large areas of the ancient world, it fell to the Medes and Chaldeans, who took Nineveh in 612 B.C. The area would not again be unified until the rise of the Persian Empire in the next century. See also MEDIA, MESOPOTAMIA, PERSIA.

ASTACUS See İZMIT, NICOMEDIA

ASTANA [former: Akmolinsk, Tselinograd] (Kazakhstan)

Capital city of Kazakhstan, on the Ishim River, 120 mi NW of KARAGANDA. It was founded as a Russian military station in 1824. Its importance was increased by the Soviet Virgin and Idle Lands Campaign of the 1950s. The capital was moved to Astana from ALMATY in 1997. See also RUSSIA.

ASTAPA See ESTEPA

ASTA POMPEIA See ASTI

ASTARABAD See GORGAN

ASTERABAD See GORGAN

ASTI [Latin: Asta Pompeia, Hasta Colonia] (Italy)

City and capital of Asti province, on the Tanaro River, in PIEDMONT. An ancient Roman colony, it became a bishopric in the 10th century A.D. Following its capture by MILAN in 1348, the city was made a duchy. Under French rule from 1387 to 1529, it came to the duchy of SAVOY in 1575. The tragedian and poet Vittorio Alfieri was born here in 1749.

ASTIGI See ÉCIJA

ASTORGA [Latin: Asturica Augusta] (Spain)

City in León province, on the Tuerro River, 30 mi SW of LEÓN. An ancient Roman military post and capital of ASTURIAS, it became a bishopric in the third century A.D. and was destroyed by the Moors in the eighth century. Rebuilt in the ninth century by Ordoño I of Asturias, it became famous during the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars for the heroic but vain resistance that it offered to the French in 1810. Spain retook it in 1812. Its Roman walls still stand.

ASTORIA (United States)

City in NW OREGON, on the COLUMBIA RIVER, 75 mi NW of PORTLAND. Settled as Fort Astoria in 1811 by the Pacific Fur Company, it is the oldest European settlement in Oregon. Sold to the Canadian North West Company in 1813, it was restored to the United States in 1818. It was ravaged by fire in 1922. Nearby is the site of FORT CLATSOP, built by the Lewis and Clark expedition in the winter of 1805–06.

ASTRABAD See GORGAN

ASTRAKHAN (Russia)

City in Russia and capital of Astrakhan Oblast, at the mouth of the VOLGA RIVER, near the CASPIAN SEA, 240 mi SE of VOLGOGRAD. In the 15th century it became the capital of a Tatar khanate. Its conquest by Ivan IV the Terrible in 1556 gave Russia control of the Volga. It was the scene of a revolt against Peter the Great in 1705.

ASTURIAS (Spain)

Region on the BAY OF BISCAY. Originally it was inhabited by the Celtiberian tribe of the Astures and was conquered by the Romans in the first century B.C. Following the Moorish invasion, it was the last refuge of the Visigoths, who defeated the Moors at COVADONGA c. A.D. 722. It remained the only Christian kingdom in Spain and formed the nucleus for the Christian reconquest of the peninsula. In 1388 John I of LEÓN and CASTILE made it a principality. Thereafter the heir to the Spanish throne bore the title, Prince of Asturias. Asturias officially became a province of Spain in 1838, and in 1982, an autonomous community within the Republic of Spain.

ASTURIAS See OVIEDO

ASTURICA AUGUSTA See ASTORGA

ASTURIS See KLOSTERNEUBURG

ASUNCIÓN [former: Nuestra Señra de la Asunción] (Paraguay)

City, port, and capital of Paraguay, on the Paraguay River, 160 mi NNE of CORRIENTES. Founded as a trading post on August 15, 1537, by Juan de Salazar and Gonzalo de Mendoza, it was the scene of Paraguay's declaration of independence on May 14, 1811, following the removal of the Spanish governor. During the Paraguayan War it was captured by BRAZIL on December 31, 1868, and remained under Brazilian occupation until 1876.

ASWĀN [Aswan, Assouan, Assuan] [Greek: Seveneh, Syene] (Egypt)

City and capital of Aswān governorate, on the NILE RIVER, 60 mi S of EDFU. An ancient center for trade between Egypt and NUBIA, it was for centuries the southern limit of Egypt. In the sixth century B.C. it was the site of an important Jewish colony. Later it became a Roman military outpost and was sacked by KUSH in 25 B.C. In the 1820s it was the base for Egyptian invasions of the SUDAN. Nearby is the Aswān High Dam, the construction of which in the 1960s led to the relocation of the temples of ABU SIMBEL.

ASYUT [Assiout, Asiut] [Greek: Lycopolis; native: Syut] (Egypt)

City and capital of Asyut governorate, on the NILE RIVER, approximately 200 mi S of CAIRO. A religious center since the second millennium B.C., it was noted for the worship of the jackal god, Wepwawet, and was an early Coptic Christian center. In 1911 it was the scene of a synod that marked the revival of the Coptic church. It had also been a center of Muslim conservatism and of unrest over the policies of President Anwar Sadat. The Neo-Platonist philosopher Plotinus was born here c. A.D. 205.

ATACAMA DESERT [Spanish: Desierto de Atameca] (Chile)

Strip 550 mi long between the Pacific Ocean and the Cordillera Occidental and the Cordillera Domeyco. A region rich in nitrate deposits, it was originally divided between Chile, BOLIVIA, and PERU. Disputes as to ownership of the region led to the War of the Pacific during the period 1879–83, after which Chile annexed the whole region by the treaties of ANCÓN and VALPARAÍSO.

ATAFU See NEW ZEALAND

ATANIYA See ADANA

ATBARAH [native: 'Atbarah] (Sudan)

Town in Northern Province, at the confluence of the NILE and Atbara Rivers, 180 mi NE of KHARTOUM. On April 8, 1898, the British under Lord Horatio Herbert Kitchener defeated the Mahdists here. This was followed by victory at OMDURMAN, which freed Khartoum, after which the Mahdist state fell under the control of an Anglo-Egyptian condominium.

ATBO See EDFU

ATCHISON (United States)

City in NE KANSAS, on the MISSOURI RIVER, 40 mi NW of KANSAS CITY. Founded in 1854 by proslavery settlers, it was named for their leader, the U.S. senator from Missouri, David R. Atchison. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad was chartered here in 1859. It is the birthplace of famous aviatrix Amelia Earhart.

ATEL See VOLGA RIVER

ATELLA See AVERSA

ATERNUM See PESCARA

ATESTE See ESTE

ATHABASCA LAKE [former: Lake of the Hills] (Canada)

Lake stretching for 200 mi from NE ALBERTA to NW SASKATCHEWAN. Discovered in 1771 by the explorer

Samuel Hearne of the Hudson's Bay Company, it is the fourth-largest lake in Canada. The trading post of FORT CHIPEWYAN was built on its S shore in 1788 by Sir Alexander Mackenzie for the North West Company.

ATHELNEY (England)

Former island among the marshes of the Parrett River, 7 mi ENE of TAUNTON, SOMERSET. In the winter of 878 King Alfred the Great sought refuge from the Danes here. It was here that he planned the campaign that resulted in his defeat of the Danes at EDINGTON and their expulsion from WESSEX the following spring. In 888 Alfred founded a Benedictine abbey here as thanks for his victory.

ATHENAE See ATHENS

ATHENRY [Gaelic: Baile Átha an Ríogh] (Ireland)

Town in County Galway, on the Clarin River, 13 mi ENE of GALWAY. Founded in the 13th century following the Anglo-Norman invasion, it was the scene of a battle in 1316 in which the forces of Edward Bruce of Scotland were defeated by the English barons of the Pale. Captured by Hugh Roe O'Donnell in 1596, it went into decline thereafter.

ATHENS [Greek: Athínai; Latin: Athenae] (Greece)

Modern capital of Greece and ancient metropolis of great historic importance, Athens is on the plain of ATTICA, in the SE corner of the Greek mainland. A shield of mountains, including Pentelicus, Parnes, and Hymettus, buffers the city from the rest of the mainland, and it lies four miles inland from its port of PIRAEUS on the AEGEAN SEA. It was named for its patron goddess, Athena. The secure location and temperate climate induced settlement before 3000 B.C., and unlike the situation in the rest of Greece, a measure of civilization persisted at Athens through the Bronze and Early Iron Ages. The Acropolis, formed by an oblong raised plateau of rock, was fortified and walled as a citadel c. 1200 B.C. Two centuries later the city began to push its boundaries toward the NW as population grew.

By 1000 B.C. Athens was ruled by the kings of IONIA in ASIA MINOR, originally settled by Greek colonists and later conquered by PERSIA. Athens was then governed by its aristocrats, but in 594 B.C. the chief archon, Solon, undertook reforms that granted political power to men with property and abolished serfdom. Athens thus became a limited democracy.

The sixth century B.C. was a time of remarkable growth for the city, especially during the tyranny of Pisistratus and his sons c. 550 B.C. The Acropolis was transformed from a citadel to a religious sanctuary, with large Archaic stone temples and a broad ramp providing access. The growing lower town at the base of the Acropolis prospered; a new agora, or market, was laid out, surrounded by shrines and public buildings. In 506 B.C. Cleisthenes established a democracy for all freemen of Athens, and the city remained a democracy throughout its years of greatness.

Although Athens repulsed an invasion by Persia at MARATHON in 490 B.C., much of the earlier construction was destroyed by the invaders during their sack of the city under Xerxes in 480 B.C. Later that year, however, the Persians were defeated in the great naval victory off SALAMIS. Athens was soon rebuilt with an eye toward defense, and the city walls were extended to Piraeus by order of Themistocles, securing the port and safe access to supplies and communications.

In the aftermath of the war with Persia, Athens became the wealthy epitome of the city-state, collecting tribute from its allies of the DELIAN LEAGUE and operating rich silver mines in the nearby hills at LAURIUM. Using this wealth, Pericles directed the rebuilding of the Acropolis and raised many buildings in the classic Doric style, including Athena's temple, the Parthenon between 447 and 432, and the Propylaea, or entranceway, in 432. Under his leadership Athens also became the undisputed leader in philosophy and the arts, attracting the keenest intellects from all of Greece, including the dramatists Aeschylus, Aristophanes, Sophocles, and Euripides. The concentration of wealth and power embodied in Athens bred a dangerous arrogance and fostered resentment in many other city-states of Greece, including its nominal allies, actually its subjects, in the Delian League, and in its chief rival, SPARTA. In 460 B.C. various commercial and political rivalries eventually sparked the Peloponnesian Wars between Athens and Sparta and their various allies and dependencies. The fortunes of the main rivals swung up and down, mostly in favor of Athens's greater wealth, sea power, and ability to mobilize its democratic loyalties. Then came the Great Plague between the years 430 and 426 B.C. and the disastrous expedition against SYRACUSE between 415 and 413 B.C. The Peloponnesian Wars finally ended in 404 B.C. with Athenian dominance destroyed. The city itself, however, prospered and continued to flourish as the center of arts and sciences. Much public building was undertaken during the fifth and fourth centuries B.C., and the city became host to an astounding collection of philosophers, including Anaxagoras, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Theophrastus, Antisthenes, Epicurus, and Zeno.

Although no longer a leading military power, Athens maintained its independence and prestige as the philosophic and literary capital of the ancient world, despite its defeat by Philip of MACEDON in 338 B.C. at CHAERONEA. Even after a war with ROME ended in Athens's capture by Sulla in 86 B.C., the city was spared destruction by the conquering army out of respect for its cultural status.

Athens was a city marked by special imperial favor during Rome's predominance, and its schools of philosophy attracted many notable Romans, including Cicero and Horace. Many building projects were initiated, especially under the emperor Hadrian, and the city became a required stop on every educated Roman's itinerary. Athens was allowed to maintain its independence and existed as a widely respected and quietly prosperous academic center, hardly touched by military and political currents except for an invasion of the Heruli, a Germanic tribe, in A.D. 276 and its capture in 395 by Alaric I of the barbarian VISIGOTHS.

In the fourth and fifth centuries A.D., a revival of the brilliance of Athens brought it again into prominence as the center of Greek pagan culture, with its schools of philosophy and rhetoric attracting a new following of notables, including the Emperor Julian the Apostate, Libanius the philosopher, St. Basil, and St. Gregory of Nazianus, the latter two both fathers of the Eastern Church. The pagan revival angered the Emperor Justinian of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, and in 529 he forbade the study of philosophy in Athens, thus erasing its main source of prestige and power.

The city became an insignificant backwater, far from major trading routes. It fell to the crusaders in 1204 during the Fourth Crusade, and remained under Latin rule until 1458, when it was captured by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. Athens remained a minor possession of TURKEY until 1833. The Turkish tenure was notably marked by the destruction that followed their use of ancient temples as powder magazines. In 1645 lightning caused a major explosion in the Propylaea, and in 1687 an attacking force from VENICE detonated the powder stored in the Parthenon with disastrous results, completed by Lord Elgin's removal of much of the scattered frieze sculptures to London during 1803–12.

82 Athens

When Athens became the capital of a newly independent Greece in 1832, with a king appointed by a council of other European nations, it had only about 4,000 inhabitants. It grew rapidly during the 19th century and was a city of 167,000 by 1907. Since then it has remained intact and a center of industry, shipping, and tourism, in spite of being swept over by several revolutions, a brutal occupation by GERMANY during World War II, a civil war, and a military dictatorship. It is now the capital of a republic headed by the socialist leader Andreas Papandreou. It is the nation's largest city, with more than a third of the nation's total population, and continues to attract the young from all over the country. Its air pollution level is among the highest of major cities and is sadly destructive to its classical remains. Many construction projects have given the city a facelift in time for hosting the Olympic Games in 2004. See also CRETE, DELOS, MYCENAE.

ATHENS (United States)

City in N ALABAMA, 14 mi N of DECATUR. Settled in 1814, it was incorporated in 1818. During the Civil War it was captured by Union troops in 1862, but was recaptured by the Confederate general Nathan B. Forrest in 1864.

ATHENS (United States)

City in NE GEORGIA, on the Oconee River, 65 mi ENE of ATLANTA. It is the site of the University of Georgia, which, chartered in 1785, is the oldest state university in the United States. The city was founded in 1801 and has many notable neoclassical buildings.

ATHENS (United States)

City in SE OHIO, on the Hocking River, 35 mi WNW of PARKERSBURG. It was founded as a university town in 1799 by the Ohio Company of Associates under Rufus Putnam. Ohio University, which was subsequently founded in 1804, was the first institution of higher education in the NORTHWEST TERRITORY.

ATHENS (United States)

Town in NE PENNSYLVANIA, on the SUSQUEHANNA RIVER, 35 mi WSW of BINGHAMTON. It was once the site of an Indian village that was destroyed by American troops during the American Revolution, in July 1778, following the WYOMING VALLEY massacre. The town was settled in 1786.

ATHESIS See ADIGE RIVER

ATHÍNAI See ATHENS

ATHIS-MONS [earlier: Athis-sur-Orge] (France)

Town in Essonne department, at the confluence of the Orge and SEINE rivers, 12 mi S of PARIS. Following the battle of Mons-en-Pévèle, a treaty was signed here on June 23, 1305, between the victor, Philip IV of France, and Robert de Béthune, count of FLANDERS. The Flemish were forced to pay a heavy indemnity and to swear allegiance to the French Crown.

ATHIS-SUR-ORGE See ATHIS-MONS

ATHLIT See ATLIT

ATHLONE [Gaelic: Áth Luain] (Ireland)

Urban district in County Westmeath, on the SHANNON RIVER, 15 mi NW of BALLINASLOE. Conquered in the 12th century by the Anglo-Normans, it was fortified in the 13th century. During the Irish revolt of 1691, it was captured from the Irish by English forces under General Godert de Ginkell.

ÁTH LUAIN See ATHLONE

ATHOS, MOUNT [Greek: Áyon Üros] (Greece)

Theocratic republic, a group of monasteries, on the easternmost and highest of the promontories of the CHALCIDICE PENINSULA. Organized monastic life began here in 963 with the founding of the cenobitic monastery of Great Lavra by St. Athanasius. The community grew despite losses inflicted by the crusaders in the 13th century, by Catalans in the 14th century, and by the Turks during the Greek war of independence of 1821–29. In 1923 it was declared an independent republic by the Treaty of LAUSANNE. It drew up a constitution in 1924 that was recognized by the Greek government in 1927. There are about 20 monasteries of the Orthodox Eastern Church here. No woman or female animal is allowed in the area.

ATHY [Gaelic: Baile Átha h-Í] (Ireland)

Urban district in County Kildare, 40 mi SW of DUBLIN. A castle overlooking a ford on the Barrow River was built here in the 12th century that became of strategic importance. It was besieged in 1649 by confederates under General Thomas Preston and underwent many other battles.

ATIENZA [Latin: Titia, Tythia] (Spain)

Town in Guadalajara province, 45 mi SW of SORIA. Once a Roman colony, it was captured by the Moors in 718 but fell to Alfonso III in 877. There are old fortifications on the town's outskirts.

ATLANTA [former: Marthasville, Terminus] (United States)

City in NW GEORGIA, approximately 50 mi E of the ALABAMA border. It is the largest city in the state and is the capital. In transportation, finance, commerce, and culture, Atlanta is the most important city in the SE. The first settler built a cabin on the site in 1833 on land that belonged to the Creek Indians. The town was founded as Terminus in 1837, when it became the end of a railroad line. In 1843 the name was changed to Marthasville and in 1845 to Atlanta. By 1860 four more railroads had reached Atlanta, which gave it a head start as a transportation hub and which resulted in its playing a major role as a supply center for the Confederacy during the Civil War.

In 1864 the city was the objective of the Union's Atlanta campaign under General William T. Sherman. The Battle of Atlanta was fought nearby on July 22, and on September 2 Sherman occupied the city. On November 15, as he began his March to the Sea, Sherman burned most of the city. It was, however, soon rebuilt and prospered as the best example of the New South that wished to forget the Civil War defeat and move ahead. It was here in 1895 that the black leader Booker T. Washington proposed the Atlanta Compromise, in which he urged his fellow blacks to seek economic status first before achieving social and political equality.

Another more activist political and religious black leader, Martin Luther King, Jr., who was assassinated in MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE, in 1968, was born and is buried here. In 1973 Atlanta became the first major southern city to elect a black mayor. The city's best-known commercial enterprise is the soft drink Coca Cola, which got its start here. Atlanta has many points of interest, including old and new buildings, the restored Confederate Fort Walker, and a huge cyclorama of the Battle of Atlanta. Approximately 25 mi NW of the city is Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park, the site of Sherman's attack on the Confederate army. In 1996 the city was host to the Summer Olympics.

ATLANTIC CITY (United States)

City in SE NEW JERSEY, on Absecon Island, 58 mi SE of PHILADELPHIA, on the Atlantic Ocean. Due to the impetus of Jonathan Pitney, it began to develop as a resort town in 1852 and was incorporated as a city in 1854. Its convention hall, which can seat 40,000, makes it one of the most popular convention cities in the United States. From 1921 to 2005 it was the site of the annual Miss America pageant. Its six-mile-long beachfront boardwalk is world famous. During the Depression it began a long decline but has now revived as a center for gambling casinos. Its saltwater taffy is also famous.

ATLIT [Athlit] (Israel)

Ancient Crusader stronghold on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 10 mi SSW of HAIFA, NW of the village of Atlit. Built by the Knights Templar in 1217, it was the crusaders' last stronghold following the fall of ACRE. It was abandoned in August 1291. The modern district was founded in 1903 and was home to a British military prison and illegal immigrant detention camp. There is now an Israeli military prison there.

ATRECHT See ARTOIS

ATRI [Latin: Hadria, Hatria Picena] (Italy)

Town in Teramo province, overlooking the ADRIATIC SEA, 15 mi NW of PESCARA. An ancient town of the Piceni, it was conquered by ROME in the early third century B.C. It became a feudal state in 1393 and was later a duchy under the Acquaviva family. It has a 13th-century cathedral and ducal palace of the 15th century.

ATRIA See ADRIA

ATROPATENE See AZERBAIJAN

ATSUGI (Japan)

Town in E central HONSHŪ, 25 mi SW of TOKYO, in Kanagawa prefecture. An important airbase, it was here that U.S. troops first landed on the Japanese mainland, on August 28, 1945, following the surrender of Japan in World War II.

ATTALEIA See ANTALYA

ATTALIA See ANTALYA

ATTICA (Greece)

Region roughly corresponding to the modern department of Attica, on the AEGEAN SEA, with its capital at ATHENS. It was a center of Mycenaean civilization until the Dorian invasions of the 13th century B.C., which caused large population movements. Thereafter Athens grew to be the dominant power of the region, uniting it under King Theseus c. 700 B.C.

ATTIGNY [Latin: Altiniacum] (France)

Village in Ardennes department, on the AISNE RIVER, 9 mi NW of VOUZIEUX. Founded by Clovis II in A.D. 650, it became the residence of the Carolingian kings. Following his submission to Charlemagne, the Saxon leader Wittekind was baptized here in 785. In 822 the Carolingian emperor Louis I the Pious made a public penance here. See also FRANKISH EMPIRE.

ATTLEBORO (United States)

City in SE MASSACHUSETTS, near the RHODE ISLAND line. Settled in 1634, it was named for Attleborough, England. Its well-known jewelry industry began in 1780, and the building of the Boston-Providence railroad in 1836 stimulated its economy.

ATTU See ALEUTIAN ISLANDS

ATURA See AIRE

ATYRAŪ [Guryev, Gurev] (Kazakhstan)

City and port in SW Kazakhstan, at the N end of the CASPIAN SEA, at the mouth of the URAL RIVER. Founded in 1645 as a military outpost, it is now the capital of Atyraŭ oblast. It became important as a fishing center and is also important in the petroleum industry.

AUBIGNY See LÉVIS

AUBURN (United States)

City in E CALIFORNIA, on the North Fork of the American River, 35 mi NE of SACRAMENTO. Founded in 1848, it was an early goldmining camp. It became a city in 1888.

AUBURN (United States)

City in W central NEW YORK, on the Owasco River, 24 mi WSW of Syracuse. It was founded in 1793 on the site of a Cayuga Indian settlement. The city is the site of the Auburn State Prison, built in 1816, where the Auburn penal system originated. Auburn was the home of the statesman William H. Seward, who is also buried here.

AUBUSSON (France)

Town in the Creuse department, on the Creuse River, 50 mi ENE of LIMOGES. It is famous for its carpets and tapestries, which have been produced here since the late 15th century. Louis XIV's minister, Jean Baptiste Colbert, designated the town a royal manufacturer in the 17th century.

AUCH [Latin: Augusta Auscorum, Elimberrum] (France)

City and capital of Gers department, on the Gers River, 45 mi W of TOULOUSE. The ancient capital of the Celtiberian tribe of the Ausci, it was conquered by ROME under Crassus in 56 B.C. and was sacked by the Saracens in A.D. 732. It was the capital of ARMAGNAC from the eighth to the 10th centuries and was the capital of GASCONY during the 17th and 18th centuries.

AUCKLAND (New Zealand)

City and port on the Tasman Sea, in NW NORTH ISLAND. Founded by English settlers in 1840, it was named for George Auckland, the British governor general of INDIA. It was the capital of New Zealand during 1841–65 after which it was replaced by WELLINGTON.

AUDAGHOST [Awdaghost, Awdaghust] (Mauritania)

Former town on the SW edge of the SAHARA DESERT, approximately 500 mi W of NOUAKCHOTT and thought to have been on the site of modern Tegdaoust. Between the eighth and 11th centuries it was the main commercial center on the trans-Saharan caravan route between SIJILMASSA and the kingdom of GHANA. It belonged to the Sanhaja Berbers until captured by the kingdom of Ghana c. 990. In 1055 it fell to the ALMORAVID Caliphate of MOROCCO and declined thereafter.

AUDENARDE See OUDENAARDE

AUDH See OUDH

AUERSTÄDT See AUERSTEDT

AUERSTAEDT See AUERSTEDT

AUERSTEDT [Auerstädt, Auerstaedt] (Germany)

Village in THURINGIA, 13 mi NW of WEIMAR. Here, on October 14, 1806, during the Napoleonic Wars, the French under Marshal Louis Nicolas Davout defeated the principal army of PRUSSIA under King William III and the Duke of BRUNSWICK. The remainder of the Prussian army was defeated by Napoleon simultaneously, 12 mi to the S at JENA.

AUGHRIM [Aghrim]; [Gaelic: Eachdhruim] (Ireland)

Village in County Galway, 32 mi E of GALWAY. During the Irish rebellion, on July 12, 1691, the English under General Godert de Ginkel decisively defeated James II's combined Franco-Irish forces here. The Treaty of LIMERICK was signed shortly afterward. See also BOYNE.

AUGSBURG [Latin: Augusta Vindelicorum] (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, at the confluence of the Lech and Wertach Rivers, 35 mi NW of MUNICH. Founded by the Roman Drusus c. A.D. 15, it was destroyed by the Alamanni in the fifth century but was rebuilt by the Franks and made a bishopric in the sixth century. It was defended against the Hungarians, who were defeated nearby at the battle of LECHFELD in 955. Created a free imperial city in 1276, it developed as a leading European commercial center. The Lutheran Augsburg Confession was presented to the Imperial Diet here on June 25, 1530, in order to effect a reconciliation between Catholics and Lutherans. It was rejected, although the Peace of Augsburg, signed on September 25, 1555, confirmed the religious division of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. The League of Augsburg was formed here in 1686 to combat Louis XIV of France. The city was incorporated into Bavaria in 1806. It was severely damaged during World War II, and was rebuilt as a major industrial center. Here was the birthplace of Hans Holbein the Elder, c. 1465–1524, and of Hans Holbein the Younger, c. 1497–1543.

AUGUSTA [former: Agosta; Latin: Augusta Veneranda] (Italy)

Town and port in Siracusa province, on an island off the E coast of SICILY, 14 mi NNW of SYRACUSE. Settled by ROME in 42 B.C., it was rebuilt in 1232 by Frederick II in order to resettle the inhabitants of CENTURIPPE, whose town he had destroyed in retaliation for a rebellion. On July 10, 1943, during the invasion of Italy in World War II, it was one of the landing places of the Allied forces.

AUGUSTA (United States)

City and port on the Savannah River, 140 mi E of ATLANTA, GEORGIA. A river trading post in 1717, it was named by Georgia's founder, James Oglethorpe. It was seized by the British in 1778 and changed hands many times during the American Revolution, being finally taken in 1781 by "Light Horse Harry" Lee and Andrew Pickens. The capital of Georgia during 1786–95, it was the site of the state convention that ratified the U.S. Constitution on January 2, 1778. It was an important Confederate center during the Civil War and the site of the Confederacy's largest powder depot.

AUGUSTA [Former: Cushnoc, Harrington] (United States)

City and capital of MAINE, on the Kennebec River, 55 mi NE of PORTLAND. Originally a trading post established by the PLYMOUTH Colony in 1628, it was permanently settled when Fort Western was built in 1754. It became the state capital in 1831. It has an interesting early 19th-century capitol building designed by Charles Bulfinch, and the home of the statesman James G. Blaine, now the governor's mansion.

AUGUSTA AUSCORUM See AUCH

AUGUSTA EMERITA See MÉRIDA (Spain)

AUGUSTA NEMENTUM See SPEYER

AUGUSTA PERUSIA See PERUGIA

AUGUSTA PRAETORIA See AOSTA

AUGUSTA SUESSIONUM See SOISSONS

AUGUSTA TAURINORUM See TURIN

AUGUSTA TRAIANA See STARA ZAGORA

AUGUSTA TREVERORUM See TRIERAUGUSTA VANGIONUM See WORMSAUGUSTA VENERANDA See AUGUSTA (Italy)AUGUSTA VINDELICORUM See AUGSBURGAUGUSTA VIROMANDUORUM See SAINT-QUENTINAUGUSTOBONA TRICASSIUM See TROYESAUGUSTODUNUM See AUTUNAUGUSTODURUM See BAYEUXAUGUSTONEMETUM See CLERMONT-FERRANDAUGUSTORITUM LEMOVICENSIIUM See LIMO-GESAUGUSTÓW [Russian: Avgustov] (Poland)

Town in Białystok province, 140 mi NW of WARSAW. It was founded in 1650 by Sigismund II Augustus of Poland. During World War I the Russians defeated the Germans here in October 1914 but were in turn defeated by the Germans in February 1915. Under German occupation during World War II, it was captured by the Russians in October 1944.

AULDEARN (Scotland)

Village in HIGHLAND region, 17 mi ENE of INVERNESS. Here, on May 9, 1645, during the English-Scottish civil wars, the marquis of Montrose defeated a superior force of the Scottish Covenanters under Sir John Urry. A second defeat, in July at ALFORD, brought most of Scotland briefly under Montrose's control. See also ASSYNT, TIPPERMUIR.

AULIE-ATA See DZHAMBULAULIS (Greece)

Ancient town on the Gulf of Euboea, 25 mi W of THEBES. A port of BOEOTIA, it is traditionally believed to be the place from which the Greek fleet sailed against TROY, following Agamemnon's sacrifice of his daughter Iphigenia. These events are now dated to the 12th century B.C. See also MYCENAE.

AULON See VLOREAUMALE (France)

Town in the Seine-Maritime department, on the Breisle River, 30 mi SW of AMIENS. William the Conqueror made it a countship and granted it to Odo of CHAMPAGNE in A.D. 1070. In 1204 it was captured by Philip II Augustus during his conquest of NORMANDY and was made a duchy in 1547 by Henri II of France. It was badly damaged during World War II, but has since been rebuilt.

AUNEAU (France)

Village in the Eure-et-Loir department, 15 mi E of CHARTRES. In November 1587, during the French Wars of Religion, a Protestant force was defeated here by the Catholics under the duke of GUISE.

AUNIS (France)

Ancient province in the modern department of Charente-Maritime, between POITOU and SAINTONGE. As part of the county of Poitou in AQUITAINE, it was ceded to ENGLAND by the treaty of BRÉTIGNY in 1360, but was reconquered by the French under Bertran du Guesclin in 1372 and reorganized with LA ROCHELLE as its capital. During the Wars of Religion it was the Protestants' last stronghold until the fall of La Rochelle to Cardinal Richelieu on October 28, 1628.

AUNUS See OLONETSAURANGABAD [Aurungabad] (India)

City in MAHARASHTRA state, on the Kaum River, 190 mi ENE of MUMBAI. Founded by Malik Ambar of AHMADNAGAR in 1610, it became the capital of the MOGUL EMPIRE under Aurangzeb in the late 17th century. It is famous for the mausoleum of Aurangzeb's wife and for the nearby Buddhist rock temples that date from the sixth century A.D.

AURANITIS See HAWRANAURANTES See ABRANTES

AURARIA See DENVER

AURAY [native: Alre] (France)

Town in Morbihan department, on the Auray River. The last battle of the War of the Breton Succession was fought here on September 29, 1364, when Jean de Montfort defeated and killed Charles of BLOIS. In 1776, during the American Revolution, Benjamin Franklin stayed here with a member of the American commission to France.

AURELIA AQUENSIS See BADEN-BADEN

AURELIACUM See AURILLAC

AURELIANUM See ORLÉANS

AURELIAN WAY [ancient and Italian: Via Aurelia] (Italy)

Highway, one of the roads of the extensive system built by ancient ROME. The Aurelian Way ran from Rome NW along the coast of ETRURIA to PISA. It was built before 109 B.C., at which time an extension was constructed to GENOA. The highway was known as the Great Coast Road and joined other roads leading to FRANCE and SPAIN. Much of the course of the ancient highway is followed by the modern Italian road of the same name.

AURICH (Germany)

Town in Lower SAXONY, 13 mi NE of EMDEN. Dating from ancient times, it was chartered in 1539. It was the capital of the county and finally duchy of EAST FRIESLAND and, until 1945, a part of HANOVER.

AURIGNAC (France)

Village in the Haute-Garonne department, 13 mi NE of SAINT-GAUDENS. It became famous in 1860 when caves containing artifacts, drawings, and sculptures from the Stone Age were discovered nearby. Consequently, in 1906, the Abbé Breuil gave the village's name to the Aurignacian period of prehistory. See also ALTAMIRA, DORDOGNE, LASCAUX.

AURIGNY See ALDERNEY

AURILLAC [Latin: Aureliacum] (France)

City in Cantal department, on the Jordanne River, 70 mi SW of CLERMONT-FERRAND. It grew up around the abbey of St. Géraud, founded in 895, and was sacked in 1569 during the Wars of Religion. The city prospered in the 19th and early 20th centuries as the center of the umbrella industry in France. The French president Paul Doumer was born here in 1857.

AURINX See JAÉN

AURUNGABAD See AURANGABAD

AUSCHWITZ [Polish: Oświęcim] (Poland)

Site of the German extermination camp near the industrial town of Oświęcim in Kraków province, 33 mi W of KRACÓW. It was the largest German extermination camp complex, where between 1.1 million and 1.5 million people, mostly Jews, were killed in a barbarously systemized fashion.

AUSCULUM APULUM See ASCOLI SATRIANO

AUSSIG See ÚSTÍ NAD LABEM

AUSTERLITZ [Czech: Slavkov u Brna] (Czech Republic)

Town in MORAVIA, on the Littava River, 14 mi ESE of BRNO. It was the site of the famous battle of the Three Emperors which ended the War of the Third Coalition and marked the climax of Napoleon's career. The combined Austro-Russian forces under Francis II of AUSTRIA and Alexander I of RUSSIA were defeated by the French under Napoleon on December 2, 1805. After the battle the Russians retreated, and the Austrians sued for peace. See also FRANCE.

AUSTIN (United States)

City and capital of TEXAS, on the COLORADO RIVER, 77 mi NE of SAN ANTONIO. Founded in 1835, it became the capital of the REPUBLIC OF TEXAS in 1839. Under the threat of war with MEXICO the capital was temporarily transferred from Austin to HOUSTON during the period 1842–45.

AUSTRALIA

Continent, country, and member of the COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS, in the Southern Hemisphere between the Pacific Ocean on the E and the Indian Ocean on the W and S, and INDONESIA and PAPUA NEW GUINEA to the N. It includes TASMANIA and other islands. In size and shape Australia resembles the United States and, like the Americans, its people have had the task of exploring and settling a vast frontier. The continent's long isolation resulted in the evolution of unique flora and fauna. Before the arrival of Europeans, Australia was inhabited by the Australian aborigines who probably migrated from SE Asia c. 40,000 years ago.

The first Europeans to see the continent, during the period 1601–42, were a Portuguese, a Spanish, and two Dutch navigators. Near the end of the 17th century and in the 18th and 19th centuries British seamen continued the exploration, James Cook claiming possession of Australia for GREAT BRITAIN in April 1771, and Matthew Flinders circumnavigating the continent during 1802–03. Settlement began after Great Britain decided to use the vacant land as an asylum for convicts sentenced to exile. The first of them landed at the present site of SYDNEY on January 26, 1788. Other penal colonies followed: NEWCASTLE in 1804, HOBART on Tasmania in 1804, and BRISBANE in 1824. In the W the first free settlement was PERTH in 1829. More settlers came of their own accord and were joined by the convicts when their sentences ended. Exploration of the unknown interior began.

Six of the hitherto separate colonies were confederated in 1901, with the NORTHERN TERRITORY added in 1911 under a democratic, parliamentary form of government. MELBOURNE, founded in 1835, was the capital until 1927 when CANBERRA became the seat of government in a separate capital territory. In both world wars Australian troops, the Anzacs, went halfway around the world to fight for Great Britain. With the start of war with JAPAN, Australia was threatened with invasion until the Battle of the CORAL SEA during May 7–8, 1942, removed the danger. Several cities, especially DARWIN, were bombed or shelled by the Japanese.

After World War II there were many European immigrants, many of them non-British who changed the homogenous nature of the white population. Australia's economy boomed with the postwar demand for Australian raw materials. Australia's foreign policy was staunchly anticommunist, and Australian forces fought in both Korea in the 1950s and Vietnam in the 1960s. Opposition to the Vietnam War and military conscription was a factor that brought a Labor government under Gough Whitlam to power in 1972. Whitlam withdrew Australian troops from Vietnam, stopped the draft, abolished higher-education fees, created a free health care system, and supported land rights for Aboriginal people.

In 1975 after deadlock in the government, the British governor general dissolved the parliament and installed a caretaker government under opposition Liberal Party leader, Malcolm Fraser, which subsequently won the elections. In 1983, Labor again took power, but recession and high unemployment in the early 1990s led to a Conservative win in 1996. A national referendum on dissolving constitutional ties to Great Britain and making Australia a republic was defeated.

Although much of Australia's interior is desert, early settlers found areas suitable for sheep raising, the first important economic activity. Wheat growing later assumed a major role. Agriculture still ranks high, but Australia is now an industrialized nation with rich mineral resources. It is also an urban nation with most of the population in metropolitan areas of 1,000,000 or more.

AUSTRALIAN CAPITAL TERRITORY See CANBERRA

AUSTRASIA (France, Netherlands, Germany)

Ancient kingdom comprising NE France, W Germany, and the Netherlands with its capital at METZ. It was created, following the death of Clovis I in A.D. 511, when the Frankish Kingdom was divided between his four sons. The kingdom became important under Pepin II who defeated the Neustrians at the battle of TERTRY in 687. It was consolidated into the Frankish Kingdom under the Holy Roman Emperor Charlemagne. See also FRANKISH EMPIRE, NEUSTRIA.

AUSTRIA [German: Österreich]

Republic of central Europe, it lies between SWITZERLAND to the W, GERMANY, the CZECH REPUBLIC, and SLOVAKIA to the N, SLOVENIA and ITALY to the S, and HUNGARY to the E. The ALPS run through the W and S of the country. Austria is situated at the crossroads of Europe and has therefore played an important role in the history of the continent. Its capital, VIENNA, has a splendid cultural tradition and was from the 13th through the 19th centuries the nucleus of the vast empire of the Hapsburgs, which stretched, at various times, from SPAIN to ROMANIA. In the modern world, Austria's status has been greatly reduced by the shrinking of her boundaries and a treaty commitment to nonalignment.

Originally inhabited by Celts and Suebi, Austria was conquered by ROME between 15 B.C. and A.D. 10. Its lands south of the DANUBE RIVER were incorporated into provinces of the empire. Overrun by the Huns in the fifth century A.D., Austria was conquered by Charlemagne in 788 and became part of his Eastern Mark or Ostmark. Later invaded by Moravians and Magyars, it was restored to GERMANY in 955, when the first Holy Roman Emperor, Otto I, defeated the Magyars at LECHFELD, near AUGSBURG.

Under the Babenberg family from 976 to 1246, Austria was enlarged and strengthened, becoming a duchy in 1156. In the chaos following the death of the last Babenberg, King Ottokar II of BOHEMIA seized Vienna in 1251. He was ousted by the German king Rudolf I of Hapsburg in 1278, who made his son Albert governor of Austria, thus initiating six centuries of Hapsburg rule.

In the following years Austria acquired TYROL, TRIESTE, CARINTHIA, Bohemia, and Hungary. When Albert II was crowned Holy Roman Emperor in 1483, Austria became the nucleus of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. The Hapsburgs acquired the NETHERLANDS and much of BURGUNDY by marriage and, in 1519, on the accession of Charles V, they gained Spain and much of Italy.

Austria was threatened in 1526 by the Turks of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, whose siege of Vienna was repulsed, a milestone in European history. With the spread of the Catholic and Protestant Reformations in the 16th century, Austria was torn by religious differences, which finally erupted in 1618 with the outbreak of the Thirty Years' War. Austria won MORAVIA in the war and by 1699 had finally driven the Turks out of Hungary.

In the 18th century the Spanish Hapsburgs lost their throne in the War of the Spanish Succession of 1701–14, and in the War of the Austrian Succession of 1741–48. SILESIA was lost to PRUSSIA, a loss that reflected Prussia's rising power in German affairs.

With the partitions of POLAND of 1772 and 1795 Austria gained new lands in the east, but the wars of the Napoleonic era spelled the end of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806. Austria was defeated by Napoleon at AUSTERLITZ in 1805 and WAGRAM in 1809, but by the Congress of Vienna in 1815 she acquired DALMATIA and VENICE and again became a main power of Europe. In this period Austria and, particularly Vienna, was a glittering cultural center, the home of Mozart and Beethoven.

The 19th century was to witness the gradual disintegration of the sprawling Hapsburg Empire. The empire was rocked by the abortive revolutions of 1848, caused by the rise of liberalism and nationalism among its many ethnic groups. In 1859 Austria lost all her possessions in Italy except Venice, and after her defeat in the Austro-Prussian War of 1866, leadership in German affairs passed to Prussia. As a sop to Hungarian nationalism, the empire was divided into a dual monarchy in 1867. However, the problems of the other nationalities remained, and when a crisis occurred over SERBIA in 1914, World War I began. The war sounded the death knell of the Hapsburg Empire, and the Austria that emerged from the Treaty of Saint-Germain in 1919 was the small republic of our day. Dogged by political instability, it was annexed by Hitler's GERMANY in 1938. During World War II it suffered the same fate as Germany and in 1945 was occupied by the four Allies. In 1955 the UNITED STATES, the USSR, GREAT BRITAIN, and FRANCE signed the State Treaty with Austria ending the occupation. The postwar years have been characterized by a remarkable economic recovery and prosperity, Austrian neutrality in East-West affairs, and many initiatives in North-South economic issues. Austria joined the European Union in 1995, which sparked an upsurge in support for anti-immigrant political parties. In 1999, the ultra-right wing Freedom Party came in third in the balloting and joined in a governing coalition government, bringing Austria temporary sanctions from the European Union.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY See AUSTRIA

AUSTRIAN NETHERLANDS See NETHERLANDS

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE See AUSTRIA

AUTESIODURUM See AUXERRE

AUTRICUM See CHARTRES

AUTUN [Latin: Augustodunum] (France)

Town in the Saône-et-Loire department, on the Arroux River, 52 mi SW of DIJON. Founded by the first Roman emperor, Augustus, it became the residence of the Roman prefects of GAUL and an important center of learning. Sacked in A.D. 269 by Tetricus and destroyed during the barbarian invasions during the period A.D. 406–895, it was restored in the ninth century. It was burned by the English in 1379 during the Hundred Years' War. It has important Roman remains and a famous 12th-century Romanesque cathedral. It is now an industrial center producing mainly metals and machinery.

AUVERGNE (France)

Former province corresponding to the modern departments of Cantal and Puy-de-Dôme. In ancient times it was the home of the Arverni tribe who, under Vercingetorix, resisted the Roman occupation of GAUL. After Caesar's victory at ALÉSIA in 52 B.C., the region was incorporated into AQUITANIA PRIMA. It was carved up politically in the 13th century. By 1606 the whole region had been joined to the French Crown.

AUXERRE [Latin: Autesiodurum] (France)

Capital of the Yonne department, on the Yonne River, 95 mi SE of PARIS. An important Roman city, it was a center of learning and became a bishopric in the third century A.D. It was the capital of the county of Auxerrois, which passed to BURGUNDY by the treaty of ARRAS in 1435. It has many important buildings including a 13th-century church built on sixth century crypts, and a flamboyant 16th-century Gothic cathedral.

AVA (Myanmar)

Village in Sagaing district, on the IRRAWADDY RIVER, 8 mi SW of MANDALAY. In 1364, under Thadomin-bya, it was chosen as the capital of Burma, but was sacked by the Shans in 1527 and taken by Bayinnaung of the Toungoo dynasty in 1555. It again became the capital in 1634 under King Tharlun Min and remained so until 1837, except for the periods 1752–65 and 1783–1823 when the capital was moved to AMARAPURA. After extensive earthquake damage in 1841, Ava was permanently abandoned as a capital and never was completely rebuilt. See also AMARAPURA, SHWEBO.

AVAL See BAHRAIN

AVALLON [earlier: Aballo] (France)

Town in the Yonne department, on the Cousin River, 30 mi SE of AUXERRE. Important since Roman times, it was sacked by Saracens and Normans. It became a stronghold of the duchy of BURGUNDY and passed to the French Crown in 1477. It was sacked again during the Wars of Religion in 1593. It has the remains of a Roman temple and a fourth-century sanctuary that is a pilgrimage site.

AVALON (Canada)

Peninsula of SE NEWFOUNDLAND, between Trinity and Placentia Bays. In 1623 it was granted as a colony to George Calvert, later Lord Baltimore. Calvert soon abandoned it. In 1632 he was granted the colony of MARYLAND instead.

AVANTI (India)

Former kingdom of E MADHYA PRADESH, roughly corresponding to the tableland of MALWA. One of the earliest and most important Aryan kingdoms of India, it was one of the four states of India in the sixth century B.C. but fell to Chandragupta Maurya, king of MAGADHA, in the fourth century B.C. later it was invaded by the Sakas and held by them until recaptured c. A.D. 395 by Chandragupta II, who made his residence at Avanti's capital, UJJAIN. See also GUPTA EMPIRE, MAURYA EMPIRE.

AVARICUM See BOURGES

AVARIS See TANIS

AVDIRA See ABDERA

AVEBURY [Abury] (England)

Village in WILTSHIRE, on the Kennet River, 10 mi SSW of SWINDON. It is the site of Avebury Circle, one of the finest and largest prehistoric ceremonial centers in Europe. Built in the third millennium B.C., it is a complex of megalithic monuments. See also STONEHENGE.

AVEIRO [Latin: Talabriga] (Portugal)

City and port in Beira Litoral province, 36 mi S of OPORTO. Originally a Roman town, it became famous in the 16th century as a base for the fleets of João Afonso that fished for cod off the coast of NEWFOUNDLAND.

AVELA See ÁVILA

AVELLINO [Latin: Abellinum] (Italy)

Town and capital of Avellino province, on the Sabato River, 30 mi ENE of NAPLES. Inhabited originally by the Hirpini, it was taken by the Lombards in the eighth century A.D. and was sacked by Otto I in the 10th century. In 1130 the antipope, Anacletus II, here confirmed Roger II's title as king in return for his support.

AVENCHES [German: Wifflisburg; Latin: Aventicum] (Switzerland)

Village in VAUX canton, 10 mi NW of FRIBOURG. In Roman times it was the capital of Helvetia and a large, flourishing town. It was sacked by the Alamanni c. A.D. 260 and by the Huns in 451. In the 12th century it was rebuilt. There are rich Roman remains here.

AVENNIO See AVIGNONAVENTICUM See AVENCHESAVENTINE HILL See ROME, SEVEN HILLSAVERNUS, LAKE [Italian: Lago d'Averno; Latin: Lacus Avernus] (Italy)

Small lake in a crater 10 mi W of NAPLES, in CAMPANIA. Because of the sulphurous vapors that it emitted, it was regarded by the Romans of Virgil's time as the entrance to Hades. It became the site of a naval base under Agrippa. The ruins of CUMAE are nearby.

AVERSA (Italy)

Town in Caserta province, CAMPANIA, 10 mi NNW of NAPLES. It became the Normans' first foothold in Italy when it was granted to them by the duke of Naples in 1030. The French were defeated here by Emperor Charles V on August 30, 1528. It has a restored 11th-century castle and cathedral and is near the site of ancient Atella.

AVESNES [Avesnes-sur-Helpe] (France)

Town in the Nord department, on the Helpe River, 12 mi S of MAUBEUGE. Part of the county of FLANDERS, it was chartered in the 12th century and became a wealthy cloth center. After the battle of ST. QUENTIN in 1557, it was incorporated into the Spanish Netherlands and passed to France in 1659. Occupied by the Germans in both world wars, it suffered damage to its 13th-century church in 1944.

AVESNES-SUR-HELPE See AVESNESAVGUSTOV See AUGUSTÓWAVIGNON [earlier: Avennio] (France)

Capital of the Vaucluse department, on the RHÔNE RIVER, 55 mi NNW of MARSEILLES. Originally inhabited by the Cavares and settled by Greeks, in A.D. 122 it became a Roman colony under Hadrian. A republic in the 12th century, it was captured by Louis VIII in 1226 and incorporated into the county of PROVENCE. In 1309 it was made the capital of the papacy by Clement V. After the Great Schism of 1377 it became the seat of the antipopes until 1417. It was annexed by France on September 4, 1791. Among its many notable buildings are the 12th-century cathedral, the 14th-century Palace of the Popes, and the famous 12th-century bridge of St. Bénézet.

ÁVILA [Ávila de los Caballeros] [Latin: Abula, Avela] (Spain)

City in Ávila province, on the Adaja River, 55 mi WNW of MADRID. An ancient Phoenician and Roman town, it was occupied by the Moors from the eighth century A.D. until its reconquest by Alfonso VI of CASTILE in 1088. The city retains much of its medieval character with many old buildings still standing. St. Teresa was born here in 1515.

ÁVILA DE LOS CABALLEROS See ÁVILAAVIS See AVIZAVIZ [Avis] (Portugal)

Village in Portalegre district, 30 mi SW of PORTALEGRE. In 1211 it was granted by Alfonso II of Portugal to the military religious order of ORA, which became known thereafter as the Order of Aviz. Following a successful rebellion against CASTILE, in 1385 the master of the order, the illegitimate brother of the deceased king, secured the throne of Portugal for himself. After the battle of ALJUBARROTA, John I founded the Aviz dynasty, which was to rule Portugal until 1580.

AVLONA See VLORËAVON (England)

Former county created in 1974 from parts of GLOUCESTERSHIRE and SOMERSET. Its administrative headquarters was BRISTOL. It was abolished in 1996.

AVON RIVER (England)

Three rivers of the same name. The word avon means “river” in Celtic. One of them, also called the Upper Avon and often known as Shakespeare’s Avon, rises near NASEBY in NORTHAMPTONSHIRE and flows 96 miles SW to join the SEVERN RIVER near TEWKESBURY in GLOUCESTERSHIRE, the site of a victory by Edward IV in 1471 during the Wars of the Roses. Also on its banks are RUGBY, the site of one of England’s most famous public (private) schools; WARWICK, well known for its castle; and STRATFORD-UPON-AVON, where Shakespeare was born and died.

The East Avon rises at DEVIZES in WILTSHIRE and flows S 48 miles to the English Channel at CHRISTCHURCH in DORSET, which dates to Anglo-Saxon times. On it is SALISBURY with its uniquely beautiful cathedral.

The third Avon, called the Lower or Bristol Avon, rises in the Cotswold Hills at TETBURY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, whence it flows 75 miles S and W to the Severn River at Avonmouth in AVON. On this Avon are MALMESBURY, the abbey of which was founded in the seventh century; BATH, a popular spa since Roman times; and BRISTOL, a leading port.

AVRANCHES (France)

Town in the Manche department, NORMANDY, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 55 mi SW of CAEN. An important Roman town, it was a center of religion and learning in medieval times. In 1172 it was the scene of the reconciliation between Henry II of England and the Church after the assassination of Archbishop Thomas Becket. It was destroyed during the Hundred Years’ War. In World War II, it was the scene of a major Allied offensive from July 25 to 31, 1944. The town was destroyed in the fighting. Today, Avranches’s proximity to MONT-SAINT-MICHEL makes it a prime tourist destination.

AWAL See BAHRAINAWDAGHOST See AUDAGHOSTAWDAGHUST See AUDAGHOSTAX See DAXAXIM (Ghana)

Town in Western Region, on the Gulf of GUINEA, 32 mi WSW of SEKONDI-TAKORADI. The last Portuguese fort on the GOLD COAST, it was captured by the Dutch in 1642 in their bid to monopolize the slave trade. In 1871 it was purchased by the English. Today it is a fishing center and is the site of the major festival of Kundum in August celebrating the catch.

AXIUS See VARDAR RIVERAXMINSTER (England)

Town on the Axe River, 25 mi ENE of EXETER, DEVON. One of the first Saxon settlements in Devon, it was founded in the eighth century. From 1755 to 1835 it was famous for its carpet manufacturing industry established by Thomas Whitty.

AXONA See AISNE RIVERAXUM See AKSUMAYACUCHO [earlier: Huamanga] (Peru)

City and capital of Ayacucho department and Huamanga province, in the ANDES Mts, 230 mi ESE of LIMA. Founded by Francisco Pizarro in 1539, it was near the site of an important battle that ended the Spanish empire in South America and secured the independence of Peru from SPAIN. Here on December 9, 1824, the patriots under Antonio de Sucre defeated the royalists under the Viceroy de la Serna.

AYDIN [Aidin] (Turkey)

City in Aydin province, 60 mi SE of İZMİR. Founded by the emirs of the Aydin dynasty in the 14th century, as their capital it was annexed by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1425. It was burned and damaged in fighting during the Greco-Turkish War of 1919–22, and has been completely rebuilt. The ruins of the ancient Greek city of Tralles are nearby.

AYDIN (Turkey)

Ancient emirate of W ANATOLIA, on the AEGEAN SEA, corresponding roughly to the modern provinces of Aydin and İzmir. Under Mehmed Bey it became a strong and independent emirate, having conquered İzmir c. A.D. 1305. Invaded by the crusaders in 1344, it was annexed by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1390 and only briefly regained its independence during the invasion of Tamerlane during the period 1402–25.

AYLESFORD (England)

Village in KENT, on the MEDWAY RIVER, 30 mi SE of LONDON. It was the scene of a decisive battle in A.D. 455 during the early Anglo-Saxon invasion of Britain. Here the Britons under Vortigern were defeated by the Saxons under Hengist and Horsa.

‘AYN JŪLŪT See AIN JALUT

AYODHYA [Ajodhya] (India)

Former town in UTTAR PRADESH state, now a joint municipality with FAIZABAD, on the Gogra River, 85 mi E of LUCKNOW. One of the most important cities of ancient India, it was the capital of the kingdom of KOSALA from the seventh to the fourth centuries B.C. Under Chandragupta II, who reigned from 379 to 414 A.D., it was one of the capitals of the Gupta dynasty. A pilgrimage center, it is one of the seven sacred cities of the Hindus. See also GUPTA EMPIRE, OUDH.

ÁYON ÓROS See ATHOS, MOUNT

AYR (Scotland)

Town and port on the Atlantic Ocean, in STRATH-CLYDE region, 35 mi SW of GLASGOW, SW Scotland. Chartered in 1202, it became Scotland's chief Atlantic port. It was fortified by Oliver Cromwell in 1652. The poet Robert Burns was born nearby in 1759.

AYUTHIA See AYUTTHAYA

AYUTLA [Ayutla de los Libres] (Mexico)

Town in GUERRERO state, 48 mi E of ACAPULCO. The plan to overthrow the dictator Santa Anna and to draft a liberal constitution was formed here in 1854 under Juan Ávarez. The subsequent successful revolt of 1855 led to the federal constitution of 1857.

AYUTLA DE LOS LIBRES See AYUTLA

AYUTTHAYA [Phra Nakhon Si Ayutthaya, Ayuthia, Krung Kao] (Thailand)

City in Ayutthaya province, on an island in the Lop Buri River, 45 mi N of BANGKOK. Founded as the capital of the Thai kingdom in 1350 by Ramathibodi I, it was sacked by BURMA several times until being finally destroyed by the Burmese king Hsinbyushin in 1767. As a result the capital was moved to THON BURI. It has many temples and pagodas and the remains of the royal palace.

AL AYZARIYAH See BETHANY

AZAL See SANA

AZARBAIJAN See AZERBAIJAN

AZAURA See DEIR EZ ZOR

AZAY-LE-RIDEAU [Latin: Azayum] (France)

Town in the Indre-et-Loire department, on the Indre River, 16 mi SW of TOURS. Built on the site of a Roman settlement, it was burned by Charles VII in 1418. Today it is famous for its 16th-century château built by the financier Gilles Berthelot. See also LOIRE RIVER.

AZAYUM See AZAY-LE-RIDEAU

AZERBAIDZHAN See AZERBAIJAN

AZERBAIJAN [Greek: Atropatene; Iranian: Azarbaijan] (Iran)

Former province W of the CASPIAN SEA. An ancient part of the kingdoms of URARTU, MEDIA, and PERSIA, it was the traditional birthplace of the prophet Zoroaster in the seventh century B.C. In the fourth century B.C. Alexander the Great took it. In the 16th century it was the home of the Safavid dynasty and was disputed by the Ottomans and Persians. The latter gained control in 1618 under Shah Abbas the Great. N Azerbaijan was annexed by RUSSIA in the 19th century. During World War II Soviet troops occupied the S of the province but returned it to Iran on December 11, 1946. See also AZERBAIJAN.

AZERBAIJAN [Azerbaidzhan] [formerly: Azerbaijan SSR]

Independent republic between the CASPIAN SEA and ARMENIA. It passed to RUSSIA from PERSIA by the treaties of GULISTAN in 1813 and of TURKMANCHAI in 1828. After the Russian Revolution it became an independent republic until it was incorporated into the SOVIET UNION in April 1920. United with Georgia and Armenia in 1922 to form the TRANSCAUCASIAN SFSR, it became a constituent republic of the USSR on December 5, 1936. In 1991, after ethnic violence between Azeris and Armenians in the capital of BAKU in 1990, Azerbaijan achieved independence from the USSR with Abulfaz Elchibey as president. The new nation saw political instability as ethnic conflict in the Armenian enclave of NAGORNO-KARABAKH increased and former Communist Party leader Heydar Aliyev took power as president. Armenia invaded Azerbaijan to take control of Nagorno-Karabakh and a corridor through Azerbaijani territory to the enclave. A cease-fire was declared in 1994, but the conflict between the nations was not resolved. Aliyev consolidated his power, and in 2003, appointed his son, Ilham Aliyev, as prime minister. Azerbaijan is rich in oil on the Caspian coast, and the nation's future prosperity hinges on the development of pipelines to get the oil to ports on the BLACK SEA for shipment.

AZINCOURT See AGINCOURT

AZORES [Portuguese: Açores] (Portugal)

Archipelago of nine islands in the N Atlantic Ocean, approximately 1,200 mi W of Portugal. Although known since Carthaginian times, the Azores were settled only c. 1430 by the Portuguese. Strategically positioned on the sea routes to the WEST INDIES, the islands were continually disputed by European powers. Governed from ANGRA DO HEROISMO between 1766 and 1832, the Azores were the site of British military bases in World War II, which were taken over by the U.S. military. During the period 1938–76, the island were divided into three administrative districts, Angra, Horta, and Ponta Delgada. The Azores are now a Portuguese autonomous region with the executive section of the local authority located in Ponta Delgada, the legislative in Horta and the judicial in Angra do Heroísmo.

AZOTOS See ASHDOD

AZOTUS See ASHDOD

AZOV [Asof] [Greek: Tana, Tanaïs] (Russia)

City and port in Russia, on the DON RIVER, near the Sea of Azov, 18 mi WSW of ROSTOV. It was founded by Greeks in the fifth century B.C. The city became an important commercial center under the Genoese, who fortified it in the 13th century A.D. Captured by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1471, it fell to Peter the Great of Russia on July 29, 1696. Although returned to the Ottomans between 1711–37, it was confirmed as a Russian possession by the Treaty of BELGRADE in 1739.

AZTEC EMPIRE (Mexico)

Ancient empire in the ANAHUAC or Valley of Mexico, central Mexico. With the MAYA and the INCA EMPIRES, it was one of three largest Indian civilizations of the Americas. The Aztecs were a warrior culture that grew out of conquest and by adaptation of the achievements of other Indian groups. While its architecture, mathematics, and astronomy were impressive accomplishments, its organizational and social life was based on continual warfare motivated by what was one of the bloodiest religions of all time.

The Aztecs, who called themselves the People of the Sun, were a poor nomadic tribe when they entered the Anahuac from the north near the end of the 12th century A.D. They founded TENOCHTITLÁN c. 1325 on an island in Lake Texcoco, site of present MEXICO CITY, but for another 100 years they were of little importance. In the 15th and 16th centuries, however, they grew powerful through alliances and conquest. The Aztecs conquered the Huastec people to the N and the Mixtec and Zapotec to the S but were unable to defeat the Tarascans.

When Montezuma II became leader, c. 1500, the Aztecs were a ruling power surrounded by disaffected groups that suffered under Aztec hegemony. Thus, when Hernán Cortés, conquistador from SPAIN, arrived in 1519 he had little difficulty in enlisting Indian allies. Cortés reached Tenochtitlán on November 8, 1519, seized Montezuma and tried to rule through him. In May 1520, when Cortés departed temporarily, the Aztecs revolted. Montezuma was killed and the Spaniards had to retreat. The next year Cortés returned, captured Tenochtitlán on August 13 after a bitter struggle, and razed it. The Spaniards destroyed pyramids, temples, and books. Cortés had the last Aztec leader, Cuauhtémoc.

noc, hanged in 1525. Many of these events were recorded in The Discovery and Conquest of Mexico by Bernal Díaz del Castillo.

Out of their cultural synthesis, the Aztecs produced a civilization that was impressive in the fields of engineering, architecture, art, mathematics, and astronomy. Their large stone pyramids and temples were decorated with sculpture, much of it of a fearsome aspect. They developed a calendar based on a 260-day year and a 52-year cycle. They did not invent paper or writing but used both to keep records.

Overshadowing their intellectual accomplishments, however, was their devotion to their religion, centered on Huitzilopochtli, chief deity and god of war. This god demanded human sacrifices by the thousands in ceremonies in which members of the powerful priesthood cut open breasts and plucked out hearts. Battles called flowery wars were fought continually to capture prisoners for sacrifice. With the Spanish conquest this culture and its ritual were destroyed.

AZTEC RUINS NATIONAL MONUMENT See NEW MEXICO

B

BAALBEK [Balabakk] [Greek: Heliopolis] (Lebanon)

Village, 35 mi N of DAMASCUS, once on the active Damascus-Beirut-Homs trade route, with outstanding Roman ruins of a great religious shrine. It was a center of worship of the Semitic sun god, Baal. From this worship comes the Greek name Heliopolis, or City of the Sun. Little is known about the city prior to the Roman occupation, reputed to have taken place under Julius Caesar. Most of the building was completed under the rule of the proconsul Antoninus Pius, later emperor, sometime between A.D. 120 and 138. The most impressive temples were those to Jupiter, who was the Roman equivalent of Baal, and to Bacchus. The extensive ruins of these still remain. Baalbek was sacked by Syrian and Egyptian invaders and damaged by an earthquake in 1759. In 1898, the German kaiser, Wilhelm II, decided to restore the temples, a process that took six years. In 1984, the Baalbek ruins were designated a World Heritage Site.

BABYLON [Babylonia] (Iraq)

Ancient city and empire of MESOPOTAMIA, approximately 55 mi S of BAGHDAD on the EUPHRATES RIVER. Ruins can be seen of what at one time was the most important and powerful city in the Middle Eastern world. From the third millennium B.C. it was a place of consequence and in the 18th century B.C. became the capital of the empire founded by Hammurabi of the Amorites. He may have begun building the biblical Tower of Babel. ASSYRIA, under the rule of Sennacherib, captured Babylon and destroyed it c. 690. It was rebuilt, and in 626 Nabopolassar of CHALDEA made it the capital of his kingdom, the Neo-Babylonian Empire.

Under his son Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylonia from c. 605 to 562, the city enjoyed its most glorious period. It was famous for the Hanging Gardens, one of the Seven Wonders of the World, the Ishtar Gate, its walls, and its processional avenue. It was also under Nebuchadnezzar that the Hebrews were brought to Babylon in the exile called the Babylonian Captivity. Cyrus the Great of PERSIA captured the city and destroyed the empire in 538. Alexander the Great, ruler of the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE, took over the city in 331 and Alexander died here in 323. One of Alexander's generals, Seleucus, inherited Babylonia. After he founded SELEUCIA in 312, it replaced Babylon as a commercial and administrative center for the region. In 275 the inhabitants of Babylon were removed to the new city. The ruins have been excavated and partially reconstructed. See also AKKAD, CANAAN, SELEUCID EMPIRE, SUMER.

BABYLONIA See BABYLON

BACAN [Batchan, Bachan, Bachian] (Indonesia)

Island in the Molucca Sea, 80 mi S of Ternate, Halmahera Island. The island was the scene of colonial strife. A Portuguese fort on the island was captured in 1609 by the Dutch who put the island under the sultan of Ternate until 1683. The island was the site of an important Japanese naval base during World War II. More recently, the island has witnessed strife between Christian and Muslim inhabitants.

BACĂU (Romania)

Town and capital of Bacau province, on the Bistrita River, 150 mi NE of BUCHAREST, E Romania. An important customs post in the 15th century, it was also the seat of the local prince's court. During World War I it was the headquarters of the Romanian military command.

BACHAN See BACAN

BACHIAN See BACAN

BACNOTAN See DAGUPAN

BAC-PHAN See TONKIN

BACTRA See BALKH

BACTRIA [Bactriana, Zariaspa] [modern: Balkh] (Afghanistan, Uzbekistan, Tajikistan)

Ancient country between the HINDU KUSH and the OXUS RIVER in SW Asia, in what is now N Afghanistan and the republics of Uzbekistan and Tajikistan. It was annexed to the Persian Empire in the sixth century B.C. by Cyrus the Great and taken by Alexander the Great in 328 B.C. After his death it became part of the SELEUCID EMPIRE. An independent kingdom after 250 B.C., it expanded to embrace part of Afghanistan and PUNJAB. Its position on a major East-West trade route and as a disseminator of Greek culture ended when it was overrun c. 130 B.C. by a nomadic people, probably of Iranian stock.

BACTRIANA See BACTRIA

BADAGRI See BADAGRY

BADAGRY [Badagri] (Nigeria)

A lagoon port in SW Nigeria, on the N bank of the Porto Novo Creek, an island waterway. It lies approximately 20 mi E of PORTO NOVO, capital of BENIN. Founded in the 1720s by refugees from the many wars of Dahomey, now Benin, for a century Badagry was an exporter of slaves to the Americas. In the 1820s the British established a trading post here and developed it as a palm-oil port and importer of British cloth. Freed slaves from SIERRA LEONE were attracted here, and in 1842 the first European mission, which was Methodist, was established. Badagry remained a leading port and mission center until 1851, when the tribal king of LAGOS tried to conquer it. A British naval force came to the rescue, overthrew the chief, and replaced him with his cousin under his promise to stop the slave trade. Thereafter Badagry, although remaining a trading center, declined steadily in influence. See also SLAVE COAST.

BADAJOS [Latin: Pax Augusta] (Spain)

Province and city in SW Spain. The province borders PORTUGAL, and the city is on the Guadiana River. The province is in the historic region of ESTREMADURA, which was the name given to an area bordering on Moorish territory, at the time of the Christian reconquest of Spain from the Moors, completed in 1492. From the later Middle Ages the term has referred to a region slightly larger than Badajoz and Cáceres provinces.

The city began as a Roman town and became important under the Moors, when it was the seat of an emirate during the period 1022–94. Alfonso IX of LEÓN liberated it in 1228. Badajoz was contested in 1705 during the War of the Spanish Succession. It was besieged by the French in 1808–09 in the Peninsular campaign, and captured by them in 1811. Arthur Wellesley, duke of Wellington, took it from them the next year. In the Spanish civil war Badajoz fell after protracted fighting to the right-wing insurgents in 1936. Many persons were executed after their victory. The cathedral of San Juan, which has walls like a fortress, was built during the period 1234–84. Here are also the remains of a Moorish citadel. A failed republican uprising took place here in 1883.

BADAMI [ancient: Vatapipura] (India)

Village in MYSORE state, 65 mi S of BIJAPUR, SW India. Capital of CHALUKYA ruler Pulakesin I during the period A.D. 550–66, it was captured by Narsinhavarman in 640 and destroyed. Occupied by the Rashtrakutas in 753, it was captured from the MARATHAS in 1818 by the British. It is the site of remarkable Brahmanic and Jain temples of the seventh century A.D.

BAD AXE RIVER (United States)

River and battle site in SW WISCONSIN flowing SW to join the MISSISSIPPI RIVER almost opposite the Minnesota-Iowa state line. In 1831 a government treaty with the Sac and Fox Indians required them to move W of the Mississippi. Black Hawk, a Sac chieftain, reentered Illinois in April 1832 with 400 warriors. He successfully attacked a much larger white force and withdrew into Wisconsin. A large force of white volunteers plus a Sioux war party attacked him on the Bad Axe. In spite of a flag of surrender, warriors, women, and children were massacred. Black Hawk escaped, only to be imprisoned later and then released. His heroism is recognized by a huge statue completed by the sculptor Lorado Taft in 1911 and erected at Oregon, Illinois.

BADAYUN See BUDAUN

BADDECK (Canada)

Fishing village and resort on Cape Breton Island, NOVA SCOTIA, the summer home of the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell. Baddeck was the scene of a pioneer flight by John Alexander Douglas McCurdy on February 23, 1909, sponsored by Bell's Aerial Experiment Association, which he had formed with Glenn Curtiss and others in 1907. The group refined the aileron principle of control and achieved record flights. See also BRAS D'OR.

BADEN [Baden Bei Wien] [ancient: Aquae Panoniae] (Austria)

Town and spa in Niederösterreich province, Lower Austria, on the Schwechat River, 15 mi SSW of VIENNA. A spa since Roman times, it was the site of a Frankish imperial palace in the ninth century A.D. It was destroyed by the Turks in 1529 and 1683. It was frequently visited for its waters by composers Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Ludwig van Beethoven, Franz Schubert, and Johann Strauss. During the period 1945–55 it was the headquarters of the Soviet occupation zone.

BADEN [ancient: Aquae Helveticae] (Switzerland)

Town and spa in AARGAU canton, on the Limmat River, 13 mi NW of ZURICH. The spa was known to the Romans and was mentioned by Tacitus in the first century A.D. The town was founded by the Hapsburgs in 1291 and was conquered by the Swiss Confederation in 1415. The diet of the Confederation met at Baden from 1424 to 1712, and it was the capital of the former canton of Baden from 1798 to 1803.

BADEN (Germany)

Former state on the RHINE RIVER in SW Germany, since 1952 part of the state of BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG.

The state originated as a margravate under the house of ZIRINGEN in the 12th century. The Reformation divided the area along religious lines into BADEN-BADEN and Baden-Durlach in 1535. The division weakened its ability to stand up to the power of neighboring states and principalities until 1771, when Charles Frederick of Züringen reunited the two parts, with his capital at KARLSRUHE. In the early 19th century it became part of the GERMAN CONFEDERATION and the Zollverein, or customs union. Its liberal constitution of 1818 notwithstanding, revolution broke out in 1848, but it was quickly crushed with Prussian help. Part of the GERMAN EMPIRE founded in 1871, Baden was an independent republic for a brief time in 1918 and then became part of the WEIMAR Republic. After World War II, the Allied Forces established three states: Württemberg-Baden (USA), Württemberg-Hohenzollern (France), and Baden (France). In 1952, these states were merged to form Baden-Württemberg.

BADEN-BADEN [Baden] [ancient: Aurelia Aquensis] (Germany)

City in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG state, 18 mi SSW of KARLSRUHE. The Roman emperor Caracalla built the baths at this health spa in the third century A.D. Long the seat of the margraves of BADEN State, Baden-Baden was especially popular with European high society in the 19th century.

BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG (Germany)

A state in SW Germany created by the merging of the states of BADEN and WÜRTTEMBERG. Initial efforts were made to merge the two states during 1918 and 1919 after World War I. After World War II, the occupying powers created Württemberg-Baden (the US zone), and Württemberg-Hohenzollern and Baden (the French zone). In 1950, the three states had a trial vote to determine a merger. The result of the plebiscite was a strong majority overall in favor of a combined state in the SW, but in the regions of the former state of Baden, a weak majority in favor of the pre-war borders. As a result, in 1951, a referendum was held in four voting districts (North Baden, South Baden, North Württemberg and South Württemberg-Hohenzollern) resulting in 69.7% in favor of the merger, but in South Baden, 62.2% in favor of the old borders. The Federal state of Baden-Württemberg was founded on April 25, 1952, with its capital at STUTTGART. Baden-Württemberg is Germany's wealthiest state with a strong industrial base centered in an automotive industry world famous for firms such as Daimler-Benz and Porsche.

BADEN BEI WIEN See BADEN (Austria)

BAD GASTEIN [Gastein] (Austria)

Town and spa in Salzburg province on the Gasteiner Ache, 50 mi S of SALZBURG, central Austria. Used as a spa since the 13th century, it grew world famous in the 19th century. At the Convention of Bad Gastein in 1865 HOLSTEIN was given to Austria and SCHLESWIG to PRUSSIA.

BAD HOMBURG [Bad Homburg vor der Höhe] (Germany)

Town and spa in HESSE, 8 mi N of FRANKFURT, W central Germany. Known as a spa to the Romans, it became internationally famous in the 19th century. From 1622 to 1866 it was the independent city and landgraviate of Hesse-Homburg.

BAD HOMBURG VOR DER HÖHE See BAD HOMBURG

BAD ISCHL [Ischl] (Austria)

City and spa in Upper Austria, 28 mi ESE of SALZBURG. First mentioned in 1262, it was the summer residence of the Emperor Franz Josef I from 1854 to 1914. It was frequently visited by composers Johannes Brahms, Franz Lehár, Anton Bruckner, and Richard Strauss.

BAD KREUZNACH (Germany)

Town and spa in RHINELAND PALATINATE, on the Nahe River, 21 mi SW of MAINZ, W central Germany. Inhabited by Celts and Romans, it was the site of a Carolingian palace built in A.D. 819. It fell to the bishops of SPEYER in 1065. Badly damaged in the Thirty Years' War, it was destroyed by the French in 1689. Ceded to PRUSSIA in 1815, it became an important spa.

BAD LANGENSALZA See LANGENSALZA

BAD MERGENTHEIM (Germany)

Town and spa in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, on the Tauber River, 21 mi SSW of WÜRZBURG, S central Germany. Mineral springs here were known in the Bronze and Iron ages. The town passed to the Teutonic Knights in 1219 and was the residence of the grand master of the order from 1525 to 1809.

BADR (Saudi Arabia)

Village in the HEJAZ, 40 mi SW of NAJRÂN. In A.D. 624 the prophet Muhammad and his followers gained their first important victory here over the armies of MECCA.

BAD REICHENHALL (Germany)

City and spa in BAVARIA, 10 mi WSW of SALZBURG, AUSTRIA, in SE Germany. An important salt-extracting center since Roman times, it prospered under Charlemagne c. 800. The city was rebuilt after a fire in 1834.

BADRINATH (India)

Village and shrine in UTTAR PRADESH state, 200 mi NE of DELHI in the HIMALAYA Mts, N India. The temple at Badrinath has been a famous pilgrimage center for more than 2,000 years and contains a shrine of Badrinath, or Vishnu.

BAEBRO See CABRA

BAECULA (Spain)

Site of battle in Córdoba province, near CÓRDOBA, S Spain. During the Second Punic War the Romans under Scipio defeated the Carthaginians under Hasdrubal here in 208 B.C. Hasdrubal set off to Italy after the battle.

BAETERRAE See BÉZIERS

BAETICA (Spain)

Ancient Roman province of S Spain, corresponding to ANDALUSIA. See also ROMAN EMPIRE.

BAEZA (Spain)

Town in Jaén province, ANDALUSIA, 80 mi E of CÓRDOBA. Former capital of a small Moorish kingdom, it was sacked by Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE in 1239 and never regained its importance. Its ancient walls survive and it has a Gothic cathedral and several notable buildings of the Renaissance.

BAFFIN ISLAND (Canada)

Arctic island in NUNAVUT between Greenland and the NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR-UNGAVA mainland, NE Canada. Visited by Viking explorers in the 11th century, it was sighted by Sir Martin Frobisher during his search for the NORTH-WEST PASSAGE between 1576 and 1578. The island is named after English explorer William Baffin, who explored the island in 1616. With a landmass one and a half the size of Germany, Baffin Island is home to fewer than 30,000 people—one of the most sparsely populated areas of the world.

BAFFO See PAPHOS

BAGAMOYO (Tanzania)

Town, 35 mi NW of DAR ES SALAAM. Until 1891 it was the capital of TANGANYIKA and a noted slave-trading center in German East Africa.

BAGDAD See BAGHDAD

BAGESH See BITLIS

BAGHDAD [Bagdad] (Iraq)

Ancient city on both sides of the TIGRIS RIVER, now the capital of Iraq. A small, unimportant settlement near ancient Babylon in MESOPOTAMIA, it was captured by the Arabs in A.D. 634 in their first forays into the East and was chosen by the Abbasid Caliph al-Mansur in 762 as the capital of the ABBASID EMPIRE. It became one of the great cities of the world, with an estimated population of some 2 million under Caliph Harun al-Rashid (c. 764–809) and especially under Caliph al-Mamun (813–33). It was a thriving cultural center, embodying strong influences from nearby PERSIA, also in Arab hands.

When the Abbasid Caliphate broke up, Baghdad continued to be an important city, ruling an area corresponding roughly to the modern state of Iraq, until it was brutally sacked and its inhabitants massacred by the Mongol Hulagu Khan, grandson of Genghis Khan, in 1258. Baghdad was conquered by another Mongol, Tamerlane, in 1401 and was captured by Suleiman the Magnificent of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1534, although it did not officially become part of the empire until 1638.

During World War I Baghdad was captured by the British on March 11, 1917, and became the capital of Iraq, set up under British auspices in 1921. The Arab monarchy established at that time was abolished in a bloody revolution in 1958 centering in Baghdad. Baghdad was heavily bombed by American forces during the Gulf War in 1992, and captured by American and allied forces in the Iraq war of 2003.

BAGHELKAND [former: Dahala] (India)

Region of NE central India, in MADHYA PRADESH state, S of ALLAHABAD. It was the home of the war-like Kalacuri clan from the sixth to 12th centuries A.D. KALINJAR was the Kalacuri stronghold. The Baghela Rajputs arrived in the 14th century, and the history of Baghelkand became that of Rewa state.

BAGHERHAT [Bagerhat] (Bangladesh)

Town in Khulna province, 17 mi SE of KHULNA, S Bangladesh. It was the capital of Khan Jahan, the pioneer of the Sundarbans, in the 15th century. His mausoleum and audience hall survive.

BAGIRMI See BAGUIRMI

BAGPUR See MULTAN

BAGRADAS RIVER [modern: Medjerda River, Mejerda River] (Algeria, Tunisia)

River and battle site, it flows from the Medjerda Mts to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, N of TUNIS. During the wars of the First Triumvirate in 49 B.C. the legions of Curio, loyal to Caesar, were defeated near this river by the Numidian forces of King Juba I, loyal to Pompey. During World War II there was also combat along the river in April and May 1943. See also NUMIDIA.

BAGUIRMI [Bagirmi, Chari-Bagirmi] [ancient: Massénaya] (Chad)

Region in SW Chad with SE Lake Chad on the N, and with the Chari rivers forming the W and SW boundaries. It was the site of Paleolithic and Neolithic cultures before the Sahara was formed. Early invaders with Hamitic blood came from the E, overcame the local tribes, and provided the ethnic base for subsequent inhabitants.

The Baguirmi converted to Islam c. A.D. 1600. English, German, and Italian explorers went through the area between 1826–81. In 1871 the area was conquered by the Sultan of the Wadai and c. 1890 by Rabiḥ Zoheir. The French were unable to penetrate the territory until the death of Zoheir and the defeat of his sons in 1901. All of Chad was part of FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA until it received its independence on August 11, 1960. The Baguirmi town of Fort-Lamy, now N'DJAMENA, on the Chari River 80 mi south of the provincial border in Lake Chad, is the capital of the Chad Republic.

BAGURA See BOGRA

BAHAMA ISLANDS [Bahamas]

A chain of over 700 islands in the WEST INDIES, extending from approximately 50 mi SE of FLORIDA approximately 650 mi SE to HAITI, forming an independent nation within the Commonwealth, with NASSAU as capital. The first landfall of Christopher Columbus in the New World, on October 12, 1492, was probably on the island now called SAN SALVADOR, or Watling Island. The Bahamas were claimed for SPAIN but were occupied only by slave traders and pirates until the English Crown made a grant of them in 1627. Over the years they were contested by British, Spanish, and even by American forces. Finally, the excesses of the pirates and other entrepreneurs forced the British to take firm control in 1718, and although Spain enjoyed a brief period of ownership, the Treaty of VERSAILLES in 1783 finally settled them in British hands. Slaverunning was ended with the abolition of slavery in the UNITED STATES after the Civil War. This, with the termination of wartime blockade-running, led to commercial decline. Today the Bahamas survive on international banking and on tourism, enhanced by the islands climate and natural beauties. Independence was granted on July 10, 1973, with Lynden O. Pindling of the Progressive Liberal Party (PLP) as the first prime minister. In 1992 elections, Pindling, accused of corruption and drug trafficking connections, was defeated by Hubert Ingraham of the Free National Movement (FNM). Ingraham ruled until 2002, when the PLP took the elections and Perry Christie became prime minister. See also ELEUTHERA, NEW PROVIDENCE.

BAHAMANI SULTANATE See DELHI SULTANATE

BAHAMAS See BAHAMA ISLANDS

BAHARAMPUR [Berhampore, Bahrapur, Berhampur] (India)

Town in WEST BENGAL state, 105 mi N of KOLKATA, NE India. Founded by the British in 1757, it was the site of the beginning of the Indian Mutiny in 1857.

BAHAWALPUR [Bhawalpur] (Pakistan)

City in the PUNJAB, near the Sutlej River, 55 mi SSE of MULTAN, E central Pakistan. Founded in 1748, it became capital of the princely state of Bahawalpur in 1802.

BAHIA See SALVADOR

BAHÍA BLANCA [former: Nueva Buenos Aires] (Argentina)

City and port in Buenos Aires province, 350 mi SW of BUENOS AIRES, on a bay of the Atlantic Ocean. Established as a military outpost in 1828, it developed commercially after the laying of the railroad from Buenos Aires in 1884. It is the third-largest port of Argentina.

BAHÍA DE COCHINOS See BAY OF PIGS

BAHÍA DE JAGUA See CIENFUEGOS

AL-BAHNASĀ See OXYRHYNCHUS

AL-BAHR (Egypt) See NILE RIVER

AL-BAHR See DEAD SEA

BAHRAICH (India)

Town in UTTAR PRADESH state, 65 mi NE of LAKHNAU, N India. The invading African Sayyid Salar Mas'Ud died here in 1033. His grave is both a Muslim and a Hindu pilgrimage center.

BAHRAIN [ancient: Dilmun, Tyros; former: Aval, Awal]

Emirate in the Persian Gulf, off the coast of SAUDI ARABIA, consisting of a group of islands, the most important of which are Bahrain and Muharraḡ. The islands are sandy and flat, and the climate is hot and humid. Bahrain, the ancient Tyros, has long been inhabited and was mentioned by Persian, Greek, and Roman geographers and historians. It was probably the Dilmun that formed a link between ancient MESOPOTAMIA and the INDUS RIVER civilization.

The islands were controlled by the Portuguese from 1521 to 1602 and from then to 1783 mostly by PERSIA. At that time the Arabian family of Al-Khalifah displaced the Persians and established a dynasty of sheikhs. Bahrain became a British protectorate in 1861. There were demonstrations favoring independence in the 1950s and 1960s, and Great Britain withdrew in 1971. The present emir, a member of the Al-Khalifah family, is sole ruler. The main source of wealth was pearls and salt and there was some agriculture. However, oil, discovered in 1931, is the main source of national wealth and has made possible improvements in health and education and the nation's development as an international financial center. Bahrain was a founding member of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) in 1981.

In the 1980s and 1990s relations with Qatar were strained by a dispute over the HAWAR Islands and the large natural-gas resources of the Dome field in the shallow sea separating the countries. In the late 1980s a causeway was built connecting Bahrain and Saudi Arabia. During the 1991 Gulf War, coalition forces used Bahrain as an administrative and staging area. In 1993, a consultative council was appointed to replace the long-dissolved national assembly. In the 1990s, there were protests and violence from Bahrain's Shiite minority. In 1996 more than 50 people were arrested for involvement in what was said to be an Iranian-backed Shiite coup attempt. Sheikh Isa bin Salman al-Khalifa died in 1999 and was succeeded by his son, Sheikh Hamad bin Isa al-Khalifa. The new Sheikh has promoted democratic reforms. In 2001, a new charter established Bahrain as a constitutional monarchy. Bahrain was proclaimed a kingdom in 2002, and elections for the parliament marked the first time that women in an Arab Persian Gulf monarchy could vote or run for national office. MANAMA on Bahrain Island is the capital.

AL BAHR AL AHMAR See RED SEA

BAHRAMPUR See BAHARAMPUR

BAHR-SEFED BOGHAZI See DARDANELLES

BAHR TABARIJA See GALILEE, SEA OF

BAIA [ancient: Baiae] (Italy)

Village on the coast, in Napoli province, CAMPANIA region, 10 mi W of NAPLES. Once a luxurious seaside resort under the ROMAN EMPIRE, there are the remains here of sumptuous Roman villas and huge baths. Emperor Hadrian died here in A.D. 138. The Arabs or Saracens devastated it in the eighth century. By 1500 malaria had brought about its near desertion.

BAIAE See BAIA

BAIDYANATH DHAM [Deoghar, Deogarh] (India)

Town in Santal Parganas district, Bihar. An ancient town, it is famous for its group of 22 temples dedicated to the Hindu god Siva. The Muslim invader Bakhtya Khalji made Deoghar his capital in 1201 after the conquest of BIHAR.

BAILE AN MHISTEALAIGH See MITCHELSTOWN

BAILE ÁTHA AN RÍOGH See ATHENRY

BAILE ÁTHA CLIATH See DUBLIN

BAILE ÁTHA FHIRDIATH See ARDEE

BAILE ÁTHA H-Í See ATHY

BAILE ÁTHA TRUIM See TRIM

BAILE LOCHA RIACH See LOUGHREA

BAILÉN (Spain)

City and battlefield in Jaén province, 20 mi N of JAÉN, S Spain. It was the scene of the famous battle at the start of the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars when on July 19, 1808, the Spanish under Francisco de Castaños forced 17,000 French troops under General Pierre Dupont de l'Étang to surrender. This capitulation rocked Europe.

BAIOCASSIUM See BAYEUX

BAIREUTH See BAYREUTH

BAJA CALIFORNIA [Lower California] (Mexico)

Peninsula on the W coast of Mexico, stretching S from SAN DIEGO, between the Gulf of California and the Pacific Ocean. Occupied for 10,000 years, the peninsula was the home of some of the most primitive American Indians discovered by Spanish explorers in the 16th century. The area was settled with difficulty. After the Treaty of GUADALUPE HIDALGO in 1848, Baja California was separated from the modern U.S. state of CALIFORNIA, which passed to the United States. The peninsula is divided into the states of BAJA CALIFORNIA and BAJA CALIFORNIA SUR.

BAJA CALIFORNIA [Baja California Norte] (Mexico)

State in the northern half of the peninsula of BAJA CALIFORNIA. First visited by the Spanish in 1539, Baja California was settled by the Spanish in a string of missions in Baja and Alta California. In 1804 the Spanish divided Baja California from Alta California (now the state of CALIFORNIA). In 1850, after California was annexed by the UNITED STATES, Mexico split the peninsula into northern and southern territories. In 1952 Baja California became the 29th state of Mexico with the capital at MEXICALI. Other major cities include TIJUANA and ENSENADA. Baja California is one of the more prosperous and industrialized Mexican states with active cross-border commerce and maquilladora.

BAJA CALIFORNIA SUR (Mexico)

State in the southern half of BAJA CALIFORNIA with its capital at LA PAZ. The state was first visited by the Spanish in 1533 when Hernán Cortés sent a ship north to look for two ships missing from the year before. A mutiny by Pilot Fortún Ximénez resulted in the first settlement in Baja California on the site of La Paz. Baja California Sur became the 31st state of Mexico in 1974.

BAJADA DE SANTA FE See PARANÁ

BAJOCASSES See BAYEUX

BAKAN See SHIMONOSEKI

BAKU (Azerbaijan)

City on the Apsheron Peninsula, on the W shore of the CASPIAN SEA. It is the capital of Azerbaijan. Fires from its vast oil deposits were worshiped as shrines as early as the sixth century B.C. Beginning in the 11th century A.D. the Persians controlled this prosperous trading center and source of oil, with occasional interference from Mongol invasions. Peter the Great took it for RUSSIA in 1723, but the Persians regained it in 1735. It became Russian permanently in 1806. In the civil war that followed the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917 it was a White Russian stronghold. In 1920 it was made capital of the AZERBAIJAN SSR. In 2000 the walled city of Baku was classified by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site. See also PERSIA.

BAKWANGA See MBUJI-MAYI

BALABAKK See BAALBEK

BALACLAVA See BALAKLAVA

BALAKLAVA [Balaclava] (Ukraine)

Village on the SW coast of the CRIMEA Peninsula, on the BLACK SEA, 8 mi SE of SEVASTOPOL. In antiquity this coastal region was settled by the Greeks and was important commercially. In the Middle Ages it was held by the Genoese. An independent khanate of the Tatars in the 15th century, it was conquered by the Turks in 1475. Balaklava became Russian in 1783. It was the scene of an unusual battle in the Crimean War of 1853–56 in which RUSSIA fought GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, TURKEY, and SARDINIA. In the process of defending Sevastopol, the Russians placed artillery on the heights at Balaklava. On October 25, 1854, a misinterpreted order from the British commanding general caused Lord Cardigan to lead the Light Brigade cavalry of 673 officers and men in a brave, but doomed, charge through the valley between the heights against approximately 12,000 Russian troops. About 40 percent of the brigade was killed or wounded. The event has remained famous because of Alfred Tennyson's poem The Charge of the Light Brigade, written in 1855. The USSR made Balaklava a part of Sevastopol in 1957. In 1991, Balaklava, together with the whole of the Crimea, were made part of the independent state of Ukraine.

BALASORE See BALESHWAR

BALAT See MILETUS

BÂLE See BASEL

BALEARIC ISLANDS [Spanish: Islas Baleares] (Spain)

An archipelago of 16 islands in the MEDITERRANEAN SEA E of Spain, forming Baleares province, an autonomous region since 1983 with the capital at PALMA, The three chief islands are MAJORCA, MINORCA, and IBIZA. The islands have been inhabited since prehistoric times. The seafaring Phoenicians, who achieved domination of the Mediterranean in the 12th century B.C., controlled the islands. Approximately six centuries later, the Balearics were held by CARTHAGE, but c. 120 B.C. ROME took them. The islands were invaded by the Vandals in A.D. 465 and came under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in 534. In 903 the Moorish caliphate of CORDOBA became the ruler of the islands and used them as a base for raids on shipping. James I, king of ARAGON, a kingdom of northeastern Spain, drove out the Moors between 1229 and 1235. When he died in 1276 an independent kingdom of Majorca was formed, which included other territory in the Mediterranean region.

Peter IV, known as Peter the Ceremonious, reunited the islands with Aragón in 1343. The Balearics lost some of their economic importance when the discovery of the New World rerouted trade. Minorca changed hands a number of times in the 18th century: the British occupied it in 1708 during the War of the Spanish Succession; during the Seven Years' War the French took it, but by the treaty ending the war in 1763 it went back to GREAT BRITAIN. The French and Spanish seized it in 1782 only to have the British come back in 1798. Finally, in 1802, the Peace of AMIENS gave it to Spain. During the Spanish civil war of 1936–39, Majorca and Ibiza were taken into insurgent hands at the start but Minorca remained a Loyalist possession until 1939. Traces of prehistoric life on the islands are seen in the rough stone towers called talayots, while bronze swords, sculptures of bulls, and pottery have been found.

BALEARIS MAJOR See MAJORCA

BALESH See ELVAS

BALESHWAR [Balasore] (India)

City in ORISSA state, 120 miles SW of KOLKATA. The city was the first British settlement in BENGAL in 1657. French, Dutch, and Danish trading posts were established later. The Dutch and Danish enclaves were ceded to the British in 1846, but a French enclave remained until Indian independence in 1947.

BALI (Indonesia)

Island and province, part of the Lesser Sundas Islands, E of JAVA, between the Indian Ocean and the Bali Sea.

While the rest of Indonesia is Muslim it has been Hindu since the seventh century and was controlled by Java from the 10th to 15th centuries. It came under the sway of the Dutch East India Company in the 17th century, and it was finally occupied by the Dutch in 1908. Held by the Japanese in World War II from 1942 to 1945, it became part of newly independent Indonesia in 1949 and in 1965 was the scene of considerable bloodshed and destruction when the central government eradicated the membership of the national Communist Party. Well known for its natural beauty and unique culture, Bali is a popular tourist destination. In 2002, it was the site of a terrorist attack on two nightclubs where almost 200 died from 24 different countries.

BALIKESIR [ancient: Hadrianutherae] (Turkey)

City and capital of Balikesir province, 110 mi SSW of ISTANBUL, W Turkey. Balikesir is on or near the site of ancient Handrianutherae. In the early 14th century it was an important town of the Turkmen Karasi Emirate.

BALIKPAPAN (Indonesia)

City on the SE coast of BORNEO, an important port and oil-producing and refining center since 1899. A naval battle between Japanese and U.S. warships was fought offshore in Makasar Strait on January 24, 1942, after which the city was occupied by the victorious Japanese until 1945. Oil facilities, which were destroyed before the Japanese landed, were rebuilt after the war.

BALKANS

Ancient region and site of 10 modern nations, comprising the Balkan Peninsula in SE Europe. Geographically the peninsula is considered to be separated from Central Europe by the line of the Danube and Sava Rivers. This excludes some of SERBIA and some of MONTENEGRO and much of ROMANIA, but historically and politically they are considered to be Balkan states; the other eight nations are SLOVENIA, CROATIA, BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA, MACEDONIA, ALBANIA, BULGARIA, continental GREECE, and European TURKEY. The region's history goes back to the most ancient times, with many different peoples invading and settling here over the centuries. The Balkan area has been a meeting place of European and Asian civilizations, a mixing bowl of races, languages, and religions, and the scene of constant wars, conquests, revolts, and terrorism. Today linguistic and religious differences are more apparent than racial groupings.

Albania, settled in ancient times, includes parts of ILLYRIA and EPIRUS. It has been conquered and freed several times. Bulgaria, settled in the sixth century A.D. by Slavic tribes, occupies some of ancient THRACE and of MOESIA. Modern Greece includes portions of Epirus, Thrace, and MACEDONIA, as well as ACHAEA and the rest of the PELOPONNESUS. Greek history goes back to the Neolithic Age, and the Achaeans appear in the works of the poet Homer, traditionally writing c. 800 B.C. Epirus was a kingdom in the third century B.C. Romania occupies roughly the land called DACIA in ancient times. It includes MOLDAVIA, TRANSYLVANIA, and WALACHIA, all of which have had various overlords in the course of their history. Turkey, primarily a nation of Asia, includes the eastern portion of Thrace whose original inhabitants had lived in the area since the second millennium B.C. Yugoslavia, which gained nationhood in 1918, was made up of six constituent republics: Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Macedonia, MONTENEGRO, SERBIA, and Slovenia. Yugoslavia dissolved in 1991. The historic regions of DALMATIA and SLAVONIA are part of Croatia. Ancient ISTRIA is now mostly in Slovenia, but a small portion belongs to ITALY. Illyria, on the eastern Adriatic Sea coast, gave its name to the ILLYRIAN PROVINCES, a puppet state established by Napoleon I, which included Istria and other territory. Macedonia, now partly in Bulgaria, Greece, and Yugoslavia, corresponds roughly to the ancient kingdom of Macedonia, of which Alexander the Great became king in 336 B.C.

Over the centuries empires whose centers were outside the Balkans have ruled all or some of it by force. Between the eighth and fourth centuries B.C. SCYTHIA arose and spread from the Danube to the borders of CHINA. In the early fourth century B.C. PERSIA conquered Macedonia and Thrace and held ATHENS for a time. The ROMAN EMPIRE, at its peak in the second century A.D., ruled the Balkans and divided it into provinces, the most important of which were Dacia, PANNONIA, and various Greek city-states. The BYZANTINE EMPIRE, whose capital of CONSTANTINOPLE occupied the southeastern tip of Thrace, consisted of two main areas in the fourth century A.D.: most of the Balkans and ASIA MINOR.

Military victories in the late 14th century made the OTTOMAN EMPIRE ruler of the peninsula, a rule that did not entirely end until World War I. The Austrian Empire to the N was awarded Istria and Dalmatia by treaty in 1815. After the Austro-Hungarian Empire was formed in 1867 it included Croatia, Slovenia, and Transylvania; and in 1908 it annexed Bosnia and Herzegovina. This foreign rule and its resentment by the Balkan peoples played a large part in the fomenting of World War I, while the end of World War II saw another adjustment of national boundaries within the region. See also AUSTRIA.

BALKH [ancient: Bactra] (Afghanistan)

Ancient town in N Afghanistan, near the village of Wazirabad and slightly W of MAZAR-I-SHARIF. Balkh is one of the oldest cities in the world. Alexander the Great may have founded a Greek colony here c. 330 B.C. Later, as Bactra, it reached its greatest importance as the capital of BACTRIA, a Greek kingdom of this part of Asia. Balkh fell to the Arabs in A.D. 653 and, as capital of Khorastani, the ABBASID CALIPHATE made it a renowned intellectual center. It was the home of the Barweicides, powerful Abbasid advisers. In 1221 it was destroyed by Genghis Khan, the Mongol conqueror. Rebuilt in the early 16th century, Balkh became part of UZBEK territory, lands of a Turkic-speaking people of Muslim religion and Persian culture. Still later for a short time it was part of the MOGUL EMPIRE, which completed its conquest of INDIA in 1526 and included Afghanistan in its territory. In 1850 Balkh became a town in the united kingdom of Afghanistan. At one time Balkh was a center of Zoroastrianism, the religion founded by Zoroaster (c. 628 to 551 B.C.), the Persian prophet and teacher. In the early centuries of the Christian era it was a notable center of Buddhism with famous monasteries. Objects dating from the early Muslim period have been found here.

BÂLKÍS See ZEUGMA

BÂLKŚ See ZEUGMA

BALLAARAT See BALLARAT

BALLARAT [Ballaarat] (Australia)

City in VICTORIA state, 65 mi WNW of MELBOURNE, on the Yarrowee River, SE Australia. It developed rapidly following the discovery of gold in 1851 and was the scene of the Eureka Stockade, a miners revolt for political reform in 1854 in which 25 miners were shot by the military.

BALLARI See BELLARY

BALLIA (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH state, 80 mi NE of VARANASI. Changes in the course of the GANGES RIVER destroyed the original city in the 1870s, and a new city was created in 1900.

BALLIVÍAN See CHACO BOREAL

BALL'S BLUFF (United States)

Battle site on the POTOMAC RIVER, in VIRGINIA, 33 mi NW of WASHINGTON, D.C. On October 21, 1861, it saw an unimportant battle early in the Civil War, in which the Confederates soundly defeated a Union force. Opinion in the North was shocked by this unexpected defeat.

BALMORAL CASTLE See BRAEMAR

BALUCHISTAN See BALUCHISTAN

BALTIC SEA [ancient: Mare Suevicum; Finnish: Itämeri; German: Ostsee; Polish: Morze Bałtyckie; Russian: Baltiskoye More]

Body of water in northern Europe, an arm of the Atlantic Ocean. It has three main arms: the gulfs of Bothnia, Finland, and Riga. The ØRESUND, the Great Belt, and the Little Belt on the W connect it with the KATTEGAT strait between DENMARK and Sweden, which in turn connects with the SKAGERRAK and thence the NORTH SEA. The Kiel Canal in northern GERMANY makes a more direct connection with the North Sea. Nations bordering on the Baltic are Denmark, Germany, FINLAND, POLAND, SWEDEN, LITHUANIA, LATVIA, ESTONIA, and RUSSIA. From antiquity the sea has been an important artery of commerce and a route used by invading armies and navies.

One of its main attractions in antiquity was the existence along the German coast of amber, a highly prized, yellow or brown fossilized resin that was exuded by a type of extinct coniferous tree. It can be polished and used to make amulets, beads, and other decorative objects. It was known as early as the Bronze Age and drew traders to the Baltic area from many directions, thus influencing trade routes. The home of Upper Paleolithic cultures from c. 8500 B.C., the Baltic saw the appearance of the Ertebølle sub-

Neolithic culture c. 4500 B.C., the Funnel Beaker B Indo-European culture c. 2750 B.C., and the Teutons by 1850 B.C., who finally emerged into history in the Roman period.

The era of Teutonic migrations at the end of the ROMAN EMPIRE finally culminated in the Age of the Vikings in the early Middle Ages. This ended with the creation of permanent states and cities around the Baltic by the 11th century A.D. The HANSEATIC LEAGUE, an organization of medieval German merchant cities, dominated the trade of the Baltic region in the 14th century. It had establishments in many cities. The 20th century has seen massive degradation of the sea and its wildlife due to the heavy industrialization of the bordering countries.

Regions and former nations on the Baltic include INGRIA (Ingermanland), KURLAND, LIVONIA, POMERANIA, and Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, also known as the Baltic States and formerly part of the USSR. Cities of historic interest include COPENHAGEN, GDAŃSK, HELSINKI, KALININGRAD, KIEL, LIEPAJA, LÜBECK, RIGA, ROSTOCK, SAINT PETERSBURG, STOCKHOLM, STRALSUND, SZCZECIN, TALLINN, TURKU, and VISBY. Important islands in the Baltic are the ALAND ISLANDS, the BORNHOLM group, GOTLAND, ÖLAND, RÜGEN, SAAREMA, and SJAELLAND.

BALTIC STATES See BALTIC SEA

BALTIMORE (United States)

City in N MARYLAND, on the estuary of the Patapsco River, an arm of CHESAPEAKE BAY. Although the site was settled in the early 17th century, Baltimore was not officially founded until the provincial assembly in 1729 authorized it. It was named for Lord Baltimore, the founder of Maryland. Its fine harbor made the colonial town a major shipping point for grain and tobacco. Shipbuilding also prospered during both the American Revolution and the War of 1812, when privateers were in demand. The fast and beautiful Baltimore clipper ships were built here.

The Continental Congress met in Baltimore in 1777 after the British captured PHILADELPHIA. In the War of 1812 the battle at FORT MCHENRY in defense of the city inspired the writing of the Star-Spangled Banner. The building of the NATIONAL ROAD, starting in 1815, stimulated Baltimore's economy as the route to the West advanced. However, the completion of the ERIE CANAL in NEW YORK State in 1825 diverted traffic. Baltimore businessmen reacted by sponsoring the Baltimore and OHIO Railroad, the first public railroad in the United States, which began operating in May 1830.

Although Maryland remained in the Union during the Civil War, southern sentiment was very strong, and a Massachusetts regiment passing through the city in April 1861 was assailed by a mob. A fire in 1904 devastated most of the downtown section, but a better designed city was built. Both world wars stimulated Baltimore's shipping and shipbuilding facilities, and the city remains a major port and industrial area. The 1960s and 1970s were a time of urban decay for Baltimore, which lost population and businesses to its suburbs. The 1980s and 1990s have seen a renewal of the city, particularly in the Inner Harbor area of the city's waterfront. Among points of interest are the Edgar Allan Poe House and the first Roman Catholic cathedral in the United States.

BALTISKOYE MORE See BALTIC SEA

BALUCHISTAN [Beluchistan, Belochiston] (Iran and Pakistan)

Region in W Asia, comprising territory in E Iran and SW Pakistan. The section in Pakistan is Baluchistan province; that in Iran is part of Baluchestan va Sistan province. The region takes its name from the Baluchs, a group of tribes whose original homeland was probably on the Iranian plateau. In antiquity Pakistani Baluchistan was part of the country of GEDROSIA, remembered chiefly for the hardships Alexander the Great and his army suffered when they crossed it in 325 B.C. Later it was part of the Greek kingdom of BACTERIA.

Various other empires and peoples ruled the area from c. 300 B.C. to the seventh century A.D., when the Arabs overthrew the Persians and Baluchistan became part of the Ummayyad Caliphate and then of the ABBASID CALIPHATE. From 1595 to 1638 it was ruled by the MOGUL EMPIRE. The KALAT Khanate, whose most notable ruler was Nasir Kahn (1750–93), created an independent realm that also included Iran, Afghanistan, and SIND. The British annexed Pakistani Baluchistan in 1876, and in 1887 it became a province of British INDIA. When Pakistan became an independent nation in 1947, Baluchistan was included. In 1998, Pakistan conducted nuclear tests in the Kharna District of Baluchistan.

BAMAKO (Mali)

City and capital of Mali, on the NIGER RIVER, 650 mi ESE of DAKAR, SENEGAL. Occupied by the French in 1880, it became the capital of FRENCH SUDAN in 1908. It is now a bustling trading center.

BAMBARA STATES (Mali)

Two states based on Kaarta and SÉGOU. The Bambara state of Ségou was founded in 1600. Under Mamari Kulibali in the 18th century it captured territory from TIMBUKTU to BAMAKO and fought off the king of KONG. The state later expanded to the Black VOLTA RIVER but collapsed in 1818 before Shehu Ahmadu Lobbo of Macina. The Bambara state of Kaarta was founded in 1753 by refugees from Mamari Kulibali.

BAMBERG (Germany)

City in S Germany, 31 mi NW of NUREMBERG. The city developed in the early 10th century A.D. around the castle of the counts of Babenberg, who later ruled AUSTRIA. From 1007 Bamberg was the capital of a strong ecclesiastical state, until it became part of BAVARIA in 1803. In 1919 it was the temporary seat of the Bavarian government, and in World War II U.S. troops took Bamberg in April 1945. The city is noted for the 11th-century church of St. Michael and for its cathedral, erected mostly in the 13th century, which contains the tombs of the Holy Roman Emperor Henry II and Pope Clement II. A Bamberg printer, Albrecht Pfister, is thought to have been the first person to print illustrated books using moveable type c. 1460. The illustrations were woodcuts.

BAMBOROUGH See BAMBURGH

BAMBUK See MALI EMPIRE

BAMBURGH [former: Bamborough] (England)

Village in NORTHUMBERLAND, on the NORTH SEA, 17 mi SE of BERWICK-UPON-TWEED. In the sixth century A.D. Bamburgh was the capital of BERNICIA, an Anglo-Saxon kingdom. Bamburgh remained the capital later in the century when Bernicia was united with DEIRA to form the kingdom of NORTHUMBRIA. An early church dedicated to St. Aidan, who died here in 651, became a monastery in 1121. A sixth-century castle, erected on the remains of an earlier Roman fort and rebuilt in the Norman period, was restored in the 18th century and now houses a library.

BĀMIĀN [Banyan] (Afghanistan)

City in the Bamian valley, on the Quanduz River, N of the Indian Caucasus, 80 mi W of KABUL. It is first referred to in the writings of a Chinese traveler, Hsüan Tsang, in A.D. 630. Even then it was the site of two huge statues of Buddha, one 173 ft high, the other 120 ft. These statues were listed as one of UNESCO's World Heritage Sites, until March 2001, when the Taliban government of Afghanistan declared the statues idolatrous and destroyed them. The city has the ruins of towers and cave dwellings in the valley cliffs. Buddhist relics abound in the surrounding area. Situated on the main route between BALKH, Kabul, and TURKISTAN, Bāmiān was a key center in the transmission of Buddhism from INDIA through the passes to Central Asia.

In the seventh century it was ruled by Hephthalite (Hunnish) princes but was subject to western Turks. It flourished under the Ghuri dynasty in the 12th century but was destroyed in 1221 by Genghis Khan, who was enraged when his grandson was killed by an arrow shot from its walls. During the British occupation of Kabul in 1840, in the First Afghan War, Bāmiān was the scene of minor fighting.

BANARAS See VARANASI

BANAT (Hungary, Serbia, and Romania)

Region of central Europe corresponding to western Romania, northeastern Serbia, and southern Hungary. Occupied by Slavs, Serbs, and Magyars since the fifth century A.D., it saw the predominance of Hungarian power from the ninth to the 16th century, most notably in the reign of King Andrew II, who organized it as the Banat of Severin in 1233. In 1718, after a period of Turkish rule, it passed to AUSTRIA, which fostered German immigration into the area. It was taken from Austria-Hungary after World War I by the Treaty of Trianon in 1920, and now the territory is split between Romania, Serbia, and Hungary.

BANBURY (England)

Town in OXFORDSHIRE, 21 mi NNW of OXFORD. During the Wars of the Roses nobles loyal to Edward IV were defeated here on July 26, 1469, by a rebel force under Robin of Redesdale, a friend of Warwick the Kingmaker. Today, Banbury's main industries include manufacturing, food processing, and printing.

BANDA ORIENTAL See URUGUAY

BANDAR See MACHILIPATNAM

BANDAR ABBAS [Benderabbas] [former: Gombroon; Persian: Bander Abbasi; Portuguese: Cambarao, Comorao, Gamaroon, Gamru, Gombrun] (Iran)

A major port on the N shore of the Strait of Hormuz, which at that point is only approximately five miles wide. This location gave Bandar Abbas great commercial and strategic influence. In the 16th century it was almost indispensable for commerce. It was founded at that time by the Portuguese who were forced to surrender it in 1615 to the forces of Shah Abbas I of PERSIA, with some help from the English East India Company. At this time it received its name, which means "port of Abbas." See also HORMUZ.

BANDAR ABU SHEHR See BUSHIRE

BANDAR-E-BUSHEHR See BUSHIRE

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN (Brunei)

The capital of Brunei is a port city on the South China Sea. The site of the city has been inhabited since the 7th century A.D. Bandar Seri Begawan became the capital of Brunei in 1920.

BANDER ABBASI See BANDAR ABBAS

BANDIRMA [ancient: Panormos; former: Panderma] (Turkey)

Town in Balıkesir province, on the Sea of Marmara, 60 mi WNW of BURSA. In the 13th century A.D. Panderma was used by the Latin crusaders as a base for their operations against the Byzantine Greeks of ASIA MINOR. It was captured by the Ottoman Turks in the 14th century. See also BYZANTINE EMPIRE, OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

BANDOENG See BANDUNG

BANDUNG [Bandoeng] (Indonesia)

City and capital of West JAVA, 75 mi SE of JAKARTA. Founded by the Dutch in 1810, it was the scene of the Bandung Conference from April 18 to 24, 1955, in which the states of Africa and Asia condemned colonialism in all its manifestations.

BANGALORE (India)

City in S central India, capital of KARNATAKA state, formerly MYSORE. It was settled in 1537 around a mud fort built by a local chief, Kempe Gowda. The Marathas, warriors devoted to Hinduism, controlled Bangalore when they rose to power in southern India in the 17th century. The Muslims under Haidar Ali and his son, Tippoo Sahib, conquered the region in the 18th century. After the British defeated Tippoo Sahib at SERINGAPATAM in 1799, the city and state were returned to the Hindu rulers. In 1831 Bangalore became the British administrative center for the region then called Mysore. The ruins of Tippoo Sahib's palace remain a landmark. After India's independence in 1947, Bangalore evolved into a major industrial city and India's high technology and research center.

BANGKOK [Thai: Krung Thep] (Thailand)

Commercial center and capital city of Thailand, in Phra Nakhon province, 25 mi from the Gulf of Siam, on the E bank of the Chao Phraya River. Rama I established it as his capital in 1782 because it was easy to defend against the Burmese, who had destroyed AYUTTHAYA, the old capital, in 1767. A great walled palace and many Buddhist temples were built in succeeding years. On December 8, 1941, it fell to the Japanese and was later heavily bombed by the Allies. It was split into the municipalities of Krung Thep and Thon Buri in 1937, but they were rejoined in 1971.

BANGLADESH [former: East Pakistan]

Nation in S Asia, on the Bay of Bengal on the S and bordered by INDIA on the W, N, and E and by MYANMAR to the SE. Consisting chiefly of the delta that combines the GANGES, BRAHMAPUTRA, and Meghna rivers. The land is low-lying, humid, and subject to floods. Bangladesh is the most densely populated country in the world. Its people are 80 percent Muslim. As part of the region long known as BENGAL, it has been controlled by various states, including the MOGUL EMPIRE. British from the 18th century, it was part of Imperial British India from 1857–1947. In that year it became independent as part of the new nation of PAKISTAN. As East Pakistan it was separated from West Pakistan by more than 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

Although East Pakistan had the larger population, the government was centered in West Pakistan, and that part of the nation was favored. In December 1970 the Awami League, representing East Pakistan and led by Mujibur Rahman, known as Sheikh Mujib, won a majority of seats in parliament, but the legislators were not allowed to meet. As a result, civil war broke out on March 15, 1971, and independence was declared the next day. After Pakistani army massacres of civilians that shocked the world, in December India recognized Bangladesh, entered the war on its side, and in two weeks defeated West Pakistan. Pakistan did not recognize Bangladesh until February 1974. DACCA became the capital and Sheikh Mujib the president. Banks and many businesses were nationalized in 1972. Mujib's powers were made dictatorial in January 1975. On August 15, 1975, Mujib was assassinated by a group of army officers. Ziaur Rahman, who became president in 1977, was assassinated on May 30, 1981, in a coup that, though unsuccessful in toppling the government, attested to the instability of Bangladesh. The country remains one of the poorest in the world, and recovery has been hampered by many natural disasters including cyclones and flooding. In 2002, President Badruddoza Chowdhury of the ruling Bangladesh Nationalist Party was forced to resign as governmental instability continued between the ruling coalition and the minority Awami League.

BANGOR (Northern Ireland)

Town in North Down district of Northern Ireland on the S side of the entrance to Belfast Lough, 12 mi ENE of BELFAST. The original missionary abbey of canons regular was built here c. 555 by St. Comgall and destroyed by Danes in the ninth century. Rebuilt with unusual elegance by St. Malachy O'Morgair in 1120, it was taken over by the Franciscans in 1469 and dissolved in 1542 during the Reformation. As a yachting resort, Bangor is currently the site of an annual regatta.

BANGOR [former: Sunbury] (United States)

City in E central MAINE, 60 mi NE of AUGUSTA. The site was probably visited in 1604 by Samuel Sieur de Champlain, the French explorer. When first settled in 1769 by Jacob Buswell the town was known as Sunbury. The name was changed to Bangor in 1791. Bangor was occupied by British troops during the War of 1812. Later in the 19th century it became an important shipbuilding center. Bangor is a port of entry and the gateway to lumbering and resort areas.

BANGOR [Welsh: Bangor Fawr] (Wales)

City in GWYNEDD, at the N inlet of the MENAI STRAIT between Caernarvon Bay and the Irish Sea, 8 mi NE of CAERNARVON. At least five colleges are established here. Most notably, however, Bangor has a cruciform cathedral built on the site of a church destroyed by the English in 1071 but dedicated to, and perhaps founded by, St. Deinol c. 525. It established the community as a center of Celtic Christianity. The church was later destroyed in 1102, again in 1211, and also in the 14th century. Restoration was undertaken and finally completed between 1866 and 1875.

BANGOR (United States)

Village in W MICHIGAN, 30 miles W of KALAMAZOO. An early center of industry in the 19th century, the millpond powered complex included a sawmill, a woolen mill, a grist mill, a blast furnace, and a chemical factory.

BANGOR FAWR See BANGOR

BANHA [Benha] (Egypt)

Town in Qalyubiyah province, 30 mi NW of CAIRO, N Egypt. An important communications center between Cairo and ALEXANDRIA, it was the objective of an Israeli plan during their War of Independence in 1948–49 to cripple the Egyptian economy by bombing its railroad yards; but the war ended before the idea could be carried through. Today it is the center of Egypt's electronics industry.

BANI HASSAN See BENI HASSAN

BANJA LUKA [Banjaluka] (Bosnia-Herzegovina)

Trading center, once an important military base, on the Vrbas River in Bosnia-Herzegovina, 90 mi NW of SARAJEVO. Commercially important during the 17th and 18th centuries, it was often a battlefield in the struggle between AUSTRIA and the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. In the 19th century it played an important role in the Bosnian revolt against the Turks. It was also a center of resistance during World War II. In 1969, the city was severely damaged by earthquake, but was rebuilt. In 1992 after a referendum, Bosnia and Herzegovina declared independence. The Serbs, who boycotted the referendum declared their own state—the REPUBLIKA SRPSKA. The administrative center was at Banja Luka. Nearly 70,000 Muslim Bosniaks and Croats left the area of Banja Luka during a campaign of ethnic cleansing by the Serbian authorities during the years 1992–1995, while many Serbian refugees from other parts of Bosnia relocated to Banja Luka. Many prisoners and Bosniak and Croatian men were taken to the nearby camps at Omarska and Manjača. All of Banja Luka's mosques, some dating from the 15th and 16th centuries, were destroyed by the Serbian authorities including the Ferhadjia mosque, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. After the Dayton Accords in 1995, the Republika Srpska has had de facto independence (unrecognized internationally) with Bosnia Herzegovina. In 2001, attempts to rebuild the Ferhadjia mosque precipitated violent riots by Serbian nationalists. In 2003, Banja Luka was officially named the capital.

BANJUL See GAMBIA

BANKURA

BANNACK (United States)

Ghost town in SW MONTANA, founded in 1862 when gold was discovered along Grasshopper Creek. It was the first town in Montana and the first territorial capital from 1864–65. Bandit gangs terrorized the town in its early days, but law and order were restored after a vigilante group hung a score or more of robbers in a few weeks in 1864. Bannack's decline began almost as soon as richer lodes were found in Alder Gulch in 1863 and after VIRGINIA CITY was founded approximately 50 mi to the NNE. The site of Bannack is now a state park.

BANNOCKBURN (Scotland)

Town and battle site on the Bannock River, 3 mi SSE of STIRLING in Central region. On June 23, 1314, Robert Bruce, later Robert I, led an outnumbered force of Scots in a successful attempt to take nearby Stirling Castle, the last English stronghold in Scotland and thus the final barrier to Scottish independence.

BANSKA BYSTRICA [German: Neusohl; Hungarian: Beztercebánya] (Slovakia)

Town on the Hron River, 100 mi NE of BRATISLAVA. An important mining center since c. 1300, it has a 14th-century castle. Here on August 29, 1944, during World War II, it was the scene of the Slovak national uprising against the occupying Germans.

BANTAM (Indonesia)

Former province and town on the W end of JAVA. The province lay between the Java Sea on the N and the Indian Ocean on the S with its W coast on the Sunda strait. In the early 16th century it was a powerful Muslim sultanate with dominion over BORNEO and SUMATRA. The town of Bantam, on a bay on the north coast of the province, was the capital of the sultanate but became a Portuguese trading station after 1545, and was the site of the first Dutch settlement in 1596. This was followed by an English factory in 1603, but the English were expelled by the Dutch in 1683, and for a century the town was one of the most important trading centers in the East Indies. It was again controlled by the British from 1811–14, when it was returned to the Dutch, who removed their chief settlement seven miles inland to Serang (CERAM). In 1817 the downfall of the town of Bantam was completed by a devastating fire. The town is now a small fishing port.

BANTRY BAY (Ireland)

Bay in SW County Cork, SW Ireland, approximately 45 mi W of CORK, on the Atlantic Ocean. In 1689, after the Glorious Revolution in ENGLAND, it was the site of an attempted French landing, which was successfully repulsed. In 1796 the Irish revolutionary Wolfe Tone attempted to land French soldiers in support of an Irish rebellion. Whiddy Island at the head of the Bay is Ireland's main petroleum terminal.

BANYAN See BĀMIĀN

BANZART See BIZERTE

BAPAUME (France)

Town, in Pas-de-Calais department, 13 mi SSE of ARRAS, scene of several battles. Here on January 3, 1871, the French under General Louis Léon César Faidherbe defeated the Prussians during the Franco-Prussian War. During World War I there was heavy fighting here in 1916–17 and in August–September 1918, when the British advanced on the HINDENBURG LINE. The town was utterly destroyed, but was rebuilt after the war.

BAR [ancient: Antebarium, Antivari] (Montenegro)

Town in Montenegro, on the ADRIATIC SEA, 25 mi SSW of PODGORICA. The site of an ancient Roman settlement, it was frequently autonomous from the 11th to the 15th centuries but was ruled by VENICE from 1443 to 1571. It was under Turkey from 1571 to 1878, when it fell to the Montenegrins.

BAR (Ukraine)

Town in W Vinnitsa oblast, 37 mi WSW of VINNITSA. It was long an important town in the Podolia region of the Ukraine, which was annexed to POLAND in 1430. Along with the region, Bar was held for a time in the 17th century by the Turks. Here in February 1768 the Confederation of Bar was formed. It was an organization of Polish nobles dedicated to defend Poland and the Roman Catholic Church against RUSSIA and Poland's Russian-dominated king, Stanislaus II. The forming of the confederation precipitated civil war, in which the Polish king captured Bar. The confederation went down to defeat in 1772, and AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, and Russia then participated in the first partition of Poland. One of the founders of the confederation was Casimir Pulaski, who escaped from Poland to America and in 1777 joined the American revolutionary army. The town was ceded to RUSSIA in the second partition of Poland in 1793. In 1921, it became part of the Ukrainian SSR, and in 1991 part of the independent Republic of the Ukraine.

BARAN See BULANDSHAHR

BARANOF ISLAND (United States)

20 mi WSW of JUNEAU, ALASKA, with SITKA as its main town. The island was the center of Russian activity in North America. Discovered in 1741, it was the main base for the fur trade from 1799 to 1867, when Alaska joined the United States. It was named for the fur trader, A. A. Baranov.

BARBADOS

Island nation, member of the Commonwealth of Nations, in the WINDWARD ISLANDS OF THE WEST INDIES, E of ST. VINCENT ISLAND. BRIDGETOWN, founded in 1628, is the capital. It was probably discovered by the Portuguese, who named it Los Barbados because of the bearded fig trees they found here. In 1518 the Spanish began coming to the island to seize slaves from among the Arawak Indians to take to HISPANIOLA. By the mid-16th century the Indian population had about disappeared. The island was claimed for England in 1605 and settled in 1627 by English colonists, who brought black slaves. The English Crown took over the colony in 1663. From that time into the 18th century the island prospered as a sugar producer. Slavery was abolished in 1834.

From 1833 to 1885 Barbados was the British administrative center for the Windward Islands, but in the latter year became a separate colony. During 1958–62 it was part of the short-lived Federation of the West Indies and in 1966 became independent, with a parliamentary form of government. In 2002, Barbados reformed its banking system.

There are no rivers on Barbados, and water is secured by pumping from underground caverns. The population is approximately 90 percent of black African descent. Sugar is the most important export, along with rum and molasses. Barbados is popular as a resort, and tourism is the largest provider of foreign exchange.

BARBARY STATES (Algeria, Libya, Morocco, Tunisia)

Mediterranean coastal region extending from EGYPT to the Atlantic Ocean. In the 16th century these were independent states nominally under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE and consisted of the major part of the NW and N coast of Africa. The principal seaports were ALGIERS, TUNIS, and TRIPOLI. They provided bases for individual pirate craft and whole fleets that preyed on shipping in the Mediterranean and even in the Atlantic. They exacted tribute from European powers for protection of their vessels, but often disregarded their agreements. They also plundered and took slaves from coastal towns on islands and the southern coast of Europe. Marines from the UNITED STATES defeated Tripoli in Libya in the Tripolitan Wars of 1801–05, providing the basis for the line in the Marines' Hymn, "To the shores of Tripoli." The United States sent an additional expedition to Algiers in 1815. The British bombarded Algiers severely in 1815, and France started its ultimate conquest of Algeria in 1830. This effectively ended the piracy.

BARCA [Barka] (Arabic: Al Marj; Italian: Barce) (Libya)

Ancient town, approximately 60 mi NE of BENHAZI. It was founded c. 550 B.C. by Libyans, though many Greeks settled here. It declined when taken by the Persians in 512 B.C. but became prosperous again under the Arabs, who captured it in A.D. 641. In 1941–42, during World War II, it saw intense fighting. It was severely damaged by an earthquake in 1963.

BARCE See BARCA

BARCELONA [ancient: Barcino, Barcinona] (Spain)

Capital city of CATALONIA, 315 mi ENE of MADRID. Carthaginians, Romans, and Visigoths successively held sway here prior to Moorish rule in the eighth century A.D. Carolingian supremacy was established in 801. The increasingly independent counts of Barcelona ultimately controlled all of Catalonia, which they united with ARAGON in 1137. For the next three centuries Barcelona prospered as a great Mediterranean commercial power extending its sway as far east as GREECE. It was the Loyalist Republican capital from 1938 to 1939 during the Spanish civil war, and a center of Catalan separatism. Barcelona was the site of the 2004 Summer Olympics.

BARCINO See BARCELONA

BARCINONA See BARCELONA

BARDDHAMAN [Burdwan, Bardhaman, Bardwan] (India)

City in West BENGAL state, on the Banka River, 60 mi NW of KOLKATA, E India. Burdwan formed part of the GUPTA EMPIRE in the seventh century A.D. and the Sen kingdom in the 12th century. It played a part in Akbar's struggles in Bengal in the 16th century and was ceded to Great Britain in 1760. When Indian independence was achieved in 1947, Barddhaman was part of West Bengal State.

BARDHAMAN See BARDDHAMAN

BARDIA [Bardiyah] [former: Porto Bardia] (Libya)

Town near the coast and the Egyptian border, 70 mi E of TOBRUK. During World War II it was the base for the Italian advance in 1940. In January 1941 the British utterly defeated the Italians here, who had fallen back on the town, and took many prisoners. Several times thereafter it was taken and lost again until its final recapture on November 13, 1942.

BARDIYAH See BARDIABARDO, TREATY OF See LE BARDOBARDULI See BARLETTABARDWAN See BARDDHAMANBAREHT LUT See DEAD SEABAREILLY (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH, 120 mi E of DELHI. In 1657 it was the capital of ROHILKAND under the MOGUL EMPIRE. It was important until 1774 under the Rohillas, when they were defeated by British and Oudh troops. In 1801 it was ceded to the British. During the Indian Mutiny, on May 6, 1858, the British captured the town from the mutineers, but failed to eliminate their army, which continued to menace the province. After Indian independence in 1947, Bareilly developed as a manufacturing city and trading center.

BARI [ancient: Barium] (Italy)

City in S Italy, 140 mi E of NAPLES, Bari province, and capital of the PUGLIA region, on the ADRIATIC SEA. The site may have been inhabited since c. 1500 B.C. Later it became a Greek and then a Roman colony, having grown into a leading commercial center as early as the second century B.C. Over the centuries it was controlled by many peoples and kingdoms: Goths and Lombards; Saracens in the ninth century A.D.; Byzantines who in 885 made it the administrative seat for the APULIA region; and the Normans who conquered it in 1071. Many crusaders sailed for the east from Bari on the First Crusade and later. It was razed by William the Bad of Sicily in 1156, but its importance was restored under the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II (1220–50) as part of the kingdom of the Two SICILIES. Later it was a duchy ruled by strong lords such as the Sforzas. Bari came under the control of the kingdom of Naples in 1558. When Italy became independent and united in 1861, Bari was part of the new kingdom. The city was badly damaged in World War II and was captured by the British in September 1943. A Romanesque cathedral of the 11th century in the style of its Norman builders has relics of Saint Nicholas, originally of MYRA in ASIA MINOR, who over the centuries was transformed by legend into the Saint Nicholas of Christmas celebrations.

BARIM See PERIMBARIUM See BARIBARKA See BARCABAR-LE-DUC [local: Bar-Sur-Ornain] (France)

City in the Meuse region of NE France, approximately 128 mi E of PARIS. Although of ancient origin, it remained relatively unimportant until the 10th century, when it became the residence of the counts and dukes of Bar. In 1301 Philip of France forced Henry, count of Bar, to pay homage to France for his lands west of the Meuse, including Bar-le-Duc, with the rest remaining a fief of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. The duchy passed in the 15th century to René of ANJOU, later the duke of LORRAINE and king of NAPLES. Thereafter Bar-le-Duc shared the history of Lorraine from which it passed to France in 1766. The town still has ruins of an old Roman gate. The church of St. Pierre, built in the 14th and 15th centuries, contains a caved effigy in white stone of a half-decayed corpse, the work of Ligier Richier, a pupil of Michelangelo.

BARLETTA [ancient: Barduli] (Italy)

City and battlefield in Bari province, PUGLIA region, on the ADRIATIC SEA, 33 mi WNW of BARI, SE Italy. During the French and Spanish wars, the Spanish under Gonzalo de Córdoba defeated a force of French, Scottish, and Swiss here in 1502. This was Spain's first victory over the French and marked the emergence of Spanish infantry as a powerful military force.

BARMEN (Germany)

Suburb of E WUPPERTAL, on the RUHR RIVER, NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, W Germany. At the Synod of Barmen in May 1934, concerned Protestant leaders met to discuss Christian resistance to the advance of National Socialism in Germany.

BARNAUL See SIBERIABARNET (England)

Suburb and borough of outer LONDON, in the NW. It is on the Great North Road and was once a coaching station. During the Wars of the Roses it was the scene of a Yorkist victory over the Lancastrians on April 14, 1471. The leader of the Lancastrians, Richard Neville, earl of Warwick, was killed in flight. This doomed the Lancastrian cause.

BARNSTAPLE (England)

Town, 35 mi NW of EXETER, on the Taw River estuary, Devon. Formerly an important seaport and early royal borough, it is now a lively market town. It has the remains of a Norman castle and an 11th-century Cluniac priory.

BARODA (India)

Former princely state of W India, now part of GUJARAT state. Its chief city was also Baroda. Circa 1720 when the MOGUL EMPIRE was disintegrating, Baroda became one of the MARATHA kingdoms of some importance under the Gaekwar family, which used its name, gaekwar, as the title of the rulers. In 1805 Baroda signed a treaty that gave Great Britain administrative control. Baroda became part of BOMBAY state in 1948 and part of Gujarat in 1960.

BAROTSELAND See WESTERN PROVINCE

BARQUISIMETO (Venezuela)

City, approximately 170 mi W of CARACAS. It is a commercial and shipping center for agricultural products, such as coffee, cacao, and cattle. The city was founded by the Spanish in 1552. Lope de Aguirre, who had openly rebelled against the Spanish Crown, was captured and executed here in 1561. The city was rebuilt after an earthquake in 1812. It is on the Pan American Highway.

BARRACKPORE See BARRAKPUR

BARRAKPUR [Barrackpore, Barackpur] [Bengali: Chanak] (India)

Town in West BENGAL state, 14 mi N of KOLKATA, E India. On November 2, 1824, during the First Anglo-Burmese War, Indian troops refused to obey orders here and were fired on by artillery. This revolt anticipated the great Indian Mutiny some 30 years later.

BARRANCO (Peru)

Suburb of S LIMA, in Lima Callao province, W Peru. Barranco was looted and burned by Chileans in 1881 during the War of the Pacific. The name Barranco

(cliff) is descriptive of its coastline on the Pacific Ocean.

BARRANQUILLA (Colombia)

City in N Colombia, on the Magdalena River, approximately 10 mi from the CARIBBEAN SEA. It is Colombia's chief port and is also a shipbuilding and industrial city. It was founded by SPAIN in 1629. The city did not prosper until the mid-19th century, when steamboats came into use and a port was built. The port was enlarged in the 1920s and the city then came to surpass CARTAGENA, its rival. In 2003 UNESCO proclaimed the city as one of 28 different sites of interest.

BARRE (United States)

City in central VERMONT, approximately 5 mi SE of MONTPELIER. The area was settled c. 1790 and organized as a township in 1793. Granite quarrying, which began here in the early 19th century, is still important. Barre supplied the granite for the state capitol, built in 1836.

BARROW CANYON (Canada, United States)

Submarine canyon in the Arctic Ocean, running from 95 mi W of Point Barrow, ALASKA to the Beaufort Sea N of Point Barrow. A submarine entrance to the Arctic Basin, it was used in 1957 by the USS Nautilus, the world's first nuclear submarine, during its polar crossing under the ice.

BARRY [Welsh: Y Barri] (Wales)

Port in Vale of Glamorgan, on the BRISTOL CHANNEL, 8 mi SW of CARDIFF. Associated with Baruch, a seventh-century Celtic monk, it is the site of a castle built by the Normans in the 11th century. Originally a fishing port, Barry developed a coal trade in the 1880s becoming the world's largest coal-exporting port in the early 1900s. Though still a port, Barry is now a manufacturing center.

BAR-SUR-ORNAIN See BAR-LE-DUC

BARYGAZA See BROACH

BARYSAW [Borisov] (Belarus)

City in Belarus, on the Berezina River, 45 mi NE of MINSK. Founded in the 12th century, it was an important transportation center and was near the site of the Battle of BEREZINA in 1812 during the Napoleonic Wars. In November 1917 it became part of the SOVIET UNION. Under German occupation during World War II from 1941 to 1944, the city saw its Jewish population exterminated.

BASARH See VAISALI

BASEL [Basle] [French: Bâle; Latin: Basilia] (Switzerland) City and canton on both banks of the RHINE RIVER, 43 mi N of BERN. An early episcopal see after the fall of ROME, it became a free imperial city of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE and was the site of the Council of Basel from 1431 to 1449. It was later a center of Renaissance humanism. Erasmus wrote and edited here until the city became Protestant in 1523. Froben and Amerbach established publishing houses, and Beatus Rhenanus led a team of scholar-editors here. A member of the Swiss Confederation since 1501, the city was split into two small cantons by a revolt in 1833, with the agricultural section becoming the present Basel-Land and the city proper becoming almost coextensive with Basel-Stadt. The metropolitan area, extending into FRANCE and GERMANY is a major center for the chemical and pharmaceutical industries.

BASHAN (Syria)

Ancient country, now mainly in Dar'a governorate, SW Syria. It is repeatedly mentioned in the Bible. Og, king of Bashan, was defeated by the Israelites at Edrei, and his territory fell to Manasseh. It formed part of the kingdom of David and Solomon and fell in 64 B.C. to the Romans, who drove the Nabataean inhabitants south. Herod the Great became ruler of Bashan, which developed into one of the great granaries of the ROMAN EMPIRE. Under Trajan the Bashan city of BUSRA became the capital of the Roman province of Arabia. It declined after the fall of DAMASCUS to the Arabs in A.D. 635.

BASHKIR [Bashkiria] (Russia)

Autonomous republic of the Russian Federation, lying in E Europe, in the S Urals, and the Belaya River basin. UFA, Sterlitamak, and Beloretsk are the chief cities. In the ninth and 10th centuries the nomadic Bashkirs were controlled by the VOLGA Bulgars and in the 13th century by the Mongol GOLDEN HORDE, at which time they became Muslims. As the Horde's power declined, they came under the khanates of Kagan, Nagai, and SIBERIA. After the defeat of the Kagan Khanate in 1552 by Czar Ivan IV the Terrible, Bashkir passed to Russia, and the town of UFA was founded to provide a defense against the KIRGHIZ. Revolts broke out in 1676, 1707, 1735, and especially from 1773 to 1775. In 1917 a Bashkir national government was formed, but in 1919 the Bolsheviks assumed control, and Bashkir became the first autonomous republic in the Russian SFSR. Bashkir became a republic in the Russian Federation on March 31, 1992.

BASHKIRIA See BASHKIR

BASILIA See BASEL

BASLE See BASEL

BASQUE PROVINCES [Basque: Euzkadi; Euskadi; Spanish: Vascongadas] (Spain)

An autonomous community in the PYRENEES area, made up of three provinces, Álava, Guipúzcoa, and Viscaya, in N Spain, S of the Bay of Biscay and touching FRANCE in the NE. In a broader sense, the area includes other places where Basques make up a large part of the population, especially the province of NAVARRE in Spain and the department of Pyrénées-Atlantiques in France. The Basques are the oldest surviving ethnic group in Europe, but their origin is uncertain. They may trace their descent from Paleolithic times and Cro-Magnon Man. The Romans called the people of the area Vascones.

In the sixth century A.D. the Basques invaded SW France and established the duchy of GASCONY. Here they fought off Visigoths, Franks, and Moors. The Song of Roland, one of the famous medieval chansons de geste, is based on the defeat by the Basques of Charlemagne's commander Roland at RONCEV ALLES, a mountain pass in the Pyrénées in A.D. 778, even though in the story Moors displace the Basques. Later the Basques were forced to recognize the suzerainty of Louis the Pious, emperor of the West from 814 to 840.

By the ninth century the Basques inhabited the areas they still occupy. They founded the kingdom of Navarre in 824 with PAMPLONA as its capital, and most of them were united under Sancho III in the early 11th century. Between 1200 and 1370 the three provinces fell to the kingdom of CASTILE, although the Basques retained many civil rights. The last independent Basque area, Navarre, was conquered by Ferdinand the Catholic, king of ARAGÓN, in 1512.

Over the centuries the Basques have regularly and stoutly resisted whatever central authority ruled in Spain. The republican government of the early 1930s conceded them autonomy, and they supported the republicans in the Spanish civil war of 1936 to 1939. They were suppressed by the authoritarian Franco government that won the war, but under the present democratic monarchy, they were declared an “autonomous community” under the Spanish Constitution of 1978.

BILBAO, founded c. 1300, is the largest Basque city. SAN SEBASTIÁN is also of importance, while GUERNICA became known worldwide after the brutal bombing of the city by German aircraft in April 1937, an event that inspired one of Picasso's greatest paintings. The Basque language is unique, and no relationship to any other has ever been clearly established. Two noted Jesuit missionaries were Basques: St. Ignatius of Loyola, born in 1491, and St. Francis Xavier, born in 1506.

BASRA [Bussora, Bussorah] [Arabic: Al-Basrah; former: Busra, Busrah, Al-Busrah] (Iraq)

City in SE Iraq, on the SHATT-AL-ARAB, the only port in the country. It was founded in A.D. 638 by Umar I, the second Islamic caliph. The city flourished as a cultural and intellectual center into the ninth century, especially under Harun al-Rashid, the fifth Abbasid caliph, who ruled from 786 to 809. Persians and Turks fought over it, and it declined as the ABBASID CALIPHATE lost power. The Mongols invaded the area in the 13th century, and the Turks captured Basra in 1668. In World War II the British occupied the city in 1941. The first Islamic mosque of architectural importance was built here in 665, and the city occurs in The Arabian Nights' Entertainments. Its modern importance stems from the oil fields in the area. It was the object of heavy fighting during the Iran-Iraq war beginning in September 1980. Basra was also the object of fighting in the Gulf War of 1992 and a Shiite uprising there after the Gulf War was brutally put down by the Baath government of Sadaam Hussein. Basra was taken and occupied by British troops in the Iraq War in 2003.

BASSAE (Greece)

Ancient site high in the mountains of SW ARCADIA, 9 mi S of ANDRITSAINA, PELOPONNESUS, Greece. A remarkably preserved ancient Doric temple of Apollo was discovered here in 1765 and excavated in 1812. It was designed by Ictinus, architect of the Parthenon in ATHENS, c. 430 B.C. It features unusual engaged Ionic columns and a single example of a Corinthian column, the earliest known, in its cella, or interior. The temple is currently being dismantled and restored. It was supposedly a gift to Apollo from the people of Phigalia, approximately 5 miles to the east, who had delivered them from a plague. The sculptured frieze in the temple's cella, known as the Phigalian Marbles, was removed to the British Museum in London in 1814. Bassae was the first Greek site to be put on UNESCO's World Heritage list.

Phigalia itself, or Phigaleia, was a border town on the borders of ELIS and MESSENIA and had a reputation for wizardry and witchcraft. Ruins of its walls and towers have survived.

BASSANO [Bassona del Grappa] (Italy)

Town in NE Italy, in Vicenza province, VENETO region, on the left bank of the Brenta River, at the foot of Monte Grappa, 17 mi NE of VICENZA. Bassano achieved importance between 1036 and 1259 under the Ezzelini family. In the 12th century they built a Romanesque church and in the 13th century a castle, which encloses the cathedral. In 1404 Bassano joined the Venetian republic. Jacopo da Ponte, one of a line of painters surnamed Bassano, was the center of a flourishing art school here in the 16th century, and many of his works remain. Between 1650 and 1850 the Remondini printing and publishing plant here was famous throughout Europe. On September 8, 1796, Napoleon defeated the Austrians here and made Bassano a duchy, subsequently conferring it upon Maret in 1809. There was heavy fighting in and around Monte Grappa in both world wars.

BASSEIN [former: Vasai] (India)

Town and port in MAHARASHTRA state, on the Arabian Sea, 26 mi N of MUMBAI, W India. The capital of the Hindu Devagiri Yadavas, it was later a port of the Muslim kings of GUJARAT and became a prosperous Portuguese trading station in the 16th century. It fell to the Marathas in 1739 and to the British in 1780. The Treaty of Bassein of December 31, 1802, was a decisive step in the breakup of the MARATHA CONFEDERATION.

BASSETERRE See GUADALOUPE, ST. KITTSNEVIS, West Indies

BASSONA DEL GRAPPA See BASSANOBAST See BUBASTISBASTAM See BUSTAMBASTENAKEN See BASTOGNEBASTI See BAZABASTIA [former: Marina di Cardo] (France)

Port and largest city of NE CORSICA, 65 mi NE of AJACCIO on the TYRRHENIAN SEA. The Genoese made Cardo the capital of Corsica in 1480, and it remained so until 1791. The city welcomed union with France but opposed the anticlericalism of the French Revolution. Heavily bombed in World War II, it was liberated by the Allies in 1943.

BASTOGNE [Flemish: Bastenaken] (Belgium)

Town in Luxembourg province, 45 mi S of LIÈGE, in the ARDENNES, S Belgium. During the Battle of the Bulge, the German counteroffensive of 1944 in World War II, this town was held by U.S. forces under General McAuliffe and successfully resisted German attack from December 20 to 26, thus helping to thwart their offensive.

BASUTOLAND See LESOTHOBATAAN PENINSULA (Philippines)

Peninsula of LUZON, largest of the archipelago islands, bounded on the W by the South China Sea and E by Manila Bay. In World War II the U.S. and Filipino troops under General Douglas MacArthur made their final retreat here after the fall of MANILA to the Japanese on January 10, 1942. On April 9, 1942, the surrender of 12,000 U.S. troops and 64,000 Filipinos at the town of Mariveles on the southern tip of Bataan was the worst capitulation in U.S. history. A few troops were able to retreat farther to the fortified island of CORREGIDOR just off the peninsula, but they, too, surrendered on May 6, 1942 after a desperate resistance. After the surrenders, U.S. and Filipino prisoners were forced to march north under such harsh conditions that 7,000 to 10,000 died; the event became known as the Bataan Death March. U.S. troops reconquered Bataan on February 15, 1945. Today the area overlooking Manila Bay is a national shrine.

BATALHA (Portugal)

Town in Beira Litoral province, 6 mi S of LEIRIA, W central Portugal. Portuguese independence was secured in 1385 by the Battle of ALJUBARROTA, fought near Batalha, in which John I of Portugal defeated John I of CASTILE. A great Dominican abbey was built to celebrate this victory; although sacked by the French in 1810, it still dominates the town.

BATAVIA See JAKARTA, JAVABATAVIAN REPUBLIC (Netherlands)

Former puppet nation that replaced the UNITED PROVINCES of the Netherlands from 1795 to 1806, following the invasion by FRANCE during the French Revolutionary Wars. Organized in 1795, the republic had a new constitution imposed on it by Napoleon I in 1801. During its short history it was ruined financially by the French. In 1806 Napoleon transformed the republic into the kingdom of HOLLAND with his brother Louis as king. It took its name from the Batavi, an ancient German tribe that settled in the RHINE RIVER delta in the first century B.C.

BATDAMBANG [Battambang] (Cambodia)

City and capital of Batdambang province, 160 mi NW of PNOM PENH. An ancient Khmer town, it was controlled by the Siamese from 1794 to 1904 and from 1941 to 1946. Today it is the second-largest city of Cambodia and has 10th-century remains of the Khmer Empire.

BATH [ancient: Aquae Solis] (England)

City 12 mi SE of BRISTOL and on the Avon River. With the only natural hot springs in the country, Bath was a popular resort as early as Roman times, and some of the most important of their remains in England are found here. The Romans came upon the springs in the middle of the first century A.D. and built luxurious lead-lined baths, but in the Anglo-Saxon era the baths were destroyed. The Anglo-Saxons built an abbey here where Edgar, first king of all England, was crowned in 973. The Normans rebuilt the church between 1088 and 1122, and the city was chartered in 1189.

After Queen Anne paid a visit to Bath in 1703, it became a fashionable resort and two years later attracted Richard “Beau” Nash, a gambler and man-about-town, who proceeded to organize the social life of the city around the hot springs. He backed the opening of two assembly rooms, drew up rules of dress and etiquette for the pump room, and became the autocrat of Bath. In this period the architect John Wood the Elder and his son of the same name brought further distinction to what was now the most fashionable spa in England. They designed and built handsome Georgian style buildings, mostly as groups of houses rather than single structures. Among them were Queen’s Square between 1728 and 1735; the Circus in 1754; and the Royal Crescent between 1767 and 1775. The remains of the Roman baths were not discovered until 1755. Since then excavations have revealed the extent and splendor of the Roman spa, including some remains of the temple to the goddess Minerva. Many of the finds can be seen in a museum here.

Bath’s popularity declined in the 19th century but returned in the 20th. During World War II the British government moved many government offices here, and an air raid in 1942 destroyed the Assembly Rooms of 1771. They were rebuilt in 1963. Besides the baths, a main attraction is the 16th-century abbey church of St. Peter and St. Paul. English literature has numerous associations with Bath, as in some of the novels of Jane Austen and Tobias Smollett and the plays of Richard Sheridan. The Bath chair, a hooded wheelchair used especially for invalids, takes its name from the city.

BATHURST See GAMBIA

BATHYS See BATUMI

BATJAN See BACAN

BATOCHE (Canada)

Village on the South Saskatchewan River, 40 mi SSW of PRINCE ALBERT. During the Riel uprising, sparked by the incorporation of the NORTHWEST TERRITORIES into the Dominion of Canada, Louis Riel and his Métis occupied Batoche on May 12, 1885. The village was retaken by Canadian militia, and Riel was captured and executed as a traitor.

BATON ROUGE (United States)

City and state capital in SE LOUISIANA, on the east bank of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER. The French built a fort here in 1719 for strategic reasons, but they were forced to cede the fort and settlement to GREAT BRITAIN in 1762. Spain captured it in 1779 and, after being part of Spanish Florida, it was acquired by the United States in 1815. Baton Rouge became the state capital in 1849, but the capital was moved to SHREVEPORT during the Civil War. Union forces captured the city in 1862, and a Confederate attempt later that year failed to retake it. It became the capital again in 1882. Baton Rouge was the headquarters of Huey Long, who dominated Louisiana politics from the late 1920s until his assassination in September 1935. The city is a busy port and energy industry center.

BATTAMBANG See BATDAMBANG

BATTICALOA [Singhalese: Mudde Kalapuwa] (Sri Lanka)

Town on the E coast of Sri Lanka, 180 mi ENE of COLOMBO. It is the capital of Eastern Province. Captured by the Portuguese in 1622, it passed to the Dutch in 1638 and to the British in 1796. Ruins of Portuguese and Dutch forts remain. In December 2004, a devastating tsunami struck the region causing heavy losses of life and property.

BATTLE (England)

Village in East SUSSEX on the site of the Battle of HASTINGS, 5 mi NW of the seaside resort of Hastings. The battle was fought on what was then a moorland between William the Conqueror, then duke of NORMANDY and Harold, king of England, on October 14, 1066. Harold was defeated and killed in this decisive engagement of the Norman Conquest. The ruins of Battle Abbey, built by William the Conqueror to commemorate his victory may still be seen. Part of the abbey is now a girls school.

BATTLE CREEK (United States)

City in S MICHIGAN, at the confluence of the Kalamazoo and Battle Creek Rivers, approximately 22 mi E of KALAMAZOO. Settled in 1831, the city was a Seventh-Day Adventist colony. In 1866 the Adventists established the Western Health Reform Institute, renamed the Battle Creek Sanitarium in 1876 and the Battle Creek Health Center in 1959. The manager in 1876 was Dr. John H. Kellogg, who developed a dry, pre-cooked breakfast cereal, “Corn flakes,” that became very popular. When his brother Will K. Kellogg, took over, he made corn flakes known worldwide. Battle Creek ever since has been famous as a manufacturing center for cereals; the Post Company is also located here. The Kellogg Foundation, a philanthropic trust established in 1930 is one of the most heavily-endowed of such institutions. Sojourner Truth, the freed black slave who became an effective spokeswoman for abolition and woman's rights, lived here for some years.

120 Battleford

BATTLEFORD (Canada)

Town in W SASKATCHEWAN, at the junction of the Battle and North Saskatchewan rivers, 80 mi W of SASKATOON. A trading post founded in 1875, it was the capital of the NORTHWEST TERRITORIES during 1876–82 and of the Saskatoon district from 1882 to 1905. In 1855 Louis Riel led an unsuccessful uprising here to secure title to lands in Saskatchewan. During this uprising known as the Second Riel Rebellion, Indians occupied Battleford for a while.

BATTLE GROUND (United States) See TIPPECANOE

BATUM See BATUMI

BATUMI [ancient: Bathys, Vati; former: Batum] (Georgia)

Capital of the Ajarian Autonomous Republic in Georgia, on a gulf of the BLACK SEA, 160 mi W of TBILISI, near the Turkish border. A small port under Mithridates of PONTUS, it became a Roman outpost and was part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE by the end of the sixth century A.D. Destroyed by the Arabs, and by Tamerlane (c. 1336–1405), Batum was eventually captured by the Turks in 1564 but was ceded to RUSSIA in 1878 by the Treaty of BERLIN. Its development as an oil port fostered revolutionary activity, and Stalin was imprisoned here in 1902. Occupied by the Turks in 1918, it was finally returned to the USSR in 1921. Batumi is now a commercial center and port as well as the last stop of the Trans-Caucasian Railroad and BAKU oil pipeline.

BAUDISSIN See BAUTZEN

BAUTZEN [Slavic: Baudissin; Wendish: Budissin] (Germany)

City on the Spree River, 32 mi ENE of DRESDEN. Founded in the 10th century, it was contested by POLAND, MEISSEN, BRANDENBURG, and BOHEMIA, with Bohemia eventually winning. It was the site of the Peace of Bautzen between the German emperor Henry II and the Polish king Boleslaw I in 1018. It became German in 1033 and Bohemian in 1319. In 1634, during the Thirty Years' War, its defending commander had it burned before turning it over to SAXONY, to which it was officially awarded as a war indemnity by the Peace of Prague in 1635. On May 20–21, 1813, it was the scene of a great battle between Napoleon's armies and those of RUSSIA and PRUSSIA. Although it was a victory for Napoleon, he lost more troops than he could afford, and the vanquished were able to withdraw in good order. Bautzen is the site of Ortenburg castle, built between 1483 and 1486, and of St. Peter's church, 1220–1497, shared after 1523 by Roman Catholics and Protestants. Since 1921 the church has been a Roman Catholic cathedral and the seat of the bishop of Meissen. After World War II, it found itself part of the GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC, until the reunification of Germany in 1990. The city is a cultural center for the Sorbs, a Slavic minority in Germany.

BAUZANUM See BOLZANO

BAVARIA (Germany)

Duchy, kingdom, and republic, presently the largest state of Germany, located in the SE, bordered by BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG on the W, the Czech Republic on the E, and SWITZERLAND and AUSTRIA on the S. MUNICH is its capital, with NUREMBERG an important second city. Its deep penetration by the DANUBE RIVER and its valley has provided a natural avenue for both migration and invasion.

First occupied by the Celts, it was taken by the Romans under Drusus (38 B.C.–9 B.C.) and became part of the provinces of RAETIA and NORICUM. In the breakup of the ROMAN EMPIRE in the fifth century, it was devastated by the Lombards under Odoacer. Following this, the Marcomanni and Baiuvarii moved westward along the Danube Valley to settle in the Bavarian region between c. A.D. 490 and 520. From the sixth to the eighth centuries Bavaria was dominated by the Frankish kingdom. When Charles Martel defeated the Frankish duke Fassilo III in 788, it became part of the Carolingian Empire. Christianization of the region was begun by Scottish and Irish monks and completed by St. Boniface in the eighth century. With the division of Charlemagne's empire in 817 and 843, Bavaria joined the East Frankish kingdom until 911 when it began a period of rule by indigenous sovereigns.

In the High Middle Ages Frederick I Barbarossa, the Hohenstaufen emperor, restored Bavaria to Henry the Lion, then deposed him, and in 1180 gave the duchy to Otto of Wittelsbach, who initiated a dynasty that would rule Bavaria until 1918. Indeed, the Wittelsbachs demonstrated remarkable resourcefulness, initiative, and adaptation. With the onset of the Thirty Years' War, Duke Maximilian I was in the vanguard of the Catholic League, a service that later yielded him the rank of elector and the territory of the Upper PALATINATE in 1648.

Over and over again Bavaria's agricultural abundance and strategic location made it a particularly desirable prize. The 18th century brought invasions in the wars of the Spanish, Austrian, and Bavarian successions. With invasion by Napoleon and the French in 1799, Bavarian elector Maximilian IV Joseph joined Napoleon, united all the family lands, became a member of the CONFEDERATION OF THE RHINE, and was made Bavarian king Maximilian I. In 1813, with Napoleon nearing defeat, Maximilian broke his alliance, joined the allies, and returned from the Congress of Vienna in full possession of all of present Bavaria.

Bavarian power during the 19th century was held successively by three Wittelsbachs who shared a love for the arts: King Louis I, Maximilian II, and Louis II. Their combined efforts and support established Munich as the cultural center that flourishes to the present day. With Otto von Bismarck's achievement of German unification in 1871, Bavaria became a state in the GERMAN EMPIRE.

Following World War I the Bavarian king Louis III, last of the Wittelsbachs, was deposed by Kurt Eisner, who established a short-lived socialist republic. Eisner was assassinated a few months later, and a communist revolution erupted, only to be bloodily suppressed by the German army. A center for movements of both the radical left and right in the first part of the 20th century, Bavaria nevertheless joined the WEIMAR Republic. Early in the 1920s, however, Hitler's National Socialism was born in Munich. Though his famous Munich Beer Hall Putsch of 1923 failed, Bavaria came under Hitler in 1933 when he acceded to power in Germany. Following World War II Bavaria became part of the U.S. zone of occupation until 1949, when it joined the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany). Bavaria is now a major industrial center. In 2005, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, a native of Bavaria, was elected pope as Benedict XVI.

BAXAR See BUXAR

BAYAMO [San Salvador de Bayamo] (Cuba)

Town in E Cuba on the Bayamo River, 27 mi E of MANZANILLO. It was founded in 1514 and was an important inland port through the 18th century, using the route of the Bayamo and Cauto rivers to the Gulf of Guacanayabo. Because of its proximity to Manzanillo, it retained its importance even after a violent flood in 1616 jammed the Cauto with debris and left it unnavigable. Bayamo dealt heavily in contraband and other clandestine traffic and was the center of revolutionary unrest against SPAIN in the Ten Years' War of 1868–78 and again in 1895 and 1898. It was here that Calixto García Iñiguez in 1898 received the "message to García" immortalized in the writing of Elbert Hubbard; the town also gave Cuba the name of its national anthem, el Himno Bayamés.

BAYAMÓN (United States)

Town in PUERTO RICO, a suburb of SAN JUAN. Although Bayamón's official founding date is 1772, this area is traditionally the site of one of the oldest communities in Puerto Rico. Nearby are Fort Buchanan and the ruins of the earlier colonial settlement of CAPARRA.

BAYAZID See DOGUBAYAZIT

BAYAZIT See DOGUBAYAZIT

BAYEUX [ancient: Augustodurum, Baiocassium, Bajocasses] (France)

Town in the Calvados department in NORMANDY, 15 mi NW of CAEN and 5 mi S of the ENGLISH CHANNEL. Originally a Roman town it became a bishopric after the fourth century A.D. Norsemen captured it in 890, and it changed hands during many wars between the 12th and 16th centuries. In 1105, it was burned by Henry I of ENGLAND, but parts of the church survived and are now included in a memorable Gothic cathedral completed in the 13th century. A museum houses the Bayeux Tapestry, a priceless 11th-century embroidery in eight colors with 72 panels recording the conquest of England in 1066 by William the Conqueror,

122 Bayley's Reward

duke of Normandy. It was one of the first towns liberated during the Normandy Invasion in World War II.

BAYLEY'S REWARD See COOLGARDIE

BAY OF PIGS [Spanish: Bahia de Cochinos] (Cuba)

Bay on the S coast of Cuba, approximately 250 mi E of the W tip of Cuba. On April 17, 1961, it was the site of an attempted invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles trained, armed, and directed by the United States. It was intended to overthrow the government of Premier Fidel Castro. Of the force of 1,200, 1,113 were captured and imprisoned. The U.S. government denied official responsibility for the invasion, and the prisoners were exchanged for a ransom of $53,000,000 in food and medicine raised by private citizens and groups between December 1962 and July 1965.

BAYONNE [ancient: Lapurdum] (France)

An ancient city of the Basses-Pyrénées department of France, 55 mi WNW of PAU and five mi S of the Bay of Biscay. In the third century A.D. it was a Roman military post. In the Middle Ages it belonged to the dukes of AQUITAINE and, after the marriage of Eleanor of Aquitaine to Henry II Plantagenet in 1152, to the kings of ENGLAND. Bayonne was finally occupied by France in 1451. It is believed that Catherine de' Medici (Médicis) and the duke of Alva met here in 1565 to plan the Massacre of St. Bartholomew. In 1808 Napoleon met here with Charles IV of SPAIN and his son, Ferdinand VII, to force their abdication of the Spanish throne in favor of Napoleon's brother, Joseph. The city was a center of arms manufacture in the Middle Ages; in the 17th century the bayonet was invented here and named for the city. Spanish Basques sought refuge here in the 20th century from repression during Spain's Franco regime.

BAYONNE (United States)

City in NE NEW JERSEY, 5 mi SW of JERSEY CITY on a peninsula that separates Newark Bay and Upper New York Bay. This site was visited by Henry Hudson in 1609 during his explorations for England. The first settlement was that of Dutch traders in 1646. In 1664 the English took possession of the region. Bayonne was incorporated as a city in 1869. It has been known for its oil refineries since 1875 and is the northern terminus of a pipeline system that includes the Big Inch, a line that runs almost 1,500 miles from TEXAS. Bayonne is connected to STATEN ISLAND by the Bayonne bridge, the third-largest steel arch bridge in the world.

BAYREUTH [Baireuth] (Germany)

Capital city of Upper FRANCONIA in BAVARIA, 41 mi NE of NUREMBERG. Founded in 1194 by Bishop Otto II of Bamberg, it belonged to the Hohenzollerns from 1248 until 1791, when it was taken by PRUSSIA. Occupied by FRANCE during the Napoleonic Wars in 1807, it passed to Bavaria in 1810, and became famous as the home of composer Richard Wagner from 1872 until 1883. During his residence Wagner designed the Festspielhaus, an opera house built between 1872 and 1876 and known for its remarkable acoustical qualities. The city is the burial place of both Wagner and Franz Liszt and is the scene of several important music festivals, the most notable of which is the Bayreuth Festival focusing on Wagner's works.

BAYRUT See BEIRUT

BAYSAN See BETH-SHAN

BAYTIN See BETHEL

BAYT LAHM See BETHLEHEM

BAZA [ancient: Basti] (Spain)

City in Granada province, ANDALUSIA, 52 mi ENE of GRANADA, S Spain. A Roman and Moorish town, Baza was captured from the Moors in December 1489 by the Spanish under Ferdinand V of LEÓN and CASTILE after a seven-month siege.

BAZARDZHIK See TOLBUKHIN

BDIN See VIDIN

BEACHEY HEAD (England)

A high chalk cliff between BRIGHTON and EASTBOURNE, in East SUSSEX, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL. On June 30, 1690, it was the scene of a naval battle during the War of the Grand Alliance, when 37 English and 22 Dutch ships under English command were anchored off Beachey Head, while 70 French ships were anchored some miles away. The outnumbered Anglo-Dutch forces attacked prematurely and were soundly defeated. The English commander was later tried for his conduct but was acquitted.

BEACON (United States)

City in NEW YORK State, on the HUDSON RIVER, opposite NEWBURGH. The area was settled in 1663 and incorporated under its present name in 1913, when the villages of Fishkill Landing and Matteawan were united. Industry came after the War of 1812 when John Jacob Astor, the early American entrepreneur, and associates built a cotton mill and foundry here. During 1902–75, an incline railway ascended Mt. Beacon, at the top of which there is a monument to soldiers of the American Revolution who built signal fires here to warn of the movement of British troops. There are historic buildings, including the Madam Brett Homestead of 1709.

BEACONSFIELD (England)

Town in BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, 22 mi WNW of LONDON. A residential and commuter town, it has associations with several noted Englishmen. Edmund Burke, the statesman and political writer, purchased an estate in Beaconsfield in 1768 and is buried here. Benjamin Disraeli, novelist as well as prime minister, bought an estate, Hughenden Manor, one mile north of nearby HIGH WYCOMBE in 1848. When Queen Victoria created him an earl in 1876 he chose as his title earl of Beaconsfield. Edmund Waller, the 17th-century poet, and G. K. Chesterton, popular modern author, are buried here.

BEAR FLAG REPUBLIC See CALIFORNIA

BÉARN [ancient: Beneharnum, Lescar] (France)

Region in SW France, bounded on the S by SPAIN and on the other three sides by GASCONY. It is now the Basses-Pyrénées department of France. Its capital, PAU, is approximately 100 mi S of BORDEAUX. Under the Romans it was part of AQUITAIN but was then overrun by Vandals, Visigoths, and Saracens. In the 13th century it held the viscounty of Béarn, which struggled to maintain independence from the English and the French. At the end of the century it passed to the counts of FOIX who became kings of NAVARRE. Jeanne d'Albret, queen of Navarre and Béarn, imposed Protestantism on the Béarnese. From the 11th century on it was noted for its spirit of independence and its delineation of the rights of the sovereign, viscount, and vassals, expressed in a code of customs called the fors. Béarn formally became united with France in 1620.

BEAR PAW MOUNTAIN (United States)

Battle site in MONTANA, 30 mi S of the Canadian border. Here on September 30, 1877, U.S. forces forced the capitulation of the Nez Percé Indians under Chief Joseph during their attempt to flee to CANADA. The battle marked the end of the Nez Percé War. See also BIG HOLE.

BEAUCAIRE [ancient: Belli Quadrum, Ugernum] (France)

Town in the Gère department of Languedoc-Roussillon in S France on the right bank of the RHÔNE RIVER, opposite TARASCON, 15 mi E of NÎMES. Beaucaire occupies the site of the Roman city of Ugernum. In 1125 it came into the possession of the counts of TOULOUSE. In 1168 it started holding an annual trade fair whose success was later aided by its location, along a canal system only 40 miles from the MEDITERRANEAN SEA at AIGUES-MORTES. In 1217 Raymond VI granted special privileges to the fair, which at its peak attracted 300,000 visitors annually. Beaucaire suffered under the Wars of Religion, and in 1632 its castle was dismantled by Cardinal Richelieu, chief minister of Louis XIII; only the chapel and one of the triangular towers remain. With the advent of the railways the fair rapidly declined in importance.

BEAUFORT (United States)

City in SOUTH CAROLINA, on PORT ROYAL ISLAND, one of the SEA ISLANDS, approximately 50 mi SW of CHARLESTON. The site was visited by the Spanish in 1521, and in 1562 French Huguenots attempted a settlement. The English secured possession in 1670, and in 1684 another settlement was attempted, this time by Scottish Covenanters, members of a stern group sworn to uphold the Presbyterian religion. The British built a fort here in 1711, and civilian settlement began about the same time, making Beaufort the second-oldest town in South Carolina. During the American Revolution it was taken by the British. In November 1861 the Union navy secured the area and held it against the Confederates until the end of the Civil War. There are many old buildings, including an Episcopal church of 1724. The region is a year-round vacation resort.

124 Beaugency

BEAUGENCY (France)

Town in the Loiret department, on the LOIRE RIVER, 15 mi SW of ORLÉANS, central France. It was the home of powerful lords from the 11th to 13th centuries. The Council of Beaugency of 1104 excommunicated Philippe I, and the second council in 1152 annulled the marriage of Louis VII and Eleanor of Aquitaine. The town fell to the English four times during the Hundred Years' War and was liberated by Joan of Arc in 1429. During the Franco-Prussian War, in December 1870, the Germans defeated the French NW of the town.

BEAUJOLAIS (France)

Region W of the SAÔNE RIVER, between MÂCON to the N and LYONS to the S, and in the Rhône department of E central France. Beaujolais developed out of a feudal lordship formed around the village of Beaujeu in the 10th century. In 1400 Edward of Beaujeu gave up his lands to the dukes of BOURBON, who held them until the early 16th century. At that time these holdings passed to Louise of SAVOY, mother of Francis I of France, and in 1531 became part of the French royal domain. VILLEFRANCHE-SUR-SAÔNE is the center of the Beaujolais wine trade. The region is world-famous for this red Beaujolais wine.

BEAULIEU (England)

Village in HAMPSHIRE, 7 mi S of SOUTHAMPTON. It is the site of the ruins of Beaulieu Abbey, a wealthy Cistercian house founded by King John in 1204. Beaulieu Abbey is now a famous stately home. Also located nearby is the National Motor Museum.

BEAUMONT (United States)

City in SE TEXAS, approximately 73 mi E of HOUSTON, on the deep-water Sabine-Neches Waterway, which was completed in 1916 and which made Beaumont an important port. Settlement began shortly before 1835, and through the 19th century the city was a busy lumbering and shipbuilding center, in an agricultural area. The course of Beaumont's economic life changed completely when the world's first great oil gusher was tapped in the nearby Spindletop field. The city has many refineries and petrochemical plants and is one of the foremost oil cities of the United States. The Spindletop field is now a historic site, marked by the Lucas Gusher Monument, a granite shaft 58 ft tall.

BEAUNE [ancient: Belna] (France)

Town in E France, 22 mi SSW of DIJON. It was a Roman military camp. During the Middle Ages it became the capital of a separate county that was added to the duchy of Burgundy in 1227 and served thereafter as the seat of the dukes of BURGUNDY. In the Wars of Religion Beaune first supported the Catholic League but then joined the forces of Henry IV, who confirmed its communal privileges. The revocation of the Edict of NANTES in 1685 drove out its Protestant workers and dealt its commerce a heavy blow. It is now an important center of the French wine industry. The Romanesque 12th-century church of Notre Dame has striking Flemish tapestries, and the hospital of St. Éspirit of 1443 contains many art treasures, including an altarpiece, The Last Judgment, by Roger van der Weyden.

BEAUSÉJOUR, FORT See FORT BEAUSÉJOUR

BEAUVAIS [ancient: Bellovacum, Caesaromagus] (France)

City in the Oise department, approximately 45 mi NW of PARIS. It was the capital of the Gallic tribe of the Bellovaci and later became a Roman town. In the ninth century A.D. it became a countship, passing on to the bishops of Beauvais in 1013. It was a center of the Jacquerie, a peasant uprising in 1358, and in 1472 it was besieged by the duke of BURGUNDY. He was repelled in part by the heroism of the women of Beauvais under the leadership of Jeanne Hachette, whose memory is preserved every October 14 by a procession in which the women take precedence over the men. The cathedral of St. Pierre, begun in 1247, was intended to be the tallest building in the Christian world, but in 1284 construction was delayed by the collapse of overly ambitious vaulting and again in 1573 by a similar accident to the central tower. Although repaired, the cathedral was never finished. Carved wooden doors, an astronomical clock, and outstanding stained-glass windows represent some of the finest work of French Gothic and Renaissance styles of the 13th through the 17th centuries. The stained glass of the church of St. Étienne shows the transition from Romanesque to Gothic styles. Commercially, Beauvais flourished in the Middle Ages, and again in the 17th century when it was the center of the royal tapestry manufacture.

BEAVER DAM CREEK See MECHANICSVILLE

BEAVER ISLAND (United States)

Island in LAKE MICHIGAN, in MICHIGAN, 75 mi S of SAULT SAINTE MARIE. From 1847 to 1856 James J. Strang headed a Mormon settlement here. In 1850 he proclaimed himself king of New Zion. He was killed six years later by rebellious subjects, after which the group disintegrated.

BEBENHAUSEN (Germany)

Town just N of TÜBINGEN, 15 mi SSW of STUTTGART. It is the site of a Cistercian monastery founded in 1190 and of a royal hunting castle dating from 1807.

BECHARRI See BSHARRI

BECHUANALAND See BOTSWANA

BEDANFORDA See BEDFORD

BEDCANFORDA See BEDFORD

BEDEFORD See BEDFORD

BEDEWE See MEROË

BEDFORD [ancient: Bedanforda, Bedcanforda, Bedeford] (England)

Town and administrative headquarters of BEDFORDSHIRE, 45 mi N of LONDON on the Ouse River. There is evidence here of human habitation as early as the Paleolithic age. Bedford was first mentioned in A.D. 571 when Cuthwulf defeated the Britons here. The entire county was laid waste by King Canute in 1015. It offered little resistance to the Norman invasion of 1066, and the Domesday Book, compiled in 1085–86, shows more Norman than Anglo-Saxon names for the area. There are many parish churches of pre- and post-Conquest origin and excellent examples of both Decorated and Perpendicular styles. During the Puritan revolution of 1603–49 it was a haven for Puritans. John Bunyan was born in Elstow, very near Bedford, in 1628 and preached in Bedford. The Crown imprisoned him here from 1660 to 1672 for illegal preaching, but apparently under lenient conditions. During that time he wrote several books, including Pilgrim's Progress. The seat of the dukes of Bedford is WOBURN Abbey, built on a monastic foundation in 1747.

BEDFORD [former: Bedford Village] (United States)

Village in SE NEW YORK State, approximately 25 NNE of NEW YORK CITY. It was settled in 1680 by 22 farmers from the STAMFORD, CONNECTICUT, area. They purchased land from local Indian chiefs, one of whom was named Katonah. The township of Bedford, which included other settlements, was formed in 1682. At this time Bedford was in Connecticut, but in 1700 the region became part of New York by British royal decree. In 1779, during the American Revolution, the village was burned by the British.

BEDFORDSHIRE (England)

Midland county in the Ouse River basin. It is famous for its author John Bunyan, and for the philanthropist John Howard. The administrative headquarters is BEDFORD.

BEDFORD VILLAGE See BEDFORD

BEDLOE'S ISLAND See LIBERTY ISLAND

BEDZIN [German: Bendzin; Russian: Bendin] (Poland)

Town, approximately 80 mi SW of KIELCE. A castle and surrounding settlement existed here as early as the 13th century, and the town was formally founded in the 14th century. Bedzin was on the trade route between WROCLAW and Kraków, and in the 17th century was noted for crafts and cloth. It passed to PRUSSIA in 1795, to RUSSIA in 1815, and to Poland in 1919. In World War II it was the site of a German concentration camp in which 10,000 people perished.

BEERSHEBA [Hebrew: Be'er Sheva] (Israel)

Ancient city, 50 mi SW of JERUSALEM, on the extreme southern border of old PALESTINE. This location gave rise to the biblical expression, "from DAN to Beersheba," meaning the whole of Palestine. The name probably derives from the Hebrew for "seven wells," of which several remain. In the fourth century A.D. it was a large city and Roman garrison town on a major caravan route. Bronze age shards and fortress ruins have been found nearby. It was a significant holy place in biblical history.

Beersheba was taken by the British in the Palestine campaign of 1917 and given to the Arabs in the partition of Palestine in 1948. After the State of Israel was proclaimed on May 14, 1948, Israeli forces continued to push to the east through the Negev, and Beersheba was in their hands when a final armistice was reached in January 1949.

BE'ER SHEVA See BEERSHEBA

BEHAR See BIHAR

BEHDET See EDFU

BEHISTUN [Bisitun, Bisutun] (Iran)

Rock face or cliff on the Hamadān-Kermānshāh highway in the mountains of W Iran, approximately 20 mi E of KERMĀNShĀH. In 516 B.C. Darius the Great of the Persian Achaemenid Empire had a record of his victories carved on the face of the cliff in cuneiform letters. The inscriptions were in Old Persian, Babylonian, and Elamite languages side by side. The cliff face below the inscriptions was cut away to hinder defacement. Despite these difficulties, in the early 19th century British diplomat and scholar Sir Henry Rawlinson, employing ladders and scaffolding, reached the inscriptions and managed to copy them between 1835 and 1847. His decipherment of the inscriptions provided scholars thereafter with the means of reading the cuneiform script of the whole early civilization of MESOPOTAMIA, from SUMER to PERSIA.

BEHNESA See OXYRHYNCHUS

BEIHAI [Pakhoi, Pei-Hai] [former: Packhoi] (China)

Port in GUANGXI province, SE China. Located in the area of China's most bountiful pearl beds, it was opened as a treaty port in 1877.

BEIJING [former: Cambaluc, Peking, Peiping] (China)

City in NE China, the capital of the People's Republic of China and its political and cultural center, as well as an important industrial and financial hub. While the region has been inhabited since prehistoric times, Beijing was the site of a number of cities with various names dating from 723 B.C. In the second century B.C. it was the capital of the Yen kingdom, and the Han dynasty (206 B.C.–A.D. 220) built a new town here. Under the Khitan Tatars, Beijing was an important city from the 10th to 12th centuries. Its greatest period, however, came after Kublai Khan, the MONGOL conqueror, deposed the Song (Sung) dynasty and between 1260 and 1290 built a new city on the site, which he called CAMBALUC. It was this city that the famous traveler from VENICE, Marco Polo, reached in 1275. Beijing, under that name, was the capital of China from 1421 to 1911. It was captured in 1644 by the Manchus from MANCHURIA who established the Qing (Ch'ing), or Manchu, dynasty, the last in China.

In the 19th century European nations began to put pressure on China for trade and other concessions, and in 1860 this led to a battle between the Chinese and the British and French at Baliqiao (Pa-li-ch'iao), a village near Beijing. The Europeans won and received the right to station diplomats at Beijing's imperial court. This and other signs of European arrogance resulted in the Boxer Rebellion, led by an antiforeign secret society, which in June 1900 besieged the foreign quarter of the city. The siege was lifted in August by an international military force that fought its way into the city. Beijing changed hands several times during the civil wars that ensued after China became a republic in 1911. The Second Sino-Japanese War began at the MARCO POLO BRIDGE, nine miles southwest of Beijing, on July 7, 1937, when a clash between troops of the two nations was used by the Japanese as an excuse to occupy the city. In January 1949 Beijing was taken by the Chinese communists, who made it their capital. In the late 1960s and early 1970s Beijing became the focus of the Cultural Revolution. In February 1972 the city hosted a Summit Meeting between U.S. president Richard Nixon and Mao Zedong and Premier Zhou Enlai, which resulted in a communiqué promising closer relations between the two countries.

Beijing consists of two districts that once were completely walled and had monumental gates. They are the Outer or Chinese City and the Inner or Tatar City. Within the Inner City is the Forbidden City where the emperor lived, the Imperial City with its government offices, and the legation quarter for foreign diplomats. The Forbidden City is now a museum. One of Beijing's many interesting and spectacular sights is the Temple of Heaven, dating from the 15th century, with a white marble altar. Beijing has expanded greatly. In the 1960s, the old city wall was demolished to allow the construction of the second ring road. The city has since expanded out to third, fourth, fifth and now sixth ring roads. In 1989, prodemocracy protests in Tiananmen (Tienanmen) Square brought international attention to popular calls for reform in China. The 2008 Summer Olympic will be held in Beijing.

BEIRA (Mozambique)

City and port in E central Mozambique, SE Africa, on the Mozambique Channel, at the mouth of the Púngoè River, named for BEIRA in PORTUGAL. It is Mozambique's chief port and second-largest city. Although Arab and Swahili traders were active in the area from A.D. 1000, the present city was founded in 1891 on the site of an old Arab settlement as the headquarters of the Mozambique Company. Its growth was aided by its position as the terminus of a railroad into the interior. In 2000, most of southern Mozambique, including Beira, was devastated by flooding.

BEIRA (Portugal)

Region and former province in N central Portugal, S of the DOURO RIVER. In the eighth century A.D. it came under the control of the Moors, who conquered the entire IBERIAN PENINSULA. In the mid-11th century Ferdinand I of CASTILE drove out the Moors, taking COIMBRA in 1047 and VISEU in 1058. The Moors, however, continued to attempt to regain the region into the 13th century. Beira was later the scene of frequent conflicts between the Portuguese and the Castilians. In 1835 the region was divided into five districts, and in 1936 three provinces were formed from it—Beira Alta, Beira Baixa, and Beira Litoral.

BEIRUT [Bayrut] [ancient: Berytus; French: Beyrouth] (Lebanon)

City in W Lebanon on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. An ancient Phoenician city, it was a well-known trading center after 1500 B.C. It was an important city under the Seleucids and even more so from 64 B.C. under the Romans. A notable school of law existed here in the third century A.D. Beirut fell to the Arabs in 635 and was held until 1110 when the forces of the First Crusade under Baldwin I captured it and made it part of the LATIN KINGDOM OF JERUSALEM. It continued in this status until 1291, even though Saladin, the Muslim warrior and sultan of EGYPT, besieged it in 1182. It was part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, with the Druses in control, after 1517.

When the Egyptians revolted against the Ottoman Turks in the 19th century, Beirut fell to them in 1830; however, 10 years later the British and the French intervened against the Egyptians, captured the city, and returned it to Turkish authority. During World War I Beirut was taken by French troops in 1918 and in 1920 became the capital of Lebanon under a French mandate from the League of Nations. The Free French and the British took control of the city in 1941 during World War II, and in 1945 it became the capital of an independent Lebanon. The city was the site of several Palestinian refugee camps and a scene of great unrest, guerrilla fighting, and terrorist acts between Christians and Muslims. In 1970 the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) moved its headquarters to Beirut. Christian Phalangist forces acted to curb PLO attacks on northern Israel, which helped to cause an alliance of PLO and Lebanese Muslim militias in civil war in the streets of Beirut by 1975. In June 1982 Israeli forces besieged and entered the city, forcing the PLO forces to depart. In September 1982, despite the Israeli presence, there was a massacre of the Palestinians remaining in the camps by Christian Phalangists. In 1983, a terrorist bombing partially destroyed the U.S. embassy in Beirut, killing 50 people. Later that year, 260 U.S. Marines and 60 French soldiers were killed in Beirut when a truck filled with explosives was driven into their military compound. U.S. and French forces were withdrawn in 1984. Israeli forces withdrew from Beirut and much of Lebanon in 1985. Throughout the 1980s the city was a base for a number of militant extremist groups. In 1990 Christian and Muslim militias withdrew, ending the division of Beirut and returning it to the control of the national government. Much of the city has been badly damaged and its economy destroyed by years of civil war, but has since been rebuilt, making Beirut again a cultural and commercial center of the Middle East.

BEISAN See BETH-SHAN

BEITANG [Pehtang, P'ei-T'ang] (China)

Town, 10 mi N of Taku, on the Gulf of Chihli, TIANJIN municipality, NE China. British and French expeditions landed here in 1860 in an effort to take TAKU, one year after a peace treaty was signed in this town.

BEITH-SHEAN See BETH-SHAN

BEIT JIBRIN See ELEUTHEROPOLIS

BEJA [ancient: Pax Julia] (Portugal)

City in SE Portugal, 85 mi SE of LISBON. It is a trade and manufacturing city and the capital of Baixo Alentejo province. The Romans founded it and made it a town of importance. After the Moorish invasion in the eighth century A.D., it was used as a fortress until the Portuguese captured it in 1162. It then served as a stronghold against the Moors. Roman ruins include an aqueduct, and there is also a 14th-century citadel and the 15th-century monastery of the Conception.

BÉJA [ancient: Vacca, Vaga] (Tunisia)

Town in N Tunisia, 65 mi W of TUNIS. It was a Punic settlement known as Vacca before becoming a Roman colony after the defeat of CARTHAGE and has been an important agricultural market town since the first century B.C. Occupied c. A.D. 1000 by the Arabs, Béja came under Turkish control in the 16th century and was an administrative and military center. In 1880 FRANCE occupied Tunisia. In the final stages of the campaign in Tunisia in April 1943, during World War II, Béja was the scene of fighting between the Allied and German forces along the highway running north to Bizerte. A tower in the casbah was once part of the Roman citadel. See also OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

BEJAÏA [ancient: Saldae; former: Bougie] (Algeria)

Town and port in Sétif province, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 110 mi E of ALGIERS. The site of the Roman town of Saldae, it was also the site of a settlement of the Bejaïa tribe that in 1067 was important as a Hammadid capital. A pirate stronghold in the Middle Ages, it was contested by many powers. Bejaïa's candle wax was famous in Europe, hence the French word for candle, bougie. Bejaïa was occupied by France in 1833. See also BARBARY STATES.

BEJRABURANA See PHETCHABUN

BEK-BUDI See KARSHI

BELA See ZOAR

BELARUS [Belorussia, Byelorussia, White Russia]

Nation in eastern Europe, bounded by LITHUANIA and LATVIA on the N, RUSSIA on the E, the UKRAINE on the S, and POLAND on the W. It was formerly the Belorussian Soviet Socialist Republic of the USSR, and its capital is MINSK. East Slavic tribes colonized the region between the fifth and eighth centuries A.D., and in the next century it came under the rule of KIEV. Divided into several Belorussian principalities in the 12th century, it remained part of the then flourishing Kievan state. The destruction of that power by the Mongols in the 13th century opened the way for its conquest by Lithuania in the 14th century. Thereafter Poland and Lithuania united, with the result that when Poland was partitioned in 1772, 1793, and 1795, all of Belorussia became Russian territory. Belorussia was almost continually devastated, first by the wars of the 16th to the 18th centuries between Poland and Russia; then when Napoleon I invaded it in 1812; then in World War I; and during the Polish-Soviet war of 1919–20. In March 1918 Belorussia proclaimed its independence, but it fell under Soviet rule in 1919. After another Polish-Soviet war in 1921, Western Belorussia was given to Poland but was retaken by the USSR in World War II. During the war the region was again devastated by the German invasion. The western border was adjusted slightly in favor of Poland in 1945. In 1986, the Chernobyl atomic reactor accident contaminated much of the nation's territory, forcing many to evacuate. In 1991, Belarus declared independence, but has continued to be much closer aligned to Russia than the other former Soviet republics. A union with Russia was proposed in 1997. Belarus continues to be the most "Soviet" of the former republics. In 2003, Belarus, KAZAKHSTAN, Russia, and Ukraine signed an agreement to create a common economic space.

BELAYA TSERKOV See BILA TSERKVA

BELCHITE (Spain)

Town in NE Spain, 20 mi SSE of SARAGOSSA. French forces defeated a Spanish army in a battle fought here from June 16 to 19, 1809, during the Peninsular campaign. The town was destroyed in 1938 during the Spanish civil war, but has since been rebuilt.

BELÉM [Pará] [former: Santa Maria de Belém do Grão Pará] (Brazil)

City, capital of PARÁ state, in N Brazil, approximately 80 mi up the Pará River from the Atlantic Ocean. It is the major port and commercial center for the entire AMAZON RIVER basin. Belém was founded by the Portuguese in 1616 and was a military post for defending northern Brazil against Dutch, English, and French pirates. When the empire of Brazil was established in 1822 and independence from Portugal subsequently proclaimed, Belém refused to accept the situation, but was forced to do so in 1823. Belém prospered greatly from the enormous boom in rubber in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, but the collapse of the boom and the Great Depression of the 1930s greatly damaged Belém's economy. Since World War II, with more activity in the Amazon basin, Belém has prospered once more. There is a 17th-century Jesuit church, an early 18th-century cathedral, and a governor's palace dating to 1762. The Goeldi Museum has a valuable collection of zoological and ethnological material from the Amazon region.

BELENZ See BELLINZONA

BELFAST (Northern Ireland)

Capital city of Northern Ireland in Belfast district. Settled by Normans in the 12th century and fortified by Baron Arthur Chichester in 1611, it saw heavy French Protestant immigration following the revocation of the Edict of NANTES in 1685. The city became a thriving port, thanks in part to the linen industry brought over by the French. Belfast has long been a center of Catholic-Protestant strife, with Northern Belfast being the Protestant enclave and East Belfast the Catholic enclave. This conflict continues into the 21st century.

BELFORT (France)

Town in SE France, approximately 80 mi NNE of DIJON and 35 mi W of the Swiss border. Its strategic location, commanding the pass between the Vosges and the Jura Mts, made it ideal for fortification and led to its involvement in many battles. Gallic and Norman ruins are found in the vicinity, but the first historical record of Belfort occurs in the early 13th century. It was twice besieged during the Thirty Years' War of 1618–48, again by the Allies in 1814, and by the Austrians in 1815. The most important battle here was the successful defense against a German siege in 1870–71. It was the only part of ALSACE left to France in the settlement of 1871. The Germans occupied it during World War II.

BELGAUM [Belgaon, Belgavi, Belagam, Venugrama] (India)

City in KARNATAKA, 200 miles SE of MUMBAI. It was part of the CHALUKA EMPIRE, and then held by the Rashtrakutas. After the break-up of the Rashtrakuta power a portion of it survived in the Rattas (875–1250), who from 1210 onward made Venugrama their capital.

BELGIAN CONGO

A former colonial possession of BELGIUM in south-central Africa, now the country of the DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO. After Henry M. Stanley's great explorations across the African interior from 1874 to 1877, he was engaged by King Leopold II of Belgium to further Belgian interests in Africa. The king hoped to develop a colony here. By 1884 Stanley had founded the station of Léopoldville, now KINSHASA, signed several treaties with local chiefs, and paved the way for recognition of the Congo as an independent state. Leopold assured the great powers that he intended to open the CONGO RIVER Basin to free trade. He personally assumed the role of sovereign of the region, with Belgium assuming no ruling responsibility whatsoever.

In 1885 the Congo Free State was officially installed and ruled directly from Brussels with the seat of local government at BOMA. The new state's boundaries were substantially those of modern Congo, but actual European occupation was a slow process, financed by the king's personal revenues. Leopold found the financial burden excessive and received large loans from Belgium in exchange for the right of future annexation if desired. Substantial revenues were also realized by the decision to consider all vacant land as state property, which led to the subsequent government monopoly of the rapidly developing rubber trade. Britain raised an international scandal over the exploitation of native workers in the Congo in 1904. As a result, in 1908 the Congo Free State was annexed by Belgium, put under tight colonial rule, and reopened to free trade.

The Belgian Congo played an active part in campaigns against German colonial forces during World War I. More important, the opening of the country to private enterprise resulted in the rapid development of the great mineral resources of the Katanga (now SHABA) region. By 1928 the Belgian Congo was a major world supplier of diamonds and copper. During World War II Congolese raw materials were vital to the Allied war effort. After the war economic development boomed, with a tremendous influx of Belgians to the major cities.

The Belgian colonial system was paternalistic and run directly from Brussels. The intention was to delay elections on a local level until a distant future, when the native African population would be assured of a majority vote. The first local elections were held in 1957, and a nationalist political movement immediately gained considerable strength. After severe rioting in Léopoldville in 1959, Belgium decided to avoid a direct struggle to retain the colony. The Republic of the Congo was granted independence on June 30, 1960.

BELGIAN EAST AFRICA See RUANDA-URUNDI

BELGICA See BELGIUM

BELGIË See BELGIUM

BELGIQUE See BELGIUM

BELGIUM [Flemish: België; French: Belgique]

One of Europe's smallest countries, it is a kingdom of the Low Countries lying on the NE border of FRANCE, and bounded by the NORTH SEA, NETHERLANDS, GERMANY, and LUXEMBOURG. It is one of the most densely populated and highly industrialized areas of Europe and has twice proved of great strategic importance in invasions of France by Germany. An independent nation for less than two centuries, Belgium is still divided ethnically into two regions: FLANDERS in the N, where Flemish is spoken, and WALLONIA in the S, where French is the official language. The capital, BRUSSELS, is a bilingual city and is important as the headquarters of the European Union and NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization).

Originally inhabited by the Celtic Belgae tribe, it came under ROME as the province of Belgica after falling to Julius Caesar in 57 B.C. In the fourth century A.D. it was occupied by the Franks, and it became part of LOTHARINGIA after the death of Charlemagne in 814. From the 12th century throughout the Middle Ages the region was divided between the duchies of BRABANT and LUXEMBOURG and the bishopric of LIÈGE. At this time the cities of Belgium, notably YPRES, BRUGES, and GHENT, gained a large measure of autonomy and prosperity through the wool trade and textile manufacturing. The 14th century saw urban growth, class war, and the Hundred Years'

War. In the 15th century the country passed to the dukes of BURGUNDY, and the wool trade declined in competition with ENGLAND.

Belgium passed to AUSTRIA under the Hapsburgs in 1482 and by inheritance to Philip II of SPAIN in 1555. Under the Pacification of Ghent of 1576 the Belgian cities, like their Dutch neighbors under the Union of UTRECHT in 1579, united in revolt against the Spanish, but, unlike the UNITED PROVINCES, they failed to secure their independence. The region's economy was destroyed in the struggle, and with the continuing rule of Catholic Spain, Protestantism was erased from Belgium. In the wars of the 17th century parts of the SPANISH NETHERLANDS were lost to France, and by the Peace of Utrecht of 1714 Belgium reverted to Austria.

The reforms of Joseph II of Austria were opposed in Belgium, and in 1789 the republic of the United States of Belgium was set up. Although Austrian control was reestablished in 1790, Belgium fell to France in 1794 during the French Revolutionary Wars and was formally ceded to France in 1797. After the Napoleonic Wars, the Congress of VIENNA in 1815 united Belgium and the Netherlands under a Dutch king. This arrangement was not popular with the non-Dutch population, and after a rebellion in Brussels in 1830, Belgium was established as an independent state by the LONDON Conference of 1830–31. In the 19th century Belgium was one of the first European nations to industrialize and under Leopold II (1865–1909) established a colonial empire in the CONGO.

Germany's violation of Belgian neutrality led to the entry of GREAT BRITAIN into World War I, during which the whole country was occupied by Germany except for a heavily contested area around Ypres. Belgium was again occupied by the Germans during World War II from 1940 to 1944 but made a rapid recovery in the postwar years. In the 1960s friction between the two ethnic groups caused a period of political instability, and the country still remains deeply divided culturally. Constitutional reform began in the early 1970s, creating three partially autonomous regions (Flanders, Wallonia, and Brussels) and three politically recognized ethnic communities (French, Flemish, and German), but ethnic discord continued throughout the 1980s. In 1993 new reforms gave the regions additional autonomy and created a federal state. In the same year, King Baudouin died and was succeeded by his brother, Albert II. Although the European Union has no single seat of government, many of its most important offices are located in Brussels, making Belgium an important fixture in Europe.

BELGOROD [Byelgorod] (Russia)

City and administrative center of the Belgorod Oblast, in Russia, 45 mi NNW of KHARKIV. Founded as a fortress in 1593, it became a key point in the Belgorod defensive line set up from 1635 to 1658 to protect Russia's southern flank against Tatar attack. It was under German occupation from 1941 to 1943 during World War II.

BELGRADE [ancient: Singidunum; Serbo-Croatian: Beograd] (Serbia)

Capital city of Serbia, and formerly of YUGOSLAVIA and of the kingdom of SERBIA at the confluence of the DANUBE and Sava Rivers. At a strategic location on land and water routes between the BALKANS and central Europe, the city has been fought over many times. It grew up around a Celtic fort of the third century B.C. Rome's Danube fleet later made its headquarters here. Over the centuries it was captured by the Avars, Huns, Goths, Sarmathians, and Gepids, and by the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in the sixth century A.D. It was later controlled by the Franks and the Bulgars before becoming Serbian in the 12th century and then Hungarian. In 1521 Belgrade was captured by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, who held it until the 19th century except for a short period from 1718 to 1739 when it was Austrian.

In 1804 the Serbs, under their leader Karageorge, revolted against the Turks and captured Belgrade in 1806, slaughtering the Turkish population. The Turks retook the city in 1813, but in 1867 Serbia was free again, and Belgrade was its capital. Independence lasted until 1915 during World War I when the Central Powers overran the country and occupied Belgrade. After the war the new Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, later renamed Yugoslavia, was proclaimed here in 1918. In World War II Belgrade again fell to German forces in April 1941 and was not retaken by Yugoslav and Soviet troops until October 20, 1944. Belgrade has remained the capital and was the center of Yugoslavian commerce, industry, culture, and politics. It is noted for its parks, palaces, and churches, and the Barjak Mosque that was built here in the 16th century by the Ottoman sultan Sulayman I. After the division of Yugoslavia in 1992 and the independence of SLOVENIA, BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA, CROATIA, and MACEDONIA, Belgrade remained the capital of Serbia and Montenegro. In 2006, Montenegro voted to end the union with Serbia, and Belgrade remains the capital of the Republic of Serbia. The ethnic warfare in Croatia and Bosnia, as well as ethnic struggles within Serbia, have had negative impacts on the economy of Belgrade.

BELHAVEN See ALEXANDRIA

BELIZE [Belize City] (Belize)

City at the mouth of the Belize River, on the CARIBBEAN SEA. Belize was settled in the early 17th century by the English seeking its timber. It became the capital of the colony of British Honduras, but after the city was almost entirely destroyed by Hurricane Hattie on October 31, 1961, the capital was moved to a new city, BELMOPAN, in 1970.

BELIZE [former: British Honduras]

A Central American nation on the CARIBBEAN SEA. MEXICO is to the N and GUATEMALA to the W and S. The Spanish conquistador, Hernán Cortés, probably crossed Belize on his way from Mexico to HONDURAS in 1524. The Spanish made no effort to colonize the region, but English buccaneers used its coast as a base to prey on Spanish shipping. They founded the city of Belize in the early 17th century, and Belize's timber was exploited by both British and French woodcutters. Great Britain created the Superintendency of Belize in 1786. The Spanish contested possession but were defeated by the British in the Battle of SAINT GEORGE'S CAY, an island off the coast, on September 10, 1798. Guatemala has claimed the region since gaining independence in 1821.

During 1862–84 the area was a British colony subordinate to JAMAICA. It then became a separate Crown colony as British Honduras. Complete internal self-government was granted in 1964, and on July 1, 1973, it became officially the Colony of Belize. Independence within the British Commonwealth was granted on September 21, 1981, with Great Britain promising to protect Belize for "an appropriate period." Guatemala long claimed Belize, and threatened war after independence. A British force remained in the country until 1994. In 2000, under the sponsorship of the Organization of the American States, Belize and Guatemala began negotiations to end their territorial dispute. In 2002, they reached draft agreement which still have to be approved by national referendums.

132 Belize City

Belize's population is largely English-speaking and of African ancestry, and so the nation has few natural ties with other Central American nations. BELMOPAN is the capital, and BELIZE is the largest city. The nation has made an effort to capitalize on ecotourism.

BELIZE CITY See BELIZE

BELJAK See VILLACH

BELKIS See ASPENDUS

BELLARY [Ballari] (India)

city in former MYSORE state, 265 mi NW of CHENNAI, S central India. The fort built here in the 16th century played a large part in the struggle between the British and the DECCAN sultans in the 18th century.

BELLEAU WOOD [French: Bois de Belleau, Bois de la Brigade Marine] (France)

Village, 45 mi NE of PARIS and 5 mi NW of CHÂTEAU-THIERRY. The wood itself is just south of the village and was the scene of a bitter and costly battle between June 6 and 25, 1918, as part of the Second Battle of the MARNE. The Fourth U.S. Marine Brigade, with some aid from a few U.S. infantry and French troops, defeated five German divisions here and stopped the German advance on Paris. The marine losses were very heavy, and in 1923 the site was dedicated as a permanent memorial to U.S. world war dead.

BELLE-ÎLE-EN-MER [Breton: Enez ar Gerveur] (France)

Island in the Morbihan department, off the coast of BRITTANY, 40 mi W of ST. NAZAIRE, NW France. Fortified originally in the 17th century as a personal hideout by Nicolas Fouquet, the French finance minister under Louis XIV, it was taken by the British, who surrendered it in 1763 at the Treaty of PARIS.

BELLEVUE (United States)

City in E NEBRASKA, a suburb of OMAHA on the MISSOURI RIVER. Starting as a trading post c. 1825, it is the oldest city in the state. In the 1840s and 1850s it was the site of a Presbyterian mission to the Indians. In World War II the building of a bomber manufacturing plant and the establishment of an air force base nearby promoted growth that continued with the return of peace. Bellevue has the oldest church and oldest cemetery in Nebraska, and the state's first newspaper was published here in 1854. The Strategic Aerospace Museum is in Bellevue.

BELLINZONA [German: Belenz] (Switzerland)

Town in S Switzerland, near the Italian border, 92 mi SE of BERN. First mentioned in A.D. 590, it was possibly originally a Roman settlement. It controlled the road from GERMANY to ITALY by its location on the TICINO RIVER. Remains can be seen of a wall dating from c. 1500. It was built from the town on the high ground to the riverbank and thus barred passage. Bellinzona belonged to the bishops of COMO in the eighth century and was the object of fighting between MILAN and Como in the 13th and 14th centuries. During this period it was in the territory of the FOUR FOREST CANTONS, formed in 1291 and the nucleus of the later Swiss Confederation. In 1499 the French occupied the town, but the next year it was taken by the canton of URI. Between 1798 and 1803 it was part of the Helvetic Republic, established under French auspices, and was then placed in the new canton of Ticino. The capital of that canton since 1878, Bellinzona is a picturesque town and also remains an important factor in transalpine traffic. There are three castles here (Castelgrande, Montebello, and Sasso Corbaro) built by the dukes of Milan between the 13th and 15th centuries that are now on UNESCO's World Heritage list.

BELLI QUADRUM See BEAUCAIRE

BELLO HORIZONTE See BELO HORIZONTE

BELLOVACUM See BEAUVAIS

BELLUNO [ancient: Bellunum] (Italy)

Town and capital of Belluno province, VENETO region, on the Piave River, 50 mi N of VENICE, NE Italy. An ancient settlement, in the Middle Ages it was a free town until 1404, when it passed to Venice. Taken by France in 1797, it became part of AUSTRIA in 1813 and part of Italy in 1866. Many old buildings remain.

BELLUNUM See BELLUNO

BELMONT (United States)

Village in SE MISSOURI, 15 mi S of CAIRO, ILLINOIS. During the Civil War it was the scene of a battle on November 7, 1861, between Union and Confederate forces. Union troops under General Grant's command attacked the Confederates under Generals Polk and Pillow, overrunning the latter's camp after hard fighting. However, a Confederate counterattack forced Grant to withdraw. Both sides claimed victory.

BELMOPAN (Belize)

Town, approximately 40 mi WSW of BELIZE city, on the Belize River. The town did not exist until 1966. Its construction as the new capital of the country came after the old capital, Belize City, was almost completely destroyed by a hurricane in 1961. Belmopan became the capital on August 3, 1970, of what was then still known as British Honduras.

BELNA See BEAUNEBELO HORIZONTE [former: Bello Horizonte] (Brazil)

City in E Brazil, approximately 220 mi N of RIO DE JANEIRO. It is a planned city, based on the design of WASHINGTON, D.C., with broad avenues and parks. Construction began in 1895, and in 1897 the city replaced OURO PRÊTO as the capital of MINAS GERAIS state. It is the center of Brazil's most important mineral region. It owes its name to its beautiful natural setting.

BELOIT (United States)

City in S WISCONSIN, 42 mi SSE of MADISON. A post was established on the site in 1824 to trade with the Winnebago Indians, and the first permanent settlers arrived in 1837, sent out by the New England Emigrating Company. Beloit College was founded in 1846. Beloit was the birthplace of Roy Chapman Andrews, explorer and naturalist.

BELORUSSIA See BELARUSBELORUSSIAN SSR See BELARUSBELOSTOK See BIALYSTOKBELSEN (Germany)

Village in Lower SAXONY, approximately 12 mi NNW of CELLE. With nearby Bergen it was the site of one of the more notorious concentration camps of Nazi Germany. The camp was captured by Allied troops on April 14, 1945, and the surviving prisoners freed.

BELUCHISTAN See BALUCHISTANBEMIS HEIGHTS (United States)

Village and battlefield in E NEW YORK STATE, 11 mi SE of SARATOGA SPRINGS. During the American Revolution, the Second Battle of Saratoga took place here on October 7, 1777; the Americans won a victory over the British, which led directly to British General John Burgoyne's surrender 10 days later.

BENARES See VARANASIBENDER See TIGHINABENDERABBAS See BANDAR ABBASBENDER-EREĞLI See EREĞLIBENDERY See TIGHINABENDIN See BEDZINBENDZIN See BEDZINBENE BERAK [Bnei Brak, Bnei Braq] (Israel)

Ancient city of DAN, in the PLAIN OF SHARON, four mi E of TEL AVIV-JAFFA. Bene Berak was one of the cities besieged by Sennacherib, king of ASSYRIA, who reigned from 704 to 681 B.C. The traditional Passover ritual is said to have started here.

BENEHARNUM See BÉARNBENEVENTO [ancient: Beneventum, Maleventum] (Italy)

City, approximately 33 mi NE of NAPLES at the confluence of the Calore and Sabato rivers, in Benevento province, CAMPANIA region. In 314 B.C., during the Samnite Wars between ROME and ancient SAMNIUM, the Romans inflicted a serious defeat on the Samnites when they retreated to Benevento, under its original name of Maleventum, and made it their capital. The Romans did not take possession of the city until they made it a colony in 268 B.C. and changed its name to Beneventum, preferring the positive word root bene to the negative male. Ruins in Benevento include a magnificent triumphal arch built in honor of Trajan in A.D. 114. A bridge carried the APPIAN WAY across the Sabbato River here.

The town's location on two rivers and at the eventual crossing of six roads made it into an important trading center and fortress. It was sacked by Totila, last king of the Ostrogoths, in A.D. 542 but shortly after became a Lombard duchy that lasted until 1053. In 1266 it was the scene of the Battle of Benevento in which Charles of ANJOU, brother of Louis IX of France and leader of the Guelf forces in Italy, defeated and killed Manfred, the Hohenstaufen king of the TWO SICILIES. The victory led to the papacy's final defeat of their bitter enemies, the Hohenstaufen emperors, and inaugurated the Angevin kingdom of Naples.

Napoleon made Benevento into a principality in 1806 and gave it to Talleyrand. In 1815 it came under the papacy (see PAPAL STATES), where it remained until unification with Italy in 1860. There are many architectural remains, including cloisters, a castle, and especially a seventh-century cathedral from the Lombard period, which was heavily damaged during World War II.

BENEVENTUM See BENEVENTO

BENGAL [former: Bengal Presidency] (Bangladesh and India)

Region and former province of NE British India, now composed of West Bengal, India, and Bangladesh, formerly East Bengal. Situated on the Bay of Bengal, KOLKATA city was founded in 1690 by the English and made the Bengali capital in 1699.

An early Hindu region, it was introduced to Buddhism under the empire of Asoka in the third century B.C. Its northeastern section was the center of the MAURYA EMPIRE and the GUPTA EMPIRE. The Buddhist Pala kings of the eighth century A.D. molded Bengal into a political entity, and by the 11th century the Hindu Sena dynasty had arisen from the remains of the Pala empire. Conquered by Turki Muslims led by the Afghan Mohammed of GHOR c. A.D. 1200, East Bengal became a province of the Tughlak dynasty in 1324. Taken by the Muslim MOGUL EMPIRE in the 15th and 16th centuries, it was under Mogul rule in 1633 when envoys of the English East India Company arrived to establish trading centers. The British ended Muslim control of Bengal in 1757 with General Robert Clive's defeat of Siraj-ud-Da'ula at the Battle of PLASSEY.

As part of the Indian independence arrangement nearly 200 years later, Bengal was partitioned more or less according to religious affiliation. East Bengal, predominantly Muslim, became East Pakistan and in 1971 gained independence as the nation of Bangladesh. West Bengal became an Indian state in 1971, bordered by BHUTAN and SIKKIM state on the north and by Bangladesh and ASSAM state to the east. In recent years the Bengal region has been politically unstable owing to religious tensions between Muslims and Hindus, to the influx of thousands of refugees from Bangladesh, and to political agitation by groups of activist Maoists known as Naxalites.

BENGAL PRESIDENCY See BENGAL

BENGASI See BENGHAZI

BENGAZI See BENGHAZI

BENGHAZI [Bengasi, Bengazi] [ancient: Berenice, Hesperides] (Libya)

City in NE Libya on the Gulf of Sidra. It was founded by the Greeks in the seventh century B.C. as Hesperides, but in the third century Ptolemy III of EGYPT gave it the name Berenice to honor his wife. Its importance grew after the Romans captured it in the mid-first century A.D. The Vandals damaged it in the fifth century, the Arabs took it in the seventh century, and the OTTOMAN EMPIRE conquered it in the 16th century. The Ottomans held it until 1911, when the Italians began to occupy Libya and to establish their rule, which lasted until 1942. During World War II Benghazi changed hands several times, finally being captured by the British on November 20, 1942. Benghazi is an important port and commercial center. During 1951–72, Benghazi was the co-capital with TRIPOLI of Libya. In 1986, the city was bombed by the UNITED STATES in retaliation for Libyan sponsored terror attacks. In September 1995, Benghazi police clashed with militant Islamists with many arrests made.

BENGKOELEN See BENGKULU

BENGKULU [former: Bengkoelen, Benkoelen, Benkulen] (Indonesia)

Town on SUMATRA, on the SW coast and the Indian Ocean, 180 mi WSW of PALEMBANG. This was an early center of the pepper and spice trade with Europe, the Dutch first trading here in the early 17th century. The English established a settlement at Bengkulu in 1684 and in 1710 built Fort Marlborough. The British retained Bengkulu until 1824, when by treaty it passed to the NETHERLANDS in exchange for MALACCA. Bengkulu, like the rest of Indonesia, gained its independence from the Dutch after World War II.

BENG MEALA See CAMBODIA

BENHA See BANHA

BENI HASSAN [Bani Hassan] (Egypt)

Village in E central Egypt, on the E bank of the NILE RIVER, 14 mi SSE of Al Minya. Here are 39 tombs carved out of solid rock and dating from the XIIth dynasty of ancient Egypt. This dynasty, under which the Middle Kingdom reached its peak, ended in 1786 B.C. after ruling for 214 years. The earliest known columns used in Egyptian architecture as well as many wall paintings are found in the tombs.

BENIN [former: Dahomey]

A tiny, densely populated, and poor country sandwiched between TOGO and NIGERIA on Africa's GOLD COAST. Benin traces its history from the 17th-century kingdom of ABOMEY, which was dominant in the slave trade until the late 19th century, constantly battling with the neighboring Ashanti and Yoruba. In 1851 FRANCE established a trading post on the coast and became the dominant European power. From 1892 to 1904 French troops suppressed the Abomey and incorporated the country, known as Dahomey, into colonial FRENCH WEST AFRICA.

For the next 50 years France administered the territory and exploited its small production of cocoa beans, cotton, and palm products. In 1960 Dahomey became an independent nation. Though free, it remained largely dependent on continued French aid and was unable to develop a semblance of political stability. Between 1960 and 1972 11 different governments held power, giving Dahomey the unenviable distinction as the least stable of Africa's newly emerging nations.

In a coup in 1972, Major Mathieu Kérékou seized power and attempted to break the pattern of instability and dependence by forming a state based on what he termed "Marxist-Leninist Scientific Socialism." The new government withstood several coup attempts, and in 1975 President Kérékou renamed the country the People's Republic of Benin. In 1977 a foreign-led airborne invasion was repelled; Kérékou accused France of backing it. In 2001, Kérékou was reelected president in an election marred with irregularities. Benin continues to be one of the poorest countries in Africa.

BENIN

Former empire and forest state of West Africa that first emerged between the 10th and 12th centuries A.D. Benin was closely associated with the great Yoruba culture of IFE and developed a magnificent bronze industry that produced works of remarkably fine artistry. Benin's military strength grew, and the state slowly expanded its dominion until the mid-15th century, when an energetic and able leader named Ewuane launched a massive campaign of conquest. Benin city became a major metropolis and the center of an empire stretching from LAGOS and BADAGRY eastward across the southern Yoruba states. In the 15th century Portuguese explorers made contact with Benin, and its location, close inland on several major navigable rivers, made it an active trading center for pepper, ivory, and slaves.

Benin's power began to decline in the 17th and 18th centuries as European traders forsook the unhealthy inland trading posts for the rapidly emerging river states at the mouth of the NIGER that specialized in slaves. The empire began to fragment, and by the end of the 19th century Benin had been reduced to a small realm. In 1897 the massacre of a British mission led to Great Britain's military intervention. The ruler of Benin was taken and exiled, signaling the final deathknell of the empire. See also YORUBALAND.

BENKOELEN See BENGKULU

BENKULEN See BENGKULU

BENNING, FORT See FORT BENNING

BENNINGTON (United States)

Town in SW VERMONT, 31 mi W of BRATTLEBORO. The area was chartered in 1749 at a time when both

NEW HAMPSHIRE and NEW YORK State claimed present Vermont. The grant was made by Governor Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire, for whom the town was named. The site, settled in 1761, includes North Bennington and Old Bennington. The American Revolutionary Battle of Bennington, although it actually occurred just over the boundary into New York, is associated with the town. In August 1777 the British sent a force of Hessians toward Bennington to seize draft animals and flour there. On August 16 they were met by an American force under John Stark, commander of the New Hampshire militia, and Seth Warner, a leader of the Green Mountain Boys, whose best-known leader was Ethan Allen. The Americans soundly defeated the invaders, killing about 200 and capturing 700, while suffering only about 80 casualties. A 300-ft-high monument in Bennington commemorates the victory. There are a number of points of interest here: the site of the first schoolhouse in Vermont; the Old First Church of 1805; the Walloomsac Inn, opened in 1763; the Catamount Tavern, where the Green Mountain Boys met; and the printing shop of William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist leader. See also CHARLESTOWN, New Hampshire.

BENTONVILLE (United States)

City in NW ARKANSAS, settled in 1837 and names for Senator Thomas Hart Benton. The city is home of Wal-Mart, the world largest retail corporation, founded by Sam Walton. The Wal-Mart visitors center is located in Sam Walton's original store building.

BENTONVILLE (United States)

Village in central NORTH CAROLINA, 37 mi SE of RALEIGH. On March 19, 1865, one of the last major battles of the Civil War was fought nearby between the Confederates under Joseph E. Johnston and the left flank of William T. Sherman's Union army. Johnston was attempting to halt Sherman's advance through North Carolina. He was defeated, and on April 26 he surrendered to William T. Sherman after learning that General Lee had surrendered on April 9 to the Union commander Grant at APPOMATTOX.

BENT'S FORT (United States)

Former trading post on the ARKANSAS RIVER, in SE COLORADO, near LA JUNTA. It was one of the most famous and important posts in the occupation of the American West. A successful trading company headed by Charles Bent and Ceran St. Vrain included William Bent and two other Bent brothers. It set up the first trading post here in 1826, then moved to the finished fort in 1833. This was sometimes called Bent's Old Fort and sometimes Fort William because William Bent managed it in its best years. On the mountain branch of the SANTA FE TRAIL, it was host to all the best-known mountain men and dominated trade with the Indians, Mexicans, and Americans in the region. The frontiersman Kit Carson hunted here from 1831 to 1842, while Stephen W. Kearny and Sterling Price brought their troops here briefly in the Mexican War. According to legend, when William Bent could not reach a satisfactory agreement to sell the fort to the U.S. government, he blew up the powder in it and caused considerable damage. It is certain that the fort had been abandoned by 1852. The next year Bent put up a new post down river, called Bent's New Fort, which was leased to the government in 1860. Still later Fort Lyon was built around it. Bent's Old Fort is now a national historic site.

BENXI [Pen-Ch'i, Penhsihu, Penki] (China)

Town in S Liaoning province, 48 mi SE of Shenyang, NE China. Coal mines, worked here since the 18th century, were exploited and modernized by the Japanese following the Russo-Japanese War of 1904–05. A steel plant was constructed soon after, but both the plant and the coal mines suffered setbacks during World War II. Since the communist takeover in 1949, however, they have been vastly improved.

BEOGRAD See BELGRADE

BERAR (India)

Former kingdom in central India, now comprising the E districts of MAHARASHTRA state. Berar was under various DECCAN dynasties until the 17th century, when it became part of the MOGUL EMPIRE. With the downfall of Mogul rule, Berar became part of the territory of the nizam of HYDERABAD. Parts of it were attacked and captured by the MARATHA CONFEDERACY in the 18th century. After 1853 the region was administered by the British. In 1903 Berar became part of the Central Provinces; in 1950 part of MADHYA PRADESH state; in 1956 part of BOMBAY state; and since 1960 it has been in Maharashtra state.

BERBERA (Somalia)

Town and port on the Gulf of Aden, in Hargeisa province, 150 mi S of ADEN in NW Somalia. Known since classical antiquity, it was a Muslim settlement in the Middle Ages and was sacked in 1518 by the Portuguese. Occupied by the Egyptians in 1875, it came under GREAT BRITAIN in 1884 and was capital of British Somaliland until 1941. The deep port was a Soviet naval base in the 1970s.

BERBICE See GUYANA

BERCHTESGADEN (Germany)

Town in SE BAVARIA, in the Bavarian Alps, 11 mi S of SALZBURG. In the 12th century it was a salt-mining town and became popular as a resort because of its location. The Berghof, at the foot of Obersalzberg, was Adolf Hitler's mountain chalet retreat during his years as Germany's chancellor and führer. During World War II the Berghof was heavily bombed by the Allied forces in April 1945 and was captured by them in May 1945 and later destroyed.

BERDICHEV (Ukraine)

Town in the Ukraine, 24 mi S of ZHYTOMYR. It was founded in 1482 as a Lithuanian fortress. The town was part of POLAND from 1569 to 1793. The 19th-century French novelist Honoré de Balzac married Eveline Hanska here. The Jewish population was exterminated during the Nazi occupation.

BEREA (Greece) See VEROIA

BEREA (Syria) See ALEPPO

BERENICE See BENGHAZI

BERENIKIA See PREVEZA

BERESTECHKO [Polish: Beresteczko] (Ukraine)

Village in NW Ukraine, 28 mi SSW of LUTSK. It was founded in 1547. Here on July 1, 1651, John II of Poland defeated the Cossacks under the leadership of Hetman Bohdan Chmielnicki. The village passed from POLAND to RUSSIA in 1795, back to Poland in 1921, and again to the USSR in 1945 at the end of World War II.

BERESTECZKO See BERESTECHKO

BERESTYE See BREST

BEREZHANY [Polish: Brzezany] (Ukraine)

Town in W Ukraine, 32 mi WSW of TERNOPOL. Founded in 1530, this old Polish town was frequently attacked by the Tatars in the 16th and 17th centuries. It became Austrian territory in 1772. On August 28, 1915, during World War I, the Germans broke the Russian lines here, although it was retaken July 1, 1916. In 1919 Berezhany was returned to POLAND but was ceded to the USSR in 1945 at the end of World War II. There are ruins here of a 16th-century castle.

BEREZINA RIVER (Belarus)

A river in Belarus, originating approximately 75 mi NE of MINSK and running approximately 360 mi SE into the DNIEPER, 35 mi W of GEMEL. From November 26 to 29, 1812, Napoleon's armies, retreating from MOSCOW, crossed the river at BORISOV. By this time the French forces were virtually out of control, and the crossing became a scene of horror. Although the temperature was unseasonably mild and the river easily fordable, thousands elected to cross only the bridges erected by the French engineers, trampling the bodies of the fallen, while mounted troops rode back and forth over them. Three Russian armies attacked but were slow to move and not fully coordinated, thus failing to achieve a complete rout. It is estimated that 26,000 troops confronted the Russians in defense of the retreat, and after the passage only 8,800 remained fit for duty. However, the crossing did permit Napoleon to avoid annihilation and to retain a small force intact. Three days later, however, he turned over command to another general and left for PARIS to raise a new army. In the summer of 1941 the Berezina was again the scene of severe fighting as German armies advanced successfully on SMOLENSK during World War II.

BERG (Germany)

Former duchy east of the RHINE RIVER near COLOGNE, in NORTH RHINE-WESTPHALIA, with its chief city at DÜSSELDORF. Becoming a countship in 1180, it developed Düsseldorf as a Rhine port in the 13th century under Count Adolf V. Berg, came under JÜLICH in 1348 and was later made a duchy. The two duchies were united in 1423. When the ducal line of Berg-Jülich died out in the 16th century, Berg came under KLEVE. After being embroiled in the Thirty Years' War, Berg passed to PALATINE-Neuberg. Napoleon made Berg a grand duchy in his CONFEDERATION OF THE RHINE in 1806. After the Napoleonic Wars the duchy became part of PRUSSIA.

BERGAMA See PERGAMUMBERGAMO [ancient: Bergomum] (Italy)

City, capital of Bergamo province, in LOMBARDY, approximately 30 mi NE of MILAN in the foothills of the Alps. It was originally a Gallic settlement and came under ROME in the third century B.C. Bergamo was overrun by Attila the Hun in the fifth century A.D., became a Lombard duchy in 1296, and passed to VENICE in 1428. It was conquered by Napoleon in 1796, and the next year became part of the Napoleonic CISALPINE REPUBLIC. From 1814 to 1859 it was under the rule of AUSTRIA. A Romanesque cathedral, begun in 1137 and completed 200 years later, survives, along with parts of the old city walls. Adjoining the cathedral is the distinguished Renaissance Colleoni chapel. Gaetano Donizetti, the composer, was born here in 1797.

BERGEN, BELGIUM See MONSBERGEN [former: Bjorgvin] (Norway)

City in SW Norway on inlets of the North Sea, approximately 200 mi NNW of OSLO. Since the Middle Ages Bergen has been one of Norway's most important cities commercially and culturally. It was founded in 1070 by King Olaf III and became the largest city of medieval Norway, frequently the royal seat and the scene of coronations. In 1350 the HANSEATIC LEAGUE made Bergen one of its four most important foreign establishments. These merchants effectively ruled Bergen until 1560 and were quite unpopular.

In the 16th century, during the Reformation, most of the city's old churches were destroyed. In 1665 the sea off Bergen was the scene of a Dutch naval victory over the English. From April 1940 until the end of World War II Bergen was occupied by the Germans.

The city has many interesting landmarks, including a castle overlooking the harbor, built c. 1100; Haakon's Hall of 1261; a 13th-century cathedral; and the 16th century Rosenkrantz Tower, which guarded the walled Hanseatic quarter. The composer Edvard Grieg was born here in 1843; while the violinist Ole Bull, who founded Bergen's theater in 1850, tried two years later to establish a Norwegian settlement in western PENNSYLVANIA, in the UNITED STATES. Bergen is a center of Norway's offshore gas and oil industry.

BERGEN-BELSEN See BELSENBERGEN OP ZOOM (Netherlands)

Town in Noord-Brabant province, on the Zoom River, 23 mi WSW of BREDA, SW Netherlands. Captured by the Normans in 880, it was made a margrave by Emperor Charles V in 1533 and was strongly fortified. Between 1581 and 1622 it repeatedly resisted Spanish attack during the Revolt of the Netherlands. In 1795 it fell to the French, who held it until 1814. It was occupied by the Germans in World War II.

BERGERAC (France)

Town in SW central France, on the DORDOGNE RIVER, 25 mi SSW of PÉRIGUEUX. Bergerac was captured by the English in 1152, fortified, and held intermittently by them until France reconquered it in 1450. It flourished in the 16th century, but since most of its inhabitants were Calvinists, it suffered greatly in the Wars of Religion. In 1577 Bergerac was the scene of the signing of the Peace of Bergerac, the sixth peace between Catholics and Protestants, which was as ineffective as its predecessors in ending religious upheavals. In 1621 its fortifications and citadel were torn down by Louis XIII. In 1685 the revocation of the Edict of NANTES drove out its Protestant workers and crippled its commerce.

BERGOMUM See BERGAMOBERHAMPORE See BAHARAMPURBERHAMPUR See BAHARAMPURBERINGOVO MORE See BERING SEABERING SEA [Russian: Beringovo More]

Sea, consisting of the N part of the Pacific Ocean, between ALASKA and SIBERIA. It is connected to the ARCTIC Ocean by the Bering Strait where long ago there was a land bridge over which it is thought the ancestors of the American Indians crossed to North America. The first European to explore the sea was a Russian, Semin I. Dezhnev, in 1648. He proved that Asia and North America are separated by water. Voyages by Vitus Bering, a Danish explorer in Russian employ, in 1728 and 1741 first made the fur-seal wealth of the sea widely known and gave RUSSIA claim to the region of Alaska.

There are many islands in the sea, including the ALEUTIANS, which separate it from the Pacific. They were discovered in 1741 by Bering and now belong to the UNITED STATES. Bering also discovered St. Lawrence Island off western Alaska in 1728. Archaeological excavations here show evidence of Inuit culture going back approximately 2,000 years. Nunivak Island, owned by the United States, was first found in 1821 by Russian explorers. The Kormandorski Islands, off the KAMCHATKA PENINSULA, belong to RUSSIA. Bering was wrecked and died on one of them, Bering Island, in December 1741. The four PRIBILOF ISLANDS were discovered in 1786 by Gerasim Pribilof, a Russian navigator. They lie off southwestern Alaska and became U.S. territory when Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867. The Pribilofs are the breeding ground of seals.

Alarmed by the decline in numbers caused by indiscriminate killing, the United States tried to impose restrictions on sealing in the sea in 1886 and began to seize ships of other nations. Great Britain and CANADA protested and were awarded damages, although some restrictions were placed on sealing. In 1911 Canada, Great Britain, Japan, Russia and the United States signed the Pacific Sealing Convention, which restricted the areas of open-ocean sealing. Japan withdrew from the agreement in 1941, but in 1956 the same nations drew up a new agreement. Anadyr and Provideniya in Russia and NOME in Alaska are ports on the Bering Sea.

BERKELEY (England)

Town in Gloucestershire, 15 mi SW of GLOUCESTER. Berkeley Castle has been the home of the Berkeley family since 1153, when the holding was granted to them by Henry Plantagenet, who became King Henry II of England the next year. In 1327 Edward II, defeated in an uprising led by his wife Queen Isabella and Roger de Mortimer, first earl of March, was imprisoned here with Berkeley as his jailer. All three were almost certainly involved in the deposed king's murder here. The castle encloses an older Norman keep. Edward Jenner, whose discoveries made smallpox inoculation possible, was born in Berkeley in 1749. The earldom, created in 1679, became extinct in 1942, but the family still inhabits the castle.

BERKELEY [former: Oceanview] (United States)

City in W CALIFORNIA, on the eastern side of SAN FRANCISCO BAY. It has been the home of the main campus of the University of California since 1873. The site was originally a grant of 1820 from the Spanish Crown to the Peralta family and was known as the Rancho San Antonio. The property was bought in 1853 by a group of U.S. citizens. First called Oceanview, the name was changed to Berkeley in 1866. Berkeley is famous as the site of one of the earliest student revolts of the 1960s as tensions caused by the VIETNAM War erupted in the Free Speech Movement on the campus of the University of California here. The city has a variety of industries.

BERKS See BERKSHIRE

BERKSHIRE [Berks] (England)

County of S central England, extending W of LONDON along the THAMES RIVER. The Berkshire Downs were a center of prehistoric settlement. The Thames, used as a highway since Neolithic times, was the site of Anglo-Saxon settlements. Berkshire was the scene of fighting in the Civil War. Its administrative headquarters is READING. WINDSOR Castle, ETON, and ASCOT are in its eastern section. See also NEWBURY.

BERLIN (Germany)

The old capital of PRUSSIA and the capital of GERMANY until 1945; it was divided politically between West Germany and East Germany, but has again become the capital of reunified Germany since 1990. Built on the Spree River, Berlin is a major transportation center as well as a political and cultural center.

A comparatively young city, Berlin grew out of two Wendish fishing villages named Kölln and Berlin, which merged in 1307. Chosen as the capital of the Hohenzollern electors of BRANDENBURG in 1486, it was damaged during the Thirty Years' War but recovered under the Great Elector Frederick William (1640–88) who stimulated commerce by linking the Oder and Spree rivers by canal and by opening the city to French Huguenots.

When the Hohenzollerns became kings of Prussia in 1701, Berlin became the Prussian capital. It was captured during the Seven Years' War by the Austrians in 1757 and by the Russians in 1760. Occupied by the French during the Napoleonic Wars from 1806 to 1808, it became the focus of German nationalism in the early 19th century and increased in importance with the growing might of Prussia. At the same time, it was an important center of philosophy and the home of Georg W.F. Hegel and Johann Fichte.

The scene of an abortive revolution in 1848, Berlin became the seat of the NORTH GERMAN CONFEDERATION in 1866, a fact that reflected the new dominance of Prussia over AUSTRIA in German affairs. After the Franco-Prussian War Berlin became the capital of the GERMAN EMPIRE in 1871 and began a period of rapid expansion that was to make it the second-largest city in Europe. The capital of the ill-fated WEIMAR Republic after World War I, Berlin experienced frequent political and social unrest, though the city's cultural life flourished, especially in the world of theater and film. Under the Nazis the cultural brilliance of Berlin was extinguished, and by the end of World War II the city had been almost completely razed by Allied bombers and Soviet artillery. For the purposes of administering the city after the war Berlin was divided into four zones of Allied occupation. This scheme crumbled in 1948 when the Soviets ceased to cooperate with the Western powers and blockaded West Berlin. After a massive airlift of supplies into the beleaguered city, the blockade was lifted in 1949, but Berlin remained politically divided. In 1961 the Soviets tightened their grip on the East Germans by constructing the Berlin Wall, a forbidding maze of wall, electrified fence, guard towers, and obstacles through which many have sought freedom, and many have been killed in the attempt. Both sides of the modern city reflected the prosperity and forward thinking of their respective worlds.

The Berlin Wall fell in 1989 when the communist block collapsed. On October 3, 1990, the unification of Germany was celebrated in Berlin with a state ceremony. Since then, united Berlin has once again been the capital of unified Germany.

Major historic monuments include the Brandenburg Gate and the Reichstag building.

BERMEJO PASS See USPALLATA PASS

BERMUDA [Bermuda Islands, Bermudas] [former: Somers Islands] (United Kingdom)

Self-governing colony in the Atlantic Ocean, approximately 570 mi SE of CAPE HATTERAS, NORTH CAROLINA. Bermuda consists of approximately 300 coral rocks, islets, and islands, of which some 20 are inhabited. Bermuda is the largest island; others of importance are Somerset, St. George's, and Ireland. The Spanish Juan de Bermudez, who gave his name to the island, was apparently the first European to land, in 1515. Englishmen and other Spanish visited the islands, which remained uninhabited until 1609. In that year Sir George Somers and a shipload of colonists on their way to VIRGINIA were shipwrecked here, and as a result the islands were long known as Somers Islands. The incident was used by William Shakespeare in writing The Tempest in 1611.

The islands were governed by a chartered English company until 1684, when the Crown took over. During the War of 1812 Bermuda was a base for British privateers preying on U.S. shipping, and during the American Civil War Confederate blockade-runners sailed from here. The islands played a strategic role in World War II with the establishment of a U.S. naval base. The colony was given self-government in 1968, and that year there were serious race riots, caused by dissatisfaction on the part of blacks, who make up three-fourths of the population. HAMILTON on Bermuda Island, founded in 1790, is the capital.

BERMUDA ISLANDS See BERMUDA

BERMUDAS See BERMUDA

BERN [Berne] (Switzerland)

Capital city and manufacturing center in W central Switzerland, 59 mi SW of Zurich. Founded by Duke Berthold V of ZÄHRINGEN, who fortified it in 1191, it became a free imperial city in 1218. In 1353 it joined the Swiss Confederation, which it soon dominated. Protestantism triumphed in Bern in 1528. The Napoleonic invasion of 1798 led to the decline of aristocratic rule, which finally ended in 1831. In 1848 Bern became the capital of the Swiss Confederation.

BERNBURG (Germany)

City in SAXONY-ANHALT, on the Saale River, 25 mi S of MAGDEBURG. Strategically placed on a trade route during the Middle Ages, it was the capital of the duchy of ANHALT-Bernburg from 1251 to 1468 and from 1603 to 1863.

BERNE See BERN

BERNICIA (Scotland, England)

Ancient kingdom of N England and S Scotland, extending N between the TYNE and the FORTH Rivers.

An Anglo-Saxon kingdom, Bernicia was united to DEIRA by King Aethelfrith, who reigned from A.D. 593 to 616. By 678 the two kingdoms formed the kingdom of NORTHUMBRIA. The royal residence was at BAMBURGH.

BEROE See STARA ZAGORA

BEROEA (Greece) See VEROIA

BEROEA (Syria) See ALEPPO

BERRI See BERRY

BERRY [Berri] (France)

Region of central France, whose major city, BOURGES, is approximately 125 mi due S of Paris. It was dominated by Gallic tribes in very early times, and their resistance to Vercingetorix in 52 B.C. led him to burn all of its towns with the exception of the capital, Bourges. Later Bourges was sacked by the Romans, and under Augustus Berry was made part of AQUITANIA. The Goths conquered it in A.D. 475, followed by the Franks, and it finally became a county in the eighth century. The French Crown purchased Berry c. 1100. It was part of the dowry of Eleanor, the divorced wife of Louis VII, and on her remarriage to Henry II of England in 1152, it became nominally English, passing back to France by subsequent treaty. Thereafter it was always privately held, usually by a branch of the royal family. Jean de France (1340–1416), third son of King John II of France, was the first duke of Berry and was a famous patron of arts and letters. He commissioned the Limbourg brothers to do the famous books of hours named for him. In 1601 Berry was formally absorbed into the royal domain. George Sand often wrote of the rustic beauty of this region in her novels.

BERTHOUD See BURGDORF

BERWICK-ON-TWEED See BERWICK-UPON-TWEED

BERWICK-UPON-TWEED [Berwick-on-Tweed] (England)

Town in NORTHUMBRIA, on the NORTH SEA at the mouth of the Tweed River, 56 mi NNW of NEW-CASTLE UPON TYNE. A border town between England and SCOTLAND since the 12th century, it was the source of many disputes between the two nations. It finally surrendered to England in 1482 and was incorporated into Northumberland in 1885.

BERYTUS See BEIRUT

BESANÇON [ancient: Vesontio] (France)

City and capital of Doubs, on the Doubs River, 45 mi E of DIJON, E France. The chief town of the Sequani Gauls, it was captured by Caesar in 58 B.C. and became an archbishopric in the second century A.D. Emperor Frederick Barbarossa made it a free imperial city in 1184. It was captured for France by Louis XIV in 1674 during the Dutch War and became the capital of the FRANCHE-COMTÉ province in 1676. In 1814, during the Napoleonic Wars, the city was bombarded by the Austrians.

BESHARREH See BSHARRI

BESKID MOUNTAINS See BESKIDS

BESKIDS [Beskid Mountains] [Czech: Beskydy; Polish: Beskidy] (Slovakia, Poland)

Subsidiary range of the Carpathians, along the Slovak-Polish border, S of KRACÓW. In the winter of 1915, during World War I, intense fighting between Russian and Austro-Hungarian forces took place along the eastern ridge of the Beskids.

BESKIDY See BESKIDS

BESKYDY See BESKIDS

BESSAIN See BETH-SHAN

BESSARABIA (Moldova)

Region of SE Europe, formerly in the Moldavian SSR of the USSR, stretching from the BLACK SEA inland as far as KHOTIN. Invaded by the Mongols in the 13th century, Bessarabia became part of MOLDAVIA in the 14th century, but by the 16th century it had been completely annexed to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. RUSSIA acquired Bessarabia in 1812 at the Treaty of BUCHAREST, but a growing nationalist movement declared it independent in November 1917 and united it with ROMANIA in 1918. Romania was forced to cede the region to the Soviet Union in 1939 but occupied it again during World War II. In 1947 Bessarabia was returned permanently to the USSR as the Moldavian SSR. In 1991, it became independent as MOLDOVA.

BESZTERCE See BISTRITA

BET GUVRIN See ELEUTHEROPOLIS

BETHANY [Arabic: Al Ayzariyah] (Israel)

Village on the E slope of the Mount of Olives, just outside JERUSALEM, in ancient CANAAN. It figures prominently in the New Testament as the home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. The last was raised from the dead here. Jesus stayed here during Holy Week and left his disciples here for the last time. Bethany is now a pilgrimage center.

BETHEL [ancient: Luz; modern: Baytin] (Israel)

Ancient city of CANAAN, 10 mi N of JERUSALEM, central Israel. Important in the Old Testament, it is connected with Abraham, Jacob, and the prophet Amos. Jeroboam I made Bethel the northern kingdom's chief sanctuary in the 10th century B.C. after the division of ancient ISRAEL. The sanctuary was destroyed in the seventh century B.C. by Josiah of JUDAH. Excavations have revealed occupation levels from c. 2000 B.C. to the sixth century B.C., including a flourishing city of Canaan.

BETH JERAH See DEGANIYA "A"

BETHLEHEM [Arabic: Bayt Lahm; Hebrew: Bet Lehem] (Palestine)

A holy city and shrine, five mi S of JERUSALEM on the Palestinian WEST BANK. It is regarded by the Christian world as the site of Christ's nativity. It was also the early home of David, the probable birthplace of Benjamin, and the home of Ruth. In A.D. 135 Hadrian desecrated the nativity site with a sacred grove of Adonis, but in 315 Constantine destroyed the grove and built a basilica. This is now surrounded by monasteries of the Greek, Latin, and Armenian Churches. The grotto under the church is claimed to be the site of the manger where Jesus was born. Other sites within the church include the Altar of the Magi, the Tomb of Eusebius, and the cave within which St. Jerome spent 30 years making his translation of the Bible. The crusaders captured Bethlehem in the 11th century and made it an episcopal see, holding it until 1187.

The outbreak of the Crimean War in the 19th century has been attributed by some to RUSSIA's disappointment at being unable to obtain the key to the main door of the basilica, while FRANCE was able to place a silver star with the French arms in the grotto.

BETHLEHEM (United States)

City in E PENNSYLVANIA, on the Lehigh River, 5 mi E of ALLENTOWN. It was founded in 1741 by Moravians, members of a sect that originated in BOHEMIA in the 15th century, some of whom first came to the American colonies in 1735. Hostile Delaware and Shawnee Indians threatened the settlement in 1757, but it was saved by the intervention of Paxinosa, a Shawnee chief. During the American Revolution the community building was used as a hospital, and the Sun Inn became a refuge for some members of the Continental Congress who had to flee PHILADELPHIA before the British advance on it.

Industrial development was stimulated by the opening of the Lehigh Canal in 1829 and the coming of a railroad in 1855. For many years Bethlehem was one of the leading steel-manufacturing centers of the nation. Moravian College was founded in 1807. There are early buildings here, including the Central Moravian Church of c. 1805 and the Schnitz House of 1749. Bethlehem is famous for its annual Bach Festival.

BETH-SHAN [Beisan, Beth-Shean] [Arabic: Baysan; Hebrew: Bet Shan, Beith-Shean; Latin: Scythopolis, medieval: Bessain] (Israel)

Town in NE Israel, 19 mi SE of NAZARETH. One of the oldest settlements in ancient CANAAN, Beth-Shan shows evidence of having been inhabited in the fourth millennium B.C. It has always been of importance because of its strategic location at the crossroads of trade between EGYPT and MESOPOTAMIA. It was an Egyptian military post from the 15th to 12th centuries B.C. Circa 1020 the Philistines defeated the Israelites here under their first king, Saul, and nailed his body to the wall of the town. He was avenged by King David, who took Beth-Shan from the Philistines approximately 20 years later. The Assyrians, the Scythians, the Ptolemies of Egypt, and the Seleucids all held it in later years.

After the conquest of Palestine by the Romans in 64 B.C., Beth-Shan was one of the 10 cities of the DECAPOLIS, a confederation of Greek cities formed for protection against the Jews and Arabs. Later under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE it was the capital of their province of Palaestina Secunda. The Arabs took the town in A.D. 636. Captured by Christian forces during the Crusades, it was known to them as Bes-sain. In 1519 it fell to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, which held it until the end of World War I. From 1922 to 1948 it was in the British mandate of Palestine. When Israel was established in 1948, the town was taken from the Arabs and resettled. See also ASSYRIA, PHILISTIA, SELEUCID EMPIRE, SCYTHIA.

BETH-SHEAN See BETH-SHAN

BETHSHEMESH See HELIOPOLIS

BÉTHUNE (France)

Town in the Pas-de-Calais department, 20 mi WSW of LILLE, NE France. A former independent county, it was held after 1248 by the counts of ARTOIS and FLANDERS, the dukes of BURGUNDY, and the Hapsburgs. Ceded to FRANCE in 1678 at the Treaty of NIJMEGEN, it was severely damaged in both world wars.

BET SHE'ARIM (Israel)

Archaeological site at the W end of the PLAIN OF ESDRAELON, N central Israel, in ancient PALESTINE. Bet She'arim was the central necropolis of Jewry from the third to fourth centuries A.D. but was destroyed and forgotten in the fourth century. Excavations have revealed the remains of one of the largest synagogues of ancient Palestine.

BETTIAH (India)

Town in BIHAR state, 70 mi E of GORAKHPUR, NE India. Nearby are an Asokan pillar and funeral mounds that are the only indisputably Vedic monuments in India. See also MAURYA EMPIRE.

BEUTHEN See BYTOM

BEVERLEY (England)

Town in HUMBERSIDE, 7 mi NNW of HULL. Destroyed by the Danes in 806, it was refounded in the 10th century by King Athelstan of the Mercians and West Saxons. It is famous for its 13th-century minster, which is a noted example of Gothic architecture.

BEVERLY FORD, BATTLE OF See BRANDY STATION

BEVERLY HILLS (United States)

City within LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, adjoining HOLLYWOOD. It is the location of an exclusive residential community made famous by the television and film personalities who live here.

BEWCASTLE (England)

Village in CUMBRIA, 16 mi NE of CARLISLE. The site of a Roman military post, the village contains the Bewcastle Cross, depicting Christ, which dates from the seventh or eighth century A.D.

BEYROUTH See BEIRUT

BEZETHA (Israel)

Suburb and battlefield N of JERUSALEM, central Israel. During the Jewish Wars of the ROMAN EMPIRE in A.D. 66, the Romans under Cestius Gallus, the governor of SYRIA, were attacked here by Jewish revolutionaries and lost many men and much equipment.

BÉZIERS [ancient: Baeterrae] (France)

City in the Hérault department, on the Orb River, 38 mi SW of MONTPELLIER, S France. Site of a large Roman colony, it was a stronghold of the counts of CARCASSONNE in the 12th century. In 1209, 20,000 inhabitants were massacred by Simon de Montfort for having harbored the Albigensian heretics. Unorthodox opinions continued to thrive here well into the 14th century.

BEZIRA AL MELIK See URONARTI

BEZTERCZEBÁNYA See BANSKA BYSTRICA

BEZWADA See VIJAYAWADA

BHADGAON [Bhatgaon] [modern: Bhaktapur] (Nepal)

Town in central Nepal, 7 mi ESE of KATMANDU, in the Nepal Valley. Founded in A.D. 865 by Raja Ananda Malla, it was the chief town of the valley for

144 Bhagalpur

200 years. It was captured by Gurkhas in 1769. The town has many temples.

BHAGALPUR (India)

City in BIHAR state 180 mi N of KOLKATA on the GANGES RIVER. Bhagalpur is a center of silk weaving. Nearby Vikramshila University was a medieval center of Buddhism.

BHAINSRORGARH (India)

Fort in RAJASTHAN province, on the Chambal River, SW of KOTA, NW India. It was captured c. 1305 by Ala-ud-Din. It withstood a MARATHA invasion in the late 18th century. Nearby are carved Barolli temples of the ninth or 10th century A.D.

BHAKTAPUR See BHADGAON

BHANDAK See CHANDRAPUR

BHARATPUR [Bhurtpore] (India)

City in RAJASTHAN state, 105 mi ENE of JAIPUR, NW India. Founded in 1733, it was the capital of the princely state of Bharatpur and fell to the British in 1826.

BHARUCH [Broach] [ancient: Barygaza, Bhrgukaccha] (India)

City in GUJARAT state, at the mouth of the Narbada River, 185 mi N of MUMBAI, W India. Formerly one of the most famous harbors in India, it was mentioned by Claudius Ptolemy, the Alexandrian geographer, in the second century A.D., when it was controlled by Ksatrapas. It became part of the MOGUL EMPIRE in 1572, passed to the MARATHAS in 1685, and was taken by the British in 1782.

BHATGAON See BHADGAON

BHATPARA (India)

City in WEST BENGAL, 15 mi N of KOLKATA. Once a center of Sanskrit scholarship, the city is now an industrial center.

BHAVNAGAR [Baunagar] (India)

City in GUJARAT 120 mi SW of AHMEDABAD. The city was founded in the first half of the 18th century.

The princely state was incorporated into India in 1947 as the state of Saurashtra, then merged into Gujarat.

BHAWALPUR See BAHAWALPUR

BHELSA See BHILSA

BHILSA [Bhelsa] [modern: Vidisa, Vidisha] (India)

Town in MADHYA PRADESH, 135 mi ENE of INDORE, central India. An ancient town, it figures in the Sanskrit epics Mahabharata and Ramayana. It was a commercial, political, and religious center under the MAURYA EMPIRE and GUPTA EMPIRE. It was sacked in 1290 and 1532. The town has Buddhist remains dating from between the third century B.C. and the first century A.D.

BHILWARA (India)

City in RAJASTHAN, 140 mi SW of JAIPUR. Bhilwara was depopulated several times by war in the 16th and 19th centuries. The British rebuilt the town in the 1820s and it has developed into a market center.

BHOJPUR (India)

Village in MADHYA PRADESH state, 15 mi SE of BHOPAL, central India. It is the site of a beautifully carved Shivaite temple, dating probably from the 12th or 13th century A.D. There is also an unfinished Jain temple nearby.

BHOPAL (India)

City and capital of MADHYA PRADESH state, 105 mi ENE of INDORE, central India. Capital of the princely state of Bhopal, it was founded in the early 18th century by the Afghan, Dost Mohammed Khan. Friendly with the British, Bhopal remained a separate province until 1956 when it merged with Madhya Pradesh. In 1984, a Methyl isocyanate leak at the Union Carbide plant here killed 3,828 people in one of the largest industrial disasters of the 20th century.

BHRGUKACCHA See BROACH

BHUBANESWAR (India)

City, capital of ORISSA state, in E central India, 30 mi N of PURI. Settlement began during the reign of Asoka, emperor of the MAURYA dynasty from c. 275 to c. 230 B.C. From the fifth to 10th centuries A.D. Bhubaneswar was the capital of the Kesaris dynasty of Orissa. A famous religious center, it once had as many as 7,000 shrines around its sacred lake, and the remains of 500 can still be seen. Notable are a group of Shivaite temples of the sixth to 12th centuries. The temples exemplify all phases of Orissan art and architecture. Lingaraja temple, dating from the seventh century A.D., with an elaborately carved tower, is the most famous.

BHUKET See PHUKET

BHURTPORE See BHARATPUR

BHUTAN [Druk Yul]

Kingdom in Asia, on the NE border of INDIA, and S of the TIBET region of CHINA. The HIMALAYA MOUNTAINS run north and south here, dividing the land into valleys that are heavily cultivated. Ethnically linked to the Tibetans, most of the populace practices a form of Buddhism related to Lamaism. Bhutan's early history is vague, but it has existed as an entity for centuries. The Tibetans conquered it in the 16th century, and c. 1630 a refugee Tibetan lama made himself dharma raja (spiritual ruler) and named a deb raja (temporal ruler). For a time after 1720 the Chinese established suzerainty over Bhutan. In the 18th and early 19th centuries there were attempts by the British to secure control, and in 1907 Sir Ugyen Wangchuk, the first of a hereditary line, was crowned king with British support.

In 1949 newly independent India took over the management of Bhutan's defense and foreign affairs from Great Britain. The following year China occupied Tibet and claimed Bhutan, which caused India to make greater provision for defense. King Jigme Dorji Wangchuk, who ruled from 1953 to 1972, abolished slavery and the caste system, emancipated women, and divided up large estates. In 1969 the monarchy was made more democratic. Jigme Singhi Wangchuk became king in 1972. The new king gradually introduced democratic structures into the Bhutanese government. In 1989, there was an uprising of ethnic Nepalese against the imposition of Bhutanese culture and thousands were expelled from the country to Nepal. In 1999, the head of government became head of the cabinet, which is responsible to the national assembly (though the king retained much influence).

In 2003, Bhutanese troops attacked bases in Bhutan where Assamese rebels had been making incursions into India. In 2005, a draft of a new constitution was released. THIMBU is the official capital, but PUNAKA is the traditional capital.

BIAFRA (Nigeria)

Former republic of E Nigeria. Biafra was founded on May 30, 1967, when General Odumegwu Ojukwu declared the eastern part of Nigeria independent from the rest of the country in an attempt to break the power of the Hausa tribe over the eastern Ibos. The new state was never recognized by the central government, and in July 1968 civil war broke out. With most of its population on the verge of starvation that gained worldwide attention, Biafra surrendered on January 15, 1970, and ceased to exist. The central government's leniency toward the rebels did much to heal old wounds.

BIAK [Wiak] (Indonesia)

Island off N coast of IRIAN BARAT, an Indonesian province on NEW GUINEA. It is the largest of the SCHOUTEN ISLANDS, which were discovered in 1616 by William Schouten of the NETHERLANDS. Biak was seized by JAPAN in 1941 during World War II and retaken by the Allies in fierce fighting between May 27 and June 20, 1944.

BIAŁOWIEŻA FOREST [Polish: Puszcza Białowieska]

(Poland, Belarus)

Forest and national park in E Poland and W Belarus, 40 mi SE of BIAŁYSTOK. A principal hunting ground of Polish kings and Russian czars, it is the breeding ground of rare European bison. The first Polish national park was established here in 1921.

BIAŁYSTOK [Russian: Belostok] (Poland)

City and capital of Białystok province, 105 mi NE of WARSAW, NE Poland. Founded in 1320 by Gediminas, grand duke of LITHUANIA, it became a creative and educational center, and under the Branicki family was known throughout Europe in the 18th century. A center of Polish Jewry, it saw half its population killed during the German occupation of 1941 to 1944.

BIARRITZ (France)

Town in SW France, on the Bay of Biscay, near the Spanish border, 4 mi W of BAYONNE. An ancient fishing village, Biarritz remained obscure until French emperor Napoleon III (1852–70) and Empress Eugénie vacationed here. It then became one of the world's most fashionable seaside resorts and was visited by Queen Victoria and Edward VII of GREAT BRITAIN and Alfonso XIII of SPAIN, among other notables. Some fighting took place here from December 10 to 13, 1813, during a battle around BAYONNE. In World War II the Germans occupied Biarritz from June 1940 to August 1944.

BIBRACTE [modern: Mont Beuvray] (France)

Town in Saône-et-Loire department, 13 mi WSW of AUTUN, central France. Caesar's defeat of the Helvetii tribe here in 58 B.C. marked the high point of his campaign in GAUL. The town was at this time the capital of the Gallic Aedui tribe. In 12 B.C. Augustus attempted to eradicate local tradition by moving the inhabitants of Bibracte to Augustodunum, now Autun. The remains of the Gallic town on Mont Beuvray have been excavated.

BIDA (Nigeria)

City in North-Western state, 55 mi SW of MINNA, central Nigeria. Conquered c. 1805 by Muslim FULANI warriors, it was made the capital of the NUPE emirate by Emir Usman Zaki in 1856 after the Nupe civil war. The Fulanis were defeated here by the British under Sir George Goldie in 1897 after a trade dispute. GREAT BRITAIN incorporated Bida into Niger province in 1908.

BIDAR (India)

Town in KARNATAKA state, 68 mi NW of HYDERABAD, central India. It became the capital of the Bahmani Kingdom in 1430. In 1531, under the Barid Shahi dynasty, it became an independent sultanate. It later fell to BIJAPUR, the Moguls, and to HYDERABAD.

BIDASPES See JHELMUM RIVER

BIEL [French: Bienne] (Switzerland)

Town in Bern canton, 17 mi NW of BERN, at the NE end of Lake Biel, NW Switzerland. Of Celtic origin, it was established as a town in the 11th century. It allied itself to Bern, FRIBOURG, and SOLOTHURN in the 13th and 14th centuries. The town adopted the Protestant Reformation in 1528. It was seized by the French in 1798 and became part of Bern canton in 1815. It is the only officially bilingual town in Switzerland.

BIELEFELD (Germany)

City in N central Germany, 55 mi WSW of HANOVER. It has been noted for its linen industry since the 13th century. Bielefeld was founded c. 1215 by Count Hermann of RAVENSBURG, and in 1250 Count Ludwig built Sparrenberg Castle to protect it. The city became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1270. It became the property of the dukes of JÜLICH in 1348 and in 1647 passed to the principality of BRANDENBURG. Heavily damaged in World War II, Bielefeld was occupied by the Allies in April 1945. There are many historic buildings, including two 14th-century churches.

BIELLA (Italy)

City in Vercelli province, PIEDMONT region, NW Italy, 45 mi NE of TURIN. It is a major textile manufacturing center. The site was occupied in prehistoric times and later was a Gallic and then a Roman center. In 1353 it was acquired by the Visconti family of MILAN and in 1379 it passed to the house of SAVOY, the dynasty that ruled SAVOY and PIEDMONT from the 11th century and the kingdom of Italy from 1861 to 1946. Biella became part of Italy in 1860 when the nation was unified. It was occupied by Allied troops in April 1945 in World War II. There is a Romanesque baptistery dating from the 10th century, a Renaissance cathedral, and several 15th- and 16th-century palaces.

BIEN HOA (Vietnam)

City and capital of Bien Hoa province, S Vietnam, 20 mi NE of SAIGON. One of the oldest cities of COCHIN CHINA, it was captured by the French in 1861.

BIENNE See BIEL

BIG BETHEL (United States)

Former Confederate outpost on the JAMES RIVER, 60 mi SE of RICHMOND, in VIRGINIA. After the firing on FORT SUMTER the opening hostilities of the Civil War took place here on June 10, 1861, when General Ben Butler with his Union troops failed to take this site.

BIGBURY See CANTERBURY

BIG HOLE BATTLEFIELD NATIONAL MONUMENT (United States)

Battle site in SW MONTANA, 60 mi SW of BUTTE, in the Pioneer Mts. The national monument was established in 1910 to mark the site of the “victory” of General John Gibbon over Nez Percé Indians who had refused to stay on their reservation.

BIGHORN RIVER (United States)

River and battleground, it flows N from W central WYOMING into the Yellowstone River, E of BILLINGS, MONTANA. The Battle of the Little Bighorn on June 25, 1876, was fought near the confluence of the Bighorn and LITTLE BIGHORN rivers. General George A. Custer and a detachment of U.S. troops were ambushed and wiped out to a man by the Sioux Indians under Chief Crazy Horse in a famous battle here.

BIG LICK See ROANOKE

BIGORRA See TARBES

BIGORRE See TARBES (France)

BIHAR [Behar] (India)

State of NE India, S of NEPAL, with its capital at PATNA. Records of Bihar's history start in 600 B.C. In the sixth century B.C. the Bihar Kingdom of Magadha was the home of Gautama Buddha, who preached at BODH GAYA. Patna, the capital of the MAGADHA Empire, was devastated by Huns in the fifth century A.D. Bihar came under British rule in 1765 and was administered as part of BENGAL. The area was a hotbed of anti-British feeling in the 19th century and a center of Mahatma Gandhi's nonviolent resistance movement in the 20th century. Although very rich in mineral sources, Bihar is today one of the least industrially developed states of India.

BIJAPUR [former: Vijayapura] (India)

City in MYSORE, 245 mi SE of MUMBAI, W India. The capital of the Yadava dynasty, Bijapur began a policy of expansion in 1489 under Yusuf Adil Shah until its dominions reached as far as GOA, where a navy was maintained. The dynasty was defeated in 1686 by the MOGUL emperor Aurangzeb. Bijapur has many examples of medieval Islamic Indian architecture.

BIKANER (India)

City in RAJASTHAN, 170 mi NW of JAIPUR, NW India, in the Indian Desert. It was founded by Bika, a Rajput chieftain, in 1488. It was the capital of a princely state whose expansionist policies led it continually to war with JODHPUR in the 18th century. It came under GREAT BRITAIN's control in 1818.

BIKINI [former: Escholtz Atoll] (Marshall Islands)

Atoll in the central Pacific Ocean, in the Marshall Islands group. Discovered in 1825, it was the site of atomic test explosions carried out by the United States from 1946 to 1958. During this time the name “bikini” was given to the skimpy women's beachwear just coming into fashion. The name subsequently passed into the language. After being removed from their home by the U.S. government, Bikinians were allowed to return home in 1969 under medical supervision for the long-term effects of radiation. In 1978, the islanders were evacuated when radiation levels in their bodies exceeded safe levels. The islanders sued the U.S. government to receive compensation for damages and for a cleanup of the island.

BILAD-ES-SUDAN See SUDAN

BILA HORA See WHITE MOUNTAIN

BILAINAGAR [Bhilai] (India)

City in CHATTISGARH state, central India. Bhilainagar is the site of a large state-owned steel industrial complex, built with Soviet assistance in the 1950s.

BILA TSEKVA [Russian: Bila Tserkva] (Ukraine)

City 45 mi SSW of KIEV. Founded in 1032, in the 17th century the city was the headquarters of the Ukrainian Cossacks. Hetman Bohdan Chmielnicki led them in rebellion against POLAND, which resulted in treaties of 1649 and 1651, signed here, which the Poles broke. Another treaty in 1667 divided the Ukraine between Russia and Poland. In 1793 the city passed to RUSSIA. Some events of the failed Decembrist revolt of December 1825 against Czar Nicholas I took place here. In World War II Belaya Tserkov was occupied by the Germans from 1941 to 1943.

BILBAO [Bilboa] (Spain)

Port on the N coast of Spain, on the Bay of Biscay, approximately 85 mi W of the French border. It straddles the Nervión River, and its location on a major river and the ocean made it an early trading center and, in later centuries, a railroad terminus. It was founded c. 1300 on the site of an ancient settlement, and it assumed great importance in the 15th and 16th centuries. It was occupied by the French in 1795 and again in the Peninsular War of 1808 to 1813. In 1835 and again in 1874 it was besieged ineffectively by the Carlists. During the Spanish civil war of 1936–39 it was the capital of a short-lived autonomous Basque government from 1936 until its capture by Franco's insurgents in 1937.

BILBILIS See CALATAYUD

BILBOA See BILBAO

BILECA [Bilecha] (Bosnia and Herzegovina)

Town in Herzegovina, 20 mi NE of DUBROVNIK. In the Middle Ages Bileca was an important station on the road from Dubrovnik to NIS. It was a notable Austro-Hungarian fortress from 1878 to 1918.

BILECHA See BILECA

BILHOROD DNISTROVSKYI [Akkerman, Belgorod-Dnestrovsky] [ancient: Cetatea Alba, Tyras] (Ukraine)

Town in the Ukraine, at the mouth of the DNIESTER RIVER, 26 mi SE of ODESSA. Founded as Tyras by colonists from MILETUS in the sixth century B.C., it was captured by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE and renamed Akkerman in 1484. Taken by the Russians in 1826, it was the scene of a Russo-Turkish treaty signed on October 7, 1826, that granted RUSSIA freedom of navigation on the BLACK SEA. The denunciation of the treaty by the Ottomans led to the Russo-Turkish War of 1828. The town was under ROMANIA from 1919 to 1940. Taken by Germany in 1941, the modern name was given to it in 1946 after its recapture by the USSR, in World War II, which was Ukrainized in 1992.

BILLERICAY (England)

Town in Essex, 8 mi SSW of CHELMSFORD. The Pilgrim Fathers assembled in the Chantry Hall here before sailing to America in 1620 to found PLYMOUTH Colony in MASSACHUSETTS.

BILOXI (United States)

City in SE MISSISSIPPI, 75 mi ENE of NEW ORLEANS, on a peninsula between Mississippi Sound and Biloxi

Bay. The capital of LOUISIANA Territory from 1699 to 1702, it is the site of Beauvoir, the last home of Jefferson Davis. Biloxi was heavily damaged by Hurricane Katrina in 2005.

BIMINIS (Bahamas)

Island group consisting of North and South Bimini and a string of cays, in the WEST INDIES, 55 mi E of MIAMI, FLORIDA. According to tradition, the islands are the location of the fountain of youth for which Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de León was searching when he discovered Florida in 1513.

BINCHESTER [ancient: Vinovia] (England)

Hamlet in DURHAM county 2 mi NNE of BISHOP AUCKLAND. Binchester is on the site of the Roman station of Vinovia.

BINDRABAN See VRINDABRAN

BINDRABUND See VRINDABRAN

BINGEN (Germany)

Town in RHINELAND-PALATINATE, at the confluence of the Nahe and RHINE Rivers, 15 mi WSW of MAINZ, Germany. On the site of a Roman fortress, Bingen was an imperial free city and joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1254. From 1281 to 1803 it was held by the archbishop-electors of Mainz. According to legend, Archbishop Hatto I of Mainz was gnawed to death in the Mouse Tower in 913 for wronging his subjects.

BINH LONG (Vietnam)

Province of SW Vietnam along the border with CAMBODIA. The province was devastated by the Vietnam War and the capital, An Loc, was destroyed in 1972 by the North Vietnamese offensive against SAIGON.

BIOGRAD [Biograd na Moru] (Croatia)

Village in DALMATIA, on the Adriatic Sea, 16 mi SSE of ZADAR. It is the site of a ruined cathedral where the kings of Croatia were crowned in the 11th century and where King Coloman I of HUNGARY was crowned in 1102.

BIOGRAD NA MORU See BIOGRAD

BIOKO See EQUATORIAL GUINEA, FERNANDO PO

BIPONTIUM See ZWEIBRÜCKEN

BIRGU See VITTORIOSA

BIR HACHEIM [Bir Hakeim] [Arabic: Bi'r al Hukayyim] (Libya)

Village and battleground in Darnah province, 45 mi SW of TOBRUK, NE Libya. During World War II heavy fighting took place here in 1942 between Axis forces under General Erwin Rommel and the Free French.

BIRJAND (Iran)

Town in Khorasan province, 230 mi S of MASHHAD, E Iran. Once the seat of semi-independent rulers and a caravan center, it is now the chief town of Birjand district.

BIRKA (Sweden)

Former early Viking trading center, on the island of Björkö, approximately 53 mi NE of STOCKHOLM. It was founded c. A.D. 800 and was the first major Swedish urban center and most important Scandinavian trading center until 975. It was the Baltic link in the river and portage route through RUSSIA to the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. After 975 Birka declined both because the water level around Björkö dropped and the Baltic island of GOTLAND was in a more favorable position for Russo-Byzantine trade. Its remaining influence passed to SIGTUNA, a city on a branch of Lake Mälaren, approximately 23 mi NW of Stockholm.

BIRKAT QARUN See MOERIS LAKE

BIRMINGHAM (England)

City in West MIDLANDS, 100 mi NW of LONDON. The second-largest city of the UNITED KINGDOM, it is one of the principal manufacturing and commercial cities of the country. By the 13th century it was a market town of some importance but was devastated by the plague of 1665. Its growth as a modern city dates from the Industrial Revolution in the 18th and 19th centuries, when it grew and prospered, becoming especially important in the metalworking industry. It was severely damaged by air attack in World War II. After the war, the population has grown increasingly diverse, with large-scale immigration from the Commonwealth countries and beyond. Prominent citizens have included chemist Joseph Priestley, engineer James Watt, statesman Joseph Chamberlain, and painter Sir Edward Burne-Jones.

BIRMINGHAM (United States)

City in central ALABAMA, 140 mi W of ATLANTA, GEORGIA. Incorporated in 1871, it is the largest city of Alabama and the South's largest iron and steel center. It was the scene of several of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s civil rights drives.

BIRS See BORSIPPA

BIRSINIUM See TITOGRAĐ

BIRS NIMRUD See BORSIPPA

BISANTHE See TEKİRDAĞ

BISAYAS See VISAYAN ISLANDS

BISCAY See VIZCAYA

BISCAYA See VIZCAYA

BISCAY, BAY OF [ancient: Aquitanicus Sinus, Mare Cantabricum; French: Golfe de Gascogne; Spanish: Golfo de Vizcaya]

Part of the Atlantic Ocean bounded by the N coast of SPAIN and the W coast of FRANCE. The Bay of Biscay has important fishing grounds and many major Spanish and French ports and naval bases along its shore, including BILBAO and LA ROCHELLE.

BISHAPUR [Shapur] (Iran)

Ancient city of PERSIA in Fars province, W of SHIRAZ, SW Iran. The residence of the third-century A.D. Sassanian warrior-king, Shapur I, the palace, fortress, and city of this redoubtable foe of the ROMAN EMPIRE has been excavated here, together with a number of rock-cut royal reliefs. Bishapur had died out by the fifth century A.D.

BISHARRI See BSHARRI

BISHENPUR See BISHNUPUR

BISHKEK [Pishpek] [former: Frunze] (Kyrgyzstan)

Capital city of Kyrgyzstan, in Central Asia, 125 mi WSW of ALMA-ATY. Begun as a fort by the Khans of KOKAND in 1846 and taken by RUSSIA in 1862, the city was renamed in 1925 for a native son, Soviet military leader Mikhail Vasilyevich Frunze. Cultural center of the Kirghiz Republic, Frunze became an industrial city in World War II, when heavy industries were moved there from the war zone in western Russia. The city returned to its original name with independence from the Soviet Union in 1991.

BISHNUPUR [Vishnupur] [former: Bishenpur] (India)

Town in West BENGAL, state, 70 mi NW of KOLKATA, NE India. It was the capital of the Mallabhum Kingdom, which was founded in the eighth century and which became the most important Hindu dynasty in Bengal. The Dhurpad school of Indian music was established in the 16th and 17th centuries at Bishnupur.

BISHOP AUCKLAND (England)

Town in Durham county on the Wear River, 9 mi SSW of DURHAM. It has been the seat of the bishops of Durham since the 12th century. The church of St. Andrew dates from the 13th century. See also BINCHESTER.

BISHOP'S CASTLE (England)

Town in SALOP, 18 mi SW of SHREWSBURY. Strategically placed overlooking a lowland road into WALES, it was the site of a castle built in 1127 by the bishops of HEREFORD.

BISHOPS HATFIELD See HATFIELD

BISHOP'S WALTHAM (England)

Town in HAMPSHIRE, 9 mi ENE of SOUTHAMPTON. It is the site of the remains of the 12th-century palace of the bishops of WINCHESTER and has a 15th-century church.

BISHOPTHORPE (England)

Village in North YORKSHIRE, on the Ouse River, 3 mi S of YORK. It is the site of the 18th-century palace of the archbishop of York.

BISIGNANO (Italy)

Town in Cosenza province, 16 mi N of COSENZA, in CALABRIA region. The site of an ancient ceramics industry, it has a cathedral and the remains of a castle. It has been ravaged by several earthquakes.

BISITUN See BEHISTUN

BISKRA [ancient: Vescera] (Algeria)

Town in Aurès province, on the N edge of the Sahara Desert, 115 mi SSW of CONSTANTINE, NE Algeria. Founded at the site of the Roman frontier post of Vescera, it prospered under the Arabs from the ninth century and was the semi-autonomous capital of the Zab region in the 12th century. Biskra was occupied by the French in 1844, but the garrison was soon massacred by the Arabs. The French reinforced the town in 1849.

BISKUPIN (Poland)

Ancient fortified village and archaeological site on an island in Biskupin Lake, approximately 3 mi S of ŻNIN, in the Great Poland lake district. One of the most famous Iron Age sites in Europe, it is now in effect a Polish national monument. After extensive excavations, part of the site has been restored. Dating from c. 550 B.C., it was destroyed at the end of the fifth century B.C. The town, belonging to the Lusatian culture, lay on important trade routes leading south from the BALTIC SEA. Covering approximately five acres, it consisted of 12 parallel streets with 13 rows of houses, and a ring road running around inside a substantial palisade protected by a tower—all made of timber. There were over 100 log-built houses with thatched roofs. A bridge once ran from the mainland to a gate in the palisade by the tower. See also LUSATIA.

BISMARCK (Germany)

Town in Magdeburg district, 38 mi N of MAGDEBURG, central Germany. It is the site of the ruins of the ancestral castle of Otto von Bismarck.

BISMARCK [former: Camp Hancock] (United States)

City and capital of NORTH DAKOTA, on the MISSOURI RIVER, 150 mi N of PIERRE, SOUTH DAKOTA. Founded in 1872 as Camp Hancock, it was renamed in 1873 to attract German investors. It became the capital of Dakota Territory in 1883 and the capital of North Dakota in 1889.

BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO (Papua New Guinea)

Archipelago NE of NEW GUINEA, forming an arc N, E, and S of the BISMARCK SEA. These volcanic and heavily forested islands were annexed in 1884 by Germany and named after Chancellor Otto von Bismarck. Occupied in 1914 by the Australians in World War I, the islands were seized by the Japanese in 1942 in World War II. The Allies recaptured them in 1944. They remained under Australian control until Papua New Guinea became independent in 1975. The group includes NEW BRITAIN, NEW IRELAND, and the ADMIRALTY ISLANDS.

BISMARCK SEA (Papua New Guinea)

Large sea in the Pacific Ocean off NEW GUINEA, enclosed by the islands of the BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO. In March 1943, during World War II, Allied planes sank a large part of a sizable Japanese fleet here in the Battle of the Bismarck Sea.

BISNULOK See PHITSANULOKBISSAU (Guinea-Bissau)

City and capital of Guinea-Bissau, on the Geba River estuary, 250 mi SSE of DAKAR, near the Atlantic Ocean. Established in 1687 by the Portuguese as a fortified post and slave-trading station, it replaced BOLAMA as capital of Portuguese Guinea in 1941.

BISTAM See BUSTAMBISTRITA [Bistritsa] [German: Bistritz; Hungarian: Beszterce] (Romania)

City and capital of Bistrita Năsăud province, 200 mi NNW of BUCHAREST, in NE TRANSYLVANIA. Founded in the 12th century by immigrant Germans, it was occupied by Hungarians, Romanians, Tatars, and Moldavian Voivodes. During World War II it passed to HUNGARY but was restored to Romania in 1945.

BISTRITSA See BISTRITABISTRITZ See BISTRITABISUTUN See BEHISTUNBISWAN (India)

Town in UTTAR PRADESH state, 20 mi ESE of SITAPUR, N India. Founded c. A.D. 1350, it has early Muslim tombs, and mosques of the 17th and 18th centuries.

BIT-BAHIANI See TALL HALAFBITCHE [German: Bitsch] (France)

Town in Moselle department, 35 mi NNW of STRASBOURG, in ALSACE, E France. The fort at Bitche was besieged by the Prussians in 1793 during the French Revolutionary Wars and again in 1870 during the Franco-Prussian War. The Germans were able to delay the Allied advance here in the winter of 1944–45 toward the end of World War II.

BITHOOR [Bithur] (India)

Town in UTTAR PRADESH state, on the GANGES RIVER, 11 mi NNW of KANPUR, N India. An important ruined Hindu holy place, it is most noted for a footprint believed to be that of the god Brahma and is reputedly the place where the Sanskrit Ramayana was composed. Baji Rao, the Maratha ruler, installed his court here in 1818, but the town was leveled by the British in 1857 in retaliation for Baji Rao's son's part in the Indian Mutiny.

BITHUR See BITHOORBITHYNIA (Turkey)

Ancient region of W ASIA MINOR, bordering the BLACK SEA and the SEA OF MARMARA, N of ESKISEHIR, W Turkey. In the late second millennium B.C., Bithynia was occupied by aggressive tribes who plagued Greek settlers and Persian envoys. After the sixth century B.C. the region was dominated by PERSIA, but by the second century was ruled by a Hellenistic kingship. It reached the zenith of its power under Eumenes II (197–160 B.C.) and passed to ROME in 74 B.C.

BITLIS [former: Bagesh] (Turkey)

Town and capital of Bitlis province in E Turkey, near Lake Van, 240 mi W of TABRIZ. Strategically located on the ancient route from the Van basin to the Mesopotamian plains, it continually changed hands between the seventh and 14th centuries A.D. The Kurds formed a dynasty under Ottoman suzerainty in the 14th century that ruled Bitlis until its incorporation into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1847. Bitlis suffered in the

152 Bitola

Armenian insurrections of the late 19th century and during the Russian occupation of World War I. It has mosques and a partly ruined medieval castle.

BITOLA [ancient: Heraclea Lyncestis; Serbo-Croatian: Bitolj; Turkish: Monastir] (Macedonia)

City in Macedonia, 65 mi S of SKOPJE, near the Greek border. An ancient Greek and Roman city, it declined during the fifth and sixth centuries A.D., weakened by attacks from Slavic tribes. It flourished again following its capture by the Turks in 1382. It was taken by the Serbs during the Balkan Wars of 1912–13; its Jewish population was eradicated during World War II. Today it is a major Macedonian center.

BITOLJ See BITOLA

BITONTO [ancient: Butuntum] (Italy)

Town in Bari province, PUGLIA region, 9 mi WSW of BARI, SE Italy. An ancient Roman town, from the 11th century A.D. it formed part of the Norman kingdom of NAPLES. Coins have been found here dating from the sixth to the third century B.C. It has a 12th-century Romanesque cathedral and several Renaissance palaces.

BITSCH See BITCHE

BIZERTA See BIZERTE

BIZERTE [Banzart, Bizerta] [ancient: Hippo Zarytus] (Tunisia)

Town, port, and capital of Bizerte province on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 37 mi NNW of TUNIS, N Tunisia. Strategically located near the narrowest part of the Mediterranean, it was occupied by Phoenicians, Romans, Vandals, and Arabs. Under Spain from 1535 to 1572, it became a Barbary pirate base until 1881, when the French occupied Tunisia. Following the independence of Tunisia in 1955, a French naval base at Bizerte caused friction that resulted in fighting in 1961. A United Nations ruling forced the Tunisians to accept the presence of the base until 1963, when the French finally abandoned Bizerte, seven years after Tunisia had declared its independence. See also BARBARY STATES.

BJORGVIN See BERGEN

BJORNEBORG See PORI

BLAAUWBERG STRAND (South Africa)

Village on the Atlantic Ocean, 10 mi N of CAPE TOWN, western Cape Province. British forces landed here in January 1806 on their way to the second capture of Cape Town. The Dutch were defeated at the ensuing Battle of Blaauwberg.

BLACHOWNIA [Blachownia Slaska] [German: Blechhammer] (Poland)

Town in Opole province, 16 mi WNW of GLIWICE, on the Klodnica River. During World War II Blachownia was the site of an infamous Nazi concentration camp. See also DACHAU.

BLACHOWNIA SLASKA See BLACHOWNIA

BLACKBURN (England)

Town in LANCASHIRE, 21 mi NNW of MANCHESTER. It has been one of the great weaving centers of the world since the 13th century. The “Spinning Jenny,” which revolutionized this industry, was invented here by James Hargreaves in 1764.

BLACK COUNTRY, THE (England)

Industrial area around and to the N of BIRMINGHAM, now the county of West Midlands. A heavily industrialized area that developed in the 18th century, it was so named after the black smoke caused by the manufacture of iron products. Although pollution has subsided, the area remains despoiled and in some parts derelict.

BLACK DIAMOND See PITTSBURG

BLACKFOOT POST See ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

BLACK FOREST [German: Schwarzwald] (Germany)

Mountain region in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, stretching from KARLSRUHE to BASEL along the E bank of the RHINE RIVER, SW Germany. A heavily forested area, it is the source of the NECKAR and DANUBE rivers and is rich in minerals. A popular tourist center, it has many spas. The forest has suffered severe damage as the result of acid rain, and is now only a fraction of its original size. See also BADEN-BADEN.

BLACK HAWK (United States)

City in central COLORADO, 25 mi W of Denver. The first gold lode discovery in Colorado was made near here in 1859.

BLACKHEATH (England)

Common in the inner LONDON boroughs of Lewisham and Greenwich, in the SE. A notorious gathering place of highwaymen in the past, it was the scene of the assembly of the followers of Wat Tyler from June 11 to 13, 1381, during the Peasants Revolt. In the mid-15th century Jack Cade's followers also met here, and Henry V was welcomed here on his return from AGINCOURT.

BLACK HILLS [Paha Sapa] (United States)

Mountain region in W SOUTH DAKOTA and NE WYOMING, between the Cheyenne and Belle Fourche Rivers. The hills contain many state parks and memorials. Gold was discovered in the hills by General George A. Custer in 1874, and the area was the center of a gold rush boom from 1875 to 1876. The hills are sacred to the Lakota people.

BLACKPOOL (England)

Town in Lancashire, on the Irish Sea, 15 mi WNW of PRESTON. A famous seaside resort, it attracts over 8 million visitors a year, mainly from the nearby industrial cities. The Blackpool Tower, built in 1895, is modelled on the Eiffel Tower in PARIS.

BLACK SEA [ancient: Pontus Euxinus; Romanian: Marea Neagră; Russian and Bulgarian: Chernoye More; Turkish: Kara Deniz]

Sea surrounded by BULGARIA, ROMANIA, UKRAINE, RUSSIA, GEORGIA, and TURKEY. Measuring 750 mi long by 350 mi wide, the Black Sea has been of immense strategic importance, though its importance today is primarily economic. Its shores were colonized in ancient times by Greeks and Romans. The Romans under Hadrian charted it in the second century A.D. Greek settlements extended east to TREBIZOND in ASIA MINOR, the destination of Xenophon's 10,000 Greeks after their march from PERSIA. In the Middle Ages GENOA established trading posts in the CRIMEA for trade with eastern Asia. From here, Genoese ships brought the Black Death to Europe in 1347. The sea's status was reduced to that of a Turkish lake from the 15th to 18th centuries as the surrounding land was controlled by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. Russia's annexation of the Crimea in 1783 increased the sea's importance as a means of reaching Russia from the south, and it was used by the Allies in the Crimean War of 1853 to 1856. The USSR was the principal Black Sea power in the 20th century, but has had a more limited presence now that its Crimean naval bases are in the Ukraine. The Black Sea may become a strategic crossroads again as oil pipelines from the Caspian oil fields terminate on its eastern shore. In Greek legend Jason sailed across the Black Sea on his way to COLCHIS, the land of the Golden Fleece.

BLAD EL-HAWA See CONSTANTINE

BLADENSBURG (United States)

Suburb and battlefield ENE of WASHINGTON, D.C., on the Anacostia River, in W MARYLAND. The British under General Robert Ross defeated U.S. forces under General William Winder here on August 24, 1814, in the War of 1812, before sacking Washington and burning the White House. James Barren fatally wounded Stephen Decatur in a duel here.

BLAGOVESHCHENSK [former: Ust Zeisk] (Russia)

City in Russia, 350 mi WNW of KHABAROVSK in the Russian Far East, at the confluence of the Zeya and AMUR Rivers. The scene of a Russo-Japanese conflict in 1937, it was a base during World War II in 1945 for Soviet attacks on MANCHURIA.

BLAIR-ATHOLL (Scotland)

Village in TAYSIDE region, 30 mi NW of PERTH. The 13th-century castle built by the duke of Atholl here was stormed by Oliver Cromwell in 1652. It was dismantled in 1690 to prevent its being occupied by Highland rebels. It was unsuccessfully besieged by Jacobites in 1746.

BLAJ (Romania)

Town in Mureș province, 165 mi NW of BUCHAREST, in TRANSYLVANIA, central Romania. A religious and educational center, it was founded in the 13th century and was once the residence of Transylvanian princes. The Treaty of Blaj in 1687 granted suzerainty over Transylvania to Leopold I of Hapsburg. The 16th-century archiepiscopal palace and 18th-century cathedral survive.

BLAKISTONE ISLAND [Saint Clement's Island]
(United States)

Island in the POTOMAC RIVER, in S MARYLAND, south of WASHINGTON, D.C. A large cross here commemorates the first mass celebrated in 1634 by colonists brought by the Calverts, founders of Maryland.

BLANKENBURG [Blankenburg am Harz] (Germany)

City in SAXONY-ANHALT, 30 mi SW of MAGDEBURG, at the N foot of the Lower Harz Mts, central Germany. First mentioned in 1122, it was razed by Emperor Frederick I in 1182. It was the home of exiled Louis XVIII of FRANCE from 1796 to 1798, during the French Revolution. His castle survives.

BLANKENBURG AM HARZ See BLANKENBURGBLARNEY CASTLE See CORKBLASKET ISLANDS (Ireland)

A group of rocky islands in County KERRY, at the entrance to Dingle Bay, 70 mi WSW of TRALEE, SW Irish Republic. Piaras Ferriter, the last Irish chieftain to surrender to Oliver Cromwell, had his castle here. One of the islands was inhabited until 1953, when it was abandoned.

BLAYE-ET-SAINTE-LUCE (France)

Town in Gironde department, 20 mi NNW of BORDEAUX, on the E bank of the Gironde River, SW France. In the fourth century A.D. Blaye was the center of the Roman Praefectus Militum Garonnensium, which commanded a militia to counter pirate attacks. William IX, duke of AQUITAIN, was killed here while besieging a rebellious vassal in 1126. The present citadel, which guards the river, was built by Marshal Vauban in 1689.

BLECHHAMMER See BLACHOWNIABLEKINGE (Sweden)

County of S Sweden on the Baltic Sea, with its capital at KARLSKRONA. The smallest county of Sweden, it is heavily cultivated and is called the "Garden of Sweden." Blekinge was ceded to Sweden by DENMARK in 1658 by the Peace of Roskilde, which ended the first phase of the Northern War.

BLenheim [modern: Blindheim] (Germany)

Village and battle site in BAVARIA, near the Danube River, 10 mi SW of DONAUWÖRTH, S Germany. During the War of the Spanish Succession, on August 13, 1704, the English and Austrians under John Churchill, duke of MARLBOROUGH, and Eugene of SAVOY defeated the Franco-Bavarian army under Camille, comte de Tallart, thus saving VIENNA and the alliance of England, Austria, and the United Provinces. It was England's first continental victory since AGINCOURT.

BLenheim PARK See WOODSTOCKBLennerHASSETT ISLAND (United States)

Island in the OHIO RIVER, three mi below PARKERSBURG, W WEST VIRGINIA. Harman Blennerhassett and Aaron Burr reputedly plotted here from 1805–06 to establish an empire in the West. Blennerhassett's ruined mansion survives.

BLESÆ See BLOISBLICKLING (England)

Village in NORFOLK, 12 mi N of NORWICH. Blickling Manor was once the home of King Harold, the last Anglo-Saxon king, killed at HASTINGS in 1066. Anne Boleyn (1507–36), one of Henry VIII's wives, and queen of England, lived here as a child. It has a famous Jacobean hall and a 15th-century church.

BLIDA (Algeria)

Town in Alger province, 25 mi SW of ALGIERS, on the S edge of the Mitidja Plain, N Algeria. Founded in the 16th century on the site of a Roman military post, it was a famous pleasure resort under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. Destroyed by earthquake in 1825, it was occupied by the French in 1839 and again damaged by earthquake in 1867.

BLINDHEIM See BLenheimBLISS, FORT See FORT BLISSBLOCK ISLAND See LONG ISLAND SOUNDBLOCKSBERG See BROCKEN

BLOEMFONTEIN (South Africa)

City on a tributary of the Modder River and capital of the Free State Province, 100 mi ESE of KIMBERLEY, Bloemfontein serves as the judicial capital of South Africa, and one of the country's three capital cities. Founded in 1846, it became the capital of the Orange River Sovereignty in 1849 and in 1854 of the ORANGE FREE STATE. It was made a municipality in 1880. In 1899 the failure of the Bloemfontein Conference led to the outbreak of the Boer War; in March 1900 the British took the town without opposition. Final negotiations leading to the proclamation of the Union of South Africa took place here in 1908.

BLOIS [ancient: Blesae] (France)

Town and capital of the Loir-et-Cher department, on the LOIRE RIVER, central France, 32 mi ENE of TOURS. The seat of the powerful counts of Blois in the early Middle Ages, it was acquired at the end of the 14th century by Louis, duke of ORLÉANS. Blois was France's second capital from 1498 until the end of the 16th century. The States General met here twice. At the second meeting, on December 23, 1588, Henry III had Henri de Guise executed for treason. Blois was damaged in World War II, but the château survives, displaying a variety of architectural styles from the 13th to 17th centuries.

BLONIE (Poland)

Village in Warsaw province, 17 mi W of WARSAW, central Poland. In World War I Blonie was part of Russia's western defenses. It fell to the Germans on July 20, 1915.

BLOOD RIVER (South Africa)

Battle site in ZULULAND, 20 mi E of DUNDEE, NATAL. Here on December 16, 1838, the Boers under Andries Pretorius routed a vastly superior force of Zulus just before founding the Republic of Natal. See also BOOMPLAATS.

BLOODY MARSH See FORT FREDERICA, ST. SIMON'S ISLAND, GEORGIABLOODY NOSE RIDGE [Umurbrogol Mountain] (Palau)

U.S. soldiers' name for mountain and battleground on PELELIU ISLAND, in the W Pacific Ocean, Palau Islands. During World War II Mt Umurbrogol was the scene of fierce fighting between Japanese and U.S. forces from September 19 to 26, 1944, leading to a Japanese defeat.

BLOOMSBURY (England)

District of the inner LONDON borough of Camden, in the NW, 1 mi N of Charing Cross. The area was planned in the mid-19th century on land belonging to the duke of BEDFORD, and, with its neat blocks of row houses interspersed with private parks, became a model for urban planning. It became famous as the haunt of the Bloomsbury Group from 1904 to 1939, a circle of artists and intellectuals including John Maynard Keynes, Clive Bell, Lytton Strachey, and Leonard and Virginia Woolf. The British Museum and the University of London headquarters are in Bloomsbury.

BLOOMSBURY (United States) See RALEIGHBLORE HEATH (England)

Battle site in SALOP, two mi ENE of MARKET DRAYTON, NW central England. During the Wars of the Roses the Lancastrians under Lord Audley were defeated here by the Yorkists under Lord Salisbury on September 23, 1459.

BLUDENZ (Austria)

Town in Vorarlberg province, 25 mi S of BREGENZ, W Austria. First mentioned in A.D. 830, it was fortified in the 13th century and passed to the Hapsburgs in 1394. It is now an international resort.

BLUEFIELDS See MOSQUITO COAST, NICARAGUABLUE LICKS SPRINGS (United States)

Village and battle site in N KENTUCKY, 40 mi NE of LEXINGTON. Canadians and Indians under Simon Girty defeated 182 frontiersmen under Colonel Daniel Boone here on August 19, 1782, at the very end of the American Revolution.

BLUE NILE See NILE RIVERBLUFFS See QUINCYBLUNHAM (England)

Village in BEDFORDSHIRE, 7 mi E of BEDFORD. The metaphysical poet John Donne was rector here from 1621 to 1631. Blunham has a Norman church.

BNEI BRAK See BENE BERAK

BNEI BRAQ See BENE BERAK

BOBBILI (India)

Town in ANDHRA PRADESH, 60 mi N of VISHAKHAPATNAM, E India. Bobbili was besieged in 1756 by French and Indians, during the final struggle between FRANCE and GREAT BRITAIN for India, until every member of the British garrison was killed.

BOBBIO [ancient: Bobium] (Italy)

Town in Piacenza province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 24 mi SW of PIACENZA, NW Italy. It is the site of a monastery founded in A.D. 612 by St. Columban that became a medieval center of learning and was famous for its great library. The inhabitants of Bobbio joined with the Lombard League during the invasion of northern Italy by Frederick I Barbarossa, and won independence from the emperor at the Battle of LEGNANO in 1176. The town became part of SAVOY in 1784. The monastery was closed by the French in 1803.

BOBIUM See BOBBIO

BOBRUISK See BOBRUYSK

BOBRUYSK [Bobruisk] (Belarus)

City in Belarus on the Berezina River, 85 mi SE of MINSK. Established in the 16th century, it passed from LITHUANIA to POLAND and finally to RUSSIA. The Jewish population was exterminated when the city was occupied during World War II by the Germans.

BOCA TIGRIS See BOGUE, THE

BOCHOLT (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, on the River Aa, 28 mi N of DUISBURG, NW Germany. Dating from 1222, it has many old buildings that survived severe damage in heavy fighting in March 1945 during World War II.

BOCHUM (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, W of DORTMUND in the RUHR, NW Germany. Chartered in 1298, it became part of the duchy of KLEVE in 1641 and passed to BRANDENBURG in the early 17th century. Severely damaged in World War II, it is now a commercial and cultural center for the Ruhr.

BODEGA BAY (United States)

Inlet of the Pacific Ocean, in CALIFORNIA, 50 mi NW of San Francisco. A Russian fur-trading post was established here in 1811, and until 1870 the bay was an active harbor. The town is well known as the filming location for Alfred Hitchcock's The Birds.

BODH GAYA [Buddh Gaya] (India)

Village in BIHAR state, 7 mi S of GAYA, NE India. One of the most sacred Buddhist sites, it was here that Gautama Buddha attained enlightenment under the Bo tree. A simple shrine, which has since been embellished, was erected here in the third century B.C. by Asoka. There are extensive Buddhist remains here.

BODRUM See HALICARNASSUS

BODYUL See TIBET

BODZA See BUZAU

BOEOTIA [Greek: Voiotia] (Greece)

Ancient region, now a department of modern Greece, N of the Gulf of CORINTH. LEVADHIA is its administrative capital. Boeotia headed a revolt against SPARTA during the Corinthian War from 395 to 387 B.C. Boeotian forces were decimated in 338 B.C. at the Battle of CHAERONEA and, after rising against Alexander the Great in 335 B.C., Boeotia was again defeated and never regained importance as a power.

BOĞAZICI See BOSPORUS

BOGAZKÖY [Boghazkeui] [ancient: Hattusas, Hattushash; Greek: Pteria] (Turkey)

Village and archaeological site of Hattusas, the ancient Hittite capital in Corum province, 125 mi E of ANKARA, central Turkey. Inhabited since the third millennium B.C., the city was deserted c. 1800 B.C. after the Hattic-speaking inhabitants had been defeated by King Anittas of Kussara. The site was reoccupied in the 17th century B.C. by a king who made it a citadel and the capital of the Hittite kingdom. Destroyed by enemies in 1380 B.C., the city was restored by King Suppiluliumas, who made it the capital of an empire that conquered most of ASIA MINOR and SYRIA. Following the collapse of the HITTITE EMPIRE c. 1200 B.C., the city was occupied by Phrygians and Galatians but was deserted in Christian times and remained uninhabited until the founding of Bogazköy in the 18th century A.D. The site, covering over 300 acres, has been excavated, revealing massive fortifications, gates, and four elaborate temples.

BOGESUND See ULRICEHAMN

BOGHAZKEUI See BOGAZKÖY

BOGORODSK See NOGINSK

BOGOTÁ [former: Santa Fe, Santa Fe de Bogotá, Bogotá, D.C.] (Colombia)

City and capital, 450 mi S of BARRANQUILLA, on a high plateau in the ANDES MOUNTAINS, in Cundinamarca province. The site of Santa Fe de Bogotá was settled in 1538 after Gonzalo Jiménez de Quesada had subdued the Chibcha Indians of Bacatá. The town became the capital of NEW GRANADA and a center of Spanish colonial power in South America. Following independence from Spain in 1819, Bogotá became the capital of the GRAN COLOMBIA confederation, which eventually contracted to include only modern Colombia. Bogotá's development was stunted in the 19th and 20th centuries by political dissension. The constitution of 1991 charged the name of the city back to Santa Fe de Bogotá, but in 2000, it was changed back to Bogotá. The city has grown rapidly as the business and government center of the country.

BOGRA [former: Bagura] (Bangladesh)

Town and capital of Bogra province, 65 mi W of MYMENSINGH, on the Karatoya River, N Bangladesh. Bogra is near the site of Māhasthān, which is identified with Pundravardhana, the capital of the Pundra dynasty in 300 B.C. Bogra was part of the Pal Kingdom from the ninth to 11th centuries A.D. and was taken over by the Muslims in 1199. It was ceded to Great Britain in 1765.

BOGUE, THE [Boca Tigris] (China)

Name given to the mouth of the Guangzhou (Canton) River, 35 mi SE of GUANGZHOU in QUANGDONG province, SE China. The Bogue forts were established on islands in the mouth of the Canton River in the 19th century and were taken by the British in 1841 and 1856.

BOHEMIA [ancient: Boiohaemia; Czech: Čechy; German: Böhmen] (Czech Republic)

Western province of the Czech Republic. In the eighth and ninth centuries A.D. the Carolingians brought Christianity to this area settled by Slavs in the sixth century. Independent under King Wenceslaus in the 10th century, it later retained varying degrees of autonomy in the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. Charles IV, king of Bohemia from 1346 to 1348, was Holy Roman Emperor, and this period saw the kingdom's power at its peak. Religious reform movements and political strife resulted in the Hussite Wars of the mid-15th century that saw Bohemia become a stronghold resisting repeated campaigns against the Hussites. The Thirty Years' War of the first half of the 17th century began in 1618 when Protestant Bohemians in PRAGUE, the capital, ousted (via a window) representatives of their Catholic king Matthias, who was also Holy Roman Emperor. This "Defenestration of Prague" set off the conflict between Catholics and Protestants in Bohemia and throughout the Holy Roman Empire that devastated the land and was followed by the imposition of German language and culture by the Hapsburgs.

Czech nationalism, a factor since the middle of the 19th century, triumphed after World War I when Bohemia, MORAVIA (to whose political fortunes Bohemia had often been linked), SILESIA, and SLOVAKIA were joined in the nation of CZECHOSLOVAKIA. In 1939 Nazi GERMANY annexed the German-speaking third of Bohemia, called SUDETENLAND, after the signing of the Munich Pact.

BÖHMEN See BOHEMIA

BÖHMISCH-BROD See ČESKÝ-BROD

BOHOL (Philippines)

Island in the VISAYAN ISLANDS group, N of MINDANAO in the Mindanao Sea. Originally under the administration of CEBU, it was made a separate province in 1854 by the Spanish. It was under Japanese occupation from 1942 to 1945.

BOHUSLAN [ancient: Viken; Swedish: Bohuslän] (Sweden)

Province of SW Sweden, N of GÖTEBORG along the Norwegian border. Inhabited since the Stone Age, it is said to be the setting of the second part of Beowulf. It was ceded to Sweden at the Peace of ROSKILDE in 1658, after much fighting.

BOIANO [ancient: Bovianum] (Italy)

Ancient capital of SAMNIUM, in Campobasso province, Molise region, approximately 12 mi SW of CAMPOBASSO, central Italy. During the Samnite Wars, in 305 B.C., the Samnites under Statius Gellius were defeated by the Romans who were besieging Bovianum. The capital was finally taken in 298. See also ROME.

BOIOHAEMIA See BOHEMIA

BOIS DE BELLEAU See BELLEAU WOOD

BOIS DE LA BRIGADE MARINE See BELLEAU WOOD

BOISE (United States)

City and capital of IDAHO on the Boise River, 290 mi SSE of Spokane, Washington. Founded in 1863 as a result of the gold rush to the Boise basin, it became the capital of Idaho Territory in 1864. Metropolitan Boise has expanded as home to a number of large corporations in high technology, manufacturing, and services.

BOIS-LE-DUC See HERTOGENBOSCH

BOIZENBURG [Boizenburg an der Elbe] (Germany)

Town in Lower Saxony, on the ELBE RIVER, 16 mi NE of LÜNEBURG. The site of a fortified customs post during the Middle Ages, the town engaged in extensive trade with eastern Europe.

BOIZENBURG AN DER ELBE See BOIZENBURG

BOJODURUM See PASSAU

BOKHARA See BUKHARA

BOLAMA [Bulama] (Guinea-Bissau)

City on an island between the coast of Guinea-Bissau and the Bijagos Islands, 20 mi SSE of BISSAU. Once the capital of Portuguese Guinea, it was claimed by the British in the 1860s but was awarded to PORTUGAL through the arbitration of the UNITED STATES. It was replaced by Bissau as capital in 1941.

BOLAN PASS (Pakistan)

Pass in the Central Brahui Range, 70 mi N of KALAT in N BALUCHISTAN. An important route between India and central Asia, it has been traveled for centuries by nomads, invaders, and traders.

BOLESŁAWICE [German: Bunzlau] (Poland)

Town in Wrocław province, on the Bobr River, 30 mi ENE of GÖRLITZ, SW Poland. Located in the center of Europe, Bolesławice has changed hands many times. It passed to BOHEMIA in 1392, to PRUSSIA in 1742, and to Poland in 1945. Eighty percent of the town was destroyed during World War II.

BOLESŁAWICE [German: Bunzelwitz] (Poland)

Village and battleground in Wrocław province, 7 mi N of SWIDNICA, SW Poland, formerly in German SILESIA. In 1761, during the Seven Years' War, the Prussians under Frederick the Great fought the combined Russian and Austrian armies here but were unable to stem their advance.

BOLGAR [Bolgary] [Bulgar: Uspenskoye] (Russia)

Ancient city in Russian Tatarstan, 13 mi WSW of SAMARA. Bolgar was the capital of the Volga Bulgars from the 10th to the 13th centuries A.D. and was taken by Tatars in 1236.

BOLGARY See BOLGAR

BOLI See BOLU

BOLINGBROKE (England)

Village in LINCOLNSHIRE, 13 mi W of SKEGNESS. The Norman castle, now in ruins, was captured by Parliamentary troops during the Civil War in 1643. Bolingbroke was the birthplace of Henry IV.

BOLIVIA

A landlocked nation in west central South America, named in honor of Simón Bolívar. Bolivia was the home of an important pre-Columbian civilization, whose ruins are at TIAHUANACO. This civilization may have been that of the Aymara Indians and began sometime before A.D. 500. In the 15th century the INCA EMPIRE conquered the Aymara; nevertheless, they still dominate their area, and more than half of Bolivia's population remains pure Indian. The Spanish conquistadors Gonzalo and Hernando Pizarro defeated the Bolivian Indians in 1538, and the discovery of silver in 1545 led to the use of Indian forced labor to mine it.

The first European settlement at Chuquisaca, now SUCRE, was founded in 1538; POTOSÍ, founded in 1545, was for half a century the richest source of silver in the world; LA PAZ was settled in 1548 by Alonso de Mendoza on the site of an Inca village; while SANTA CRUZ, established in 1560, was a Jesuit missionary center. In 1559 the administrative unit of Charcas was formed by SPAIN and included not only modern Bolivia but parts of ARGENTINA, PERU, CHILE, and PARAGUAY. Until 1776 Charcas was part of the viceroyalty of Peru and after that of the viceroyalty of LA PLATA. One of the early abortive uprisings in America against Spanish rule took place in Chuquisaca in 1809. In 1824, aided by Generals Simón Bolívar of Venezuela and José de San Martín of Argentina, Bolivia won its independence. The turning point was the battle of AYACUCHO on December 9, 1824, in which Antonio José de Sucre, born in VENEZUELA, defeated the Spanish. Independence was proclaimed the next year, and Sucre became the first president. He was succeeded by Andrés Santa Cruz. Deciding to combine Bolivia with Peru, he invaded the latter in 1836. Chile opposed this move and defeated Santa Cruz at the battle of YUNGAY on January 20, 1839. In 1841, when the president of Peru tried to seize La Paz, the Bolivian president, José Baldivian, defeated him on November 20 at INGAVÍ.

Bolivia and Peru were again involved in war with Chile in the War of the Pacific from 1879 to 1884. The conflict stemmed from a dispute over nitrate deposits in Bolivia's ATACAMA province, now ANTOFAGASTA, its only coastal territory, which Chile won. Conservatives governed the country until 1899, when the liberals came to power. Their leader, Ismael Montes, was president from 1904 to 1909 and from 1913 to 1917. In 1903 Bolivia reluctantly gave up the Acre region, with its rubber resources, to BRAZIL for a cash indemnity and a railroad. An opposition group overthrew the government in 1920, but the troubles of the 1930s Great Depression caused a military group to exploit discontent and seize the presidency. The boundary between Bolivia and Paraguay in the GRAN CHACO lowlands had long been in dispute, and the discovery of oil in the area brought war, from 1932 to 1935. Both sides were completely exhausted in the struggle, and a treaty in 1938 gave three-fourths of the disputed region to Paraguay.

Bolivia's history in the last two decades has reflected wider world trends. In 1967 the Cuban revolutionary, Ernesto "Che" Guevara, who had come to Bolivia to lead guerrilla warfare, was captured and executed. Alfredo Ovando Candía seized the presidency in 1969 and nationalized U.S. oil companies. Since then one coup has followed another. Bolivia has had its first woman president, Lidia Gueiler Tejada; and in August 1981 the 190th government in the 156-year history of the country took office. In the 1980s Bolivia became the world's largest producer of coca making the country of interest to antidrug policy makers in the UNITED STATES. In the 1990s the Bolivian government applied policies to try to eliminate the coca crop, but were often resisted by the small farmers who depended on coca growing for their livings. In 2002, American-educated Gonzalo Sánchez de Lozada was elected president. There continues to be conflict between government forces, and coca-growing interests. In 2005, Juan Eva Morales Ayna, a socialist, became Bolivia's first president of indigenous ancestry.

Sucre is the constitutional capital; but La Paz, the largest city, is the administrative and political capital.

BOLOGNA [ancient: Bononia, Felsina] (Italy)

City and capital of Bologna province and EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 50 mi N of FLORENCE, at the foot of the Etruscan APENNINES, N central Italy. An ancient Etruscan town, it was overrun by the Gauls in the fourth century B.C. It became a Roman colony in 190 B.C. and in the sixth century A.D. was part of the Byzantine exarchate of RAVENNA. It was successively under Visigoths, Huns, Ostrogoths, and Lombards until it became a free town in the 12th century and a member of the Lombard League. It was finally reincorporated into the PAPAL STATES in 1506 after several attempts by the papacy to reestablish its control over the Romagna. It was under French control from 1797 to 1814 and under the Austrians from 1849 to 1860, when it became part of the kingdom of Italy.

Under German occupation from 1943 to 1945, it is today one of the most important cities of Italy. The city still contains several of its medieval tower-palaces and its famous galleried pedestrian walks. Its university, founded in the 11th century was, along with Paris, the font of all other Western universities. Long the center of legal studies, it now also attracts medical students from all over the world. Among its noted citizens were six popes, the painters Guido Reni and the Caracci, the composer Ottorino Respighi, and scientist Guglielmo Marconi.

BOLOS See VOLOS

BOLSENA [ancient: Volsinii] (Italy)

Town in Viterbo province, LATIUM region, 8 mi SW of ORVIETO on Lake Bolsena, central Italy. An ancient Etruscan town, it was razed by the Romans in 265 B.C. A sceptical Bohemian priest is said to have witnessed the miracle of transubstantiation at Bolsena in 1263. This is commemorated in a fresco called The Miracle at Bolsena by Raphael in the papal apartments at the Vatican.

BOLTON [Bolton-le-Moors] (England)

Town within Greater MANCHESTER, 10 mi NW of Manchester. An important town in the Middle Ages, it was granted a charter for a market and fair in 1251. It experienced rapid industrial expansion in the 18th and 19th centuries and was a center for the woolen manufacturing trade.

BOLTON-LE-MOORS See BOLTON

BOLU [Boli] (Turkey)

Town and capital of Bolu province, 85 mi NW of ANKARA, NW Turkey. Bolu is reputedly the home of the Turkish folk hero, Köroğlu. It is near the site of BITHYNIIUM and was captured by the Ottoman Turks in 1325.

BOLZANO [ancient: Bauzanum; German: Bozen] (Italy)

City and capital of Balzano province, TRENTINO-ALTO ADIGE region, 31 mi NNE of Trento, at the confluence of the Isarco and Talvera rivers, in the Dolomite Mts, NE Italy. It was held by the counts of BAVARIA from A.D. 680 until 1027, when it was given to the bishop of TRENT. A source of dispute between the bishops and the counts of TYROL, it passed to the latter in 1531 and later to Bavaria and AUSTRIA. From 1810 to 1813 it formed part of the Napoleonic kingdom of Italy, but it reverted to Austria until 1918. The city went to Italy after World War I. The population is a mix of German and Italian speakers.

BOMA [former: Embomma, Lombi] (Congo)

Town and port, 175 mi SW of KINSHASA, on the CONGO RIVER, 60 mi from the Atlantic Ocean. One of Congo's oldest towns, it was a trading center and slave market by the mid-19th century and became the capital of the Congo Free State, later known as the BELGIAN CONGO, in 1886. It was replaced as capital by Kinshasa in 1926.

BOMARSUND (Finland)

Fortress on ÅLAND ISLAND, in the Gulf of Bothnia. It was captured by British and French forces from the Russians after a bombardment on August 16, 1854, at the beginning of the Crimean War. This marked the start of an Allied maritime offensive against Russia from the north that was subsequently abandoned in favor of an attack through the CRIMEA. See also RUSSIA.

BOMBAY See MUMBAI

BON, CAPE [Arabic: Jazīrat Sharīk] (Tunisia)

Peninsula on the N coast of Tunisia, 50 mi ENE of TUNIS. The German forces in North Africa surrendered to the Allies here in May 1943 during World War II.

BONA See ANNABA

BONAIRE See NETHERLANDS ANTILLES

BONAMPAK (Mexico)

Ruined Mayan city of the Late Classic Period of A.D. 600 to 900, near TUXTLA GUTIÉRREZ in CHIAPAS state, SE Mexico. The ruins discovered in 1946 include one building inside of which are surprisingly well-preserved frescoes. They cover the walls and ceiling and depict scenes of Mayan life, in bright colors.

BONANZA CREEK See DAWSON

BONAPARTE See RÉUNION

BONDU See MALI EMPIRE

BÔNE See ANNABA

BONIFACIO (France)

Town on the S coast of CORSICA, 45 mi SE of AJACCIO. Strategically positioned on a limestone peninsula, it was founded in A.D. 828 for protection against pirates. It was captured from the Pisans by the Genoese in the 12th century; its inhabitants retain their Genoese character.

BONIN ISLANDS [Japanese: Ogasawara-Gunto] (Japan)

Group of 30 volcanic islands NE of the Philippine Sea, 500 mi SE of Japan. Discovered in 1543 by the Spanish, they command a strategic position on the Pacific routes to East Asia. Annexed by Japan in 1876, they were occupied by the UNITED STATES from 1945 to 1968 and were then returned to Japan.

BONN [ancient: Castra Bonnensia; former: Bonnburg] (Germany)

City and former capital of West Germany, in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 15 mi S of COLOGNE on the RHINE RIVER. A Roman settlement from the first to fifth centuries A.D., it later became a Frankish town and was the capital of the electorate of Cologne until its occupation by French troops in 1794. Annexed by PRUSSIA in 1815, it grew rich in the second half of the 19th century as millionaires moved into the city. This prosperity was undermined by the world wars and accompanying financial ruin. Since becoming the capital of West Germany in 1949, the city has grown in importance and size. The city has now lost much of its international importance, however, after the reunification of Germany in 1990 when the capital returned to BERLIN. Composer Ludwig van Beethoven was born in Bonn.

BONNBURG See BONN

BONNY (Nigeria)

Town in SE Nigeria, in the NIGER RIVER delta and on the Bight of Biafra. From the 15th to 19th centuries it was the capital of the kingdom of Bonny, the center of the Ijaw people. During this time it thrived on slave trading. In 1790, for example, approximately 20,000 black slaves, mostly Ibo people of the interior, were shipped to the Americas. At this time and into the 19th century it was at its height under the Pepple dynasty. After the British put an end to the slave trade in the 1830s, Bonny's prosperity declined until its traders took up the exportation of palm oil and other agricultural products in the 1850s. From 1885 to 1894 Bonny was an administrative center of the British OIL RIVERS Protectorate. The town's economic importance grew again after 1961 when the port was modernized and became a petroleum-exporting center.

BONNYRIGG AND LASSWADE (Scotland)

Town in LOTHIAN region, 7 mi SE of EDINBURGH. The novelist Sir Walter Scott lived at Lasswade from 1797 to 1803, following his marriage.

BONNY-SUR-LOIRE (France)

Village in Loiret department, 40 mi NE of BOURGES, on the LOIRE RIVER, central France. The French under Joan of Arc captured Bonny from the English in 1429 during the Hundred Years' War.

BONONIA (Bulgaria) See VIDIN

BONONIA (France) See BOULOGNE

BONONIA (Italy) See BOLOGNA

BOOMPLAATS (South Africa)

Battle site, 19 mi S of HOPETOWN, near Jagersfontein, FREE STATE. The Boers under Andries Pretorius were defeated here on August 29, 1848, in their revolt against GREAT BRITAIN's annexation of NATAL in 1844. See also BLOOD RIVER.

BOONESBORO (United States)

Former settlement in central KENTUCKY, on the Kentucky River. It was named for Daniel Boone, the celebrated frontiersman. Working for the Transylvania Company, whose chief promoter was Richard Henderson and which was formed to speculate in western lands, Boone set out in March 1775 with 30 men to blaze the WILDERNESS ROAD from the SHENANDOAH VALLEY into Kentucky. He founded Boonesboro and the same year brought his wife and daughter to live here. Except for a few white women captured by Indians, they were the first in Kentucky. Henderson, who called the region Transylvania, also brought settlers here in 1775 and tried to make it a proprietary colony like PENNSYLVANIA and MARYLAND. Although Boonesboro was the self-appointed seat of government of Transylvania for a few years, the Continental Congress refused to make the area the 14th colony, while VIRGINIA and NORTH CAROLINA both claimed it. Although Boonesboro beat off an Indian attack in 1778, it was later abandoned for fear of further assaults.

BOONEVILLE (United States)

Town in N MISSISSIPPI, 20 mi S of CORINTH. During the Civil War, Union forces under General P. H. Sheridan defeated the Confederates here in 1862.

BOONSBORO (United States)

Town and battleground in NW MARYLAND, 10 mi S of HAGERSTOWN. Union forces defeated the Confederates here during the Civil War on September 14, 1862.

BOONVILLE (United States)

Isolated village in the Anderson Valley of N CALIFORNIA 100 mile N of SAN FRANCISCO. It is famed for a local dialect called "Boontling."

BOONVILLE (United States)

City in central MISSOURI, between ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY on the MISSOURI RIVER. During the Civil War Union forces under Captain Nathaniel Lyon defeated Confederates under Colonel John S. Marmaduke here on June 17, 1861, thus preserving Missouri for the Union.

BOOTHIA FELIX See BOOTHIA PENINSULA

BOOTHIA PENINSULA [former: Boothia Felix] (Canada)

Peninsula in NORTHWEST TERRITORIES, 1,300 mi N of WINNIPEG. The northernmost part of mainland North America, it was discovered in 1829 by Sir James Ross who established the first location of the magnetic NORTH POLE here.

BOPPARD (Germany)

Town in RHINELAND-PALATINATE, eight mi S of KOBLENZ, on the RHINE RIVER, W Germany. An ancient Celtic town, it was a fortified Roman settlement during the early centuries A.D., and was a free imperial city from the 12th century A.D. until 1312, when it passed to the electors of TRIER.

BORBETOMAGUS See WORMS

BORDEAUX [ancient: Burdigala] (France)

City, port, and capital of the Gironde department, on the GARONNE RIVER, 300 mi SSW of PARIS, SW France. The chief town of the Celtic Bituriges Vivisci people, it was the capital of the Roman province of Aquitania Secunda and, after centuries of political upheaval, it came under the dukes of AQUITAINE in the 10th century. Under English domination from 1154 until the Battle of CASTILLON in 1453, it enjoyed freedom and prosperity. King Richard II was born near here in 1367. The city prospered again in the 18th century as a slave trading port. Bordeaux was the seat of the French government when Paris was threatened by the Germans in the Franco-Prussian War in 1870 and in World War I in 1918. During World War II, in 1944, Bordeaux was liberated from the Germans largely by Free French forces.

BORDENTOWN (United States)

City in central NEW JERSEY, on the DELAWARE RIVER, 6 mi SSE of TRENTON. Settled by English Quakers in 1682, it was partly destroyed by the British in 1778 during the American Revolution.

BORDERS (Scotland)

New region on the E border with England created from the former counties of Roxburgh, Selkirk, Peebles, Berwick, and parts of Midlothian. Administrative headquarters is NEWTOWN ST. BOSWELLS.

BORGÅ See PORVOO

BORGEN BAY (Papua New Guinea)

Inlet of the BISMARCK SEA, on the N coast of NEW BRITAIN. Hill 660 on the bay was captured from the Japanese after 10 days of bitter fighting by U.S. Marines on January 14, 1944, during World War II.

BORG GRAPPA (Italy)

Village in Latina province, LATIUM region, 10 mi S of VELLETRI, W Italy. During World War II the UNITED STATES ANZIO and southern armies met here on May 25, 1944 before their march to ROME.

BORGU [French: Borgou] (Benin, Nigeria)

Former kingdom of W Nigeria and E Benin, S of the NIGER RIVER. The area was disputed by FRANCE and GREAT BRITAIN from 1894 until June 1898, when a convention divided it between Nigeria and Dahomey (Benin) along the present border.

BORISOGLEBSK (Russia)

City in Russia, 120 mi ESE of VORONEZH, on the Khoper River. Borisoglebsk was founded as a fortress against the Tatars in 1646.

BORISOV See BARYSAWBORIVLI (India)

Village in MAHARASHTRA state, 20 mi N of MUMBAI, W India. The nearby Kanheri caves contain Buddhist temples dating from between the second and ninth centuries A.D. There are eighth-century Brahmanic caves to the north.

BORNEO (Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia)

Island, the third largest in the world, lying SE of the MALAY PENINSULA and N of JAVA. Mountainous and mostly jungle, its inhabitants included the primitive Dyaks of the interior and the Malays of the coastal areas. Borneo was first visited by a European, Friar Odoric of Pordenone, in 1330. PORTUGAL and SPAIN began trading with the island in the 16th century, but their trade monopoly was broken in the 17th century by the Dutch and the English. The island was occupied in World War II by the Japanese from 1941 to 1945. The Indonesian part of Borneo, now called KALIMANTAN, was granted sovereignty by the Dutch in 1949; the Malaysian areas of SABAH and SARAWAK were given sovereignty by the British in 1963, though BRUNEI remained a British protectorate until it declared independence in 1984.

BORNHOLM (Denmark)

Island in the BALTIC SEA, 105 mi SE of COPENHAGEN, and 25 mi S of the Swedish coast. A former Viking stronghold, it was independent until the 10th century but came under SWEDEN and LÜBECK before passing to Denmark in 1660. It was the only part of Denmark to be bombed in World War II by the Soviets.

BORNHÖVED (Germany)

Town and battle field in SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, 10 mi E of NEUMÜNSTER, N Germany. During the Wars of Scandinavia, in 1227, the powerful Danish king Waldemar II was defeated here by the rebellious province of DITHMARSCHEN. This ended Danish control over the province.

BORNU (Nigeria)

Former state in Northern Province, extending S and W of Lake Chad, NE Nigeria. Dating from the 14th century, the Muslim state of Bornu, formerly under the KANEM Empire, reached its zenith under Idris Alawma (1570–1610) and became the leading state in the central SUDAN region. It began to decline in the 17th century, revived briefly from 1814 to 1835, but was conquered at the end of the 19th century by the Sudanese slave trader Rabih. Bornu was partitioned in 1898 by the British, French, and Germans.

BORNY, BATTLE OF See COLOMBEYBOROBOEDOER See BOROBUDURBOROBUDUR [Dutch: Boroboedoer] (Indonesia)

Ruined temple in central JAVA, 17 mi NNW of JOG-JAKARTA. One of the greatest Buddhist monuments in the world, it was built in A.D. 800 under the Sailendra dynasty but was later ignored until its restoration by Dutch archaeologists between 1907 and 1911. It consists of eight galleries around an artificial temple mountain with 1,500 beautiful bas-relief carvings and 430 lifesize images of Buddha.

BORODINO (Russia)

Village in Russia, on the Kolocha River, 80 mi WSW of MOSCOW. During the Napoleonic Wars, on September 7, 1812, the Russians under General Mikhail Kutuzov were narrowly defeated here by the French under Napoleon, who went on to occupy Moscow.

BOROUGHBRIDGE (England)

Town and battle site in North YORKSHIRE, 6 mi ESE of RIPON. The rebellious earl of Lancaster was defeated here in 1322 by Edward II and beheaded. The remains of a Roman camp are nearby.

BORRODALE (Scotland)

Locality in Invernesshire, on the Sound of Arisaig, S of MALLAIG, NW Scotland. The Young Pretender, Prince Charles Edward, landed here in 1745 to rally support for his rebellion. After his defeat at CULLODEN he reembarked here.

BORSIPPA [modern: Birs, Birs Nimrud] (Iraq)

Ancient city of BABYLONIA, 12 mi S of the site of BABYLON, in al Hillah province, central Iraq. An ancient religious center, it was the site of the Ezida temple dedicated to Marduk, the national god of Babylonia. It was built by Hammurabi, who reigned from 1792 to 1750 B.C. The city prospered under Nebuchadnezzar from 604 to 562 B.C. The ruins of Nebuchadnezzar's ziggurat remain. Borsippa was destroyed in the fifth century B.C. by the Persian Achaemenid king Xerxes I.

BORYSTHENES See DNEIPER RIVER

BOSCOBEL (England)

Village in SALOP, 10 mi E of TELFORD, W central England. After his defeat by the Parliamentarians at the Battle of WORCESTER in 1651, Charles II hid in Boscobel Manor and in an oak tree near the village.

BOSHAM (England)

Town in West SUSSEX, four mi W of CHICHESTER. The daughter of King Canute is supposed to have been buried here in the 11th-century church, which is shown in the BAYEUX tapestry.

BOSNA I HERCEGOVINA See BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

BOSNA-SERAJ See SARAJEVO

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA [Serbo-Croatian: Bosna i Hercegovina]

Republic bounded on the E and SE by SERBIA AND MONTENEGRO and to the N and W by CROATIA. SARAJEVO is the capital. Inhabited since the Paleolithic Age, it was settled by Slavs in the seventh century A.D. and became a separate political entity apart from Serbia in A.D. 960. Bosnia was ruled by HUNGARY from the mid-12th century but was a Turkish province by 1463 and an important outpost in the Turkish struggles with VENICE and AUSTRIA. At the Congress of Berlin in 1878 Bosnia and Herzegovina was assigned to Austro-Hungary. The growth of Serbian nationalism resulted in the assassination of the Austrian archduke Francis (Franz) Ferdinand in Sarajevo in 1914, an event that sparked World War I. Bosnia and Herzegovina were annexed to Serbia in 1918 and in 1946 became one of the six peoples' republics of Yugoslavia. Bosnia and Herzegovina declared independence from Yugoslavia. Conflict followed between Serbs, Croats, and Muslims. Many Bosnian Serbs opposed the establishment of the new republic, in which they were a minority. Serbs from both Serbia and Bosnia, began to carve out the Serb-populated areas and declared the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Croats in Bosnia, also fearing Bosniak (Muslim Bosnian) domination, declared their own Croatian Community of Herceg-Bosna. In 1993, bombing and artillery fire, mainly by Serb forces, destroyed much of Sarajevo and other cities throughout the country. In 1994, Bosniaks and Bosnian Croats agreed to a cease-fire and established a joint Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. During 1995, Serb forces shelled the besieged capital of Sarajevo, and attacked the UN-proclaimed "safe areas" of Tuzla, Zepa, and SREBRENICA. There were mass deportations of Bosniaks, and widespread instances of rape and execution of civilians, especially in Srebrenica. In late 1995, the Bosnian, Serbian, and Croatian governments negotiated the DAYTON accords in Dayton OHIO. The Dayton accords called for a Bosnian republic with a central government and two semiautonomous regions, one dominated by the Serbs, the other by the Bosniaks and the Croats in a federation. The peace was to be guaranteed by NATO peacekeeping forces who arrived in 1996. In 2002 unsupervised elections, nationalists were elected over moderates. In 2004, the European Union took over responsibility for Bosnian peacekeeping forces from NATO. See OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

BOSORA See BUSRA

BOSPORUS [ancient: Bosphorus Thracius; Turkish:

Boğazici, Istanbul Boğazi, Karadeniz Boğazi] (Turkey) Strait separating ASIA MINOR from Turkey in Europe, stretching 19 mi N from ISTANBUL to the BLACK SEA,

W Turkey. Of immense strategic importance, as it provides the only maritime access to the Black Sea and hence the southern ports of the UKRAINE and RUSSIA, it is narrow and thus easily defended. Its economic importance dates to antiquity, when it was a route for Mediterranean trade to central Asia. Its strategic value dates from the collapse of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the 18th and 19th centuries, when the Western powers proposed schemes for the international control of the DARDANELLES and Bosphorus. Control passed to Turkey in 1936 at the Montreux Convention.

BOSPORUS THRACIUS See BOSPORUS

BOSRA See BUSRA

BOSRA ESKI SHAM See BUSRA

BOSTON [former: Saint Botolph's Town] (England)

City in E central England, 28 mi SE of LINCOLN, and the administrative seat of the section of LINCOLNSHIRE known as the Parts of Holland. In the seventh century A.D. St. Botolph founded a monastery here. In the 13th century Boston was England's second-busiest port, was a part of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE, and did a large business in wool and wine. In 1607 some Puritans were jailed in the Guildhall for trying to leave the country. John Cotton, a Puritan clergyman who had been vicar of the wealthy St. Botolph's for 20 years, led a group of Puritans, who sailed from Boston in 1633 for the Massachusetts Bay area, and founded a town that became BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS. The tower of St. Botolph's Church, 288 ft high, is visible for miles around the flat countryside and from the sea. The tower is called the Stump because it is flat on top.

BOSTON (United States)

City, port, and capital of MASSACHUSETTS, 180 mi NE of NEW YORK CITY, on the Charles River and an arm of MASSACHUSETTS BAY. The spiritual and intellectual capital, popularly called the "Hub," of NEW ENGLAND, it was settled in 1630 by Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay Company and became a large port under an English governor. Boston was a hotbed of anti-British feeling prior to the American Revolution. In 1770, resistance to the Stamp Act resulted in the Boston Massacre when British troops fired on rioters.

The famous Boston Tea Party occurred here in 1773. The British were forced to evacuate the city in 1776 when Washington's forces occupied surrounding heights with artillery.

Boston prospered through far-flung maritime trade until the Civil War, when the base of the economy shifted to manufacturing and railroads. Today it is a commercial, financial, industrial, medical, and educational center, with Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the neighboring city of CAMBRIDGE. Its suburbs are the center of a fast-growing high-technology industry.

BOSTRA See BUSRA

BOSTUM See BUSTAM

BOSWORTH FIELD (England)

Battleground in Leicestershire, 12 mi W of LEICESTER. The last battle of the Wars of the Roses was fought here on August 22, 1485, in which Henry Tudor, earl of Richmond, defeated Richard III. Richard died in the battle; Henry went on to be crowned King Henry VII.

BOTANY BAY [former: Stingray Harbor] (Australia)

Inlet of the Tasman Sea in New South Wales, just S of SYDNEY, SW Australia. It was discovered in 1770 by Captain James Cook on his first landing in Australia. Near here was the site of Australia's first penal colony, established in 1788 by Captain Arthur Phillip.

BOTHWELL (Scotland)

Town and battlefield in STRATHCLYDE, on the CLYDE RIVER, 8 mi SE of GLASGOW. At the Battle of Bothwell Brigg on June 22, 1679, the Scottish Covenanters were defeated by a Royalist force under the duke of Monmouth, son of Charles II.

BOTOȘANI [Botoshani] (Romania)

Town and capital of Botosani province, 240 mi N of BUCHAREST, N Romania. Occupied in the 13th century by Genghis Khan, it is named after his grandson Batu Khan. There is a 15th-century church with frescoes here.

BOTOSHANI See BOTOȘANI

BOTSWANA [former: Bechuanaland]

A landlocked country occupying the center of southern Africa. Botswana's history is closely linked with that of its neighbors, ZIMBABWE and SOUTH AFRICA. The Tswana, a Bantu people, migrated to the region several hundred years ago but did not form a coherent political unit until the 19th century. Khama III brought the Tswana together to resist incursions by the Matabele and by Boer trekkers from the TRANSVAAL. GREAT BRITAIN moved to protect its colonial ambitions in Africa from a German threat by claiming Bechuanaland, as the country was formerly called. In 1885 northern Bechuanaland was made a protectorate, and southern Bechuanaland became a Crown colony. In 1895 the southern part was included in the South African CAPE COLONY. When the Union of South Africa's constitution was drafted in 1909, it stated that Bechuanaland would eventually become part of the Union along with the other British protectorates of the region. British administration over the protectorate of Bechuanaland continued until 1965 when general elections were held, a new constitution was adopted, and the capital was moved from the South African city of MAFEKING to GABORONE.

Independence was granted in 1966 as a member of the British Commonwealth, with the new name of Botswana. Led by Sir Seretse Khama, the new nation's prospects seemed linked to those of Rhodesia, now ZIMBABWE, and to South Africa's needs for cattle ranching; but large deposits of diamonds, nickel, and copper were soon discovered. Sir Seretse moved to establish close ties with ZAMBIA to the north and the rest of black Africa, while continuing economic relations with South Africa. In the late 1970s, Rhodesian security forces repeatedly entered Botswana in search of Zimbabwe guerrillas; the situation remained very tense until Zimbabwe's independence in 1979. Botswana is unique in sub-Saharan Africa in that it has had stable government with democratic elections and sustained economic growth. Botswana is favorably rated as having the least corrupt government in Africa. The country is also suffering a health crisis that may undermine this progress with over a third of the adult population infected with the HIV virus.

BOTTLE HILL See MADISONBOTWOOD [former: Botwoodville] (Canada)

Town in NW central NEWFOUNDLAND on the Bay of Exploits, 160 mi NW of St. JOHN's. Botwood was a fueling stop for the first transatlantic flying boat service in 1939. During World War II the North Atlantic air patrols were based here.

BOTWOODVILLE See BOTWOODBÖTZOW See ORANIENBURGBOUEA See BUEABOUGAINVILLE ISLAND (Papua New Guinea)

Island in the SW Pacific Ocean, 300 mi NW of GUADALCANAL in the SOLOMON ISLANDS. A volcanic island, it was discovered in 1768 by Louis-Antoine de Bougainville but was placed under German administration in 1898. Occupied by the Australians in 1914 at the outbreak of World War I, it was taken by the Japanese in World War II but put under Australian administration again after the war. Rich in copper ore, Bougainville suffered from a series of secession movements in the 1970s, until Papua New Guinea became independent in 1975. Bougainville's secession movement reappeared in 1987, when environmental degradation from the mines led to civil war and the closing of the Panguna Mine. The Papua New Guinea government contracted with foreign mercenaries to retake the mines in 1996. There is to be a referendum on independence to be held in the 2010s.

BOUGIE See BEJAÏABOUILLON (Belgium)

Town in Luxembourg province, 17 mi WSW of NEUFCHÂTEAU, S Belgium. The site of a castle since the eighth century, it was sold in 1096 to the bishop of LIÈGE by Godfrey of Bouillon, later to be king of JERUSALEM. Ceded to France in 1678 at the Peace of NIJMEGEN, it remained in French hands until 1815 at the end of the Napoleonic Wars.

BOUKHARA See BUKHARABOULDER DAM See HOOVER DAMBOULOGNE [ancient: Bononia, Gesoriacum; French: Boulogne-sur-Mer] (France)

City and port in Pas-de-Calais department, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 135 mi NNW of PARIS, NE

France. The site of a harbor since Roman times, it was destroyed by the Viking Normans in A.D. 882. It was part of BURGUNDY until 1477, when Louis XI united it to the crown of France. Occupied by the English from 1544 to 1550, it later became Napoleon's base for the projected invasion of GREAT BRITAIN. It was a German submarine base during World War II and formed part of the Nazi defensive WEST WALL.

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER See BOULOGNE

BOUND BROOK (United States)

City and battleground in central NEW JERSEY, 7 mi NW of NEW BRUNSWICK. During the American Revolution a colonial force was defeated here by the British under General Charles Cornwallis in 1777.

BOURBON See RÉUNION

BOURBONENSIS AGER See BOURBONNAIS

BOURBON-L'ARCHAMBAULT (France)

Village in the Allier department, 13 mi W of MOULINS, central France. The village was the site of Roman baths and has a ruined castle built by the dukes of Bourbon.

BOURBONNAIS [ancient: Bourbonensis Ager] (France)

Former province of central France in the Cher and Allier departments, with its capital at MOULINS. Bourbonnais was created out of parts of neighboring provinces by the dukes of Bourbon in the 10th century A.D. The French Crown confiscated the province in 1527 and annexed it in 1531. It was divided into its present departments in 1790.

BOURBON VENDÉE See LA ROCHE-SUR-YON

BOURG [Bourg-en-Bresse] (France)

Town and capital of the Ain department, 36 mi NNE of LYONS, E central France. Bourg was made the chief town of BRESSE by the dukes of SAVOY in the 15th century. The 15th-century church of Brou, erected by Margaret of AUSTRIA, is a fine example of late Gothic architecture.

BOURG-EN-BRESSE See BOURG

BOURGES [ancient: Avaricum] (France)

City and capital of the Cher department, 122 mi S of PARIS, central France. The capital of the Bituriges tribe, Avaricum was staunchly defended by Vercingetorix against Julius Caesar, who laid siege to the city in 52 B.C. Converted to Christianity in the third century A.D. by St. Ursin, Bourges was made the capital of AQUITAINE by Charlemagne and was the home of Charles VII of France from 1422 to 1437 during the Hundred Years' War. The Pragmatic Sanction was signed here in 1438. The city's five-aisled early Gothic cathedral, begun in 1195, used the flying buttress to create a nave of unprecedented height.

BOURG-LÉOPOLD [Flemish: Leopoldsburg] (Belgium)

Town in Limburg province, 14 mi NNW of HASSELT, E Belgium. Fighting took place around Bourg-Léopold between German and Allied troops from 1944 to 1945 during World War II.

BOURLON (France)

Village in the Pas-de-Calais department, 5 mi W of CAMBRAI, NE France. During World War I, Bourlon Wood was the scene of heavy fighting in 1917.

BOURNE (England)

Town in LINCOLNSHIRE, 15 mi SE of GRANTHAM. A former Roman station and Anglo-Saxon stronghold, it was the home of Hereward the Wake and also of Robert Mannyng (c. 1288–1328), whose Handlyng Synne and Story of Englande represent high achievements of the Midland dialect in the development of the English language.

BOUVINES (France)

Village in the Nord department, 7 mi SE of LILLE, NE France. Philippe II of France defeated an international coalition under the Holy Roman Emperor Otto IV here on July 27, 1214. This increased the power of the French monarchy in Europe. Philippe's victory led to King John of ENGLAND's defeat in AQUITAINE and the return of lands occupied by the English to France.

BOVIANUM See BOIANO

BOWERY, THE (United States)

Street and area of lower MANHATTAN, NEW YORK CITY. The street follows an old route used by the Indians in their conflicts with the Dutch. The theater life of New York centered on this street from 1860 to 1875. By 1880 it had declined and become the haunt of the city's derelicts, hence the expression "a Bowery bum." The street and area are now participating in the revival of artistic studio space in the city.

BOWES (England)

Village in DURHAM, 14 mi W of DARLINGTON. Bowes has the remains of a Roman camp and is the site of Bowes Castle, built in 1187, and a church of Norman origin.

BOWIE, FORT See FORT BOWIE

BOWLING GREEN (United States)

City in S KENTUCKY, 65 mi NNE of NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, on the Barren River. Settled in 1780, its importance as a land and water transportation center grew after 1832 when the first railroad in the state was built. In 1861, at the start of the Civil War, Bowling Green was occupied by Confederate troops. However, when a Union army captured FORT HENRY in early 1862, the Confederate commander, Albert Sidney Johnston, evacuated the city. Lost River Cave nearby is said to have been a hiding place for both Jesse James, the notorious bank robber, and John Hunt Morgan, commander of Confederate troops who raided behind Union lines. To the southwest are the remains of a Quaker settlement from c. 1800, while MAMMOTH CAVE NATIONAL PARK is to the northeast.

BOX ELDER See BRIGHAM CITY

BOYACÁ (Colombia)

Town, 70 mi NE of BOGOTÁ. Here on August 7, 1819, Simón Bolívar defeated the Spanish. Three days later he entered Bogotá, thus ensuring the independence of modern Colombia and VENEZUELA.

BOYNE RIVER [Gaelic: An Bóinn] (Ireland)

It rises near Carbury, County KILDARE, and flows NE to DROGHEDA and the Irish Sea. Here King William III of England defeated the French and Irish Catholic army of King James II on July 2, 1690. Along its banks are some of the finest prehistoric stone passage graves in Ireland, including NEW GRANGE.

BOZCAADA [Bozca Island] [ancient: Tenedos] (Turkey) Island in the AEGEAN SEA, 12 mi S of the DARDANELLES. It was used by the Greeks as a naval station in the Trojan War and by Xerxes the Great in the Persian Wars. It was occupied by Great Britain in the GALLIPOLI campaign from 1915 to 1916 and was then ceded to GREECE. It was returned to Turkey in 1923.

BOZCA ISLAND See BOZCAADA

BOZEMAN PASS (United States)

Mountain pass in the Rocky Mts, S MONTANA, near Bozeman. Opened up by John M. Bozeman from 1863 to 1865, it was used by gold seekers coming from COLORADO. They encountered Indian opposition and deserted the pass after 1868. In the 1870s it became a cattle trail.

BOZEN See BOLZANO

BOZRAH [modern: Al-Busayrah, Al-Buseira] (Jordan)

Ancient capital city of EDOM, 25 mi SSE of the DEAD SEA, near PETRA. An important Edomite stronghold from 1200 to 600 B.C., it was the home of Jobab, the second known king of Edom. According to the Old Testament, its destruction was prophesied by Amos and Isaiah.

BOZRAH (Syria) See BURSA

BRABANT (Belgium)

Province of central Belgium surrounding the capital city of BRUSSELS. The province, once included in LORRAINE, was ruled by the dukes of Brabant from the 12th to the 15th centuries before it passed to the dukes of BURGUNDY. The abortive Belgian revolt of 1789–90 against the Hapsburgs of AUSTRIA was centered on Brabant. When Belgian independence was finally won in 1830, the northern part of the former duchy passed to the NETHERLANDS, the southern and larger part to Belgium.

BRAČ [Brach] [Italian: Brazza] (Croatia)

Island off the coast of Croatia, in the ADRIATIC SEA, S of SPLIT. A rugged mountainous island, it has been occupied by Greeks and Romans, by pirates, and by the powers of DUBROVNIK, VENICE, BOSNIA, FRANCE, and AUSTRIA-HUNGARY. It passed to YUGOSLAVIA in 1918 but was occupied by the Germans in World War II.

BRACARA AUGUSTA See BRAGA

BRACH See BRAC

BRADDOCK (United States)

Town in SW PENNSYLVANIA, on the MONONGAHELA RIVER, 8 mi SE of PITTSBURGH. The British under General Edward Braddock were defeated here in 1755 by French and Indians. The village was a center of the Whiskey Rebellion in 1794.

BRADDOCK'S ROAD See NATIONAL ROAD

BRADFORD-ON-AVON (England)

Town on the Avon River, in WILTSHIRE, 6 mi ESE of BATH. The seventh-century monastery here was destroyed by the Danes in 1003. The town was a center of the medieval wool trade, and the medieval bridge and an Anglo-Saxon chapel can still be seen.

BRAEMAR [Castleton of Braemar] (Scotland)

Village in GRAMPIAN region, 50 mi WSW of ABERDEEN. The Scots under the earl of Mar raised the standard here in 1715 before the start of their abortive rebellion in the Jacobite cause. Balmoral Castle, a British royal residence since 1852, is nearby.

BRAGA [ancient: Bracara Augusta] (Portugal)

City and capital of Minho province, 30 mi NNE of OPORTO, NW Portugal. Probably established by Carthaginians c. 295 B.C., it was occupied by the Romans and became their chief post in north LUSITANIA. Conquered by the Suevi and Visigoths in the fifth century A.D., it was held by the Moors from 716 to 1040 and was the residence of the Portuguese royal court from 1093 to 1147.

BRAGANÇA See BRAGANZA

BRAGANZA [ancient: Brigantia, Juliobriga; Portuguese: Bragança] (Portugal)

City in Tras-os-Montes e Alto Douro province, 110 mi NE of OPORTO, NE Portugal. The site was first occupied by the Celts and Romans. The house of Braganza furnished the kings of Portugal from 1640 to 1910 and the emperors of BRAZIL from 1822 to 1889.

BRAGG, FORT See FORT BRAGG.

BRAILA [ancient: Brayla, Drinago; Turkish: Ibraila] (Romania)

Town, port, and capital of Braila province, on the DANUBE RIVER, 105 mi NE of BUCHAREST, E Romania. Dating from Greek times, it was put to the torch by the Turks in 1462 and again by Stephen the Great of MOLDAVIA in 1470. Under Turkish occupation from 1554 to 1828, it passed to WALACHIA in 1829 after the Russo-Turkish War. Today it is the second-largest port of Romania.

BRAINTREE [former: Monoticut] (United States)

Town in E MASSACHUSETTS, 11 mi SSE of BOSTON. Settled in 1634, it was the scene of the famous trial from 1920 to 1927 of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Italian immigrant radicals, who were found guilty and executed for murders they allegedly committed in Braintree. Their execution brought protests from all over the country and the world for the unfairness of the trial. Braintree was the birthplace of presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

BRAMBANAN See PRAMBANAN

BRAMHAM MOOR (England)

Moor and battlefield in West YORKSHIRE, 7 mi NE of LEEDS. Henry Percy, earl of NORTHUMBERLAND, was defeated and killed here on February 19, 1408, by a Royalist force under Ralph Neville, earl of WESTMORELAND. The battle ended the Percy family revolt against Henry IV.

BRAN [Bran-Poarta] (Romania)

Village in Brasov province, 14 mi SW of BRASOV, central Romania. Bran Castle was built in 1377 by the Teutonic Knights. After restoration in the early 20th century, it became the summer residence of Queen Marie of Romania.

BRANCHIDAE See DIDYMA

BRANDENBURG (Germany, Poland)

Former state, now in central E Germany and part of W Poland. The German conquest of Brandenburg began in the 10th century under Henry I the Fowler, who captured BRANIBOR, the capital of the Slavic Havelli tribe. His work was continued after 1106 by Lothair, duke of SAXONY. By the 12th century Brandenburg was ruled by an imperial elector. A period of disunity wracked the electorate prior to the appointment of Frederick of Hohenzollern as elector. Brandenburg expanded further under this dynasty, though it suffered Swedish occupation from 1614 to 1648 during the Thirty Years' War. Under Frederick William, the Great Elector, the foundations of the state's greatness were established. Frederick III, who ruled from 1688 to 1713, assumed the title King of Prussia; from then on Brandenburg became synonymous with PRUSSIA.

BRANDENBURG AN DER HAVEL [ancient: Branibor, Brennabor, Brennaburg] (Germany)

City in Potsdam district, 40 mi W of BERLIN, central E Germany. Founded in A.D. 512 by the Slavic Hevelli tribe, it was conquered in 928 by the German King Henry I the Fowler but retaken by the Slavs in 983. In 1150 it was inherited by the Ascanian king Albert I the Bear and, after rebuilding, gave its name to the electorate of BRANDENBURG. It was severely damaged during World War II.

BRANDY See BRANDY STATIONBRANDY STATION [Brandy] (United States)

Battle site, 55 mi SW of WASHINGTON, D.C., in VIRGINIA. It was the scene of the largest cavalry battle of the Civil War, fought between the Union troops under General Alfred Pleasanton and the Confederates under General J.E.B. Stuart. Although the Union forces were finally made to withdraw, the engagement did force the subsequent retreat of General Robert E. Lee. The battle is also called Fleetwood Hill and Beverly Ford.

BRANDYWINE CREEK [Indian: Wauwaset] (United States)

Stream rising near COATESVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA, flowing 20 mi SE to the Christina River N of WILMINGTON, DELAWARE. During the American Revolution, on September 11, 1777, the British under General Sir William Howe defeated General George Washington's Continental army here but failed to destroy it or cut it off from PHILADELPHIA. This event led directly to the important defeat of General John Burgoyne and his troops at SARATOGA. The Brandywine was also known for its flour mills from the colonial period into the 19th century and, later, for its DuPont gunpowder mills, all operated by waterpower.

BRANIBOR See BRANDENBURG AN DER HAVELBRANIEWO [German: Braunsberg] (Poland)

Town in Elblag province, on the Pasleka River, 35 mi SW of KALININGRAD, RUSSIA. Built on the site of a castle established by the Teutonic Knights in 1241, it became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1284 and passed to Poland in 1466. Severely damaged during the Swedish-Polish wars of the 17th and 18th centuries, it was occupied by SWEDEN from 1626 to 1635 and passed to PRUSSIA in 1772. It was almost completely destroyed during World War II.

BRANIFORTE COLONY See SANTA CRUZ (California)BRAN-POARTA See BRANBRANTFORD (Canada)

City in SE ONTARIO, 60 mi SW of TORONTO. In 1784, after the American Revolution, Joseph Brant, a Mohawk Indian chief who had fought with the British, was granted this site as a reservation for the Six Nations Indians. The first church in Ontario was built here in 1785.

BRAS D'OR (Canada)

System of lakes on CAPE BRENTON ISLAND, SW of SYDNEY, N NOVA SCOTIA. This was the location of the Aerial Experiment Association, established by Alexander Graham Bell, which made major contributions to the early development of aviation. On February 23, 1909, J. McCurdy flew an airplane here for half a mile. See also BADDECK.

BRASHOV See BRAȘOVBRASÍLIA (Brazil)

City and capital of Brazil, in Goiás province, 540 mi N of SÃO PAULO. This site was chosen as the prospective location of the new capital of Brazil in 1956, and the city was carefully planned with striking contemporary architecture. The federal government began to move from RIO DE JANEIRO to Brasilia in 1960 when it became capital of Brazil.

BRASLAV [Polish: Braslaw] (Belarus)

City in Belarus, 145 mi SE of RIGA. Fortified by a castle, Braslav passed from POLAND to RUSSIA in 1795 but reverted to Poland in 1921. It was finally ceded to the Soviet Union in 1945.

BRASLAW See BRASLAV

BRAȘOV [former: Brashov, Orasul Stalin; German: Kronstadt; Hungarian: Brassó] (Romania)

City and capital of Brașov province, on the edge of the Transylvanian Alps, 106 mi NNW of BUCHAREST, central Romania. Settled by the Teutonic Knights in 1211, it became the center of a Saxon trading colony. Its German inhabitants enjoyed substantial autonomy until 1876. Occupied by Romania in World War I, it was formally annexed in 1918.

BRASS (Nigeria)

Town and port at the mouth of the Brass River, on the Gulf of GUINEA, 60 mi WSW of PORT HARCOURT in Rivers Province, S Nigeria. In the early 19th century Brass was a slave-trading center for the state of Brass.

BRASSÓ See BRAȘOV

BRATISLAVA [German: Pressburg; Hungarian: Pozsony] (Slovakia)

City and capital of Slovakia, on the DANUBE RIVER, 175 mi SE of PRAGUE. Settled by Celts and Romans, it was occupied by Slavs in the eighth century A.D. and was the capital of HUNGARY from 1526 to 1784. The Hungarian parliament continued to meet here until 1848. Following the Battle of AUSTERLITZ in 1805 in the Napoleonic Wars, the Peace of Pressburg was signed here between Napoleon and Francis II of AUSTRIA. Bratislava became the capital of Slovakia after World War I. In 1993, it became the capital of an independent Slovakia.

BRATTAHLID See JULIANEHÅB (Greenland)

BRATTLEBORO (United States)

Town in SE VERMONT, on the CONNECTICUT RIVER. It grew out of Fort Dummer, built in 1724 to protect settlers from the Indians, and was named for a land speculator, Colonel William Brattle. The town was chartered in 1753. Brattleboro was once known as an artists' colony. Rudyard Kipling, the British author, who married a native of the town in 1892, lived nearby for four years in his home "Naulahka." Richard Morris Hunt, the architect who designed such residences as those of the Vanderbilts, was born here in 1828; William Morris Hunt, the landscape painter, in 1824; and John Humphrey Noyes, the reformer and founder of the ONEIDA Community, in 1811.

BRAUNAU AM INN (Austria)

City in Upper Austria, on the Inn River, 31 mi N of SALZBURG. Strongly fortified in the 17th century, it came under Austria in 1779. Adolf Hitler was born in the Gasthaus Pommer here on April 20, 1889.

BRAUNSBURG See BRANIEWO

BRAUNSCHWEIG See BRUNSWICK

BRAVA (Somalia)

Town and port in Benadir province, on the Indian Ocean, 105 mi SW of MOGADISHU, S Somalia. Controlled in the 16th century by the Portuguese, it later passed to the Turks and in the 17th century to ZANZIBAR. It was sold to ITALY in 1905.

BRAYLA See BRAILA

BRAZIL

The largest nation in South America, occupying nearly half the continent, bordering on every country in South America except ECUADOR and CHILE. Even before Europeans reached this region, the Treaty of TORDESILLAS of 1494 divided the non-Christian world between SPAIN and PORTUGAL. It modified a Papal Bull of 1493, similar to the treaty, so as to give Portugal claim to Brazil when it was discovered.

In 1499 the Florentine navigator in Portuguese service, Amerigo Vespucci, discovered the mouth of the AMAZON RIVER. The next year the Spanish navigator Vicente Yáñez Pinzón reached the Brazilian coast in January, while the Portuguese Pedro Álvares Cabral followed in April and claimed the region for Portugal. The French also showed interest, and in 1530 Martin Alfonso de Sousa was sent to drive them away. He established the first European settlement at SÃO VICENTE in 1532. In 1555 the French settled near present RIO DE JANEIRO, but in 1567 Mem de Sã, the first Portuguese governor general of Brazil, drove them out and founded Rio.

Beginning in 1624 the Dutch made a determined effort to secure much of Brazil. They captured SALVADOR, formerly Bahia, founded in 1549, and held it for a year. By 1633 the Dutch West India Company controlled all the northeast area and had rebuilt RECIFE, formerly Pernambuco, founded in 1548. No help came from Portugal, from 1580 to 1640 united to the Spanish Crown. In 1654, however, the Dutch were driven out. The first revolt against Portuguese rule began in the late 1780s under the leadership of Joaquim José de Silva Xavier, known as Tiradentes. The plot was betrayed in 1789 and the leaders imprisoned.

When Napoleon I invaded Portugal in 1807, King John (João) VI fled to Brazil and set up his court there in 1808, making Brazil the capital of the Portuguese Empire. When he returned to Portugal in 1821, his son Pedro I remained as regent. Restrictive policies of the homeland caused Pedro to declare Brazil a separate empire on September 7, 1822. Portugal recognized Brazil's independence on August 19, 1825. Wanting to keep URUGUAY part of Brazil, Pedro engaged in a war with that country and ARGENTINA in 1827 but was defeated. His increasing unpopularity led him to resign in favor of his son, Pedro II, in 1831. During his reign Brazil joined with Argentina and Uruguay in the War of the Triple Alliance against a dictator of PARAGUAY. The war, from 1865 to 1870, left Paraguay devastated. Brazilian troops remained in the country until 1876.

Slavery had long been established in Brazil. Although there were about 6 million Indians when Europeans came, they were unmanageable for labor in the sugarcane fields, introduced as early as the 16th century. Consequently, black slaves were imported from Africa, and over the years Brazil became a mixture of the black, white, and Indian races. The slave trade was abolished in 1850, and a law of 1871 provided for the gradual elimination of slavery. When an end was put to the system in 1888, the large planters were angered. Their complaints and others resulted in Pedro's ouster in 1889 and the end of the empire.

The first president of the republic was Manuel Deodoro da Fonseca, but he was forced to resign in 1891. The political situation continued to be volatile, but Brazil prospered in the late 19th century by reason of its coffee and rubber exports. The country came into World War I on the Allies' side in October 1917. Dictator Getúlio Dornelles Vargas, president during 1930–45 and during 1951–54, forced the development of industry and more diversified agriculture. World War II brought a new boom in rubber, and Brazil joined the Allies again in August 1942.

In the 1960s there were both inflation and political turmoil. The leftist government of João Goulart was overthrown in 1964, and the military took over. General João Baptista da Figueiredo was elected president in 1978. Although Brazil has developed economically in the early 1980s, the government continued to be repressive. In 1985, civilian rule was restored as Tancredo Neves was elected president by the electoral college, but died soon after, and José Sarney, his vice president, assumed the presidency. In 1989, Fernando Collor de Mello was elected, but corruption scandals caused his impeachment and resignation. Fernando Henrique Cardoso was elected president in 1994 and reelected in 1998. Cardoso's terms saw a number of financial crises as Brazil has developed into an industrial powerhouse, but has also seen a growing divide in income between rich and poor. In the 2002 election, Luiz Inácio (Lula) da Silva was elected as Brazil looked to the left for an alternative. BRASÍLIA is the capital. SÃO PAULO is the largest city.

BRAZZA See BRAČ

BRAZZAVILLE (Republic of Congo)

City, port, and capital of the Republic of Congo, on the CONGO RIVER, 330 mi NNE of LUANDA, below Stanley Pool. Founded in 1883 when the French bought the village of Ntamo, it became the capital of FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA and was important during World War II as the headquarters of the Free French forces in Africa.

BRÉANTRÁIGH See UNION HALL

BRECHIN (Scotland)

Town in TAYSIDE, 22 mi NE of DUNDEE, in the Vale of Strathmore. It is the site of a cathedral founded in 1150 by David I of Scotland. Scotland was ceded to ENGLAND at Brechin in 1296. The castle was besieged in 1303 by Edward I of England and fell after three weeks.

BRECKNOCK See BRECON

BRECON [Brecknock] [Welsh: Aberhonddw] (Wales)

Town in POWYS, on the Usk River, 35 mi NNW of CARDIFF. The site of a castle built in 1092 by the Normans, Brecon was one of the four most important cities in Wales in the early 16th century. A chancery and exchequer were established at the castle by Henry VIII in 1542.

BREDA (Netherlands)

Town in North BRABANT province, at the confluence of the Aa and Mark rivers, 27 mi SSE of ROTTERDAM. An important fortress on the Mark from 1536, it was the scene of the Compromise of Breda in 1566, which attempted to avert Spanish dominion. Breda fell to SPAIN in 1581 and after being recaptured and retaken was ceded to the Netherlands in 1648 by the Treaty of WESTPHALIA. The Declaration of Breda, made by Charles II of England in 1660, informed the English government on what terms he would accept the throne. The Treaty of Breda in 1667 marked the end of the second naval war between the Netherlands and ENGLAND.

BREED'S HILL See BUNKER HILL

BREGENZ [ancient: Brigantium] (Austria)

City on Lake Constance, 80 mi WNW of INNSBRUCK, in Vorarlberg, W Austria. The site of a Celtic settlement and the Roman camp of Brigantium, it was settled in the sixth century A.D. by the Alemanni and was ruled until 1206 by the counts of Bregenz. Sold to the Hapsburgs in 1451 and 1523, it became one of their principal seats after 1726.

BREISACH [Breisach am Rhein] [ancient: Mons Brisiacus; former: Altbreisach] (Germany)

Town in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, on the RHINE RIVER, 12 mi WNW of FREIBURG, SW Germany. Fortified since Roman times, it passed to the Hapsburgs in the 13th century. Its strategic position caused it to suffer continually from French attack. It passed to BADEN in 1805 and was half destroyed in World War II.

BREISACH AM RHEIN See BREISACH

BREISGAU (Germany)

Region of SW Germany, in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, between the RHINE RIVER and the BLACK FOREST, around FREIBURG IM BREISGAU. Occupied by the Romans and the Alemanni tribe, in the Middle Ages it belonged to the Zähringen family who founded Freiburg. In the 14th century it came under the Hapsburgs and was occupied by the Swedes during the Thirty Years' War. Under the Treaty of NIJMEGEN in 1679 the Hapsburgs lost Freiburg to FRANCE until 1697. Breisgau was divided between BADEN and WÜRTTEMBERG in 1805 at the Treaty of Pressburg, but in 1806 passed wholly to Württemberg.

BREITENFELD (Germany)

Suburb NW of LEIPZIG, SE Germany. Two of the decisive battles of the Thirty Years' War were fought here. The first took place on September 17, 1631. When the Swedish-Saxon army of Gustavus II Adolphus destroyed the army of the Catholic League and the Hapsburgs under Count Johan Tilly. The second occurred on November 2, 1642, when the Swedish field marshal Lennart Torstenson defeated another imperial army under Octavio Piccolomini. Gustavus II Adolphus's victory over Tilly's forces demonstrated the effectiveness of mobile troops and firepower over fixed formations—a turning point in the development of modern warfare. On the site, there is a monument reading "Freedom of belief for all the world."

BREMBERG [Polish: Zarek] (Poland)

Village in Wrocław province, 10 mi S of LEGNICA, W Poland. During the Napoleonic Wars, on August 26, 1813, the Battle of the KATZBACH, in which the Prussians defeated the French, was fought here.

BREMEN (Germany)

City, port, and capital of Bremen province, on the Weser River, 60 mi SW of HAMBURG, NW West Germany. In the 11th century Bremen was the seat of an archbishopric including all of SCANDINAVIA, ICELAND, and GREENLAND. Bremen later became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. After Bremen became a free imperial city in 1646, the archbishopric was transferred to SWEDEN in 1648 at the Peace of WESTPHALIA. The city passed to HANOVER in 1719. As Germany's second-largest port, it was heavily bombed in World War II. It is an important commercial and industrial center.

BREMERHAVEN (Germany)

City and port in Bremen province, at the mouth of the Weser River, 33 mi N of BREMEN, NW Germany. Founded as a port for Bremen in 1827, it was Germany's largest fishing port in the 19th century and the major European cotton entrepôt before World War II, during which it was heavily bombed.

BREMERSDORP See MANZINI

BREMERTON (United States)

City in NW WASHINGTON, 15 mi W of SEATTLE, with a fine harbor on an arm of PUGET SOUND. It was laid out in 1891 when the area was selected as the site for the U.S. Puget Sound Naval Shipyard. Ever since then the city's economy has centered around this operation. It is also in a tourist region, the gateway to the Olympic Peninsula and the Olympic Mts. The USS Missouri, on which the Japanese formally surrendered in TOKYO Bay, September 2, 1945, to end World War II, is docked here.

BRÉMULE (France)

Battleground in Eure department, between ROUEN and PARIS, N central France. On August 20, 1119, an Anglo-Norman force defeated Louis VI of France here, thus making the claim of Henry I of England to NORMANDY indisputable.

BRENNABOR See BRANDENBURG AN DER HAVEL

BRENNABURG See BRANDENBURG AN DER HAVEL

BRENNER PASS [German: Brenner Sattel; Italian: Passo del Brennero] (Austria, Italy)

Mountain pass in the ALPS, south of INNSBRUCK, on the road to BOLZANO, NE Italy. One of the major entrances to northern Italy and an important trade route, it was used by the Romans and by the Teutonic invaders of Italy. It was a major trade route from the Middle Ages on, connecting Venetian routes from the Middle East and northern Italian industrial towns with MUNICH and southern Germany. During 1940–43, the pass was the site of meetings between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

BRENNER SATTEL See BRENNER PASS

BRENTESION See BRINDISI

BRENTFORD AND CHISWICK (England)

Suburb, forming part of the outer LONDON borough of HOUNSLOW, in the W. The Danes were defeated here in 1016 by Edmund Ironside. During the Civil War, on November 12, 1642, the Roundheads were vanquished here by the Royalists under Prince Rupert.

BRESCELLO [ancient: Brixellum] (Italy)

Town on the Po River, in Reggio nell'Emilia province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 11 mi NE of PARMA, N Italy. The Roman emperor Otho committed suicide here in A.D. 69.

BRESCIA [ancient: Brixia] (Italy)

Ancient town and capital city of Brescia province, LOMBARDY region. Pleasantly situated at the base of the Alps between Milan and VERONA, as Brixia it was a settlement of the Celtic Cenomani before being taken by the Romans in 225 B.C. Augustus made it a civil colony in 27 B.C., following which it became a Roman municipal center. Destroyed by the Goths in A.D. 412, it was next pillaged by Attila the Hun in 452. As a duchy under the Lombards, it functioned as an independent municipality from 936 and was one of the most effective members of the Lombard League against the German emperor in the 13th century.

In 1426 it came under Venetian influence after a brief period of rule by the Visconti of MILAN. In 1516, at the zenith of its wealth and power, it was looted by Gaston de Foix and the French, an event that left it permanently weakened. While under Austrian domination in the late 18th century, it was taken by Napoleon in 1796 and remained under French rule until the Congress of VIENNA returned it to AUSTRIA in 1815. As a center for the revolutions of 1848–49, it was the scene of a short-lived but courageous rebellion against the Austrians, but remained under Austrian control until it passed to the kingdom of SARDINIA in 1859, joining the united kingdom of Italy in 1860. Its rich architectural heritage includes some notable Roman remains, the Romanesque Duomo Vecchio (Old Cathedral) dating from the 11th century, the 12th century Broletto Palace, the Renaissance Palazzo della Loggia, and the baroque Duomo Nuovo (New Cathedral), which dates from the 17th century. Brescia was the center of a 16th-century school of painting led by Moretto and Moroni.

BRESKENS (Netherlands)

Town in ZEELAND province, three mi S of FLUSHING, on the SCHELDE RIVER, SW Netherlands. It was captured from the Spanish by the Dutch in 1631. More recently, it was unsuccessfully attacked by the Allies in October 1944 while being held by the Germans during World War II.

BRESLAU See WROCLAW

BRESSANONE [German: Brixen] (Italy)

Town in Bolzano province, TRENTINO-ALTO ADIGE region, 20 mi NE of BOLZANO, at the southern end of the BRENNER PASS. The seat of an ecclesiastical principality in the 11th century, it was often in conflict with the counts of TYROL. The bishopric passed to AUSTRIA in 1803 after being secularized. The town was ceded to Italy in 1919.

BRESSE (France)

Region of E central France, in Ain and Saône-et-Loire departments, with its capital at BOURG. Following the death of Charles the Bold in 1477, Bresse passed from the dukes of BURGUNDY to the French Crown. In 1601 the southern part of Bresse was ceded to France by SAVOY at the Treaty of LYONS.

BRESSUIRE (France)

Town in Deux-Sèvres department, 17 mi NW of PARTHENAY, W France. Bressuire has been destroyed three times. In 1214 it was burned in retaliation for its sympathy with the Plantagenet English cause. In 1598 it was burned by Protestants, and again in 1794 by Republicans during the VENDÉE rebellion.

BREST [ancient: Berestye; former: Brest-Litovsk; Polish: Brzesc nad Bugiem] (Belarus)

City in Belarus, on the BUG RIVER, 225 mi SW of MINSK. Established in the 11th century, it passed to LITHUANIA in 1319. It later came under POLAND and was frequently attacked by Tatars and Teutonic Knights. Captured by RUSSIA in 1794, it was again a part of Poland between the two world wars. The Treaty of Brest-Litovsk ended the war between GER-MANY and Russia in 1918. Brest finally became part of the Soviet Union in 1945.

BREST (France)

City and port in Finistère department, on the N shore of Brest Roads, 315 mi W of PARIS, in BRITTANY. Originally a Gallo-Roman settlement, it was ceded to John I, duke of Brittany in 1240, was occupied by the English from 1342 to 1397, and passed to France in 1491. It was made a major naval base by Cardinal Richelieu in the 17th century. It was used in World War I for the debarkation of U.S. troops. It was severely damaged during World War II, after the Germans had built it into a massive submarine base.

BREST-LITOVSK See BREST

BRETAGNE See BRITTANY

BRÉTIGNY (France)

Village in the Eure-et-Loire department, 4 mi SE of CHARTRES, N central France. Following the French defeat at POITIERS in 1360, a treaty was signed here between ENGLAND and France that gave England full sovereignty over GASCONY, CALAIS, and PONTHEU.

BRETTON WOODS (United States)

Resort in N NEW HAMPSHIRE, 18 mi SSE of LITTLETON. The United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference met here in July 1944 to arrange financial matters for the postwar world. Attended by experts from 44 states, it resulted in the creation of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

BREUCKELEN See BROOKLYN

BRIANÇON [ancient: Brigantio] (France)

Town in the Hautes-Alpes department, 37 mi NE of GAP, SE France. The site of a Roman station, it was sacked by Sardinians in 1692 and heavily refortified by Sébastien de Vauban in the 17th century. Toward the end of the Napoleonic Wars, in 1815, it withstood and Allied siege for three months. It was damaged during World War II.

BRIANSK See BRYANSK

BRIBIESCA See BRIVIESCA

BRICE'S CROSS ROADS (United States)

Battle site in MISSISSIPPI, 85 mi SE of MEMPHIS. Here on June 10, 1864, during the Civil War, the Confederates under Nathaniel Forrest brilliantly routed the Union forces under General Sam Sturgis. Brice's Cross Roads is now a national battlefield site.

BRIDGENORTH See BRIDGNORTH

BRIDGEPORT [former: Fairfield Village, New Fairfield, Pequonnock, Stratfield] (United States)

City in S CONNECTICUT, 15 mi SW of NEW HAVEN. Settled in 1639, it has long been the chief manufacturing city of Connecticut. The circus showman P.T. Barnum lived in Bridgeport. Jasper McLevy, the first socialist mayor in Connecticut, was elected here in 1933. Bridgeport's fortunes declined markedly during the deindustrialization of the United States during the 1970s and 1980s. For a time, the city had the highest per capita murder rate in the United States, as well as being the first U.S. city to declare bankruptcy.

BRIDGER, FORT See FORT BRIDGER

BRIDGETOWN See BARBADOS

BRIDGEWATER [former: Cap de la Have] (Canada)

Town in S NOVA SCOTIA, 52 mi WSW of HALIFAX. The first school in Canada was established here in 1632 by six Capuchin monks. The village was razed by a Boston privateer in 1705 but was rebuilt later.

BRIDGNORTH [former: Bridgenorth] (England)

Town in Salop on the SEVEN RIVER, 13 mi W of WOLVERHAMPTON. An ancient Anglo-Saxon bridge point, it was the site of a castle built in 1101 that was besieged many times. A Royalist stronghold during the Civil War, it fell to Parliamentary troops in 1646.

BRIDGWATER (England)

Town in SOMERSET, on the Parrett River, 9 mi NE of TAUTON. The duke of MONMOUTH was proclaimed king here in 1685 shortly before the Battle of SEDGE-

MOOR, in which his rebellion against the Catholic king James II was finally crushed.

BRIDLINGTON See BURLINGTON

BRIEG See BRZEG

BRIEL See BRIELLE

BRIELLE [Briel, Bril] [former: The Brill] (Netherlands)

Town and battlefield in South HOLLAND province, 13 mi W of ROTTERDAM, W Netherlands. During the Netherlands War of Independence the Dutch patriots, or Sea Beggars, under William I of Orange won their first victory over the Spanish when they captured the fort at Brielle on April 1, 1572.

BRIENNE-LE-CHÂTEAU (France)

Village and battle site, in the Aube department, 14 mi NE of TROYES, NE central France. Napoleon attended the military school here from 1779 to 1784. During the Napoleonic Wars, on January 29, 1814, the Prussians were routed here by Napoleon while they were marching on PARIS.

BRIEULLES-SUR-MEUSE (France)

Village in the Meuse department, 18 mi NW of VERDUN on the MEUSE RIVER, NE France. U.S. troops crossed the Meuse here on November 1, 1918, in the last stage of World War I.

BRIG [ancient: Briga Dives; French: Brigue] (Switzerland)

Town in the Valais canton, on the RHÔNE RIVER, 26 mi S of INTERLAKEN, S Switzerland. A possession of the bishops of SION in the 13th century, it was a center for trade with ITALY.

BRIGA DIVES See BRIG

BRIGANTIA See BRAGANZA

BRIGANTIO See BRIANÇON

BRIGANTIUM See BREGENZ

BRIGA-TENDA [French: Brigue et Tende] (France)

Region of the Alpes-Maritimes department, near the S end of the Franco-Italian border, SE France, in what was formerly part of ITALY. The French asked to be given the region in 1946, and it was ceded to them after a referendum in 1947. The Col de Tende is of strategic value.

BRIGHAM CITY [former: Box Elder] (United States)

City in NW UTAH, 20 mi N of OGDEN. It was founded as Box Elder in 1851, and the name was changed in 1856 to honor Brigham Young, the leader of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, or Mormons. To the west is Golden Spike National Historic Site, which marks the spot where on May 10, 1869, a golden spike was driven to join the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads, thus forming the first transcontinental railroad in the United States.

BRIGHTHELMSTONE See BRIGHTONBRIGHTON [ancient: Bristelmestune; former: Bighthelmstone] (England)

Town in East SUSSEX, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 50 mi S of LONDON, S England. Mentioned in the Domesday Book of 1086, it is today most famous as a seaside resort. The patronage of the Prince of Wales, later George IV, gave the town importance and its regency appearance, exemplified by his Royal Pavilion, in Indian style.

BRIGUE See BRIGBRIGUE ET TENDE See BRIGA-TENDABRIHUEGA (Spain)

Town and battle site in Guadalajara province, New Castile region, on the Tajuna River, 18 mi NE of GUADALAJARA, central Spain. During the War of Spanish Succession in 1710, the French under the duke of VENDÔME defeated the British under Lord Stanhope here and took 5,000 prisoners. During the Spanish civil war at the Battle of Guadalajara, in March 1937, the Loyalists defeated the Nationalist Italian contingent at Brihuega, thereby holding up their march on MADRID.

BRIL See BRIELLEBRILL, THE See BRIELLEBRINDABAN See VRINDABRANBRINDISI [ancient: Brentesion, Brundisium] (Italy)

Town, port, and capital of Brindisi province, PUGLIA region, on the ADRIATIC SEA, 39 mi ENE of TARANTO, SE Italy. According to legend, Brindisi was founded by Diomedes, the companion of Odysseus. Controlled by ROME from 266 B.C., it was a center of resistance to Hannibal and was the scene of the reconciliation in 40 B.C. of Octavian and Mark Antony. Virgil died here in 19 B.C. The port was used by both Romans and crusaders sailing to the Middle East. During World War I it was the center of Italian naval operations in the Adriatic.

BRIOUDE [ancient: Brivas] (France)

Town in the Haute-Loire department, on the River Allier, 36 mi S of CLERMONT-FERRAND, S central France. Overrun by Goths in A.D. 532, it later fell to Burgundians, Saracens, and Normans. In the Middle Ages the tomb of St. Julien here was a pilgrimage center.

BRIOVERA See SAINT-LÔBRISBANE [former: Edenglassie] (Australia)

City, port, and capital of QUEENSLAND, 450 mi NNE of SYDNEY, E Australia. Founded in 1834 on the site of a penal settlement, it became the capital of Queensland in 1859 and is today the third-largest city of Australia.

BRISTELMESTUNE See BRIGHTONBRISTOL (England)

City and port on the AVON RIVER, 110 mi W of LONDON. Dating probably from the sixth century B.C., it became an important port by the 12th century. King Stephen was held prisoner here for three months in 1141. It was an important shipping port for the English wool trade in the Middle Ages. John and Sebastian Cabot sailed to the New World from Bristol in 1497. A Royalist stronghold during the English Civil War, it fell to Parliamentary troops in 1645. It was a major slave-trading port during the 18th century.

BRISTOL (United States)

Town and port in E RHODE ISLAND, on NARRANGANSETT BAY, 13 mi ESE of PROVIDENCE. Acquired by the PLYMOUTH Colony after King Philip's Indian War of 1675–76. It was annexed by Rhode Island in 1746 and partially destroyed by the British during the American Revolution on October 7, 1775, and May 28, 1778. Once active in the slave trade, it is now a boat-building center.

BRITAIN See ENGLAND, GREAT BRITAIN, SCOTLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, WALES

BRITISH ANTARCTIC TERRITORIES See GRAHAM LAND, SOUTH SHETLAND ISLANDS

BRITISH BECHUANALAND See BOTSWANA

BRITISH CENTRAL AFRICA PROTECTORATE See MALAWI

BRITISH COLUMBIA [former: New Caledonia] (Canada)

The westernmost province of the Dominion, on the Pacific Ocean, including VANCOUVER Island. The capital is VICTORIA. The region was originally inhabited by Indian tribes noted for their totem poles and potlatch (gift-giving) ceremonies. Juan de Fuca of Spain reputedly discovered the strait that bears his name in 1592. Another Spanish navigator, Juan Pérez, claimed the area for Spain in 1774. In 1788 James Cook also explored the coast and claimed the area for GREAT BRITAIN. John Meares, a British naval officer, established a trading post on NOOTKA SOUND in 1788 but was driven out by Spaniards the next year. In 1790, however, the Nootka Convention gave practical possession to the British. George Vancouver mapped the coast for Great Britain between 1792 and 1794, while in 1793 Alexander Mackenzie, a Scottish explorer, reached the coast, the first European to cross the North American continent overland. In the early 19th century fur traders of the North West Company were active, but after 1821 the region became the Hudson's Bay Company's preserve. The company established Fort Camosun, later Fort Victoria, on Vancouver Island in 1843. The long-disputed boundary between British Columbia and the UNITED STATES was settled peacefully in 1846. In 1849 the Hudson's Bay Company ceded

Vancouver Island to the British government, and it became a Crown colony.

The discovery of gold along the FRASER RIVER led to the gold rush of 1858 and the creation of the mainland area as another Crown colony. In 1866 the island and the mainland were combined. In 1871 the colony agreed to join the Dominion on the promise that it would be linked with the east by railroad; the line was completed in 1885. Another boundary dispute was settled in 1872 when an arbitrator allotted the SAN JUAN ISLANDS in the JUAN DE FUCA STRAIT to the United States. Another boundary argument involving the border with ALASKA was settled peacefully in 1903.

BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS See COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS

BRITISH EAST AFRICA See KENYA, TANGANYIKA, UGANDA, ZANZIBAR

BRITISH EMPIRE

Territories around the world, linked politically in various ways with GREAT BRITAIN. At its height in the early 20th century, it was the most extensive empire in history, comprising about a quarter of the world's land area and a quarter of its population. As was said at that time, the sun never set on the British Empire. The Age of Discovery, beginning in the late 15th century, saw European nations establish colonies in other parts of the world. England joined this movement in the 16th century by forming chartered companies, such as the East India Company, which were given monopolies for doing business in certain areas. In the 17th century the founding of colonies in North America and the WEST INDIES began, while posts were established in Africa to procure black slaves. As the economic value of overseas colonies grew, England tried to control their trade, by means of navigation acts forcing shipment of goods through England and forbidding trade with certain rival nations. The intent was to benefit the mother country even at the expense of the colonies.

In the 18th century the empire was enlarged by victories over FRANCE. By the Peace of UTRECHT in 1713, ending the War of the Spanish Succession, French expansion was ended, and France ceded the HUDSON BAY area, ACADIA, ST. KITTS, and NEW-FOUNDLAND to Great Britain. By the Treaty of PARIS of 1763, which marked the close of the Seven Years' War, France ceded CANADA and acknowledged Great Britain's primacy in INDIA. This first peak of the empire ended in 1775, however, when the North American colonies, except Canada, rebelled against the Navigation Acts policy and gained their freedom in 1783. About the same time, however, explorations in the Pacific Ocean area added AUSTRALIA and NEW ZEALAND, as well as assorted islands, to the empire. Victory in the Napoleonic Wars of the early 19th century brought still more possessions, such as MAURITIUS, CEYLON, and MALTA. Great Britain's leadership in the Industrial Revolution, which began there in the 18th century, gave added incentive to the desire for colonies as markets for manufactured goods and sources of raw materials.

Although successfully put down, the Indian Mutiny of 1857 caused the British government to take full responsibility for governing India and signalled the end of the chartered trading companies. The British North America Act of 1867 marked another milestone in the evolution of the empire. It formed Canada into a dominion with a large measure of self-government and became a model for the imperial future. Beginning in 1887, conferences were held with representatives of the self-governing colonies to strengthen the home government's ties with them. In the late 19th century a new wave of imperialism swept Europe, with Africa the center of attention this time. As a result Great Britain acquired still more colonies, including EGYPT, the GOLD COAST, NIGERIA, RHODESIA, and SOUTH AFRICA, while MALAYA and BURMA were added in Asia. Victory in World War I brought more territory when the League of Nations established a mandate system to administer German colonies and other territories. Great Britain received mandates for PALESTINE, IRAQ, and TRANSJORDAN, as well as for several former German territories in Africa.

In the 1920s and 1930s, however, agitation increased within dominions and colonies for independence or more self-government. One result was the Statute of Westminster of 1931, which formally recognized the autonomy of the dominions and established the COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS, in which the lands involved were united only by their allegiance to the British Crown. World War II brought additional demands for independence, especially in Africa and Asia, that could not be ignored. The viceroyalty of India, divided into India and PAKISTAN, became independent in 1947. Others followed, such as KENYA, BELIZE, Rhodesia (now ZIMBABWE), and Nigeria. Today the British Empire no longer exists, and British overseas territories consist of a few such places as GILBRALTAR, the FALKLAND ISLANDS, BERMUDA, and some islands in the CARIBBEAN SEA and the Pacific, Atlantic, and Indian oceans.

BRITISH GUIANA See GUYANA

BRITISH HONDURAS See BELIZE

BRITISH INDIAN OCEAN TERRITORY (Great Britain)

Island colony in the Indian Ocean, approximately 1,000 mi S of the southern tip of India. As organized in 1965, the territory consisted of the Chagos Archipelago, formerly part of MAURITIUS; and the Aldabra, Farquhar, and Destoches islands, formerly part of the SEYCHELLES. After the Seychelles became an independent nation in 1976, its former islands were returned to it. The territory now consists of the Chagos Archipelago only. The main island of this group is DIEGO GARCIA, which was discovered by Portuguese navigators in the early 16th century. In 1972 the transient population of Diego Garcia, consisting of workers on copra plantations, was removed, and the island became a center of defense and communication facilities for Great Britain and the United States.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA See PAPUA NEW GUINEA

BRITISH NORTH BORNEO See SABAH

BRITISH SOMALILAND See SOMALIA

BRITISH TOGOLAND See TOGOLAND

BRITISH WEST INDIES See WEST INDIES

BRITTANY [ancient: Armorica; French: Bretagne] (France)

Region and former province of NW France, stretching E from BREST. Conquered by Julius Caesar in 56 B.C., it was settled in the fifth and sixth centuries A.D. by Celts fleeing from the Anglo-Saxons in Britain. In the ninth century Brittany gained independence from the Carolingians under Nomenoe, but it came under the Capetians, the ruling French dynasty, in the 12th century. Brittany was finally incorporated into France in 1532 and was a center of revolt against the reorganization of the Roman Catholic Church during the French Revolution. Brittany retains its special character and language to this day.

180 Briva Curretiae

BRIVA CURRETIAE See BRIVE-LA-GAILLARDE

BRIVA ISARAE See PONTOISE

BRIVAS See BRIOUDE

BRIVE See BRIVE-LA-GAILLARDE

BRIVE LA-GAILLARDE [Brive] [ancient: Briva Curretiae] (France)

Town in the Corrèze department, on the Corrèze River, 14 mi ESE of TULLE, central France. Inhabited since prehistoric times and founded as a town by the Romans, Brive was the capital of lower LIMOUSIN during the Middle Ages. A Franciscan monastery was established here by St. Anthony of PADUA (1195–1231).

BRIVIESCA [Bribiesca] (Spain)

City in Burgos province, 24 mi NE of BURGOS, on the road to VITORIA, N central Spain. An old Roman town, it was the site of the creation, by King Juan I in 1388, at a meeting of the Cortes here, of the title prince of ASTURIAS for the heir to the throne of CASTILE.

BRIXELLUM See BRESCELLO

BRIXEN See BRESSANONE

BRIXHAM (England)

Port and resort in DEVON, 23 mi S of EXETER, on Tor Bay. After James II had fled, William of Orange landed here in 1688 in the Glorious Revolution, before becoming king of England.

BRIXIA See BRESCIA

BRNO [German: Brünn] (Czech Republic)

City in Jihomoravsky province, 115 mi SE of PRAGUE, at the confluence of the Svitava and Svatka rivers, central Czech Republic. Situated in an area inhabited since prehistoric times. Brno was colonized in the 13th century A.D. by Germans and incorporated in 1243. Under the margraves of MORAVIA the city withstood the sieges of the Hussites in 1428, the Bohemians in 1464, and the Swedes in 1645. It was occupied by the French in 1805 before the Battle of AUSTERLITZ. After World War II the German population was expelled. The Bren gun was developed at Brno.

BROACH See BHARUCH

BROADSTAIRS (England)

Town and seaside resort in KENT, SE England, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 17 mi E of CANTERBURY. Hengist and Horsa, the leaders of the first Anglo-Saxons to arrive in Britain, landed near Broadstairs in the fifth century.

BROCKEN [Blocksberg] (Germany)

Mountain peak in the HARZ MOUNTAINS, 8 mi WSW of WERNIGERODE in Magdeburg district, Germany. It figures prominently in traditional folklore because of its mystical character, and it was the scene of pagan rites long after Christianity had been introduced. The mountain is depicted by Goethe in Faust.

BRODY (Ukraine)

Town in the Ukraine, 50 mi ENE of Lviv. Founded in 1584, it developed as an Austrian frontier post and was the scene of military operations during World War I. Passed to POLAND in 1919, it was ceded to the Soviet Union in 1945. Its Jewish population was exterminated during World War II.

BROMBERG See BYDGOSZCZ

BRONKHORSTSPRUIT (South Africa)

Town in GAUTENG, 35 mi E of PRETORIA, NE South Africa. The British were defeated here in December 1880, when fighting broke out at the start of the Transvaal Revolt.

BRONX, THE (United States)

Borough forming the N part of NEW YORK CITY, N of the Harlem River, E of the HUDSON RIVER, and W of LONG ISLAND SOUND. Settled in 1641 by the Dane Jonas Bronck, acting for the Dutch, it was totally annexed by New York City in 1898. The site of rapid urban development in the first half of the 20th century, parts of the borough have declined rapidly since then. The South Bronx has become a symbol of U.S. urban decay. The borough is still the home of the New York Yankees baseball team, and of much light industry and many attractive residential neighborhoods, and it is the only part of New York City on the continental United States.

BROOKLYN [former: Breuckelen] (United States)

Borough of NEW YORK CITY, at the extremity of LONG ISLAND. Settled by Dutch farmers in 1636, it was named for the many small brooks that crossed its fields. It was the scene of the Battle of Long Island on August 27, 1776, during the American Revolution, in which the British under Sir William Howe, having landed at Gravesend Bay, outflanked and vanquished the Americans under Israel Putnam. George Washington established his headquarters in Brooklyn Heights before retreating across the East River.

Long a wealthy suburb for New York City's merchants, the city of Brooklyn became a borough of New York City in 1898. It was already famous for the Brooklyn Bridge, built between 1869 and 1883, which spans the East River and connects Brooklyn with MANHATTAN. The site of tranquil farmland as late as the 1920s and 1930s, Brooklyn taken by itself today would still be the fourth-largest city in the United States, with a population of over 4 million.

The borough is a major shipping and small manufacturing center. Its Verrazano Bridge over the Narrows is the longest suspension bridge in the world. Brooklyn's neighborhoods, once independent towns, include the world-famous areas of Flatbush, Bedford-Stuyvesant, Coney Island, and Brooklyn Heights. Its Prospect Park was laid out by Frederick Law Olmstead. The Brooklyn Public Library is among the first and largest systems in the country. Brooklyn's famous citizens and residents include the composers Aaron Copeland, Roger Sessions, George Gershwin, and Benjamin Britten, who lived in Brooklyn Heights. The poets Walt Whitman and Marianne Moore, and the writers Hart Crane and Thomas Wolfe also made their homes here.

BROOKS See MIDWAY

BROWNSVILLE (United States)

City and port of SE TEXAS, at the mouth of the RIO GRANDE, 130 mi S of CORPUS CHRISTI on the Mexican border. The Mexican War started when Brownsville, then a fort, was claimed by the Americans on March 28, 1846. The Battles of PALO ALTO and RESACA DE LA PALMA were fought north of the city. During the Civil War it was one of the principal Confederate ports. The so-called last battle of the Civil War was fought nearby on May 12–13, 1865.

BRUCHSAL (Germany)

Town in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, on the Saalbach River, 12 mi NE of KARLSRUHE, SW Germany. Granted to the prince-bishops of SPEYER in 1056, Bruchsal became their residence in 1720. Their castle, built between 1722 and 1732, was one of Germany's most famous rococo buildings but was mostly destroyed in World War II.

BRUGES [ancient: Municipium Brugense; Flemish: Brugge] (Belgium)

City and capital of West FLANDERS, 55 mi WNW of BRUSSELS, NW Belgium. In the ninth century A.D. the first counts of Flanders built a castle here as a defense against Norman invaders, and by the 13th century the town was a leading member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. In the late Middle Ages Bruges became the banking, shipping, and commercial center of northern Europe until supplanted by ANTWERP in the 16th century. It was occupied by the court of the dukes of BURGUNDY in the 15th century and was the center of the famous Flemish school of painting. It was held by Germany in both world wars. The city still retains its medieval plan, buildings, and canals.

BRUGGE See BRUGES

BRÜHL (Germany)

Town in NORTH RHINE-WESTPHALIA, 7 mi S of COLOGNE. Founded in 1285 by an archbishop of Cologne, it became the stronghold of the electors of Cologne. The baroque Augustusburg Castle at Brühl, once the summer residence of the electors, is famous for the staircase by Balthasar Neumann.

BRUKHANOVO See PERM

BRUNANBURGH See STRATHCLYDE

BRUNDISIUM See BRINDISI

BRUNEI

Sultanate of N BORNEO in SE Asia. BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN is the capital. In the 16th century the Islamic kingdom of Brunei controlled Borneo, the PHILIPPINES, and the SULU Archipelago, but its power began to wane with the growth of Dutch and Portuguese influence. By the 19th century it controlled only SARAWAK, Brunei, and part of northern Borneo. Reduced to its present size by 1877, it became a British protectorate in 1888. It was under Japanese occupation from 1941 to 1945. In 1959, a written constitution went into effect, where Brunei remained a Sultanate and British Protectorate governed by a chief minister, a council of ministers, and an elected legislative council. In 1962, the legislative council was disbanded after elections won by an antimonarchist left-wing party. In 1970, the legislative council was made an appointed body. Brunei became fully independent in 1984, and the legislative council was suspended the same year. After independence, sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah Mu'izzaddin Waddaulah became an absolute monarch. The sultan developed a welfare state under his control using revenue from Brunei's plentiful oil reserves. In the late 1990s, Brunei was affected by the 1997–98 Asian economic crisis, losing billions of dollars in investments. In 1998, the sultan's son, Prince al-Muhtadee Billah, was named as the official heir to the throne. In 2004, the sultan reconvened an appointed 21-member legislative council, and signed a constitutional amendment calling for a future partially elected council.

BRUNEI BAY

Inlet of the South China Sea, on the NW coast of BORNEO. Australian and Dutch forces landed at this inlet on June 10, 1945, in their attack on Japanese-held Borneo.

BRUNETE (Spain)

Town and battle site in Madrid province, 16 mi W of MADRID, central Spain. During the Spanish civil war (1936–39), Brunete was the scene of repeated conflict. The town was rebuilt after the war.

BRUNKEBERG (Sweden)

Battlefield and suburb of STOCKHOLM, SE Sweden. During the Danish-Swedish Wars, on October 10, 1471, Sten Sture defeated Christian I of DENMARK at Brunkeberg and halted the Danish campaign of conquest.

BRÜNN See BRNO

BRUNSWICH See BRUNSWICK

BRUNSWICK [German: Braunschweig, Brunswick] (Germany)

City in Lower SAXONY, capital of the former state of BRUNSWICK, 34 mi ESE of HANOVER, N central Germany. Founded, according to legend, in A.D. 861, it was chartered and improved in the 12th century by Henry the Lion and became a flourishing member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. It was the capital of the Duchy of Brunswick until 1918. It was severely bombed during World War II, when it was an important industrial center.

BRUNSWICK [German: Braunschweig] (Germany)

Former duchy of N central Germany, in Lower SAXONY, around the city of BRUNSWICK. Emperor Frederick II established the duchy of Brunswick-LÜNEBURG in 1235. A much-reduced duchy of Brunswick was closely linked with PRUSSIA after 1735 under the house of Brunswick-Bevern. Brunswick was a constituent state of the German Reich from 1871 to 1946.

BRUSA See BURSA

BRUSSEL See BRUSSELS

BRUSSELS [Flemish: Brussel; French: Bruxelles] (Belgium)

Capital city of Belgium, in the province of BRABANT, on the Senne River in central Belgium. Located on an important trade route since the sixth century, Brussels became a flourishing commercial center, particularly known for its woolens, under the dukes of Brabant in the Middle Ages. A growing merchant aristocracy was forced to share power with craftsmen after a rebellion in 1421. Control by the duke of BURGUNDY and then by the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE followed. It became the capital of the SPANISH NETHERLANDS in 1530, suffered much destruction from the French invasions of the 17th century, and once again became the NETHERLANDS capital after the defeat of Napoleon. In 1830 it was made the capital of a newly independent Belgium. It is important today as the headquarters of NATO and the location of many of the offices of the European Union.

BRUSTEM [former: Brusthem] (Belgium)

Village and battle site in Limburg province, 2 mi ESE of ST. TRUIDEN, E Belgium. Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY defeated the Liègeois here in 1467.

BRUSTHEM See BRUSTEM

BRUTIUM See CALABRIA

BRUXELLES See BRUSSELS

BRYANSK [Briansk] [former: Debryansk] (Russia)

City in Russia, on the Desna River, 210 mi SW of Moscow. Founded in 1146, it became the capital of a principality. Annexed by Moscow in 1503, it acted as a bulwark on Russia's southern frontier. It was under German occupation from 1941 to 1943.

BRZEG [German: Brieg] (Poland)

Town in Opole province, on the ODER RIVER, 25 mi SE of WROCŁAW, SW Poland. The capital of a duchy ruled by the Piast dynasty from 1311 to 1675, it was the center of the Renaissance in SILESIA in the 16th century and passed to the Hapsburgs in 1675. A battle was fought nearby in 1642 during the Thirty Years' War, in which the Swedes were defeated by an imperial army under Archduke Leopold.

BRZESC NAD BUGIEM See BREST

BRZEZANY See BEREZHANY

BRZEZINY (Poland)

Town and battle site in Łódź province, 11 mi E of ŁÓDŹ, central Poland. A battle was fought here during World War I between the Germans and Russians in November 1914.

BSHARRI [Becharri, Besharreh, Bisharri, Bsherri] (Lebanon)

Town on the W side of the Lebanon Mts, 16 mi SE of TRIPOLI, W Lebanon. The site of an old Phoenician settlement, it has the grave of author Khalil Gibran.

BSHERRI See BSHARRI

BUBASTIS [ancient: Bast; biblical: Pi-beseth; modern: Tall Basta] (Egypt)

Ancient city in the NILE RIVER delta, S of ZAGAZIG, N Egypt. The capital of Egypt under the pharaohs of the 22nd and 23rd dynasties (945–725 B.C.), its most prosperous period was in the 10th century B.C. under Sheshonk I. It went into a rapid decline after the second conquest by PERSIA of 343 B.C. Bubastis was the center of worship of the lion-headed goddess, Bast. Several excavations from 1886 to 1906 revealed among other remains the ruins of a large temple of the eighth century B.C.

BUCACO [Bussaco] (Portugal)

Resort and battle site in Aveiro province, 13 mi NNE of COIMBRA, central Portugal. The French march on LISBON was halted here by British and Portuguese troops during the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars in 1810.

BUCAREST See BUCHAREST

BUCHACH [Polish: Buczacz] (Ukraine)

City in the Ukraine, 70 mi SE of LVIV. A Polish-Turkish treaty was signed here in 1672 by which POLAND gave up the Ukraine to the Cossacks. Buchach passed to AUSTRIA in 1772, was returned to Poland in 1919, and was ceded to the Soviet Union in 1945.

BUCHAREST [Bucarest, Bucuresti, Bukarest, Bukharest, Bukhorest] [former: Cetatea Dambovitei; Romanian: Bucuresti] (Romania)

Capital and principal city of Romania, in WALACHIA in the SE, on the Dimbovita River, a tributary to the Danube. Founded in the 14th century as a military stronghold known as Cetatea Dambovitei, it was strategically located on a principal commercial route to CONSTANTINOPLE. From 1459 it was the seat of the sovereigns of Walachia, who named it Bucharest. Under the leadership of Constantine Brancovan it was made the Walachian capital in 1698 and continued in this role with the unification of MOLDAVIA and Walachia in 1859 and the emergence of the Romanian nation in 1861. Its strategic position in eastern Europe has made it a suitable site for the negotiation of several important treaties in the region: the Peace of Bucharest between RUSSIA and TURKEY in 1812, the settlement treaty between SERBIA and BULGARIA in 1886, and the Treaty of Bucharest in 1913, which retracted the conquests of Bulgaria in the Second Balkan War. It was occupied by GERMANY and her allies from 1916 to 1918 during World War I.

Once known for its stimulating cultural and social life, it was often referred to by Romanians as “Little Paris” or the “Paris of the East” before World War II. It was taken and held by the Nazis from 1940 until 1944 during that war. When the Romanians finally surrendered to the Allies the city was severely damaged by German bombers. It was captured by Soviet troops August 31, 1944, and, with the accession to power of a leftist, pro-Soviet coalition, became part of the communist Eastern bloc. From 1948 until 1956 it served as headquarters for the Cominform. Presently the seat of the patriarch of the Romanian Orthodox Church, it is also the site of several beautiful churches from the 17th and 18th centuries. After World War II the city was surrounded with ugly concrete apartment buildings, in the bombed out areas and then into the surrounding countryside as the population of the city doubled from one to 2 million. The Communist government poured money into huge and grandiose projects including the “House of the People,” the world’s second largest building after the U.S. Pentagon. Only Romanian materials and products were used to build the dictator’s headquarters. Now renamed the Palace of Parliament, the building of 1,000 rooms reflects the work of the country’s best architects and artisans.

BUCHENWALD (Germany)

Village in Erfurt district, 5 mi NW of WEIMAR, central Germany. It was the site of an infamous Nazi concentration camp from 1937 to 1945. See also DACHAU.

BUCKFASTLEIGH (England)

Town in DEVON, 20 mi SW of EXETER. Buckfast Abbey was established in 1018 but was abandoned in ruins after the dissolution of the monasteries from 1536 to 1539. It was rebuilt by French Benedictine monks between 1882 and 1937.

BUCKINGHAM (England)

Town of BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, 15 mi NW of AYLESBURY. The site of a Roman settlement, it was made a county town in A.D. 886 by King Alfred the Great and became a wool-trading center in the 14th century under Edward III. The trade declined when the center was moved to CALAIS.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE [Bucks] (England)

Midland county crossed by the Chiltern Hills. Administrative headquarters is AYLESBURY. Its main rivers are the THAMES and the Ouse. It has had many associations with statesmen, such as Edmund Burke, Benjamin Disraeli, and John Hampden.

BUCKNER BAY See NAKAGUSUKU BAY

BUCKSTOWN See DUNMORE

BUCOVINA See BUKOVINA

BUCURESCI See BUCHAREST

BU CZACZ See BUCHACH

BUDAPEST [ancient: Aquincum] (Hungary)

City in N central Hungary, on the DANUBE RIVER, capital of the country. The present city was formed in 1873 by uniting Buda and Obuda on the right bank with Pest on the left bank of the river. The area has been settled since the third millennium B.C., and two Roman towns were established in the vicinity. These towns were destroyed by the Mongols in 1241, but later in the century King Béla IV of Hungary (1235–70), built a fortress here, and in the 14th century King Sigismund erected a palace. Buda became Hungary’s capital in 1361. Under King Matthias Corvinus (1458–90) it became a center of learning.

The OTTOMAN EMPIRE captured Pest in 1526 and Buda in 1541. Both were mostly ruins by the time Charles V of LORRAINE recaptured them for the Hapsburg dynasty in 1686. They were rebuilt and resettled and gradually became important cities again. The Empress Maria Theresa of AUSTRIA aided them by transferring a university to Buda in 1777 and building a palace. The united city in the late 19th century was, with VIENNA, one of the two capitals of Austria-Hungary. By the time of World War I it was also a busy commercial and industrial center. Tourists came for its many theatrical, musical, and other attractions.

In 1918, however, the Austro-Hungarian monarchy had collapsed as a result of defeat in World War I, and Hungary was proclaimed an independent republic with Budapest as its capital. In March 1919 the communists under Béla Kun gained control of the city for a time. Hungary entered World War II on the side of Nazi GERMANY, but when it tried to withdraw, German troops occupied Budapest in October 1944. After a long siege they were driven out in February 1945 by the Russians. Much of the city was destroyed, including landmark buildings.

In October–November 1956 there was a popular uprising against the Soviet-imposed communist regime. Soviet troops entered Budapest and put down the revolt with considerable brutality. Having recovered, Budapest today is an attractive and lively city. After the fall of the communist regime in 1990, the city has become a popular tourist destination as many of the buildings including the Parliament, the largest in Europe, are undergoing renovation.

BUDAUN [Badayun] (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH state, 28 mi SW of BAREILLY, N India. Founded c. A.D. 905 by Buddh, a Hindu raja, it was captured in 1196 by Kutb-ud-Aibak and gained importance as a frontier post of the Afghan-DELHI Empire.

BUDDH GAYA See BODH GAYA

BUDE-STRATTON [formerly: Stratton and Bude] (England)

Urban district in CORNWALL, on the Atlantic Ocean, 15 mi NNW of LAUNCESTON, SW England. During the Civil War the Royalist Cornish army defeated the Parliamentarians at Stamford Hill, near Bude, on May 16, 1643.

BUDISSIN See BAUTZEN

BUDUA See BUDVA

BUDVA [Italian: Budua] (Montenegro)

Town in Montenegro, 45 mi SE of DUBROVNIK, on the ADRIATIC SEA. Inhabited successively by Phoenicians, Greeks, Illyrians, Romans, and Byzantines, it was sacked by Saracens in the ninth century A.D. and joined the Serbian kingdom of Duklja in the 11th century. It became self-governing in 1371. In 1443 it was the most southerly Venetian outpost on the Adriatic Sea and remained so until passing to AUSTRIA in 1797. It became part of YUGOSLAVIA in 1918. See also VENICE.

BUEA [Bouea] (Cameroon)

Town near the Gulf of GUINEA, 10 mi NNE of Victoria, W Cameroon. Capital of German Cameroons from 1884 to 1919, it became the headquarters of the British Commissioner for Southern Cameroons in 1922.

BUENA VISTA (Mexico)

Battle site in COAHUILA state, 8 mi S of SALTILLO. On February 22–23, 1847, during the Mexican War, the Mexicans here failed to dislodge U.S. forces under General Zachary Taylor. This U.S. victory ended the war in northern Mexico, and the fighting shifted to the east coast.

BUENA VISTA (United States) See DE KALB

BUENOS AIRES [former: Puerto de Santa Maria de Buen Aire] (Argentina)

City and capital of Argentina, on the Río de LA PLATA, 135 mi W of MONTEVIDEO. Founded in 1580 by Juan de Garay, it remained a poor city of the viceroyalty of PERU until becoming the capital of the viceroyalty of the Río de La Plata in 1776. After its separation from SPAIN in 1816 it became the capital of the newly formed Argentina in 1880. Pan American congresses were held here in 1910 and 1936. It expanded rapidly following World War II.

BUFFALO (United States)

City and port in W NEW YORK State, on LAKE ERIE, 65 mi WSW of ROCHESTER. Settled as a trading post in 1758, it was resettled in 1780 by Seneca Indians and was the American military headquarters on the Niagara frontier during the War of 1812. It was burned by the British in 1813. Economic growth was stimulated by the completion of the ERIE CANAL and by the Civil War. Today it is a major American industrial city, processing 25 percent of all U.S.-Canadian trade.

BUG [Western Bug] [Russian: Zapadnyy Bug] (Poland, Belarus, Ukraine)

River rising in the W Ukraine, it flows N to BREST then W to the VISTULA RIVER, 18 mi N of WARSAW, Poland. It was the scene of several battles in 1915 during World War I. Part of its central course was incorporated into the CURZON LINE in 1919 and formed a section of the eastern frontier of Poland.

BUGANDA (Uganda)

Former kingdom of S Uganda, along the N shore of LAKE VICTORIA, with its capital at KAMPALA. A vassal state of BUNYORO in the 16th century, Buganda began to expand in its own right in the 17th century and by the 19th century was a highly centralized and powerful state. Under the Buganda Agreement of 1900, it became a British protectorate. After the independence of Uganda, relations between the central government and Buganda grew so tense that Buganda was abolished in the late 1960s.

BUINAKSK [Buynaksk] [former: Temir-Khan-Shura] (Russia)

City in DAGESTAN AR, 20 mi SW of MAKHACHKALA. Established on the site of Tamerlane's camp at the end of the 14th century, it became a Russian fortress in the 1830s and was the capital of Dagestan until 1922.

BUJUMBURA [former: Usumbura] (Burundi)

City and capital of Burundi, a port at the NE end of LAKE TANGANYIKA, E central Africa. Bujumbura was a small village until 1899, when it was made a military post of German East Africa. Belgian forces took it from the Germans in 1916 in World War I, and in 1919 Bujumbura became the capital of Belgium's League of Nations mandate of Ruanda-Urundi. Its name was changed in 1962 when Burundi became independent. The city has been the site of ongoing conflict between Burundi's Huta and Tatsi peoples. See also RWANDA, TANGANYIKA.

BUKA [former: Wichelsea] (Papua New Guinea)

Island of the SOLOMON ISLANDS group, in the SW Pacific Ocean, N of BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND. Discovered by the British in 1767, it became a German possession in 1885 but was taken by Australian troops in 1914. It was occupied by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945 during World War II.

BUKAREST See BUCHARESTBUKHARA See BUKHOROBUKHAREST See BUCHARESTBUKHOREST See BUCHARESTBUKHORO [Bukhara, Bokhara, Boukhara] (Uzbekistan)

City in Uzbekistan, 270 mi SW of TASHKENT, just N of the Afghan border. Founded by the first century A.D., it was captured by the Arabs in 709 and from the ninth to the 10th centuries was the Persian Samanid capital. It fell to Genghis Khan in 1220, to Tamerlane in 1370, and to the Uzbek Shaybanids in 1506 who made it the capital of the khanate of Bukhara. By the end of the 16th century, under the Shaybanids, Bukhara controlled most of central Asia, N PERSIA, and AFGHANISTAN. It fell to Persia in 1740 but liberated itself in 1753 under the Emir Mohammed Rahim, who founded the Mangyt dynasty that ruled until 1920. The khanate became a Russian protectorate in 1868, but the emir was overthrown by the Bolshevik Red Army in 1920.

BUKIT TIMAH (Singapore)

Village six mi NW of Singapore. During World War II, in February 1942 the British garrison of Singapore surrendered to the Japanese here.

BUKOVINA [Bucovina] (Romania, Ukraine)

Region, partly in the Ukraine and partly in Bistrita Nasaud province of Romania, around and to the S of CHERNIVTSI. Formerly part of MOLDAVIA, it gained its own identity in 1775 when the OTTOMAN EMPIRE ceded it to AUSTRIA, which ruled it as a duchy and separate crown land. Bukovina was claimed by Romania in 1879 and occupied in 1918. During World War II the USSR occupied northern Bukovina and formally retained it after the war.

BULACAN (Philippines)

Province of central LUZON, immediately N of MANILA. One of the earliest provinces created in the East by the Spanish, it remained under Spain until the end of the 19th century. It was the scene of opposition to the British, who had occupied Manila in 1762–63. It was a center of unrest during the anti-Spanish revolution of 1897. A civil government was established in Bulacan by the United States in 1901.

BULAMA See BOLAMABULANDSHAHR [former: Baran] (India)

Town in UTTAR PRADESH state, 40 mi ESE of DELHI, N India. Captured by Mahmud of GHAZNI in 1018, it was fought over many times during the 14th century and was eventually taken by the Moguls. It became part of British India in 1805. It has Buddhist remains of the fifth to seventh centuries.

BULAWAYO (Zimbabwe)

City and capital of North Matabeleland, on the Matsheumlope River, 230 mi SW of HARARE, SW Zimbabwe. Founded on the site of the kraal of Lobengula in 1893, it became a city in 1943 and is today the industrial center of Zimbabwe.

BULDUR See BURDUR

BULGARIA [formerly: People's Republic of Bulgaria, Bulgarian: Narodna Republika Bulgariya]

Nation of SE Europe, in the E Balkans, with the BLACK SEA on the E, SERBIA and MONTENEGRO and MACEDONIA to the W, ROMANIA to the N, and GREECE and TURKEY to the S. Its territory is roughly the same as the ancient lands of MOESIA and THRACE. Bulgar tribes from the VOLGA RIVER region settled in the territory in A.D. 679–80 and by the ninth century had merged with the Slavs they had subjugated. The first Bulgarian Empire, established by Khan Asparukh, lasted from 681 to 1018 and for a time threatened the power of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It reached its peak under Simeon I (893–927) who took the title of czar. However, attacks by a revived Byzantine Empire resulted in Bulgaria's annexation in 1018.

Bulgaria recovered its power, and in 1186 the second empire arose under Czar Ivan I (Ivan Asen). It reached its height under Ivan II (1218–41) when its rule extended over almost all the Balkan Peninsula except GREECE. This empire ended in 1396 when the Ottoman Turks defeated a Christian army at NIKOPOL. Bulgaria remained under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE until 1877. At that time an unsuccessful revolt brought such atrocious reprisals by the Turks that RUSSIA entered the struggle on Bulgaria's side, and with success. The result was the Treaty of SAN STEFANO in 1878, which greatly enlarged Bulgaria and made it an autonomous principality. Fearing the sudden growth of Russian power, other European nations at the Congress of Berlin later in 1878 forced a number of changes in the treaty. Among them was the division of Bulgaria into three parts, none of them entirely independent.

In 1885 Prince Alexander, ruler of the more autonomous part of Bulgaria, annexed present southern Bulgaria, then known as Eastern RUMELIA, and repelled an attack by SERBIA. When there was a revolt in the Ottoman Empire in 1908, Prince Ferdinand proclaimed full independence and made himself czar. In 1912 and 1913 two short wars were fought by the Balkan nations over the lands of the faltering Ottoman Empire. Bulgaria was victorious at first but was defeated in the end and lost land to all her enemies by the Treaty of Bucharest in 1913. Bulgaria entered World War I in 1915 on the side of GERMANY and her allies, the Central Powers. Her subsequent defeat resulted in the Treaty of Neuilly of 1919, by which Bulgaria ceded part of western Thrace to Greece, several border areas to YUGOSLAVIA, and paid reparations. In the interwar period, Boris III established a military dictatorship in 1934, and in 1941 joined Germany in World War II. Again on the losing side, in 1946 Bulgaria fell into the Soviet orbit with a communist government and membership in the Warsaw Pact of the Soviet-dominated nations of eastern Europe. Long-time communist leader, Georgi Dimitrov, ruled as premier from 1946 to 1949. Most of Bulgaria's farm land was collectivized in 1958.

From 1978 through 1989, Todor Zhivkov, as head of the Communist Party, was the most powerful man in the country. During this time, the country became one of the more prosperous in eastern Europe, with agricultural reform allowing private ownership of small plots and growth in the industrial sectors. The shift to a market economy after the collapse of communism in 1989 has been slow as the renamed Communist Party (now the Bulgarian Socialist Party) continued to control the government of newly democratic Bulgaria. In 2001, the Bulgarian monarchy made a return when former king Simeon II was elected prime minister. Bulgarians's Turkish minority was represented in the government for the first time, and President Georgi Parvanov has encouraged Bulgarians to be more tolerant of Turkish-Bulgarians. Bulgaria was accepted into NATO in 2004, and has applied for membership in the European Union. SOFIA, a Bulgarian town since 809, has been the capital since 1879.

BULGE, BATTLE OF THE See ARDENNES, BASTOGNE, CELLES, SAINT-VITH

BULL RUN See MANASSAS

BUNA (Papua New Guinea)

Village on the SE coast of NEW GUINEA, 100 mi NE of PORT MORESBY. The Japanese used Buna in July 1942 as a base for their attack on Port Moresby. It was captured by the Allies after fierce fighting on January 20, 1943.

BÜNDE (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 52 mi WSW of HANOVER, N central Germany. It was the headquarters of the Allied Control Commission for Germany from 1945 to 1948. The commission broke up before the start of the Soviet blockade of BERLIN.

BUNDELKHAND (India)

Region of MADHYA PRADESH state, S of ALLAHABAD and VARANASI in the Vindhyan region, central India. A hilly region, it was occupied by various groups until the 14th century, when it was settled by Bundela Rajputs who began a guerrilla war against DELHI. Sher Shah invaded Bundelkhand in 1545 but was killed in battle. By 1792 the MARATHAS were the recognized masters of the region, but at the Treaty of POONA in 1817 Great Britain acquired rights over it. Today Bundelkhand has no political identity.

BUNDI (India)

Town in RAJASTHAN state, 100 mi S of JAIPUR, central India. Established by the Rajputs as the capital of the princely state of Bundi in the 14th century, it came under British control in 1818 and became part of Rajasthan in 1948.

BUNKER HILL, BATTLE OF (United States)

Hill in CHARLESTOWN, just N of BOSTON, E MASSACHUSETTS. At the beginning of the American Revolution, on June 17, 1775, Americans under General Artemas Ward were dislodged from Bunker Hill and adjacent Breed's Hill by the British, who won the battle but sustained severe casualties.

BUNYORO See UGANDA

BUNZELWITZ See BOŁESŁAWICE

BUNZLAU See BOLESŁAWICE

BURAUEN (Philippines)

City and battle site on LEYTE, 21 mi SW of TACLOBAN. During World War II, Japanese-held Bureauen was captured by U.S. forces after severe fighting on October 25, 1944.

BURDIGALA See BORDEAUX

BURDUR [Buldur] [ancient: Polydoron] (Turkey)

Town and capital of Burdur province, 120 mi W of KONYA, near the E shore of Lake Burdur, SW central Turkey. Situated in an area inhabited since prehistoric times, it was taken by the Seljuk Turks in the 12th century and by the Ottomans in the 15th century. An archaeological site nearby has yielded remains from the sixth millennium B.C.

BURDWAN See BARDDHAMAN

BURGDORF [French: Berthoud] (Switzerland)

Town in Bern canton, on the Emme River, 11 mi NE of BERN, W central Switzerland. Founded in 1175 by the dukes of ZÄHRINGEN, it passed to Bern in 1384. From 1798 to 1804, Johann Heinrich Pestalozzi, the pioneer educator, held his school in the 12th-century castle here.

BURGENLAND (Austria)

Federal state along the Hungarian border S of VIENNA, with its capital at EISENSTADT. Occupied since prehistoric times, it was settled by Germans in the eighth century A.D. It was linked with HUNGARY until 1529 when it became part of the Hapsburg Empire. It became a federal state in 1945.

BURGH BY SANDS (England)

Village in CUMBRIA, 5 mi WNW of CARLISLE. The site of a Roman military station, it was here that Edward I died on his way to put down the rebellion of the Scot, Robert Bruce, in 1307.

BURGOS (Spain)

City and capital of Burgos province, 80 mi SW of BILBAO, on the Arlanzon River, N central Spain. Founded in A.D. 884 as the eastern outpost of the kingdom of ASTURIAS, it later became the capital of CASTILE until the 16th century. It declined in political significance until it was revived in the 18th century by Charles III. During the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars it was occupied by the French from 1808 to 1813. It was General Francisco Franco's Insurgent capital during the Spanish civil war.

BURG STARGARD [former: Stargard, Stargard in Mecklenburg] (Germany)

Town in MECKLENBURG–WESTERN POMERANIA 5 mi SE of NEUBRANDENBURG, N Germany. Founded as an outpost in 1259 by the margraves of BRANDENBURG, it was the headquarters of General Johan Tilly, the commander of the imperial forces, in 1631 during his campaign against Neubrandenburg in the Thirty Years' War. It was the capital of the lordship of Stargard until 1701.

BURGUNDY [French: La Bourgogne] (France)

Former duchy, kingdom, and county, presently a region of E central France. Agriculturally rich and renowned for its wines, Burgundy's traditional capital is DIJON, with MÂCON, BEAUNE, AUTUN, and BOURG-EN-BRESSE among its important towns.

As part of the ROMAN EMPIRE conquered by Caesar in the Gallic wars, the Burgundian region was first divided into Belgic GAUL and LUGDUNENSIS, and later into Upper GERMANY and Lugdunensis. During the Roman period, Autun emerged as an important cultural center. Originally a kingdom founded in western SWITZERLAND and the Rhône Valley by Germanic Burgundians in the fifth century A.D., Burgundy evolved as part of the Merovingian and Carolingian empires. Originally part of the middle kingdom of Charlemagne's son Lothair, it was divided into Cisjurane Burgundy, including PROVENCE, in the south in 879 and Transjurane Burgundy in the north in 888. It was finally united as the Second Kingdom of Burgundy, also known as the Kingdom of ARLES in 933. By 877 a smaller region, nearly corresponding to the modern counterpart, had become the French duchy of Burgundy under Carolingian emperor Charles II, while Imperial Burgundy, the county of FRANCHE-COMTÉ, was part of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE from the 12th century.

French Burgundy's cultural flowering began in 1364 when John (Jean) II of France presented the duchy as a feudal estate to his fourth son, Philip the Bold, thereby introducing the Valois-Bourgogne line. Philip was succeeded by John the Fearless, Philip the Good, and Charles the Bold, all of whom, through astute marriages, wars, and alliances, eventually came to dominate vast territories and to reunite the old patrimony of Lothair. These included most of modern BELGIUM and the NETHERLANDS, ALSACE, LORRAINE, ARTOIS, the then large Duchy of LUXEMBOURG, BADEN, Imperial Burgundy, or Franche-Comté, PICARDY, CHAROLAIS, and NIVERNAIS. This territorial dominance eventually gave them hegemony in the politics of France. The Burgundian alliance with ENGLAND was an important factor in the Hundred Years' War.

As the Burgundian dukes of the 15th century controlled French politics, so the Burgundian court flourished as a center of the arts, especially in painting, sculpture, music, and style. However, Charles the Bold undertook several costly wars that were opposed by the clever and innovative Louis XI. Ultimately, Charles was defeated by the Swiss at GRANDSON, MORAT in 1476, and at NANCY in 1477, where he met his end. When Charles's daughter, Mary of Burgundy, married Emperor Maximilian I Hapsburg, the alliance brought most of the Imperial Burgundian holdings under Hapsburg control. The original French duchy was taken by Louis XI and made a province of the French Crown lands. Gex, Charolais, and BRESSE were joined to it by Henri IV and Louis XIV, and it remained a royal province until the French Revolution in 1789.

BURHANPUR (India)

Town in MADHYA PRADESH state, 185 mi W of NAGPUR, SW central India. Founded by Nasir Khan in A.D. 1400, it was taken by the Mogul emperor Akbar in 1599 and became his capital until 1636. Frequently besieged by Moguls and Marathas, it was captured by the Duke of Wellington in 1803 and ceded to GREAT BRITAIN in 1861. See also MARATHA CONFEDERACY, MOGUL EMPIRE.

BURKATOW [German: Burkersdorf] (Poland)

Village and battlefield in S Wrocław province, SW Poland. During the Seven Years' War the Prussians under Frederick the Great defeated the Austrians here on July 21, 1762. See AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA.

BURKERSDORF See BURKATOW

BURKINA FASO [Upper Volta]

Small landlocked country lying in the sub-Saharan region of Africa, directly N of GHANA and S of the great bend in the NIGER RIVER in MALI. Upper Volta is an agricultural country occupying the region of the medieval Mossi Empire. French colonialists seized the region in 1896 and ruled it until 1960, when independence was achieved. Under its first leader, Maurice Yaméogo, Upper Volta approached total bankruptcy and disorganization. A military group led by Colonel Sangoulé Lamizana took control in 1966, and Upper Volta slowly began to improve its infrastructure systems and agriculture with aid from France, the rest of the Common Market, and the World Bank. In the early 1970s the great drought of the sub-Saharan SAHEL region brought starvation and death to many thousands in the northern part of the country. Military rule ended in 1978, and Lamizana was elected president. A series of military coups followed as in 1980 Lamizana was overthrown by Colonel Saye Zerbo, who was overthrown by Major Jean-Baptiste Ouédraogo, who was overthrown by Captain Thomas Sankara in 1983.

Sankara pursued a policy of nonalignment with Western nations, and developed stronger relations with neighbors such as Ghana and LIBYA. Sankara was less suppressive of the political opposition and increased the government's focus on economic development. To declare the country's rejection of its colonial past, in 1984, he renamed Upper Volta Burkina Faso meaning "the land of incorruptible men." In 1987 Captain Blaise Compaoré took control in a bloody coup, killing Sankara. There have been elections in 1992 and 1998 with Compaoré the president-elect in the midst of election irregularities. Unrest in the IVORY COAST has impacted the country as Burkino Fasan workers have been repatriated as refugees.

BURKITTSVILLE (United States)

Town in SW central MARYLAND, 12 mi W of FREDERICK. During the Civil War a battle was fought nearby at South Mountain on September 14, 1862, that delayed the advance of Union forces under General George B. McClellan on General Robert E. Lee's positions at Sharpsburg, or ANTIETAM.

BURLINGTON (United States)

City in SE IOWA, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, named after BURLINGTON, VERMONT. Zebulon Pike, explorer and army officer, chose the site for a fort here in 1805 when he was on an expedition to find the source of the Mississippi River. It was the site of an Indian village, Sho-quo-quon, meaning "flint hills." A trading post was established in 1829, and settlement began in 1833. Burlington possessed the only good location for a steamboat landing on the west bank of the Mississippi for a distance of 80 mi. It was the capital of WISCONSIN Territory in 1837 and of Iowa Territory from 1838 to 1840.

BURLINGTON [former: Bridlington, New Beverly] (United States)

City in W NEW JERSEY, on the DELAWARE RIVER, 11 mi SSW of TRENTON. It was settled by Quakers in 1677 and incorporated in 1733. Both the center of a farm area and a port, Burlington was the capital of West Jersey from 1681 until the union of East and West Jersey in 1702. From then until 1790 it alternated with PERTH AMBOY as the state capital. Burlington profited by being on the stagecoach line between NEW YORK CITY and PHILADELPHIA until a railroad came through in 1834.

The first colonial paper money was printed here by Benjamin Franklin in 1726, and New Jersey's first newspaper began publication here in 1777. During the American Revolution Hessians in British service invaded the town in 1776, and the British shelled it in 1778. James Fenimore Cooper, the novelist, was born here in 1789, as was James Lawrence, naval hero of the War of 1812, famous for his dying words, "Don't give up the ship."

BURLINGTON (United States)

City and port in NW VERMONT, on LAKE CHAMPLAIN, 35 mi NW of MONTPELIER. Settled in 1773, it was a military post during the War of 1812 and the site of several encounters between British ships and U.S. land batteries.

BURMA See MYANMAR

BURMA ROAD (Myanmar, China)

Road that runs between LASHIO in NE central Myanmar and KUNMING in S China. Constructed in the period 1937–39, it was used for bringing supplies into China during the Sino-Japanese War but was closed in 1942 when the Japanese captured Lashio during World War II. It is important today in linking YANGON and CHONGQING. See also JAPAN.

BURNTISLAND (Scotland)

Town in FIFE, opposite EDINBURGH, on the Firth of FORTH, 9 mi E of DUNFERMLINE. The harbor here was used in A.D. 83 by the Roman general Agricola in his invasion of Scotland. Mary, Queen of Scots, stayed at Rossend Castle in 1563. The town surrendered to Oliver Cromwell in 1651.

BURSA [ancient: Prusa; former: Brusa] (Turkey)

City and capital of Bursa province, 55 mi S of ISTANBUL, at the N foot of Ulu Dağ, NW Turkey. Founded in the third century B.C. by a Bithynian king, it flourished under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE but changed hands several times after the First Crusade of 1096. Captured by the Ottomans in 1326, it became their capital until 1413. It remained prosperous thereafter. As late as the 17th century it was considered one of the capitals of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. See also BITHYNIA.

BUR SA'ID See PORT SAID

BURUNDI [former: Ruanda-Urundi, Urundi]

Republic of S central Africa, on the NE shore of LAKE TANGANYIKA, with its capital at BUJUMBURA. By the 17th century the area was inhabited by the Hima people, who pursued policies of expansion into neighboring regions throughout the 18th and 19th centuries. In 1890 Burundi became part of German East Africa but was awarded to BELGIUM as RUANDA-URUNDI after World War I. Burundi became independent in 1962 and became a republic in 1966. Melchior Ndadaye, a Hutu, won the nation's first democratic presidential election in 1991. Ndadaye was assassinated in an attempted coup in 1993, sparking "la crise" or "crisis." La crise is an ethnic civil war between Hutu and Tutsi that has claimed nearly 200,000 lives in fighting between Hutu militias and the Tutsi-dominated military. At least 500,000 Burundians, mainly Hutus, who fled the fighting are still living in refugee camps in neighboring TANZANIA and the CONGO.

BURY (England)

Town within Greater Manchester, 8 mi NNW of MANCHESTER. The site of an old Anglo-Saxon post, it was established as a wool town in the 14th century during the reign of Edward III.

BURYAT REPUBLIC [Buryatia] [former: Buryat-Mongol ASSR, Buryat ASSR] (Russia)

Republic within the Russian Federation, in E SIBERIA, E and S of LAKE BAIKAL; ULAN-UDE is its capital. Russian colonization of this region proceeded only gradually in the 17th century but increased in the 19th century with the arrival of the Trans-Siberian Railroad. The nomadic people resisted Russian expansion for a long time. In 1823, the union of the Buryat Mongol and Mongol-Buryat Oblasts formed the republic.

BURYATIA See BURYAT AUTONOMOUS REPUBLIC

BURYAT-MONGOL ASSR See BURYAT AUTONOMOUS REPUBLIC

BURY SAINT EDMUNDS [Saint Edmund's Bury] (England)

Town in SUFFOLK, 22 mi NW of IPSWICH. St. Edmund, king of EAST ANGLIA, was slain here by the Danes in A.D. 869, and in 1020 a Benedictine abbey was founded at the shrine commemorating his death, by King Canute of DENMARK and England. According to tradition, the English barons swore here in 1214 to make King John accept Magna Carta, the great charter of English liberties.

BUSAN See PUSAN

AL-BUSAYRAH See BOZRAH

AL-BUSEIRA See BOZRAH

BUSHBURY (England)

Suburb of WOLVERHAMPTON, West MIDLANDS. Charles II hid in Moseley Old Hall here after the Battle of WORCESTER in 1651. See also BOSCOBEL.

BUSHEHR See BUSHIRE

BUSHIRE [former: Bandar abu Shehr; Persian: Bandar-E-Bushehr, Bushehr] (Iran)

Former chief Persian port on the Persian Gulf, 115 mi SW of SHIRAZ. Founded by Nadir Shah in 1736, it soon supplanted BANDAR ABBAS as chief port. It was captured by the British in 1856 and occupied by them again in 1915 during World War I. After that war it declined in importance.

BUSHNELL (United States)

City in central FLORIDA, 55 mi NNE of TAMPA. In 1835 Major Francis L. Dade and his men were killed in a battle here by Seminole Indians.

BUSK (Ukraine)

City in the UKRAINE, on the BUG RIVER, 20 mi ENE of LVIV. It was attacked many times by Tatars during its early history. The city was part of AUSTRIA from 1772 to 1918 when it passed to POLAND. It became part of the SOVIET UNION in 1945, and part of Ukraine in 1991.

BUSRA (Iraq) See BASRABUSRA [Bosora, Bosra, Bozrah] [ancient: Bostra; Turkish: Bosra eski Sham] (Syria)

Ancient town of SW Syria, 70 mi S of DAMASCUS, near the Jordanian border. A city of NABATAEA, during Roman times Bostra was the capital of the province of ARABIA. It became a metropolis under the Roman emperor Philip (A.D. 244–249) and in the fourth century was the see of a bishop. It fell to the Muslims c. 635. Extensive Roman ruins of black basalt remain, as do an early Byzantine basilica and a mosque. See also ROMAN EMPIRE.

BUSSACO See BUCACOBUSSORA See BASRABUSSORAH See BASRABUSTAM [Bastam, Bistam, Bostum] (Iran)

Town in Semnan province, 160 mi ENE of TEHRAN, NE Iran. A Muslim pilgrimage center, it contains the tomb of the poet and mystic, Abu Yazid al-Bistami, and the remains of buildings built by Mongol Timurid rulers in the 14th century.

BUTARITARI See MAKINBUTHROTUM [Italian: Butrinto; modern: Butrint] (Albania)

Ancient city of EPIRUS, now in modern Albania, on the Channel of Corfu opposite the N end of CORFU. A major city in the sixth century B.C., it had a fortress that guarded the Straits of Corfu. Following the invasion of the Visigoths in the fifth century A.D. it declined, but recovered under Venetian rule from 1386 to 1797. It changed hands several times during Italy's invasion of Greece in 1941. Butrint is now an Albanian National Park and an UNESCO World Heritage Site. See also VENICE.

BUTRINT See BUTHROTUMBUTRINTO See BUTHROTUMBUTTE (United States)

City in SW MONTANA, settled in 1862 as a gold mining camp. Silver was also found here, but Butte boomed after Marcus Daly, arriving in 1876, found immense deposits of copper under the silver and within the city limits. Daly's Anaconda Copper Mining Company successfully fought for economic and political control of the city and state with another entrepreneur, William A. Clark. Butte long had a reputation as a "wide open" western town.

BUTUAN (Philippines)

Town and capital of Agusan del Norte province, N MINDANAO, on the Agusan River, 140 mi N of DANAO. Spanish sovereignty over the Philippines was declared at Butuan in 1521 by explorer Ferdinand Magellan.

BUTUNTUM See BITONTOBÜTZOW (Germany)

Town in MECKLENBURG–WESTERN POMERANIA, 9 mi WNW of GÜSTROW, N Germany. A possession of the bishops of SCHWERIN from 1171 until the 16th century, it was settled by Huguenots fleeing from FRANCE in 1685.

BUXAR [Baxar] [ancient: Vedagarbha] (India)

Town in BIHAR state, on the GANGES RIVER, 60 mi ENE of VARANASI, NE India. A very holy place, it is connected with the life of the Hindu god Rama. The forces of the East India Company defeated the Mogul emperor Shah-a-Lam here on October 23, 1764, thus confirming British control of BENGAL. See also MOGUL EMPIRE.

BUYNAKSK See BUINAKSKBÜYÜK MENDERES NEHRI See MENDERES

BUZANCY (France)

Village and battlefield in Aisne department, 3 mi S of SOISSONS, NE France. During World War I. Buzancy was the scene of heavy fighting from July 28 to 30, 1918, when it was captured from the Germans by French and British troops.

BUZAU [Hungarian: Bodza] (Romania)

Town and capital of Buzau province, on the Buzau River, 60 mi NE of BUCHAREST, central Romania. The fair at Buzau is mentioned as early as 1431 by merchants from BRASOV. It was the site of a Greek Orthodox bishopric.

BUZULUK (Russia)

City in Russia, 90 mi ESE of KUIBYSHEV, in the S URAL MOUNTAINS, E European Russia. Founded as a fortress in 1736 on the site of a Tatar town, it was attacked by peasants during Pugachev's Revolt in 1775.

BYAKA See BYAKARBYAKAR [Byaka] (Bhutan)

Town 150 mi S of LHASA. The Buddhist saint who introduced Buddhism into Bhutan in the eighth century A.D. meditated here. It is now the holiest place in Bhutan.

BYBLOS [biblical: Gebal; modern: Jebeil, Jubail, Jubayl] (Lebanon)

Ancient city of PHOENICIA, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 17 mi NNE of BEIRUT, W Lebanon. Possibly the oldest inhabited town in the area, it was occupied in the Neolithic period of 8000 to 4000 B.C. During the second millennium B.C. it traded with EGYPT. Byblos became the chief city of Phoenicia after the collapse of the Egyptian New Kingdom, but its glory was eclipsed by the rise of SIDON. It was captured by crusaders in 1103 but was lost to Saladin in 1189. The ancient town has been extensively excavated. The town was an originator of Phoenician script and gives its name to the Bible and to bibliographic terms.

BYDGOSZCZ [German: Bromberg] (Poland)

City and capital of Bydgoszcz province, on the Bydgoszcz Canal, 140 mi NW of WARSAW, NW Poland. Built as a frontier post, it was taken by the Teutonic Knights in the 13th century and was destroyed in the Swedish wars of the 17th century. It became important as a port when the Bydgoszcz Canal was opened in the 18th century by Frederick the Great. Included in PRUSSIA from 1772, it was returned to Poland in 1919 and staunchly resisted German attack in World War II.

BYELGOROD See BELGORODBYELORUSSIA See BELARUSBYLAND (England)

Battle site in North Yorkshire, 20 mi N of YORK, N central England. Edward II of England was badly defeated here by Robert Bruce on October 14, 1322, and was compelled to accept the independence of SCOTLAND.

BYTOM [German: Beuthen] (Poland)

Town in Katowice province, 8 mi N of KATOWICE, S Poland. Founded in the 11th century by King Boleslaw I, the Brave, it was the capital of an independent duchy from 1282 to 1289. During the Nazi occupation of World War II it was the center of the Polish underground resistance movement. It has the largest silver foundry in Poland. Formerly part of SILESIA, Bytom was taken by the USSR in 1945 and assigned to Poland at the POTSDAM Conference in 1945.

BYTOWN See OTTAWABYZANTINE EMPIRE

Empire of SE Europe and ASIA MINOR. Its boundaries were continually changing, but at its peak it controlled territory from SPAIN to PERSIA. The most powerful state of the Christian world until the 11th century A.D., its capital, CONSTANTINOPLE, was the richest city in Europe. A devoutly Christian state, the Byzantine Empire technically represented a continuation of the ROMAN EMPIRE, although its language and culture were predominantly Greek.

The Byzantine or Eastern Empire was created by the division of the Roman Empire, which was achieved permanently by Theodosius in A.D. 395. Initially it comprised Asia Minor, the BALKANS, SYRIA; MESOPOTAMIA, EGYPT, and CYRENAICA. Throughout the fifth century the empire was invaded by Persians, Huns, Ostrogoths, and Visigoths. However with the reign of Justinian I (527–68). Byzantine power reached its zenith, thanks to the generals Narses and Belisarius who checked the invaders and recaptured ITALY, North Africa, and southern Spain. In the following years the Persians renewed their attacks in the east and all Byzantine territory in Italy was lost, save for a few enclaves, to the Lombards.

During the seventh century the empire suffered further reverses with the loss of North Africa and PALESTINE to the Muslims, and much of the Balkans to the Slavs and Avars. In the following century a serious threat was posed by the Arabs and Bulgars. Nevertheless, between 867 and 1025 the empire enjoyed considerable power, extending its sway to the EUPHRATES RIVER and exporting the Christian religion to RUSSIA. The emperors were able to keep the empire intact through a combination of complicated and sometimes devious diplomacy, marriage alliance, and prudent resort to force that together have coined the term "Byzantine."

The decline of the empire dates from the 11th century. The disastrous defeat of Romanus IV at MANZIKERT in 1071 saw the loss of Asia Minor, its chief source of manpower, to the Seljuk Turks. Meanwhile the Balkans were threatened by the Normans, and Byzantine commercial power was being challenged by the rise of VENICE. A near-mortal blow was dealt to the empire by the crusaders and Venetians, who sacked Constantinople in 1204 during the Fourth Crusade. After this the Western powers established the Latin Empire of Constantinople and the Latin principalities of ACHAIA, the MOREA, and ATHENS; while in other parts of the empire independent states sprang up, notably in TREBIZOND, NICAIA and EPIRUS.

The Byzantine Empire was briefly reestablished in 1261 by Michael VIII of Nicaea, but the damage caused by the Fourth Crusade was too great, and cohesion was never restored. Stronger neighbors preyed on the dying empire at will. By the early 14th century the Turks were occupying THRACE, and in 1453 Constantinople itself fell to the Ottoman Turks. An essential characteristic of the Byzantine Empire was its Greek Orthodox Christianity, centered on Constantinople. Led by its patriarch, the church of Constantinople was in reality dominated by the emperor in a system often called Caesero-papism.

Long jealous of its doctrinal and administrative prerogatives, the see of Constantinople often fell into disputes with other metropolises that had serious political implications for the empire. In the seventh century, disputes with the patriarchs of ANTIOCH, JERUSALEM, and ALEXANDRIA led these cities and their provinces to welcome the Arabs rather than submit to Constantinople. In the 11th century, disputes with the Roman see eventually led to an alienation that saw the Greeks welcome the Ottoman Turks rather than submit to Latin supremacy. See also OTTOMAN EMPIRE, TURKEY.

BYZANTIUM See BYZANTINE EMPIRE, CONSTANTINOPLE

C

CABALLO [Pulo Caballo] (Philippines)

Fortified island strategically located 1 mi SE of CORREGIDOR, in the entrance to Manila Bay. During World War II U.S. forces holding Caballo's Fort Hughes surrendered to the Japanese in May 1942. The island was recaptured in March 1945.

CABANATUAN (Philippines)

City on LUZON, 60 mi N of MANILA. Following the fall of BATAAN and CORREGIDOR in May 1942, American and Filipino troops were imprisoned nearby at the village of Cabu by the Japanese until the liberation in early 1945. On January 30, 1945, the Great Raid on Cabanatuan, led by Lt. Colonel Henry Macie and Captain Robert Prince rescued more than 500 prisoners of war from the Japanese.

CABEZÓN (Spain)

Town and battlefield in Valladolid province, 7 mi NE of VALLADOLID, central Spain. On June 12, 1808, during the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, a French cavalry unit under General Comte Lasalle defeated the Spanish under Captain-General Don Gregorio de la Cuesta here, thus causing Valladolid to fall to the French.

CABILLONUM See CHALON-SUR-SAÔNE

CABINDA [Kabinda] (Angola)

District and town, in an exclave N of the CONGO RIVER, on the Atlantic Ocean, separated from Angola by a stretch of the Congo's coastline. Portuguese influence began to be felt here after Diogo Cão explored the area in 1470 and established a fort. The fort was destroyed by the French in 1784, but in 1885 local leaders signed a treaty accepting protection by PORTUGAL. The next year by agreement with the Belgian Congo, now CONGO, Cabinda was separated from Portuguese West Africa, now Angola, to give the Congo an outlet to the ocean on the lower Congo River. In the 1960s and 1970s Cabinda participated forcefully in the Angolan movement for independence. After Portugal granted Angola independence in 1975, there was some agitation in Cabinda to become a separate nation in order to keep its plentiful oil reserves for itself.

CABIRA See SIVAS

CABO DA BOA ESPERANÇA See GOOD HOPE, CAPE OF

CABO DE HORNOS See HORN, CAPE

CABO DE SÃO VICENTE See SAINT VINCENT, CAPE

CABO TORMENTOSO See GOOD HOPE, CAPE OF

CABRA [ancient: Aegabro, Baebro, Igabrum] (Spain)

Town in Córdoba province, 37 mi SE of CÓRDOBA, S Spain. An important episcopal see under the Romans and Visigoths, it was captured from the Moors in A.D. 1244 by Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE. Recaptured by the Moors in 1331, it was finally united with Spain in the 15th century.

CABU See CABANATUANCABUL [Kabul] (Israel)

Biblical town of N CANAAN, Israel, 15 mi NE of HAIFA. A town mentioned in the Old Testament, it was ceded to Hiram, king of TYRE, by Solomon (I Kings 9: 10–13).

CÁCERES [ancient: Alkazares, Castra Caecilia, Norba Caesarina] (Spain)

City and capital of Cáceres province, 152 mi SW of MADRID, W Spain. It was called Norba Caesarina by the Romans. It fell under Moorish occupation from the ninth century A.D. until 1229 when it was captured by Alfonso IX of LEÓN. Remains of the Roman fortifications, Moorish walls, the Gothic Church of San Mateo, and of a large Roman military camp nearby can be seen today. See also LUSITANIA.

CADASA [Qadas] (Lebanon)

Ancient village of N CANAAN, in S Lebanon, 24 mi SE of TYRE. A Tyrian village, it was sacked by Jews in the war against ROME of A.D. 66 to 70.

CÁDIZ [ancient: Gades, Gadier, Gadir] (Spain)

Port and capital of Cádiz province, on the Bay of Cádiz in ANDALUSIA, 58 mi NW of GIBRALTAR, SW Spain. Founded in 1100 B.C. by Phoenicians as Gadir, it was under Carthaginian occupation from 501 B.C. until the third century B.C. when it passed to ROME after the Second Punic War. Renamed Gades, it flourished until the fifth century A.D. when it was destroyed by the Visigoths. Captured from the Moors by Alfonso X of CASTILE in 1262, it became important as a transatlantic trading port following the discovery of America in 1492. The Spanish ships in the harbor were burned in 1587 by Sir Francis Drake, and in 1596 much of the city was destroyed by the English. Cádiz was capital of all of Spain not under French control during the Napoleonic Wars from 1810 to 1812. In 1812 the Spanish parliament here drafted the liberal constitution that led to the 1820 revolution. Cádiz declined as a port during the 19th century and fell quickly to Franco in the Spanish civil war. Noteworthy buildings include Moorish houses, the cathedral originally built under Alfonso X, and a Capuchine chapel with the painting on which Murillo was working when he died in 1682.

CADURCUM See CAHORSCAELIAN HILL See ROME, SEVEN HILLSCAEN (France)

City, port, and capital of the Calvados department in NORMANDY, 9 mi from the ENGLISH CHANNEL and SW of LE HAVRE. Capital of Lower Normandy in the 11th century A.D., it was a favorite residence of William the Conqueror, who is buried in the church of St. Étienne. It was twice captured by the English during the Hundred Years' War, in 1346 and 1417, when it was held until 1450. The city was a Girondiste center during the French Revolution. Following the D-day landings in World War II, Caen was crucial to the German resistance against the Allied advance. Two-thirds of the city was destroyed in the ensuing fighting but has since been rebuilt. Two Norman churches and parts of William's massive castle survive. Nearby are ancient quarries from which stone was exported to build Westminster Abbey and other early English monuments.

CAENE See QINACAENEPOLIS See QINACAERDYDD See CARDIFFCAERE See CERVETERICAEREFILI See CAERPHILLYCAERFYRDDIN See CARMARTHENCAER GYBI See HOLYHEADCAERLEON [Caerllion] [ancient: Castra Legionis; Isca Silurnum] (Wales)

Town NE of NEWPORT, on the River Usk in GWENT. With CHESTER and YORK, Isca was one of the three permanent legionary bases of Roman Britain. From A.D. 75 to the middle of the third century it housed the Second Legion, sent by Emperor Claudius into Wales c. A.D. 50. Until the Norman conquest it was a Welsh princely seat and is often identified as a possible site of Arthurian CAMELOT. Traces of an amphitheater and much of the ancient fortification are visible. See also CAERNARVON.

CAERLLION See CAERLEON

CAER LUEL See CARLISLE

CAERNARFON See CAERNARVON

CAERNARVON [Roman: Segontium; Welsh: Caernarfon, Caer Seint] (Wales)

Town on the SW end of the Menai Strait, 8 mi SW of BANGOR in GWYNEDD. Settled in Neolithic times, it became an important village in the Bronze Age on a trade route from the Mediterranean. The fort of Segontium was built here in A.D. 75 following the Roman conquest of Wales. Segontium was followed by the Welsh Caer (fort) Seint, which was the capital of the Segontiaci. It was fortified by the earl of CHES-TER in 1098.

The area was subdued in 1284 by the English under Edward I, who built a strong castle here. Caernarvon became the capital of North Wales. Edward's son, Edward II, was born here the same year, and to appease the Welsh he was named prince of Wales, a title subsequently held by the oldest male heir to the English throne, who is always invested in the castle. The largely intact castle is an excellent example of a medieval fortress. It is an irregular oblong building surrounded by walls with 13 polygonal towers. See also CONWAY.

CAERPENTULACH See KIRKINTILLOCH

CAERPHILLY [Caerefili] (Wales)

Town, 7 mi NNW of CARDIFF in MID-GLAMORGAN. The town arose around the castle built in the 13th century by Gilbert de Clare. Destroyed by the Welsh prince Llywelyn ap Gruffydd in 1270, it was rebuilt but again destroyed in the Civil War by Parliamentary forces c. 1640. Today the castle is the second largest in England and Wales, and the town is known as a trade center for coal and the place of origin of Caerphilly cheese.

CAER SEINT See CAERNARVON

CAERWENT [ancient: Venta Silurum] (Wales)

Town in GWENT, 4 mi SW of CHEPSTOW. Site of the Roman city of Venta Silurum whose walls, gates, temple, and parts of the amphitheater can still be seen.

CAESAREA (Algeria) See CHERCHELL

CAESAREA (England) See JERSEY

CAESAREA AD ANAZARBUM See ANAZARBE

CAESAREA ANTIOCHIA See ANTIOCH

CAESAREA AUGUSTA See SARAGOSSA

CAESAREA MAZACA See KAYSERI

CAESAREA PALESTINAE [Caesarea, Caesaria Maritima, Caesarea Maritima, Qisaraya, Qisarya, Kaisariy] (Israel)

Ancient city and port of PALESTINE on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 22 mi S of HAIFA, N central Israel. Seized in 104 B.C. by the Maccabees, it was the capital, built from 22 to 10 B.C., of Herod the Great. Herod used the site, once a Phoenician fortification known as Strato's Tower, as a base for his navy. It was an important center of early Christianity connected with Peter and Philip the Apostles and Paul. The last was imprisoned here before being sent to ROME for trial. According to Josephus, an incident here in A.D. 66 sparked the Jewish revolt. Following the Bar Kochba revolt in A.D. 135, 10 leaders of JUDEA were put to death here by the Romans. After the destruction of JERUSALEM, Caesarea became capital of Roman Palestine, and under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE it was capital of Palaestina Prima. Fortified during the Crusades, it was finally razed by the MAMLUK EMPIRE in 1265. In the late 1950s excavations revealed a theater, aqueduct, temple, harbor installations, and later crusader fortifications.

CAESAREA PHILIPPI See MT. HERMON

CAESAROBRIGA See TALAVERA DE LA REINA

CAESARODUNUM See TOURS

CAESAROMAGUS (England) See CHELMSFORD

CAESAROMAGUS (France) See BEAUVAIS

CAESENA See CESENA

CAFFA See FEODOSIYA

CAGAYAN (Philippines)

Province in NE LUZON with its capital at Tuguegarao. It was visited and explored by the Spaniards during the period 1572–81. The area was the scene of many anti-Spanish uprisings during the 17th century. Civil government was established in Cagayan in September 1901. In World War II, it was occupied by JAPAN during the years 1941–45.

CAGLIARI [ancient: Carales, Caralis] (Italy)

Capital city and port on the S coast of SARDINIA, 260 mi SW of ROME. Founded by the Phoenicians, it became the principal Carthaginian stronghold in Sardinia and was occupied by the Romans during the First Punic War. Independent during the early Middle Ages, it was under PISA's control from the 11th to 14th centuries during that city's wars with GENOA. It was heavily bombed during World War II when it served as an Axis naval base. Of historic interest are the fifth-century basilica of San Saturnino, a Roman amphitheater, and the St. Pancras tower of 1304. See also CARTHAGE.

CAHER See CAHIR

CAHIR [Caher] (Ireland)

Town on the Suir River 10 mi W of CLONMEL in TIPPERARY. A castle was built on an island here in A.D. 1142 by Conor O'Brien on the site of an ancient fort. It was besieged in 1599 by the earl of ESSEX, in 1647 by Inchiquin, and in 1650 by Oliver Cromwell during the final stages of the Civil War.

CAHOKIA (United States)

Village in SW central ILLINOIS, just S of EAST ST. LOUIS. Founded by the French in 1699, it was one of the first permanent European settlements in Illinois and became a leading center of French influence in the upper MISSISSIPPI RIVER valley. It fell to the English in 1765 and to the Americans in 1778. The nearby Cahokia Mounds, which are being excavated, include the largest prehistoric earthwork in the United States. See also KASKASKIA.

CAHORS [ancient: Cadurcum, Divona] (France)

Town in Lot department, on the River Lot 60 mi N of TOULOUSE, S central France. Capital of the Cadurci tribe, it was named Divona by the Romans and was famous for its linen cloth. In the early Middle Ages it was occupied by the Visigoths and Muslims. As the capital of QUERCY it later became one of the major banking centers of medieval Europe. It was ruled by its bishops from 1316 until the French Revolution. Pope John XXII was a native of Cahors and founded a university here in 1322. Remains of a medieval fortress survive.

CAHORSIN See QUERCY

CAINARGEAVA-MICĂ See KAYNARDZHA

CAÏNO See CHINON

CAIRA See CHUR

CAIRO [Arabic: Al-Qāhirah; former: Al Kahira] (Egypt)

Capital of Egypt, on the NILE RIVER, approximately 9 mi above the branching of the delta waters. Fustât, a Muslim town founded in A.D. 641 after the Arab conquest, was close to the site of the 10th-century city built by the Fâtimids that was to become the modern Cairo. Saladin used the city as his capital in the 12th century, and it continued as a Mamluk capital in the next century. In the late Middle Ages it flourished as an important stop on the East-West spice route, but economic decline had set in by the time it fell to the Turks in 1517. Under Mehmet Ali in the first half of the 19th century it became the capital of what evolved into the modern Egyptian state. In 1882 it was occupied by British forces. The British left only after World War II, during which it was their headquarters in the Middle East. Ancient Egyptian treasures are housed in the Egyptian museum here. Many 14th- and 15th-century mosques survive, as do numerous structures from the Turkish occupation. Ancient MEMPHIS was located directly across the Nile from the city. Cairo is now the most populous city in the continent of Africa, and a major cultural center of the Arabic-speaking world.

CAIRO (United States)

City in S ILLINOIS at the confluence of the OHIO and MISSISSIPPI Rivers, 125 mi SE of ST. LOUIS. Founded to be the premier port for the upper Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, it was flooded many times by both rivers, and St. Louis with its higher location and protected portside took much of the river traffic. In the Civil War General Ulysses Grant had his headquarters here during his western campaigns. The city also served as a strategic Union supply depot. Cairo was the scene of much racial strife in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

CAISEAL MUMHAN See CASHEL

CAISLEÁN AN BHARRAIGH See CASTLEBAR

CAISTOR [ancient: Tunna-Ceaster] (England)

Town in LINCOLNSHIRE 11 mi WSW of GRIMSBY. Caistor was the site of a Roman camp and an early British fort. Egbert, king of the West Saxons, is said to have defeated the Mercians here in A.D. 829. See MERCIA.

CAISTOR ST. EDMUNDS [ancient: Venta Icenorum] (England)

Suburb, 3 mi S of NORWICH in NORFOLK. Venta Icenorum was developed by the Romans following the revolt of the Icenii tribe in A.D. 62 as a town where the rebels could be thoroughly Romanized. There are traces of the large Roman encampment still visible. See also COLCHESTER.

CAIT See CAITHNESS

CAITHNESS [ancient: Cait, Cat] (Scotland)

Former county now merged in the HIGHLAND region. Inhabited since Neolithic times, Caithness is rich in prehistoric remains. As the Pictish province of Cait it was invaded by Norsemen. The earldom of Caithness was held by the Norse earls of ORKNEY until 1231. In 1680 the last great battle between Scottish clans took place here at Altamarlach. See also THURSO.

CAJAMARCA [ancient: Caxamarca] (Peru)

City and capital of Cajamarca province on the Cajamarca River, 370 mi NW of LIMA, NW Peru. The Inca emperor Atahualpa was captured and executed here in A.D. 1532 by the Spanish conquistador Francisco Pizarro. The city has Inca remains. See also INCA EMPIRE.

CALABAR [former: Old Calabar] (Nigeria)

Port and town on the Calabar River, 350 mi ESE of LAGOS. It is capital of Cross River State. Settled in the 18th century by the Ibibio tribe, it became a market center and slave trading depot and was part of the loosely knit state of Old Calabar. A British protectorate was accepted in 1884, and Calabar served as capital of three British protectorates until 1903, when the capital was moved to Lagos. It was further eclipsed by the growth of PORT HARCOURT. Modern Calabar is an educational center and a major Nigerian tourist destination.

CALABRIA [ancient: Bruttium] (Italy)

The name of both a modern region and an ancient one at a different location. Originally it referred to the region of S Italy between the ADRIATIC and the Gulf of Tarentum, comprising the southern section of the modern province of APULIA. This area was taken by ROME between 272 and 209 B.C. After the Lombard conquest of c. A.D. 670 the name Calabria shifted to that southwestern peninsula of Italy comprising the provinces of CATANZARO, COSENZA, and REGGIO DI CALABRIA.

This area had been the focus of prosperous and powerful Greek colonization until the Roman conquest. It became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in the ninth century A.D. and fell to the Normans under Robert Guiscard in the 11th century. A center of Italian republicanism, it was united with the Kingdom of Italy in 1860. During World War II it was an important Italian supply center, and Reggio di Calabria was frequently bombed by the Allies. Evidence of prehistoric settlement abounds in the ancient region, notably at GALLIPOLI and LECCE. See also TARANTO.

CALAE See CHELLES

CALAFAT (Romania)

Town and battleground in Dolj province on the DANUBE RIVER opposite VIDIN, BULGARIA, SW Romania. Founded by Genoese colonists in the 14th century, it was the scene of a battle during the Russo-Turkish wars of the 19th century.

CALAGURRIS NASSICA See CALAHORRACALAH [Kalakh, Kalhu] [modern: Nimrud] (Iraq)

Ancient city and military capital of ASSYRIA on the E bank of the TIGRIS RIVER in al-Mawsil province, 20 mi SSE of MOSUL, N Iraq. It was founded in the 13th century B.C. by Shalmaneser I and is mentioned in Genesis 10:11–12. It became military capital of Assyria during the reign of Ashurnasirpal II (884–859 B.C.). As the Sargonids tended to use NINEVEH as their residence in the seventh century B.C., Calah slowly began to decline and was sacked in 614 B.C. The ivories and sculpture excavated from Calah today constitute one of the richest collections in the world.

CALAHORRA [ancient: Calagurris Nassica] (Spain)

Town in Logroño province on the EBRO RIVER, 26 mi SE of LOGROÑO, N central Spain. In this town, from 76 to 72 B.C., Pompey unsuccessfully besieged the Roman general Quintus Sertorius, who had gone to aid the rebelling Lusitani. It changed hands several times between Christians and Moors from the ninth to 11th centuries A.D. Of historic interest is a restored fifth-century cathedral, traces of Roman settlement, and the Casa Santa, traditionally containing the remains of two early martyrs, Celedonius and Emeterius.

CALAIS (France)

City and port on the STRAIT OF DOVER in Pas-de-Calais department, 64 mi NW of ARRAS, NE France. It was fortified by the count of BOULOGNE in A.D. 1224. During the Hundred Years' War, after the battle of CRÉCY, it resisted a siege by the English for nearly all of 1346, but was finally forced to surrender. Recaptured for France in 1558 by François de LORRAINE as the last English holding in France, it was occupied by SPAIN during the period 1596–98. Napoleon gathered his troops here in 1805 for the projected invasion of ENGLAND. Part of the German push to the sea in both world wars, it was occupied by them from 1940 to 1944 and used as a launching site for flying bombs sent against England. The old town was almost completely destroyed but has since been rebuilt. A 13th-century tower survived the war.

CALAIS (United States) See SAINT STEPHEN (Canada)CALATAFIMI (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Trapani province, 21 mi ESE of TRAPANI in NW SICILY. During the Italian war of independence, on May 15, 1860, Redshirts under Giuseppe Garibaldi defeated the Neapolitans here under General Landi, thus assisting the uprising against Austrian domination of NAPLES.

CALATAYUD (Spain)

Town in Saragossa province, 45 mi SW of SARAGOSSA, NE central Spain. Founded in the eighth century A.D. by Ayub the Moor, it fell in 1120 to Alfonso I of ARAGON. It contains a Moorish castle and the Church of Santo Sepulcro, a center of the Knights Templar. The ruins of the Roman city of Bilbilis are nearby.

CALATRAVA [La Vieja] (Spain)

Ancient fortress just ENE of CIUDAD REAL in Ciudad Real province, central Spain. Founded by Cistercians in A.D. 1158, it fell to the Moors in 1197 but was retaken in 1212. The fortress, now in ruins, gives its name to the Knights of Calatrava, Spain's oldest military order.

CALCHEDON See CHALCEDONCALCUTTA See KOLKATACALDER See CAWDORCALDERA (Chile)

Port in Atacama province on the Pacific Ocean, 40 mi NW of COPIAPÓ. The chief port of the province, it has the oldest railway in South America, constructed to Copiapó in 1849 by William Wheelwright.

CALDERÓN BRIDGE (Mexico)

Scene of battle in JALISCO province, on the Santiago River, E of GUADALAJARA, W central Mexico. On January 16, 1811, during the Mexican War of Independence, Mexican insurgents under Father Don Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla and José Ignacio Allende were defeated here by the Loyalist Spanish army under Félix María Calleja del Rey, who occupied Guadalajara four days later.

CALDEY ISLAND See CALDY ISLANDCALDIERO (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Verona province, 9 mi E of VERONA, N Italy. Two battles of the Napoleonic Wars were fought here: the first on October 30, 1805, during which the French under Masséna defeated the Austrians under Archduke Charles Louis, and the second on November 12, 1805, during which the French were defeated by the Austrians.

CALDIRAN [Chaldiran, Chaldran] (Turkey)

Town and battlefield in Kars province, S of KARS, E of the EUPHRATES RIVER. The Ottoman sultan Selim I defeated Shah Ismail and the Persians here on August 23, 1514.

CALDY ISLAND [Caldey Island] [Welsh: Ynys Bŷr] (Wales)

Island in the entrance of Carmarthen Bay, 32 mi W of SWANSEA, DYFED. The monastery founded here in the fifth century A.D. once housed St. David. An abbey was established by the Benedictines in 1127. Remains found on the island attest to Neolithic and Roman settlement. An ancient stone found at the abbey site has helped to decipher the Celtic ogham alphabet.

CALE See OPORTO

CALEDONIA (Scotland)

Ancient region, roughly corresponding to all of modern Scotland. It was inhabited by the Caledones tribe in pre-Roman times and fell to the Romans in A.D. 82 following the battle of Mons Graupius. A legionary fortress was established at INCHTUTHIL with auxiliary forts elsewhere. The Romans evacuated Caledonia during the reign of Trajan (A.D. 98–117) and retreated to HADRIAN'S WALL. In A.D. 142 they reannexed the land as far as the Firth of FORTH, protecting the new frontier with the ANTONINE WALL. Today Caledonia is used poetically as a name for Scotland.

CALGARY [former: Fort Calgary] (Canada)

City in ALBERTA, 180 mi S of EDMONTON, SW Canada. It dates from 1875 when it was made an outpost of the Northwest Mounted Police. Calgary began to expand following the arrival of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in 1883. The proximity of oil and gas fields gives it an importance rivaling that of Edmonton.

CALHOUN [former: Oothcaloga] (United States)

City in NW GEORGIA, 22 mi NNE of ROME. Destroyed during the Civil War by General William Tecumseh Sherman's Union army, it was later rebuilt. Nearby is NEW ECHOTA.

CALIANO (Italy)

Village and battlefield in Trento province, NE of the N end of the LAKE OF GARDA, N Italy. During the French Revolutionary Wars Napoleon's troops defeated General Baron Paul Davidovich's Austrians here on September 5, 1796, forcing them to abandon Trento and retreat to the ALPS.

CALICUT See KOZHIKODE

CALIFORNIA (United States)

The most populous of the United States, it was admitted to the Union as part of the Compromise of 1850 and as the 31st state. It is on the Pacific coast, bounded on the N by OREGON and on the S by MEXICO. The word california was first used in a Spanish poem and was transferred to the area by Spanish explorers.

Estimates of California's prehistoric population range from 133,000 to 350,000 with the current historical and carrying capacity by Sherburne Cook in 1978 of 31,000 Indians in 100 tribes before the coming of Europeans. The first European visitor was Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo, who discovered San Diego Bay in 1541 and took possession for SPAIN. In 1579 the English explorer Sir Francis Drake landed N of modern SAN FRANCISCO and claimed the land for England as New Albion. Sebastián Vizcaíno saw Monterey Bay in 1602, and in 1769 Gaspar de Portolá established the first colony on San Diego Bay and later a fort at Monterey Bay. MONTEREY became the capital of Alta California. At regular stages on the CAMINO REAL the Franciscans established missions to which they brought Indians whom they converted and forced to perform agricultural labor. Juan Bautista de Anza founded San Francisco in 1776.

The Russians, coming from the North, established FORT ROSS N of San Francisco in 1812. The first overland trip by Americans to California occurred in 1826. After Mexico won its independence in the 1820s, the government took over the missions and secularized them in 1833 and 1834. The local inhabitants drove out the Mexican government in 1845, and the next year a group of Americans, led by the explorer John C. Frémont, declared a republic under their Bear Flag at Sonoma. On July 7, 1846, an American naval officer captured Monterey and claimed California for the United States. At the end of the Mexican War in 1848 Mexico ceded the land to the United States, and that same year gold was discovered in the SACRAMENTO Valley. The next year this brought a rush of prospectors—the Forty-Niners. There was an economic boom, inflation, lawlessness, and violence.

California was first linked to the rest of the nation by rail in 1869. The gold rush and railroad construction brought in many Chinese laborers who were resented by European workers. The result was a federal law of 1882 ending Chinese immigration. A devastating earthquake and fire leveled San Francisco in April 1906, but the city was quickly rebuilt. In the early years of the 20th century prejudice also developed against the Japanese immigrants who were buying up truck gardening land. The result was a law in 1913 that made it illegal for them to own agricultural land. A real estate boom in the 1920s stimulated more people to move to California, but the depression of the 1930s brought hard times and swelled the state with homeless migrants seeking a new life.

Prosperity returned with World War II, as ship and aircraft building boomed and California became the jumping-off place for the Pacific war. The native Japanese of California were removed to “relocation centers.” After World War II California became one of the fastest growing states, the symbol of the good American life, and the population nearly doubled between 1950 and 1970.

The 1960s saw the results of this boom and the inequalities of success and opportunity that it created. Mounting racial tensions finally erupted in WATTS, a black area of LOS ANGELES, in August 1965. In six days 34 people were killed and millions of dollars of property damage done. Later in the decade, a series of agricultural strikes were accompanied by violence as migrant farm workers sought recognition for their union and a share in California’s prosperity. The 1960s and 1970s were also a time of student unrest, first centered on the University of California campus at BERKELEY. President Ronald Reagan first achieved national political attention as an opponent of many of these new trends. In 1966 he was elected to the first of two terms as governor and set the tone for California’s growing conservatism in the 1970s. In the late 1970s the state passed Proposition 13, a property tax-cutting referendum that transferred much of the funding in the state from local to state control. Strong in manufacturing, particularly aircraft, the state is also a prolific grower of fruits and vegetables and is the nation’s major wine producer. The state is a leader in high technology including microelectronics and computers, software, and biotechnology. In the 1990s the “dot.com” boom and bust of Internet business was a setback for the state’s economy, but California remains the world leader in Internet businesses. HOLLYWOOD has been the movie capital for nearly three quarters of a century. Sacramento is the capital, and Los Angeles is the largest city. Other cities include San Francisco, Berkeley, FRESNO, Long Beach, OAKLAND, SAN DIEGO, and SAN JOSE.

CALISIA See KALISZ

CALISSIA See KALISZ

CALIXTLAHUACA (Mexico)

Town and archaeological site in Mexico province, 4 mi NW of TOLUCA. Inhabited in the seventh century B.C., possibly by Matlatzincas, Calixtlahuaca has the remains of various pre-Columbian cultures, including the temple of Quetzalcoatl, the pyramid of Tlaloc, and a house of skulls. See also AZTEC EMPIRE.

CALLANISH [Callernish] (Scotland)

Port and prehistoric site on East Loch Roag, Lewis in the Western Islands area, the HEBRIDES, 13 mi W of STORNOWAY. The Standing Stones of Callanish, one of the most elaborate and complete prehistoric sites in Britain, are a collection of 47 stones laid out in the form of a cross.

CALLAO (Peru)

City, port, and capital of Callao province on Callao Bay, 8 mi W of LIMA, W central Peru. Founded in 1537 by Francisco Pizarro, it became the leading seaport for transporting gold from the INCA EMPIRE to SPAIN. It was pillaged in 1578 by Sir Francis Drake. Severely damaged by tsunami and earthquake in 1746, it was reconstructed a short distance away to include the fortress Castillo del Real Felipe, which withstood Spanish attack during the wars of independence and in 1825 was the scene of Spain’s final surrender. Bombarded by Spain in 1866, Callao was occupied by CHILE during the War of the Pacific from 1881 to 1883. The city was again severely damaged by earthquake in 1940, but has since been modernized into a major port.

CALLERNISH See CALLANISH

CALLEVA ATREBATUM See SILCHESTER

CALLICULA (Italy)

Mountain and scene of battle in Caserta province, CAMPANIA region, N of CAPUA, SW central Italy. During the Second Punic War in 217 B.C., Hannibal, while returning to APULIA, here cleverly defeated the Romans under Fabius Maximus Cunctator.

CALLINICUM (Syria)

Ancient town and scene of battle on the left bank of the EUPHRATES RIVER, S of EDESSA Aleppo province, N Syria. Belisarius, the Byzantine general, was defeated here in A.D. 531 by Kavadh I, king of PERSIA.

CALLIPOLIS See GALLIPOLI

CALLISTE See THERA

CALLOO See KALLO

CALMAR See KALMAR

CALNE (England)

Old market town in WILTSHIRE, 13 mi SW of SWINDON. It was the site of a palace of the West Saxon kings. By A.D. 1086 it was a royal borough under the Normans. During the reign of Edward II (1307–27) it was a wool trading center.

CALPULÁLPAM (Mexico)

City and battlefield in TLAXCALA province, 38 mi NW of MEXICO CITY, central Mexico. During the Mexican liberal uprising the liberals under Benito Pablo Juárez defeated government forces here on December 22, 1860, thus opening the way to Mexico City.

CALTANISSETTA (Italy)

City and capital of Caltanissetta province in SICILY, 55 mi W of CATANIA. It is sometimes identified with the ancient cities of Gibil Habib and Sabucino. The city was conquered by the Normans in A.D. 1086. Damaged by heavy fighting in World War II, it was taken by the Allies in July 1943. Norman churches and a castle, including Greek and Norman elements, are especially noteworthy.

CALVADOS (France)

Department of NORMANDY, NW France, bordered to the N by the ENGLISH CHANNEL, with CAEN as its capital. Calvados was the site of Allied D-day landings in World War II when on June 6, 1944, units of the U.S. First Army landed at OMAHA BEACH.

CALVARY [Hebrew: Golgotha] (Israel)

Locality in JUDAEA mentioned in the New Testament as the place where Jesus Christ was taken and crucified. Its precise location is not clear, but it is known to be outside the ancient city of JERUSALEM and thought to be within the modern city. Roman emperor Constantine the Great built the Church of the Holy Sepulchre during the period 326–335 on what is traditionally considered the location of Calvary.

CALVEN (Italy)

Gorge and battlefield in N Italy near the border of GRAUBÜNDEN canton, SWITZERLAND, in Sondrio province, LOMBARDY region. On May 22, 1499, the Swiss of Graubünden here defeated Maximilian I of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, thus gaining virtual independence for the group of cantons that then constituted the Swiss confederation.

CALVI (France)

Port on the NW coast of CORSICA, 45 mi N of AJACCIO. It was founded in 1268. It repulsed the forces of Henry II of France in 1553. The British took Calvi in 1794 during the French Revolutionary Wars after a seven-week siege. During the siege Admiral Nelson lost an eye.

CALVUS MONS See CHAUMONT

CAMAGÜEY [former: Santa Maria de Puerto Principe] (Cuba)

City and capital of Camagüey province, 300 mi ESE of HAVANA. Founded in 1514, in 1528 it was moved slightly and renamed for an Indian settlement. It was sacked by English, French, and Dutch pirates during the colonial era. In the early 19th century the city was capital of the Spanish West Indies. Today much colonial architecture survives here.

CAMARINA [modern: Santa Croce Camerina] (Italy)

Ancient city in SICILY, 13 mi SW of RAGUSA in Ragusa province. Founded by SYRACUSE in 599 B.C. it was abandoned and reoccupied many times in the sixth, fifth, and fourth centuries B.C. The Romans finally destroyed it during the First Punic War in 258 B.C. There are many remains, including the ruins of the temple of Athena.

CAMARS See CLUSIUM

CAMBALU See CAMBALUC

CAMBALUC [Cambalu, Khanbalik] (China)

This was the name used by Marco Polo for Khanbalik, the capital of China, now BEIJING.

CAMBARAO See BANDAR ABBAS

CAMBAY See KHAMBAT

CAMBODIA [Kingdom of Cambodia] [former:

Kampuchea, Khmer Republic, Camboja]

Country lying on the Gulf of Siam in S INDOCHINA, bordered by VIETNAM to the E, THAILAND to the W, and LAOS to the N. The navigable MEKONG RIVER roughly bisects the country, and its fertile flood plains provided the basis for the extensive agricultural wealth that supported the country's former greatness.

Cambodia's prehistory is cloudy, but it seems that successive waves of people passed through the area and left farm villages along its watercourses. Metal working was present, possibly as early as the fourth century B.C.

The first major culture was that of Funan, which flourished between the first and sixth centuries A.D. and derived much of its prosperity and culture from its position on the great trade route between INDIA and CHINA. Funan was absorbed by the rising Hindu state of Chen La by the beginning of the seventh century. Chen La was headed by the Khmers, whose home area was in the middle Mekong region of modern Laos. Their rule began to flourish in ANGKOR, after Chen La's demise, under the leadership of Jayavarman II (802–50) and his successors. The concept of a unified national state of Cambodia was then set in the Khmer consciousness for the first time and has since remained constant.

Jayavarman II and succeeding Khmer monarchs developed a new state religion in which the ruler was a god-king with great power. Under them Cambodia was transformed with the construction of vast irrigation systems that allowed dense populations, and there was tremendous building in the Angkor region. Yasodharapura covered 16 square miles, with extensive water supply systems. Through the 12th century the Khmers expanded in power and territory. Suryavarman II (1113–50) pressed Vietnam and had a major influence on Thailand and the MALAY PENINSULA. He instituted tremendous building projects, including Angkor Wat, Beng Meala, and Bunteay Samre. After his death, CHAMPA, which had been controlled by the Khmers in spite of continual rebellion, freed itself and began a long series of skirmishes that climaxed in the capture of Angkor in 1177 and the death of the new Khmer ruler, leaving the country in chaos. In 1181, Jayavarman VII became king, resubjugated the Chams, and began an enormous and costly campaign of temple building that created Angkor Thom. The kingdom's resources were sorely strained, and after his death the Khmer empire began a long decline.

Siam began to dominate the region, and Angkor fell to its attacks in 1369, 1389, and finally in 1444, which led to its abandonment. The Khmers moved the royal capital to PHNOM PENH and continually lost power and influence. Siam continued its successful expansion, and from 1596 to 1603 Cambodia was ruled by Spanish troops that had been brought in to help defend the country. Cambodia continued to decline throughout the 17th and 18th centuries and suffered under vassalage to both Vietnam and Siam.

FRANCE came into control of Cambodia as an outgrowth of colonial expansion in Vietnam, and in 1863 forced King Norodom to sign a treaty establishing a French protectorate. In 1884 the French forced Cambodia's acceptance of colonial status and after putting down a two-year rebellion they consolidated their power. Cambodia was quietly governed by the French until World War II when JAPAN occupied it without causing traumatic change. In 1953 Prince Norodom Sihanouk took advantage of France's preoccupation with the First Indochinese War to successfully petition for a grant of independence. In the Second Indochinese War Sihanouk moved toward alliance with North Vietnam and China, seeing the traditional enemies, South Vietnam and Thailand, as his chief threats.

He was overthrown in 1970, after U.S. air attacks on Cambodia and anti-Vietnamese riots. Under Lon Nol's rule Cambodia fought Hanoi-backed rebels with U.S. aid until Phnom Penh was captured by the revolutionary forces of Pol Pot in 1975. The country's name was then changed to Kampuchea. A reign of mass execution of millions, population relocation, and upheaval aimed at forcibly returning the country to its agrarian past then removed the country from the view of the rest of the world. In 1979 a Vietnamese-controlled insurgent force seized control of Cambodia, and the Vietnamese army followed. However, Prince Sihanouk, now allied with the remnants of the Pol Pot forces, attempted to reinstate an anti-Vietnam, Cambodian regime in the country.

The Vietnamese withdrew in 1989, leaving the pro-Vietnam Cambodian government of Prime Minister Hun Sen to face a rebel coalition (including the Khmer Rouge) supported by China and Thailand. In 1991 all groups agreed to a cease-fire, and to UN-supervised elections. Prince Sihanouk denounced the Khmer Rouge, aligned himself with Hun Sen, and became once again the head of state. The Khmer Rouge withdrew from the peace process and resumed a guerilla war against the government. Further UN-sponsored elections in 1993 led to a new constitution, which re-established the monarchy, with Sihanouk again taking the throne of the Kingdom of Cambodia. During the period 1993–94 a government sponsored amnesty resulted in a wave of defections from the Khmer Rouge.

A fragile co-premier coalition government of the National United Front, headed by Sihanouk's son Prince Ranariddh, and Hun Sen's Cambodian People's Party finally led to open conflict in July 1997, when Hun Sen alleged that Ranariddh was merging Khmer Rouge defectors into his ranks. After a weekend of fighting in Phnom Penh, Hun Sen emerged as the sole leader. Hun Sen became the prime minister after the 1998 elections. Pol Pot was confirmed dead in April 1998, which marked the end of the Khmer Rouge's power.

CAMBODUNUM See KEMPTEN

CAMBOJA See CAMBODIA

CAMBRAI [ancient: Cameracum; Flemish: Kambryk; former: Cambray] (France)

City and battlefield on the Escaut River, 34 mi SSE of LILLE in Nord department. Known to the Romans as Cameracum, it was a Frankish capital by A.D. 445. The League of Cambrai was formed in 1508 against VENICE and lasted until the formation of the Holy League in 1510. The Treaty of Cambrai in 1529 brought a brief lull in the fighting between Charles V, Holy Roman Emperor, and Francis I of France. Neighboring ENGLAND and FRANCE long vied for its control until it passed in 1698 to France by the Treaty of NIJMEGEN. An episcopal see from the fourth century, it was the residence of the archbishop and writer François Fénelon from 1695 to 1715. It was the scene of heavy fighting in both world wars.

CAMBRAI See CAMBRAI

CAMBRIA See CUMBRIA

CAMBRIDGE [ancient: Cantabrigia, Grantabridge, Grantebryege] (England)

University city on the River Cam, 50 mi N of LONDON in CAMBRIDGESHIRE. Site of a Roman fort and Norman castle, it was first mentioned by Bede in A.D. 731. The university was founded when Peterhouse College was established in 1284. Pope John XXII confirmed Cambridge as a university city in 1318. The modern city is remarkable for the wealth of architecture provided by the colleges and the Saxon and Norman churches. The university is, with OXFORD, one of the most important in England. Prehistoric earthworks and traces of Roman settlement remain in the Castle Hill and Market Hill areas.

CAMBRIDGE (United States)

City and educational center on the Charles River, 3 mi W of BOSTON, in MASSACHUSETTS. Harvard College—later Harvard University, oldest and one of the most prestigious of U.S. universities—was founded here in 1636 as a school for ministers for the Puritan churches, which dominated the area. Harvard was later at the center of controversies between the orthodox and liberal branches of the original Puritan church. At the outbreak of the American Revolution, George Washington assumed command of the Continental forces on Cambridge Common on July 3, 1775. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology was moved to Cambridge in 1916. The city has many other varied educational establishments.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE (England)

County of low-lying fernland. It includes the former county of Huntingdonshire and Peterborough. The administrative headquarters is CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBUSKENNETH (Scotland)

Abbey on the Forth River in Central region, just E of STIRLING. David I of Scotland founded an abbey here c. 1140 that became one of the richest of Scotland. The Scottish parliament met here on several occasions before it was dismantled by the earl of Mar in 1604.

CAMDEN (England)

Inner LONDON borough, NW, created by the merger of the former boroughs of Hampstead, Holborn, and St. Pancras. The borough takes its name from Camden Town, the area where Charles Pratt had his Camden estate and in 1791 gave land for building houses. The Hampstead area has been the site of a village since Anglo-Saxon times and retains the open space of Hampstead Heath. Holborn, once the site of two medieval villages, has the Inns of Court, the heart of Great Britain's legal profession. A popular but expensive residential area, the borough has several Georgian squares, and in the Regent's Park neighborhood are houses designed by noted architect John Nash during the period 1812–20.

Many artists and writers have lived here, especially in Hampstead, including Charles Dickens, John Constable, Karl Marx, H. G. Wells, and George Bernard Shaw. Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli was born in Holborn in 1804. The home of John Keats, now a museum, is here. Holborn is also the site of the British Museum and the University of London, while in St. Pancras are three of London's famed railroad stations: Euston, dating from 1849, King's Cross of 1852, and St. Pancras of 1874. WATLING STREET, originally a Roman Road, skirts the western edge of the borough.

CAMDEN [former: Cooper's Ferry] (United States)

City on the DELAWARE RIVER opposite PHILADELPHIA in NEW JERSEY. Settled c. 1680, it was renamed in 1773 for the earl of Camden, who opposed British taxation policies. The town was occasionally held by the British during the American Revolution. Considerable industrial expansion, including the birth of the Campbell soup company here, followed the Civil War. The home of Walt Whitman, who is buried here, is preserved.

CAMDEN [former: Pine Tree Hill] (United States)

City and battleground near Wateree River in SOUTH CAROLINA, 31 mi ENE of COLUMBIA. An important

British strong point during the American Revolution, here the British under Lord Cornwallis defeated the Americans under General Horatio Gates on August 16, 1780. From the stockade jail here the young Andrew Jackson observed another important British defeat of the Americans under General Nathanael Greene on April 25, 1781, at nearby HOBKIRK'S HILL. Soon afterward the British, irritated by rebel raiding parties, burned the town. A Confederate supply base during the Civil War, Camden was occupied and burned by General William T. Sherman in February 1865. Today the city is a popular winter resort and known for steeplechase races.

CAMELOT (Great Britain)

Site of King Arthur's court and castle in Arthurian legend. Its exact location is not known but experts have suggested CAERLEON, Camelford, WINCHESTER, and South Cadbury Castle as the site of Camelot. Excavations at the last have revealed post-Roman remains of the period associated with Arthur built over the pre-Roman hill fort.

CAMERACUM See CAMBRAICAMERINO [ancient: Camerinum] (Italy)

Town in E central Italy, 16 mi SSE of FABRIANO, Macerata province. It is in the MARCHES region, which played a prominent part in the struggle between the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE and the Papacy for control of this part of Italy. Camerino was one of three fiefs established in the 10th century on the marches, or borders, of the Holy Roman Empire. Cesare Borgia, soldier and son of Pope Alexander VI, finally captured Camerino for the PAPAL STATES in 1502. A university was founded here in 1336.

CAMERINUM See CAMERINOCAMEROON [French: Cameroun; German: Kamerun] (Africa)

Republic on the Bight of Biafra SE of NIGERIA with its capital at YAOUNDÉ. In its early history the region witnessed many migrations and invasions. Slave trading followed the arrival of the Portuguese in 1472. In the 19th century the British established commercial hegemony over the coastal area, but were later supplanted by the Germans. Germany's territory was occupied during World War I by France and Britain, and in 1919 the area was divided into French and British zones. The French zone became independent on January 1, 1960, with Ahmadou Ahidjo as president. In 1961 the northern section of the British zone united with Nigeria and the southern section joined the independent Cameroon. In 1972 the two zones became a united state with Ahidjo as president. In 1982, Ahidjo resigned in favor of Paul Biya who has continued to rule the country through 2005. In the 1990s there was conflict between Cameroon and Nigeria over the oil-rich Bakassi Peninsula in the Gulf of Guinea, with fighting occurring in 1994 and 1997. In 2002, the International Court of Justice awarded the Bakassi Peninsula to Cameroon, but Nigeria delayed implementing the decision.

CAMEROUN See CAMEROON

CAMINO REAL (Spain, United States)

Spanish term for royal road, first given to a highway built in Spain in the 16th century that connected a number of important cities, including MADRID. In this same century the Spaniards began building roads in their new possessions in South and Central America, although these were mostly trails over plains or cut through forests. The term came to be applied to any important road. In the long period of Spanish rule between 1542 and 1821 the Spaniards constructed a coastal highway in CALIFORNIA that became known as El Camino Real and that ran the 600 miles from SAN DIEGO to SAN FRANCISCO. It connected 21 missions and four presidios established on or near the road from c. 1770 to c. 1825. The present California Highway 82 between San Diego and San Francisco closely follows the old royal road.

CAMIRUS (Greece)

Ancient town on the W coast of the island of Rhodes 18 mi SW of the city of RHODES. Before the foundation of Rhodes, it was the island's chief town and was a member of the Dorian Hexapolis.

CAMOTES SEA (Philippines)

Battle site, between LEYTE and CEBU. In 1944 several air and sea battles took place here during the Allied campaign against Japanese-held Leyte in World War II.

CAMP See CAMPERDOWN

CAMPĀ (India)

Ancient city in BIHAR state. Its exact location is not known but is thought to be on the southern bank of the GANGES RIVER east of MUNGER. Mentioned in Buddhist literature as a city of importance, it was one of the six great cities of northern India in the sixth and fifth centuries B.C. and was capital of the kingdom of Anga, now East Bihar.

CAMPALDINO (Italy)

Village and battlefield on the Arno River ESE of FLORENCE in TUSCANY region. Here on June 11, 1289, the supporters of the Hohenstaufen from AREZZO were severely defeated by the Florentine supporters of Holy Roman Emperor Otto IV.

CAMPANIA (Italy)

Region of S Italy stretching from the APENNINES around BENEVENTO to the TYRRHENIAN SEA around NAPLES and SALERNO. A fertile agricultural area, it was occupied by the Samnites who conquered the Etruscans here in the late fifth century B.C. and by Greek colonies along the coast, including Naples. By the end of the fourth century B.C. it had been Romanized. Under the ROMAN EMPIRE its cities were favorite Roman resorts. Occupied by Goths, Byzantines, Lombards, and Normans following the fall of Rome, it became part of the Kingdom of the TWO SICILIES in 1282 and part of the Kingdom of Italy in 1860. See also CAPUA, POZZUOLI, SICILY.

CAMP DAVID (United States)

A wooded camp in the Catoctin Mountain Park in MARYLAND established by President Roosevelt as a weekend and vacation retreat. He called it Shangri-La as did President Truman. President Eisenhower renamed it Camp David. In recent years it has been used increasingly for small diplomatic meetings. Most notable were those between President Carter and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of ISRAEL and President Anwar Sadat of EGYPT, resulting in the Camp David accords of September 1978 and the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty of March 1979.

CAMPECHE [Pre-Columbian: Kimpech] (Mexico)

Port, city, and capital of Campeche province on the Gulf of Campeche, 95 mi SW of MÉRIDA. Old colonial port founded in 1540 by the Spanish, it was frequently sacked in the 17th century by English and pirate fleets. It was one of the three ports on the Gulf of Mexico in the 18th century. It suffered a two-year blockade by the French from 1862 to 1864. A 16th-century church and other remains survive.

CAMPERDOWN [Dutch: Camp, Kamp, Kamperduin] (Netherlands)

Village that has given its name to a naval battle off the NORTH SEA coast. It lies 8 mi N of ALKMAAR in NORTH HOLLAND province. On October 11, 1797, during the French Revolutionary Wars, the British fleet under Admiral Adam Duncan here defeated the Dutch under Admiral Jan Willem de Winter.

CAMP HANCOCK See BISMARCK

CAMPI CATALAUNI See CATALAUNIAN PLAINS

CAMPI RAUDII See VERCELLI, Italy

CAMPOBASSO (Italy)

City and capital of Campobasso province, in the APENNINE MTS, 95 mi NE of NAPLES. The old town was abandoned in 1732 in favor of a new one outside the medieval walls. During World War II British and U.S. forces linked up here in October 1943 during the VOLTURNO campaign. Of historical interest here is a 15th-century castle.

CAMPO FORMIDO See CAMPO FORMIO

CAMPO FORMIO [modern: Campo Formido] (Italy)

Village of Udine province, FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA region, 5 mi SW of UDINE. The Treaty of Campo Formio was signed on October 17, 1797, following France's defeat of AUSTRIA. It ended the first phase of the Napoleonic Wars. It secured FRANCE's territorial acquisitions and ended 1,100 years of independence for VENICE. After the treaty only England remained actively hostile to France.

CAMPO MAIOR (Portugal)

Town near the Spanish border, 10 mi NNE of ELVAS in Alto Alentejo province. Fortified since Roman times, the town resisted a siege by the French in 1811 during the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars.

CAMPOSANTO (Italy)

Village and battlefield of Modena province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 14 mi NE of MODENA. During the Austro-Spanish War the Austrians and Piedmontese under Marshal Otto von Traun defeated the Spanish under General Count John de Gages here on February 8, 1743. The Spanish were forced to retreat to the Kingdom of NAPLES.

CAMPTOWN See IRVINGTON

CAMPUS MARTIUS See MARIETTA

CAMPUS STELLAE See SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA

CAMRANH BAY [Vietnamese: Kamranh Bay, Vinh Cam Ranh] (South Vietnam)

Inlet of the South China Sea N of Phan Rang. Seized by the Japanese in 1941, during World War II, it was used as a major naval base. During the Vietnam War, it was the site of a major U.S. base during the period 1965–72, and later a major Soviet naval base. The Russians left the base in 2002.

CAMULODUNUM See COLCHESTER

CANA [Cana of Galilee] (Israel)

Village 4 mi NE of NAZARETH in Northern GALILEE. John 2:1, 11 narrates that Jesus performed his first miracle here when he turned water into wine at a wedding feast.

CANAAN [Chanaan] (Israel)

Ancient name for Israel before the Hebrew conquest. Settled since Neolithic times, parts of it were dominated by the Semitic Amorites from c. 2000 to 1550 B.C. The northern section was held by the Hittites until 1200 B.C. Canaan developed an advanced culture, owing much to both EGYPT and MESOPOTAMIA, with wealthy walled cities like HAZOR, JERICHO, and MEGIDDO and organized armies. Much of this culture was absorbed by the nomadic Hebrews, or Israelites, who called Canaan the Promised Land and gradually subdued it following their exodus from Egypt c. 1250 B.C. About the same time Canaan's coast was invaded and settled by the Philistine Sea Peoples, raiders from the Aegean. Only in the 10th century B.C. were the Israelites under King David able to subdue them. Canaan then became the land of Israel, though the northern parts remained under the Canaanites and later became known as PHOENICIA. See also HITTITE EMPIRE, PHILISTIA, UGARIT.

CANAAN (United States)

Town in Grafton County, NEW HAMPSHIRE, 40 miles NW of CONCORD. Incorporated in 1770, the town later was a stop on the Underground Railroad. Canaan was the site of a major trainwreck in 1907 in which 25 died in a collision between the QUEBEC to BOSTON express passenger train and a Boston & Maine freight.

CANADA

Canada is an independent nation and a member of the Commonwealth of Nations. The name Canada is from an Indian word meaning “village” or “settlement.” OTTAWA is the capital. Canada is the second-largest country in the world, occupying all of North America north of the UNITED STATES except ALASKA. While it ranks 31st in population, Canada is an important power in world affairs. A democratic nation with traditional and strong ties to the English-speaking world, Canada is an active participant in United Nations affairs and a valued member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to which it contributes both armed forces and political support. Strong both industrially and agriculturally, Canada is also in the upper ranks of the economically important nations of the world.

The first inhabitants were the ancestors of the modern Indians and Inuit—the Canadian “First Nations.” The first Europeans to set foot in North America were the Vikings, who reached Canada in A.D. 1001 and spent the winter on the northern coast of NEWFOUNDLAND. In the late 15th and early 16th centuries, European explorers again reached Canada in their search for a sea route, the NORTHWEST PASSAGE, to the Far East. Among them were John Cabot and Henry Hudson for ENGLAND, and Jacques Cartier and Samuel de Champlain for FRANCE. Cabot made voyages to the New World in 1497 and 1498; Cartier in 1534, 1535, and 1541; Hudson in 1609 and 1610; while Champlain undertook five voyages beginning in 1603. These voyages caused both England and France to claim large and vaguely defined areas that included what is now Canada.

The French under Champlain were the first to colonize the country, the earliest permanent settlement being made at QUEBEC in 1608. The French developed the fur trade, and such men as the sieur de La Salle, Louis Hennepin, Louis Jolliet, and Jacques Marquette were pioneer explorers of the inland regions, including the Great Lakes and the MISSISSIPPI RIVER. The English, by establishing the Hudson’s Bay Company in 1670, competed with the French for the fur trade. Each side had Indian allies, the Hurons being the chief supporters of the French and the Iroquois of the English.

The first warfare between the rivals occurred in 1613 when American colonists destroyed Port Royal, NOVA SCOTIA, now ANNAPOLIS ROYAL. In 1629 the English captured Quebec. Between 1689 and 1763, four European wars between the French and English were also fought in North America. The last, from 1754 to 1763, was known in North America as the French and Indian War. It ended after Great Britain once more captured Quebec in 1759. The treaty of 1763 gave the British possession of Canada. The Quebec Act of 1774 created the province of Quebec, which took in the area E of the Mississippi River and N of the Ohio River, as well as eastern Canada.

When the American Revolution began, the colonists tried to get the Canadians to join them in rebellion, but neither the English-speaking nor the French-speaking inhabitants were persuaded. The Americans invaded Canada and captured MONTREAL in 1775 but later had to retreat. In 1777 the British used Canada as a starting point for an invasion of NEW YORK but were defeated at SARATOGA. During the War of 1812 several battles were fought on Canadian soil between the Americans and the British and Canadians with mixed results and no permanent advantage to either side. The final section of the boundary between Canada and the United States, in the Far West, was not settled until 1846.

The British changed colonial boundaries and governmental systems several times in the 19th century until in 1867 the British North America Act established the Dominion of Canada, with arrangements for a democratic form of government. At first the dominion consisted of four provinces: NEW BRUNSWICK, Nova Scotia, ONTARIO and Quebec. Since then six more provinces have been admitted: MANITOBA in 1870, BRITISH COLUMBIA in 1871, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND in 1873, ALBERTA and SASKATCHEWAN in 1905, and Newfoundland in 1949. There are three other governmental units, the YUKON TERRITORY and the NORTHWEST TERRITORIES and NUNAVUT.

The discovery of gold in the KLONDIKE area of the Yukon brought a short-lived rush of prospectors in 1897 and 1898. In World War I Canada sent an army to Europe to fight on the side of the Allies. After the war, Canada joined the League of Nations and in the 1920s established its own diplomatic service. In 1931 the British Parliament's Statute of Westminster made the dominions, such as Canada, completely self-governing. The Canadian army, navy, and air force played important roles in World War II.

Modern Canada is a developed, industrialized nation of more than 31 million people with a diverse economy. Its major cities are EDMONTON, CALGARY, Montreal, Ottawa, TORONTO, VANCOUVER, and WINNIPEG. In recent years, the old differences between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians has again come to the fore, chiefly in Quebec, over such matters as teaching language in schools. There is also a conflict between the central government and some of the provinces over the sharing of the profits and taxes from Canada's extremely valuable energy resources. In October 1980 the government asked the British Parliament to transfer from London the British North America Act of 1867, to Canada so that the dominion could control and amend its own political and governmental affairs. Canada received this constitution in 1982, but Quebec did not ratify the constitution. In 1984 the Meech Lake Accord proposed changes in the constitution bringing in Quebec as a culturally "distinct society," but it was rejected by English-speaking Canada in 1990 as Newfoundland and Manitoba failed to ratify it. In 1992 voters also rejected the CHARLOTTETOWN Accord that would have modified the constitution to suit the Québécois.

In 1992 Canada, the United States, and Mexico negotiated the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) that established a North American free-trade zone starting in 1994. In 1998 the government issued a formal apology to Canada's indigenous people for 150 years of mistreatment and established a fund for reparations. In 1999 Canada split the Northwest Territories, creating the Inuit dominated territory of Nunavut out of the eastern part. In 2000 a bill was passed making it harder financially for Quebec to secede from the nation. Canada supported the United States after the terrorist attacks of 2001 by helping travellers stranded after the hijackings, and later, by sending forces to AFGHANISTAN. Canada opposed the U.S. invasion of IRAQ in 2003.

CANADA WEST See UPPER CANADA

ÇANAKKALE [Chanakkale] [former: Chanak, Kale Sultaniye] (Turkey)

Town and fortress on the Asiatic shore of the DARDANELLES, 22 mi SW of GALLIPOLI in Çanakkale province. The fortress was founded in the 15th century by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE to guard the Dardanelles. During World War I it was unsuccessfully bombarded by the Allied fleet in March 1915 during the Gallipoli campaign. Traces of the ancient cities ABYDOS and SESTOS are nearby.

ÇANAKKALE BOĞAZI See DARDANELLES

CANAL ZONE [Panama Canal Zone] (Panama)

A strip of territory, 10 mi wide, extending along the PANAMA CANAL. Of vital importance, it controls the Panama Canal. In 1903 it was put under U.S. administration by treaty. However, this was disputed by Panama in 1926 and was the subject of subsequent negotiations. In 1978 the territory and canal were officially passed to Panama. Transfer of sovereignty and control was completed in 1999.

CANANDAIGUA (United States)

City in W central NEW YORK State, in the FINGER LAKES region, at the N end of Canandaigua Lake, 25 mi SE of ROCHESTER. A farming and resort area, it was settled in 1789. The local museum has a copy of a treaty with the Iroquois Confederacy, signed here in 1794 by Timothy Pickering. Pickering was a political leader and American Revolutionary officer who was Indian commissioner of the United States from 1790 to 1795 and who negotiated treaties with a number of tribes. In 1873 pioneer feminist Susan B. Anthony was tried here for having attempted, with a group of women she led, to vote in Rochester in 1872. She was fined and refused to pay. She carried the case to the U.S. Supreme Court and lost.

CANA OF GALILEE See CANA

CANARIES See CANARY ISLANDS

CANARY ISLANDS [Canaries] [Spanish: Islas Canarias] (Spain)

A group of mountainous islands off the NW coast of Africa in the Atlantic Ocean. LAS PALMAS and SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE are the chief towns.

Known to Pliny, the Canaries may be identified with the Fortunate Islands mentioned in classical texts. Juba, king of Mauretania, made an expedition to these islands c. 40 B.C. Arabs used the Canaries as a trading post beginning in A.D. 999, and through the Middle Ages the islands were visited by Europeans. In 1404 a Norman, Jean de Béthencourt, made himself king. The original inhabitants, the Guanches, were defeated by the Spanish in the 15th century. In 1479 Spanish sovereignty was recognized by the Treaty of Alcázar. Columbus and other explorers used the Canaries as supply bases on transatlantic voyages. In 1936 Franco's nationalist forces were based here before going to Spanish Morocco.

CANAVERAL, CAPE [1963–73: Cape Kennedy] (United States)

Seaward extension of a Barrier Island on the Atlantic Ocean, 40 mi E of ORLANDO in FLORIDA. Since 1947 it has been the launching site for ballistic missiles and space vehicles. On May 5, 1961, the first U.S. manned space flight under Commander Alan B. Shepard Jr. was launched from here. The first lunar landing flight was also launched here on July 16, 1969, as was the first manned space shuttle on April 12, 1981. See also HOUSTON.

CANBERRA [former: Canberry, Canbury] (Australia)

City and capital of Australia on the Molonglo River, 150 mi SW of SYDNEY. First settled in the 1820s, Canberra was selected for development as a capital for the new federation. It officially became the capital of Australia on May 9, 1927, when King George V opened the parliament. The Australian National University was founded here in 1936.

CANBERRY See CANBERRA

CANBURY See CANBERRA

CANCHA RAYADA (Chile)

Battlefield in Santiago province just SE of SANTIAGO. During the Chilean war of independence of March 16, 1818, Chilean and Argentine patriots under José de San Martín were defeated here by Royalists under General Mariano Osorio and forced back on Santiago.

CANDÉ (France)

Village on the Erdre River, 19 mi ESE of CHÂTEAU-BRIANT in Maine-et-Loire department. A treaty was signed here in 1800 between Napoleon and the Chouans. It ended the revolt of the peasants led by Jean Cottereau, nicknamed "Chouan," referring to an owl hoot they used as a secret signal in rebellions in the VENDÉE. The last rebels were not suppressed until 1815.

CANDIA See CRETE, HERAKLION

CANEA [Kanea] [ancient: Cydonia; Greek: Khania; Chania, Khanià] (Greece)

City and port on the NW coast of CRETE, 75 miles W of HERAKLEION. Capital of Khania prefecture and one of the island's oldest cities, originally the Greek colony of Cydonia, it was conquered in 69 B.C. by ROME, and passed to the Arabs in A.D. 826. Conquered by the BYZANTINE EMPIRE under Nicephorus II in 961, it prospered under VENICE from the 13th to the 17th centuries, when it fell to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1645. It was capital of Crete from 1841 to 1971 and was damaged in 1941 during the German invasion of World War II, but has since been rebuilt. There are fortifications from the Middle Ages and an arsenal used by the Venetians. In its suburb, HALEPA, was signed a treaty in 1878 granting the people of Crete certain rights.

CAÑETE (Chile)

Town in Arauco province, 20 mi SE of Lebu. One of the oldest towns in Chile, it was founded in 1557 by García Hurtado de Mendoza and was the scene of Indian wars.

CANEY See EL CANEY

CANGAS DE ONÍS (Spain)

Town of Oviedo province, NW Spain, 35 mi E of OVIEDO. Seat of the kings of ASTURIAS from the eighth century A.D. until the capital moved to LEÓN in the 10th century.

ÇANKIRI [Chankiri] [ancient: Gangra, Germanicopolis, Kangri] (Turkey)

Town and capital of Çankiri province, 60 mi NE of ANKARA. Gangra, the ancient capital of the kings of PAPHLAGONIA, was incorporated into the Roman province of GALATIA in the first century B.C. It was captured by the Seljuk Turks in A.D. 1071, following their victory over the BYZANTINE EMPIRE at MANZIKERT and was finally incorporated into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the 15th century.

212 Cannae

CANNAE (Italy)

Village and battlefield of Bari province in APULIA region, near BARLETTA. During the Second Punic War, on August 2, 216 B.C., the Romans suffered their most severe defeat here against the Carthaginians under Hannibal, who employed an unusual encirclement tactic. This victory gave Hannibal control of most of central and southern Italy. A bishop's seat in medieval times, it was destroyed in 1276. See also CARTHAGE, ROME.

CANNANORE See KANNUR

CANNAUJ See KANNAUJ

CANNES (France)

City and port on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 18 mi SW of NICE, in the Alpes-Maritimes department. It was settled in its early history successively by Ligurian tribesmen, Phocians, Celts, and Romans. In the Middle Ages it was sacked on two occasions by the Moors. Napoleon camped outside Cannes in March 1815 following his return from ELBA. American forces landed here during World War II on August 15, 1944. Today it is an international resort on the French RIVIERA, host of a renowned film festival. The town was first located on Mont Chevalier, where remains of a 12th-century church have been found. Offshore are the Lérin Islands with evidence of early settlement, including a fifth-century chapel to St. Honorat.

CANOBUS See CANOPUS

CANONSBURG (United States)

Town in PENNSYLVANIA, 18 mi SSW of PITTSBURGH. In 1794 the Whiskey Rebellion started here in protest against the excise tax on distilled liquor. See also MCKEESPORT.

CANOPUS [Canobus] [Egyptian: Pe Gewat; Greek: Kanopus] (Egypt)

City 12 mi E of ALEXANDRIA near the modern village of ABUKIR in al-Iskandariyah province. In ancient times it was a pleasure resort for the people of Alexandria and a pilgrimage objective until the fourth century A.D. Many remains can still be seen, including the temple of the god Serapis.

CANOSA DI PUGLIA [ancient: Canusium] (Italy)

Town in APULIA region in Bari province, 13 mi SW of BARLETTA. Canusium accepted Roman sovereignty voluntarily and flourished as a trade center. The Romans fled here in 216 B.C. following their defeat at CANNAE during the Second Punic War. Destroyed by the Saracens in the ninth century A.D., it was restored by the Normans in the 11th century and became part of the Kingdom of NAPLES. Excavations in tombs in the area have yielded numerous vases. Within the town a Romanesque cathedral and a 12th-century mausoleum are of interest.

CANOSSA See CIANO D'ENZA

CANSO (Canada)

Town in E NOVA SCOTIA, 130 mi ENE of HALIFAX. An old colonial fishing town, it changed hands several times. It was captured by the English from the French in the 1720s and fortified. The greater part of it was destroyed in 1812 by privateers. During the 20th century the town reemerged as an important fishing port.

CANTABRIGIA See CAMBRIDGE

CANTERBURY [ancient: Cantiacorum, Cantuaria, Cantwaraburn, Cantwarabyrig, Durovernum] (England)

City and ecclesiastic center of England in KENT, 53 mi ESE of LONDON. Although a fortified settlement here dates to 200 B.C. and Julius Caesar came close to the site, the Roman town Durovernum was established here only after A.D. 43. In the sixth century it was capital of Aethelbert, king of Kent, whom St. Augustine converted. He founded a monastery here in 598 and later the cathedral that was to become the prime see in England. In 1011 Canterbury was damaged by Danish raids. Following the murder of Archbishop Thomas Becket on December 29, 1170, in the cathedral, the town became a pilgrimage center as immortalized by Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. Under Mary I in the 1550s many Protestants were burned at the stake here. The city languished in the 16th century during the Reformation. Refugee Walloon weavers brought revival as did a new fort built in the 17th century. Canterbury was damaged by bombs in World War II, especially during June 1942. Traces of the largest Roman theater in England and a wall begun in the third century are here. Of interest too are St. Martin's church, called the Mother Church of England, and the old King's School.

CANTIACORUM See CANTERBURY

CANTIGNY (France)

Village and battlefield in the SOMME department, 18 mi S of AMIENS. On May 28, 1918, U.S. troops went on the offensive here for the first time in World War I.

CANTON See GUANGDONG

CANTON (United States)

City in NE OHIO, approximately 20 mi SSE of AKRON, in a steel-producing region. It was settled in 1805 and incorporated in 1822. President William McKinley had his home here from 1867 until his death by assassination in 1901. The McKinley State Memorial, containing his grave and a monument, was established in 1907. The adjacent Stark County Historical Museum includes a McKinley Museum. Professional football as an organized sport got its start in Canton in 1920 when the American Professional Football Association was organized. The National Pro Football Hall of Fame was established here in 1963.

CANTON ATOLL [former: Mary Island, modern: Kanton] (Kiribati)

Coral group in the W central Pacific, 1,630 mi SW of HAWAII. These islands were annexed by Great Britain in the 19th century and were important in the 1930s as a stopover point on trans-Pacific air flights. They were put under joint U.S.-British administration in 1939 following a dispute over ownership and were a strategic air base in World War II. They are a rich source of guano. In 1979, the United States ceded the islands to Kiribati.

CANTUARIA See CANTERBURY

CANTWARABURN See CANTERBURY

CANTWARABYRIG See CANTERBURY

CANUSIUM See CANOSA DI PUGLIA

CAPARRA (United States)

Ruins of a former settlement in N PUERTO RICO, near SAN JUAN. Founded in 1509, it was the first settlement in Puerto Rico but was abandoned in 1521. BAYAMÓN is nearby.

CAP DE LA HAVE See BRIDGEWATER

CAPE BRETON ISLAND [French: Île Royale] (Canada)

Island forming the NE part of NOVA SCOTIA, separated from S Nova Scotia by the Strait of Canso. Discovered by John Cabot in 1497, it was a French colony from 1632 to 1763 when it was ceded to England. Following the Treaty of UTRECHT in 1713, it took in Acadian refugees, who erected a fort at LOUISBOURG. It became part of Nova Scotia in 1820, and has been linked to the mainland by a causeway since 1955.

CAPE CANAVERAL See CANAVERAL, CAPE

CAPE CARMEL See CARMEL, CAPE

CAPE COAST [former: Cape Coast Castle] (Ghana)

Capital of Central Region province, 75 mi WSW of ACCRA on the Gulf of Guinea. One of the oldest towns in Ghana, it was first settled by Europeans in 1610 and was the site of the castle built by the Swedes in 1652. It passed to the English in 1664 and was Great Britain's commercial and administrative capital on the GOLD COAST until 1877.

CAPE COAST CASTLE See CAPE COAST

CAPE COD See COD, CAPE

CAPE COLONY See CAPE PROVINCE

CAPE KENNEDY See CANAVERAL, CAPE

CAPE MATAPAN See MATAPAN, CAPE

CAPE MAY See MAY, CAPE (United States)

CAPE MAY (United States)

City in S NEW JERSEY at the end of the Cape May peninsula, on the Atlantic Ocean, approximately 40 mi SW of ATLANTIC CITY. The site was visited in 1623 by a Dutch explorer, Cornelius Jacobsen Mey, and settled in 1644. In the 18th century Cape May was an important whaling port. It is one of America's oldest beach resorts, very popular around the mid-19th century and later when it became known as the "Presidents' Playground" because presidents James Buchanan, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses Grant, Rutherford Hayes, Chester Arthur, and Benjamin Harrison all spent time here. In the 1850s the city boasted the largest resort hotel in the United States, the Mount Vernon, with room for 2,000 guests. It later burned down, but the city retains many interesting examples of Victorian architecture in its houses and hotels.

CAPE MERKUS See MERKUS, CAPE

CAPE NYMPHAEUM See NYMPHAION, CAPE

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE See GOOD HOPE, CAPE OF

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE PROVINCE See CAPE PROVINCE

CAPE PASSARO See PASSERO, CAPE

CAPE PROVINCE [Cape of Good Hope Province] [Afrikaans: Kaapprovinsie; former: Cape Colony] (South Africa)

Province situated on the southern tip of the African continent, mostly S of the Orange River, with the Cape of GOOD HOPE on its SW coast. CAPE TOWN is its capital and is also the legislative capital of South Africa. A Dutch colony was founded here on the shores of Table Bay by Jan van Riebeeck of the Dutch East India Company on April 7, 1652. During the 17th and 18th centuries the population slowly increased, and a distinctive South African Dutch dialect and culture called Afrikaans developed.

The colony, now Cape Town, was the only major European settlement in a large and sparsely settled territory. From 1799 to 1877 there were periodic conflicts, the Kaffir Wars, between Europeans and the native Xhosa tribes. The British occupied the Cape Colony between 1795 and 1803 and again from 1806 to 1814, when the Dutch ceded it. When a liberal government began to institute reforms that threatened slavery, which the Dutch settlers depended on for labor and defended as a morally important relationship, many Boers, the Dutch-descended settlers, left the colony between 1835 and 1843 on the Great Trek, a migration northward where they set up what would become the ORANGE FREE STATE and the TRANSVAAL.

Under British rule the Cape Colony became the most prosperous and Europeanized community in the region. Clashes between the British and the Boers came to a head when the Boer War erupted from 1899 to 1902. The Cape Colony was incorporated, as Cape Province, into the Union, now Republic, of South Africa in 1910. In 1994, Cape Province was split into Eastern Cape Province, Northern Cape Province, part of North West Province and Western Cape Province. See also EAST LONDON, KIMBERLEY, PORT ELIZABETH, PRETORIA, Uitenhage.

CAPERNAUM [Capharnaum] [modern: Kefar Nahum] (Israel)

Ancient Palestinian city on the N shore of the SEA OF GALILEE at Tell Hum, 6 mi NNE of TIBERIAS in GALILEE. It was a Roman garrison town and administrative center. It is cited in each of the four Gospels and was the second home of Jesus. Jesus chose the disciples Peter, Andrew, and Matthew from Capernaum, where he performed much of his ministry. Remains of the synagogue where Jesus is said to have taught are believed to be under an excavated structure of the second century A.D.

CAPE SAINT VINCENT See SAINT VINCENT, CAPE

CAPE SALMONE See PLÁKA, CAPE

CAPE TOWN [Capetown] [Afrikaans: Kaapstad] (South Africa)

City, port, and legislative capital of South Africa, and capital of WESTERN CAPE Province, in the SW of the province, on Table Bay. Founded for the Dutch East India Company by Jan van Riebeeck in 1652, it fell to the British in 1795. The Treaty of AMIENS in 1803 restored it to the Dutch, but the British retook it in 1806 and made it the capital of Cape Colony. After the formation of the Union, now Republic, of South Africa in 1910 it became its legislative capital, with PRETORIA as administrative capital of the country.

CAPE VERDE ISLANDS [Portuguese: Ilhas do Cabo Verde]

Group of 10 main islands that form a republic off the W coast of Africa in the Atlantic Ocean, 300 miles W of DAKAR. PRAIA is the capital. The first Portuguese settlers arrived in 1462 and founded Ribeira Grande, the oldest European city in the tropics. The islands prospered with the growth of the slave trade, but Ribeira Grande was attacked in the 16th century by pirates and the English. It was finally abandoned following a French attack in 1712. The decline of the islands was caused by the ending of the slave trade. They recovered only after World War II. The islands became independent from PORTUGAL on July 5, 1975. Associated with GUINEA BISSAU after independence, the islands became completely independent in 1981 after Guinea-Bissau's government (which was mostly Cape Verdean) was overthrown in a coup in 1980. In 1993, the nation had its first multiparty elections. The nation has implemented economic reforms aimed at developing the private sector and attracting foreign investment, but progress has been slow due to a prolonged drought that has caused large-scale emigration and food shortages.

CAPE VERT See VERDE, CAPE

CAP FOURCHU See YARMOUTH

CAP-FRANÇAIS See CAP HAITIEN

CAP HAITIEN [Cap-Haïtien] [former: Cap-Français; local: Le Cap] (Haiti)

City and port on the Atlantic Ocean, 85 mi N of PORT-AU-PRINCE in Nord province. The second largest city of Haiti, it was founded by the French in 1670. Known as the Paris of the Antilles, it was capital of Saint-Domingue colony until 1770 and was the scene of slave uprisings in 1791. The harbor was used by American ships from 1798 to 1800 and during the American Civil War. The city was razed in 1802 by Haitian and French troops but was considerably rebuilt by Henry Christophe, the freed slave who became king of Haiti. A palace and other buildings from Christophe's kingdom of 1811 to 1820 remain. The city suffered a severe earthquake in 1842, and political instability in the city has incited several coups and rebellions since 1992. In February 2004 Cap Haitien was taken over by militants opposed to Haitian president Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who was eventually exiled from power.

CAPHARNAUM See CAPERNAUM

CAPITOL See CAPITOLINE HILL

CAPITOLIAS (Jordan)

City of E PALESTINE, 47 mi N of AMMAN, Jordan. An ancient Nabataean city dating from the pre-Christian era, it was later included in the DECAPOLIS. It was declared autonomous by Trajan in the late first century A.D.

CAPITOLINE HILL [Capitol] [ancient: Mons Capitolinus] (Italy)

The highest of the seven hills of ROME and the city's historic and religious center. A temple was dedicated in 509 B.C. to Jupiter Capitolinus on the hill's south summit. The citadel of Rome was on the north summit, and criminals were thrown from the Tarpeian rock onto the hill's southern face. Today it is the center of the municipal government of Rome. Its modern building plan was designed by Michelangelo in the 16th century. See also PALATINE HILL.

CAPITOL REEF NATIONAL MONUMENT See UTAH

CAPODISTRIA See KOPER

CAPORETTO See KOBARID

CAPPADOCIA (Turkey)

Ancient state, province, and region of indefinite size N of the TAURUS MOUNTAINS in E central Turkey. It was held by the HITTITES and colonized by ASSYRIA. A satrapy of PERSIA in the sixth century B.C., it was not completely subdued by the invasion of Alexander the Great and developed into an independent kingdom in the third century B.C. Its capital was at Mazaca, later Caesarea Mazaca, now KAYSERI. It retained its independence by allying with Rome but was invaded in 104 B.C. by Mithridates VI of PONTUS. In A.D. 17 it was annexed by ROME as a province and remained a strategic bulwark of the eastern BYZANTINE EMPIRE until the 11th century A.D. See also KANESH, ROMAN EMPIRE.

CAPREAE See CAPRI

CAPRERA (Italy)

Island in the Tyrrhenian Sea, 1 mi off the coast of NE SARDINIA and part of the Sassari province. From 1856 until his death in 1882, Caprera was the home of the Italian patriot Giuseppe Garibaldi. After his conquest of SICILY and NAPLES in 1860, he declined a popular outcry for his rule and retired here, where he is buried.

CAPRI [Isola di Capri] [ancient: Capreae] (Italy)

Island near the SE entrance to the Bay of Naples, 20 mi S of NAPLES in Naples province. A former colony of GREECE, it was a popular resort of Roman emperors. It changed hands several times between the French and British during the Napoleonic Wars and in 1813 was restored to the Kingdom of the Two SICILIES. Many fine Roman villas have been excavated here.

CAPRIVI STRIP [German: Caprivi Zipfel] (Namibia)

Long, narrow strip of land in NE Namibia running 280 mi E from the main part of Namibia to the ZAMBEZI RIVER. This territory was obtained from the British in 1890 by the German chancellor Leo Caprivi and afforded German South West Africa access to the Zambezi River.

CAPRIVI ZIPFEL See CAPRIVI STRIP

CAPSA See QAFAH

CAPUA [ancient: Casilinum] (Italy)

Town on the VOLTURNO RIVER 19 mi N of NAPLES in Caserta province, Campania region. Casilinum was a strategic junction on the APPIAN WAY in Roman times and was contested during the Second Punic War by Hannibal and the Romans. Capua was founded on the site of Casilinum in A.D. 856 by the citizens of ancient CAPUA. Fought over many times in the Middle Ages, it was part of the Kingdom of Naples until 1860. Parts of a ninth-century cathedral, a Norman castle, and a museum of Roman artifacts are of special interest. Capua was the scene of several battles in World War II.

CAPUA [Santa Maria Capua Vetere] (Italy)

Ancient city of Campania region, 16 mi N of NAPLES in Caserta province. Founded c. 600 B.C. by the Etruscans, it fell to the Samnites in 440 B.C. In 340 B.C. following the defeat of the Latin Confederacy, which Capua supported, the city passed to the Romans. It flourished under ROME, becoming the second city of Italy and enjoying special rights. Capua sided with CARTHAGE in the Second Punic War but fell to Rome again in 211 B.C. and consequently lost these privileges. Spartacus's slave revolt began in Capua in 73 B.C. The city was sacked in A.D. 456 by Vandals under Gaiseric and by the Saracens in 840. Traces of Etruscan temples of the sixth century B.C. can be seen today. See also ETRURIA, ROMAN EMPIRE, SAMNIUM.

CAPUZZO (Libya)

Village of E CYRENAICA, S of BARDIA near the Egyptian border in Derna province. In World War II it was a fortified Italian base for the attack on the British in EGYPT. Between 1940 and 1942 it changed hands frequently during the see-saw desert fighting. See also ITALY.

CARABOBO (Venezuela)

Village and battlefield 20 mi S of VALENCIA in Carabobo province. During the Latin American wars of independence revolutionary forces under Simón Bolívar defeated the Spanish under General Miguel de la Torre here on June 24, 1821, thus virtually freeing Venezuela from Spanish control. See also SPAIN.

CARACAS [former: Santiago de León de Caracas] (Venezuela)

City and capital of Venezuela near the CARIBBEAN SEA, 175 mi E of BARQUISIMETO in Federal District. Founded in 1567 by Diego de Losada, it was sacked by the British in 1595 and by the French in 1766. Venezuelan independence from Spain was declared here in July 1811, but earthquakes and military setbacks prevented this from becoming reality until Simón Bolívar's victory at CARABOBO in 1821. The city expanded prodigiously following an oil boom in the 1950s.

CARAHUE [former: Imperial] (Chile)

Town on Imperial River, 32 mi W of TEMUCO in Cautín province. A settlement founded here in 1551 by Pedro de Valdivia was the site of many clashes between the Spanish and Indians.

CARALES See CAGLIARI

CARALIS See CAGLIARI

CARAMAN See KARAMAN

CARANQUI (Ecuador)

Village in the Andes mountains just SW of IBARRA in Imbabura province. The ancient Inca remains here are revered by the natives as the birthplace of Atahualpa, the last Inca king. See also INCA EMPIRE.

CARANSEBES (Romania)

Town on the Timis River, 25 mi SE of LUGOJ in Caras-Severin province. Founded between the 12th and 13th centuries A.D., it was the seat of the first rulers of BANAT.

CARANTANIA See CARINTHIA

CARAVACA (Spain)

City, 43 mi WNW of MURCIA in Murcia province. Under Moorish occupation until A.D. 1241, it was captured by Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE who gave it to the Knights Templar. A 17th-century church here contains the purportedly miraculous Cross of Caravaca.

CARBERRY HILL (Scotland)

Hill in LOTHIAN region, E of EDINBURGH and 3 mi SE of MUSSELBURGH. Mary, Queen of Scots, was forced to surrender to rebel barons here on June 15, 1567, after she had married Bothwell, the suspected murderer of her former husband, Darnley. She was imprisoned in Lochleven Castle.

CARBILO See SAINT-NAZAIRE

CARCASSONNE [Ancient: Carcaso] (France)

City on the Aude River, 57 mi SE of TOULOUSE in Aude department. Occupied in the fifth century B.C. by Iberians, it was a Roman hilltop site in the first century B.C. It was fortified by Euric I, king of the Visigoths, in A.D. 485. The city was captured twice in the eighth century and fortified further by the viscounts of Carcassonne in the 12th century. It was captured by Simon de Montfort in 1209 during the Albigensian Crusade against the heretics of the region. On passing to Louis IX of France in 1247, it served as a frontier post that was considered to be impregnable until the border moved S in 1659. The remains of its medieval fortifications, restored by Viollet-le-Duc in the 19th century, are today among the finest in Europe.

CARCHEMISH [Roman: Europus] (Turkey)

Excavated ancient city, also a battleground, 35 mi SE of GAZIANTEP on the Syrian border and on the W bank of the EUPHRATES RIVER in Halab province. A city of the Mitanni kingdom in the second millennium B.C., it was established as a buffer state between 1375 and 1335 B.C. by the Hittite king Suppiluliumas. After the fall of the HITTITE EMPIRE it was the leading Neo-Hittite city-state in the area. In 716 B.C. it capitulated to Sargon II of ASSYRIA. Strategically situated, guarding a crossing point of the Euphrates, it was the site of a battle in 605 B.C. in which Nebuchadnezzar II of BABYLON defeated Necho II, thus destroying Egyptian power in Asia. Excavations have revealed evidence of settlement from the Neolithic Age. A citadel and richly decorated palace from Neo-Hittite and Assyrian periods have also been found. See also EGYPT.

CARDEDEU (Spain)

Town and battlefield, 18 mi NE of BARCELONA in Barcelona province. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars the French under General Laurent Gouvion-St.-Cyr defeated the Spanish under Captain-General Vives on December 16, 1808, and relieved Barcelona the next day.

CARDIFF [former: Cayrdyf, Kairdif, Keyrdyf; Welsh: Caerdydd] (Wales)

City and capital of Wales on the BRISTOL CHANNEL, 130 mi W of LONDON. The site of a Roman fort, it was not settled until the 11th century A.D. when a castle was built here by the Normans. This was partly destroyed in 1404 by Owen Glendower, the Welsh nationalist leader in the revolt against Henry IV. By 1903 Cardiff was the largest coal-exporting port in the world, but the coal trade declined during the 20th century. Severely damaged during World War II, it was made capital of Wales in 1955. Remains of the Roman fortification are visible outside Cardiff Castle. After years of economic decline and deindustrialization in the later 20th century, Cardiff saw major redevelopment in the 1990s in the Cardiff Bay project that rebuilt the waterfront, and is now a major administrative and business center as well as a center of Welsh culture. In 1996, the county of South Glamorgan was abolished, and Cardiff became administered as a unitary authority.

CARDIGAN [Welsh: Aberteifi] (Wales)

Town, 47 mi NW of SWANSEA near Cardigan Bay in DYFED. Cardigan grew up around a 12th-century castle built during an attempted Norman conquest. The Welsh were victorious over the Normans in 1135, however. Lord Rhys sponsored the first Welsh Eisteddfod, or bardic assembly, here in 1176, which was attended by 30,000 people. Ruins of many ancient castles are found here. A cannon taken in 1854 by Lord Cardigan during the Charge of the Light Brigade in the Crimean War stands in the town.

CARDSTON (Canada)

Town in ALBERTA, 40 mi SSW of LETHBRIDGE. Cardston was founded in the mid-19th century by Mormons from UTAH led by Charles Ora Card and is the site of the chief Canadian Mormon temple. See also SALT LAKE CITY.

CARENAGE BAY (Saint Lucia)

Bay and naval battlefield in NE Saint Lucia, WEST INDIES. During the American Revolution on December 13, 1778, a British landing force under Admiral Sir Samuel Barrington and Major-General Sir William Meadows defeated a French naval force under Admiral Comte d'Estaing here and consolidated their hold on the island. This gave Britain a valuable West Indian base for operations against the French.

CARENTAN (France)

Town in Manche department, 23 mi W of BAYEUX. It was a strategic point of the NORMANDY invasion in World War II. Its capture by U.S. troops after severe fighting from June 8 to 12, 1944, linked the UTAH and OMAHA beachheads.

CARIA (Turkey)

Ancient region of ASIA MINOR in the modern provinces of AYDIN and MUGLA, S of the Maeander River in SW Turkey. Settled in early times by Dorian and Ionic colonists, it passed in 546 B.C. from LYDIA to PERSIA and was a center of the Ionian revolt in 499 B.C. Caria was united under Mausolus as a satrapy of the Persian Empire from 377 to 353 B.C. Mausolus's tomb at HALICARNASSUS was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. It was conquered from the Persians by Alexander the Great in 334 B.C. and became part of the Roman province of ASIA in 129 B.C. See also CNIDUS, MILETUS.

CARIBBEAN SEA

Tropical sea bordered on the S by South America, on the W by Central America, and to the N and E by the WEST INDIES. Discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1493, the entire basin was claimed by SPAIN. The sea became a main route for Spanish expeditions and later for convoys bringing riches from the New World, notably from SANTO DOMINGO and HISPANIOLA. As such it was a hotbed of colonial rivalry and piracy. Many European rivals of Spain established colonies in the West Indies. The strategic importance of the Caribbean was increased in 1914 by the opening of the PANAMA CANAL. In World War II many ships were sunk here by German submarine attacks. The United States has many bases in the Caribbean, though U.S. influence in the area was severely strained by growing tensions owing to increased Soviet aid to Castro's CUBA, which in 1962 led to the Cuban missile crisis.

CARICAL See KARIKAL

CARINI (Italy)

Town and battleground in SICILY, 10 mi W of PALERMO in Palermo province. Sicilian revolutionaries were defeated here in 1860 by Bourbon forces.

CARINTHIA [ancient: Carantania; German: Kärnten] (Austria)

Province of Austria and former independent duchy bordering ITALY and SLOVENIA, with its capital at KLAGENFURT. In ancient times it was the center of the kingdom and Roman province of NORICUM. After the decline of the ROMAN EMPIRE, it was overrun by Germanic tribes and Slovenes. Attached to BAVARIA, then part of the FRANKISH EMPIRE in the eighth century A.D., it became an independent duchy in 976 and passed finally to the Hapsburgs in 1335. It became an Austrian Bundesland in 1918, with a part of the former region passing to YUGOSLAVIA. It was a district of the Nazi Greater GERMANY during the period 1938–45, during World War II.

CARISBROOKE (England)

Village and castle on the ISLE OF WIGHT, just WSW of NEWPORT. After his defeat in the Civil War, Charles I was imprisoned in Carisbrooke Castle from 1647 to 1648. He tried in vain to escape twice. The castle incorporates Roman, Norman, and 16th-century elements.

CARLISLE [ancient: Caer Luel, Karliol, Luguwallium] (England)

City on the Eden River in CUMBRIA, 8 mi S of the Scottish border. In Roman times it was a civilian settlement. The headquarters fort of HADRIAN'S WALL at Stanwix was nearby. Carlisle was destroyed in A.D. 875 by Norse invaders. King William II, Rufus, claimed it from the Scots in 1092, and under Henry I (1100–35) it assumed strategic importance as a strongpoint on the border with SCOTLAND. Its development was impeded by constant wars and border raids. Henry II finally took it for England in 1157. During the Civil War it was besieged by Parliamentarians from October 1644 until its surrender in June 1645. Of note are the castle, erected c. 1090 and subsequently further fortified; the cathedral, which contains a Norman nave; and a 14th-century guildhall.

CARLISLE (United States)

Town in PENNSYLVANIA, 19 mi W of HARRISBURG. During the colonial era Carlisle was the scene of continuous Indian conflict until 1753 when a treaty was negotiated by Benjamin Franklin. Fortified in 1756, it was used as a base in the French and Indian War and as a munitions depot during the American Revolution. It was Washington's headquarters in 1794 during the Whiskey Rebellion. The town was a station on the Underground Railroad before the Civil War, bringing escaped slaves through to the Northern states and CANADA. During the Civil War it was bombarded and occupied by Confederate troops under General Fitzhugh Lee in June and July 1863.

CARLOW [Gaelic: Ceatharlach] (Ireland)

Town in County Carlow on the Barrow River, 45 mi SW of DUBLIN. Of great strategic importance, it was once an Anglo-Norman stronghold. The walls were built in A.D. 1361, but the town was captured and burned in 1405 by Art MacMurrough, King of LEINSTER, and in 1577 by rebel leader Rory Og O'More. During the Civil War it was taken by Cromwell in 1650. In 1798 it was the scene of a bloody uprising of United Irishmen. There are remains of a towered castle of the early 13th century that was the first of this type in Ireland.

CARLOWITZ See SREMSKI KARLOVCI

CARLSBAD See KARLOVY VARY

CARLSRUHE See KARLSRUHE

CARMANA See Kermān

CARMARTHEN [ancient: Maridunum, Moridunum; Welsh: Caerfyrddin] (Wales)

Town, 22 mi NW of SWANSEA, on the Tywi River in DYFED. Strategically situated on a major river crossing, it was the site of Roman and Norman strongholds. During the Middle Ages it was one of the most important boroughs in Wales and an important wool port. The city was home of dramatist Sir Richard Steele until his death in 1729. The castle here fell to Cromwell during the Civil War. Traces of earthwork fortifications of that time survive.

CARMEL [Carmel-by-the-Sea] (United States)

Village in W CALIFORNIA on Carmel Bay, an arm of the Pacific Ocean, 3 mi SW of MONTEREY. The bay was discovered in 1602 by the expedition of Sebastian Vizcaino, a Spanish explorer, and named by Carmelite friars who were in the expedition. In 1770 Junipero Serra, a noted Spanish Franciscan missionary, founded a mission at nearby Monterey and named it San Carlos Borromeo. In 1771 Serra moved the mission to Carmel, which he made his headquarters for the rest of his life and where he is buried. Modern Carmel village was founded c. 1905 by a group of artists and has been a popular residence for writers and artists ever since. The author Jack London and the poet and dramatist

220 Carmel-by-the-Sea

Robinson Jeffers are among those who have resided in Carmel. The area is famed for its natural beauty and is much favored by tourists.

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA See CARMEL

CARMEL, CAPE (Israel)

Cape on the MEDITERRANEAN W of HAIFA. On May 18, 1799, during Napoleon's campaign in the Middle East, the British garrison of ACRE under Captain Sir Sidney Smith defeated a French fleet under Rear-Admiral Perrée off Cape Carmel. This victory destroyed Napoleon's chances of capturing Acre and forced him to retreat.

CARMEL, MOUNT [Hebrew: Ha-Karmel] (Israel)

Sacred mountain of Israel in modern Haifa province, S of HAIFA. Mentioned in Egyptian records of the 16th century B.C. as a holy mountain, it was the site of Elijah's confrontation with the false prophets of Baal recorded in the Bible. It was sacred to the early Christians and gives its name to the Carmelites, a Roman Catholic order of monks, founded in A.D. 1156, whose monastery is near the traditional site of Elijah's miracle. The monastery was used by Napoleon as a military hospital during his Middle East campaign. Human remains found in caves here have provided important links between Neanderthal man and Homo sapiens. See also CAPE CARMEL.

CARMO See CARMONA

CARMONA [ancient: Carmo; former: Karmuna] (Spain)

Ancient town of Seville province, 18 mi ENE of SEVILLE, in ANDALUSIA. Carmo was the strongest town of the Roman province of HISPANIA ULTERIOR. It was captured from the Moors in A.D. 1247 after a lengthy siege, by Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE. Roman walls and other fortifications are visible in the town, and a necropolis is nearby.

CARNAC (France)

Village and prehistoric site on Quiberon Bay, 16 mi WSW of VANNES, in Morbihan department in BRIT-TANY. It is the site of numerous megalithic monuments dating from early Neolithic times, the most remarkable of which are the long avenues of menhirs, or standing stones, apparently erected for an astronomical or religious purpose. The remains of a Gallo-Roman town are nearby.

CARNATIC See KARNATAKA

CARNIOLA [Croatian: Kranj; German: Krain] (Slovenia)

Region NE of the head of the Adriatic Sea around LJUBLJANA in Slovenia. Part of the Roman province of PANNONIA, it was occupied in the sixth century A.D. by Slovenes and passed to the Hapsburgs in 1335. It remained under AUSTRIA until 1918 except for a period during 1809–13, when it was ceded to Napoleon and incorporated into the ILLYRIAN PROVINCES. It was a hotbed of Slovene nationalism and in 1848 the scene of an attempt to establish an independent Slovenian kingdom. See also CARINTHIA.

CARNUNTUM (Austria)

Ancient Roman camp of PANNONIA province on the DANUBE RIVER, 20 mi E of VIENNA in the modern province of Lower Austria, near PETRONELL. Originally Celtic, it became the most important Roman legionary camp of the upper Danube. It was Tiberius's base in A.D. 6 for his attacks on the Marcomanni. From here traders left on the amber route until the end of the first century. It was used as a base for further campaigns against the Marcomanni from 171 to 173 by Marcus Aurelius. The Germans eventually destroyed the camp c. 400, although a civilian settlement later developed.

CAROLINA (United States)

Early colony comprising all the land between the 31st and 36th parallels, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. This territory was granted to eight lords proprietors in 1663 by Charles II of England. Due to their failure to defend the territory in the Tuscarora and Yamasee Wars of 1711–12 and 1715–16, the charter was abrogated and separate royal governments established in NORTH CAROLINA and SOUTH CAROLINA.

CAROLINE ISLANDS [Carolines] (Micronesia)

Archipelago in the W Pacific Ocean just N of the equator. Numbering between 550 and 680, the islands are generally uninhabited, though ruins indicate that humans lived here many centuries ago. By the seventh century A.D. there was commerce between the islands and China. They were annexed by Spain in 1686 but only colonized in the 19th century. Following the Spanish-American War the islands were purchased by Germany in 1899 but were seized in 1914 by the Japanese who fortified them during World War II. They became U.S. trust territories in 1947, and became part of the Federated States of Micronesia in 1979.

CAROLINES See CAROLINE ISLANDS

CAROLINGIAN EMPIRE See FRANKISH EMPIRE

CAROLOPOLIS See CHARLEVILLE-MÉZIÈRES

CARPATES See CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS

CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS [Carpathians] [ancient: Carpates; Romanian: Carpatii; Ukrainian: Karpatyi (Slovakia, Poland, Romania, Ukraine, Moldova)]

Mountain range running along the Slovak-Polish border, then S through the Ukraine into E Romania. Approximately 930 mi long, they are the source of the VISTULA and DNIESTER Rivers and were first charted in the 19th century. The Romanian part belonged to the Roman province of DACIA. In the 12th century A.D. Saxons developed the first farming regions in the richest parts, and settlements sprung up as the crusaders passed through. Germans and Hungarians moved in the wake of Hapsburg imperialism, but the general area has remained sparsely populated. Their topography made the mountains a place of refuge during wars, and here many battles took place during both world wars.

CARPATHIANS See CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS

CARPATHOS See KARPATHOS

CARPATHUS See KARPATHOS

CARPATH See CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS

CARPATH MERIDIONALIS See TRANSYLVANIAN ALPS

CARPENISI See KARPENISIÓN

CARPENTORACTE See CARPENTRAS

CARPENTRAS [ancient: Carpentoracte] (France)

City 12 mi NE of AVIGNON in the Vaucluse department. It was occupied by the Romans, who built a triumphal arch that still stands today. The city was an episcopal see from the third century A.D. until the French Revolution and was a center of heresy in the late Middle Ages. The conclave that elected Pope John XXII met here during the period 1314–16. It was capital of COMTAT-VENAISSIN from 1229 to 1791.

CARRAE See HARAN

CARRARA [ancient: Apuania] (Italy)

City on the Carrione River 13 mi ESE of LA SPEZIA in Massa-Carrara province, TUSCANY region. The most important center of the Italian marble industry, it was the center of the principality and, after 1633, of the duchy of Massa-Carrara. There is a noteworthy 12th-century cathedral here. See also MASSA.

CARRICKFERGUS (Northern Ireland)

Town and port in Carrickfergus district on Belfast Lough, 9 mi NE of BELFAST. Site of a strategically positioned Norman castle, it was captured in A.D. 1315 by Edward Bruce of SCOTLAND. During the Civil War it was a place of refuge for the Protestants of ANTRIM after 1641. In 1689, while held by partisans of James II of England, it was captured by the duke of Schomberg during William of Orange's ULSTER Campaign. It was briefly held by French troops in 1760. The castle is well preserved.

CARRIZAL (Mexico)

Village and battlefield in CHIHUAHUA state 85 mi S of CIUDAD JUÁREZ. In a skirmish here on June 21, 1916, Mexican government troops defeated an American expeditionary force under John J. Pershing. Pershing was pursuing Pancho Villa into Mexico following the revolutionary's attacks on Americans.

CARROWMORE See SLIGO

CARSO See KRAS

CARSON CITY (United States)

City and capital of NEVADA, 30 mi S of RENO near Lake Tahoe. Founded in 1858 and named for the pioneer Kit Carson, it became capital of Nevada in 1864.

222 Cartagena

It was soon settled by Mormons. On the wagon trail to California, its economy was stimulated by the discovery of silver nearby in 1859. A mint operated here from 1870 until 1893. In 1969 Carson City merged with Ormsby County to form one municipality of 146 square miles. See also COMSTOCK, VIRGINIA CITY.

CARTAGENA [former: Cartagena de Indias] (Colombia)
City and port on the NW coast of Colombia in Bolívar province 60 mi SW of BARRANQUILLA. Founded in 1533, it became one of the most important cities of Spanish America, especially in the shipping of gold to Spain and as a major slave market. Increasingly fortified in the 16th century, it fended off privateers, including Sir Francis Drake. In 1697 it was almost destroyed during a three-week siege by the French. Declaring itself independent of SPAIN in 1811, it was the scene of fighting until Bolívar captured the city in 1821.

CARTAGENA [Carthagera] [ancient: Carthago Nova, Colonia Victrix Julia Nova Carthago] (Spain)
City, port, and naval base on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 28 mi ESE of MURCIA, in Murcia province. Founded in the third century B.C. by the Carthaginian general Hasdrubal, it was captured in 209 B.C. by the Romans under Publius Cornelius Scipio during the Second Punic War. The Goths sacked it in A.D. 425, and it was successively occupied by Byzantines, Visigoths, and Moors until James I of ARAGON took it in 1269. A great naval port in the 16th century, it was sacked by Sir Francis Drake in 1585. In the rebellion of 1874 it was bombarded and occupied by government forces. During the Spanish civil war it was a Loyalist naval base from 1936 to 1939. See also CARTHAGE, ROME, BYZANTINE EMPIRE.

CARTAGENA DE INDIAS See CARTAGENA (Colombia)

CARTAGO (Costa Rica)
City, and capital of Cartago province 14 mi SE of SAN JOSÉ. Founded in 1563, it was capital of Costa Rica until 1823. During the 17th century it suffered frequent pirate attacks, earthquakes, and a volcanic eruption. The region is known for its rich ecological diversity and rain forests, and is also home of the Costa Rica Institute of Technology, one of Central America's most prestigious schools.

CARTAGO See CARTHAGE (Tunisia)

CARTEIA (Spain)

Ancient town and port on the S coast of Spain, W of GIBRALTAR in Cadiz province. Founded originally by Phoenicians, it was colonized by Roman veterans in 170 B.C. See ROME.

CARTERET (France)

Village and battlefield on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 20 mi SW of CHERBOURG in the Manche department. The capture of Carteret by U.S. forces during the NORMANDY campaign of World War II on June 17, 1944, cut off the Germans in the Cherbourg area. See also COTENTIN PENINSULA.

CARTHAGE [ancient: Carthago, Karchedon, KartHadasht, Qarthadasht] (Tunisia)

Ancient city and state on the Gulf of Tunis, just outside modern TUNIS. Traditionally founded in 814 B.C. by the Phoenicians of TYRE, Carthage began a program of conquest in the sixth century B.C., capturing SARDINIA, MALTA, and the BALEARIC ISLANDS. In SICILY, however, the Carthaginians under Hamilcar were defeated in 480 B.C. by Gelon, the tyrant of Greek SYRACUSE. From the mid-third century B.C. Carthage was at war with ROME in the 100 year struggle called the Punic Wars. Under Hasdrubal it conquered SPAIN, and under Hannibal it devastated much of Italy itself until defeated by Scipio at ZAMA. Carthage was totally destroyed by Rome in 146 B.C. following the Third Punic War, but in 44 B.C. was the site of a new Roman city that became an important administrative center. It was capital of the Vandals from A.D. 439 to 533, and although destroyed by the Arabs in 698 it was inhabited for many centuries thereafter. At the height of its power, Carthage was one of the most famous cities of antiquity, enjoying an extremely high standard of cultural life. Ancient tombs, traces of a Roman aqueduct, temples, and sculpture survive.

CARTHAGE (United States)

City and battlefield in MISSOURI on the Spring River, 13 mi NE of JOPLIN. Established in 1842, it was a center of border warfare during the Civil War and was completely destroyed in 1863 by Confederate raiders. It was rebuilt shortly after the war.

CARTHAGENA See CARTAGENA, SPAIN

CARTHAGO NOVA See CARTAGENA (Spain)

CASABLANCA [Arabic: Dar el Beida; former: Anfa] (Morocco)

City and port, 180 mi SW of TANGIER on the Atlantic Ocean, in Casablanca province, NW Morocco. Built on the site of Anfa, a town destroyed by the Portuguese in A.D. 1468, it was briefly settled in 1515 and fully rebuilt in 1757 by Muhammad XVI. Large-scale development of the town went ahead under French occupation in the early 20th century. During World War II Casablanca was the scene of one of the three major Allied landings in North Africa in November 1942. President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met here from January 14 to 26, 1943, and determined that peace could only follow Germany's unconditional surrender. The city has one of the world's largest artificial ports and is the site of the Mosque of Hassan II, the world's second-largest mosque with the world's tallest minaret (210 meters).

CASA GRANDE NATIONAL MONUMENT (United States)

Prehistoric site, 45 mi SE of PHOENIX, in S ARIZONA. A massive, four-story building of adobe constructed in the 14th century A.D., Casa Grande is only the largest and best-preserved of a number of such monuments from the Classic Hohokam Indian culture in Arizona, which from the 12th to the 15th centuries attained a remarkably complex and sophisticated level of culture.

CASALE MONFERRATO [former: Bodincomagus] (Italy)

Town on the PO RIVER, 18 mi NNW of ALESSANDRIA, in Alessandria province, PIEDMONT region, N Italy. Founded in the eighth century A.D. on the site of ancient Bodincomagus, it became capital of the marquisate of Montferrat in 1435. It changed hands many times between MANTUA, SAVOY, FRANCE, and Piedmont until it became part of the Kingdom of Italy in 1860. The Romanesque cathedral and 15th-century fortification here are of interest.

CASALMAGGIORE (Italy)

Town and battleground on the PO RIVER in Cremona province, LOMBARDY region, 22 mi ESE of CREMONA, N Italy. The Venetians were defeated here in 1448 by Francesco Sforza. See also VENICE.

CASAL NOVO (Portugal)

Village and battlefield just S of COIMBRA in Beira Litoral province, central Portugal. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars an indecisive engagement was fought here on March 14, 1811, between the rearguard of Marshal Ney's French army and the vanguard of Wellington's British army. The French, however, were forced to relinquish Casal Novo. See also CONDEIXA.

CASAS GRANDES (Mexico)

Town, 130 mi SW of CIUDAD JUÁREZ in CHIHUAHUA province, N Mexico. Settled by the Spanish in 1662, it is near and named for the ruins of a large pre-Columbian town that was founded c. A.D. 1050 and burned in 1340. Some of the unearthed houses date from c. 700. The ruins were named Paquimé by the 16th-century explorer Francisco de Ibarra.

CASCINA (Italy)

Town and battleground on the ARNO RIVER 8 mi ESE of PISA in Pisa province, TUSCANY region, NW central Italy. Cascina was sacked in A.D. 1364 by the Florentines following their defeat of the Pisans during the long struggle between the Ghibellines and the Guelphs.

CASEROS (Argentina)

Suburb and battlefield just W of BUENOS AIRES, E central Argentina. On February 3, 1852, the Argentinian dictator Juan Manuel de Rosas was defeated here and driven into exile by the forces of BRAZIL and several Argentinian provinces.

CASERTA [former: Caserta Vecchia, La Torre] (Italy)

City and capital of Caserta province, 16 mi NNE of NAPLES, CAMPANIA region. Founded in the ninth century by Lombards, it was Giuseppe Garibaldi's headquarters in 1860 and the scene of the battle of the VOLTURNO in which he defeated the Neapolitan army. An Allied headquarters during World War II, it was here that the German army in Italy surrendered on April 29, 1945. A 12th-century cathedral is here, and an 18th-century cathedral palace built by Charles III of Spain, which has been often likened to VERSAILLES.

CASERTA VECCHIA See CASERTA

CASHEL [Gaelic: Caiseal Mumhan] (Ireland)

Town in County Tipperary 12 mi ENE of TIPPERARY. Cashel was the stronghold of the kings of MUNSTER from the fourth century A.D., used in repulsing Scandinavian invaders. It was made a bishopric in 450 by St. Patrick. In 1171 the king of Munster submitted to Henry II of England here. The Rock of Cashel is the site of ruined fortifications, an ancient monument where coronations took place, St. Patrick's Cathedral, a round tower, and castle. Below are a Cistercian abbey from 1272 and a 13th-century Dominican church.

CASILINUM See CAPUA

CASINUM See CASSINO

CASLAV See CZASLAW

CASLE See KASSEL

CASPE (Spain)

Town in Saragossa province on the EBRO RIVER, 55 mi SE of SARAGOSSA, NE Spain. In A.D. 1412 the Spanish Cortes here decided the Compromise of Caspe, which settled the problem of Aragonese succession by placing Prince Ferdinand of LEÓN and CASTILE on the throne. Caspe was the scene of heavy fighting during the Spanish civil war from 1936 to 1938. See also ARAGON.

CASPER [former: Fort Caspar] (United States)

City in E central WYOMING, approximately 140 mi NW of CHEYENNE. In 1847 the Mormons established a ferry here at a fording place in the North Platte River. The ferry was in use until a bridge was built in the 1850s. The city was founded in 1888 and named after a soldier who died saving pioneers from Indian attack nearby. At the same time the railroad came through. Two years later oil was discovered, and Casper has been a boom town several times since then, especially after another discovery of oil in 1948 and in the 1970s as a result of the energy crisis. The original Fort Caspar has been restored.

CASPIAN GATES See DERBENT

CASPIAN SEA (Russia, Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, Iran)

Largest lake in the world and lowest place on the European Continent, the Caspian Sea is a crossroads of Europe and Asia. The VOLGA RIVER drains into its delta at the northern end of the Caspian at ASTRAKHAN. A site of early Sythian and Sarmatian peoples, the Caspian region was home to many of the peoples that eventually overran the ROMAN EMPIRE. A powerful Islamic empire here was completely destroyed by the MONGOL EMPIRE. Held by the GOLDEN HORDE, the Caspian region was later an area of conflict between Russia and Persia. Conquered by Russia except for the southern coast, the Caspian became a center of oil production for the Soviet Union in the 20th century. With the fall of the Soviet Empire, the Caspian has become a major flashpoint for global geopolitics with its large untapped reserves of oil and natural gas and its political mix of post-Soviet democracy, strongman rule, and Islamic opposition movements. The Caspian also is facing an environmental crisis with shrinking shorelines, salinization, and industrial pollution.

CASSANDREIA See POTIDAEA

CASSANO D'ADDA (Italy)

Town and battleground on the Adda River, 16 mi E of MILAN, in Milan province, LOMBARDY region, N Italy. This was the scene of a battle in A.D. 1259 in which the Guelphs defeated the Ghibellines. During the War of the Spanish Succession, on August 16, 1705, the French under the duke of Vendôme defeated the Austrians under Eugene of SAVOY here. A battle was fought at Cassano during the French Revolutionary Wars on April 27, 1799, in which the Austro-Russian forces under Marshal Aleksander Suvarov defeated the French under General Jean Moreau before taking Milan.

CASSEL (France)

Village and battle site in the Nord department, 11 mi ENE of SAINT-OMER, N France. Situated on a hill dominating the Flanders plain, Cassel was a Roman stronghold and the old capital of Maritime Flanders. The French under Philip were victorious here in 1328 during a campaign against FLANDERS. In 1677, during the Dutch Wars, the French defeated William of Orange here. During World War I, Cassel was Marshal Ferdinand Foch's headquarters from 1914 to 1915.

CASSEL (Germany) See KASSEL

CASSIAN WAY [ancient: Via Cassia] (Italy)

Ancient Roman road that ran from ROME to FLOR-ENCE. It was linked by an extension to the AURELIAN WAY near LUNA.

CASSINO [ancient: Casinum, Castel San Pietro, Castrum Casinum; former: Eulogomenopolis, San Germano] (Italy)

Town, monastery, and battleground in Frosinone province, LATIUM region 28 mi ESE of FROSINONE. An ancient town of the Volsci in the fifth century B.C., it passed to ROME in 312 B.C. The Benedictine monastery of MONTE CASSINO was established in A.D. 529 by St. Benedict of Nursia during the Middle Ages and became an outstanding center of arts and learning. A castle built in the ninth century was besieged and taken by the Sicilians in 1139 and later destroyed by the French. A peace treaty between Pope Gregory IX and the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II was signed here in 1230.

During the Napoleonic Wars the French under Joachim Murat were defeated here by the Austrians on March 16, 1815. During World War II the monastery, strategically placed on a hill labelled Hill 516 formed part of the German Gustav Line that barred the Allied road to Rome. It was the scene of heavy fighting from February to May 1944. During this battle both town and monastery were destroyed, though they have since been restored.

The abbey had been destroyed on three previous occasions: c. 580 by the Lombards, c. 885 by the Arabs, and in 1349 by an earthquake. A library of priceless manuscripts, the tomb of St. Benedict, and the original tower survive. Of the ancient Roman citadel an amphitheater and tombs remain.

CASTALLA (Spain)

City and battlefield in Alicante province in the SW, 13 mi SW of ALCOY. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars on July 21, 1812, the Spanish under General Joseph O'Donnell were defeated here by the French under Colonel Delort. This disaster put the Murcian army out of action for many months. On April 13, 1813, the Allies under Lieutenant-General Sir John Murray defeated the French under Marshal Suchet here, thus preventing Suchet from interfering with Wellington's spring offensive. Of historic interest are the 11th-century walled castle, a 16th-century Catholic church, and the 17th-century town hall.

CASTAMON See KASTAMONU

CASTELFIDARDO (Italy)

Town and battlefield 11 mi S of ANCONA in Ancona province, E central Italy. During the struggle for the unification of Italy the Piedmontese under General Enrico Cialdini here defeated the papal forces under General Christophe Lamoricière on September 18, 1860, before marching S to link up with Garibaldi. See also GAETA.

CASTEL GANDOLFO (Italy)

Town and summer residence of the pope on Lake Albano, 13 mi SE of ROME, in Rome province, Latium region. The papal palace at Castel Gandolfo was begun by Urban VIII in the 17th century and as part of the VATICAN State enjoys extraterritorial privileges. Opposite the palace is the church of St. Thomas of Villanova designed in the 17th century by Bernini.

CASTELLAMARE DI STABIA [ancient: Stabiae] (Italy)

Ancient town of CAMPANIA and port 16 mi SE of NAPLES, on the coast at the E extremity of the Bay of Naples. Joining the revolt against ROME in the Social War of 90 B.C., it was taken and sacked by Sulla in 89 B.C. Later it became a region of luxurious villas of the rich. It was destroyed by the eruption of Vesuvius in A.D. 79 that buried HERCULANEUM and POMPEII. In 553 A.D. it was the scene of a battle between the Byzantine general Narses and the Goth Teias that ended Ostrogoth domination of Italy. During the French Revolutionary Wars the British and Neapolitans were defeated here by the French in 1799.

CASTELLÓN DE LA PLANA (Spain)

City and capital of Castellón de la Plana province, 40 mi NNE of VALENCIA near the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. It was captured from the Moors by James I of ARAGON in 1233. It became capital of the province in 1833.

CASTELNAUDARY (France)

Town and battlefield of Aude department, 22 mi WNW of CARCASSONNE, in S France. Louis XIII defeated the rebel duke of Montmorency and Gaston d'Orléans here on September 1, 1632.

CASTELO BRANCO (Portugal)

City near the Spanish border in Beira Beixa province, 120 mi NE of LISBON, E central Portugal. Built in A.D. 1209 by the Knights Templars as a frontier post, it suffered frequent attack. In 1807 during the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars it was ravaged by French troops.

CASTEL SAN GIOVANNI (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Piacenza province, 15 mi W of PIACENZA, N Italy. During the French Revolutionary Wars the Austrians and Russians defeated the French here in 1799.

CASTIGLIONE DELLE STIVIERE (Italy)

Town and battleground in Mantua province, 22 mi NW of MANTUA in SE LOMBARDY, N Italy. During the French Revolutionary Wars, on August 5, 1796, the French under Napoleon defeated the Austrians under von Wurmser here two days after the Austrian capture of the town. After having lost more than 15,000 men in a week's time, Wurmser retreated to the Tirol. See also BRESCIA.

CASTILE [Spanish: Castilla] (Spain)

Ancient kingdom of central and N central Spain with its capital at BURGOS. The counties of Castile were united in the 10th century A.D. by Fernán Gonzalez under the kings of LEÓN. They enjoyed a certain autonomy and in the 11th century began to expand into Moorish territory. They eventually absorbed the kingdom of TOLEDO. Castile fell to Sancho III the Great of NAVARRE in 1029 but later came under the kings of León again. Castile established hegemony over León in 1188 under Alfonso VIII and the two crowns were united in 1230 under Ferdinand III, thus presenting a united front against the Moors. By the mid-13th century Castile had conquered as far south as ANDALUSIA and consequently became identified with the whole of Spain. The completion of the creation of modern Spain was completed by 1512 after Castile had annexed part of Navarre and had been united with ARAGON.

CASTILLA See CASTILECASTILLEJA DE LA CUESTA (Spain)

Town in Seville province, 3 mi W of SEVILLE, SW Spain. It was built on the site of an ancient Iberian-Roman town, whose ruins remain. Hernán Cortés, the conquistador, died here in 1547.

CASTILLEJOS (Morocco)

Town and battlefield in Yebala province on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 4 mi SSW of CEUTA, N Morocco. During the Spanish-Moroccan War, on January 1, 1860, the Spanish under General Don Juan Prim defeated the Moors here and opened the road to TETOUAN.

CASTILLO DE SAN MARCOS See ST. AUGUSTINECASTILLON [Castillon-la-Bataille] [former: Castillon-et-Capitourlan] (France)

Town and battleground on the DORDOGNE River, 26 mi E of BORDEAUX, in the Gironde department, SW France. The last battle of the Hundred Years' War was fought here on July 17, 1453, when the English under the earl of SHREWSBURY attacked the French besiegers of Castillon under Jean Bureau and were badly defeated. This was largely owing to the superior use of cannon by the French. Since GASCONY, which had been a fief of the English Crown, was now defenseless, it took only the fall of Bordeaux to end the war.

CASTILLON-ET-CAPITOURLAN See CASTILLONCASTILLON-LA-BATAILLE See CASTILLONCASTINE (United States)

Town in SE MAINE on PENOBSCOT BAY, 35 mi S of BANGOR. One of Maine's oldest towns, it changed hands many times between the French, British, Dutch, and Americans. It was held by Great Britain during the Revolution and the War of 1812.

CASTLEBAR [Gaelic: Caisleán an Bharraigh] (Ireland)

Town and battleground in County Mayo, 140 mi WNW of DUBLIN on Castlebar Lough, W Ireland. At the start of the Irish War in 1641, the English under Sir Henry Bingham surrendered here to the Irish Confederates under the earl of MAYO. In 1798, during the French Revolutionary Wars, French and Irish forces under General J.R.M. Humbert defeated the British militia here. A Norman castle here is of historic interest.

CASTLE BOLTON (England)

Village in North YORKSHIRE, 21 mi SW of DARLINGTON. Mary, Queen of Scots, was imprisoned in the 14th-century castle here from 1568 to 1569.

CASTLEDERMOT [Gaelic: Disearc Diarmada] (Ireland)

Town in County Kildare, 6 mi NE of CARLOW. The ancient residence of the kings of LEINSTER, it was the site of a monastery founded c. 800 by St. Diarmuid. Edward Bruce, king of Ireland, was defeated here in 1316 by Sir Edmund Butler. A parliament was held here in 1499.

CASTLE HILL (Italy)

A battle site in Frosinone province, LATIUM region, 28 mi ESE of Frosinone and not far from the monastery of MONTE CASSINO, S central Italy. The hill, along with the nearby monastery, was held by the Germans in World War II. Known as Hill 193, it was captured by British and Indian troops between March 15 and 20, 1944, during the close-fought advance of the Allies up the Italian Peninsula. See also CASSINO.

CASTLE PINCKNEY NATIONAL MONUMENT

(United States)

Fortification on an island in CHARLESTON harbor, SOUTH CAROLINA. Built in 1797 in anticipation of war with France, it was held by the Confederates in the Civil War until 1865 and became a national monument in 1924.

CASTLETON OF BRAEMAR See BRAEMAR

CASTLETOWN (England)

Town on the ISLE OF MAN, 9 mi SW of DOUGLAS on Castletown Bay. Castle Rushen, a fortress in the middle of the town, was reputedly built here in the 10th century A.D. by Godred the Dane, but it is more likely 14th-century work. It was the residence of the lords of Man until the 18th century. Castletown was the seat of the Manx parliament until 1862, when it was transferred to Douglas.

CASTLE WILLIAM See GOVERNOR ISLAND (New York)

CASTRA ALAMANNORUM See TÜBINGEN

CASTRA ALBIENSIIUM See CASTRES

CASTRA BATAVA See PASSAU

CASTRA BONNENSIA See BONN

CASTRA CAECILIA See CACERES

CASTRA DEVANA See CHESTER

CASTRA LEGIONIS See CAERLEON

CASTRA REGINA See REGENSBURG

CASTRES [ancient: Castra Albiensium] (France)

City and site of a Roman camp in Tarn department, 24 mi S of ALBI on the River Agout, S France. Site of a Gallo-Roman camp, it arose in the seventh century with the founding of a Benedictine monastery. During the Reformation in the 16th century it became what historians have called a Protestant republic. It was conquered and subdued in 1629 by Louis XIII. Under Louis XIV it flourished with the founding of the Academy of Castres in 1648 and revived commerce in wool and fur. Many buildings from his time remain.

CASTRICUM [Kastrikum] (Netherlands)

Village in NORTH HOLLAND province, 16 mi NW of AMSTERDAM. During the French Revolutionary Wars the French defeated the British here in 1799.

CASTRIES See SAINT LUCIA

CASTRIMOENIUM See MARINO

CASTROGIOVANNI See ENNA

CASTRO URDIALES (Spain)

Port and ancient town on the BAY OF BISCAY, 30 mi ESE of Santander in N Santander province, N Spain.

228 Castrum Ad Confluentes

The site of an ancient Roman colony, it was an active port during the Middle Ages for trade with FLANDERS. It was destroyed during the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars in 1813 by the French but has since been rebuilt.

CASTRUM AD CONFLUENTES See KOBLENZ

CASTRUM CASINUM See CASSINO

CASTRUM PALENDARA See CRAIOVA

CASTRUM TEMESIENSIS See TIMIȘOARA

CASTUA See KASTAV

CASTULO [modern: Cazlona] (Spain)

Town and battlefield on the GUADALQUIVIR RIVER, 2 mi N of LINARES in JAÉN province and ANDALUSIA region, S Spain. An important town under the Romans because of the nearby silver and lead mines, it was the scene of a battle in 208 B.C. during the Second Punic War when the Romans under Scipio Africanus defeated the Carthaginians.

CAT See CAITHNESS

CATABATHMUS MAGNA See SALÛM

CATALAUNIAN PLAINS [ancient: Campi Catalauni] (France)

Battlefield N of TROYES, in Aube department of CHAMPAGNE, central France. In A.D. 451 the Romans and Visigoths under Aetius defeated the Huns under Attila here, thus putting a stop to the destruction of GAUL.

ÇATALCA [Chatalja] (Turkey)

Town in European Turkey 20 mi W of ISTANBUL in Istanbul province. During the First Balkan War the Turks made their final stand here against the Bulgarian advance on Istanbul in November 1912.

ÇATAL HÜYÜK (Turkey)

Neolithic site near ÇUMRA in Anatolia, Konya province, W central Turkey. It is the largest Neolithic site in the Middle East and proves that in Neolithic times Anatolia was the center of an advanced agricultural civilization. Excavated houses date from between 6700 to 5650 B.C. Religious wall paintings, personal decorative objects, and hunting implements are among the finds.

CATALONIA [Spanish: Cataluña, Catalunya] (Spain)

Region in NE Spain that includes the modern provinces of BARCELONA, LÉRIDA, GERONA, and TARRAGONA. Settled by Phoenicians, Greeks, and Romans, it was occupied by Goths in the fifth century A.D. and fell to the Moors in 712. Charlemagne conquered Catalonia in 795, and it became an independent Frankish duchy in the ninth century with its capital at Barcelona. United with ARAGON in 1137, it held territory N of the PYRENEES in the 13th and 14th centuries and enjoyed a monopoly of trade in the western Mediterranean. Catalonia's importance declined following the unification of Spain under CASTILE in 1469. A separatist movement broke out in the 17th century when Catalonia engaged the protection of the French king Louis XIII, but the region was completely subjugated by Spain under Philip V in 1714. Separatist movements continued to flourish in the 19th century, however, and a Catalan republic was proclaimed in 1931. This was suppressed after Francisco Franco's victory in the Spanish civil war, and Catalonia then became the center of opposition to Franco's regime. After the adoption of a democratic constitution in Spain in 1978, Catalonia recovered its autonomous status in 1980 with the election of its first parliament, and the Catalan nationalist movement has become a force in both Catalan and Spanish national elections.

CATALUÑA See CATALONIA

CATALUNYA See CATALONIA

CATANA See CATANIA

CATANIA [ancient: Aetna, Catana, Catina] (Italy)

City, port, and capital of Catania province, on the E coast of SICILY, 100 mi SE of PALERMO, at the foot of MT. ETNA. Founded in 729 B.C. by Greek Chalcidians 50 mi N of its present site, it was conquered in the fifth century B.C. by Hieron I, tyrant of SYRACUSE, and renamed Aetna. It fell to Rome in 263 B.C. and was subsequently occupied by Byzantines, Arabs, and Normans. It was sacked twice by Swabian German emperors who ruled Sicily in the late Middle Ages. It suffered severe natural disasters in the 16th and 17th centuries, including an eruption of Etna and pirate raids. In 1676 the French under Duquesne defeated the Dutch and Spanish fleet off Catania. As a German defensive position in World War II, it suffered severe Allied attack in July and August 1943. Remains of numerous Greek and Roman structures and sculpture are here. The cathedral, with Norman elements incorporated into the 18th-century restoration, contains the tomb of the composer Vincenzo Bellini, who was born here.

CATANZARO [ancient: Catasarion] (Italy)

City and capital of Catanzaro province, 183 mi SE of NAPLES in CALABRIA. Strategically positioned on a hill overlooking the IONIAN SEA, it was founded in the 10th century A.D. by the Byzantines. It was captured in 1059 by the Norman Robert Guiscard and fell subsequently to the Saracens, Swiss, Normans, and Angevins. It resisted a four-month siege by the French in 1528 and was important in the Napoleonic Wars and in World War II. It was damaged by earthquakes in 1783 and 1908, but has since been rebuilt, though many historical churches and palaces were destroyed.

CATARAQUI See KINGSTON

CATASARION See CATANZARO

CATENNA See TÉNÈS

CATHAY [Chinese: Ch'i-tan, Khitan; Persian: Khitai] (China)

Cathay was the name by which China was known to medieval Europe and refers to northern China above the YANGZI RIVER. It was most widely introduced to Europe by Marco Polo, who visited China in the 13th century and described the culture of Cathay as superior to that of the West. After the closing of land routes in the 14th century, lack of European contact with the region led to confusion as to its location. Kitai is still the Russian name for China.

CATINA See CATANIA

CATOCTIN MOUNTAIN (United States)

Mountain in NW MARYLAND, an E prong of the Blue Ridge. Catoctin Mountain was the site of "Shangri-La," now CAMP DAVID, President Roosevelt's retreat and the scene of important conferences during World War II.

CATTARO See KOTOR

CATULLIACUM See SAINT-DENIS

CAUCASIA [Caucasus] [ancient: Colchis; Russian: Kavkaz] (Russia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Armenia)

Region between the BLACK SEA and the CASPIAN SEA that contains the CAUCASUS MOUNTAINS. Colchis figured in Greek legend as the land in which Jason sought the Golden Fleece. First mentioned in the first millennium B.C., it was originally colonized by Milesian Greeks and remained independent until conquered c. 100 B.C. by Mithridates of PONTUS. After the Roman conquest it was ruled by local imperially appointed kings until a movement toward independence led to the creation of the state of Lazica, long an object of conflict between the BYZANTINE EMPIRE and PERSIA. By the 10th century it was united with Georgia.

An ethnically mixed region, it came under Russian control in the 19th century after wars with TURKEY and Persia, though Russian influence was severely contested by the Muslims of Azerbaijan. The vast oil resources of Caucasia were of vital importance to the USSR in World War II, and a German offensive was launched against the region in July 1942. An initially successful German attack was driven back by a counteroffensive in January 1943. Following the collapse of the USSR, Caucasia has become the location of several secessionist movements and armed rebellions fighting for division into smaller ethnically based nations.

CAUCASIAN GATES See DARYAL PASS

CAUCASUS See CAUCASIA

CAUCASUS INDICUS See HINDU KUSH

CAUCASUS MOUNTAINS [Russian: Kavkazski Khrebet] (Russia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, Armenia)

Mountain range in CAUCASIA, running from the mouth of the Kuban River on the BLACK SEA SE to the Apsheron Peninsula on the CASPIAN SEA. These mountains are considered to be the southeastern boundary between Europe and Asia, separating Ciscaucasia from Transcaucasia. Rich in minerals, they were of strategic importance in World War II.

CAUDINE FORKS (Italy)

Mountain passes and battlefield of ancient SAMNIUM, on the road between CAPUA and BENEVENTO, near Montesarchio in modern Benevento province, Campania region. During the Second Samnite War, in 321 B.C., the Samnites under Gavius Pontius here routed the Romans under the consuls Spurius Postumius and T. Veturius Calvinus.

CAULONIA (Italy)

Ancient city of MAGNA GRAECIA 9 mi ENE of modern Caulonia, on Cape Stilo in REGGIO DI CALABRIA province, CALABRIA region, SW Italy. Established in the seventh century B.C. by the Greeks as an outpost of CROTONE, it grew to be of some importance. It was captured by Campanian troops during the invasion of Pyrrhus, king of EPIRUS (280–275 B.C.). It later submitted to Hannibal in 215 B.C. As an ally of Hannibal, it withstood a Roman siege in 209 B.C. during the Second Punic War. Greek fortifications and two temples have been unearthed. See also CARTHAGE.

CAVALLA See KAVALLA

CAVAN [Gaelic: Chabhain] (Ireland)

County and town in the N Republic of Ireland. The town is approximately 70 mi SW of BELFAST. The county was organized as part of the historic province of ULSTER in 1584 and was the center of power of the chieftains of the O'Neill family. The town grew up around a Franciscan monastery founded in 1300. It was burned in 1690 by supporters of William III of ENGLAND after his forces had defeated those of the deposed James II. In the 19th century, Cavan became an important railroad junction.

CAVITE [City of Cavite] (Philippines)

City, U.S. naval base, and former capital of Cavite province on LUZON, 8 mi from MANILA across Manila Bay. It was an old center of anti-Spanish activity during the colonial era. The Spanish fleet was defeated off Cavite on May 1, 1898, by a U.S. fleet under Admiral George Dewey in the battle of Manila Bay.

Cavite was the chief Asiatic naval base of the United States from 1898 to 1941. On December 10, 1941, it was virtually destroyed by Japan, which held it from January 2, 1942, to February 13, 1945. In 1971, the U.S. closed their naval base in Cavite, which the Philippine government then converted to a special Philippine military base. See also BATAAN Peninsula, CORREGIDOR.

CAVTAT [ancient: Epidaurus; German: Altragusa; Italian: Ragusavecchia; medieval: Civitas Vetus] (Croatia)

Village on the ADRIATIC SEA, 7 mi SE of DUBROVNIK, in S Croatia. It was an ancient Greek colony until it fell to the Romans. It was destroyed in the seventh century A.D. by the Avars. The inhabitants left the town and founded Dubrovnik, or Ragusa. The legendary birthplace of Asclepius, it has Roman remains.

CAWDOR [Calder] (Scotland)

Village and castle in HIGHLAND region, 12 mi ENE of INVERNESS. According to Shakespeare, Macbeth, the thane of Cawdor, murdered King Duncan I of Scotland here. The date was probably A.D. 1040. A castle of the 15th to 17th centuries is here. CULLODEN MOOR is in the area.

CAWNPORE See KANPUR

CAXAMARCA See CAJAMARCA

CAXIAS See DUQUE DE CAXIAS

CAYENNE [former: La Ravardière] (French Guiana)

Capital of French Guiana, on the NW coast of Cayenne Island at the mouth of the Cayenne River, on the Atlantic Ocean. Founded in 1643 by the French, it took its present name in 1777. In 1848 it became a center of French penal settlements and was known as the "city of the condemned." The prisons were closed in 1944.

CAYMAN ISLANDS [former: Las Tortugas]

Island group in the CARIBBEAN SEA, 200 mi NW of JAMAICA, comprising three islands. Discovered in 1503 by Christopher Columbus, the islands were passed to ENGLAND by the Treaty of Madrid in 1670 and were colonized by British from Jamaica in 1734. Today the islands are a dependency of Great Britain and are a center of offshore banking.

CAYO HUESO See KEY WEST

CAYRDYF See CARDIFF

CAZANE DEFILÉ [Kazán] (Romania, Serbia)

Narrow gorge on the DANUBE RIVER, in the TRANSYLVANIAN ALPS, just SW of ORSOVA, in W Romania and E Serbia. It was the scene of an Austrian victory over the Turks in 1892. Here is one of the most spectacular sights on the Danube.

CAZLONA See CASTULO

CEA See KEOS

CEANANNUS See KELLS

CEANANNUS MÓR See KELLS

CEANANNUS OSRAIGHE See KELLS

CEANN SÁLE See KINSALE

CEARÀ See FORTALEZA

CEASTER See CHESTER

CEATHARLACH See CARLOW

CEBENNA See CÉVENNES

CEBU [Filipino: Sugbu; former: San Miguel] (Philippines)

Port, city, and capital of Cebu province, 350 mi SE of MANILA on the E coast of Cebu Island. Already a thriving port before the arrival of Magellan on April 7, 1521, it was settled by the Spanish in 1565 under Miguel López de Legaspi and was capital of the Spanish Philippine possessions for six years. A center of resistance to both SPAIN and the UNITED STATES, it was later captured by JAPAN on April 18, 1942, and held as major base until March 27, 1945. It was recaptured after heavy bombing by the U.S. forces. The University of San Carlos here dates from 1595. MACTAN Island is off its coast.

ČECHY See BOHEMIA

CEDAR CREEK (United States)

Stream and battlefield in N VIRGINIA; it flows into the N fork of the Shenandoah River. On October 19, 1864, during the American Civil War, Union forces under General Philip Sheridan defeated the Confederates under General Jubal Early here. This victory broke the back of Confederate resistance in the SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

CEDAR MOUNTAIN (United States)

Battlefield in central VIRGINIA, 10 mi S of CULPEPPER. On August 9, 1862, during the American Civil War, the Confederates under General R.S. Ewell defeated Union forces under General Nathaniel Banks here shortly before the Second Battle of Bull Run. See also MANASSAS.

CEFALÚ [ancient: Cephaloedium] (Italy)

Port and town on the N coast of SICILY, 18 mi SE of PALERMO in Palermo province. Strategically placed on a high promontory overlooking the TYRRHENIAN SEA, it was an ally of the Carthaginian general Himilco c. 395 B.C. Conquered later by the Greek tyrants of SYRACUSE, it fell to ROME in 254 B.C. It was captured by the Moors in A.D. 858 and by the Normans at the end of the 11th century. An archaic temple dating from the eighth century B.C. and traces of a wall of the sixth century B.C. are visible here, as is a fine 12th-century cathedral.

CEGLÉD [Czegléd] (Hungary)

Town 42 mi SE of BUDAPEST, in Pest province, central Hungary. Cegléd was the scene of two famous speeches, the first in 1514 by the Hungarian revolutionary leader György Dózsa, the second in 1848, when Louis Kossuth presented his anti-Austrian program.

CELAENAE [modern: Dinar] (Turkey)

Fortress city of ancient PHRYGIA near the source of the Maeander River, 50 mi SSW of AFYONKARAHISAR, in Afyonkarahisar province. Celaenae was the starting point in 401 B.C. of the famous March of the Ten Thousand mercenary Greeks, led by Cyrus the Younger against his brother Artaxerxes, as described in Xenophon's ANABASIS. This ended in Cyrus's defeat and death at CUNAXA. It was conquered by Alexander the Great in 333 B.C. Subsequently its populace was relocated to the new commercial city of APAMEA CIBOTUS.

CELAYA (Mexico)

City and battlefield 45 mi SE of GUANAJUATO, in Guanajuato province, W central Mexico. Founded c. 1570, it figured in both 19th- and 20th-century revolutions. During the conflict following the Mexican Revolution of 1911, Alvaro Obregón defeated Pancho Villa here in April 1915 and forced him to retreat northward, leaving Mexico in control of Venustiano Carranza.

CELEBES See SULAWESI

CELETRUM See KASTORIA

CELJE [ancient: Claudia Celeia; German and Italian: Cilli] (Slovenia)

City in Slovenia, 38 mi ENE of LJUBLJANA, on the Savinja River. It was founded in the first century A.D. by the Emperor Claudius. The city was the seat of the powerful counts of Celje from 1333 to 1456 when the murder of Ulrich of Cilli ended both the line and 20 years of dispute over Hungarian rule between the Cillis and the Hapsburgs, and later, with Hungarian statesmen. It was part of STYRIA until 1918. World War II took a great toll on the city when many citizens were forced into the army and imprisoned in concentration camps.

CELLE [Zelle] (Germany)

City on the Aller River 22 mi NE of HANOVER in LOWER SAXONY. From 1378 to 1705 Celle was the residence of the dukes of BRAUNSCHWEIG-LÜNEBURG. The city was damaged in World War II, but was restored. It has a 13th-century ducal palace and the oldest princely theater in the country.

CELLES (Belgium)

Village and battlefield 8 mi E of DINANT in Namur province, SW Belgium. During World War II this was the farthest point reached by the German counteroffensive of December 1944 known as the Battle of the Bulge. It was recaptured by the Allies on December 26.

CELTIBERIA (Spain)

Ancient region of NE Spain between the EBRO and TAGUS Rivers. Occupied by people of Iberian and Celtic stock from the third century B.C., it submitted to ROME in 195 B.C. but was not completely subdued until Roman domination was enforced by Publius Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus after a difficult campaign in 133 B.C. It formed part of the Roman province of TARRACONENSIS, and it includes much of modern SORIA.

CEMETERY RIDGE (United States)

Battleground in S PENNSYLVANIA, S of GETTYSBURG. Cemetery Hill and Culps Hill, parts of Cemetery Ridge, a Union center, were the scene of fighting during the crucial American Civil War battle of Gettysburg. In the initial fighting on July 1 and 2, 1863, the Confederates were successful, but their attack on July 3 under General George Pickett against the southern part of the ridge at ROUND TOP, was pushed back, wiping out Pickett's division. Pickett's Charge has become a legendary event of the war.

CENCHREAE See CORINTH

CENOMANI See CREMONA

CENTORBI See CENTURIPE

CENTRAL AFRICAN EMPIRE See CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC [former: Ubangi-Shari, Central African Empire; French: République Centrafricaine]

A landlocked, isolated country located in the center of Africa, S of CHAD, and N of the DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO and the REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO. The country served as a crossroads for many migrations of Bantu peoples prior to the 19th century. During the mid- and late 19th-century France established a colonial presence in the region, named the territory Ubangi-Shari after its important rivers, and included it in FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA. French exploitation was desultory as the lack of transportation access severely limited Ubangi-Shari's value. It was frequently the scene of slave rebellions in this century.

In 1946 the people were granted French citizenship, and in 1958 the Central African Republic became a member of the French Community. Full independence followed in 1960 under the presidency of David Dacko. In 1966 a military coup gave power to Colonel Jean-Bédél Bokassa, and for the next 10 years he ruled with rigid authority. In 1976 he assumed the title of emperor and became even more brutal. A massacre of schoolchildren protesting government regulations led to Bokassa's overthrow in a bloodless coup in 1979. David Dacko then resumed the presidency of the country. Elections in 1993 saw the beginning of civilian government. A coup in 2003 saw a return to military government. See also FASHODA.

CENTRAL AMERICA

Name given to the land mass stretching from the S border of MEXICO to the N border of COLOMBIA, including, from N to S, the countries of BELIZE, GUATEMALA, EL SALVADOR, HONDURAS, NICARAGUA, COSTA RICA, and PANAMA. The Atlantic coast of Central America was explored in 1501 by Christopher Columbus and was settled around the Gulf of DARIEN in 1510. GRANADA and LEÓN were founded in 1523 by Córdoba. Alvarado conquered Guatemala and El Salvador in 1524. Except for Panama and CHIAPAS, the area was organized under the Spanish Captaincy General of Guatemala. Central America peacefully gained independence from SPAIN in 1821, and was part of a Mexican empire until 1823 when it was loosely united as the United Provinces of Central America. In 1839 it split into separate republics.

CENTRAL AMERICAN FEDERATION

Political union of five nations: COSTA RICA, EL SALVADOR, GUATEMALA, HONDURAS, and NICARAGUA. In 1821 all five won independence from Spain, under which they had been a captaincy general, and for a short time after that they were part of the Mexican Empire of Agustín de Iturbide. He was forced to abdicate in 1823, and the five lands formed the federation in 1825 with Manuel José Arce as the first president. It was a loose political union, one of the major achievements of which was to abolish slavery in Central America. In 1829 Francisco Morazán, a Honduran, overthrew Arce by force and moved the capital from Guatemala to Salvador. Conflict between conservatives and liberals and jealousies among the regions led to the dissolution of the federation in 1838 and the military defeat of Morazán in 1839 by Rafael Carrera of Guatemala. Morazán tried unsuccessfully in 1842 to reestablish the federation. Honduras, Nicaragua, and Salvador also failed in efforts to restore it. Justo Rufino Barrios, president of Guatemala, made a further attempt in 1885, and 10 years later José Santos Zelaya, president of Nicaragua, failed again to organize the federation with himself as head. These various efforts kept relations among the nations involved in turmoil and led to the Washington Conference of 1907 that established a Central American Court of Justice. During the period 1923–24, at a conference of Central American States in WASHINGTON, the UNITED STATES pressed for a new federation, but to no avail. See also MEXICO.

CENTRAL ASIA

Former division of the Russian Empire in W central Asia, comprising the former Soviet republics of UZBEKISTAN, TURKMENISTAN, TAJIKISTAN, KAZAKHSTAN, and KYRGYZSTAN. It was ruled before the 19th century by Muslim khanates and Turkmen tribes. The subjugation of the area by RUSSIA began in 1865 under Alexander II and was completed in 1881 at the battle of Geok-Tepe when the Turkmen tribes were defeated. The area was separated into its present divisions after the revolution and became independent nations in 1991.

CENTRAL CITY (United States)

Town in N central COLORADO, approximately 30 mi W of Denver. In its heyday in the 1860s and 1870s it was one of the liveliest and lustiest mining towns that the American West ever bred. Gold was discovered here in 1859, and within a year the town's population was approximately 15,000. The Teller House, exemplifying the utmost in hotel elegance of the era, was built in 1872. In 1878 the Opera House was opened and on its stage appeared such world-renowned figures as Sarah Bernhardt and Edwin Booth.

About this time, however, gold production began to fall off, and Central City eventually became not much more than a ghost town. In 1932 restoration began, and today there is a summer music and stage festival in the old Opera House. The Teller House has been refurbished, and tourists come by the thousands to buy souvenirs, including gold dust.

234 Central Park

CENTRAL PARK (United States)

Public park in central MANHATTAN, NEW YORK CITY. One of the first public parks in the United States, it was also one of the first large parks in the world to be developed as landscape architecture. Work on the park was started in 1857 from a plan by Frederick Law Olmsted and Calvert Vaux. In recent years the park deteriorated and became notorious for crime, but it is now being restored and is in constant use for concerts, recreation, opera, and demonstrations.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR See MADHYA PRADESH

CENTRAL REGION (Scotland)

Region formed from the former county of Clackmannan, and parts of Stirlingshire, Perthshire, and West Lothian. The administrative headquarters is STIRLING.

CENTUM CELLAE See CIVITAVECCHIA

CENTURIPAE See CENTURIPLE

CENTURIPLE [ancient: Centorbi, Centuripae] (Italy)

Town in central SICILY, 21 mi NW of CATANIA in Enna province. In ancient times it was an ally of ATHENS and fell to Agathocles, the tyrant of SYRACUSE, after the defeat of Athens. In the First Punic War it submitted to ROME. It was destroyed by the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II in 1233 A.D., then rebuilt. It was the scene of heavy fighting in World War II and was taken by the Allies in the summer of 1943.

CEOS See KEOS

CEPEDA (Argentina)

Town and battlefield on the Atlantic Ocean, in Buenos Aires province, S of BUENOS AIRES. It was the scene of two battles during the Argentine civil war. The first was on February 1, 1820, when the Federalists defeated the Unitarians under General José Rondeau; the second on October 23, 1859, when the troops of the Argentine Confederation under Justo José de Urquiza defeated the force of the state of Buenos Aires under Bartolomé Mitre. This led to the incorporation of Buenos Aires into the Confederation.

CEPHALLENGIA See CEPHALONIA

CEPHALOEDIMUM See CEFALÚ

CEPHALONIA [ancient: Cephallenia, Greek: Kefallinia] (Greece)

Island off the W coast of Greece, it is one of the IONIAN ISLANDS. In ancient times it was an important Mycenaean center and later a member of the Aetolian League. It was seized by Rome in 189 B.C., and then became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It fell to the Norman Robert Guiscard in the 11th century A.D. It was subsequently ruled by NAPLES, VENICE, TURKEY, and FRANCE until it fell to GREAT BRITAIN in 1809. It was ceded to Greece in 1864. It is rich in traces of Greek and Roman settlement, especially tombs and baths.

CERAM [Seram, Seran, Serang] (Indonesia)

Island W of NEW GUINEA in the MOLUCCAS, with the Ceram Sea to the N and the Banda Sea to the S. The Moluccas were discovered by the Portuguese in the early 16th century, and their traders and missionaries were active on Ceram. Also known as the Spice Islands, the Moluccas were desired by the English and Dutch as well as the Portuguese for the value of the trade in spices with Europe. The Dutch established trading posts on Ceram in the early 17th century and by mid-century more or less controlled the island, giving them a practical monopoly of the spice trade. Although the British held Ceram from 1810 to 1814 during the Napoleonic Wars, Dutch control was reestablished. Ceram became part of Indonesia when that nation achieved independence in 1949. Wahai and Bula are the main towns. See also NETHERLANDS, PORTUGAL.

CERASUS See GIRESUN

CERCINA See KERKENNA ISLANDS

CERCO See KERCH

CERDAGNE See CERDAÑA

CERDAÑA [French: Cerdagne]

Old division of Europe in the Eastern PYRENEES, directly E of ANDORRA in the Spanish province of GERONA and in the French provinces of Ariège and Pyrénées-Orientales. Cerdaña passed to the counts of ROUSSILLON in A.D. 1276. In 1659, 33 Cerdaña communities were ceded to FRANCE by SPAIN.

CERESCO See RIPON

CERESOLE ALBA (Italy)

Town and battlefield in PIEDMONT, S of TURIN, in Cuneo province, NE Italy. During the fourth war of François I and Charles V, on April 14, 1544, the French were defeated here by Charles V's imperial forces under Marqués del Vasto.

CERIGNOLA (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Foggia province, PUGLIA region, 22 mi SE of FOGGIA, SE Italy. During the Wars of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE and SPAIN, the Spanish under Gonzalo Córdoba defeated the French under the duc de Nemours here on April 28, 1503. This made the kingdom of NAPLES a Spanish province.

CERIGO See CYTHERA

CERISY-LA-FORÊT (France)

Village in the Manche department, NORMANDY, 9 mi NE of SAINT-LÔ, NW France. During World War II the forest of Cerisy was the scene of heavy fighting in the Normandy campaign from June to July 1944.

CERNĂUTI See CHERNOVTSY

CERNAVODĂ [Cerna-Vodă] (Romania)

Port on the DANUBE RIVER, 32 mi WNW of CONSTANTA, in Constanta province. During World War I it was occupied by Bulgarian and German forces. It has extensive finds from the Neolithic period.

CERRO GORDO (Mexico)

Pass and battlefield, 40 mi WNW of VERACRUZ on the road to MEXICO CITY, in Veracruz province, central Mexico. During the Mexican War on April 17 and 18, 1847, the Mexicans under Santa Anna tried in vain to halt American general Winfield Scott's advance to CONTRERAS here.

CERVETERI [Caere] [ancient: Agylla] (Italy)

Ancient Etruscan city in LATIUM region, Rome province, 30 mi WNW of ROME. Important as an Etruscan stronghold and trading center, in 253 B.C. it sided with the Tarquinii against Rome and was defeated. Partially incorporated into the Roman state, it was the legendary refuge of the Vestal Virgins in 390 B.C. after the Gauls' capture of Rome. Many ancient Etruscan tombs have been discovered here, including those in Banditaccia, a necropolis, and the large tomb unearthed in 1836, which contained a chariot, and rare gold objects dating to the seventh century B.C. See also ETRURIA.

CERVIONE (France)

Village in E CORSICA, near the TYRRHENIAN SEA, 25 mi S of BASTIA. Theodore, baron von Neuhof, installed himself here as first king of Corsica in 1763.

CESENA [ancient: Caesena] (Italy)

Town in Forlì province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 12 mi SE of FORLÍ on the Savio River, NE central Italy. A fortified station on the AEMILIAN WAY in Roman times, it was an independent town from the 11th to 13th centuries. In 1357 it successfully defended itself against papal general Cardinal Albornoz but was destroyed in 1377 by Cardinal Robert of GENEVA. It passed to the pope in 1465 and fell to Cesare Borgia at the end of the 15th century. During World War II it was captured by the British in October 1944. A 14th- and 15th-century castle, residence of the Malatesta family, houses an important manuscript collection here.

CĒSIS [Tsisis] [German: Wenden; Russian: Vendyen] (Latvia)

Town and battlefield of LIVONIA, 45 mi NE of RIGA on the Gauja River in N Latvia. Prosperous town of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE, it was formerly the seat of the Livonian Knights. Between 1600 and 1721 it passed between SWEDEN and POLAND before passing to RUSSIA. During World War I a German army was defeated here by a Latvian and Estonian army in June

236 Československa Socialistická Republika

1919. In World War II, the town was held by Germany from 1941 through 1944.

CESKOSLOVENSKA SOCIALISTICKA REPUBLIKA See CZECHOSLOVAKIA

ČESKÝ-BROD [German: Böhmisches-Brod] (Czech Republic)

Town and battlefield in BOHEMIA, 20 mi E of PRAGUE. On May 30, 1434, during the Hussite Crusades, the Hussites were defeated here by the Czech nobles and Utraquists. The Hussite chief Andrew Procop was killed in the battle.

ČESKÝ TĚŠÍN See TESCHEN

ČESME See CHESMÉ

CETATEA ALBA See BELGOROD-DNESTROVSKY

CETATEA DAMBOVITEI See BUCHAREST

CETEHAM See CHATHAM

CETINJE (Montenegro)

Town in S Montenegro, 19 mi SE of KOTOR. The seat of the prince-bishop rulers of Montenegro from 1516 to 1851, it was overrun by Turks in 1692, 1714, and 1785. It was the capital of independent Montenegro from 1878 to 1918, when it was incorporated into Yugoslavia. It remained the capital through continuous fighting during most of World War II until TITOGRAD (PODGORICA) was named capital in 1945. A 15th-century monastery and tombs of rulers are here.

CETOBRIGA See SETÚBAL (Portugal)

CETTE See SÈTE

CEUTA [Arabic: Sebta] (Spain)

Port and Spanish military post opposite GIBRALTAR, 30 mi N of Tetuan, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, near the Strait of GIBRALTAR, N MOROCCO. It is a Spanish enclave and military post on Moroccan soil. Colonized by Carthaginians, Greeks, and Romans, it became independent under the Byzantine governor Count Julian. Continually fought over during the Middle Ages because of its commercial importance, it passed to PORTUGAL in 1415 and to Spain in 1688. In 1700 a 26-year siege by the Moors was ended. The British took control in 1810 for Spain, which regained possession after the Napoleonic Wars. It was a base used by Franco in 1936. A fort with moat attests to the Portuguese presence. In the 1990s Ceuta became a way-station for many Sub-Saharan African refugees fleeing homeland strife for Europe.

CÉVENNES [ancient: Cebenna] (France)

Old region of S France around the Cévennes Mts in the modern departments of Ardèche, Gard, and Hérault and in the region of LANGUEDOC. It was a refuge of heretic Cathars during the 13th-century Albigensian Crusade. It was the scene of the uprising of the Camisards in 1702 following the Edict of NANTES in 1685.

CEYLON See SRI LANKA

CHABHAIN See CAVAN

CHABLAIS (France)

Region of E France, S of LAKE GENEVA in the Haute-Savoie department, formerly part of SAVOY. Its capital was THONON. Acquired by the counts of Savoy in the 11th century A.D., it was converted to Calvinism in 1535. Saint Francis of Sales won the region back to Catholicism between 1594 and 1598.

CHACABUCO (Chile)

Village and battlefield just N of SANTIAGO in Santiago province, central Chile. During the Latin American wars of independence, on February 12, 1817, the South American patriots under José de San Martín and Bernardo O'Higgins defeated the Spanish under General Rafael Moroto here. This victory began the expulsion of the Spanish from Chile. See SPAIN.

CHACHAPOYAS [former: San Juan de La Frontera de los Chachapoyas] (Peru)

Old Spanish city, 420 mi N of LIMA, in Amazonas province, in the East Andean Mts. It is the oldest Spanish city E of the ANDES, founded in 1538 on the site of a pre-Inca settlement.

CHACO See GRAN CHACO

CHACO BOREAL (Bolivia, Paraguay)

Disputed region of 100,000 sq mi in the fork of the Paraguay and Pilcomayo rivers, mainly in NW Paraguay. Bolivia and Paraguay erected fortifications in the area, and in December 1928 a first attack by Paraguay foretold the war over the region that lasted from 1932 to 1935. The peace treaty at BUENOS AIRES in 1938 assigned the larger portion to Paraguay and a small, western section to Bolivia.

CHACO CANYON (United States)

Archaeological site and national monument, approximately 75 mi NE of GALLUP, NEW MEXICO. In this broad canyon, approximately 12 mi long, the early Indian Anasazi people created one of the great social and ceremonial centers of the Southwest. The area may have supported some 10,000 people between the 10th and 12th centuries A.D. They built numerous pueblos, or apartment houses, the largest of which, dominating all, is Pueblo Bonito. With up to five stories and some 650 rooms, it may have held as many as 1,200 persons. The area, then well-watered, was made more fertile by complex irrigation systems. The many pueblos and outlying settlements farther afield were tied together by a network of roads.

A solar calendar or observatory to predict and mark the seasons, usual among prehistoric people, has recently been found on a nearby butte. The sun, shining through carefully placed rocks, indicated the four annual solstices. The Chaco Canyon culture collapsed c. A.D. 1200, possibly because of prolonged drought. The inhabitants dispersed, many of them becoming the ancestors of the present Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona. MESA VERDE, another Anasazi center to the northwest, lasted longer. It too eventually succumbed.

CHAD [French: Tchad]

Republic in N central Africa, S of LIBYA and N of the CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC, with its capital at N'DJAMENA. The region, originally inhabited by cave dwellers, was penetrated in the seventh century A.D. by Arab traders. The state of KANEM was established by nomads from North Africa and reached its zenith in the 13th century. The Wadai and Bagirmi empires arose in the 16th century but had fallen under Sudanese dominations by the 1890s. French sovereignty over the area was recognized in the late 19th century when they defeated the Sudanese leader, Rabih. Chad became a colony of FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA and became a republic within the French community in 1958. Full independence was granted on August 11, 1960. The Muslims of the N waged a guerrilla war during the period 1966–73 against the southern-controlled government with frequent intervention and support from FRANCE and Libya. In 2002 a peace agreement was signed with the northern rebel group following mediation from Libya. The conflict in DARFUR, has spilled over the border into Chad with rebel groups in Chad and the SUDAN raiding over the borders.

CHADDS FORD See BRANDYWINE CREEK

CHADWICK'S BAY See DUNKIRK

CHAERONEA [Greek: Khairónia] (Greece)

Ancient city and battlefield of BOEOTIA, 4 mi NNW of Levidia, SE of Mt Parnassus. Chaeronea was strategically important because of its fortifications and because of its position guarding the entrance to the northern plain of Boeotia. MACEDON's supremacy over Greece was established here in 338 B.C. when Philip II of Macedon decisively defeated ATHENS and THEBES. In 86 B.C. the Romans under Sulla defeated Mithridates VI of PONTUS here.

CHALCEDON [Calchedon] [modern: Kadiköy] (Turkey)

Ancient town, now a suburb of ISTANBUL, on the E side of the entrance to the BOSPORUS, opposite Istanbul. It was founded in 685 B.C. by Greeks from MEGARA, was taken by PERSIA in 616, then passed to BITHYNIA, then PERGAMUM, and finally ROME in 133 B.C. During the period of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE it was the seat of the Council of Chalcedon in A.D. 451, the fourth ecumenical council of the early Christian church, which defined the nature of Jesus Christ.

CHALCHUAPA (El Salvador)

City and battlefield 8 mi W of SANTA ANA, in Santa Ana province, W El Salvador. During the Central American War on April 2, 1885, the Salvadorans defeated the Guatemalans under Justo Rufino Barrios here, ending GUATEMALA's attempt to incorporate El Salvador into a Central American union.

CHALCIDICE [Greek: Khalkidhiki] (Greece)

Peninsula and province in N Greece, stretching SE from THESSALONÍKI into the AEGEAN SEA. It was settled in the seventh century B.C. by colonists from Chalcis. Chalcidice was the center of the Chalcidian League in the fifth and fourth centuries B.C., which was formed first against ATHENS and then against MACEDON. The cities of the league, OLYNTHUS and POTIDAEA, were conquered in 348 B.C. by Philip II of Macedon. In the second century B.C. the peninsula came under the control of ROME.

CHALCIS See KHALKIS

CHALDAEA See CHALDEA

CHALDEA [Chaldaea] [Assyrian: Kaldu; Babylonian: Kasdu; Hebrew: Kasdim] (Iraq)

Ancient region of BABYLONIA, in S Iraq between the Arabian desert, the Persian Gulf, and the EUPHRATES delta. Founded by Semites c. 1000 B.C., Chaldea was raided in 850 B.C. by Ashurnasirpal II of ASSYRIA. The Chaldean Marduk-Apla-Iddina seized the Babylonian throne in 721 B.C. but fled, leaving the throne to the Assyrians until 625 B.C. Nabopolassar then established a Chaldean, or Neo-Babylonian, dynasty that lasted until the Persian invasion of 539 B.C. By 586 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar II had subdued JUDAH and captured JERUSALEM, and Chaldea had become synonymous with Babylonia. See also BABYLON.

CHALDIRAN See CALDIRAN

CHALDRAN See CALDIRAN

CHALFONT SAINT GILES (England)

Town in BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, 18 mi NW of LONDON. John Milton lived here during the Great Plague and finished Paradise Lost here. The village of Jordans to the SW has the grave of William Penn and is widely known as an early Quaker meeting place.

CHALGROVE (England)

Village and battle site in OXFORDSHIRE, 9 mi SE of OXFORD. During the Civil War, in 1643, Royalists under Prince Rupert defeated Parliamentarians under John Hampden here. Hampden was mortally wounded.

CHALKIS See KHALKIS

CHALMETTE (United States)

Village in SE LOUISIANA, on the E bank of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, just below NEW ORLEANS. The Chalmette National Historical Park contains the battlefield where Andrew Jackson defeated the British in 1815 at the end of the War of 1812.

CHÂLONS-SUR-CHAMPAGNE [Châlons-sur-Marne]

[ancient: Durocatalaunum] (France)

Town 95 mi E of PARIS, on the MARNE RIVER, capital of the Marne department, NE central France. In 1998, the town was renamed Châlons-sur-Champagne from its traditional name of Châlons-sur-Marne. In ancient times it was the chief town of the Catalauni tribe and near the scene of a battle in A.D. 451 in which the Romans and their allies defeated Attila. United to France in A.D. 1360, it was attacked in vain by the English twice in the 15th century. During the Wars of Religion in the 16th century Henry IV transferred the French parliament to Châlons from Paris. It was captured by the Germans in the Franco-Prussian War and in World Wars I and II. See also CATALAUNIAN PLAINS.

CHÂLONS-SUR-MARNE See CHÂLONS-SUR-CHAMPAGNE

CHALON-SUR-SAÔNE [ancient: Cabillonum] (France)

Town on the SAÔNE RIVER, 35 mi N of MÂCON, in the Saône-et-Loire department, E France. An important town of the Gallic Aedui tribe, it was made capital of BURGUNDY in the sixth century A.D. by King Gontram and became the site of major ecclesiastical meetings. It resisted a siege by the Austrians during the Napoleonic Wars in 1814. The church of St. Vincent dates to the 12th century.

CHALUKYA EMPIRE (India)

Political unit under a dynasty of the same name that ruled the DECCAN Region of southern India. Its founder was Pulakesin I (A.D. 543–66). A grandson, Pulakesin II (c. 608–42), enlarged the Chalukya territory. He also defeated Harsha, the emperor of Kanauj, c. 620 when he invaded from the north. Circa 625 Pulakesin captured Vengi, a region in eastern ANDHRA PRADESH, and turned it over to his brother, Vishnuvardhana, whose eastern Chalukya dynasty ruled there until the 11th century. In 757 the dynasty lost its power to another family but recovered its authority in the Deccan c. 975. Its capital was now at Kalyani in northern MYSORE state. From this time on the Chalukyas were at war much of the time with the CHOLA dynasty of southeastern India while having to defend themselves against Arabs and Turks coming from the north. In 1189 the Chalukya empire collapsed, and its last ruler died in 1200.

CHÂLUS [Chalus] (France)

Village in the Haute-Vienne department, 18 mi SW of LIMOGES, W central France. Richard Coeur de Lion was mortally wounded here in 1199 while besieging its 12th-century castle.

CHAMARAS See CLUSIUM

CHAMBERSBURG (United States)

Town 50 mi WSW of HARRISBURG in S PENNSYLVANIA. John Brown lived here in 1859 while planning his raid on HARPER'S FERRY. In July 1863 General Robert E. Lee organized his troops here before attacking GETTYSBURG during the Civil War. The town was burned by Confederates in July 1864, and subsequently rebuilt.

CHAMBÉRY (France)

City and capital of SAVOY, 54 mi E of LYONS, SE France. Made capital of Savoy in the 14th century A.D. by the counts of Savoy, it was joined to France following a plebiscite in 1860. It was badly bombed in 1944 during World War II. Rousseau lived here for a while. Apart from surviving edifices from the 14th to the 16th centuries, of historical value is a ninth-century crypt in the church of Lémenc in the ancient station of Lemincum just N of the city.

CHAMBLY (Canada)

City in S QUEBEC on the Richelieu River, 14 mi ESE of MONTREAL. A fortified city, it was of strategic importance in the defense of NEW FRANCE against the British and Iroquois, but fell to the former in 1770. It was seized in 1775 by invading Americans and burned when they withdrew the following year. Parts of Chambly fort have been preserved.

CHAMBORD (France)

Village and château, 10 mi NE of BLOIS in the Loir-et-Cher department, central France. The château, built here in the 16th century by Francis I, is the largest on the LOIRE.

CHAMONIX [Chamonix-Mont-Blanc] (France)

Town in E France, in the Haute-Savoie department, in the French ALPS, at the foot of Mont Blanc, approximately 40 mi E of ANNECY. It is a popular resort both winter and summer and is the main base for starting the climb of Mont Blanc and visiting the Mer de Glace, a glacier on the northern slope of the mountain. Mont Blanc, which is 15,771 ft high, was first climbed in 1786. The world's highest aerial cable car (12,605 ft) is here, while an automobile tunnel beneath Mont Blanc connects France with the village of Courmayeur, Italy. The Chamonix valley was the scene of the Winter Olympics in 1924.

CHAMONIX-MONT-BLANC See CHAMONIX

CHAMPA [ancient: Lin-Yi] (Vietnam)

Ancient kingdom that stretched along the SE coast of VIETNAM from DA NANG to Cape Varella. Formed in A.D. 192 by a people originally from Indonesia, it evolved under the cultural influence of INDIA into a decentralized region of four states but was united in A.D. 400 by King Bhadravarman. Invaded in 446 by CHINA, it enjoyed a period of great prosperity and independence following their expulsion in the sixth century. Champa was forced to surrender its capital to the Vietnamese Empire in 1000. The whole country was conquered in 1145 by the Khmers. Although liberated in 1147 by King Jaya Harivarman I, Champa again fell under Vietnamese power in the 13th century and was absorbed into Vietnam. See also KAMPUCHEA.

CHAMPAGNE (France)

Region of NE France that became a political unit in the 10th century A.D. under the Vermandois. It passed to the house of BLOIS and was partitioned. It was reunited in 1125 under Thibaut II, the Great, of Champagne. It prospered financially and culturally in the 12th and 13th centuries due largely to its international trade fairs, but was continually at odds with the French Crown. Champagne and France were united in 1314 by marriage. It was the scene of Joan of Arc's campaign against the English in the Hundred Years' War. Champagne was abolished as a province in 1790. It is world famous for its Champagne wine. See also MEAUX, RHEIMS, TROYES.

CHAMPASSAK (Laos)

Former kingdom of S Laos along the MEKONG RIVER. Established in 1713, it was one of the three kingdoms of Laos. Its western lands were absorbed by Siam, modern THAILAND, in the 19th century. The kingdom was restored by Franco-Siamese treaties in 1904 and 1905. Thailand again occupied the western part of the kingdom during World War II, and in 1946 Prince Boun Oum of Champassak renounced his sovereign territorial rights in favor of a united Laos.

CHAMPAUBERT (France)

Village and battlefield in the Marne department, 17 mi SSE of ÉPERNAY, NE central France. During the Five Days of the Napoleonic Wars, Napoleon defeated the Allies under Field Marshal Gebhard von Blücher here, forcing them to retreat to the MARNE RIVER on February 10, 1814.

CHAMPIGNY-SUR-MARNE (France)

Suburb and battlefield SSE of PARIS, on the MARNE RIVER in the Val-de-Marne department. Two battles were fought here during the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian War. In November and December 1870 the Prussians twice defeated the French as they attempted to break out of the beleaguered city.

CHAMPION'S HILL (United States)

Battlefield, 20 mi E of VICKSBURG in W MISSISSIPPI. During the American Civil War, on May 16, 1863, Union forces under General Ulysses S. Grant defeated the Confederates here and drove them back toward Vicksburg.

CHAMPLAIN, LAKE (Canada, United States)

Lake and site of naval engagements, extending N from Whitehall, NEW YORK, for 107 mi along the VERMONT–New York boundary into QUEBEC. Visited in 1609 by the French explorer Samuel de Champlain, it was used by the early settlers as a route between the English colonies and French Canada. It was the scene of many battles, starting with French and Iroquois conflicts. During the American Revolution, at the battle of VALCOUR ISLAND on October 11, 1776, the British and American fleets fought their first engagement here. In the War of 1812 the British were forced to abandon their invasion of New York following their defeat at the hands of the American fleet off PLATTSBURGH. See also CROWN POINT, FORT TICONDEROGA.

CHAMPOEG (United States)

Settlement S of PORTLAND, in the WILLAMETTE Valley, in NW OREGON. At the Champoeg Meeting of May 2, 1843, a provisional government was organized that was the first and only government of the Pacific Northwest until the establishment of Oregon Territory in March 1848.

CHANAAN See CANAANCHANAK (India) See BARRACKPURCHANAK, TURKEY See CANAKKALECHANAKKALE See CANAKKALECHANAR See CHUNARCHANCELADE (France)

Town and archaeological site in the DORDOGNE department, W of PÉRIGUEUX, SW central France. A skeleton of the Paleolithic Magdalenian Age was unearthed here in 1888. Like the Grimaldi fossils, it is a variation of Cro-Magnon man, approximately 17,000 years old.

CHANCELLOR See CHANCELLORSVILLECHANCELLORSVILLE [modern: Chancellor] (United States)

Town and battleground in N VIRGINIA, just W of FREDERICKSBURG. During the American Civil War, during May 2–3, 1863, Confederate forces under Generals Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson defeated Union forces under General Joseph Hooker here. Jackson died from wounds sustained in this battle. Following this victory, Lee prepared to invade PENNSYLVANIA in the GETTYSBURG Campaign.

CHAN CHAN (Peru)

Ruined city of the Chimú Kingdom on the N coast of Peru, in Libertad province, 300 mi N of LIMA. It was capital of the pre-Inca Chimú Kingdom, once the chief state of Peru, from A.D. 1200 to 1400. The Chimú were conquered by the Incas c. 1470. The remains, covering 14 sq mi, include citadels, temples, storehouses, and gardens. See also INCA EMPIRE.

CHANDA See CHANDRAPUR

CHANDANNAGAR [Chandarnagar, Chandernagor, Chandernagore] (India)

Settlement on the Hooghly River, 21 mi N of KOLKATA in West BENGAL province. It began as a French East India company post in 1686. As active center of maritime trade in the 18th century, it was fought over many times by France and Great Britain. It was restored to France in 1815 and joined India in 1950.

CHANDARNAGAR See CHANDANNAGAR

CHANDERNAGOR See CHANDANNAGAR

CHANDERNAGORE See CHANDANNAGAR

CHANDIGARH (India)

City in NW India, approximately 150 mi N of DELHI. It is the capital of two states, PUNJAB and HARYANA. The city itself is administered as a union territory by the central government of India. When India was partitioned in 1947, LAHORE, which had been the capital of the Punjab, became part of PAKISTAN. The Indians decided to build an entirely new capital city, and the noted French architect Le Corbusier was engaged to plan it. He began the work, his most ambitious, in 1951. The site was chosen for its favorable climate and plentiful water supply. Le Corbusier laid out Chandigarh in 36 rectangular sections, 30 of them residential. All government buildings are in one section, and industrial area in another, and the plans included an artificial lake. While the new capital was being built, JULLUNDUR was the interim capital of the Punjab.

CHANDRAGIRI (India)

Town in TAMIL NADU state, 80 mi NW of CHENNAI. It became capital of the VIJAYANAGARA rulers following their defeat at TALIKOTA in 1585 and remained the center of their crumbling empire until 1646, when it was taken by the Sultan of GOLCONDA. It passed to the Moguls in 1687. See also MOGUL EMPIRE.

CHANDRAPUR [Chanda] (India)

Town in MAHARASHTRA state, 85 mi S of NAGPUR, central India. Chanda was capital of the Gond dynasty from the 12th to the 18th centuries A.D. Nearby is Bhandak, which was a Hindu capital from the fourth to the sixth centuries A.D. In this general area one finds numerous old temples and traces of fortifications.

CH'ANG-AN See XI'AN

CHANG CHÊNG See GREAT WALL

CHANG-CHIA-K'OU See ZHANGJIAKOU

CHANGCHIAKOW See ZHANGJIAKOU

CH'ANG CHIH See CHANGZHI

CHANGCHUN [former: Hsinking, Shinkyō] (China)

City in JILIN province, 165 mi NNE of SHENYANG, N China. Capital of the Japanese state of Manchukuo in 1932, it was captured by Soviet paratroopers during World War II on August 22, 1945. It was the scene of unrest during the Chinese civil war of 1946 to 1947. See MANCHURIA.

CHANGDE [Ch'ang-Te] [ancient: Lin-Yüan] (China)

City on the Yuan River, 105 mi NW of Changsha, in HUNAN province, central China. A county of Lin-Yüan existed as early as the second century B.C. Changde was of great commercial importance in the 19th century as the center of China's Rice Bowl. During World War II it was attacked and damaged by the Japanese from 1939 to 1943 but did not fall until 1944.

CHANG JIANG See YANGZI

CHANG-KU FENG [Russian: Gora Zaozernaya] (Russia)

Hill and battlefield, 100 mi SW of VLADIVOSTOK on the left bank of the Tumen River at the point where the borders of RUSSIA, NORTH KOREA, and CHINA meet. Overlooking Posyeta Bay, it was claimed in 1938 by JAPAN and was the scene of fighting in July and August 1938 between Japan and the USSR.

CHANGSHA [Ch-ang-Sha] [ancient: Ch'ng-Yang; former: Tanchow] (China)

City in HUNAN province, 180 mi SSW of HANKOU, SE central China. Center of the state of Ch'u in the first millennium B.C., it became capital of the independent Chu state in the 10th century A.D. An important commercial center from 750 to 1100, it was capital of Hunan after 1664. It was unsuccessfully besieged by rebels during the Taiping Rebellion in 1854. A renowned center of learning, it was where Mao Zedong was educated and where he led uprisings early in his career. Changsha was briefly occupied by the Japanese in 1941 and again in 1944–45, and was the site of several battles in the Sino-Japanese War of the period 1937–1945.

CH'ANG-TE See CHANGDE

CHANG-TE See ANYANG

CHANGZHI [Ch'ang Chih, Luan] [ancient: Lu-Chou, Lung] (China)

Town in SHANXI province, 100 mi NW of KAIFENG. It was a strategic center in the conflict between the central government and the HEBEI warlords, in the sixth century A.D. It was continually fought over in the 10th century. Changzhi was a Chinese military base during the Sino-Japanese War of 1937 to 1945.

CHANIA See CANEA

CHANKIRI See CANKIRI

CHANNEL, THE See ENGLISH CHANNEL

CHANNEL ISLANDS [French: Îles Normandes] (Great Britain)

Group of islands including ALDERNEY, GUERNSEY, JERSEY, and SARK, lying 80 mi S of the British coast at the entrance to the Gulf of St. Malo in the ENGLISH CHANNEL. Inhabited since prehistoric times, they were incorporated into NORMANDY in A.D. 933 and were united with England at the time of the Norman conquest in 1066. During World War II they were the only parts of British territory to be under German occupation, from June 30, 1940 to May 9, 1945.

CHANNEL ISLANDS (United States) See SANTA BARBARA ISLANDS

CHANTILLY (France)

Town, 26 mi N of PARIS, in the Oise department. Chantilly grew famous in the 18th century for its fine lace and beautiful porcelain. It has a 14th-century château.

CHANTILLY (United States)

Village and battleground, 20 mi W of WASHINGTON, D.C., in N VIRGINIA. General Stonewall Jackson's pursuit of Union forces under General John Pope was checked here following the American Civil War's second battle of Bull Run on September 1, 1862. Pope soon after suffered utter defeat and the loss of his command. See also MANASSAS.

CHAPEL HILL (United States)

City in N central NORTH CAROLINA, 11 mi WSW of Durham. It was founded in 1792 and takes its name from a chapel that stood in the center of the early community. The University of North Carolina, chartered here in 1789 and opened in 1795, was the first public university in the United States to award degrees.

CHAPRA (India)

City in BIHAR state, 25 mile N of PATNA in NE India. In the 18th century the factories in the area were destroyed by floods. In the early 20th century the city was ravaged by plague. The city is now a road and rail hub and a center for agricultural trade.

CHAPULTEPEC (Mexico)

Fortress and hill, 3 mi SW of MEXICO CITY, within the Federal District. Originally fortified by the Aztecs, the hill was the site of the official residence of the presidents of Mexico from the 1860s until 1940. During the Mexican War it was the last point of resistance to the invading Americans and fell to General Winfield Scott on September 13, 1847. The Act of Chapultepec, signed in March 1945 by the nations of the Western Hemisphere, pledged the signatories to guarantee the boundaries of American states. Today Chapultepec is a cultural and recreational center of Mexico City.

CHARAN See HARAN

CHARASIA (Afghanistan)

Battleground, 6 mi S of KABUL, in Kabul province. During the Second Afghan War, on October 6, 1879, the British under Major-General Sir Frederick Roberts defeated the Afghans and Ghilzyes here and then went on to occupy Kabul.

CHARCAS See SUCRE

CHARDZHOU See CHARJUI

CHARENTON-LE-PONT (France)

Suburb SE of PARIS, in the Val-de-Marne department, at the confluence of the SEINE and MARNE Rivers. The town was of strategic importance in the defense of PARIS because of its bridge over the Marne. It was the center of the Huguenot churches in the 16th and 17th centuries. The Marquis de Sade was confined to the asylum here from 1803 to 1814.

CHARI-BAGIRMI See BAGUIRMI

CHĀRĪKĀR (Afghanistan)

Town in Parvān province, 35 mi N of KABUL. Strategically placed on the road from Kabul to the northern provinces, its garrison of British soldiers was massacred during the First Afghan War in 1841.

CHARING CROSS (England)

District of LONDON, in the inner borough of WESTMINSTER, around Trafalgar Square, traditionally regarded as the center of London. A cross was erected here by Edward I in memory of his wife, Queen Eleanor, who died in 1290. Several regicides were executed on the site of the cross in 1666 following the restoration of the English monarchy after the Civil War.

CHARITÉ, LA [La Charité-sur-Loire] (France)

Town in the Nièvre department, 15 mi NNW of NEVERS, central France. Built around an eighth-century Benedictine abbey, it was vainly besieged during the Hundred Years' War by Joan of Arc and was damaged during the Wars of Religion.

CHĀRJEW [Charjui, Chardzhou] (Turmenistan)

Town and battlefield, 60 mi SW of BUKHARA. During the Persian Wars, in 1740 the Persians under Nadir Shah forced the Uzbegs of Bukhara under Abdul Fayz Khan to surrender here. Abdul Fayz was restored to his throne but forced to recognize the OXUS RIVER as the boundary of PERSIA.

CHARLEROI [ancient: Charnoy] (Belgium)

Town on the Sambre River, 31 mi S of BRUSSELS in HAINAUT province. The medieval village of Charnoy was renamed Charleroi in 1666 and was occupied successively by FRANCE, AUSTRIA, and HOLLAND. During the Napoleonic Wars it was Napoleon's headquarters shortly before the Battle of WATERLOO. It was the scene of the first battle of World War I on August 22, 1914.

CHARLES CITY AND PORT See CHARLESTON

CHARLESTON [former: Charles City and Port, Charles Towne] (United States)

City and port in SE SOUTH CAROLINA, on the Atlantic Ocean, 85 mi NW of Savannah. Established by English colonists in 1670, it became the center of extensive Indian trade. During Queen Anne's War, from 1702 to 1713, the people of Charleston attempted to invade FLORIDA and LOUISIANA. The authorities' lack of response to pirate and Indian raids led to a revolt in 1719 and the setting up of the Royal government of South Carolina. After a 45-day siege during the American Revolution the town was taken by the British on May 12, 1780, and held for two years. In 1832 it was the center of the nullification movement and the scene of the passing of South Carolina's ordinance of secession in December, 1860. The Confederate attack on and capture of FORT SUMTER in Charleston Harbor from April 12 to 14, 1861, marked the outbreak of the Civil War. Following a Union blockade the city was evacuated in February 1865. It was damaged by an earthquake in 1886.

CHARLESTON [former: Fort Lee] (United States)

Capital of WEST VIRGINIA in the ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS, 260 mi WSW of WASHINGTON D.C. First settled in 1788 as a fort, it was soon important as a transshipment point on the migration route to the OHIO RIVER valley. It was the scene of the Civil War Battle of Charleston on September 13, 1862, after which the city was occupied by Union troops. In 1877 it became capital of West Virginia.

CHARLESTOWN (United States)

Town in NEW HAMPSHIRE on the CONNECTICUT RIVER, 10 mi S of CLAREMONT. During the last years of the French and Indian War it was used as a military base by colonial troops. General John Stark and the New Hampshire forces met here before the Battle of BENNINGTON on August 16, 1777, in which a raiding force from General John Burgoyne's British army was defeated.

CHARLES TOWN (United States)

City in NE WEST VIRGINIA, 14 mi S of MARTINSBURG. In its early history it was the residence of some of Virginia's most aristocratic families. Following his raid on HARPER'S FERRY in 1859, John Brown was tried and executed here. The city was badly damaged during the Civil War.

CHARLES TOWNE See CHARLESTON

CHARLEVILLE-MÉZIÈRES [ancient: Arcae Remorum, Carolopolis] (France)

Town and capital of the ARDENNES department, on the MEUSE RIVER, 50 mi NE of RHEIMS, NE France. The twin towns of Charleville and Mézières were united in 1966. Mézières belonged formerly to the archbishops of Rheims. Successfully defended in the 16th century against the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, it was severely damaged in the Wars of Religion. Charleville was founded in 1606 by Charles de Gonzague. Both towns fell to the Germans in 1815, 1870, 1914, and 1940. During World War I they served as the German high command headquarters for western Europe. The recovery of Mézières by the Allies in 1918 was the last major battle of World War I. Arthur Rimbaud was a native of Charleville. Fortifications from the 14th to the 16th century survive.

CHARLOTTE (United States)

City of S NORTH CAROLINA, in Mecklenburg County 125 mi WSW of RALEIGH. The largest city of North Carolina, it was settled in 1748. The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was signed here in May 1775. It was occupied in 1780 by Lord Cornwallis, during which time it became known as the Hornets' Nest because of the fierce opposition it offered to the British. Until the 1849 California Gold Rush, Charlotte was the center of the nation's gold production. A Confederate naval yard during the Civil War, it was the scene of the last meeting of Jefferson Davis's cabinet in 1865.

CHARLOTTE AMALIA See CHARLOTTE AMALIE

CHARLOTTE AMALIE [former: Amalienborg, Charlotte Amalia, Saint Thomas] (United States)

City on ST. THOMAS Island in the WEST INDIES; capital and largest city of the U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS. It was originally named for a Danish queen. The Dutch attempted a settlement in 1657 but failed. The Danes also failed in 1666 but succeeded in 1672. The city became the center of Danish colonial life in the West Indies and it still retains a Danish flavor, especially in its architecture. During the American Civil War the port was an important trading center as Confederate ships attempted to run the Union blockade of the Atlantic Coast. In 1921 the city's name was changed to St. Thomas, but the former name was restored in 1937. Two 18th-century castles, presumably built by the pirates Blackbeard and Bluebeard, overlook the harbor. The city is popular with tourists.

CHARLOTTE ISLAND See ABAIANG ATOLL

CHARLOTTENBURG [former: Lietzenburg] (Germany)

A district of BERLIN, it is the site of the famous Charlottenburg palace built during the period 1695–99 by Frederick I, king of PRUSSIA for Sophie Charlotte. The Charlottenburg stadium was the scene of the 1936 Olympic games.

CHARLOTTESVILLE (United States)

City in W VIRGINIA, 70 mi WNW of RICHMOND, on the Rivanna River. During the American Revolution it was a British war camp. In 1781 the English under Colonel Banastre Tarleton raided Charlottesville, hoping to capture Thomas Jefferson and other revolutionary leaders. The University of Virginia at Charlottesville was founded by Jefferson in 1819. Of historic interest is nearby Monticello, Jefferson's home, and the home of James Monroe.

CHARLOTTETOWN [former: Port la Joie] (Canada)

City and capital of PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, on Hillsborough Bay, 110 mi NNE of HALIFAX. Originating in 1720 as a French settlement, it was renamed in 1763 when it passed to Great Britain. A conference was held here in 1864 in an initial step in confederating the Canadian provinces.

CHARNOY See CHARLEROI

CHAROLAIS [Charollais] (France)

Former county in E central France, around Charolles in the Saône-et-Loire department, S BURGUNDY. Held by the houses of Burgundy, Bourbon, and Armagnac, it was acquired in 1390 by Philip the Bold of Burgundy. It was held by the Spanish Hapsburgs from 1500 to 1684 and was united with France in 1761. The region lends its name to a famous breed of cattle.

CHAROLLAIS See CHAROLAISCHARRAN See HARANCHARSADDA (Pakistan)

Town in North-West Frontier Province, 12 mi NE of PESHAWAR, W Pakistan. Charsadda is near the site of an ancient city taken by Alexander the Great in 326 B.C., which was excavated in 1903.

CHARTORIYSK [Stary Chartoriysk, Chartorisk] (Ukraine)

Village in the Ukraine, 50 mi E of KOVEL, on the Styr River, SW Russian SFSR. An old residence of Polish gentry, it passed to RUSSIA in 1795 and was the scene of fighting in World War I. Returned to POLAND in 1921, it passed to the Soviet Union in 1945, and to Ukraine in 1991.

CHARTRES [ancient: Autricum, Civitas Carnutum] (France)

Town and capital of the Eure-et-Loire department, 48 mi SW of PARIS on the Eure River, N central France. Chartres was the principal Druidic center of the Carnutes, a Celtic tribe. Burned by the Normans in A.D. 858, it was sold to the king of France in 1286 and was occupied by the English for 15 years during the Hundred Years' War. It was unsuccessfully attacked by the Protestants during the Wars of Religion. The city was severely damaged in World War II, but since rebuilt. Its famous Gothic cathedral was completed in the 13th century.

CHARTREUSE, LA GRANDE (France)

Monastery in the Isère department, 12 mi NNE of GRENOBLE, SE France, in the ALPS. Founded by St. Bruno of COLOGNE in 1084, it is the chief house of the Carthusian order. The monks were expelled in 1903 but restored in 1940.

CHASSALA See KASSELCHASSELA See KASSELCHATALJA See CATALCACHÂTEAU COUNTRY See LOIRE RIVERCHÂTEAUDUN (France)

Town in the Eure-et-Loire department, on the LOIRE RIVER, 27 mi SSW of CHARTRES, NW central France. The town was originally a Gallo-Roman foundation. It was sacked by Germans in 1870 after resisting a siege during the Franco-Prussian War. The 12th-century church of the Madeleine burned in 1940.

CHATEAUGAY [French: Châteauguay] (Canada)

Town and battlefield in QUEBEC, 14 mi SW of MONTREAL, on the ST. LAWRENCE RIVER. During the War of 1812 the British under Colonel Charles de Salaberry compelled a U.S. force under Colonel Robert Purdy to retreat over the border here on October 26, 1813, thus ruining American plans to take Montreal.

CHÂTEAUGUAY See CHATEAUGAYCHÂTEAUNEUF-DE-RANDON (France)

Village in the Lozère department, 12 mi NE of MENDE, S France. Bertrand du Guesclin, the great constable of France, died here in 1380 while besieging the town. He had been successfully reconquering France from English domination during the Hundred Years' War.

CHÂTEAU-THIERRY (France)

Town in the Aisne department, on the MARNE RIVER, 37 mi SSW of LAON, NE France. The castle built here in A.D. 720 by Charles Martel was captured in 1421 by the English, in 1544 by the Holy Roman Emperor Charles V, and in 1591 by the duc de Mayenne. The town was sacked by the Prussians in 1814. It was the farthest point reached in 1918 by the last German offensive of World War I. It was also the home of Jean de la Fontaine.

CHATHAM (Canada)

City in SE ONTARIO on the Thames River, 40 mi E of DETROIT, MICHIGAN. An important city in the abolitionist movement before the American Civil War, it was the outlet of the Underground Railway for fugitive slaves. It was the scene of a convention held by John Brown prior to his raid on HARPER'S FERRY in 1859.

CHATHAM [ancient: Ceteham, Chetham] (England)

Port and town in KENT, now part of ROCHESTER, on the MEDWAY, 30 mi ESE of LONDON. Formerly one of England's chief naval and military stations, it was established as a Royal Navy dockyard by Henry VIII. Forts built for Chatham's defense during the Napoleonic Wars still stand here. Lord Nelson's Victory, his flagship at TRAFALGAR, was built here. The dockyard was closed in the early 1980s and is now a historic trust.

CHÂTILLON [Châtillon-sous-Bagneux] (France)

S suburb of PARIS, in the Hauts-de-Seine department. It was the scene of several engagements during the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian War. The town became the site of France's first atomic reactor in 1949.

CHÂTILLON-SOUS-BAGNEUX See CHÂTILLON

CHÂTILLON-SUR-SEINE (France)

Town in the Côte d'Or department, on the SEINE RIVER, 43 mi NW of DIJON, E central France. The residence of the dukes of BURGUNDY in the 13th century, it was the scene of a conference from February 5 to March 19, 1814, between Napoleon and the Allies that failed in its attempt to secure peace.

CHATTANOOGA (United States)

City and battlefield in SE TENNESSEE, on the Tennessee River, 100 mi NNW of ATLANTA, Georgia. Settled in 1794 after the defeat of Indian inhabitants, it became a major commercial center and was a Confederate communications point during the Civil War. Following the decisive battles of CHICKAMAUGA and Chattanooga in September and November 1863, in which MISSIONARY RIDGE played a significant role, the city was occupied by Union forces under General William Sherman, who used it as a base for his Atlanta campaign.

CHAUMONT [Chaumont-en-Bassigny] [ancient: Calvus Mons] (France)

Town and capital of the Haute-Marne department on the MARNE RIVER, 140 mi ESE of PARIS. Held originally by the counts of Bassigny and the counts of CHAMPAGNE, it was attached to the French Crown in 1329. During the Napoleonic Wars in 1814, a treaty was signed here between ENGLAND, AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, and RUSSIA that strengthened the alliance against Napoleon. During World War I it was General John Pershing's headquarters for the American Expeditionary Force. Parts of an 11th-century castle survive.

CHAUMONT-EN-BASSIGNY See CHAUMONT

CHAUNY (France)

Town in the Aisne department, 16 mi SSW of SAINT-QUENTIN, N France. During World War I, Chauny changed hands four times and was virtually razed to the ground.

CHAUTAUQUA (United States)

Resort village and educational institution in SW NEW YORK State, on the NW shore of Chautauqua Lake, 15 mi NW of JAMESTOWN. One of America's early and large-scale movements in adult education grew out of a Methodist Episcopal summer Sunday school institute held here in the pleasant surroundings of greenery and water. John Heyl Vincent, a Methodist bishop, and Lewis Miller, inventor, manufacturer, and philanthropist, who organized religious teachers' training classes, proposed in 1873 that the summer program include secular as well as religious study. The plan was adopted the next year, and in a few years the Chautauqua program was nationally known.

Other places copied the idea. Chautauqua developed a course of study by mail and sent out lecturers and entertainers under its sponsorship. Every summer, in hundreds of towns, a week-long series of programs was presented under large tents. The movement was put on a commercial basis in 1912 and was very successful until well into the 1920s. The program continues at Chautauqua today in a relaxing setting of late 19th-century American resort architecture.

CHAVES [ancient: Aquae Flavius] (Portugal)

City and spa, on the Tâmega River, 22 mi NNE of VILA REAL, NE Portugal. Aquae Flavius was fortified by the Romans who used it as a spa. It later came under the domination of the Suebi, Visigoths, Arabs, and Spanish.

CHAVÍN DE HUANTAR (Peru)

Ruins of a town and ceremonial center of the Chavín culture, the first major culture of Peru, dating from c.

900 B.C. to c. 200 B.C. It lies at over 10,000 feet in W Peru, approximately 35 mi SE of HUARÁZ. The ruins consist of a series of temple platforms with interlocked galleries and chambers on different levels. The most imposing building, the Castillo, is one of the earliest stone structures discovered in South America. Measuring 245 by 235 feet, it still stands 45 feet high. The culture was characterized by some of the earliest stone carving, especially of a jaguar god, as well as well-developed ceramics. The Chavín culture spread over the whole of northern Peru, both in the highlands and along the coast.

CHEAT MOUNTAIN (United States)

Ridge and battlefield in E WEST VIRGINIA, in the Allegheny Mts. During the Civil War, on September 10, 1861, Confederate forces under General Robert E. Lee failed to dislodge Union forces under General Joseph Reynolds from this ridge.

CHEB [German: Eger] (Czech Republic)

City in Západočeský province, 50 mi NW of PLZE, in BOHEMIA. Strategically located, it guards the easiest approach to Bohemia from the NW. It passed from the rulers of SWABIA to Otakar I of Bohemia in the 13th century. It was damaged in the Hussite Crusade of 1419–36, in the Thirty Years' War of 1618–48, and in the War of the Austrian Succession of 1740–48. Albrecht von Wallenstein, duke of Friedland, and his officers were murdered here in 1634. After World War I, Cheb was a center of the Sudeten German movement, which led to Hitler's conquest of the country.

CHECHAOUÉN [Xauen] (Moroccan: Shaf-Shawan) (Morocco)

Holy city in Tétouan province, 28 mi S of TÉTOUAN, on the W slope of the Rif Mts, N Morocco. An old Muslim holy city, it was founded by Moors expelled from Spain in the 15th century as protection from Christian CEUTA. It was closed to non-Muslims until 1920, when it was occupied by SPAIN. The Spanish were forced to abandon the city during the Rif Revolt from 1924 to 1926.

CHECHNYA [Chechen-Ingush Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic] (Russia)

Subdivision of the Russian Federation, in the Caucasus region of SE European Russia. It takes its name from the Chechen people, who comprise a large part of the population. Between 1818 and 1917 the Chechen were especially fierce opponents of the attempts of czarist Russia to conquer the region. A Muslim religious leader, Shamil, headed the resistance from 1834 to 1859, when his revolt was put down. This rebellion gave Leo Tolstoy the background for his novel The Cossacks of 1863.

After the Russian Revolution, the Bolsheviks seized the region in 1918. They were driven out in 1919 by counterrevolutionary forces under Anton I. Denikin but reestablished their power in 1921. In 1924 the Chechen and Ingush oblasts were joined, and in 1936 they became the autonomous republic. In World War II the republic was the goal of an unsuccessful German drive aimed at the area's rich oil fields. However, many Chechen and Ingush collaborated with the Nazis, causing the Soviets to dissolve the republic and deport the people to central Asia. They were allowed to return in 1956, and the next year the republic was reestablished. In 1991, as the Soviet Union disintegrated, the parliament of the autonomous republic declared independence as the Republic of Ichkeria, now better known as Chechnya. In 1992, Russia granted Ingush inhabitants their own republic (Ingushetia) in the western fifth of the former autonomous republic.

In 1994, warfare broke out between Russia and the Chechens and the capital city of GROZNY was largely destroyed. The Russians controlled much of Chechnya by 1995, but guerrilla warfare and terrorist activity in Russia drove the Russians to withdraw in 1996, giving Chechnya de facto autonomy. Islamic law was declared in 1999, and after Islamic militants invaded DAGESTAN, Russia invaded again, took Grozny, and established control over much of Chechnya. In 2003, a Russian backed new constitution and president was imposed, but there is still unrest, and Chechen terrorist activity, both in Chechnya and in Russia.

CHEDUBA ISLAND (Myanmar)

Island in the Bay of Bengal, 30 mi W of TAUNGUP, on the coast of Myanmar. In the first century A.D. Cheduba was a station on the coastal route from BENGAL by which Indian civilization came to Burma. It was occupied by JAPAN from May 1942 to January 1945.

CHEFOO See YANTAI

CHEJU [former: Quelpart Island; Japanese: Saishu To; Korean: Cheju-do] (South Korea)

Island in the East China Sea, 60 mi SW of South Cholla province. Until A.D. 938 the island was the site of the independent kingdom of Tamra-Guk. During the Koryo and Yi dynasties (935–1910), the island was the refuge of political exiles. It was visited in 1653 by the Dutch seaman, Hendrik Hamel.

CHEJU-DO See CHEJU

CHEKIANG See ZHEJIANG

CHELLES [ancient: Calae] (France)

Suburb E of PARIS in the Seine-et-Marne department. Early Stone Age remains were found here in the 19th century, from which has come the archaeological term Chellean Epoch. The abbey of the seventh century A.D. was destroyed during the French Revolution.

CHELM [Russian: Kholm] (Poland)

Town and battlefield in Lublin province, 42 mi ESE of LUBLIN, E Poland. Founded in A.D. 1237 on the site of a Slavic village, it passed to Poland in 1377, to AUSTRIA in 1795, to RUSSIA in 1815, and to Poland again in 1921. The Germans won a battle here during World War I on August 1–3, 1915. It was the site of a German concentration camp during World War II. After liberation the Polish Republic was proclaimed at Chelm on July 22, 1944. The cathedral here is noteworthy. The real city is not to be confused with the mythical Chelm, which was a town of fools in Jewish folklore.

CHELMSFORD [ancient: Caesaromagus] (England)

Market town and administrative headquarters of ESSEX, 30 mi NE of LONDON. In the Domesday Book, the record of the census of England made in 1085–86 for the Norman king William I, the town is listed as Celmeresfort. In 1215 Chelmsford was made a center for tax collection, while a grammar school was established here in 1551. There is also a church built in 1424. Excavations in 1849 revealed the remains of a Roman settlement, Caesaromagus, on the site of Chelmsford. The town housed industry and anti-aircraft batteries in World War II and was severely damaged by German bombings. The first wireless telegraph broadcasting service began here in 1920.

CHELSEA See KENSINGTON AND CHELSEA (England)

CHEMEKETA See SALEM

CHEMILLÉ (France)

Town in the Maine-et-Loire department, 20 mi SSW of ANGERS, W France. During the civil wars following the French Revolution the Vendéans defeated the Republicans here in 1793. See also VENDÉE.

CHEMIN DES DAMES (France)

Highway and battlefield in the Aisne department, N of the Aisne River between CRAONNE and Fort Malmaison, NE France. Originally constructed for the journeys of the daughters of Louis XV, it was continually the scene of heavy fighting in World War I during the Battle of the AISNE.

CHEMMIS See AKHMIM

CHEMNITZ [Karl-Marx-Stadt] (Germany)

Ancient city on the Chemnitz River, 43 mi SE of LEIPZIG. It was originally a Wendish trading center on an important salt route, and in A.D. 1143 was chartered and given a linen-weaving monopoly. It passed to BOHEMIA in 1292 and to the margraves of MEISSEN in 1308. During the Thirty Years' War it was devastated. It was the scene of the defeat in 1639 of Imperial forces by the Swedes under Field Marshal Johan Banér. The introduction of cotton milling and knitting revived it after the war, and the first German textile machinery was made here. Restored after extensive damage in World War II, it has a town hall from 1496, a medieval tower, and a Benedictine monastery from 1136, fortified in 1540, with a Gothic church and valuable sculptures. Its name was changed to Karl-Marx-Stadt in 1953 and back to Chemnitz in 1991.

CHEMULPO See INCH'ON

CHENARESBURG See KNARESBOROUGH

CHEN-CHIANG See ZHENJIANG

CHENGALPUTTU [Chingleput] (India)

Town in TAMIL NADU state, 14 mi SW of CHENNAI, SE India. Capital of the VIJAVANAGARA Kingdom from 1336 to 1565, it was taken over by GOLCONDA

c. 1640. Chingleput's fort was of strategic importance to the French and British during their struggles in the 18th century and was taken by Franco-Indian forces in 1751 and captured by the British under Robert Clive in 1752.

CHENG-CHOU See ZHENGZHOU

CHENGCHOW See ZHENGZHOU

CHENGDE [Ch'eng-Te, Chengteh] [former: Jehol; Mandarin: Je-ho] (China)

City of HEBEI province, 110 mi NE of BEIJING, between the N China plain and the plateau of Inner Mongolia. Abandoned by the Ming dynasty in the 15th century, it was controlled by the Mongol Chahar tribe. It passed to the Qing emperor Kangxi, becoming his summer residence and the first intensely colonized city outside the GREAT WALL. Taken in 1933 by the Japanese, it was incorporated into the state of MANCHUKUO. It reverted to China in 1945 at the end of World War II. Today it is a center of heavy industry. See also MANCHURIA.

CHENGDU [Ch'eng-Tu] (China)

City and capital of SICHUAN province, 170 mi NW of CHONGQING on the Min River, SW central China. It was founded by the Qin dynasty in the third century B.C. and is one of the oldest cities in China. It became one of China's greatest commercial cities under the Tang dynasty (A.D. 618–907). Immensely prosperous in the 10th century, it introduced paper currency to China. Capital of Sichuan since 1368, it is an important agrarian and industrial center with an irrigation system dating from the third century B.C. In World War II, the city was an American air base for B–29 bombers, and went through a period of rapid industrial expansion following the Communist takeover in 1949.

CHENGTEH See CHENGDE

CH'ENG-TU See CHENGDU

CHEN-LA See CAMBODIA

CHENNAI [Madras, former: Madraspatam, Madraspatnam] (India)

Capital of TAMIL NADU state, in the SE, on the COROMANDEL COAST of the Bay of Bengal. The main port on India's SE coast, it was founded in 1639 by Francis Day of the English East India Company and became an important British trading center that grew around the original outpost, Fort St. George. It received the East's first charter in 1687. In 1702 it was blockaded by Daud Khan, in 1741 it was unsuccessfully attacked by the MARATHAS, and in 1746 it was captured by the French under Joseph Dupleix but was returned to Britain by the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1748. Besieged by the French in 1758, it was relieved by the British fleet and was again successfully defended against Haider Ali in 1769 and 1780. St. Thom , the traditional burial place of the Apostle Thomas and now part of the city, was founded by the Portuguese in 1504, held by the French from 1672 to 1674, and ceded to the British in 1749. Outside the city is Mt St. Thomas, the traditional site of the martyrdom of the Apostle Thomas. In 1782 the French, allied with the American colonies, blockaded the port in a vain attempt to keep British troops from landing. India changed the official name of the city from Madras to Chennai in 2000.

CHENONCEAUX (France)

Village in the Indre-et-Loire department, on the River Cher, 18 mi ESE of TOURS, central France. The famous ch teau of Chenonceaux, spanning the Cher, was built by Thomas Bohier during the period 1515–22. Its architecture marks a transition from the Gothic to Renaissance styles in France. It was the residence of Diane de Poitiers and of Catherine de' Medici, who built the river wing to the ch teau in 1560.

CHENSTOKHOV See CZESTOCHOWA

CHEPPING WYCOMBE See HIGH WYCOMBE

CHEPSTOW (Wales)

Town in GWENT, on the WYE RIVER, 14 mi ENE of NEWPORT. Strategically situated in the Wye River valley, Chepstow guards the road to South Wales and has been fortified since prehistoric times. The town grew up around a castle built in the 12th century by the Normans, which is an impressive ruin today. The ruins of TINTERN ABBEY are nearby.

CHERA See KERALA

CHERASCO (Italy)

Town in Cuneo province, on the Tanaro River, 22 mi NE of CUNEO in PIEDMONT region, NW Italy. A treaty signed here on April 26, 1631, between France and Spain ended the War of the Matuan Succession. During the French Revolutionary Wars an armistice was signed here between FRANCE and SARDINIA on April 28, 1796, which ended Sardinia's support for AUSTRIA.

250 Cherbourg

CHERBOURG (France)

Town and port in the Manche department, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 190 mi WNW of PARIS at the N end of the COTENTIN PENINSULA in NORMANDY. Built on the site of a Roman station, Cherbourg was fought over in the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries by the French and English until it fell to France in 1450. Occupied by the Germans in World War II, it was used as a naval base until captured by the Allies on June 27, 1944. The harbor was practically destroyed in the battle.

CHERCHELL [Shershell] [ancient: Caesarea, Iol] (Algeria)

Town and port in N Algeria, on the Mediterranean Sea, approximately 50 mi W of ALGIERS. It was founded as Iol, a trading post, by CARTHAGE, which began to dominate the western Mediterranean in the sixth century B.C. In the first century B.C. the area fell to ROME, and in 25 B.C. the city's name was changed to Caesarea. It became the capital of MAURETANIA. Under the Romans Caesarea was an important port with a population of approximately 100,000 and was famous as a center of Hellenistic culture, with Juba II as king from c. 25 B.C. to c. 20 A.D.

The city fell to the Vandals in the early fifth century but was taken from them in 534 by the Byzantine general Belisarius. In 1516 the port was captured by Barbarossa (Khayr ad-Din), a Turkish corsair, and it became, along with other North African cities, a center of pirate activities that were not entirely ended until the early 19th century. FRANCE occupied the city in 1832. The site has many relics of antiquity, including the ruins of a Roman amphitheater. Caesarea's most famous citizen was Macrinus, Roman emperor from 217 to 218 A.D.

CHERCIO See KERCH

CHERDYN [Cherdyn'] (Russia)

City in Russia, 50 mi NNW of SOLIKAMSK, on the Kolva River, E European Russia. One of the oldest Russian settlements in the URAL MOUNTAINS, it was founded in 1472 and developed in the 16th century as a center on the northern trade route to SIBERIA.

CHERKASI See CHERKASY

CHERKASY [Cherkasi] (Ukraine)

Town in the Ukraine, on the DNIEPER RIVER, 100 mi SE of KIEV. Fortified by the 14th century, it was a leading Cossack town in the 15th century. It belonged to POLAND but passed to RUSSIA in 1795. In 1648 it was the scene of an uprising against Polish rule. The Germans occupied it from 1941 to 1943.

CHERKESSIA See CIRCASSIA

CHERKIO See KERCH

CHERNAYA (Ukraine)

River and battleground in the Ukraine. It flows E of SEVASTOPOL into the BLACK SEA in the CRIMEA. During the Crimean War the Allies defeated the Russians near this river on August 16, 1855.

CHERNIHIV [Chernigov] (Ukraine)

Town in the Ukraine, on the Desna River, 70 mi NNE of KIEV. Dating from the seventh century A.D., Chernihiv was the capital of a principality in the 11th century and one of the chief towns of Kievan RUSSIA. Its importance declined following its partial destruction by Mongols in 1240. It later passed to LITHUANIA, POLAND, and Russia. In World War II it fell to the Germans on September 13, 1941, and was retaken in 1943 by the Red Army. Here is found an early 11th-century cathedral and monastery.

CHERNIVTSY [Chernovtsy] [German: Czernowitz; Romanian: Cernăuți] (Ukraine)

Town and battlefield in the Ukraine, 140 mi SE of LVIV on the Prut River. Chief town of the BUKOVINA area in the 15th century, it passed to TURKEY and then to AUSTRO-HUNGARY in the 18th century. At the heart of Ukrainian nationalistic activities in the 19th century, it became capital of Bukovina in 1849. The scene of fighting from 1915 to 1917, it passed to ROMANIA at the end of World War I and to the USSR in 1940. A 13th-century fortress and 17th-century wooden church here are especially noteworthy.

CHERNOYE MORE See BLACK SEA

CHERNYAKHOVSK [German: Insterburg] (Russia)

City in Russia, 50 mi E of KALININGRAD. Founded by the Teutonic Knights in the 14th century, it remained in German hands until its capture by the Soviets under General Chornyakhov in January 1945. It was assigned to the USSR by the POTSDAM agreement.

CHEROKEE OUTLET (United States)

A strip of land along the S border of KANSAS. This land was guaranteed to the Cherokee Indians by treaties of 1828 and 1833 when they were forced to retreat across the MISSISSIPPI RIVER. The land was purchased by the U.S. government in 1891 and divided between Oklahoma and Kansas.

CHERRY VALLEY (United States)

Village, 50 mi W of ALBANY, in central NEW YORK State. During the American Revolution, on November 11, 1778, Iroquois Indians under chief Joseph Brant and Captain Walter Butler massacred Americans in the fortified settlement of Cherry Valley in retaliation for the colonial assault on Indian villages.

CHERSONESE See CRIMEA

CHERSONESUS See SEVASTOPOL

CHERSONESUS AUREA See MALAY PENINSULA

CHERSONESUS, TAURIC (Ukraine)

Ancient city of Tauric Chersonese, now the CRIMEA, 3 mi W of SEVASTOPOL, S Ukraine. First founded by Ionian Greeks in the sixth century B.C., it was refounded in the fifth century B.C. by Greeks from Heraclea Pontica, Turkish EREGLI. It became a Dorian city, retaining its independence against the Scythians, Tauri, and others. It had a considerable grain trade with ATHENS and the coastal cities of PONTUS. In 110 B.C. it was incorporated into the Pontic empire of Mithridates as protection against the Scythians. A free city under ROME, it flourished under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, but has been uninhabited since the 14th century.

CHERSONESUS THRACIA See GALLIPOLI PENINSULA

CHERZETI See KERCH

CHESAPEAKE BAY (United States)

Maritime inlet stretching from the Atlantic Ocean at NORFOLK, VIRGINIA, 193 mi N to BALTIMORE, MARYLAND. The bay connects Baltimore with the sea and is the largest inlet of the eastern United States's Atlantic coastal plain. JAMESTOWN, near the bay, was settled as early as 1607 and the bay charted during the following year by Captain John Smith. During the War of 1812 the British used the bay to reach and burn WASHINGTON in 1814, but were repulsed at Baltimore.

CHESHIRE (England)

County of NW England, with its administrative headquarters at CHESTER. Settled in the Bronze and Iron Ages, Cheshire was incorporated into the kingdom of MERCIA following the defeat of the Celts by the Anglo-Saxons in A.D. 830. The county was established by the Normans in 1066. It lost large areas in 1974 to the new counties of Greater Manchester and Merseyside.

CHESMÉ [Çesme, Tchesme] (Turkey)

Village near site of naval battle on the Sakiz Strait, 45 mi W of IZMIR, in Izmir province, W Turkey. On July 7 and 8, 1770, the Russian navy under Admiral Alexei Orlov and Vice-Admiral John Elphinston defeated a Turkish fleet under Hassan Bey here during the Russo-Turkish Wars. The Russians failed to exploit this victory, however, thus missing their only chance in 200 years of taking ISTANBUL.

CHESTE (Spain)

Town and battle site in Valencia province, 16 mi W of VALENCIA, E Spain. During the Carlist War of 1836–37 the forces of Queen Christina here defeated the Carlists, or conservative supporters of Don Carlos.

CHESTER [ancient: Castra Devana, Deva; Saxon: Ceaster, Legaceaster] (England)

Ancient city and administrative headquarters of Cheshire on the River Dee, 15 mi S of LIVERPOOL. During the Roman occupation Deva was the chief western legionary fortress, built to halt attacks from northern WALES and northern Britain. During the 10th century A.D. it was important under the Mercian kings and was the last town to surrender to William the Conqueror of NORMANDY in 1070. Annexed to the Crown in 1241 by Henry III, it became a bishopric under Henry VIII. During the Civil War it was besieged by Parliamentarians and taken in 1646. Its importance as a port had declined by the 18th century, following the development of Liverpool. Its medieval walls are still standing. There are traces of a large Roman amphitheater here. Also noteworthy is the cathedral, which incorporates medieval elements.

CHESTER [former: Upland] (United States)

City in SE PENNSYLVANIA on the DELAWARE RIVER, 14 mi WSW of PHILADELPHIA. Settled by Swedes in 1644, it is the second oldest settlement in Pennsylvania. The first assembly of Pennsylvania was convened here in 1682 by William Penn. The first house built in Pennsylvania by the English, dating from 1683, still stands here.

CHESTER-LE-STREET [ancient: Coneangium, Cunecastre] (England)

Urban district in County DURHAM, 10 mi S of NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, N England. Built on the site of a Roman military headquarters, it was once the seat of the bishops of BERNICIA. Remains of Roman and earlier settlements have been unearthed here.

CHETATE (Romania)

Village and battlefield in Dolj province on the DANUBE RIVER, N of CALAFAT, SW Romania. During the Crimean War the Turks under Ahmed Pasha drove the Russians under General Fischbuch out of Chetate in a battle during January 6–9, 1854.

CHETHAM See CHATHAM

CHEVILLY (France)

Battle site and suburb S of PARIS, in the Seine department. During the siege of Paris in the Franco-Prussian War, the French under General Joseph Vinoy broke out of the city on September 30, 1870, but were driven back at Chevilly by the Prussians under von Tümping. See also PRUSSIA.

CHEYENNE (United States)

City and capital of WYOMING, 10 mi N of the COLORADO border, SE Wyoming. Cheyenne developed alongside the Union Pacific Railroad in 1867 and was made territorial capital in 1869. It became an outfitting point for goldfields of the BLACK HILLS. In 1957 launching pads for intercontinental ballistic missiles were established nearby.

CHHATTISGARH (India)

A state in central India with the capital at RAIPUR. Formerly the western part of MADHYA PRADESH, Chhattisgarh was formed on November 1, 2000, as the 26th state of the Indian Union. The unbroken history of Chhattisgarh or of South Kosala can be traced back to the fourth century A.D. In the 10th century A.D. a powerful Rajput family ruled the kingdom of Chedi at Tripuri near JABALPUR. This Rajput family called themselves the Haihaya dynasty, which ruled Chhattisgarh for six centuries until about the 14th century. The Marathas attacked Chhattisgarh in 1741 and destroyed the Haihaya power. In 1745 A.D. after conquering the region, they deposed Raghunathsinhji, the last surviving member of the Ratanpur house. In 1758, the Marathas finally annexed Chhattisgarh. In 1818 Chhattisgarh came under some sort of British control for the first time. The first war of independence in 1857 was spearheaded in Chhattisgarh by Vir Narain Singh. Though long a part of Madhya Pradesh state, Chhattisgarh has been a site of separatist activity since the early 1920s and more recently the Maoist Naxalist movement.

CHIA-HSING See JIAXING

CHIAMA NGU CHU See SALWEEN

CHIANG-HSI See JIANGXING

CHIANG-LING See JIANGLING

CHIANG MAI [Chiengmai, Kiangmai] (Thailand)

City and capital of Chiang Mai province, 360 mi NNW of BANGKOK on the Ping River, N Thailand. Thailand's second-largest city, it was the capital of the Lanna Thai or Larn Na kingdom from A.D. 1296 until 1558, when it fell to the Burmese. The Burmese were driven out in 1774 by the Siamese king Taksin.

CHIANG-SU See JIANGSU

CHIAN-NING See NANJING

CHIAPAS (Mexico)

State in SE Mexico on the Pacific Ocean, bordered on the E by GUATEMALA. The Spanish had great difficulty in conquering the area, which in colonial times was part of the captaincy general of Guatemala. After independence from Spain and after the collapse of the Mexican Empire in 1823, Chiapas attained a degree of independence until it became part of Mexico in 1824. Its present boundaries were set in 1882. Near Tuxtla Gutiérrez, which is the capital, are the Mayan ruins of BONAMPAK, discovered in 1946 and containing colorful frescoes. Also in Chiapas is another splendid Mayan city, PALENQUE, with well-preserved temples. Chiapas has been the site of local revolutionary activity since 1994 by the Zapatistas led by Commandante Marcos that have made armed and political struggle for the benefit of the indigenous populations. The state's economic development has been delayed by the local unrest and lack of adequate transportation facilities.

CHIARI [ancient: Clarium] (Italy)

Town and battleground in Brescia province, 16 mi W of BRESCIA, in LOMBARDY region, N Italy. During the War of Spanish Succession the Austrians under Prince Eugene defeated the French under François de Villeroy here on September 1, 1701.

CHIARRAIGHE See KERRYCHIBA (Japan)

City of Honshū province, capital of Chiba prefecture, on the E shore of TOKYO Bay. Chiba was the capital of a powerful Daimyo family from the 12th to the 16th centuries A.D.

CHICAGO (United States)

City in NE ILLINOIS on the shore of LAKE MICHIGAN. The city is located at the shortest and lowest connection between the GREAT LAKES and MISSISSIPPI RIVER watersheds, making it a natural location for a transportation center. Two French explorers, Father Jacques Marquette and Louis Jolliet, were the first Europeans here in 1673. Nearly a century later a fur-trading post was established on the site, and in 1803 a U.S. Army post, FORT DEARBORN, was erected. During the War of 1812 it was the scene of an Indian massacre.

By the mid-1820s the westward movement brought settlers and commerce to the area, and in 1830 the town was named Chicago from an Indian word meaning onion place. The next stimulus to Chicago's growth came with the building of the railroads, which gradually made the city the hub of the nation's transportation system. Chicago became the country's foremost meat-packing center, with enormous stockyards and slaughterhouses. A sudden but brief halt to its progress came in 1871 when most of the city was destroyed and hundreds killed in the Great Chicago Fire.

In the late 19th century Chicago became the home of some of the first and best steel skyscrapers and also of some of the worst labor disturbances. The HAYMARKET SQUARE riot of 1886 caused the deaths of seven policemen when a bomb was thrown and resulted in the convictions of eight alleged anarchists, who almost certainly were not guilty. In the PULLMAN strike of 1894, Federal troops broke the resistance of the labor unions with considerable bloodshed. By this time, however, the city was becoming a midwestern cultural center, marked by the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893, which contributed to Chicago's place in architectural style.

In the 1920s the city was notable chiefly for the murderous gang warfare arising out of Prohibition. Al Capone became a gang leader of international renown and a symbol of the place and era. Chicago has also long been known as the home of one of the most efficient old style political machines, especially under the leadership of Richard J. Daley, first elected mayor in 1955.

Today Chicago, the "Windy City," is at the center of a diversified metropolitan area, is the third-largest city in the country, and is one of the world's most important commercial, financial, industrial, and transportation centers.

CHICHÉN ITZÁ (Mexico)

Archaeological site in YUCATÁN province, 20 mi W of MORELIA, S Mexico. It was built up in the ninth century A.D. by Mayan people from the S after the collapse of the classical MAYA EMPIRE. In the late 10th century, influences from the Toltec of Mexico (see TULA) became strong, suggesting an actual invasion to modern students. The magnificent buildings still extant date largely from the Toltec-Maya period and include temples, pyramids, towers, and a cenote, or sacred well or lake, into which young men and women were thrown as sacrifice. In its late period Chichén Itzá became a member of the League of Mayapán along with MAYAPÁN and UXMAL and gradually declined. It was finally abandoned c. A.D. 1200.

254 Chichester

CHICHESTER [ancient: Noviomagus Regensium; Saxon: Cisse ceastre] (England)

City and administrative headquarters of West SUSSEX, 16 mi ENE of PORTSMOUTH. A flourishing Roman town, it was conquered in A.D. 477 by the Saxon Aella and his sons. Important in the South Saxon Kingdom, it had a mint in the early 10th century A.D. Construction of the Norman cathedral was begun c. 1090. Chichester was important during the Middle Ages in the wool trade, and many buildings from the 12th to the 14th centuries remain, as do parts of the ancient wall. Nearby is the excavated ruins of a large Roman palace at Fishbourne.

CHICHICASTENANGO [Santo Tomas] (Guatemala)

Town in W central Guatemala, approximately 50 mi NW of GUATEMALA CITY. After the Quiché Indians, of Mayan linguistic stock, were defeated in 1524 by the Spanish conquistador Pedro de Alvarado, this town became their spiritual center. A manuscript of the Popol Vuh, the sacred book of the Quiché, was discovered in a Dominican monastery founded in 1542. Indian relics, including carved jade, are among the town's attractions.

CHICKAHOMINY RIVER (United States)

River and site of battles in E VIRGINIA. It rises 16 mi NW of RICHMOND and flows SE into the JAMES RIVER. The banks of the river were the scene of heavy fighting in the PENINSULA campaign and Seven Days Battles of the Civil War.

CHICKAMAUGA CREEK (United States)

Creek and battlefield in N GEORGIA, 12 mi SE of CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE. On September 19 and 20, 1863, during the Civil War, the Confederates under General Braxton Bragg won a decisive victory here over Union forces under General William Rosecrans. This was one of the bloodiest battles of the war.

CHICKASAW BLUFFS (United States)

Hills and battlefield in W MISSISSIPPI, on the Chickasaw Bayou just N of VICKSBURG. On December 29, 1862, General William Tecumseh Sherman's unsuccessful attack on Chickasaw Bluffs, held by the Confederates under General John Pemberton, put an end to Union hopes of taking Vicksburg during the early stages of the Civil War.

CHIDAMBARAM [Thillai] (India)

Town in TAMIL NADU, 150 miles S of CHENNAI. It is the site of a vast temple complex of Dravidian Hindu shrines including the Nataraja temple and the Thil-laikaliyamman temple.

CHIENGMAI See CHIANG MAI

CHIETI [ancient: Teate Marrucinorum] (Italy)

City and capital of Chieti province, ABRUZZI region, near the Pescara River, 9 mi SW of PESCARA. Capital of the Marrucini, Teate was taken by the Romans in 305 B.C. It was held by the Ostrogoth king Theodoric. It then passed to the Lombards. Under the Normans it was capital of Abruzzi. It then became a holding of the Hohenstaufens and Angevins. It was taken by the French in 1802 during the Napoleonic Wars. Roman ruins and a Romanesque cathedral are here. See also Kingdom of NAPLES.

CHIFU See YANTAI

CHIHLI See HEBEI

CHIHUAHUA (Mexico)

City and capital of Chihuahua state, N Mexico, 230 mi S of EL PASO, TEXAS. Settled in the 16th century, it was the scene of uprisings against Spanish rule, especially in 1810. It was linked with DURANGO until Mexico won independence in 1823. It was captured twice by U.S. forces during the Mexican War. There is a monument here to revolutionary martyr Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, who was executed here in 1811.

CHILACHAP See TJILATJAP

CHILE

A nation occupying a narrow strip of the western side of South America, extending 2,650 miles northward from CAPE HORN.

In the mid-15th century, when Europeans arrived, northern Chile was part of the INCA EMPIRE. The rest was occupied by the Araucanian Indians, who fiercely resisted the Spaniards until the late 19th century. Diego de Almagro, who helped conquer PERU, made a long march S into Chile, beginning in 1535, and probably reached present Coquimbo. Another Spaniard, Juan de Saavedra, founded VALPARAÍSO in 1536, but the city was not permanently established until 1544 by Pedro de VALDIVIA. De Valdivia began a march from Peru in 1540, founded SANTIAGO in 1541, CONCEPCIÓN in 1550, and VALDIVIA in 1552. Concepción was destroyed by Indians in 1555 and refounded two years later. During most of the colonial era Chile was a captaincy general under the viceroyalty of Peru, but in 1778 it became practically independent.

A revolt against the Spanish government began in 1810 under the leadership of Juan Martínez de Rozas and Bernardo O'Higgins. The first phase of the struggle ended on October 1–2, 1814, when O'Higgins was defeated by superior Spanish forces at RANCAGUA. In 1817 José de San Martín led an army over the ANDES from ARGENTINA, and on February 12, 1817, he and O'Higgins bested the Spaniards at the battle of CHACABUCO. San Martín's victory on the banks of the MAIPO RIVER on April 5, 1818, assured independence, which had been proclaimed already on February 12, 1818.

O'Higgins ruled Chile until 1823, when he was ousted. A new constitution in 1833 provided a government that stabilized the nation for two decades. From 1836 to 1839 Chile was at war with a dictator who ruled both Peru and BOLIVIA. The war ended with a Chilean victory on January 20, 1839, at YUNGAY, Peru. Another conflict occurred during the period 1879–84 when Chile again fought Peru and Bolivia in the War of the Pacific. A dispute over access to nitrate fields ended with Chile annexing Bolivia's Pacific coast region. The Tacna-Arica Controversy between Chile and Peru arose out of the treaty ending this war, in which two provinces of Peru were ceded to Chile for 10 years. Because a plebiscite to decide possession was not held as scheduled in 1909, Chile colonized the region. The controversy did not end until 1929 when President Herbert Hoover of the United States proposed that Chile retain ARICA but return TACNA to Peru.

The later 19th century was an era of conflict between presidential and congressional power. The president was overthrown in January 1891 in a brief civil war, and congress prevailed through the early 20th century. In 1902 Argentina and Chile settled long-standing boundary disputes and commemorated the agreement in 1904 by erecting a statue, the Christ of the Andes, on a mountain top on their border. Chile joined with BRAZIL and Argentina as the ABC Powers in 1914 to mediate a dispute between the UNITED STATES and MEXICO. The depression of the 1930s brought hardships, blamed on the government, and in 1938 a coalition of democrats and leftists won power. Nazi supporters were active during World War II, but in 1943 Chile broke diplomatic relations with the Axis powers and in 1945 declared war on JAPAN.

During the 1950s and 1960s inflation was high and Chile's economy faltered. When the Christian Democratic Party's Eduardo Frei Montalva was elected president in 1964, his government took over foreign-owned companies and distributed land to small farmers. In the election of 1970, Salvador Allende Gossens won a narrow victory, becoming the first Marxist freely elected to head an American nation. His policies were strongly opposed, and on September 11, 1973, he was killed in the course of a bloody military coup. He was succeeded by General Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, who then headed a dictatorial right-wing regime. During the late 1970s Chile's economy underwent rapid growth and lowered inflation, but the early 1980s saw a serious recession. The Pinochet government was responsible for many human rights violations as opponents of the regime were tortured and killed by government forces and death squads. Pinochet was forced to cede control to a popularly elected government of Patricio Aylwin Azocar in 1990. Chile has remained politically stable, although there is still tension between the military and the government concerning the human rights violations of the Pinochet regime. Chile has continued to see strong economic development through the 1990s through free market policies and trade alliances such as MERCOSUR with its South American neighbors. Chile signed a free trade agreement with the United States in 2003. Santiago is the capital, and Concepción, Valparaíso, and VIÑA DEL MAR are important cities.

CHILIANWALA [Chillianwala] (Pakistan)

Village and battlefield in PUNJAB, 28 mi WNW of GUJARAT, N Pakistan. During the Second Sikh War an indecisive engagement was fought here, on January 13, 1849, between the Sikhs under Shere Singh and the British under Sir Hugh Gough. The Sikhs were crushed five weeks later at Gujarat.

CHI-LIN See JILINCHILKOOT PASS (Canada, United States)

Mountain pass N of SKAGWAY, ALASKA, in the Coast Range, N ROCKY MOUNTAINS. Long a Chilkoot Indian route, it was first entered by Europeans in 1878. During the KLONDIKE gold rush of 1896–98 the pass was used by many gold prospectors. See WHITE PASS.

CHILLÁN [former: Chillán Viejo] (Chile)

City and capital of Ñuble province, 56 mi NE of CONCEPCIÓN, central Chile. Founded in the 16th century, it was reconstructed after devastation by earthquake in 1751 and then ravaged again by earthquake in 1835 and 1939. The last killed 10,000 people and was one of the world's worst earthquakes. Bernardo O'Higgins, the Chilean liberator, was born here, and much revolutionary activity took place in Chillán.

CHILLÁN VIEJO See CHILLÁNCHILL CHOINNIGH See KILKENNYCHILLIANWALA See CHILIANWALACHILLICOTHE (United States)

City in S central OHIO, on the Scioto River, 44 mi S of Columbus. Settled in 1796, it was the capital of the NORTHWEST TERRITORY from 1800 to 1803 and state capital from 1803 to 1810 and from 1812 to 1816. It is the site of burial mounds of prehistoric Hopewell Indians.

CHILLON (Switzerland)

Castle in Vaud canton at the E end of LAKE GENEVA. Dating from the 13th century, it was a stronghold of SAVOY. Francois de Bonnavard, hero of Lord Byron's The Prisoner of Chillon, was imprisoned here from 1530 to 1536.

CHILOÉ (Chile)

Island and battlefield in the Pacific Ocean off the S coast of Chile across the Gulf of Corcovado. During the Chilean War of Independence the Spanish Royalists under Quintanilla were dislodged from this island on January 19, 1826, by the Chilean patriots under Ramón Freire, thus losing their last foothold in Chile.

CHILPANCINGO Chilpancingo de los Bravos

City in GUERRERO province, 55 mi NE of ACAPULCO, SW Mexico. Founded in 1591, it was the site of the first Mexican congress in 1813, which met under José María Morelos y Pavón. It was the scene of fighting in the wars of independence and in the revolution of the early 20th century.

CHILPANCINGO DE LOS BRAVOS See CHILPANCINGOCHILUNG [Keelung, Kilung] (Japanese: Kirun)(Taiwan)

City and port on the East China Sea, 15 mi ENE of TAIPEI. Occupied by the Spanish in 1626, it was subsequently controlled by the Dutch, the Chinese (who began its permanent settlement), and the Manchus. The port was occupied from 1883 to 1885 by French troops during the Sino-French War. It was developed into a city under the Japanese occupation of 1895 to 1945.

CHIMKENT See SHYMKENTCHIMU KINGDOM See CHAN CHANCHIN See CHIN HILLS SPECIAL DIVISIONCHINA

One of the world's major powers, occupying a vast area of central and eastern Asia. Civilization is traditionally thought to have arisen here c. 2000 B.C. when the legendary Xia dynasty ruled an area that apparently included parts of SHANXI and HENAN, though archaeological confirmation for this is lacking. By 1500 B.C. the Xia were supplanted by the Shang Empire, which extended its rule over a major area of present N central China. The Shang ruled a semi-nomadic country where hunting was a major food source and farming was of the primitive slash-and-burn type. Chinese artistic skill was already impressive, however, as Shang bronzes attest. A rival to the Shang developed as the Zhou dynasty grew in the western valleys of the WEI and HUANG HO. By 1000 B.C.

the Shang were conquered and the Zhou had started to develop a complex feudal society centered around the development of major irrigation projects, which transformed agriculture and led to the rise of permanent settlements.

In 771 B.C. the Zhou lost much of their power to strong feudal states after a barbarian raid killed the king and forced their capital's relocation E to LUOYANG. Although Chinese political unity was lost, philosophy became a powerful force as Taoism, Mohism, and other schools gained wide followings. Confucius lived around the turn of the sixth century B.C., and his teachings would later become the main ideological pillars of imperial China.

In 221 B.C. the state of Qin unified the present extent of the country for the first time, signalling the beginning of Imperial China. The Qin created the GREAT WALL by linking former structures as a protection against northwestern barbarians, but their rule was short-lived.

The succeeding Han Empire (206 B.C.–A.D. 220) established a nation comparable by the first century B.C. to the ROMAN EMPIRE, with which it was a frequent trading partner. The Han Empire was briefly controlled by a usurper from A.D. 8 to 23, but flourished upon its resumption. Buddhism, imported from INDIA, became an important force and Chinese scholarship gained world renown during this period.

In A.D. 220 a weakened Han dynasty fell, and the empire split into a host of contending states. This fragmentation lasted until 581 when the Sui dynasty gained overall control. The Sui built the Grand Canal and sought to solidify their hold, but a series of disastrous wars of territorial expansion led to their downfall. Power passed to the Tang Empire in 618, which soon became recognized as the leading power in the world, noted for its accomplishments in art, philosophy, and science. The capital of CH'ANG-AN (XI'AN) attracted a vast array of visitors from across Asia, including embassies from NEPAL, MAGADHA, CONSTANTINOPLE, and PERSIA. Tang receptiveness extended to foreign philosophy and belief. Nestorian Christianity flourished alongside Buddhism and Persian religions during their rule. In addition the emperor favorably received an embassy from Muhammed, the prophet.

Although after the end of the Tang dynasty in 907, ANNAM and parts of the southwestern empire had broken away from imperial rule, Song rulers, taking over in 960, could find some solace in China's continuing scientific prowess. Movable type for printing, the magnetic compass, and gunpowder were invented during their rule.

Kublai Khan, the Mongol, annexed China and inaugurated the Yuan dynasty in 1260. The MONGOL EMPIRE regained all of China's lost territory and also brought Nan-chao (LAOS) and TIBET under Chinese sway. BEIJING was made the capital, and foreign trade was greatly expanded. Marco Polo benefited from this new climate during his Chinese travels from 1275 to 1292 in a land he knew as CATHAY.

The Mongols were driven from China in the 14th century and the Ming dynasty ruled over a revitalized empire. China was placed under a ruthless totalitarian despotism that had little regard for the lives of its individual subjects. Under active Ming emperors, China's international influence was substantial; even JAPAN was compelled to pay tribute. Foreign commerce was pressed as never before, and Chinese traders sailed as far as the African coast. In the 16th century however, court politics in the Ming palaces turned China inward. The ships were burned and China declined as a world power.

In 1644, Manchu invaders from the northeastern frontier conquered China. The early Manchu Empire was stable and extensive, successfully incorporating Chinese ideology and bureaucratic system. By the mid-18th century it became suspicious of relentlessly growing Western imperial ambitions and closed its borders, except for the port of GUANGZHOU. During the 19th century China's increasing weakness became apparent as Great Britain easily won the Opium War of 1839 and demanded the first of several unequal treaties that opened China to Western commercial exploitation and forced the annexation of various territories. The Manchus were also tested by many internal revolts, such as the Taiping rebellion of 1850–64. In 1900 the Manchu-approved, anti-Western Boxer Rebellion erupted. It was crushed by an international army of Western troops and gunboats. The United States then demanded the Open Door policy guaranteeing Chinese independence and open trade, because it feared European imperial aims.

Imperial China ended in 1912 when the Manchu dynasty was overthrown and a republic headed by Sun Yat-sen was founded. The situation remained volatile, however, and Nationalist forces led by Chiang Kai-shek fought Mao Zedong's Communists for control. In 1931 Japan seized MANCHURIA and by 1939 had conquered most of eastern China. During World War II China fought with the Allies and in 1945 signed a treaty with GREAT BRITAIN and the UNITED STATES establishing its position as a major postwar power.

Civil war raged in China after the Japanese defeat, and in 1949 the Communists took power, forcing the Nationalists to flee to TAIWAN. Chinese armies fought U.N. forces in KOREA in 1950 and aided the Vietnamese during the first Indochinese War. Mao Zedong broke China's close ties with the SOVIET UNION in 1956, and China became a major independent world power, stressing its kinship to the developing countries. Mao initiated the massive purges and dislocation of the Cultural Revolution in the late 1960s. After his death in 1976, power passed to a group of leaders who attempted to move away from Mao's legacy and resume a more moderate course. From 1976 through 1978, China was ruled by a committee of which Hua Guofeng was the most powerful, but by 1979, supreme power was taken by Deng Xiaoping, who shifted China's course toward economic modernization, some political reform, and opening of trade and relations to the West. In 1979 a short border war with VIETNAM occurred, and in 1980 the "Gang of Four" trial helped to repudiate the excesses of the Cultural Revolution and consolidate Deng's power in the government as his protégés Hu Yaobang and Zhao Ziyang took leading roles. The 1980s saw accelerated economic growth in China. In 1987 many of the older leaders stepped down as Zhao Ziyang was elevated to Chairman of the Communist Party. Progress in economic reforms was not matched by the speed and breadth of political reform. In 1987 the spread of the democracy movement came to a head in the TIANANMEN SQUARE protests where government troops fired on protesters with estimates of 2,600 dead and 7,000 to 10,000 injured. Jiang Zemin took over as head of the Communist Party in 1989 and was appointed president in 1993. China continued to grow at a high rate during the 1990s. In 1997, Deng died, ending almost 20 years as the ruler or power behind the rulers in China. In 1997 HONG KONG was transferred from British to Chinese rule as a Special Administrative Area under the "One Country and Two Systems" policy. In 1999, MACAO was transferred from Portuguese to Chinese rule. In the 21st century, China has become recognized again as a legitimate world power and economic powerhouse. The beginning of the 21st century has seen China's first manned spaceflight in 2003 and China is looking forward to hosting the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing.

CHINAN See TSINAN

CHINATOWN See SAN FRANCISCO

CHIN-CHOU See JINZHOU

CHINCHOW See JINZHOU

CHINDWIN (Myanmar)

River flowing from N Myanmar southward to the IRRRAWADDY RIVER at Myingyan. During World War II the Chindwin was the scene of much fighting in the Burma campaign. It was crossed by the British in November 1944 as they advanced into Burma.

CHINESE TURKISTAN See XINJIANG

CHINESE WALL See GREAT WALL

CH'ING-HAI See QINGHAI

CHINGLEPUT See CHENGALPATTU

CH'ING-TAO See QINGDAO

CHING-TE-CHEN See JINGTEZHEN

CHING-YÜAN See NINGBO

CHINHAE (South Korea)

City and naval base in South Kyongsang province, 20 mi W of BUSAN. During the Russo-Japanese War of 1904–05 Chinhae was the base of operation for the Japanese navy. Today it is the headquarters of the South Korean navy.

CHIN HILLS SPECIAL DIVISION [Chin] (Myanmar)

Division of Myanmar, NW of Magwe division, and SE of the Indian border. This area was created in 1948 to recognize the distinctive Chins of Tibetan origin. It was the scene of heavy fighting from 1942 to 1944 during World War II in the Japanese campaign against MANIPUR.

CHIN-HSIEN See JINZHOU

CHIN-HUA See JINHUA

CHINHUT (India)

Village and battlefield in UTTAR PRADESH state, 10 mi N of LAKNAU, N India. During the Indian Mutiny, on June 30, 1857, British garrison troops under Sir Henry Lawrence were defeated here by mutineers under Barhat Ahmed and forced to withdraw to Laknau.

CHIN-KIANG See ZHENJIANGCHIN-MEN See QUEMOYCHINNEROTH See GALILEE, SEA OFCHINON [ancient: Caïno] (France)

Town in the Indre-et-Loire department, on the Vienne River, 18 mi ESE of SAUMUR, central France. An important strongpoint even before the arrival of Roman conquerors, it was heavily fortified from the 11th to 15th centuries with three separate fortresses. One, the Château de Saint-Georges was the residence of Henry II of ENGLAND and resisted a siege by Philip II of France from 1204 to 1205. In 1429, in the Château du Milieu, the best preserved of the three, Joan of Arc met Charles VII of France for the first time.

CHIOGGIA [ancient: Fossa Claudia] (Italy)

Town and port in Venezia province, VENETO region, on an island 15 mi S of VENICE in the Venetian lagoon. Of Roman origin, the fishing town is built on piles over the water. The Genoese took Chioggia in A.D. 1378 but were finally forced to surrender here to the Venetians in 1380. This victory assured Venice's naval power for the next two centuries.

CHIOS [Khíos] [Italian: Scio] (Greece)

Island off the W coast of TURKEY in the AEGEAN SEA. The reputed home of Homer, Chios joined the Pan-Ionian League in the eighth century B.C. and submitted to Cyrus I of PERSIA in 546 B.C. Following the defeat of Persia by the Greeks in 480 B.C., Chios joined the Delian League and was considered to be one of the best governed states in Greece. It revolted unsuccessfully against ATHENS in 412 B.C., but its independence was recognized in 354 B.C. It was occupied successively by Romans, Byzantines, Seljuk Turks, Venetians, and Genoese. During the War of Greek independence in the 19th century, many of Chios's Christian inhabitants were massacred by the Turks. The island was reunited with Greece in 1913 after the Balkan Wars.

CHIPEHAM See CHIPPENHAMCHIPPAWA (Canada)

Village and battlefield in SE ONTARIO on the Niagara River, 2 mi N of NIAGARA FALLS. During the War of 1812 the Americans under Jacob Brown defeated a mixed force of British, Canadians, and Indians under General Phineas Riall here on July 5, 1814.

CHIPPENHAM [ancient: Chipeham, Cippanhamm] (England)

Town in WILTSHIRE, on the Avon River, 12 mi ENE of BATH. The site of a royal residence during the Dark Ages, it was taken by Danish invaders in A.D. 878. It was mentioned in the Domesday Book of 1086 as a Crown manor. There is a church of the 12th to 15th centuries in the town. Five miles away is Lacock Abbey, a mansion incorporating an abbey and architecture from the Gothic to Georgian periods. CALNE is also nearby.

CHIPPING WYCOME See HIGH WYCOMBECHISHIMA RETTO See KURIL ISLANDSCHISHOLM TRAIL (United States)

Route from TEXAS to KANSAS, formerly used to drive cattle to market. In 1866 trader Jesse Chisholm started N from the vicinity of SAN ANTONIO, Texas, with a wagon load of buffalo hides. Chisholm had a trading post near WICHITA, Kansas, and he drove his wagon across Indian territory that is now OKLAHOMA. According to traditional accounts, the wagon wheels made deep ruts and marked out a route cattlemen used for almost 20 years to drive cattle to railheads in Kansas, especially to ABILENE. On the first drive almost 35,000 longhorn steers made the dusty trip, and within two years the Chisholm trail and another trail saw 10 times that many cattle trudging north. However, as more railroads were built and more land fenced in, the trail fell into disuse.

CHISIMAIO See KISMAYU

CHIŞINĂU [Kishinev, Kishinyov] (Moldova)

Capital city of Moldova, 90 mi NW of ODESSA. A monastic site in the 15th century, it was held by the Turks in the 16th century and was often attacked, particularly in the Russo-Turkish war of 1788. It flourished after becoming the capital of BESSARABIA in 1812, when RUSSIA annexed it. Pushkin lived in exile here from 1820 to 1823. It was the scene of a Russian massacre of Jews in 1903. Part of ROMANIA from 1918 to 1940, it was severely damaged in World War II.

CHITA (Russia)

City in Russia on the Trans-Siberian Railroad, 3,000 mi E of MOSCOW. Founded as a Cossack stockade, it developed through trade with CHINA. The Decembrists were exiled here following their revolutionary plot of December 1825. It was capital of the Transbaikalian government from 1851 to 1926.

CH'I-TAN See CATHAYCHITTOOR [Chitor, Chitorgarh] (India)

Town in RAJASTHAN, 65 mi ENE of UDAIPUR, NW central India. Capital of the state of Mewār and stronghold of the Sesodia Rājputs, it was besieged three times by Muslim attackers in 1303, 1534–35, and 1567–68. Each time the defenders chose death rather than surrender. The capital was moved in 1568 to Udaipur.

CHITOR See CHITTOORCHITORGARH See CHITTOORCHITRAL [Chitral, Kashkar] (Pakistan)

Former princely state and district of North-West Frontier province, on the Afghan border in N Pakistan. Chitral was conquered in the first century B.C. by the Chinese. In the 17th century A.D. the House of Mehtar was established, which became the resort of slave traders who sold the beautiful Chitrali women in PESHAWAR and AFGHANISTAN. Chitral was occupied by the English in 1895 after troops under Sir Robert Low eventually routed 7,000 Pathans. It became part of Pakistan on August 15, 1947. See also MALAKAND PASS.

CHITRAR See CHITRALCHITTAGONG [Chittagrām] [Portuguese: Porto Grande] (Bangladesh)

Major port town on the Karnaphuli River, 120 mi SE of DHAKA, SE Bangladesh. Known to Arab sailors in the 10th century A.D., and to the first Portuguese explorers, it was conquered by Muslims in the 14th century. Captured by the nawab of BENGAL in 1666, it was ceded to the British East India Company in 1760. The port was damaged in the Indo-Pakistani War of 1971.

CHITTIM See LARNACACHIU-CHIANG See JIUJIANGCHIOSI See CLUSIUMCHIZBÜHEL See KITZBÜHELCHKALOV See ORENBURGCHLUMEC [German: Kulm] (Czech Republic)

Village and battlefield in Severočeský province, 5 mi NW of Usti and LABEM, in BOHEMIA, NW Czech Republic. During the Napoleonic Wars the French were defeated here in 1813 by the Allied forces of AUSTRIA, RUSSIA, and PRUSSIA.

CH'NG-YANG See CHANGSHACHOCIM See KHOTINCHOGA-ZAMBIL [ancient: Dur Untashī] (Iran)

Archaeological site in Khuzistan province, 90 mi N of AHWAZ, SW Iran. This site has the only existing examples of Elamite architecture, including the remains of a ziggurat, palace, and temples. It was founded c. 1250 B.C. as a holy town by the Elamite king Untash-Gal. The town, which was never completed, was destroyed in 640 B.C. by Assurbanipal in his campaign against the last Elamite king, Humbanaltash III. See ASSYRIA, ELAM.

CHOISEUL See SOLOMON ISLANDS

CHOISY-LE-ROI (France)

Suburb SSE of PARIS, in Val-de-Marne department. The château built here in 1686 by Mansard was the favorite residence of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. It was destroyed during the French Revolution and its stones sold to aid the revolutionary cause.

CHOJANICE [German: Konitz] (Poland)

Town and battleground in Bydgoszcz province, 45 mi NW of BYDGOSZCZ, central Poland. The Teutonic Knights won their last great victory over the Poles here in 1454.

CHO-K'OU-TIEN See ZHOUKOU DIANCHOLA (India, Sri Lanka)

Kingdom of ancient SE India and Ceylon, with its capitals at Tanjore and KANCHIBURAM. Chola emerged in the ninth century A.D. and expanded in the 10th and 11th centuries under Rajaraja I and Rajendra I when it captured Ceylon, invaded BENGAL, and occupied parts of MYANMAR, SUMATRA, and MALAYA after naval attacks. The kingdom declined in the 13th century.

CHOLET (France)

Town in Maine-et-Loire department, on the River Maine, 32 mi SSW of ANGERS, W central France. Dating from the 11th century A.D., Cholet was completely destroyed during the Wars of the VENDÉE of 1793 to 1796. It has since been rebuilt.

CHOLON See SAIGONCHOLULA [Cholula de Rivadabia] (Mexico)

Town in Puebla province, 8 mi W of PUEBLA, central Mexico. A former Aztec city, it was a major center of Mesoamerican culture as far back as the early classic period of A.D. 100 to 600. Human sacrifices were performed here by the Aztecs in honor of their god, Quetzalcoatl. The city was destroyed by Hernán Cortés in 1519, and the inhabitants were massacred.

CHOLULA DE RIVADABIA See CHOLULACHOMOLUNGMA See EVEREST, MOUNTCHONG-JIN [Chong-ju, Chungjin] [Japanese: Seishin] (North Korea)

Port, city, and battlefield in Hamgyōng province, on the Yellow Sea, 140 mi SW of VLADIVOSTOK. During the Russo-Japanese War the Japanese under General Mischchenko drove off Cossacks and occupied Chong-jin in April 1904. This was the first land engagement of the war.

CHONG-JU See CHONG-JINCHONGQING [Chungking, Ch'ung-ch'ing, Tchongking] (China)

City in SICHUAN province, on the YANGZI RIVER, 450 mi WSW of HANKOU, central China. Chongqing dates from the 11th century B.C. It suffered great devastation during the Zhang Xianzhong rebellion of the A.D. 1630s, and was the scene of a widespread revolt against the Manchu dynasty in 1896–98. Chongqing was made capital of China by the Nationalists from 1938 to 1946 and again briefly in 1949, until it was taken by the Communists. It was a U.S. air base from 1944 to 1945 during World War II.

CHONGQING (China)

Municipal-level city in SICHUAN province in central China. In 1997, as part of a project to develop western China, Chongqing was combined with three prefecture-level cities to make one municipal administrative region. Chongqing's location near the Three Gorges Dam has made it the manufacturing center of southwestern China, and it is expected that Chongqing will soon become the world's largest inland port.

CHONJU [former: Zenshu] (South Korea)

Ancient city in North Chōlla province, 120 mi S of Seoul. One of the oldest cities of Korea, it dates from 57 B.C. during the Three Kingdoms period. Surrounded by steep hills with fortified castles, it was a strategic point of local civil and military administration. From 1392 to 1910 it was the cradle of the Yi dynasty.

CHORASMIA See KHIVACHORRILLOS (Peru)

Town and battlefield in Lima province, 9 mi S of LIMA, W Peru. During the War of the Pacific, Chilean forces sacked and burned Chorrillos on January 13, 1881. It was severely damaged by earthquake in 1940.

CHORSA See KARS

CHORZÓW (Poland)

Town in Katowice province, 4 mi NW of KATOWICE, S Poland. Dating from the 12th century A.D., Chorzów has been under many European powers. In 1790 it became one of Silesia's first coal-mining centers. See also BYTOM, SILESIA.

CHOTIN See KHOTIN

CHOTUSICE See CHOTUSITZ

CHOTUSITZ [Czech: Chotusice] (Czech Republic)

Village and battlefield in Czech Republic, 2 mi N of CÁSLAV. During the War of the Austrian Succession the Prussians under Frederick the Great defeated the Austrians here on May 17, 1742, thus forcing Maria Theresa to cede much of SILESIA. See AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA.

CHOUKOUTIEN See ZHOUKOUDIAN

CHRISTCHURCH [ancient: Thuinam; former: Christchurch Twynham] (England)

Town in DORSET, at the confluence of the Avon and Stour rivers, 4 mi ENE of Bournemouth. This was an important site during the late Bronze and early Iron Ages in trade with Europe. It was held for a time by the rulers of WESSEX. It is mentioned in the Domesday Book of 1086 as a royal borough. A fine Norman priory church stands here.

CHRISTCHURCH (New Zealand)

City on the E coast of SOUTH ISLAND, 190 mi SW of WELLINGTON, in Canterbury province. Settled in 1850 by the Canterbury Association, which planned it as an ideal Church of England colony, Christchurch has grown to be the most important industrial city and the largest administrative center of New Zealand.

CHRISTCHURCH TWYNHAM See CHRISTCHURCH (England)

CHRISTIANIA See OSLO

CHRISTIANSAND See KRISTIANSAND

CHRISTIANSTED (United States)

City on the island of ST. CROIX of the U.S. VIRGIN ISLANDS, in the WEST INDIES. Founded in 1733, it was at one time the capital of the Danish West Indies. From 1765 to 1772 the city was the boyhood home of Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury of the United States.

CHRISTMAS ISLAND (Kiribati)

Island in the Line Islands group, S of HAWAII in the W central Pacific Ocean. Discovered in 1777 by Captain Cook, it was valued for its guano and claimed by the United States in 1856 but was annexed by Great Britain in 1888. British sovereignty was disputed in 1936 by the United States. After 1956 the island was used as a base by both Great Britain and the United States for nuclear weapons tests. It is now part of independent Kiribati.

CHRISTOPOLIS See KAVALLA

CHRYSLER'S FARM (Canada)

Battlefield in QUEBEC, on the ST. LAWRENCE RIVER, 50 mi SW of MONTREAL. During the War of 1812 the Americans under General John Parke Boyd were defeated here by the British under Colonel J. W. Morrison on November 11, 1813. This encouraged the British to take the initiative in the war.

CHRYSTOPOLIS See ÜSKÜDAR

CH'ÜAN-CHOU See QUANZHOU

CHUAN-CHOW See QUANZHOU

CHUDSKOYE OZERO See PEIPUS, LAKE

CH'Ü-FOU See QUFU

CH'Ü-HSIEN See QUXIAN

CHUNAR [Chanar] (India)

Town on the GANGES RIVER, 20 mi SSW of VARANASI, in S UTTAR PRADESH state. Scene of much Afghan-Mogul fighting, it was captured in 1539 by the Afghan Sher Shah from the Mogul emperor Humayan, but fell to the Moguls under Akbar in 1575. A treaty was signed here in 1781 between Governor General of India Warren Hastings and the nawab of OUDH.

CH'UNG-CH'ING See CHONGQING

CHUNG HUA JEN MIN KUNG HO KUO See MIDDLE KINGDOM

CHUNGJIN See CHONG-JIN

CHUNGKING See CHONGQING

CHUQUISACA See SUCRE

CHUR [ancient: Curia Rhaetorum; French: Coite; Italian: Caira; Romansch: Quera] (Switzerland)

Capital of GRAUBÜNDEN canton, 43 mi E of ALT-DORF, E Switzerland. The center of the Roman province of RAETIA Prima, it was ruled by its bishops in the Middle Ages. In 1376 it was the center of the Gotteshausbund, formed against the power of the prince-bishops and the Hapsburgs. It became capital of Graubünden in 1803. Of interest are the eighth-century church, the Raetian Museum, and the Romanesque cathedral.

CHURCHILL [former: Fort Churchill, Fort Prince of Wales] (Canada)

Town in NE MANITOBA, at the mouth of the CHURCHILL RIVER on the western shore of HUDSON BAY. Jens Munck, a Danish explorer, wintered on the site in 1619. The Hudson's Bay Company built a trading post here in 1717, which came to be called Fort Prince of Wales. A stone fort was erected between 1731 and 1733 and was captured by the French in 1782. The fort was retaken and rebuilt by the British and named Fort Churchill. Churchill is now a modern port, incorporated in 1931. The old fort is partially preserved.

CHURCHILL RIVER (Canada)

River that rises in Lake La Loche, SASKATCHEWAN, and flows 1,000 mi into the HUDSON BAY at CHURCHILL, MANITOBA. Discovered in 1619 by Jens Munck, it became a famous fur-trading route. The Hudson's Bay Company established a trading post at the mouth of the river in 1717.

CHUUK [Truk Islands, Truk] [former: Hogoleu] (Micronesia)

Cluster of 11 volcanic islands in the CAROLINE ISLANDS, W Pacific Ocean, administered as part of the United States Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. Visited in the 19th century, the islands were purchased by GERMANY from SPAIN in 1899. They were annexed by the Japanese in 1914 and were heavily fortified for use in World War II. They were bombed by U.S. forces in 1944–45.

CIANO D'ENZA (Italy)

Town in Reggio Nell Emilia province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, 12 mi SW of REGGIO NELL'EMILIA, N Italy. Here on January 28, 1077, the Emperor Henry IV submitted to Pope Gregory VII at the castle of Canossa during the Investiture Conflict. In the 19th century, German chancellor Bismarck used the term "going to Canossa" to denote humble submission.

CIBINIUM See SIBIU

CIBOLA [Seven Golden Cities of Cibola] (United States)

A vague region, perhaps Zuni Indian country in N NEW MEXICO. Spanish explorers of the 16th century believed this region to contain seven cities of vast wealth. An expedition under Antonio de Mendoza was sent to locate the cities in 1539 but failed. Francisco de Coronado set out from Compostela, MEXICO, in search of the splendor reported by a Franciscan missionary and explorer. He traveled from 1540 to 1542, reaching QUIVIRA, but found only Indian villages.

CIENFUEGOS [former: Bahía de Jagua, Fernandina de Jagua] (Cuba)

City and port in Las Villas province, 30 mi SW of SANTA CLARA on Cienfuegos Bay. One of the chief ports of Cuba, it was visited first by Christopher Columbus in 1494 and was settled in 1738. It suffered repeated pirate attacks. French from LOUISIANA founded the city of Fernandina de Jagua in 1819. It had to be rebuilt after a hurricane destroyed the city in 1825. In 1970 it was to be the site of a Russian submarine base, which caused U.S. opposition, and the plan was dropped.

CIESZYN See TESCHEN

CIL CUDBERT See KIRKCUDBRIGHT

CILICIA (Turkey)

Ancient country of S Turkey, extending along the Mediterranean coast, S of the TAURUS MOUNTAINS toward SYRIA. Eastern Cilicia was independent in the 14th and 13th centuries B.C. but later fell successively to the Hittites, Assyrians, Persians, Macedonians, and the Seleucids, who founded SELEUCIA Tracheotis. All Cilicia had been annexed to ROME by Pompey by 67 B.C. St. Paul visited Cilicia on his missionary journeys, and it became a Christian center for 600 years until the Arab occupation. In A.D. 1080 the principality of Lesser ARMENIA was established here by Armenian refugees. The region was overrun by the Mongols c. 1300 and conquered by the Mamluks in 1375. After 1918 part of the area passed to France, but active Turkish rebellion forced her to withdraw. See also TARSUS.

CILICIAN ARMENIA See LITTLE ARMENIA

CILL DALUA See KILLALOE

CILL DARA See KILDARE

CILLI See CELJE

CILL MHAIGHNEAM See KILMAINHAM

CILL MOCHEALLÓG See KILMALLOCK

CILL RÓNÁIN See KILRONAN

CIMMERIAN BOSPHORUS See CRIMEA

CÎMPULUNG (Romania)

Town in Arges province, 80 mi NW of BUCHAREST, at the foot of the Iezer and Papusa Mts, central Romania. Once a frontier post on a strategic road that crossed the CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS, it was the first capital of WALACHIA until the 14th century.

CIMRU See WALES

CINCINNATI [former: Losantiville] (United States)

City and port in SW OHIO, 220 mi SW of Cleveland, on the OHIO RIVER. It was founded as Losantiville on the site of a Moundbuilder Indian village in 1788. The town first developed around Fort Washington, and began to grow after the battle at FALLEN TIMBERS, which removed the Indians. It became a port following the opening of the Miami and Erie Canal. The Cincinnati Riot of March 1884 was provoked by corruption in political and legal matters. Today the city is the third largest in Ohio.

CINQUE PORTS (England)

Confederation of ports in Sussex and Kent that originally included DOVER, SANDWICH, ROMNEY, HASTINGS, and HYTHE; later also WINCHELSEA and RYE. These ports were associated in the 11th century during the reign of Edward the Confessor for the defense of the coast of England. Granted special privileges following the Norman conquest, they had lost their monopoly of sea power by the 14th century. Today only Dover is a major port.

CINTRA See SINTRA

CIPPANHAMM See CHIPPENHAM

CIRCASSIA [Cherkessia] (Russia)

Region in Russia on the NE coast of the BLACK SEA, and N of the Western CAUCASUS MOUNTAINS. This area was inhabited by a people known to the Greeks as the Zyukhoy, who were converted to Christianity in the sixth century A.D. but who adopted Islam in the 17th century while under OTTOMAN control. When Cirassia passed to Russia from TURKEY in 1829, the people fiercely resisted, but in 1859 they were either deported or emigrated to Turkey.

CIRENAICA See CYRENAICA

CIRENCESTER [ancient: Corinium] (England)

Town in GLOUCESTERSHIRE, 13 mi NW of SWINDON on the edge of the Cotswolds. During the Roman occupation Corinium was an important road junction, the capital of the Dobuni tribe, and one of the largest towns of Britain. It was captured by the Saxons in 577 A.D. The abbey was destroyed in the 1530s during Henry VIII's dissolution of the monasteries. Still standing are a 15th-century grammar school, remains of Roman walls, and an amphitheater.

CIRENE See CYRENE

CIRTA See CONSTANTINE

CISALPINE GAUL [Latin: Gallia Cisalpina, Gallia Citerior, meaning "on this side of the Alps"] (Italy)
The Italian part of ancient GAUL. The region was again divided into Cispadine Gaul, a territory S of the lower Po RIVER comparable to present-day EMILIA-ROMAGNA, and Transpadane Gaul, a region N of the upper Po comparable to present-day northern PIEDMONT and western LOMBARDY. The title, Gaul, derives from inhabitants who arrived in the fourth and third centuries B.C. and who were in fact Celtic invaders. They were called Gauls by the Romans.

CISALPINE REPUBLIC (Italy)

Former state in N Italy, its capital was MILAN, and it stretched as far S as BOLOGNA. Created as a satellite state by Napoleon following his victories in 1796 and 1797, it was the first time in modern history that the northern Italian states had been united. It was occupied in 1799 by Austro-Russian armies, though French control was restored by the treaty of Lunéville in 1800. It became the Napoleonic Kingdom of Italy in 1805 and was broken up by the Congress of VIENNA in 1815. See CISPADANE REPUBLIC.

CISPADANE REPUBLIC (Italy)

Former state of Italy S of the Po RIVER around BOLOGNA, FERRARA, MODENA, and REGGIO NELL' EMILIA. Created by Napoleon in 1796, it was incorporated into the CISALPINE REPUBLIC in 1797.

CISSE CEASTRE See CHICHESTER

CIS-SUTLEJ STATES (India)

Group of Indian principalities S of the Sutlej River, stretching toward DELHI in PUNJAB and HARYANA states. The Cis-Sutlej states appealed to the British in the 19th century when faced with absorption into the Sikh kingdom of Ranjit Singh. British protection was recognized by Ranjit Singh in 1809 by the treaty of AMRITSAR. The Cis-Sutlej states survived as a unit until 1947.

CITIUM [biblical: Kittim; Greek: Kition] (Cyprus)

Ancient city on the S coast of Cyprus, near LARNACA. A colony of MYCENAE from 1400 to 1100 B.C., it was a conduit of Phoenician culture to Cyprus and the Aegean. It was the capital of Cyprus during the Assyrian protectorate of 709 to 668 B.C. In the Greek revolts against PERSIA in 499, 386, and 353 B.C., Citium sided with Persia. In 449 B.C. the Athenians attacked Citium. The population moved to Larnaca in medieval times as the harbor began to silt up.

CITTÀ NOTABILE See MDINA

CITTÀ VECCHIA See MDINA

CITY OF CAVITE See CAVITE

CITY OF DAVID See JERUSALEM

CITY OF KANSAS See KANSAS CITY

CITY OF THE DALLES See DALLES, THE

CITY OF THE GREAT KING See JERUSALEM

CITY OF WESTMINSTER See WESTMINSTER

CITY OF ZAMBOANGA See ZAMBOANGA

CITY POINT See HOPEWELL

CIUDAD BOLÍVAR [former: Angostura, San Tomás de la Nueva Guayana de la Angostura] (Venezuela)

City and capital of Bolívar province on the ORINOCO RIVER 275 mi SE of CARACAS, central Venezuela. Founded in 1764, it was the scene in 1809 of Simón Bolívar's declaration of the independence of GRAN COLOMBIA from SPAIN. For a time it was headquarters of the revolution, and it was where Bolívar was named president in 1819.

CIUDAD DE MÉXICO See MEXICO CITY

CIUDAD DE VICTORIA See DURANGO (Mexico)

CIUDAD GUAYANA See SANTO TOMÉ DE GUAYANA

CIUDAD GUZMÁN [former: Zapotlán el Grande] (Mexico)

City in JALISCO state, SW Mexico, 35 mi S of Lake Chapala. It was the site of the pre-Columbian kingdom of Zapotlán, which SPAIN conquered in 1526. The name was changed in 1856.

CIUDAD JUÁREZ [former: El Paso del Norte] (Mexico)

City in CHIHUAHUA State on the RIO GRANDE opposite EL PASO, Texas. Developed in the 17th century, it was the headquarters of Benito Juárez in 1865 during his struggle with the French. In 1910 the city was captured by Pascual Orozco and Francisco Villa, an act that finally led to revolution.

CIUDAD MORELOS See CUAUTLA

CIUDAD PERDIDO See ACAPULCO

CIUDAD PORFIRIO DÍAZ See PIEDRAS NEGRAS

CIUDAD REAL, MEXICO See SAN CRISTÓBAL DE LAS CASAS

CIUDAD REAL [former: Villa Real] (Spain)

Battleground and capital of Ciudad Real province, 99 mi S of MADRID, central Spain. Founded in 1255 by Alfonso X the Wise of LEÓN and CASTILE, it became the seat of the Inquisition in the 15th century. In 1809, during the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, the French defeated the Spanish nearby. The fortress of CALATRAVA is nearby.

CIUDAD RODRIGO (Spain)

City in Salamanca province near the Portuguese border, 53 mi WSW of SALAMANCA, W Spain. Founded in 1150 by Count Rodrigo González on the site of a Roman town, this fortified city figured prominently in the Napoleonic Wars. Captured by the French under André Masséna on July 10, 1810, it was recaptured by Arthur Wellesley, duke of Wellington, on January 19, 1812. Wellington drove the French out of BADAJOZ three months later. The historic portion of the city is well-preserved within medieval walls.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO See SANTO DOMINGO

CIUDAD VICTORIA See TAMAULIPAS (Mexico)

CIUDAD VIEJO See GUATEMALA CITY

CIVIDALE DEL FRIULI [ancient: Forum Julii] (Italy)

Ancient town in Udine province, 9 mi ENE of UDINE, FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA region, NE Italy. Founded possibly by Julius Caesar, it was later capital of Friuli, the first Lombard duchy in Italy. From A.D. 730 to 1238 it was the residence of the patriarchs of AQUILEIA. It fell to VENICE in 1420.

CIVITA CASTELLANA See FALERII VETERES

CIVITAS CARNUTUM See CHARTRES

CIVITAS EBUROVICUM See ÉVREUX

CIVITAS NEMENTUM See SPEYER

CIVITAS VANGIONUM See WORMS

CIVITAS VENETORUM See VANNES

CIVITAS VETUS See CAVTAT

CIVITAVECCHIA [ancient: Centum Cellae, Trajani Portus] (Italy)

Town and port in Rome province, on the TYRRHENIAN SEA, 39 mi WNW of ROME, LATIUM region, central Italy. The port was founded in the second century A.D. by Trajan and flourished in the late Roman empire. It was sacked by Vandals in the fifth century and by Saracens in 828. By 1870 the port was one of the most heavily fortified in the country. Most of the town was destroyed in World War II. Today Civita-vecchia is the chief port of Rome. An impressive Roman bath and a gate dedicated to Trajan are here. A keep was designed in 1537 by Michelangelo.

CLACKMANNAN (Scotland)

Former county in Scotland and the smallest, now merged in Central region. It was originally inhabited by the Celtic Damnonii tribe and was converted to Christianity by St. Servan in the seventh century A.D. In 844 Kenneth Macalpine, king of the Scots, defeated the Picts near TULLIBODY.

CLAIRVAUX (France)

Village in the Aube department, 40 mi ESE of TROYES, E central France. The abbey, founded here in 1115 by St. Bernard of Clairvaux, became a center of the Cistercian order. It was turned into a prison in 1808.

CLAMECY (France)

Town in the Nièvre department, 36 mi NNE of NEVERS, central France. Following the capture of JERUSALEM by Saladin in 1188, Clamecy was the seat of the titular bishops of BETHLEHEM until 1798.

CLARE [Gaelic: an Chláir] (Ireland)

County on the W coast of Ireland, N of the SHANNON RIVER. It has been inhabited since the Neolithic and Bronze Ages. Part of MUNSTER in the fourth century A.D., it was part of the kingdom of Thomond until the 16th century and was made a shire during the reign of Elizabeth I. Daniel O'Connell's 1828 election victory in Clare led to the emancipation of the Catholics in Ireland. Many prehistoric monuments are found in the county.

CLARENCETOWN See MALABOCLARENDON PARK (England)

Historic village in WILTSHIRE, 2 mi SE of SALISBURY. During the reign of Henry II, in 1164, a council of bishops met here and approved the Constitutions of Clarendon, which extended the powers of the Crown over the clergy and which caused the rift between the king and Thomas à Becket.

CLARIUM See CHIARICLARKSBURG (United States)

City in central WEST VIRGINIA, 70 mi E of PARKERSBURG. Settled in 1765, it was an important Union supply base during the Civil War. Stonewall Jackson was born here in 1824.

CLASSIS See RAVENNACLATSOP, FORT See FORT CLATSOPCLAUDIA CELEIA See CELJECLAUSENTUM See SOUTHAMPTONCLAVA See CULLODEN MOORCLAZOMENAE (Turkey)

Ancient city in Izmir province, 20 mi W of IZMIR, on the Gulf of Izmir, W Turkey. Founded by Greek settlers from Cleonae and PHLIUS, it became part of the Ionian Dodecapolis and in the sixth century was famous for its painted terracotta sarcophagi. Under Athenian control in the fifth century B.C., it revolted in 412 B.C. and in 387 B.C. came under Achaemenid PERSIA. It was incorporated into the Roman province of ASIA in 133 B.C. Anaxagoras, the philosopher, was a native of Clazomenae.

CLEAVELAND See CLEVELANDCLERMONT-FERRAND [ancient: Augustonemetum] (France)

City in Puy-de-Dôme department, formed by merger in 1731 of Clermont and Montferrand, 88 mi E of LIMOGES, central France. Of Roman origin, Clermont became capital of the Arverni. During the Middle Ages it was an ecclesiastical center. Pope Urban II preached the First Crusade here in 1095. It became capital of the duchy of AUVERGNE in 1556. It is now a prosperous industrial city and is headquarters for the Michelin Tire and Rubber conglomerate.

CLEVE See KLEVECLEVELAND (England)

County around the Tees River, formed in 1974 from areas formerly included in DURHAM and the North Riding of YORKSHIRE. The administrative headquarters is MIDDLESBOROUGH.

CLEVELAND [former: Cleaveland] (United States)

City and port in NE OHIO, on LAKE ERIE at the mouth of the Cuyahoga River, 300 mi E of CHICAGO.

The second-largest city of Ohio and a major port, it was laid out in 1796 by Moses Cleaveland for CONNECTICUT interests. The city expanded rapidly after the completion of the Ohio and Erie Canal in 1827 and following the arrival of the railroad in 1851. Cleveland was plagued by racial disorder in the 1960s. It is one of America's leading steel and ore centers and was where John D. Rockefeller began his career. Cleveland has made great progress in redeveloping its old industrial waterfront district.

CLEVES See KLEVE

CLEVSIA See CLUSIUM

CLINTON (United States)

Town and battlefield in N SOUTH CAROLINA, 33 mi S of SPARTANBURG. Site of several skirmishes during the American Revolution, including the Battle of Musgrove Mill of 1780, which was fought nearby.

CLIPPERTON (French Polynesia)

Island in the SE Pacific Ocean, 1,800 mi W of PANAMA. It is the most easterly of the French Polynesian islands. Discovered by the English pirate John Clipperton in 1705, it was claimed by France in 1858 but forcibly occupied by MEXICO in 1897. It became more important with the opening of the PANAMA CANAL. Through the arbitration of the king of Italy the island was awarded to France in 1930. See also FRENCH POLYNESIA.

CLISSA See KLIS

CLONMACNOISE [Gaelic: Cluain Mic Nois] (Ireland)

Early Christian center in Offaly county, on the River SHANNON, 9 mi S of ATHLONE, central Ireland. After the foundation of an abbey here in A.D. 545 by St. Ciaran, Clonmacnoise became the foremost monastic city of Ireland and was an important center of learning by the ninth century. Attacked and plundered throughout its history, it was destroyed by the English in 1552. The surviving ruins are a national monument.

CLONTARF (Ireland)

Suburb and battleground on the N shore of Dublin Bay, NE of DUBLIN. The Irish defeated Norse Viking invaders and settlers here on April 23, 1014, thus ending Norse power in Ireland. The Irish king, Brian Boru, was killed in the battle.

CLOYNE [Gaelic: Cluain-Uamhe] (Ireland)

Ancient bishopric of S Ireland, approximately 15 mi SE of CORK. It was established during the sixth century A.D., was raided by Norse Vikings in 823, and suffered several destructions from warring factions. The noted Irish philosopher George Berkeley was the bishop of Cloyne from 1734 to 1753. There is a 14th-century cathedral here.

CLUAIN MIC NOIS See CLONMACNOISE

CLUAIN-UAMHE See CLOYNE

CLUJ [former: Culus; German: Klausenberg; Hungarian: Kolozsvár] (Romania)

City and capital of Cluj province, 200 mi NW of BUCHAREST. Founded by German colonists in the 12th century A.D. on the site of an ancient Dacian settlement, later a Roman fort, it was a flourishing trading and cultural center in the Middle Ages. In the 16th century, it became capital of the principality of TRANSYLVANIA. It was part of AUSTRIA-HUNGARY from 1867 to 1920. An 11th-century church and the 14th-century Church of St. Michael are of historic interest here.

CLUNIA See FELDKIRCH

CLUNY (France)

Town in the Saône-et-Loire department, 12 mi NW of MÂCON, central France. A Benedictine abbey was founded here in A.D. 910 by Duke William the Pious of AQUITAINE that became the center of the Cluniac order. Cluny became one of the leading ecclesiastical and cultural centers of Europe, known for its elaborate liturgies. The abbey church went through several building campaigns and was at one time the largest in the world. It was destroyed in 1790 during the French Revolution. Only ruins of a transept remain. There is a museum on the site.

CLUSIUM [Etruscan: Chamaras, Clevsia; Italian: Chiusi; pre-Etruscan: Camars] (Italy)

Ancient city in Siena province, 40 mi SE of Siena in TUSCANY region, central Italy. One of the 12 original cities of ETRURIA, it flourished from the seventh to sixth centuries B.C. Lars Porsena marched against ROME from here around 500 B.C. The city later joined with Rome and in 205 provided many of the soldiers who fought Hannibal. An early Christian center and seat of a bishopric, it declined in the Middle Ages. Extensive finds of pottery and artifacts from as early as the eighth century B.C. have been found in tombs here.

CLWYD (Wales)

County formed in 1974 from Flintshire, most of Denbighshire, and parts of Merionethshire. In 1996, it was divided among Flintshire, Denbighshire, Wrexham, Conwy, and Powys.

CLYDE RIVER AND FIRTH OF CLYDE (Scotland)

River and its estuary, the most important in Scotland. The river rises in the southern uplands and then flows NW to the firth. The river is 106 mi long, the estuary 64 mi long. There is a connection by canal with the Firth of FORTH. This region is the center of Scotland's population and industry, especially shipbuilding. On the river's bank is GLASGOW, Scotland's largest city, seaport, and industrial and shipbuilding center, which in recent years has been in decline. The largest passenger ships in the world, the Queen Mary and the two successive ships named Queen Elizabeth, were built here. Other towns and cities on the Clyde include DUNOON, where there are ruins of an ancient castle; HAMILTON, near where Rudolf Hess, the Nazi leader, landed when he fled from GERMANY in a small airplane in May 1941; LANARK, where the power of the falls of the Clyde attracted early 19th-century textile mills; Renfrew, a busy port since the 12th century; and RUTHERGLEN, a royal burgh from 1126. ARRAN, an island in the Firth, is where the Scottish hero, Robert Bruce, hid in 1306. The popular draft horse, the Clydesdale, was developed in the valley of Clyde.

CLYSMA See SUEZ

CNIDOS See CNIDUS

CNIDUS [Cnidos] (Turkey)

Ancient city, in Muğla province, 60 mi SW of Muğla on the Resadiye Peninsula in SW Turkey. Originally the site of a Spartan colony, it was one of the cities of the Dorian Hexapolis. The Cnidians submitted to the Persians c. 545 B.C., but joined the DELIAN LEAGUE against PERSIA in 479 B.C. Cnidus became a democracy in the fourth century B.C. The Athenians under Conon defeated the Spartans under Pisander in a naval battle off Cnidus in 394 B.C. As part of the Roman province of ASIA, Cnidus was a free city.

CNOSSUS See KNOSSOS

CNOSUS See KNOSSOS

COALBROOKDALE (England)

Town in SALOP, 11 mi ESE of SHREWSBURY, near the SEVERN RIVER, W England. Iron works were founded here in 1709 by Abraham Darby where pig iron was smelted by the use of coke for the first time in England. This was a major contribution to the early Industrial Revolution in England. The site, with the first iron bridge at IRONBRIDGE, is now an extensive open-air museum.

COA RIVER (Portugal)

River and battlefield in Beira Alta province, near the Spanish frontier, WNW of CIUDAD RODRIGO, NE Portugal. On July 24, 1810, during the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars an Anglo-Portuguese force under Brigadier Robert Crauford was compelled to withdraw from ALMEIDA across the Coa by the French under Marshal Ney.

COBA See QUINTANA ROO

COBEQUID See TRURO

COBLENZ See KOBLENZ

COBLESKILL (United States)

Village and battlefield in E NEW YORK State, SW of AMSTERDAM. During the American Revolution a battle was fought here between the patriots and an Indian-Tory force on May 30, 1778.

COBURG [Koburg] (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, 36 mi NW of BAYREUTH, Central GERMANY. First mentioned in A.D. 1056. Coburg passed to the house of Wettin in 1353 and was strategically important in the 15th and 16th centuries because of its fortified castle. It withstood many sieges during the Thirty Years' War of 1618–48. It was the alternate capital, with GOTH, of SAXE-COBURG-GOTH from 1826 to 1918. It became part of Bavaria in 1920.

COCANADA See KAKINADA

COCHIN See KOCHI

COCHIN CHINA [native: Nam Phan] (Vietnam)

Region of SE Asia, around SAIGON and the MEKONG delta, extending W to CAMBODIA. Originally part of the Khmer Empire, it was occupied by the Vietnamese emperor Le Thanh Tong in 1471. The capital of Cochin China, Saigon, was occupied by the French in 1859, and Cochin China became a French colony in 1862. It became part of Vietnam in 1949.

COCOS ISLANDS [Keeling Islands] (Australia)

Group of islands in the INDIAN OCEAN, approximately 580 mi SW of JAVA. Discovered by William Keeling in 1609, they were first settled in 1823 and acquired by GREAT BRITAIN in 1857. During World War I, on November 9, 1914, the German cruiser Emden was destroyed by the Australian cruiser Sydney off the Cocos Islands. The islands passed to Australia in 1955.

COD, CAPE (United States)

Peninsula of SE MASSACHUSETTS extending 65 mi into the Atlantic Ocean. It was discovered by an English expedition under Bartholomew Gosnold in 1602. In 1620 the Pilgrims landed near PROVINCE-TOWN on Cape Cod for the first time. Today Cape Cod is a popular tourist center. Of historic interest here is the site of Guglielmo Marconi's first wireless station in the United States. Cape Cod National Seashore preserves much of the area's natural beauty. HYANNIS is the home of the Kennedy family.

CODOGNO (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Milan province, 34 mi SE of MILAN, in LOMBARDY region, N Italy. During the French Revolutionary Wars the French defeated the Austrians here in 1796.

CODY (United States)

Town in NW WYOMING, on the Shoshone River, 55 mi E of Yellowstone National Park. The state of Wyoming presented land to William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody, the flamboyant plainsman and showman, on which he laid out the town in 1901. The town has now been given the flavor of the frontier West, with dude ranches, and is a popular tourist resort. The Buffalo Bill Historical Center exhibits memorabilia of Cody, the Whitney Gallery of Western Art is here, and there is an annual rodeo. Cody is the headquarters for the Shoshone National Forest.

COEUR D'ALENE (United States)

City in N IDAHO, approximately 30 mi E of SPOKANE, WASHINGTON. Fort Coeur d'Alene, later called Fort Sherman, was built on the site in 1876, and a trading post and town grew up around it. It is named for an Indian tribe that lived in the area. Beginning in 1884 a mining boom brought in large numbers of people after rich lodes of silver, lead, and zinc were found the previous year. In the 1890s there was industrial strife in the region. When the radically inclined Western Federation of Miners, formed in 1893, became active federal troops were used here to establish order. The city today is the gateway to a popular resort area.

COGNAC [ancient: Compniacum] (France)

Town in the Charente department, 24 mi W of ANGOULÊME on the Charente River, W France. The Treaty of Cognac, signed here in 1526, formalized a coalition between France, the pope, Sforza, VENICE, and FLORENCE directed against Emperor Charles V and the Spaniards. Cognac was a Huguenot stronghold in the latter part of the 16th century, during the Wars of Religion. It was unsuccessfully besieged by the leader of the Fronde in 1651. During World War II it was occupied by the Germans from 1940 to 1944.

COHOES (United States)

City in E NEW YORK State, 10 mi N of ALBANY. Settled by the Dutch in 1665, it was on the route of the military road toward LAKE GEORGE, which was used before and during the American Revolution. It was General Horatio Gates's headquarters during that war. In 1863 the world's first power-operated knitting mill was opened here.

COILUM See QUILON

COIMBATORE [Kongunad, Kovai] (India)

City in TAMIL NADU, 75 miles NE of KOCHI. Coimbatore is a textile center also known as the “MANCHESTER of South India.” Coimbatore (then called Kongunad) existed even prior to the second or third century A.D., ruled by Karikalan, the first of the early Cholas. Among its other great rulers were Rashtrakutas, Chalukyas, Pandyas, Hoysalas, and the Vijayanagara kings. When Kongunad fell to the British along with the rest of the state, its name was changed to Coimbatore.

COIMBRA [ancient: Aeminium, Conimbriga] (Portugal)

City in Beira Litoral province, 108 mi NNE of LISBON, central Portugal. Dating from Roman times, it was a Moorish stronghold until Alfonso III of ASTURIAS and LEÓN captured it in A.D. 878. In the 11th century it was the base of Ferdinand III of León and CASTILE in his operations against the Moors. It was capital of Portugal from 1139 to 1260. It was a center for Dom Miguel (1802–66) and supporters attempting to dethrone Maria II. Portugal’s oldest university, founded in 1290, was moved from Lisbon to Coimbra in 1537.

COITE See CHUR

COLCHESTER [ancient: Camulodunum; Saxon: Colneceaster] (England)

Town in ESSEX, 53 mi NE of LONDON. Capital of the Belgic ruler Cunobelinus, it was the site of the first Roman colony in Britain, founded by Claudius in A.D. 43. Although destroyed by Boudicca (Boadicea) in 60, it became one of the chief towns of Roman Britain. During the Civil War it was captured by Parliamentarians under Fairfax in 1648 after a long siege. Numerous Roman ruins and early earthworks remain as do two 11th-century churches and the impressive Norman castle of 1070, built over Claudius’s Roman temple.

COLCHIS See CAUCASIA, MINGRELIA

COLD HARBOR (United States)

Battlefield in E VIRGINIA, 10 mi NE of RICHMOND. This was the scene of two Civil War battles, the first at the site also known as Gaines’s Mill on June 27, 1862, when Confederates under General Robert E. Lee dislodged Union troops under Generals George B.

McClellan and Fitz John Porter. This battle ended the Peninsular campaign. In the second, from June 3 to 12, 1864, Union forces under General Ulysses S. Grant failed to dislodge entrenched Confederates under Lee. This was one of the worst and bloodiest Northern defeats of the war.

COLDSTREAM (Scotland)

Town in BORDERS region, on the River Tweed, 13 mi SW of BERWICK-ON-TWEED. Long an ecclesiastical center, it was also significant militarily. Edward I crossed here in his invasion of Scotland in 1296. General George Monck raised troops here in 1660 before marching into ENGLAND to assist in the restoration of Charles II. His regiment was named the Coldstream Guards.

COL DU PETIT-SAINT-BERNARD See LITTLE SAINT BERNARD PASS

COLENZO (South Africa)

Village and battlefield in KWAZULU-NATAL, 65 mi NW of PIETERMARITZBURG. During the Boer War the British under Sir Redvers Buller were defeated here by the Boers under General Louis Botha while advancing to relieve LADYSMITH on December 15, 1899. The British finally occupied Colenso on February 20, 1900.

COLEROON RIVER [Modern: Kolllidam River] (India)

River and battlefield in TAMIL NADU, a N branch of the Cauvery River, which empties into the Bay of Bengal, 25 mi S of KUDALUR. During the Second MYSORE War, on February 18, 1782, the British under Colonel John Braithwaite surrendered here to the Mysorean army of Tipu Sultan and the French under Major Henri Lally. The defeat was a considerable disaster for the British.

COLESBERG (South Africa)

Town and battlefield in NORTHERN CAPE PROVINCE, 130 mi SW of BLOEMFONTEIN. During the Boer War Colesberg was the scene of several encounters between the Boers and the British in 1899 and 1900.

COLLE DEL PICCOLO SAN BERNARDO See LITTLE SAINT BERNARD PASS

COLLEGE PARK (United States)

City in W central MARYLAND, 8 mi NE of WASHINGTON, D.C., of which it is a suburb. It was settled in 1745. The city developed around the Maryland Agricultural College founded in 1856. This is now part of the University of Maryland, whose main campus was located here in 1920.

COLLIPPO See LEIRIACOLMAR [Kolmar] [ancient: Columbaria] (France)

City in Haut-Rhin department, 42 mi SSW of STRASBOURG, in ALSACE, E France. The city played a role in Charlemagne's campaigns against the Saxons. It was created as an imperial town in 1226 by the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II. It was occupied by SWEDEN in 1632 during the Thirty Years' War. Colmar became capital of Alsace in 1673. It was occupied by the Germans from 1871 to 1919 and from 1940 to 1945. A 13th-century Dominican convent is now a museum with several notable treasures from the 15th and 16th centuries. The city boasts many medieval buildings.

COLNECEASTER See COLCHESTERCOLOGNE [ancient: Colonia Agrippina, Oppidum Ubiorum; German: Köln] (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, on the RHINE RIVER, 20 mi SSE of DÜSSELDORF. Garrisoned by the Romans in the first century B.C., it was made a Roman colony by Claudius in A.D. 50 and became the headquarters of the governor of Lower Germany. After A.D. 258 it was the capital of Postumus's empire comprising GAUL, BRITAIN, and SPAIN. Captured by the Franks in 456, it was made an archbishopric by Charlemagne. It prospered as a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE but declined after the Thirty Years' War in the 17th century. Seized by the French in 1794, it passed to PRUSSIA in 1815. It was ruined by Allied air raids in World War II but has been rebuilt as an important industrial and commercial center. Its cathedral, which survives, was begun in 1248 and completed only in 1824.

COLOMA See SUTTER'S MILLCOLOMBEY [Colombey-Nouilly] (France)

Village and battlefield in the Moselle department, 4 mi E of METZ, E France. During the Franco-Prussian War, the French under Marshal Achille Bazaine were forced to retreat over the MOSELLE RIVER here by the Prussians under General Karl von Steinmetz on August 15, 1870. This battle is also called the Battle of Borny after a village nearby.

COLOMBEY-NOUILLY See COLOMBEYCOLOMBIA

A nation in NW South America, bordering on both the Pacific Ocean and the CARIBBEAN SEA. Its name honors Christopher Columbus.

Pottery dating back nearly 5,000 years has been found in Colombia. Between A.D. 500 and 1000 the Quimbaya culture flourished, followed by the Chibcha, which began its rise c. A.D. 1200. Europeans first saw the area in 1499 when Alonso de Ojeda, a Spanish conquistador, explored the southwestern coast of the Caribbean. Two years later Rodrigo de Bastidas, another Spaniard, discovered the mouth of the MAGDALENA RIVER. Later, in 1525, he founded SANTA MARTA, the oldest city in Colombia. In 1536 Gonzalo Jiménez de Quesada conquered the Chibcha and turned their main center, BOGOTÁ, into a Spanish settlement in 1538. Sebastián de Benalcazar founded CALI and POPAYÁN in 1536 and PASTO in 1539. These two conquistadores, along with a German adventurer, Nikolaus Federmann, were searching for El Hombre Dorado, the "Golden Man," after tales of the Chibcha custom of covering a new chief with gold dust had grown into the legend of the fabulous land of El Dorado. Two other early Colombian cities were CARTAGENA, founded in 1533, and TUNJA, founded in 1539.

From 1717 to 1722 and then from 1739 on, Colombia was part of the Spanish viceroyalty of NEW GRANADA, along with present ECUADOR, VENEZUELA, and PANAMA. The first revolt for independence took place in Bogotá in 1810, but freedom was not won until 1819 when Simón Bolívar of Venezuela led an army to victory on August 7 at Boyacá. In 1821 the four parts of the viceroyalty became the nation of GRAN, or Great, COLOMBIA with Bolívar as president. In 1830 Ecuador and Venezuela withdrew, however, and Colombia, including what is now Panama, became the nation of New Granada. In 1863 it changed its name to the United States of Colombia.

The 19th century was marked by political conflict that at times became civil war between factions of the right and left. In 1878 Colombia gave a French company a concession to build a canal across the Isthmus of Panama, but the project failed. The Hay-Herrán Treaty of 1903 transferred this right to the UNITED STATES, and in return Colombia was to receive $10 million and an annuity of $250,000. When the Colombian senate refused to ratify the treaty, a revolt on November 3, aided by the United States, made Panama a separate nation. In 1921 Colombia recognized Panamanian independence after a U.S. payment of $25 million.

A clash with PERU arose in 1932 over ownership of LETICIA and its region, and in 1934 the League of Nations awarded it to Colombia. The years from the late 1940s to the late 1950s were marked by bloody civil strife—la Violencia. In 1957 the exhausted liberals and conservatives formed a coalition that lasted until 1978 and resulted in less violence. The government of Liberal Julio César Turbay Ayala, elected president in 1978, claimed to have destroyed the main guerrilla group, but violence continued into the 1980s. In 1982 Conservative Party candidate Belisario Betancur was elected president. The 1980s and 1990s saw much civil strife between right-wing and left-wing militias and government forces. The situation was complicated by the presence and support of “narco-lords” from the MEDELLÍN and Cali drug cartels that have supported different sides at times in exchange for some protection of the cocaine trade. In 1993 the Medellín drug cartel was broken, and the Cali cartel was later undermined by arrests of key leaders.

In 1998 Conservative Andrés Pastrana Arango, a former mayor of Bogotá, was elected president. Pastrana started negotiations with the leftist FARC rebels, and started to implement his “Plan Colombia,” a $7 billion social aid and antidrug program that included $1.3 billion in largely military aid from the United States. In 2002, after FARC hijacked an airliner, Pastrana ordered the military to attack rebel bases in their mountainous zone of control. FARC responded with attacks against Columbia’s power and telecommunications infrastructure. Hard-line rightist candidate Álvaro Uribe Vélez won the 2002 elections and continued the military crackdown on FARC with limited success. Some of the paramilitary “narco-militias,” deprived of their revenue by anti-drug operations, began negotiating demobilization. In 2005, bounty hunters in Venezuela captured and delivered a FARC leader to Colombia, an act that caused friction with the Venezuelan government.

Bogotá is the capital and largest city. Others are Medellín, Cali, and BARRANQUILLA.

COLOMBO [former: Kalantott, Kolambu] (Sri Lanka)

Capital city and port on the W coast of Sri Lanka, on the INDIAN OCEAN. Founded by Arab traders in the eighth century A.D.—although known to them and to the Chinese and Romans 1,000 years earlier—it became a Portuguese trading post when they arrived here from COCHIN in November 1505. The Sinhalese capital was moved from KOTTE to Colombo in 1551. Under Dutch control in the 17th century, it passed to GREAT BRITAIN in 1796. An Allied naval base in World War II, it became capital of Ceylon, now Sri Lanka, in 1948. In June 1951 an economic development organization, the Colombo Plan, was established at an international conference here. Of historic interest is the Portuguese fort and a large district of old streets.

COLONIA (Turkey) See ŞEBINKARAHISAR

COLONIA [Colonia del Sacramento] (Uruguay)

City and capital of Colonia province, on LA PLATA RIVER opposite BUENOS AIRES, S Uruguay. The first permanent settlement in the country, it was founded by the Portuguese in 1680 and was bitterly contested by the Spanish who took it before moving their base to MONTEVIDEO. Spain gained formal control through treaties in 1777 and 1778.

COLONIA AGRIPPINA See COLOGNE

COLONIA AMASA See MOZAH

COLONIA AUGUSTA AROË PATRENSIS See PÁTRAL

COLONIA AUGUSTA FIRMA See ÉCIJA

COLONIA DEL SACRAMENTO See COLONIA

COLONIA JULIA AUGUSTA DERTOSA See TORTOSA

COLONIA JULIA FELIX CLASSICA See SESSA AURUNCA

COLONIA JULIA VICTRIX TRIUMPHALIS See TARRAGONA

COLONIA VICTRIX JULIA NOVA CARTHAGO See CARTAGENA (Spain)

COLONUS (Greece)

Ancient village of ATTICA, just N of modern ATHENS, within Greater Athens. The birthplace of Sophocles, it was the place of exile of Oedipus according to Sophocles' play Oedipus at Colonus.

COLOPHON (Turkey)

Ancient city of LYDIA in İzmir province, 15 mi NW of EPHEBUS, W Turkey. It was a flourishing commercial city in the eighth and seventh centuries B.C., famous for its cavalry and its luxury. It was seized by Gyges of Lydia in 665 B.C. and was controlled first by PERSIA and then by ATHENS in the Peloponnesian Wars. It declined in the third century B.C. with the development of NOTIUM, its port, as an independent city. See also IONIA.

COLORADO (United States)

State in the W central United States, admitted to the Union in 1876 as the 38th state. Colorado is a Spanish word for reddish.

Its earliest inhabitants were the people known as Basket Makers, an early stage of the Anasazi culture. They lived here around the start of the Christian era. They were succeeded by cliff-dwelling Indians, the remains of whose homes can be seen in MESA VERDE NATIONAL PARK. Francisco Vázquez de Coronado, in the 16th century, was probably the first European in the area. Spain claimed the territory in 1706 but made no settlements. A search for gold brought Juan Maria Rivera in 1765, while two Franciscans reached the region in 1776. A portion of what is now Colorado was also claimed by FRANCE as part of the LOUISIANA territory. France ceded this region to SPAIN in 1763, but got it back in 1800, then sold it to the United States in 1803. The United States acquired the rest of the state from MEXICO in 1848 after the Mexican War.

American expeditions under Zebulon M. Pike in 1806, Stephen H. Long in 1819–20, and John C. Frémont in 1842–43 and 1845 explored the region. BENT'S FORT became the best-known western trading post, but there were few people in Colorado until after the discovery of gold in 1858 near PIKE'S PEAK and at the site of present DENVER. The next year gold was also found at CENTRAL CITY. The region was part of KANSAS Territory, but in 1861 the Colorado Territory was established. A number of Indian tribes lived here, and from the 1840s on there was warfare between them and the settlers, including the Indian Wars of 1861–69, the Buffalo War of 1873–74, and a final outbreak in 1879.

The gold ran out, and most mining centers became ghost towns, but a railroad link to CHEYENNE, WYOMING, in 1870 stimulated farming. Huge cattle ranches were established, sheep raising became important, and some smelting was done. In the 1870s the discovery of silver at LEADVILLE and in the early 1890s the finding of a new gold field at CRIPPLE CREEK brought another mining boom. In 1893, however, the federal government stopped buying silver, and the market collapsed. Around the turn of the century there arose railroad franchise disputes, war between sheep and cattle interests, and labor conflicts. A violent outbreak of labor unrest in 1903 in the Rockefeller-owned coal fields was crushed by federal troops. Ten years later a similar strike led to more bloodshed.

The establishment of national parks in the early 20th century brought tourists, while in World War I the price of silver increased greatly. Both were factors in Colorado's growing wealth. Such prosperity ended, however, with drought and the depression of the 1930s. World War II renewed prosperity as the demand for food, minerals, and metal products was stimulated. The boom continued after the war when many Americans moved west. Colorado's population increased by 900,000 between 1950 and 1970. With the coming of the energy crisis of the early 1970s, the Colorado economy prospered even more. Denver, now a city of skyscrapers, is western headquarters of companies seeking oil and gas in the ROCKY MOUNTAINS region.

Eastern Colorado is part of the High Plains section of the GREAT PLAINS, while in the west are the Rocky Mountains. The COLORADO, North and South PLATTE, and ARKANSAS Rivers, and the RIO GRANDE all originate in the state. Colorado is an agricultural and manufacturing state as well as a source of mineral wealth. Denver is the capital and largest city. The United States Air Force Academy is at COLORADO SPRINGS. Other cities include BOULDER, FORT COLLINS, PUEBLO, and GREELEY.

COLORADO CITY See COLORADO SPRINGS

COLORADO RIVER (Mexico, United States)

River that rises in the ROCKY MOUNTAINS in N COLORADO and flows 1,450 mi SW through Colorado,

UTAH, ARIZONA, forming a boundary between Arizona and NEVADA and CALIFORNIA, then into Mexico, emptying into the Gulf of California. A major river of North America, it has many deep gorges, the principal and most famous being the GRAND CANYON in Arizona. In 1539 Francisco de Ulloa from Spain reached the mouth of the river, and in 1540 Hernando de Alarcón explored the lower reaches. John Wesley Powell was the first to navigate the Grand Canyon by boat in 1869, starting from the Green River in WYOMING, and through the canyon to the mouth of the Virgin River. Many cliff and pueblo dwellings of the Anasazi Indians were built in the area of the Grand Canyon and the river valley, and in recent times the river has been harnessed for hydroelectric power and other uses by such great dams as the Hoover, Davis, Parker, Glen Canyon, and Imperial. Many national parks and recreational areas are also found along its course. Large diversions of water for irrigation in the United States and Mexico have removed so much of the rivers flow that it often no longer flows into the Gulf of California.

COLORADO SPRINGS [former: Fountain Colony]
(United States)

City in central COLORADO, S of Denver, at the foot of PIKE'S PEAK. Founded in 1871 as Fountain Colony, it expanded following the CRIPPLE CREEK gold strikes of the 1890s. In 1917 it incorporated Colorado City, originally El Dorado, settled by miners in 1859. Today it is an important military center, near the U.S. Air Force base, the headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command, and an Olympic training facility. Once a wealthy spa, it is still famous for its mineral waters.

COLOSSAE (Turkey)

Ancient city of PHRYGIA, near DENIZLI, Denizli province, W Turkey. A flourishing commercial city at the time of Herodotus in the fifth century B.C., it declined after the founding nearby of LAODICEA. Paul's Epistle to the Colossians of A.D. 62 was addressed to the members of the early Christian church here.

COLUMBARIA See COLMAR

COLUMBIA (United States)

City and capital of SOUTH CAROLINA, on the Congaree River, 80 mi S of CHARLOTTE. Laid out in 1786 to replace CHARLESTON as state capital, it was a Confederate communications center during the Civil War. On February 17, 1865, General William Tecumseh Sherman's Union troops occupied and almost totally destroyed Columbia.

COLUMBIA RIVER (Canada and United States)

Rising in SE BRITISH COLUMBIA, this river of SW Canada and NW United States flows approximately 1,200 mi before emptying into the Pacific Ocean W of PORTLAND, OREGON. After 465 mi it enters the state of WASHINGTON, and thereafter forms the boundary between Washington and OREGON. It pours the largest volume of water into the Pacific Ocean of any river of North America, and long before Europeans arrived Indians fished it for salmon.

The Columbia was discovered on May 11, 1792, by an American merchant ship captain, Robert Gray. It was named for his ship. The same year it was entered by a British naval officer, William R. Broughton. Lewis and Clark, on their expedition to explore the newly acquired LOUISIANA PURCHASE, reached the river overland from the E in 1805 and spent the winter at its mouth at FORT CLATSOP. In 1811 David Thompson, a Canadian, traced the Columbia to its source, then traveled its length and reached the coast. That same year John Jacob Astor's fur trading company established Fort ASTORIA on the estuary of the river. This was its first permanent settlement and helped establish the United States's claim to the region. A large area, including all that traversed by the Columbia, was in dispute between Great Britain and the United States in the early 19th century. When the present boundary was agreed on in 1846 it left the Columbia divided between the two nations. By the 1850s steamboats were plying the river. The Columbia Basin Project, initiated in 1948, is a U.S. government irrigation, hydroelectric power, and flood-control plan of which Grand Coulee Dam is the key unit.

COLUMBUS (United States)

City in central GEORGIA, on the Chattahoochee River, 80 mi WSW of MACON. Founded in 1827 on the site of Creek Indian trading posts, it became a leading inland cotton port. A major Confederate artillery supply city in the Civil War, its capture by Union forces under General James H. Wilson on April 16, 1865, was the last battle east of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

COLUMBUS (United States)

City in NE MISSISSIPPI, on the Tombigbee River, 7 mi W of the Alabama line. Settled in 1817, it is today a trading and shipping center for its area. Franklin Academy, the first free school in the state, was opened here in 1821. It is now part of the public school system. Columbus was the temporary state capital in 1863 when Union troops occupied JACKSON. The first Confederate Decoration Day was observed here on April 25, 1866. Many beautiful antebellum mansions are open to the public during an annual pilgrimage.

COLUMBUS (United States)

Village in SW NEW MEXICO, 70 mi W of EL PASO, Texas. Gold, silver, copper, and onyx are mined in the region. On March 9, 1916, followers of Francisco "Pancho" Villa, Mexican revolutionary, crossed the border, raided the village, and killed 19 Americans. It is not certain whether Villa himself was with the group. In retaliation President Wilson ordered American troops into MEXICO to catch and punish Villa. Although they chased him for 11 months, they never caught him.

COLUMBUS (United States)

City and capital of OHIO, on the Scioto River, 97 mi NE of CINCINNATI. Laid out as state capital in 1812, it developed as a manufacturing town throughout the 19th century as transportation facilities improved. The city has grown to be Ohio's largest city. Columbus is home to the Ohio State University.

COMANA [modern: Şahr] (Turkey)

Ancient city of CAPPADOCIA, in Adana province. Its exact location is uncertain, though it is in the TAURUS MOUNTAINS on the upper Seyhan River. In the first century B.C. it was an important religious center for the worship of Ma-Enyo. The city supported the temple. Comana became a Roman colony in the third century A.D. under Emperor Caracalla, when it lay on the chief military road to the empire's eastern frontier.

COMAYAGUA [former: Valladolid la Nueva] (Honduras)

Town in W central Honduras, approximately 35 mi NW of TEGUCIGALPA. Founded in 1537, in the 19th century Comayagua struggled with the city of Tegucigalpa for political supremacy. After independence was won for Honduras from SPAIN in 1821, Comay-agua was the stronghold of the conservative faction, while its rival was the seat of the liberals. It was severely damaged by revolutionary groups in 1827. The cities alternated as capital of the nation until 1880, when the prize went permanently to Tegucigalpa. Comayagua is now the center of a mining and agricultural area. It retains a colonial cathedral and other structures of the era.

COMBACONUM See KUMBAKONAMCOMBE-CAPELLE (France)

Archaeological site in DORDOGNE department, near BERGERAC, SW central France. A Paleolithic skeleton of the Aurignacian period was discovered here in 1909 and is called Combe-Capelle man after the site.

COMBLES (France)

Battleground in the SOMME department, 6 mi NNW of PÉRONNE, NE France. The town here was ruined during bitter fighting in World War I.

COMMAGENE (Turkey)

Ancient province of SYRIA on the EUPHRATES RIVER, S of the TAURUS MOUNTAINS in S central Turkey. Formerly under ASSYRIA and PERSIA, Commagene achieved independence from the Seleucid kings of Syria c. 62 B.C. and reached the zenith of its power under King Antiochus I (c. 69–34 B.C.). Antiochus played his neighbors, the Parthians and Romans, against each other and thus preserved Commagene's independence for a while. Commagene was annexed by ROME in A.D. 17 under Tiberius, but was only finally joined to Rome in A.D. 72. Khosru I of Persia invaded the province in A.D. 542 but was checked by Belisarius. SAMOSATA was its capital.

COMMENCEMENT CITY See TACOMACOMMONWEALTH, THE [Commonwealth of Nations, British Commonwealth, British Commonwealth of Nations]

Voluntary association of independent nations and dependencies of GREAT BRITAIN, including certain "associated states" whose foreign affairs are conducted by the United Kingdom. It is an outgrowth of the BRITISH EMPIRE and consists of members in all parts of the world. The Commonwealth grew out of the Statute of Westminster, an act of the British Parliament passed in 1931. The act gave formal recognition to the right of self-rule by those states with the status of dominion within the British Empire. The Commonwealth was stated to be a free association, bound only by allegiance to the British Crown. It put the legislatures of the dominions on a footing equal to that of the British Parliament. The statute was to some extent a sequel to the series of Imperial Conferences, first held in 1887, which were first known as the Colonial Conferences. World War I spurred the development of autonomy within the empire, and World War II completed the process. Members of the Commonwealth meet regularly for consultation, but no binding action is taken, although Great Britain still plays a leading role. Economic ties and trade agreements are stressed.

The 54 members of the Commonwealth are ANTIGUA and BARBUDA, AUSTRALIA, BAHAMAS, BANGLADESH, BARBADOS, BELIZE, BRUNEI, BOTSWANA, CAMEROON, CANADA, CYPRUS, DOMINICA, FIJI, GAMBIA, GHANA, GRENADA, GUYANA, INDIA, JAMAICA, KENYA, KIRIBATI, LESOTHO, MALAWI, MALAYSIA, MALDIVES, MALTA, MAURITIUS, MOZAMBIQUE, NAMIBIA, NAURU, NEW ZEALAND, NIGERIA, PAKISTAN, PAPUA NEW GUINEA, SAINT KITTS AND NEVIS, SAINT LUCIA, SAINT VINCENT AND THE GRENADINES, SAMOA, SEYCHELLES, SIERRA LEONE, SINGAPORE, SOLOMON ISLANDS, SOUTH AFRICA, SRI LANKA, SWAZILAND, TANZANIA, TONGA, TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO, TUVALU, UGANDA, UNITED KINGDOM, VANUATU, and ZAMBIA. The Republic of South Africa withdrew from the Commonwealth in 1961 and rejoined in 1994. Pakistan withdrew in 1972 and rejoined in 1989, but has been suspended from councils since 1999 following a military coup. ZIMBABWE withdrew from the Commonwealth in 2003. Fiji was suspended between 1987 and 1997, and again in 2000–01 as a result of coups.

COMO [ancient: Comum] (Italy)

City and capital of Como province, at the SW end of Lake Como, 24 mi N of MILAN, in LOMBARDY region, N Italy. This town of the Insubrian Gauls became a Roman colony in 196 B.C. An independent commune in the 11th century A.D., it was destroyed by the Milanese in 1127 and rebuilt by Emperor Frederick I, who erected a fort here. It came successively under Milanese, Spanish, French, and Austrian rule until 1859, when it became part of the kingdom of Italy. Benito Mussolini was arrested here and executed on April 28, 1945. Lake Como is mentioned in the writings of Virgil and both Plinys. Noteworthy in the town are the sixth-century St. Carpoforo church, the 13th-century town hall, and a marble-faced cathedral begun in the 14th century.

COMORAO See BANDAR ABBAS

COMOROS [Union of the Commoros] [formerly: Islamic Federal Republic of the Comoros, French: Îles Comores, Territoire des Comores]

An island group and nation situated in the Mozambique Channel of the INDIAN OCEAN, 300 miles NE of MADAGASCAR. They consist of four main islands and several smaller ones.

The earliest inhabitants came from mainland Africa, though the islands may have been known to explorers from PHOENICIA. The earliest detailed knowledge comes from Arab voyagers who swept over the islands and became the dominant cultural force by the 15th century A.D. During the 16th century explorers from FRANCE, HOLLAND, PORTUGAL, and Madagascar visited the Comoros.

In the 19th century France realized the strategic value of the island of MAYOTTE and took possession after negotiating a treaty with the ruling sultan. In 1886 the remaining islands of Grand Comoro, Anjouan, and Moheli were claimed by France to forestall German colonial expansion. During the 20th century the Comoros slowly gained increasing freedom, attaining complete internal authority by 1961. Independence was declared in 1975, but Mayotte opted to remain French. The new government disputed this and had their position backed by the United Nations General Assembly in 1979. The islands have seen consistent political unrest with governments changing frequently through coups. In 1997, the islands of Anjouan and Moheli declared their independence from Comoros, but negotiations led to a new constitution in 2002, creating a revolving presidency among the islands. In legislative elections in 2004, voters favored parties supporting more autonomy for each island.

COMOTAY See KAMATAPUR

COMPENDIUM See COMPIÈGNE

COMPIÈGNE [ancient: Compendium] (France)

Town in the Oise department, on the River Oise, 34 mi E of BEAUVAIS, NE France. Dating from Roman times, it was the site of assemblies and councils of Merovingian kings in the early Middle Ages. Joan of Arc was captured here by Burgundians in 1430. In 1624 Cardinal Richelieu signed a treaty here with the Dutch. In the Franco-Prussian War, Compiègne was the headquarters of the invading German army and was the scene of the signing of the armistice that ended World War I and of the signing of the armistice with Hitler on June 22, 1940, that followed France's collapse in World War II. The same railway carriage was used for the signing of both armistices.

COMPLUTUM See ALCALÁ DE HENARES

COMPNIACUM See COGNAC

COMPOSTELA (Mexico) See NAYARIT

COMPOSTELA (Spain) See SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA

COMSTOCK LODGE (United States)

Rich silver deposit found on Mt Davidson in W NEVADA in 1857. The two original discoverers died before recording their claims. Henry T.P. Comstock, a sheepherder and prospector, and others recorded claims in 1859, but Comstock sold out for $11,000. When word spread that there were enormous deposits of silver, a rush ensued, but only a relatively few men who had the capital necessary to finance large-scale mining operations made fortunes. Four of them became known as the Silver Kings: James C. Flood and William O'Brien, who had been partners in a saloon; and James G. Fair and John W. McKay, who speculated in mining claims. In 20 years $300 million worth of precious metal was taken out, but by 1898 the Comstock was largely abandoned, the result of wasteful mining methods and a drastic fall in the value of silver. Nearby VIRGINIA CITY was the capital of the area, famous for the luxury it offered and for the amount of money fortunate miners spent there.

COMTAT-VENAISSIN (France)

Region of SE France, in the Vaucluse department around AVIGNON, E of the Rhône River. CARPENTRAS was its capital. Inhabited originally by the Gallic Cavari tribe, it prospered under the Romans and was later held by the counts of TOULOUSE until A.D. 1229, when Raymond VII ceded it to Pope Gregory IX. It remained a papal enclave until 1791, when it passed to France following a plebiscite.

COMUM See COMO

CONAKRY [Konakri] (Guinea)

City in SW Guinea, West Africa, a port on Tombo Island, just off the Atlantic Coast. It is the capital and largest city of the country. FRANCE proclaimed a protectorate over the Guinea coastal region in 1849 and founded Conakry in 1884, where a village of the Susu people was located. It became the capital of the protectorate of French Guinea in 1891. In the early 1970s Conakry was the headquarters of a group attempting to secure independence for GUINEA-BISSAU, a region to the N, now an independent nation.

CONCA See CUENCA

CONCEPCIÓN [Spanish: Concepción de la Madre Santísima de la Luz] (Chile)

City and capital of Concepción province, 260 mi SW of SANTIAGO, central Chile. The third-largest city of Chile, it was founded in 1550 where modern Penco is now sited but was immediately laid waste by Araucanian Indians. Refounded a short distance S in 1557, it suffered severe earthquakes in 1570, 1730, 1751, 1835, 1939, and 1960.

CONCEPCIÓN DE LA MADRE SANTÍSIMA DE LA LUZ See CONCEPCIÓN

CONCEPCIÓN DE LA VEGA See LA VEGA

CONCEPCIÓN DEL URUGUAY (Argentina)

City on the Uruguay River, 150 mi N of BUENOS AIRES, in Entre Rios province, NE Argentina. Concepción was capital of the Argentine Confederation during the revolutionary and civil wars of 1813–21 and 1860–83.

CONCÓN (Chile)

Town and battlefield in Valparaíso province, on the Pacific Ocean, 12 mi NNE of VALPARAÍSO, central Chile. During the Chilean Civil War, Congressists under General del Canto captured Concón from the Balmacedists under General Barbosa on August 21, 1891. President José Balmaceda was forced to resign following a further defeat at Placilla and committed suicide.

CONCORD [former: Musketaquid] (United States)

Town and battlefield in E MASSACHUSETTS, on the Concord River, 12 mi S of LOWELL. Founded in 1635 as part of the MASSACHUSETTS BAY colony, it was the scene of the Battle of Concord, the first battle of the American Revolution. On April 19, 1775, a British troop marching to Concord to seize military supplies from the colonists was first fired upon in LEXINGTON ("the shot heard around the world"), then marched on to Concord, where they were repulsed by Minutemen (irregulars) at Concord's North Bridge. The town was also an intellectual center and home for many 19th-century writers, notably Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau, and Nathaniel Hawthorne. See also BOSTON.

CONCORD [former: Rumford] (United States)

City and capital of NEW HAMPSHIRE, on the MERRIMACK RIVER, 15 mi N of MANCHESTER. Settled in 1727 as Pennycook Plantation, it was incorporated as Rumford in 1733 by MASSACHUSETTS. Reincorporated as Concord by New Hampshire in 1765, it became state capital in 1808. Franklin Pierce lived here after 1842, making his mark as a lawyer before becoming an officer in the Mexican War and eventually president of the United States.

CONDATE See COSNE-SUR-LOIRE, MONTEREAU, RENNES

CONDEIXA (Portugal)

Town and battlefield in Beira Litoral province, 8 mi SSW of COIMBRA, central Portugal. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, from March 10 to 13, 1811, Arthur Wellesley, duke of Wellington's Anglo-Portuguese army forced the French under Marshal Michel Ney to retreat from Condeixa toward CASAL NOVO and SPAIN. The French could then no longer hold a line in central Portugal.

CONDÉ-SUR-NOIREAU (France)

Town in Calvados department, 33 mi SSW of CAEN, N France. Important during the Middle Ages, it was held by the English from 1417 to 1449 during the Hundred Years' War. It was completely destroyed during World War II, but has since been rebuilt.

CONDIVINCUM See NANTES

CONDOM (France)

Town in the Gers department, 20 mi SW of AGEN, SW France. Founded in the eighth century A.D., it was an episcopal see from 1317 to 1790. It was attacked and damaged by the Huguenots in 1569.

CONDORE (India)

Village and battlefield in ANDHRA PRADESH state, 40 mi N of RAJAHMUNDY near Peddapore, E central India. During the Third Carnatic War, on December 7, 1758, a British and native force under Lieutenant Colonel Francis Forde defeated the French here under the marquis de Conflans and occupied Rajahmundry.

CONEANGIUM See CHESTER-LE-STREET

CONEMAUGH See JOHNSTOWN

CONFEDERACY, THE See CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA

CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA [The Confederacy] (United States)

Short-lived government established in 1861 by 11 states in the South that seceded from the Union. They seceded as the conflict between the North and the South over black slavery came to a head, but the dispute was also rooted in sectional differences, economic policy, and the question of states' rights. Secession was triggered by the election of Abraham Lincoln, Republican and opponent of slavery, in November 1860. SOUTH CAROLINA withdrew from the Union in December and was soon followed by ALABAMA, FLORIDA, GEORGIA, LOUISIANA, MISSISSIPPI, and TEXAS. Delegates from these states, except Texas, met at MONTGOMERY, Alabama, on February 4, 1861, and organized a government with Jefferson Davis as president. The convention drafted a constitution that was modeled on that of the United States, but with significant differences: slavery was recognized, as were stronger states' rights, and protective tariffs were forbidden. In May the capital of the Confederacy was moved to RICHMOND, Virginia.

The Confederacy demanded the surrender of FORT SUMTER at CHARLESTON, South Carolina, held by the U.S. government; when the demand was refused, they fired on it on April 12 and 13, 1861. Lincoln called for troops to put down the rebellion, whereupon four more states seceded, including ARKANSAS, NORTH CAROLINA, TENNESSEE, and VIRGINIA. The Civil War, in which both sides were to suffer very heavy casualties, had begun. At first the South showed superior military skill and scored battlefield victories, but gradually the superiority of the North in manpower and industrial and transportation facilities began to tell.

For practical purposes the end of the Confederacy came on April 9, 1865, when the South's intrepid general Robert E. Lee surrendered his depleted army to General Ulysses S. Grant at APPOMATTOX COURTHOUSE. Slavery was abolished, and the Union was preserved, but much of the South lay in ruins. In addition, there was bitter disagreement in the North as to the terms on which the seceding states should be readmitted to the Union. The process, called Reconstruction, was not completed until 1876, after much turmoil. The physical and psychological scars of the terrible conflict lingered on into the 20th century.

CONFEDERATION OF THE RHINE

A league of German states, it included the kingdoms of BAVARIA and WÜRTTEMBERG and stretched as far S as TRENT in ITALY. It was created as a French satellite by Napoleon following his defeat of AUSTRIA at AUSTERLITZ in 1806. Its members abandoned their allegiance to Austria and the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. The Confederation collapsed in 1813 after Napoleon's disastrous Russian campaign. See also GERMANY.

CONGO [Democratic Republic of the Congo] [former: Belgian Congo, Congo, Congo Free State, Zaïre]

An inland country of south-central Africa with a narrow access to the Atlantic Ocean along the N bank of the CONGO RIVER estuary. After the former colony of the BELGIAN CONGO was granted independence in 1960, a fragile coalition emerged from national elections that hoped to rule the country. In less than a week the new nation's stability was shattered as a mutiny by Congolese soldiers against Belgian officers spread and led to widespread attacks on Belgian nationals. The civil service disintegrated as its Belgian administration fled, and chaos reigned. In response to the widening turmoil, BELGIUM airlifted troops in to restore order. Taking advantage of the governmental breakdown, Moïse Tshombe declared the mineral-rich Katanga region, now SHABA region, an independent state.

The fledgling Congolese government appealed to the United Nations to resist Belgium's reoccupation, and an international peacekeeping force of Africans replaced the Belgian troops. Katanga, the key to the country's wealth, was ignored by the United Nations, and direct Belgian aid helped consolidate its secession. By 1961 three rival governments were fighting for control of the country: Colonel Joseph Mobutu had seized power in LÉOPOLDVILLE; Tshombe was in control of Katanga; and Patrice Lumumba's followers were centered in STANLEYVILLE. Lumumba was mysteriously killed while held prisoner in Katanga, and the resulting world outrage led to a strong UN stand against all foreign aid to the Katanga rebels. The secession was finally broken by UN forces in 1963, but rebellion and fighting continued to rock the countryside.

Stability was finally achieved in 1966 when General Mobutu seized power and wiped out a greatly weakened rebel movement, while establishing a strong central control with himself as president. Mobutu's government retained Western ties while it nationalized the country's major economic resources. In 1971 the Congo was renamed Zaïre, and Mobutu led a movement to replace European influence with native Zaïrois custom and usage wherever possible. Zaïre opposed the successful Soviet-backed faction in the ANGOLA civil war of 1975–76, and in 1977 an invasion of former Katanga rebels was mounted from Angola. Mobutu defeated this attack with the help of 1,500 Moroccan troops flown in by France. In 1978 a second invasion was repulsed with the direct military assistance of France, Belgium, and the United States, which perceived a Soviet- and Cuban-sponsored threat.

Riots by unpaid soldiers in Kinshasa led Mobutu to agree to a coalition government with opposition leaders in 1991. The country continued to collapse economically, with a deteriorating national infrastructure and unpaid civil servants making do through corruption and theft. Zaïre's internal problems were compounded by an influx of hundreds of thousands of Hutu refugees from RWANDA and a spillover of ethnic fighting between Hutus and Tutsis into Zaïre. In 1994 Kengo Wa Dondo, an economic reformer, was chosen prime minister by parliament. In 1996 and 1997 Mobutu was in Europe being treated for cancer, while Rwandan- and Ugandan-supported rebels captured much of the eastern half of the country. Aided also by ZAMBIA and ANGOLA, rebels took Kinshasa in 1997. Rebel leader Laurent Kabila was sworn in as president and changed the name of the country to the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Instead of holding elections in 1999 as promised, Kabila banned all political opposition parties and retained control of the government. The economy did not improve and massacres of Congolese Tutsis by their Hutu neighbors in the mid-1990s, and massacres of Rwandan Hutus by Kabila's forces during the earlier revolutionary conflict lost most support for his regime both at home and abroad. In the eastern part of the country Congolese Tutsi forces rebelled against the center government supported by the Rwandans in 1998. The government was backed by ZIMBABWE, Angola, and NAMIBIA who sent troops to aid Kabila's government, while Rwanda and Uganda continued to back the rebels. In 1999, at a peace conference in LUSAKA, Zambia, the six nations signed a cease-fire agreement, and later, the two main Congolese rebel groups also signed the pact. The country was split between the government forces in the SW and the rebel forces in the NE. War continued in 2000 as Ugandan and Rwandan forces fought each other while the government tried to advance in the NW. In 2001 Kabila was assassinated, and his son, Major General Joseph Kabila, was named the successor. Joseph Kabila's government ended the ban on political parties and began negotiating for peace. By 2002 most foreign troops had left the Congo, and the government and the two main rebel groups signed a peace agreement in 2003. Fighting among tribal groups continued and the United Nations has dispatched a French-led peacekeeping force. See also CABINDA.

CONGO FREE STATE See CONGO

CONGO, REPUBLIC OF [former: The Middle Congo, Peoples Republic of the Congo]

A nation of W central Africa, largely covered by dense equatorial forest and marshland.

The history of the Congo before the arrival of Portuguese explorers in the late 15th century is conjectural. Several kingdoms existed at that time, including the KONGO Kingdom, the Loango Kingdom, and the Bateke Kingdom. During the 16th and 17th centuries the Portuguese actively worked with the coastal tribes to funnel large numbers of inland peoples to the holds of waiting French, English, and Dutch slavers who competed for the lucrative trade.

In the late 19th century the French turned their colonial ambition toward interior central Africa. In 1880 they induced a local king to agree to a French protectorate along the N bank of the CONGO RIVER and in 1885 achieved international acceptance of their control, eventually making the territory part of FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA. The territory was brutally exploited by private concessionaires as the French government was content to collect taxes and rents from them and to ignore their administration of the region. By 1907 international outrage forced France to establish some control over the private concessions, but lasting damage had been done to the native population and to the ivory and rubber trade. Further devastation was visited upon the Africans of the Congo by the French as they used forced labor to build the Congo-Ocean railway after World War I. An estimated 17,000 people died during its construction.

BRAZZAVILLE, the capital, was an important center of Free French resistance during World War II. After the war the Congo gradually received greater autonomy until it became independent on August 15, 1960. A military coup brought an end to democracy in 1968 when Marien Ngouabi seized control and moved toward closer ties with the SOVIET UNION. Ngouabi was assassinated in 1977, and the new military rulers swiftly moved to resume diplomatic ties with the UNITED STATES and the West while remaining a Marxist-Leninist state with close Soviet and Chinese ties. In 1992 the country had democratic elections and Prof. Pascal Lissouba was elected, but he shortly thereafter dissolved the parliament and called for elections the following year. The elections of 1993 were disputed by the opposition and only international arbitration averted civil war. In 1997 former president Sassou with Angolan assistance overthrew the government. There continues to be unrest.

CONGO RIVER [Zaire River] (Angola, Republic of Congo, Congo)

River formed in CONGO, Africa, by the confluence of the Luapala and Lualaba Rivers, it flows N and E to the Atlantic Ocean at Matadi. One of the largest rivers in the world, the Congo drains a huge area of Africa and is potentially the continent's largest source of hydroelectric power. The entire Congo River system was first explored by H. M. Stanley from 1874 to 1884.

CONIMBRIGA See COIMBRACONJEEVERAM See KANCHIPURAMCONNAUGHT [Connacht] (Ireland)

Ancient kingdom of W and NW IRELAND. Its rulers were displaced in the fourth century A.D. by the kings of TARA, who ruled Connaught until their power was disrupted by the Anglo-Norman settlement of the 12th century. Connaught was awarded to Richard de Burgh in 1227 by Henry III and was divided into shires in 1576.

CONNECTICUT (United States)

This southernmost of the NEW ENGLAND states was one of the original 13 colonies. In January 1788 it became the fifth state to ratify the federal Constitution of the United States. Its name is an Indian word that was first applied to the CONNECTICUT RIVER. The state is divided into eastern and western highlands by that river.

A Dutchman, Adrian Block, was the first European to see Connecticut when he sailed through LONG ISLAND SOUND in 1614 and found the Connecticut River. The Dutch built a fort in 1633 on the site of present HARTFORD but abandoned it in 1654. The first Englishman in the area seems to have been Edward Winslow of PLYMOUTH Colony in 1633. The following year, people from that colony established a trading post at WINDSOR. This was soon absorbed by the MASSACHUSETTS Bay Company, and a group led by John Oldham in 1634 set up a post at WETHERSFIELD. They were followed in 1636 by Thomas Hooker and his congregation, who came from CAMBRIDGE to settle near the Dutch post. Their migration stemmed from a desire for more and better land rather than from religious reasons. The Pequot Indians were badly defeated and scattered in 1637, and the next year the three towns of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield organized the colony of Connecticut, with religious restrictions on voting and holding office. At this time NEW HAVEN was founded separately from the colony, and in 1643 both joined Massachusetts Bay and Plymouth to form the New England Confederation for mutual support against attacks from the Indians and the Dutch.

In 1662 the Connecticut colonies requested and received a royal charter from King Charles II, which confirmed their civil rights. A bloody struggle with the Wampanoag Indians, known as King Philip's War for their chief, was fought in 1675–76 and ended with the complete defeat of the Indians. The English government tried to assert control over the colony from 1687 to 1689 but did not succeed. Congregationalism was made the official religion in 1703, and harmony prevailed until the 1730s when a religious revival, the Great Awakening, split the church into radicals and conservatives. Divisions based on politics and economic life also developed between 1750 and 1776.

During the American Revolution there were only a few skirmishes in Connecticut, but the colony was a major source of supplies for the patriots. After the war Connecticut gave up claims to lands in the West granted in its charter, except for the WESTERN RESERVE in Ohio. Part of this land was given to Connecticut citizens in 1792 and the rest sold in 1795. The War of 1812 was unpopular in Connecticut, and the state joined other New England states at the Hartford Convention of December 1814 to January 1815, which for a time considered secession. Slavery was abolished here in 1848, and the state strongly supported the Union in the Civil War.

Connecticut and "Yankee ingenuity" have long been synonymous. American mass production began in 1798 at New Haven in Eli Whitney's gun factory, and Connecticut was in the forefront of the Industrial Revolution of the late 19th century, as many industries were attracted by the waterpower and fertile land of the Connecticut River valley. Industry here has turned out everything from clocks and silverware to nuclear submarines. In 1810 an insurance company opened in Hartford, and the city is now the national capital of the industry. In recent years large corporations have moved their headquarters to the southwestern part of the state, especially to GREENWICH and STAMFORD.

Connecticut's rural towns and villages typify New England life. Its many shore communities have long played host to fishermen, vacationers, and the wealthy. Its southwestern tier is the site of several bedroom communities for the New York metropolitan area. Hartford is the capital and largest city. Others not mentioned above include BRIDGEPORT, NEW LONDON, and WATERBURY.

CONNECTICUT FARMS See UNIONCONNECTICUT RESERVE See WESTERN RESERVE

CONNECTICUT RIVER See CONNECTICUT

CONSENTIA See COSENZA

CONSTANCE [ancient: Constantia; German: Konstanz] (Germany)

City and port in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, 75 mi S of STUTTGART on Lake Constance, SW Germany. The site of a Roman fort, it was captured by the Alemanni in the third century A.D. Frederick I Barbarossa came to terms with the Lombard States at Constance in 1183. The head of a powerful confederacy of towns in the 14th century, it was the scene of the Council of Constance, 1414–18, which condemned as heretical the doctrines of Huss, Wycliffe and Jerome of PRAGUE. A member of the Protestant Schmalkaldic League, it fell to AUSTRIA in 1547 and became Catholic. It passed to BADEN in 1805. A medieval gate remains, and here is a 14th-century market house. Along Lake Constance (German: Bodensee) there are traces of prehistoric settlement.

CONSTANȚA [ancient: Constantiana, Tomi, Tomis; Turkish: Küstenja] (Romania)

City, port, and capital of Constanța province on the BLACK SEA, in SE Romania. A Greek city of ancient SCYTHIA, it was founded in the sixth century B.C. by Greeks from MILETUS and was annexed by ROME in 72 B.C. It was the site of Ovid's exile. The city was reconstructed in the fourth century A.D. by Constantine I but declined after a long period of foreign invasion and final Turkish occupation. The city reemerged as part of modern Romania. Many remains of Greek and Roman settlements are to be seen here.

CONSTANTIA (France) See COUTANCES

CONSTANTIA (West Germany) See CONSTANCE

CONSTANTIANA See CONSTANTIA

CONSTANTINE [ancient: Cirta, Kirtha, Sarim Batim; native: Blad el-Hawa] (Algeria)

City and capital of Constantine province, 200 mi ESE of ALGIERS, NE Algeria. Founded by Carthaginians, it became capital of NUMIDIA in the third century B.C., and was later the head of a confederation of four Roman colonies on the African coast. During a war in A.D. 311, it was destroyed, but was rebuilt by Constantine the Great in 313. Taken by the Arabs in the seventh century, it fell to the Turks in the 16th century. Virtually independent at the start of the 19th century, it did not fall to France until 1837. During World War II it, along with SETIF, were Allied bases. A well-preserved medieval wall surrounds the town, which includes a large casbah, or native quarter.

CONSTANTINOPLE [former: Byzantium; Greek: Constantinopolis; Turkish: Istanbul] (Turkey)

City, now Istanbul, on the European side of the BOSPORUS where it enters the Sea of Marmara dividing Europe from Asia, on both sides of the Golden Horn, an inlet of the Bosphorus. Constantinople was the capital of the powerful BYZANTINE EMPIRE and the largest and finest city in Europe, of the highest cultural and commercial importance. The city was founded in 667 B.C. by Greeks from MEGARA, and as Byzantium it grew in importance by reason of its location on the Bosphorus, which also connects with the BLACK SEA. It changed hands several times during the Peloponnesian Wars of 431 to 404 B.C. Although ROME held the Bosphorus area from at least 74 B.C., the city itself was captured in A.D. 196 by Septimius Severus of the ROMAN EMPIRE. Constantine I, who became emperor in 324, moved his capital here in 330, rebuilt it as Constantinople, and made it, for the most part, a Christian city. The Byzantine Empire came into existence when in 395 the Roman Empire was divided between east and west.

In the seventh century the city was subject to almost annual attacks by Arabs that finally ended in 678. After the break in 1054 between the Roman Catholic and the Orthodox Eastern Churches, the patriarchate of Constantinople became the most powerful in the East. In the Middle Ages the city became the guardian of the inherited cultures of GREECE and ROME and was much more advanced than western Europe in arts and literature. In 1204, however, Constantinople suffered a disaster when the French soldiers of the Fourth Crusade and their Venetian carriers decided to sack the rich city instead of continuing on to fight the Muslims in the Holy Land. They established the Latin Empire of Constantinople.

The Byzantine Empire divided into successor states, but in 1261 Michael VIII, emperor of NICAIA, recaptured the city and restored the empire. Meanwhile, the OTTOMAN EMPIRE of Islamic Turks was increasing in power as the glory of the Byzantine

284 Constantinopolis

Empire faded. By the mid-15th century Constantinople controlled no more than its immediate neighborhood. Nevertheless, when the Ottoman sultan Muhammad II laid siege to the city in 1453 it held out for 50 days, falling only when its ancient walls crumbled before the new Turkish artillery. Muhammad then moved his capital here and the city became known by its Turkish spelling as Istanbul. The fall of Constantinople, after its long history as defender of Christendom and Western culture, was so decisive an event that it was once taken by many as marking the end of the Middle Ages and the beginning of the Renaissance. Though many Greek scholars did flee the city with their precious manuscripts, cultural communication with the West had never ceased, and the Italian Renaissance is now seen to have begun a century earlier through Byzantine influences. In 1930, under Kemal Atatürk, the city was formally renamed ISTANBUL.

CONSTANTINOPOLIS See CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTIOLA See OLTENIȚA

CONTAE NA MIDHE See MEATH

CONTALMAISON (France)

Village and battlefield in the Somme department, 3 mi ENE of ALBERT, NE France. During World War I, the British captured this village from the Germans in one of the first battles of the SOMME on July 11, 1916.

CONTRERAS (Mexico)

Town and battlefield, 14 mi SSW of MEXICO CITY, central Mexico. During the Mexican War, on August 19–20, 1847, U.S. troops under General Winfield Scott defeated the Mexicans under General Gabriel Valencia here. See also CERRO GORDO, CHURUBUSCO.

CONWAY [former: Aberconwy; Welsh: Conwy] (Wales)

Town in GWYNEDD, 40 mi W of CHESTER, on the Conway River estuary. Conway was fortified by Edward I in 1283 and was one of his chain of fortified towns across newly conquered northern Wales. Richard II was turned over to Henry IV Bolingbroke here in 1399. Today, with its 13th-century castle, it is one of the finest examples in Europe of a medieval walled town.

CONWY See CONWAY

COO See KOS

COOCH BEHĀR [Cooch Behār, Kuch Bihār] (India)

Former princely state S of the HIMALAYAS, in West Bengal, E India. Once a powerful state of ASSAM, it formed part of the Kāmārūpa Kingdom. It came under British control in 1772 and since 1947 has been a district of West Bengal state.

COOCH'S BRIDGE (United States)

Scene of a skirmish in N DELAWARE, 13 mi WSW of Wilmington on the Christiana River. During the American Revolution, on September 3, 1777, Americans under Brigadier General William Maxwell attacked a British column under Charles Cornwallis here. There was little bloodshed.

COOK ISLANDS [Southern Cook Islands] [former: Hervey Islands] (New Zealand)

Group of 15 widely scattered islands in the SE Pacific Ocean, 2,000 mi NE of NEW ZEALAND. The group was first sighted in 1595 by Álvaro de Mendaña. Some were visited by Captain Cook and, following decades of the presence of the London Missionary Society, they were declared a British protectorate in 1888. Annexed by New Zealand in 1901, they became self-governing in 1965.

COOKTOWN (Australia)

Town in NE QUEENSLAND, on the Coral Sea, within the Great Barrier Reef. Although the town was not founded until 1873, when gold was found nearby, the site had been visited in 1770 by Captain James Cook, British explorer and navigator, on his voyage around the world between 1768 and 1771. He beached his ship Endeavour here for repairs. Although the town's population grew to 30,000 at one point, it declined after 1885, partly due to several major fires and cyclones. In World War II, Cooktown was a key military base for Australian and American troops.

COOLGARDIE [former: Bayley's Reward, Fly Flat, Gnarlbine] (Australia)

Town in SW WESTERN AUSTRALIA, 350 mi E of PERTH. It was founded in 1892 when quartz gold was discovered and was declared a municipality in 1894.

At that time it was named Coolgardie, an aboriginal name meaning water hole. By 1910 it had a population of approximately 20,000, but then many left to work in the more productive Golden Mile Reef of KALGOORLIE, 25 mi to the east. Coolgardie then became the Old Camp, and gold production declined. The 2,000-ounce Eldorado gold nugget was found here in 1951, but the town is now primarily a rustic stop on the railway and highway.

COOMASSIE See KUMASI

COOPER'S FERRY See CAMDEN

COOPERSTOWN (United States)

Village in E central NEW YORK State, approximately 60 mi W of ALBANY, on OTSEGO LAKE. The SUSQUEHANNA RIVER begins at the southern end of the lake. The town was founded by William Cooper, who brought his family here in 1787. Before that, during the American Revolution James Clinton and his American troops assembled here and on August 9, 1779, started down the river to link up with General John Sullivan at Tioga, Pennsylvania. Sullivan was in command of an expedition sent by General George Washington to subdue the Iroquois Indians who had been harassing the settlers of New York and PENNSYLVANIA.

Cooper's son, the novelist James Fenimore Cooper, made his home here after 1833. The region is the setting for his Leatherstocking Tales and Otsego Lake is the Glimmerglass of his books. Abner Doubleday, a Union general in the Civil War, is said to have invented baseball here in 1839, but this account is now generally discredited. In any event, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum is here and is a popular tourist attraction. There is also a Farmers Museum, and Fenimore House is the headquarters of the New York State Historical Association.

COORG See KODAGU

COOTE'S PARADISE See DUNDAS

COPÁN (Honduras)

Archaeological site, in Copán province, 22 mi WNW of Santa Rosa de Copán, W Honduras. This impressive Mayan city, noted for its portrait sculptures, flourished in the Classic period from A.D. 300 to 900 and was a center of learning and astronomy. The ruins were discovered by the Spanish in the early 16th century. See also MAYA EMPIRE.

COPENHAGEN [Danish: København; former: Havn] (Denmark)

Capital city and port of Denmark on the E SJAELAND and N Amager Islands, on the ØRESUND Sound. Inhabited for 6,000 years, it was a trading and fishing center by the 11th century A.D. Though twice destroyed by the HANSEATIC LEAGUE, it replaced ROSKILDE as capital of Denmark in 1443. Often attacked during the 16th century wars, it was besieged by SWEDEN from 1658 to 1659, and in 1660 a peace treaty made here ceded the southern tip of present-day Sweden to the Swedish Crown. On April 2, 1801, in the Battle of Copenhagen during the French Revolutionary Wars, the city was attacked by the British under Sir Hyde Parker and Admiral Horatio Nelson, sent to fight a league of Sweden, PRUSSIA, RUSSIA, and Denmark opposed to British searches at sea. After severe fighting, Nelson began negotiations with Denmark. Copenhagen was bombarded by the British in 1807. It suffered German occupation from 1940 to 1945, during World War II. Christiansborg Castle incorporates remains of the original 12th-century fortress. See also MALMÖ.

COPIAPÓ [former: San Francisco de la Selva] (Chile)

City and capital of Atacama province, 425 mi N of SANTIAGO, N central Chile. It was settled in 1540 by Pedro de Valdivia. Expeditions from here in the 19th century led to discoveries of mineral wealth that gave this city political and economic power. The city was ruined by earthquakes in 1819, 1822, 1851, and 1939. Today the city is based in industries that process and ship the copper, gold, and silver found in the surrounding region.

COPPEROPOLIS See ANACONDA

COPTOS [Coptus] [modern: Kuft, Qift] (Egypt)

Ancient city in Qena province, on the right bank of the NILE RIVER, 20 mi NE of THEBES, E central Egypt. An important commercial center in antiquity, it lay on the trade route from the Nile to the RED SEA, INDIA, and the ARABIAN PENINSULA. During the first and second dynasties nearby mines yielded gold and porphyry. Destroyed in A.D. 292 by Diocletian following a rebellion, Coptos later became a Christian community, lending its name to the Coptic Christians of Egypt. Numerous early Egyptian artifacts and a temple have been found here.

286 Coptus

COPTUS See COPTOS

COQUILHATVILLE See MBANDAKA

CORAL SEA

Section of the SW Pacific Ocean, extending E of AUSTRALIA and NEW GUINEA, S of the SOLOMON ISLANDS. During World War II, from May 4 to 8, 1942, the Coral Sea was the scene of a naval and air engagement in which a U.S. fleet turned back a Japanese invasion force heading for PORT MORESBY, New Guinea.

CORATO (Italy)

Town in Bari province, PUGLIA region, 24 mi W of BARI, SE Italy. Founded by the Normans, Corato passed to Alfonso V of ARAGON at the end of the 15th century. It later passed to the Carafa family. Noteworthy churches of the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries are here.

CORBEIL-ESSONNES [ancient: Corbolum] (France)

Town in the Seine-et-Oise department, 16 mi SSE of PARIS. The capital of a countship under the Carolingian kings, it was annexed to France in 1108 by Louis VI. A treaty was signed here in 1258 between Louis IX of France and James I, the conqueror of ARAGON.

CORBOLIUM See CORBEIL-ESSONNES

CORBRIDGE (England)

Village in Northumberland on the Tyne River, 16 mi W of NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE. It is near the site of Corstopitum, a major Roman supply base, fort, and civil settlement just S of HADRIAN'S WALL on the frontier with modern SCOTLAND. Corbridge was later an important town in the kingdom of NORTHUMBRIA and was its capital in the A.D. eighth century. It was the site of a battle in 914, and later was frequently ravaged by Scottish armies. Corbridge has an eighth-century church and many excavated remains of Roman forts, barracks, and granaries.

CORCAIGH See CORK

CORCYRA See CORFU

CORCYRA MULAINA See KORČULA

CORCYRA NIGRA See KORČULA

CORDILLERA DE LOS ANDES See ANDES

CÓRDOBA (Argentina)

City and capital of Córdoba province, 387 mi NW of BUENOS AIRES, central Argentina. Founded in 1573, it was an important Spanish colonial city and capital of the province of Tucumán. In the war of independence it was a hotbed of Spanish resistance. Later it was frequently a center of provincial rebellion and was involved in the toppling of Juan Perón in 1955. General Eduardo Lonardi's taking of the city marked the beginning of the overthrow of the president. Much colonial architecture remains.

CÓRDOBA (Mexico)

City in Veracruz province, 55 mi WSW of VERACRUZ, SE central Mexico. Settled in 1618, it was the scene of the signing of the Treaty of Córdoba on August 24, 1821, which secured Mexico's independence from SPAIN. It was damaged by an earthquake in August 1973.

CÓRDOBA (Spain) See CÓRDOVA

CÓRDOVA [ancient: Corduba] (Spain)

City and center of the flowering of Moorish culture in Spain, now capital of Córdoba province in ANDALUSIA, 86 mi NE of SEVILLE.

Believed to have been founded by CARTHAGE, Córdoba was captured by ROME in 206 B.C. and was a flourishing center under the ROMAN EMPIRE and until its capture by the Visigoths in A.D. 572. It remained in their control until 711 when the Moors of the Umayyad dynasty conquered it.

After gaining independence from the caliphate of DAMASCUS under Abd-ar-Rahman I and his successors, it became the most important city and state in Spain, flourishing as an artistic and intellectual center. Attaining its zenith under Abd-ar-Rahman II in the 10th century, it was known throughout Europe as the "Athens of the West" and was famous for its intellectual accomplishments. After being known as both a Muslim and a Jewish center, the overthrow of the Umayyads in 1031 brought the city's decline. It was annexed to Seville in 1078.

Following the city's capture by Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE in 1236, the great eighth-century mosque here was converted to a Catholic cathedral in 1238. Later, the city was ravaged by the French in 1808 and 1811 during the Napoleonic Wars. More recently, during the Spanish civil war, it sided with General Francisco Franco. It was the birthplace of the Senecas, Lucan, Averroës, and Maimonides and is now the site of a university.

CORDUBA See CÓRDOVA

CORFINIUM [Valva] (Italy)

Ancient town of SAMNIUM in L'Aquila province, ABRUZZI region, 7 mi N of Sulmona, central Italy. Corfinium was the capital of the short-lived republic of Italia, founded in the first century B.C. by allied Italians seeking the same rights enjoyed by the Romans they had aided. They also waged the Social or Marsic War, during the period 90–88 B.C. Corfinium was taken by Julius Caesar in 49 B.C., and after the decline of the town, a new one, Valva, arose here. The church of Santo Pelino dates to the fifth century A.D.

CORFU [ancient: Corcyra; Greek: Kérkira, Kérkyra] (Greece)

Island in the IONIAN SEA, off the coasts of NW Greece and SW ALBANIA. Traditionally the Scheria of Homer, it was settled c. 735 B.C. by Corinthians. It tried to assert its independence but was involved in the first recorded sea battle in 664 B.C. and reduced in 600 B.C. by Periander, tyrant of CORINTH. Corfu's appeal for aid from ATHENS helped start the Peloponnesian Wars. Corfu passed to ROME in 229 B.C. and was part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE from the fifth to the 11th centuries A.D. Because of its favorable position it fell successively to many powers, including the Normans and VENICE. It became a British protectorate from 1815 to 1864, when it was returned to Greece. The Pact of Corfu, signed here on July 20, 1917, created a new Serb, Croat, and Slovene state, later YUGOSLAVIA. Italy occupied Corfu for a month in 1923 in an international incident that was to lead to the first major involvement of the League of Nations. Corfu was occupied by the Italians and Germans from 1941 to 1944. A 16th-century Venetian fort is here.

CORINIUM See CIRENCESTER

CORINTH [Greek: Kórinthos] (Greece)

Ancient city in the NE PELOPONNESUS, on the Gulf of Corinth. It was one of the oldest, largest, wealthiest, and most powerful cities of ancient Greece. The site was inhabited in the Neolithic Age. The city was founded in the ninth century B.C. by the Dorian invaders of Greece after the original settlement shifted to the port of Korakou. It became a leading maritime power in the seventh and sixth centuries B.C. under the tyrants Cypselus and Periander. It colonized CORFU, SYRACUSE, and POTIDAEA. The Peloponnesian Wars were largely caused by Athens going to the aid of these rebellious colonies. Corinth fought against SPARTA with ATHENS in the Corinthian War of 395 to 387 B.C. Following the battle of CHAERONEA in 338 B.C., Corinth was garrisoned by Macedonian troops and was destroyed in 146 B.C. by the Romans. Restored by Caesar in 46 B.C., it and nearby Cenchreae were visited by St. Paul from A.D. 52 to 54. Held by Goths, Byzantines, crusaders, Turks, and Venetians, it was captured from the Turks by Greek insurgents in 1822. A new city was built in 1858 after the destruction of the old one by an earthquake. Corinth was occupied by the Germans from 1941 to 1944. Much of the ancient city has been excavated. See also SICYON.

CORINTH (United States)

City and battlefield in NE MISSISSIPPI, 80 mi ESE of MEMPHIS. Founded in 1855, it was a strategic rail center in the Civil War. It was easily won by Union general H. W. Halleck in May 1862. Attacking Confederates under E. Van Dorn were repulsed here on October 3 and 4, 1862, by Union troops under General Rosecrans.

CORIOLI (Italy)

Ancient town of the Volscii in LATIUM region, central Italy. Its exact location is not known. By tradition it was besieged in 493 B.C. by Gaius Marcius Coriolanus, whose name derives from this town.

CORITO See CORTONA

CORIZZA See KORÇE

CORK [Gaelic: Corcaigh] (Ireland)

Town and county borough of Cork, on the River Lee, 130 mi SW of DUBLIN, SW Ireland. Norsemen burned and raided Cork in A.D. 821, 846, and 1012 before eventually settling here. They were ousted in 1172 by Dermot MacCarthy. Oliver Cromwell occupied Cork in 1649, and the duke of MARLBOROUGH took it in 1690. Cork was a center of resistance to British occupation from 1919 to 1920. Noteworthy are the Blarney Stone at the 15th-century Blarney Castle, numerous prehistoric stone monuments, and remains of ancient abbeys. See also KINSALE, MUNSTER.

CORLEONE (Italy)

Town in Palermo province, 21 mi S of PALERMO, W SICILY. Either of Byzantine or Saracen origin, it was made a military center in the 12th century A.D. by the Hohenstaufen rulers of Sicily. It was a center of anti-Bourbon nationalism in the 19th century. Starting around the 1960s the town became infamous as a hotbed of Mafia activity.

CORMANTYNE See KORMANTINECORNETO See TARQUINIACORNICHE (France, Monaco)

Three roads in the Alpes-Maritimes department, running for 19 mi parallel to the RIVIERA from NICE to MENTON, SE France. The upper road, La Grande Corniche, was built in 1806 as a military road by Napoleon. La Moyenne Corniche links intermediate towns. La Petite Corniche runs along the coast.

CORNING (United States)

City in S NEW YORK State on the Chemung River, 14 mi W of ELMIRA. Settled in 1788, the place was named in 1837 for Erastus Corning, a railroad promoter. Corning is famous for the Corning Glass Works started in 1868. The 200-inch telescope mirror for the Mt Palomar, CALIFORNIA, observatory was produced here, and a glass museum was established in 1951. In 1972 flood waters caused by Hurricane Agnes damaged the city, including the museum, very heavily.

CORNWALL (England)

Most westerly county in England. It is surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the N, W, and S, and by DEVON on the E, and includes the SCILLY ISLANDS. Settled since prehistoric times and never fully Romanized, it was the last Celtic part of Britain to submit to the Saxons. It was created an earldom by William the Conqueror after 1066. It was made a duchy by Edward III in 1337 and is still an appanage of the Prince of Wales. The administrative headquarters is Truro.

There are numerous prehistoric stone monuments from as early as 2500 B.C., stone crosses, and other evidence of prehistoric and Celtic culture here. The unusual traditions of Cornish wrestling date by tradition to 1000 B.C. Cornwall's moors and heaths have been the subject of many legends. Land's End and the Cornish coast have long been an important landfall for Atlantic shipping and now serve the same purpose for air routes. Many of its chief towns, such as FALMOUTH and TRURO, point to the area's role in American colonization.

CORO [former: Santa Ana de Coriana] (Venezuela)

City in Falcón province, 200 mi WNW of CARACAS, NW Venezuela. Founded in 1527 in an area inhabited by Coros Indians, it became the headquarters of a German banking firm that held the rights to western Venezuela. It became a base for Spanish expeditions in search of EL DORADO, and was briefly capital of Venezuela until 1578. Francisco de Miranda revolted against SPAIN here in 1806. Though unsuccessful, the attempt was the first step in a growing movement toward independence.

COROMANDEL COAST (India)

Coastal region of SE India, on the Bay of Bengal, extending approximately 400 mi N from Point Calimere to the delta of the Krishna River. Over the centuries some of the empires and peoples that ruled the CARNATIC, the area between the Eastern Ghats and the Coromandel Coast, also held sway over the coastal region. Chief among them were the CHOLAS, who ruled the coast from the ninth to the late 13th century A.D. The coastal city of THANJAYUR (Tanjore) on the Cauvery River delta was their capital, and in the 11th century they built the Grand Anicut dam and canal, one of the oldest navigation and irrigation systems in India.

The Coromandel Coast was the setting for the struggle of the European powers for control of SE India. The Portuguese established a post at NAGAPATTINAM early in the 16th century. This was occupied by the Dutch from 1660 to 1671. The Danes established themselves at TRANQUEBAR in 1616, while MADRAS grew up around Fort St. George, an English post completed in 1640. It was fought over several times by the English and the French. The first permanent settlement of the French was at PONDICHERRY in 1674. KARIKAL was another French enclave on the coast, which they acquired in 1739. By 1801, however, except for the French possessions, Great Britain was master of southern India, and Madras was its administrative headquarters. The two French enclaves were not turned over to independent India until 1954. Otherwise, the Coromandel Coast became part of the newly created states of TAMIL NADU and ANDHRA PRADESH.

CORONEA [Greek: Koroneia] (Greece)

Ancient town and battlefield of BOEOTIA, in central Greece 7 mi S of LEVADIA. The Boeotians defeated the Athenians here in 447 B.C. After the Battle of NEMEA in 394 B.C. during the Corinthian War, the Spartans under Agesilaus II defeated a confederation of Thebans, Athenians, Boeotians, Argives, and Corinthians here but failed to consolidate their victory. See also ATHENS, SPARTA.

CORONEL (Chile)

City in Concepción province, 17 mi S of CONCEPCIÓN, on the Golfo de Arauco, S central Chile. During World War I, the German East Asiatic squadron under Graf von Spee defeated the British under Sir Christopher Cradock off Coronel on November 1, 1914.

CORONIUM See CORUNNA

CORPUS CHRISTI (United States)

City in S TEXAS, 125 mi SE of SAN ANTONIO, on the SW shore of Corpus Christi Bay. It was founded in 1838 as a trading post for pioneers and gold-rushers, but was known at least a century before. It was the scene of fighting in the Mexican War and in the Civil War. The city has suffered hurricane damage several times, especially in 1970.

CORRAL (Chile)

Port and battlefield in Valdivia province, 12 mi SW of VALDIVIA, on Corral Bay, S Chile. In 1819, during the Chilean war of independence, the Chileans under Admiral Cochrane defeated the Spanish here.

CORREGIDOR (Philippines)

Fortified island in the entrance to MANILA Bay, S of Bataan province in LUZON. Fortified by the Spanish in the 18th century, it was made a U.S. military station in 1900 and was chosen as a major defense invasion of the Philippines in World War II. It fell on May 6, 1942, after holding out for 27 days under Lieutenant General Jonathan Wainwright. See also CABALLO, CABANATUAN.

CORRIENTES (Argentina)

City and capital of Corrientes province on the Paraná River, 480 mi N of BUENOS AIRES, NE Argentina, near the border of PARAGUAY. Fortified since 1588, Corrientes was the first town to rebel against Spain's domination, in 1762, and against the dictatorship of Juan Manuel de Rosas, in 1844. It was also the site of the decisive defeat of a Paraguayan invasion force in 1865.

CORSE See CORSICA

CORSICA [ancient: Cynros, Kurnos; French: Corse] (France)

Island and department of France in the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 105 mi off the S coast of France. Strategically situated in the central Mediterranean, Corsica has been occupied by many powers. Civilized by the third millennium B.C. and later disputed by Greeks, Etruscans, and Carthaginians, the island began to fall to ROME in 259 B.C. with the conquest of ALERIA. After long battles it was finally subjected in 163 B.C. Later it was occupied by Vandals, Lombards, and Saracens. In the 13th century it came under Genoese control but was conquered by Henry II of France in 1553. The island was returned to GENOA in 1559. The islanders forced the expulsion of the Genoese from the interior by a rebellion from 1729 to 1769. Corsica was then annexed by France in 1769, espoused the revolutionary cause and so was occupied by GREAT BRITAIN from 1794 to 1796 and from 1814 to 1815. It offered continued resistance to the Axis in World War II during 1942–43, after which it became an important Allied base. Napoleon Bonaparte was born here in 1769, the year of France's annexation, thus making him a Frenchman. There are stone statues dating from the 15th century B.C. and diverse Bronze Age finds. See also AJACCIO, BASTIA, CORTE.

CORSTOPITUM See CORBRIDGE

CORTE (France)

Mountain town in central CORSICA, 52 mi NE of AJACCIO. The 15th-century citadel built by Vincenzello d'Istria was a Corsican bastion against the Genoese. Corte was the seat of the government of Pasquale Paoli, the Corsican patriot, from 1755 to 1769.

CORTENUOVA (Italy)

Town and battlefield in Bergamo province, 12 mi SSE of BERGAMO, in LOMBARDY region, N Italy. During the wars between the Lombard League and Emperor Frederick II, the Lombards were defeated here on November 27, 1237.

CORTONA [ancient: Corito] (Italy)

Ancient city of TUSCANY region, in Arezzo province, 14 mi SSE of AREZZO, central Italy. Strategically placed on a hillside, Cortona was one of the 12 original cities of ETRURIA. It was united with ROME in 310 B.C. It was overrun by the Vandals in A.D. 405. Following a siege in 1529 by Pope Clement VII and the Emperor Charles V, the city became part of the Grand Duchy of Tuscany. Traces of the Etruscan fortifications survive.

CORTRACUM See KORTRIJK

CORUNNA [ancient: Coronium; former English: The Groyne; Spanish: La Coruña] (Spain)

Port and capital of Corunna province, on the Atlantic Ocean, 320 mi NW of MADRID. Dating from pre-Roman times, Corunna was most prosperous during the Middle Ages as part of the caliphate of CÓRDOVA. Because the Spanish Armada assembled here in 1588, the English sent a fleet under Sir Frances Drake to burn much of Corunna in 1589. During the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars, on January 16, 1809, the British under Sir John Moore, on their way back to Portugal, held off the French under Marshal Nicolas Soult here. Moore was killed in the battle and immortalized in an Irish elegy. A Roman tower and churches from the 12th and 15th centuries are here.

CORUPEDION [Corupedium] (Turkey)

Battlefield of ancient LYDIA, in Manisa province, N of IZMIR, W Turkey. In 281 B.C. Seleucus Nicator, the Macedonian general, defeated and killed Lysimachus, king of THRACE here. See also SELEUCID EMPIRE.

CORUPEDIUM See CORUPEDION

CORYDON (United States)

Town in S INDIANA, 18 mi WSW of NEW ALBANY, Indiana. Settled in 1805, it was capital of Indiana Territory from 1813 to 1816 and capital of Indiana from 1816 to 1825. The only Civil War fighting in Indiana took place in Corydon on July 9, 1863, when the town was briefly occupied by Confederates under John Hunt Morgan. Of historic interest here is Indiana's original statehouse.

COS See Kos

COSA [ancient: Orbetello; Latin: Cosae; modern: Ansedonia] (Italy)

Archaeological site on the Tyrrhenian Sea, Grosseto province, SW TUSCANY, 25 mi E of GROSSETO. The site, apparently the Etruscan city of Orbetello, seems to have been a center of the Vulci. It had close ties with the cities of MAGNA GRAECIA, but in 273 B.C. was subdued by ROME, which established a colony here to control the region. The city remained loyal to Rome during the Second Punic War but suffered heavily in the fighting and gradually declined thereafter. It was last mentioned in 49 B.C. By the fifth century A.D. the area was known as Ansedonia. The remains include a polygonal wall capped by 18 towers and pierced by three gates. The foundations of a triple temple, or capitolium, a small forum, a council house, and other civic buildings have been excavated.

COSAE See COSA

COSEDIA See COUTANCES

COSENZA [ancient: Consentia] (Italy)

Town and capital of Cosenza province, in CALABRIA region, 150 mi SE of NAPLES, SW Italy. Ancient capital of the Italic Bruttii tribe, it was taken by ROME in 204 B.C. The Visigothic king Alaric by tradition died here in A.D. 410. Cosenza was then occupied successively by Byzantines, Saracens, Normans, Angevins, and the Spanish. It was proclaimed a republic in 1799. While part of the Bourbon Kingdom of the Two SICILIES, it was the scene of many Italian nationalist uprisings. It has frequently been damaged by earthquakes. A cathedral with Romanesque and Norman elements and a Hohenstaufen castle are here.

COSNE-SUR-LOIRE [ancient: Condate] (France)

Town in the Nièvre department on the LOIRE RIVER, 37 mi NNW of NEVERS, central France. An important French position during the Middle Ages, it was taken in 1420 by the English during the Hundred Years' War.

COSPICUA (Malta)

Town across the harbor from VALLETTA in Malta. With Senglea and VITTORIOSA, one of the Three Cities of Malta, it was severely damaged by the Turks in 1565 during the Great Siege. It was restored by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. The town was damaged in air raids during World War II.

COSSYRA See PANTELLERIA

COSTA DE MOSQUITOS See MOSQUITO COAST

COSTA RICA [former: Nueva Cartago]

Republic of CENTRAL AMERICA, S of NICARAGUA with its capital at SAN JOSÉ. It was discovered by Christopher Columbus, who named it for the gold he found along its coast. Conquered by the Spanish in 1563, it was part of the captaincy general of GUATEMALA until independence from SPAIN in 1821. The country became part of the Mexican Empire of Augustín de Iturbide and subsequently a member of the Central American Confederation from 1823 to 1838. It became a sovereign republic in 1838.

A bloodless coup in favor of Federico Tinoco in 1917 caused friction with the United States, and Tinoco was deposed in 1919. In December 1941 Costa Rica entered the war against the Axis. Civil war broke out briefly in 1948 following a disputed election result. A new constitution was adopted in 1949, and the country since then has been democratically governed. In 2004, the country's reputation for good government was shaken by allegations of corruption by a number of its former presidents. Costa Rica continues to be one of the most stable and prosperous nations in Latin America, having no armed forces, and is known worldwide for pioneering the development of ecotourism.

COSYRA See PANTELLERIA

CÔTE D'AZUR See RIVIERA

CÔTE D'IVOIRE [Ivory Coast]

Independent republic of West Africa, on the Gulf of Guinea, W of GHANA. Its capital is YAMOUSSOUKRO, though the largest city, former capital, and still administrative center is ABIDJAN. In the 16th century it was the site of Portuguese trading posts dealing in slaves and ivory. French influence in the region grew throughout the 19th century, and in 1893 a French protectorate was established over it. The protectorate was incorporated into FRENCH WEST AFRICA in 1904. The Ivory Coast was granted autonomy by FRANCE in 1958 and became a fully independent republic in 1960 under president Félix Houphouët-Boigny. Côte d'Ivoire was a one-party state until opposition parties were legalized in 1990 after widespread popular protests.

Houphouët-Boigny died in 1993, and was replaced by assembly speaker Henri Konan Bédié, who was reelected in 1995. The economy improved in the late 1990s, but religious discord between the Christian south and Muslim north began to split the country. In 1999, there was a coup by the military. Elections in 2000 were won by Laurent Gbagbo of the Socialist Popular Front, but the results were contested by Alassane Ouattara, a northern Muslim whose candidacy had been suppressed by the authorities. Civil war broke out between north and south in 2002. In 2004, a UN peacekeeping force arrived. Attacks on French forces resulted in a French attack that destroyed the Ivorian air force on the ground. Anti-French rioting forced the evacuation of foreigners from Abidjan. In 2005, an agreement negotiated by South African president Thabo Mbeki brought a cease-fire from the rebels and the promise of new elections.

COTENTIN PENINSULA (France)

Peninsula in the Manche department between the CHANNEL ISLANDS and the Bay of the SEINE, in NORMANDY, N France. In its earlier history its capital was COUTANCES. It was the object of great rivalry between England and France in the late Middle Ages. The beachhead at OMAHA BEACH established by the Americans near Montebourg was the scene of heavy fighting during World War II from June 6 to 27, 1944, leading to the fall of German-occupied CHERBOURG.

CÖTHEN See KÖTHEN

COTONOU [Kotonou] (Benin)

City in Benin, West Africa, 15 mi WSW of PORTO-NOVO, on the Gulf of Guinea. It was formerly the capital of the French colony of Dahomey, now Benin. Cotonou was once a small state that was dominated by the African kingdom of Dahomey, beginning in the 18th century. In 1851 the French made a treaty with Gezo, the king of Dahomey, that allowed them to set up a trading post here. They occupied the city by force in 1883 when they thought the British were about to seize it. GREAT BRITAIN assented to French ownership in 1885. The port has been enlarged and modernized since the 1960s and remains an important commercial and governmental site. See also FRANCE.

COTRONE See CROTONE

COTTBUS [Kottbus] (Germany)

City and capital of Cottbus district, on the Spree River, 64 mi SE of BERLIN, near the Polish border. Located in the center of Europe, it has belonged to many powers. A trading town in the 12th century, it passed to BRANDENBURG in 1445, to SAXONY in 1635, and finally to PRUSSIA in 1815. A tower from its medieval fortifications still stands here.

COTTI REGNUM See SEGUSIO

COTYORA [modern: Ordu] (Turkey)

Ancient town and port on the BLACK SEA, on the site of present Ordu, 80 mi E of SAMSUN. Cotyora was founded by Greek colonists c. 500 B.C. From here the survivors of Xenophon's Ten Thousand embarked for Greece. They had joined themselves to Cyrus the Younger of PERSIA and suffered with him a disastrous defeat by Artaxerxes II. Their story is told in Xenophon's Anabasis.

COULMIERS (France)

Town and battlefield in the Loiret department, W of ORLÉANS, central France. During the Franco-Prussian War, the French under Aurelle de Paladines defeated the Bavarians here on November 9, 1870, thus forcing the Germans to withdraw from Orléans.

COUNCIL BLUFFS [former: Council Hill, Kanesville, Miller's Hollow] (United States)

City in SW IOWA, on the MISSOURI RIVER, opposite OMAHA, NEBRASKA. Scene of a conference between the Lewis and Clark expedition and Indians in 1804, it was settled by Mormons between 1846 and 1852 and was an important supply point during the gold rush from 1849 to 1850. After a visit in 1859, Abraham Lincoln declared it the starting point of the Union Pacific Railroad, whose founder, General G. M. Dodge, lived here.

COUNCIL HILL See COUNCIL BLUFFS

COURCELETTE (France)

Village and battlefield in the SOMME department, 5 mi NE of ALBERT, N France. During World War I it was captured by the Canadians in 1916 and was the scene of seesaw fighting in 1918.

COURLAND See KURLAND

COURTRAI See KORTRIJK

COUTANCES [ancient: Constantia, Cosedia] (France)

Ancient town in the Manche department, NORMANDY, 17 mi WSW of SAINT-LÔ, N France. A chief town of pre-Roman Gaul, it was inhabited by the Unelli Celtic tribe. The site was fortified by the Romans and named Constantia. The seat of a viscount during the Middle Ages, it was frequently besieged. In World War II, after the Battle of SAINT-LÔ, it was taken by the Allies and suffered severe damage. The 13th-century cathedral was built on the remains of an 11th-century church. See also COTENTIN PENINSULA.

COUTRAS (France)

Battlefield in the Gironde department, 56 mi NE of BORDEAUX, SW France. During the Wars of Religion, the Huguenots under Henry of Navarre defeated the Catholics here under Anne, duc de Joyeuse, on October 20, 1587, but failed to exploit their victory.

COVADONGA (Spain)

Village and battlefield in Oviedo province, 5 mi from CANGAS DE ONÍS, NW Spain. The Visigothic king Pelayo of ASTURIAS defeated the Moors here c. A.D. 720. This battle marked the start of the Christian reconquest of Spain. A chapel in a nearby cave, purportedly a hiding place for Pelayo, dates to the eighth century.

COVELONG (India)

Fortress in TAMIL NADU state, 30 mi S of CHENNAI on the Bay of Bengal, SE India. During the Second Carnatic War, the French garrison of Covelong surrendered to the British under Robert Clive on September 16, 1752.

COVENTRE See COVENTRYCOVENTREU See COVENTRYCOVENTRY [former: Coventre, Coventreu] (England)

City in West MIDLANDS, 18 mi ESE of BIRMINGHAM. A Benedictine monastery was founded here in A.D. 1043 by Leofric, earl of MERCA, and his wife Lady Godiva. It was the center of the Midlands cloth industry by 1400 and was the seat of English Parliaments during the reigns of Henry IV and Henry VI. An important industrial center, it was the target of German air attack during World War II that completely destroyed the city center on November 14 and 15, 1940. The surviving tower of St. Michael's church has been made part of a dramatic modern cathedral.

COVINGTON (United States)

City in N KENTUCKY, on the OHIO RIVER, opposite CINCINNATI, Ohio. A ferry and a tavern occupied the site c. 1800, and the city was founded in 1812. It is named for General Leonard Covington, who died in the War of 1812. In 1819 the opening of a turnpike brought prosperity to the city and made it a trading center. Today it is an industrial city and also a suburb of Cincinnati, with which it is connected by a bridge completed in 1867, designed by John A. Roebling, designer of the BROOKLYN Bridge. Frank Duveneck, the portrait and genre painter, was born here in 1848, and there is a museum of his works here. Daniel Carter Beard, illustrator, naturalist, and one of the founders of the Boy Scouts of America, was born here in 1850.

COW COMMONS See SOMERVILLECOWPENS (United States)

Town and battlefield, now a national park, 8 mi ENE of SPARTANBURG near the N border of SOUTH CAROLINA. During the American Revolution, the Americans under General Daniel Morgan defeated the British under Colonel Banastre Tarleton here, on January 17, 1781, thus substantially slowing Cornwallis's campaign in South Carolina.

COXEN HOLE See ROATÁNCOXIN'S HOLE See ROATÁNCOYOACÁN (Mexico)

City in central Mexico, 6 mi S of MEXICO CITY. The first capital of NEW SPAIN, it was from here that Hernán Cortés launched his attack on the Aztec capital, TENOCHTITLÁN, in 1521. The palace used by Cortés still stands. It was the birthplace and lifelong home of painter Frida Kahlo.

CRAC DES CHEVALIERS See AL-KARAKCRACOW See KRAKÓWCRAIGAVAD (Northern Ireland)

Suburb of BELFAST. On July 12, 1913, it was the scene of a meeting of 150,000 Ulstermen protesting against the Home Rule Bill.

CRAIOVA (Romania)

City in Dolj province, WALACHIA, 120 mi WSW of BUCHAREST. It was founded near the site of Castrum Palendara, a Roman settlement on Trajan's Wall. The city was a prosperous trading center in the 17th and 18th centuries, despite an earthquake in 1790, plague in 1795, and the assault of the Turks in 1802. Many Roman ruins are in the area.

CRANNON [Cranon] (Greece)

Ancient town and battlefield in THESSALY, 13 mi SW of LARISSA, central Greece. During the Lamian War, ATHENS and the Greek cities in revolt against MACE- DON were crushed here by Antipater and Craterus in 322 B.C. See also LAMIA.

CRANON See CRANNON

CRANSTON (United States)

City in N RHODE ISLAND, a suburb of PROVIDENCE. It was settled in 1636 under the leadership of William Arnold, an associate of Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island. It is named for Samuel Cranston, a colonial governor of the colony. Beginning in 1824, Cranston became an important textile-manufacturing center. There is a Friends Meeting House from 1729 and several other pre-Revolutionary buildings, as well as the Sprague Mansion, built c. 1800.

CRAONNE (France)

Village and battlefield in the Aisne department, 15 mi SE of LAON, in NE France. During the Napoleonic Wars, on March 7, 1814, the Prussians and Russians under Field Marshal Gebhard von Blücher were defeated here by Napoleon and forced to retreat to Laon. During World War I Craonne was taken and retaken three times from 1917 to 1918 in the struggle for the strategic CHEMIN DES DAMES, and was almost completely destroyed.

CRÉCY [Crécy en Ponthieu, Cressy] (France)

Town and battlefield in the Somme department, 12 mi N of ABBEVILLE in N France. The first major land battle of the Hundred Years' War was fought here on August 26, 1346, during which the English under Edward III defeated the French under Philip VI. The battle established ENGLAND as a military power and saw the first effective use of massed archers and supporting infantry against cavalry charges. Following this victory, in which a third of the French nobility here were slain, the English marched north to take CALAIS.

CRÉCY EN PONTIHIEU See CRÉCY

CREDIT ISLAND See DAVENPORT

KREFELD See KREFELD

CREMA (Italy)

Town of Cremona province, on the River Serio, 23 mi NW of CREMONA in LOMBARDY region. Possibly of Celtic origin, Crema was sacked in A.D. 1159 by

Holy Roman Emperor Frederick I. Occupied successively by the Visconti, Milanese, Venetians, French, and Austrians, it became part of Italy in 1860.

CREMONA [Gallic: Cenomani] (Italy)

Ancient Roman city and capital of Cremona province, 49 mi ESE of MILAN, on the PO RIVER, in LOMBARDY region. Founded by the Romans in 218 B.C. on the site of the Gallic Cenomani, it was here that Virgil attended school. Sacked by Goths and Huns in the fifth century A.D., it was rebuilt by the Lombards in the seventh century and grew famous as a center of learning. Independent after 1098, Cremona initially supported Frederick I but turned against him in 1167 and joined the Lombard League. Occupied successively by the Visconti, Milanese, Venetians, Spanish, and Austrians, Cremona became part of Italy in 1860. Fine Romanesque and Renaissance architecture is found around the central square. It was famous in the 17th and 18th centuries for violin-making. MANTUA is nearby.

CRÉPY [Crépy-en-Laonnois] [former: Crespy] (France)

Town in the Aisne department, 6 mi NW of LAON, NE France. The fourth war between Francis I and Charles V was ended here by treaty on September 18, 1544. The Holy Roman Emperor Charles V renounced his claims on BURGUNDY, and Francis I of France renounced his claims on ARTOIS, NAPLES, and FLANDERS and in secret agreed to help the emperor against the Protestants.

CRÉPY-EN-LAONNOIS See CRÉPY

CRÉSPY See CRÉPY

CRESSY See CRÉCY

CRESWELL CRAGS (England)

Ravine and archaeological site in DERBYSHIRE, between CHESTERFIELD and Worksop. Caves here have yielded one of the most important series of extinct vertebrate remains in Great Britain. The implements of Paleolithic hunters have also been found. The remains date from between the 13th and ninth millennia B.C. and represent a type called the Creswellian Culture, named after the site.

CRETA See CRETE

CRETE [ancient: Candia, Creta; Greek: Krete, Kriti] (Greece)

An island in the E Mediterranean, SSE of Greece and W of Turkey. It is considered the fountainhead of Aegean civilization. Its early periods are generally called Minoan, after the legendary King Minos, and can be divided into three eras: Early Minoan, c. 2800–2100 B.C.; Middle Minoan c. 2100–1500 B.C.; and Late Minoan c. 1500–1000 B.C. In the Early Period there was a remarkable growth of culture from a Neolithic base with the importation of metals, use of bronze, and hieroglyphic writing. The great centers of KNOSSOS and PHAISTOS as well as many lesser settlements, first date from this time. Vases, seals, and fabrics of Cretan origin incorporated into Egyptian deposits from the Twelfth Dynasty found at Kahun have provided evidence of extensive foreign trade in this period.

The Middle and Late Periods produced great palaces and a pictographic script (Linear A). Then c. 1500 B.C., the vast earthquake and eruption of THIRA, followed by an invasion of Greeks from MYCENAE destroyed or crippled much of the island's culture. The civilization soon declined. It rose again in the Late Minoan period with luxurious palaces rebuilt around the island, often under Mycenaean Greek control. As the period waned, Crete ceased to be the center of Aegean culture, which passed to the mainland. During the Dark Ages, Archaic, Classical, and Hellenistic Periods (11th through the first centuries B.C.) the history of Crete was part of that of Greece.

Crete was annexed to ROME in 67 B.C. by Quintus Metellus. It became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in A.D. 395 but fell to the Arabs in 824 and became the headquarters of Saracen pirates during the ninth century. It was reconquered for the Byzantine Empire by Nicephorus Phocas in 960–61. Boniface, count of Montferrat, a leader of the Fourth Crusade of 1202 to 1204, sold it to VENICE. In 1669 it was conquered by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, which completed the expulsion of the Venetians by 1715.

In the late 19th century Crete sought independence from TURKEY and annexation to Greece, obtaining the assistance of Greece in 1896, thus bringing about the Greco-Turkish War of 1897. Although the Turks were victorious, they were forced by the European powers to evacuate the island, and although Crete remained nominally Turkish, it was supervised by a high commission provided by ENGLAND, FRANCE, RUSSIA, and ITALY. It became a semi-independent state, then joined Greece preliminarily in 1908, with final annexation in 1913. In World War II it was captured by German airborne forces between May 20 and 30, 1941. It was freed by the Allies in 1944.

CRICKLADE (England)

Town in Wiltshire, on the THAMES RIVER, 7 mi NW of SWINDON. Site of a Roman reconnaissance center established in A.D. 69, it was made a borough by King Alfred in 871 and possessed its own mint in the 10th century.

CRIMEA, THE [ancient: Chersonese, Tauris; Russian: Krim, Krym] (Ukraine)

Peninsula in the N BLACK SEA, SW of the Sea of Azov in the Ukraine. It was the home originally of a Cimmerian people, the Tauri, who founded the Greek-influenced Cimmerian Bosphorus kingdom here in the fifth century B.C. It was colonized along the coastal regions in the sixth century B.C. by Dorian and Ionian Greeks, who made the peninsula a major supplier of wheat to GREECE. The Greeks called the peninsula the Chersonese, literally "peninsula," a term also used for other areas.

Becoming part of PONTUS in the second century B.C., Tauris was subdued by ROME in the first century A.D. and became a protectorate. It was later overrun by many tribes, though the southern coast remained under BYZANTINE control from the sixth to the 12th centuries A.D. An independent khanate was established in N and central Crimea in 1475 by the Tatars, but the whole peninsula fell in the 15th century to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. The Tatars, as vassals of Turkey, raided MOSCOW in 1572 and were extremely powerful.

Catherine II of RUSSIA annexed the Crimea in 1783, and the peninsula was the scene of the Crimean War between Russia and the forces of France, Great Britain, and Turkey from 1854 to 1856. The Crimea became an independent republic after the Russian Revolution, and was taken by the Germans in World War II after an eight-month siege. The Crimean Republic was dissolved in 1945 at the end of the war because of alleged collaboration with the Nazis, and was eventually incorporated into the Ukrainian SSR. See also ALMA, BALACLAVA, CHERSONESUS, FEODOSIYA, INKERMANN, KERCH, SIMFEROPOL, SEVASTOPOL, YALTA.

CRIMEAN PENINSULA See CRIMEA

CRIMISUS (Italy)

River and battlefield in W SICILY. Timoleon, a Corinthian coming to the aid of SYRACUSE in Sicily, defeated CARTHAGE here in 340 B.C.

CRIMMITSCHAU [Krimmitschau] (Germany)

City, 36 mi S of LEIPZIG, in SE Germany. An industrial city since the 18th century, it became a center of the working-class movement in the 19th century. The strike of textile workers here from August 1903 to January 1904 mobilized textile workers all over Germany in support. The women were led by Clara Zetkin, a pioneer in the women's movement.

CRIPPLE CREEK (United States)

City in central COLORADO, SW of COLORADO SPRINGS. In 1891, Cripple Creek was one of the richest camps of a gold-producing area but was virtually a ghost town after 1920. Miner strikes here in 1893 and 1904 ended in violence.

CRISA (Greece)

Ancient city of PHOCIS, between DELPHI and the Gulf of CORINTH in Euboea province, central Greece. During the First Sacred War, c. 590 B.C., Crisa was destroyed by the Amphictyonic Council, a religious league. Its reconstruction in 339 B.C. by Amphisso prompted the Fourth Sacred War.

CRNA GORA See MONTENEGROCROATIA [Serbo-Croatian: Hrvatska]

Independent nation and former constituent republic of YUGOSLAVIA in the NW part of the country, on the ADRIATIC SEA. It includes SLAVONIA, DALMATIA, and most of ISTRIA as well as Croatia itself. In ancient times it was part of PANNONIA, a Roman province. In the seventh century A.D. it was settled by the Croats, a Slavic people who migrated from the UKRAINE. Croatia became a kingdom in the 10th century and acquired some surrounding territory by force, but it in turn was conquered in 1091 by King Ladislaus I of HUNGARY. The Croats remained in union with Hungary until 1526 when a Turkish victory at the Battle of MOHÁCS put most of the land under Ottoman rule. By the end of the 17th century the OTTOMAN EMPIRE was in decline, but Croatian autonomy was restricted by the Hapsburg monarchs of AUSTRIA.

Part of Croatia was included in the ILLYRIAN PROVINCES set up by Napoleon I in 1809 but was restored to Austrian rule in 1815. Croatian nationalism, always fervent, was expressed in an unsuccessful revolt in 1848. In 1867, with the formation of the Austro-Hungarian dual monarchy, Croatia proper was included in Hungary with ZAGREB as its capital. The following year Croatia and Slavonia were given some autonomy. When World War I resulted in the collapse of Austria-Hungary, Croatia became part of the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, renamed Yugoslavia in 1929. However, Until World War II some Croat patriots struggled fiercely for more autonomy or even for independence. In 1941 the Nazi invasion of Yugoslavia put Croatia under German and Italian rule in the form of a supposedly independent state until 1945, when Yugoslavian freedom was restored.

Croatia declared independence in 1991. Croatian Serbs declared autonomy in ethnic enclaves supported by Serbian forces. By 1995, Croatia, had taken control back from the Serbian forces. Croatia's economy has improved, but there is still friction between ethnic groups within the nation and between Croatia and its neighbors SLOVENIA, HUNGARY, BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA, and MONTENEGRO. In 2003, Croatia applied for membership in the European Union. See also RIJEKA.

CROCODILE See LIMPOPO RIVERCROCODILOPOLIS See ARSINOËCRO-MAGNON See DORDOGNE, LES EYZIESCRONSTADT See KRONSHLOTCROPREDY (England)

Village and battlefield in OXFORDSHIRE, 3 mi N of BANBURY. During the Civil War, the Royalists under Charles I defeated the Parliamentarians under Sir William Waller here on June 29, 1644.

CROSS KEYS (United States)

Village and battlefield in N VIRGINIA, 20 mi NE of STAUNTON. On June 8, 1862, during the SHENANDOAH VALLEY campaign of the Civil War, Confederates under General R.S. Ewell defeated Union troops under General John Frémont here.

CROTO See CROTONE

CROTON See CROTONE

CROTONA See CROTONE

CROTONE [Controne] [ancient: Croto, Croton, Crotona] (Italy)

Ancient town and port in Catanzaro province, NE of CATANZARO on the Gulf of Taranto, in CALABRIA region, SW Italy. Founded as a Greek republic in MAGNA GRAECIA by Achaeans in 710 B.C., it developed as a port, growing powerful and wealthy because it was the only one between RHEGION and TARENTUM. In 530 B.C. it was the home of Pythagoras and a center of medicine. It destroyed its rival, SYBARIS, in 510 B.C. Attacked in the fourth and third centuries by Syracusans and Pyrrhus, king of EPIRUS, it fell to ROME in 277 B.C. but revolted in the Second Punic War. The German emperor Otto II was defeated here in A.D. 982 by Byzantines and Saracens.

CROTON-ON-HUDSON (United States)

Village in WESTCHESTER COUNTY, SE NEW YORK State, 34 mi N of NEW YORK CITY, on the E bank of the HUDSON RIVER. It was first settled in 1609. The village lies within historic Van Cortlandt Manor, a grant of land made in 1697 to Stephanus Van Cortlandt, which consisted of 87,000 acres and extended from the Croton River on the S to near PEEKSKILL on the N and E to the Connecticut border. In the 19th century Croton became the home of numerous Irish and Italians who arrived to build the Croton Dam and Aqueduct between 1837 and 1842 to supply New York City with water. New Croton Aqueduct was added between 1885 and 1891, and a new dam was built in 1905.

After World War I Croton became the site of a colony of avant-garde literary, artistic, and politically radical figures including Max Eastman, Edna St. Vincent Millay, John Reed, Boardman Robinson, and Stuart Chase. In the 1930s the prominent architect William Lescaze designed one of his best-known examples of modern simplicity, the Hessian Hills School. Croton is now chiefly a commuter town. The Van Cortlandt Manor house has been preserved and restored and is open to the public.

CROWLAND [Croyland] (England)

Village in LINCOLNSHIRE, 7 mi NNE of PETERBOROUGH. The Benedictine abbey, founded here in A.D.

720 by King Aethelbald of MERCIA, was destroyed by marauding Viking Danes. Rebuilt, it was besieged during the Civil War in 1643 by Parliamentary troops and subsequently fell into ruins, traces of which remain.

CROWN POINT (United States)

Town in E NEW YORK State, on LAKE CHAMPLAIN, 7 mi S of TICONDEROGA. Strategically located on the route from NEW YORK CITY to CANADA, it was the scene of a battle in 1609 between the Iroquois and Samuel de Champlain. A French fort built here in 1731 was captured by the British in 1759 and fell at the start of the American Revolution to Colonel Seth Warner and the Green Mountain Boys. It was briefly occupied by the British again in 1777.

CROYLAND See CROWLAND

CRUZ POINT (Solomon Islands)

Promontory and battleground on GUADALCANAL, just W of the mouth of the Mataniko River. During World War II there was much fighting here between Japanese and U.S. forces in October and November 1942.

CTESIPHON [Arabic: Al Madain, Taysafun, Tusbun] (Iraq)

Ancient ruined city on the TIGRIS RIVER opposite the ruins of SELEUCIA, chief city of the Seleucid Empire, about 20 mi SE of BAGHDAD. The winter capital of PARTHIA after 129 B.C., it was briefly captured by ROME c. A.D. 115 in the bitter Parthian-Roman wars. Circa A.D. 225 it became capital of the succeeding empire of PERSIA, the Sassanid, and from this period come the huge remains of the great hall of the palace of the sixth century A.D. Plundered by the Arabs in 637, it fell into decay when they founded BAGHDAD. On November 21, 1915, the Turks defeated the British under Major General Charles Townshend here, the furthest point of British penetration into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE during World War I.

CUATLA AMILPAS See CUAUTLA

CUAUHNÁHUAC See CUERNAVACA

CUAUTLA [Ciudad Morelos, Cuatla Amilpas] (Mexico)

Town and battlefield in MORELOS state, 45 mi SSE of MEXICO CITY, S Mexico. During the Mexican war of independence the patriots under Father Morelos held out here against the Spanish and Loyalists under General Félix María Calleja del Rey from January 18 to May 2, 1812. They finally escaped under cover of night.

CUBA

Nation occupying the largest island of the WEST INDIES, at the entrance to the Gulf of Mexico, with the CARIBBEAN SEA on the S and the Atlantic Ocean on the N. It includes some other islands of which the Isle of Youth, Isle of Pines until 1978, is the largest. Cuba has a semi-tropical climate and fertile land on which the growing of sugarcane created a largely one-crop economy beginning in the late 18th century. Relations with the UNITED STATES have played a large part in Cuba's history for over a century, and, for a small nation, Cuba recently has figured prominently in world events.

The island was discovered in 1492 by Christopher Columbus, and in 1511 Diego de Velázquez conquered it for SPAIN. He also founded several towns: Baracoa, the oldest, in 1512; HAVANA, now the capital and largest city, in 1515; and SANTIAGO DE CUBA in 1514. In the colonial era Cuba was part of the viceroyalty of NEW SPAIN. The Arawak Indians died or were killed off and their place was taken by imported black slaves. Cuba prospered, but there was unrest in the early 19th century, the Spanish suppressing slave revolts without mercy. Expansionists in the United States, especially in the slave states, wanted to acquire Cuba, and the Ostend Manifesto of 1854, drawn up by three American diplomats, proposed buying Cuba from Spain. Nothing came of this, but the struggle for independence continued with the Ten Years' War of 1868 to 1878. The warfare was mostly guerrilla fighting, reforms were promised but not fulfilled, and Cuba remained Spanish.

American interest resulted in the Spanish-American War in 1898, triggered by the mysterious blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor. On July 3 American ships destroyed a Spanish fleet at Santiago, and on July 17 the city was taken by U.S. land forces. On May 20, 1901, an independent Cuban government took power, although an act of the U.S. Congress, the Platt Amendment, gave the United States the right to intervene in Cuban affairs. This right was given up in 1934, but it was exercised when revolt broke out in 1906. U.S. military occupation lasted until 1909. A corrupt and dictatorial regime, that of Fulgencio Batista y Zaldivar, was overthrown in 1959 by revolutionaries led by Fidel Castro.

Castro began a series of wide-ranging social and economic reforms. He soon formed close ties with the USSR, receiving economic and military aid from the Soviets. In 1961 Castro declared himself a Marxist-Leninist, ruling as a dictator. On April 14, 1961, an anti-Castro Cuban force, trained by the United States, was crushed in an attempted invasion of the island at the BAY OF PIGS. In the summer of 1962 U.S. air reconnaissance revealed that the USSR was building missile sites in Cuba. This led to the imposition of a naval blockade and the threat of war by President John F. Kennedy, whereupon the USSR backed down and dropped the project.

In 1976 Castro began to send large numbers of Cuban troops abroad, especially to ANGOLA, to support Soviet-backed regimes or rebels. By 1978 it was estimated that perhaps as many as 50,000 Cubans were in Africa. In 1980 Castro suddenly lifted a ban on emigration, and by September about 125,000 Cubans had sought refuge in the United States. In the 1990s the economic problems caused by the collapse of Soviet aid, downturns in the world sugar market, and a long-lasting U.S. embargo led the regime to reverse some of its socialist economic policies. In 1994, there were more boatloads of Cuban refugees sailing to the United States, and the United States agreed to limit legal migration to 20,000 a year. In 1998 the United States allowed food and medicine sales to Cuba, and in 2000, food and medicine were exempted from the trade embargo. The United States maintains a naval base at GUANTÁNAMO BAY, in SE Cuba, leased by treaty in 1903, which Castro wants returned to Cuba. The base at Guantánamo has been used since 2001 for Taliban and Al Qaeda prisoners from the AFGHANISTAN war.

CÚCUTA [former: San José de Cúcuta, San José De Guasimal] (Colombia)

City in Norte de Santander province, 50 mi NE of BUCARAMANGA near the Venezuelan border. Founded in 1733, it was used by Bolívar as his base before the march on CARACAS. It was destroyed in 1875 by an earthquake and rebuilt.

CUDDALORE See KUDALUR

CUDDAPAH (India)

City in ANDHRA PRADESH state in S central India, 140 miles NW of CHENNAI. The city was part of the CHOLA Empire in the 11th–15th centuries. Muslims conquered it in 1565, and the British took control in 1800.

CUENCA [Santa Ana de Cuenca] [ancient: Tumibamba] (Ecuador)

City and capital of Azuay province, 190 mi S of QUITO, S Ecuador. It was founded in 1557 by Gil Ramírez Dávalos on the ruins of Tumibamba, the residence of the Inca ruler Huayna Capac. The city has outstanding examples of Spanish colonial architecture.

CUENCA [ancient: Conca] (Spain)

City and capital of Cuenca province, on the Júcar River, 89 mi ESE of MADRID, E central Spain. It was founded as Conca by the Romans. The city was retaken from the Moors in A.D. 1177 by Alfonso VIII of CASTILE. It was badly damaged by fighting in the Peninsular campaign of the Napoleonic Wars and in the Second Carlist War. A Romanesque and Gothic cathedral bears witness to the city's wealth from the 14th to the 16th centuries.

CUERNAVACA [ancient: Cuauhnáhuac] (Mexico)

City of MORELOS state, 37 mi S of MEXICO CITY, in S central Mexico. Capital of the Tlahuica Indians, it was captured in 1521 by Hernán Cortés and became an important Spanish colonial town. Many pre-Columbian ruins are nearby.

CULIACÁN (Mexico)

City in W Mexico, capital city of SINALOA state, on the Culiacán River, approximately 25 mi inland from the Pacific Ocean. Founded in 1531 during the Spanish colonial era, it was an important staging point for expeditions to the north. Most notable of these was the 1540 expedition of Francisco Vázquez de Coronado, who reached NEW MEXICO and beyond. There is a fine cathedral here.

CULLODEN MOOR (Scotland)

Moor and battleground in HIGHLAND region, E of INVERNESS. It was the scene of the last battle of the 1745 Rebellion. On April 16, 1746, the Jacobites under Prince Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender, were defeated here by the English under the duke of Cumberland. This defeat ended all Jacobite hopes of restoring the Stuart dynasty. Locally it is also known as the battle of Drum Mossie. Prehistoric stoneworks are found at Clava, one mile away.

CULPS HILL See CEMETERY RIDGE

CULUS See CLUJ

CUMAE [Greek: Kyme] (Italy)

Ancient town in Naples province, CAMPANIA region, 12 mi W of NAPLES, SW central Italy. Founded by Greeks from CHALCIS in 750 B.C., it grew to be a great power, resisting Etruscan and Umbrian attack until falling to the Samnites c. 425 B.C. Cumae was subjugated by ROME in 338 B.C. The town was destroyed by Naples in A.D. 1205. It was the site of the cavern of the Cumaean Sibyl, the priestess of Apollo. Tombs from before and after Greek settlement have provided invaluable artifacts.

CUMANÁ [former: Nueva Córdoba] (Venezuela)

City in Sucre province, 185 mi E of CARACAS. The first European toehold on the South American mainland, it was settled in 1520 by Las Casas who established a model Indian colony. Destroyed and resettled by 1523, it was frequently raided by the Dutch and English in the 16th and 17th centuries. It was almost totally destroyed in 1766 by an earthquake and again in 1929.

CUMBERLAND (England)

Former county in NW England with the Irish Sea on the W and Solway Firth on the N. Since 1974 it has been part of the county of CUMBRIA. Ancient occupation is evidenced by the remains of stone circles, such as the one at Little Salkeld known as Long Meg and Her Daughters. During the Roman occupation of England the Emperor Hadrian ordered a wall, now known as HADRIAN'S WALL, built across the narrowest part of England, across Cumberland. Christianity was brought to the region in the fourth century A.D. by St. Ninian. The region was part of the Celtic kingdom of CUMBRIA but came under Saxon control c. 945. Border warfare between the English and the Scots went on for many years, with CARLISLE, the chief city of Cumberland and site of a Roman camp, often the Scottish target. William II Rufus of England took Carlisle back from the Scots in 1092. During the English Civil War the Parliamentarians captured Carlisle from the forces of Charles I.

Cumberland includes the LAKE DISTRICT, one of the most scenic areas of England, with its 15 lakes and mountains that are the highest in the country. There are ancient remains and ruins of old castles and churches. The district has long been favored by artists and writers. William Wordsworth, born in Cumberland, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, and Robert Southey are known as the Lake Poets.

CUMBERLAND [former: Will's Creek] (United States)

City in W MARYLAND, 45 mi S of JOHNSTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA, in the APPALACHIAN MOUNTAINS. Settled in 1750 as an Ohio Company trading post, Fort Cumberland was headquarters for General Edward Braddock and George Washington in the French and Indian War. Occupied by Union troops during the Civil War, it was the scene of the capture of two Union generals by McNeill's Rangers on February 21, 1865. See also CUMBERLAND ROAD.

CUMBERLAND GAP (United States)

Pass in the Cumberland Mountains, NE TENNESSEE, near the VIRGINIA and KENTUCKY lines. Discovered in 1750, it became an early pioneer route, the WILDERNESS ROAD, and was a strategic point, frequently changing hands in the Civil War.

CUMBERLAND HOUSE See SASKATCHEWAN

CUMBERLAND ROAD (United States)

First national road in the United States, originating at CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND. Under construction from 1811, it eventually extended to VANDALIA, ILLINOIS, as the first section of the NATIONAL ROAD. It is not to be confused with Daniel Boone's WILDERNESS ROAD, cleared in 1775 and running through the CUMBERLAND GAP, which was of strategic importance during the Civil War. See also BRADDOCK'S ROAD, NEMACOLIN'S PATH.

CUMBRIA [former: Cambria] (England)

Modern county and ancient kingdom, in NW England. In an area inhabited since 2500 B.C., the ancient Celtic kingdom of Cumbria stretched across the border into SW SCOTLAND. The Romans first built a series of forts and then a wall here between Wallsend and Bowness-on-Solway (See HADRIAN'S WALL). CARLISLE was its main nonmilitary settlement. St. Ninian began Christianization of the area. By the seventh century A.D. Cumbria, for a long time also known as Cambria, from the Roman name for Wales, was controlled by NORTHUMBRIA. After two centuries of raids by Scandinavians and Irish, the southern part of the kingdom was under Anglo-Saxon control by A.D. 945. The northern part passed to Scotland in 1068. The recent county of CUMBERLAND was created in 1177 and for centuries was the scene of border warfare. In 1974 the name Cumbria was put back into use to include the former counties of Cumberland, in addition to WESTMORELAND, the Furness Peninsula (formerly in Lancashire), and parts of YORKSHIRE.

CUMIÈRES [Cumières-le-Mort-Homme] (France)

Site of village in the Meuse department, on the MEUSE RIVER, 6 mi NW of VERDUN, NE France. This village was completely destroyed during the fighting around Verdun in World War I.

CUMIÈRES-LE-MORT-HOMME See CUMIÈRES

CUNAXA (Iraq)

Ancient town of BABYLONIA, E of the EUPHRATES RIVER, 87 mi NW of Babylon, scene of a battle in 401 B.C. between Cyrus the Younger, satrap of Anatolia, and his brother Artaxerxes II to decide who should ascend the Achaemenian throne. Cyrus was killed and his troops routed, except for the mercenary Greek contingent, which regrouped and marched north to the BLACK SEA. This is known as the retreat of the Ten Thousand, described by Xenophon, the Greek historian, in his Anabasis.

CUNECASTRE See CHESTER-LE-STREET

CUNEO (Italy)

Capital of Cuneo province and battlefield in PIEMONTE region, 69 mi W of GENOA, NW Italy. Cuneo was founded c. A.D. 1200 by refugees fleeing the destruction of MILAN by Frederick Barbarossa. During the War of the Austrian Succession, from September 30 to October 22, 1744, a Sardinian and Austrian army under Charles Emmanuel I of Sardinia and Prince Lobkowitz of Austria attacked and drove off a Franco-Spanish army under Prince Louis de Conti of France and Philip, Infante of Spain, that was besieging Cuneo. France held Cuneo following its victories at CHERASCO (1796) and MARENGO (1800). A 10th-century cathedral is among buildings of historic interest here.

CUNETESFORD See KNUTSFORD

CURAÇAO (Netherlands)

Island of the NETHERLANDS ANTILLES, 60 mi N of the NW coast of VENEZUELA. Originally settled by the Spanish in 1527, it was taken by the Dutch in 1634 and occupied by the British from 1807 to 1815 during the Napoleonic Wars. The capital, WILLEMSTAD, was seized by Venezuelan revolutionaries in 1929. Curaçao was the scene of violent racial strife in 1969.

CURES (Italy)

Ancient town in Rome province, NE of ROME in LATIUM region, W central Italy. In legend, Cures was the home of the Sabines who settled the QUIRINAL hill, in Rome. It was the birthplace of Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome (715–673 B.C.).

CURIA RHAETORUM See CHUR

CURICUM See KRK

CURRACH See CURRAGH, THE

CURRAGH, THE [Currach] (Irish Republic)

Plain in County Kildare, just E of KILDARE. An ancient meeting place, it has been the site of horse races since the first century A.D. The Irish Derby takes place here annually. Site also of a military camp since 1646, it was the scene of the Curragh Incident in 1913, when some British officers revolted against the Home Rule Act.

CURUPÁITY (Paraguay)

Battlefield in Ñeembucú province, near the confluence of the Paraguay and Paraná Rivers, SW Paraguay. During the Paraguayan War, the Paraguayans under General Francisco López defeated the Argentinians, Brazilians, and Uruguayans here on September 22, 1866. This temporarily forced ARGENTINA out of the war.

CURZOLA See KORČULA

CURZON LINE (Poland, Belarus, Ukraine)

Demarcation line between Poland and the USSR, extending S from GRODNO through BREST-LITOVSK, along the Bug River to Sokal, then W and S past PRZEMYŚL to the CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS. This line was suggested as a possible frontier by Lord Curzon during the Polish-Russian War of 1919–20. It was only implemented after the YALTA conference of 1945.

CUSCO See CUZCO

CUSH See KUSH

CUSHNOC See AUGUSTA

CUSTOZA [Custoza] (Italy)

Village and battlefield in Verona province, 11 mi SW of VERONA in LOMBARDY region, N Italy. It was the scene of two battles during the Italian Risorgimento. The first, on July 24, 1848, saw the Austrians under Joseph Radetzky defeat Charles Albert, king of SAR-DINIA-PIEDMONT, and prompt an armistice. In the second, on June 24, 1866, the Italians under Victor Emmanuel II were defeated by the Austrians under Archduke Albert. The Austrians were later compelled to retire from Italy by French and Prussian pressure.

CUSTOZZA See CUSTOZA

CÜSTRIN See KOSTRZYN

CUTCH See KACHCHH

CUTHAH [modern: Tall Ibrahim] (Iraq)

Ancient city of BABYLONIA, in al-Hillah province, near BABYLON, central Iraq. A center for the worship of Nergal, the ruler of the lower world, it was looked after by all Sumerian and Semitic rulers until a few centuries before the Christian era. ASSYRIA took some of its inhabitants to colonize SAMARIA in CANAAN. In ancient times there was a canal here. Now only a large mound is visible.

CUTTACK (India)

City in ORISSA state, on the Mahanadi River, 220 mi SW of KOLKATA, E India. It was founded and fortified in the 13th century A.D. by King Anangabhimha Deva III. The city fell to the Afghans in 1568 and was the capital of Orissa for the MOGULS and MARATHAS. It fell to the British in 1803. A 17th-century palace and several temples are among the city's noteworthy buildings. Modern Cuttack is a vital trade center for rice and jute, and home to several colleges.

CUXHAVEN (Germany)

City in Lower SAXONY at the mouth of the ELBE RIVER, 22 mi NNE of BREMERHAVEN. It is both a commercial port and a summer resort. It was conquered by HAMBURG in 1394 and held for many years. In 1907 it was incorporated and joined with nearby Döse. During World War II it was often bombed by the Allies and captured by them in May 1945. Its landmarks included the 14th-century Ritzebuttel Castle and a 14th-century lighthouse, the oldest on the German coast.

CUZCO [Cusco] (Peru)

City and capital of Cuzco province, in the ANDES MOUNTAINS, 350 mi SE of LIMA, S Peru. Capital of the old INCA EMPIRE and known as the City of the Sun, it was founded in the 11th century A.D. by Manco Capac, who according to legend was the first Inca ruler. The city was occupied and plundered in 1533 by Francisco Pizarro and almost completely destroyed in 1650 by earthquakes. It has extensive Inca remains, though several suffered damage during an earthquake in 1950. MACHU PICCHU is nearby.

CYCLADES [Greek: Kikládhes] (Greece)

Group of 220 islands in the S AEGEAN SEA, between the PELOPONNESUS and the DODECANESE. The islands were a center of Bronze Age culture and all have sites of archaeological interest, especially the sacred island of DELOS. The islands passed from the OTTOMAN EMPIRE to Greece in 1829.

CYDONIA See CANEA

CYDWELI See KIDWELLY

CYMRU See WALES

CYNAETHA See KALAVRYTA

CYNINGESTUN See KINGSTON-UPON-THAMES

CYNOSCEPHALAE (Greece)

Two hills and battleground in THESSALY, 18 mi SSE of LARISSA, central Greece. It was the scene of two battles. The first was in 364 B.C. when Pelopidas, the Theban general, defeated Alexander, tyrant of PHERAE. The second, which ended the Second Macedonian War in 197 B.C., saw the Romans under Flaminus defeat Philip V of MACEDON.

CYNOSSEMA (Turkey)

Promontory on the E side of the GALLIPOLI Peninsula, in Canakkale province. The Athenians under Alcibiades and Thrasybulus defeated the Spartans in a naval battle offshore here in 411 B.C. See also ATHENS and SPARTA.

CYNOSURA See SALAMIS

CYPRUS [Greek: Kypros; Turkish: Kibris]

E Mediterranean island, 40 mi S of TURKEY and 60 mi W of SYRIA. Evidence exists of settlements as early as 4000 B.C. and colonization by the early Greeks. A trading center because of its location, Cyprus has been a veritable palimpsest of the expansion and commercial activity of early Western civilization. A marked Phoenician presence is evident in the ninth century B.C. It was Assyrian for approximately 50 years after 709 B.C., Egyptian from the mid-sixth century B.C., then Persian. Afterward it fell to Alexander the Great and later became Egyptian once again.

From 58 B.C. until the end of the fourth century A.D. it was part of the ROMAN EMPIRE. For the next 700 years it was usually under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, with some periods of Muslim rule. In 1191 it fell to the crusading Richard I of England, who gave it to Guy of Lusignan. The kingdom set up by the Lusignans served as a base of operations for the crusaders for the next two centuries until Genoese and Venetian domination in the 14th and 15th centuries. The Turks seized Cyprus in 1573, and it passed finally into British hands in 1878.

By the 20th century the population of the country was about 80 percent Greek and 20 percent Turkish, and this has been the bane of its modern history. At the end of the 19th century the Greek element was already demanding union (énosis) with the motherland. Greek-Turkish conflict brought violence in 1955. The symbol of Greek-Cypriot nationalism was the Orthodox archbishop Makarios III. Its military-political arm was Eoka, a paramilitary group headed by Colonel George Grivas. The British, seeking to impose order, exiled Makarios. Finally, GREAT BRITAIN, GREECE, and TURKEY agreed to set up an independent, neutral Cyprus with proportional representation for Greeks and Turks. The new nation emerged in 1960 with Makarios as its president. Renewed conflict brought the stationing of UN troops to maintain order in 1964. Terrorism did not abate, and in 1974 a coup toppled the Makarios government. Turkey invaded Cyprus and seized about 30 percent of the island. The Turkish section then declared its independence from the Greek-held area, resulting in a divided nation and a stalemate that persists today. Cyprus became a member of the European Union in 2003, and Turkish Cyprus opened the Green Line border. A plebiscite to reunite the country in 2004 was defeated on the Greek side. See also MACEDONIAN EMPIRE, ASSYRIA, EGYPT, GENOA, ALEXANDRIAN EMPIRE, PERSIA, PHOENICIA, VENICE.

CYRENAICA [Cirenaica] [ancient: Pentapolis; Libyan: Barqah] (Libya)

Region in the NE, bordered on the W by the Khalij Surt, on the N by the Mediterranean, and on the E by EGYPT. Settled by Greek colonists in the seventh century B.C., it became important because of its position on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA and on trade routes W from ALEXANDRIA. The Greeks founded five cities, including BENGHAZI and CYRENE. Pentapolis became a Roman province in 67 B.C. and passed to the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. It was conquered by the Arabs in A.D. 642. Part of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE by the 15th century, it was ceded to ITALY in 1912 following the Italo-Turkish War. A major center of operations in World War II, it was occupied by the British following the Battle of el-ALEMEIN and became a province of Libya in 1951.

CYRENE [Italian: Cirene] (Libya)

Ancient Greek colony of CYRENAICA on the coastal road, 8 mi SW of APOLLONIA, NE Libya. Founded c. 630 B.C. by Greeks from THIRA, it was the original capital of Cyrenaica and was ruled by the Battiad dynasty until 440 B.C. Taken by Alexander the Great in 331 B.C., it later came under the Ptolemies and became one of the great intellectual centers of the Classical world. Under Roman rule from 96 B.C., it ceased to exist after being captured by the Arabs in A.D. 642. The extensive ruins are being excavated.

CYRNOS See CORSICA

CYTHERA [Greek: Klithira; modern: Cerigo] (Greece)

Island off the SE coast of the PELOPONNESUS, 8 mi S of Cape Malea. It is the most southerly of the IONIAN ISLANDS. In ancient times Cythera was the center of the worship of Aphrodite, and according to legend she emerged from the sea here.

CYZICUS [Turkish: Kapıdağlı] (Turkey)

Ancient city at the base of a peninsula, formerly an island, extending into the Sea of Marmara, approximately 350 mi W of BURSA, NW Turkey. It was founded by Greeks from MILETUS c. 757 B.C. During the Peloponnesian Wars, the sea off the ancient city was the scene of a battle in 410 B.C. in which Alcibiades of ATHENS defeated a Spartan fleet. Nearby, at the same time, Athenian troops routed a Spartan-Perian army. The city thrived as a commercial center down to the times of the SELEUCID EMPIRE. Scattered ruins remain. See also SPARTA.

CZARNOVO (Poland)

Town and battlefield in Warsaw province, 25 mi N of WARSAW, central Poland. During the Napoleonic Wars, the French under Napoleon drove the Russians under Count Ostermann-Tolstoy out of Czarnovo on December 24, 1806. The French went into winter quarters following the battle.

CZASLAV [Caslav] (Czech Republic)

City and battlefield 45 mi ESE of PRAGUE, BOHEMIA, in the Czech Republic. During the War of the Austrian Succession the Prussians under Frederick the Great defeated the Austrians under Marshal Prince Charles of Lorraine here on March 17, 1742. See also AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA [Czecho-Slovakia, Czechoslovak Socialist Republic] [Czech: Československa Socialistická Republika]

A former country in central Europe. This star-crossed nation had its origins in the cauldron of nationalities that made up the AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE. In 1916, during World War I, the Czechs and Slovaks united in a national council headed by Thomas Masaryk to lobby with the Allies for a Czechoslovak national state after the war. In October 1918 the council declared the independence of that state, whose boundaries, the consequence of World War I peace negotiations, came to include not only BOHEMIA and MORAVIA, but also Upper SILESIA, part of the duchy of TESCHEN, and Carpathian RUTHENIA. Czechoslovakia's liberal constitution of 1918 guaranteed minority rights, but this congeries of Czechs, Germans, Magyars, Poles, Slovaks, and Ukrainians proved to be unstable.

President Masaryk and Edvard Beneš, who succeeded him in 1935, managed to guide the state through the troubled waters of its early years and through the Great Depression of the 1930s. By the middle of that decade, however, German agitation in the SUDETENLAND of Bohemia, led by the local leader Konrad Henlein and encouraged by Hitler, posed a grave threat to the nation. Following his annexation of AUSTRIA in March 1938, Hitler demanded that those areas of Czechoslovakia with more than 50 percent German population be placed under German control. GREAT BRITAIN and France agreed to these demands in order not to provoke a war, a policy that became known as "appeasement." In an agreement signed at MUNICH on September 29 the Sudetenland was handed over to GERMANY. POLAND demanded and got Teschen; Ruthenia and part of SLOVAKIA went to HUNGARY. In March 1939 Hitler took what was left and made it a German protectorate.

German rule during World War II was brutal, especially so after the assassination of Reich Protector Reinhard Heydrich in May 1941. All the men in the town of LIDICE were executed in reprisal. The Czech government in exile came under Soviet influence. The war ended with the Soviet liberation of Czechoslovakia and the restoration of the boundaries of 1938, except for Ruthenia, which became part of the USSR. Klement Gottwald, a communist, became prime minister in 1946. By February 1948 communist domination was complete. A Soviet-style state was set up with centralized and rigid control of political and economic activity.

The Communist Party was purged in the early 1950s. By the middle of that decade some attempts at liberalization began to appear in order to counter growing discontent. But unrest continued to build and finally broke to the surface in the "Prague Spring" of 1968. The Soviet Union, feeling increasingly threatened by what it perceived to be the Westernization and breakdown in party discipline and control in Czechoslovakia, led a Warsaw Pact invasion of the country on August 20. Under military occupation, Gustave Husák replaced the reformist Alexander Dubček as premier. Rigid party control of government and society was instituted and has continued to 1989 when the communist government collapsed. Slovak nationalism resulted in the separation of SLOVAKIA and the establishment of the CZECH REPUBLIC in 1993.

CZECHOSLOVAK SOCIALIST REPUBLIC See CZECHOSLOVAKIA

CZECH REPUBLIC

Nation in Eastern Europe consisting of BOHEMIA and MORAVIA from the former republic of CZECHOSLOVAKIA as a result of the "Velvet Revolution" of 1992, during which the Czechs and Slovaks amicably agreed to break up their republic. In 1993, SLOVAKIA became a republic and the Czech Republic was born. The nation has pursued a free market economic system and has aligned itself with Western Europe. In 1999, the Czech Republic joined NATO, and in 2003, it became a member of the European Union. The capital of the Czech Republic is PRAGUE.

CZEGLÉD See CEGLÉD

CZENSTOCHAU See CZESTOCHOWA

CZERNOWITZ See CHERNOVTSY

CZESTOCHOWA [German: Czenstochau, Schenstochau; Russian: Chenstokhov] (Poland)

City and capital of Katowice province, on the Warta River, 40 mi N of KATOWICE, S Poland. A religious center, it was very wealthy in the 15th century. The monastery, containing an image of Our Lady supposedly painted by St. Luke, was fortified and resisted the Swedish invasions of 1655 and 1705. The city was captured by the Germans in both world wars.

D

DABA See DIBBAH

DABIE [former: Dab Stary; German: Altdamm] (Poland)
Town, formerly in POMERANIA, now in Szczecin province. Founded in 1176, it was a fortress from 1249 to 1872. Incorporated in 1939 into SZCZECIN, it was rechartered after 1945 and briefly called Dab Stary. Dabie's German population was evacuated after World War II.

DABROMIERZ [German: Hohenfriedeberg] (Poland)
Village in the SW, near STRZEGOM, formerly in the SILESIA region of Prussia. On June 4, 1745, during the Second Silesian War, Dabromierz was the site of the victory of PRUSSIA under Frederick the Great over the armies of AUSTRIA and SAXONY, led by Charles of Lorraine.

DABROWA GÓRNICZA [German: Dombrau; Russian: Dombrowa] (Poland)
Town in the SW, just NE of KATOWICE. The town prospered when coal mining began here in 1796. It passed to PRUSSIA in 1795 and to RUSSIA in 1915 and reverted to Poland in 1919. During the 19th century it served as a mining and metallurgical center, where the first Polish mining school was established in 1889.

DABROWNO [German: Gilgenburg] (Poland)
Town, formerly in EAST PRUSSIA, now in Olsztyn province, Poland. In 1319 the Teutonic Knights established the castle here. From 1910 to 1939 the town was a German frontier station on the Polish border.

DAB STARY See DABIE

DACCA See DHAKA

DACHAU (Germany)
Town in BAVARIA, 11 mi NW of MUNICH. Chartered in 1391, in 1933 Dachau became the site of a notorious concentration camp, where Germany under the Nazis used Jews and other minorities, as well as political and Russian prisoners, for forced labor and for supposed medical research. Dachau was also the site of mass extermination of prisoners. The Allies captured it on April 29, 1945, and freed 32,000 surviving prisoners.

DACIA (Romania)
Ancient country in E central Europe, with borders roughly equivalent to those of modern Romania. It was inhabited before the Roman conquest by the Getae and Dacians, peoples of Thracian stock who invaded the ROMAN EMPIRE during the reign of Domitian. Dacia was conquered by Trajan and made into a Roman province after the death of the Dacian king Decebalus in A.D. 107. It was colonized and fortified as a post across the DANUBE RIVER but was abandoned to the Goths in A.D. 270, when Aurelian withdrew Roman colonists to a new Dacia created in MOESIA to the south.

DACRE (England)
Village in CUMBRIA, 4 mi SW of PENRITH. The 14th-century castle of Dacre was the seat of the powerful lordship called Dacre of the North, whose title derived from the city of ACRE in the Levant, where much fighting took place during the Crusades and which was the final outpost of the crusaders in the E until its fall in 1291.

DADEVILLE See HORSESHOE BEND

DADRA AND NAGAR HAVELI (India)

Region, approximately 125 mi N of MUMBAI, between GUJARAT and MAHARASHTRA states. It came under Portuguese control in 1789. In 1954 indigenous freedom movements forced PORTUGAL to abandon it to India. It was declared a union territory in 1961.

DAGAHPUR [Dagapur, Daggah Bur] (Ethiopia)

Town and market center in the Harar province of the SE OGADEN region, 95 mi SE of JIJIGA. In 1936, during the Italo-Ethiopian War, the town was occupied by ITALY. In World War II GREAT BRITAIN occupied it in 1941.

DAGAPUR See DAGAHPUR

DAGGAH BUR See DAGAHPUR

DAGESTAN AUTONOMOUS REPUBLIC See DAGESTAN

DAGESTAN [Dagestan Autonomous Republic] (Russia)

Autonomous republic in S Russia, on the W shore of the CASPIAN SEA, bordered on the S and W by the Caucasus Mountains. From early times it was the home of wild, semi-nomadic tribes. Ceded by PERSIA to Russia in 1813, it was not subdued until 1859. In 1877 its inhabitants revolted during the Russo-Turkish War. It formed a separate Russian republic during the Revolution but continued to struggle until 1921, when a famine struck the area. In 1921 it was declared an autonomous Soviet republic. It has assumed great strategic importance to Russia for its location adjacent to the breakaway Russian Republic of CHECHNYA as well as its importance as an oil producer. In 1999, there was an uprising led by Chechen rebels that was put down by Russian authorities. Since 2000 there has been continuing sporadic rebel activity and Russian police responses.

DAGÖ See HIIUMAA

DAGU [Taku] (China)

Town in E HEBEI province, 37 mi E of TIANJIN, at the mouth of the Hai River, NE China. Once the location of fortresses guarding the outskirts of Tianjin, it was besieged by foreign troops in 1860 and again in 1900 during the Boxer Rebellion. The forts were destroyed in 1902.

DAGUPAN [former: Bacnotan] (Philippines)

City, 130 mi N of MANILA, on the island of LUZON. It was originally established by the Spanish in 1590 and named Bacnotan. It was a stronghold of insurgent resistance in 1898 during the Spanish-American War. In 1941 the city was the initial point of invasion in the Japanese drive toward Manila in World War II.

DAHALA See BAGHELKAND

DAHLAK ARCHIPELAGO [Italian: Isole Dahalach] (Eritrea)

Island group in the RED SEA, off the coast of Eritrea. Pearl fisheries here were known to the Romans. The islands became an independent Muslim state in the seventh century A.D. but were conquered later by YEMEN and then taken by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. In the late 19th century the islands became part of the Italian protectorate of Eritrea.

DAHLEM See BERLIN

DAHLONEGA (United States)

Town in N central GEORGIA, Lumpkin county, 17 mi NNW of Gainesville. Dahlonega was a mountain trading center, settled with the opening of gold mines nearby in 1828 and incorporated in 1833. A U.S. mint was sited here during the period 1838–61, when Georgia broke away from the Union at the beginning of the Civil War.

DAHOMEY See BENIN

DAHSHÛR [Dashur] (Egypt)

Pyramid site, S of SAKKARA, on the W bank of the NILE RIVER, near MEMPHIS. Two of the five pyramids here are thought to have been built by King Snefru in the middle of the third millennium B.C. One of these, known as the blunted or bent pyramid due to a change midway in the angle of construction, is the only such Old Kingdom structure to have two entrances. The other is the first true, not step, pyramid. Using this as a model, Snefru's successor, Khufu, built the great pyramid at GIZA. The other three, from the early second millennium B.C. but not well preserved, are surrounded by royal tombs that contained jewelry and other artifacts of the highest quality.

DAIHOKU See TAIPEI

DAINAN See T'AI-NAN

DAIQUIRÍ (Cuba)

Town, in EL CANEY municipality, on the coast, 14 mi E of Santiago Bay. During the Spanish-American War, U.S. troops landed at Daiquirí on June 22, 1898, before their assault on SANTIAGO.

DAIRBHRE See VALENTIA

DAIREN See DALIAN

DAIRSIE [Dairsiemuir, Osnaburgh] (Scotland)

Village in FIFE region, on the Eden River, 6 mi W of ST. ANDREWS. Dairsie's church dates from 1622, and the village contains remains of Dairsie Castle, dating from the 16th century. David II (1324–71), son of Robert Bruce, Scotland's liberator and first king, spent his youth here.

DAIRSIEMUIR See DAIRSIE

DAI VIET See VIETNAM

DAJABÓN (Dominican Republic)

Town and capital of Libertador province, in the NW. Founded between 1771 and 1776, it was abandoned during the war of independence and resettled in 1865 after the war of restoration. It was made the province's capital in 1938, when the province was formed from Montecristi as Libertador. The surrounding region had been disputed between SPAIN and FRANCE during the colonial era.

DAKAR (Senegal)

Port and capital of Senegal, West Africa, on the S end of Cape Verde Peninsula. It was founded in 1857 as a fort to protect the French merchants and traders of GORÉE. A railroad was built from Dakar to ST. LOUIS, between 1882 and 1885, and the city became a naval base. In 1902 it became capital of FRENCH WEST AFRICA, and from 1924 to 1946 the city and surrounding areas were autonomous. It was rejoined to Senegal in 1946 and became capital of the new nation in 1956.

DAKA RIVER (Ghana)

River in the NE, rising 40 mi NNW of Yendi, and flowing 200 mi S to the VOLTA RIVER. Until World War I the Daka formed the boundary between the GOLD COAST and German TOGOLAND.

DAKHINESWAR (India)

Village in SE West BENGAL, on the Hugli River, 6 mi N of KOLKATA. Dakhineswar is the site of many ancient temples. At the temple of Kali here, the young Ramakrishna (1834–86) developed into a renowned yogi and Hindu religious teacher.

DA KHURE See ULAN BATOR

DAKOTA See JAMES RIVER

DAKOTA TERRITORY See NORTH DAKOTA, SOUTH DAKOTA

DALARNA [Dalecarlia] (Sweden)

Central province, with borders nearly identical to those of the modern administrative province of Kopparberg. In 1521 the peasants of Dalarna, led by Gustavus I Vasa, founder of the dynasty, freed Sweden from the rule of DENMARK.

DA LAT (Vietnam)

City in the S, NE of HO CHI MINH CITY. Founded in the 19th century and developed by FRANCE, Da Lat was the site chosen by the French scientist Alexandre Yersin in 1893 for his research on bubonic plague.

DALE (Wales)

Village in DYFED, 6 mi W of MILFORD HAVEN. In 1485 Henry Tudor, the earl of Richmond, later King

Henry VII, landed nearby to claim the English Crown before the defeat and death of Richard III at BOWORTH FIELD on August 22.

DALECARLIA See DALARNA

DALHART (United States)

Town in extreme N TEXAS, NW of AMARILLO in the N corner of the Texas panhandle. Founded in 1901 and incorporated in 1903, Dalhart was born with the arrival of the railroad in cattle-ranching country. It grew with the railroad shops and stockyards as well as the construction of grain elevators.

DALHOUSIE (Canada)

Town in N NEW BRUNSWICK, 140 mi N of FREDERICTON, at the mouth of the Restigouche River. First settled by Scots c. 1800, it was named by statute in 1826 for the ninth earl of Dalhousie, governor-general of Canada from 1819 to 1828.

DA-LI See XIAGUAN

DALIAN [Ta-Lien] [Japanese: Dairen; Russian: Dalny] (China)

Major Chinese port in MANCHURIA, on the S coast of Liaodong Peninsula, 20 mi E of PORT ARTHUR, with which it is joined in a common municipality called Lü-ta. In 1899, then under RUSSIA, it became the terminus of the South Manchurian Railroad and a commercial free port. Occupied by JAPAN in 1904 during the Russo-Japanese War, it was a free port again by 1906. The city suffered some damage during World War II and was taken by Soviet troops in August 1945. However, by a treaty with Nationalist China, renewed with Communist China, the Chinese retained sovereignty, but Russia holds port privileges. The Soviet troops withdrew in 1955.

DALKEITH (Scotland)

Town in Lothian region, 7 mi SE of EDINBURGH. Just to the N is Dalkeith House, seat of the dukes of Buccleuch, built by Sir John Vanbrugh c. 1700 to replace an earlier 13th-century fortress.

DALKEY (Ireland)

Town in Dublin County, on the S horn of Dublin Bay. It was an important town during the Middle Ages.

Dalkey Island, separated from the mainland by a narrow sound, was famous in the 18th century for the election of the mock "king of Dalkey."

DAL LAKE (India)

Lake in the Vale of KASHMIR, just S of SRINAGAR, W central Kashmir. Near the lake's east bank are the famous Mogul gardens of Chama-i-Shahi, built in 1633 by Shah Jahan. Along the shores of the lake are other Mogul gardens and buildings. See MOGUL EMPIRE.

DALLAS (United States)

Town in NW GEORGIA, 30 mi NW of ATLANTA. Incorporated in 1854, Dallas was the site of the Battle of New Hope Church, in March 1864, during the Civil War, an indecisive meeting of the armies of Generals Grant and Lee.

DALLAS (United States)

City in N TEXAS, second largest in the state, on the Trinity River, approximately 33 mi E of FORT WORTH. It was first settled in 1841 and named for George Mifflin Dallas, then vice president of the United States. It was incorporated as a city in 1871 and grew as a center for cotton production, banking, and later the petroleum industry. The Texas Centennial Exposition was held here in 1936. Dallas was birthplace of the integrated circuit computer chip in 1958. In November 1963 President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas. Dallas suffered during the crash of the Savings and Loans in the 1980s, but recovered economically in the 1990s as a center of high technology.

DALLES, THE [City of the Dalles] (United States)

City in N OREGON, on the COLUMBIA RIVER, 72 mi E of Portland. The explorers Lewis and Clark found an Indian market on this site in 1805. White settlers came in 1838, and the city was chartered in 1857. It is at the eastern end of a 200-mi waterway from the Pacific Ocean to the Bonneville Dam, a huge hydroelectric project undertaken during the New Deal and opened in 1943.

DALMACIJA See DALMATIA

DALMATIA [Serbo-Croatian: Dalmacija] (Croatia)

Region in the BALKANS, on the Adriatic Sea, part of the Republic of Croatia. The first known inhabitants were from ILLYRIA and overran the northwestern part of the Balkan Peninsula beginning c. 1000 B.C. ROME conquered the region c. 35 B.C., and the Ostrogoths took control in A.D. 481, following the collapse of the ROMAN EMPIRE. In the sixth century the region was taken by the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, and Slavic peoples began moving into all areas except in the coastal cities in the seventh century. In later centuries Dalmatia was divided among CROATIA, SERBIA, and VENICE, most of it coming under Venetian control by 1420. The Turks held part of Dalmatia from 1526 to 1699. More changes followed. It passed to AUSTRIA in 1797; to FRANCE in 1805; to Napoleon's ILLYRIAN PROVINCES in 1809; and back to Austria in 1815. In 1915 the Allies promised to give Dalmatia to ITALY in return for that nation entering World War I on the Allied side. They did not keep the promise, and in 1918 Dalmatia became part of the new kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, renamed Yugoslavia in 1929. In World War II Italy held Dalmatia for a time, but in 1945, at the end of the war, the region was returned to Yugoslavia. After the breakup of Yugoslavia, this region was divided up between Croatia (holding the majority of the territory), Montenegro, and Bosnia. Dalmatia's coast is now an area of beautiful scenery and popular resorts.

DALNY See DALIAN

DALOA (Ivory Coast)

Town, administrative headquarters of the Daloa department, West Africa. Originally founded by two Africans—Gboto of the Bete tribe, and Dalo of the Guro tribe—the town became a French military post in 1903.

DALRIADA (Northern Ireland)

Ancient Gaelic kingdom on the North Channel, in the present Moyle district. In the fifth century A.D. Dalriada sent many emigrants to establish a kingdom of the same name in SCOTLAND. The Irish Kingdom gradually declined and, after the Viking invasions of the ninth century, it lost its political identity.

DALRIADA (Scotland)

Ancient kingdom in STRATHCLYDE region, on the North Channel. From the fifth century A.D. this region experienced extensive Irish immigration and became an Irish area. Despite heavy onslaughts from the Picts, it continued to expand. In 878 its king, Kenneth I, brought the Picts permanently under control, and ruled almost the entire country N of the Firth of FORTH, which was thereafter known as Scotland.

DALSLAND (Sweden)

Province near the Norwegian border, now part of Älvsborg province. Because of its location, Dalsland was often involved in warfare between Sweden and NORWAY, but only for a short time did it belong to the latter. Toward the end of the 19th century, with the decline of the iron industry and agriculture, there was mass emigration from Dalsland to Norway and to the UNITED STATES.

DALTON (United States)

City in extreme NW GEORGIA, in the Appalachian Valley, SW of CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE. Incorporated in 1847, during the Civil War this city was the Confederate headquarters of the Chattanooga campaign. It fell to General William Sherman in the campaign for ATLANTA in 1864.

DALTON [former: Ashuelot Equivalent] (United States)

Town in W MASSACHUSETTS, just NE of PITTSFIELD. Settled in 1775 on land granted to Oliver Partridge, it was then known as Ashuelot Equivalent. In 1784 it was incorporated. Since 1846 the Crane Paper Company in this town has made the paper for U.S. currency and bonds.

DALTONGANJ (India)

Town and administrative headquarters of the Palaman district, W BIHAR state, in a coal-mining area. It was founded in 1862 by Colonel Edward Dalton, the British commissioner of Chota Nagpur, and it became a municipality in 1888.

DALY CITY (United States)

Residential city in W CALIFORNIA, just S of San Francisco. Daly City was settled in 1906 by survivors of the SAN FRANCISCO earthquake. It was incorporated in 1911.

DALY RIVER (Australia)

River in NW NORTHERN TERRITORY, flowing 225 mi W to Anson Bay on the Timor Sea. Discovered in 1865 by Boyle Finniss, who became the first governor of a settlement in the territory, it was named in honor of Sir Dominick Daly, then governor of SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

DAMAN [Portuguese: Damão] (India)

Former Portuguese colony on the Gulf of Cambray, on the NW coast, 100 mi N of MUMBAI. It was acquired by the Portuguese in 1558. Daman, the colony's capital, was a center of extensive overseas trade, especially with East Africa, before the power of PORTUGAL declined in the 18th century. India seized the colony in December 1961.

DAMAN AND DIU (India)

Union territory of India created in 1987 when GOA became an Indian state. See also DAMAN, DIU.

DAMANHUR [Greek: Hermopolis Parva] (Egypt)

City in the W NILE RIVER delta, E of ALEXANDRIA. It was capital of a Ptolemaic nome and was known in Hellenistic times as Hermopolis Parva. It was first made a provincial capital under Fatimid rule in the 11th century A.D., and it prospered as a caravan town in the Middle Ages. In 1302 an earthquake severely damaged its fortifications, but they were restored in the 14th century for protection against Bedouin attacks. In 1799 one of Napoleon's companies was massacred here by the troops of Mahdi Ahmad during the Egyptian Campaign.

DAMAO See GOA, DAMAN AND DIU

DAMÃO See DAMAN

DAMAR See DHAMAR

DAMAS See DAMASCUS

DAMASCUS [Arabic: Ash-Sham, Dimash, Dimashq; French: Damas] (Syria)

Nation's capital and principal city, located in the Ghouta oasis in the SW, at the E base of the Anti-Lebanon Mts, approximately 57 mi SE of BEIRUT, presently the administrative, financial, and communications center of Syria. Of uncertain origin, it is considered by some to be among the oldest continually inhabited cities in the Western world. A trading center was on the site before the time of Abraham, c. 2000 B.C. It was probably first inhabited by Aramaeans from the Syrian Desert.

Like much of the surrounding Middle Eastern region, through the centuries it has been invaded and absorbed by a succession of conquerors and their empires. Probably a part of the domain of EGYPT before being taken by the Hittites in the second millennium B.C., it was then controlled by the Aramaeans and the Israelites. While part of ASSYRIA under Tiglath Pileser III after 732 B.C., it was captured by BABYLONIA, then taken by PERSIA, which made it a provincial capital in the empire. Conquered by Alexander the Great, it passed to the succeeding SELEUCID dynasty, which was then threatened by the Greek Ptolemies of Egypt. ARMENIA under Tigranes next held Damascus until defeated by ROME under Pompey in 64 B.C. As one of the cities of the DECAPOLIS, it remained under Roman influence until the division of the empire. the city accepted Christianity early in its history, the road to Damascus being famous as the site of the conversion of the Roman civil servant Paul. In A.D. 379 the Roman emperor Theodosius I ordered the construction of a Christian church on the foundations of a temple to Zeus. Following the division of the ROMAN EMPIRE into eastern and western parts in A.D. 395, the city became a provincial capital of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. Shortly after the birth of Islam, it was captured by the Arabs and was slowly converted to the religion of Muhammad. It became the seat of the Umayyad Caliphate from 661 to 750. The Christian church of Theodosius was rebuilt in 705 as the Great Mosque. The city became a center of Islamic culture and of a naturalistic art heavily indebted to its Hellenistic past.

Damascus became less important in the Islamic world after 750, when the ABBASID CALIPHATE made BAGHDAD the Muslim center. It was subsequently taken by the Egyptians, Carmathians, and Seljuk Turks by 1076, and it was then threatened unsuccessfully in the 12th century by Christian crusaders during periods of Saracen weakness. The city flourished under Saracen rule, developing a renowned metal-smithing and swordmaking industry. Damascus steel has been famous in Europe since that time. Its cloth was widely exported to the West during the Middle Ages as cloth of Damascus, or Damask. In 1260 it was captured by the Mongols, and was subsequently ravaged by Tamerlane c. 1400 who carried away the expert armorers and swordmakers.

Taken by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1516, it remained under the control of the Turks for 400 years, until the end of World War I. Early in this period Suleiman I, then Ottoman ruler of Damascus, constructed a notable mosque and the Tekkiya Inn to house pilgrims making the hajj or holy pilgrimage to MECCA.

During World War I Thomas Edward Lawrence, "Lawrence of Arabia," was instrumental in preparations for the British capture of the city by Lord Allenby and Emir Faisal, later Faisal I of IRAQ. Made a French mandate under the League of Nations after the war, the city joined the Druse in a rebellion against the French in 1925–26. Nevertheless, it remained under nominal French control. During World War II the British and Free French entered it, but it was named the capital of an independent Syria in 1946. In 1958 it became the Syrian capital of the United Arab Republic, composed of Syria and Egypt, from which Syria withdrew in 1961 to form an independent Syrian Arab Republic.

Historic structures include the Great Mosque, one of the largest and most outstanding in the Islamic world; a quadrangular citadel dating from Roman times and reconstructed in 1219; a Muslim monastery from the 16th century; and the Azm palace dating from 1749, now a museum and institute for the study of Islamic art and architecture. The ancient "street which is called Straight" in the book of Acts 9:11 runs E to W through the old city.

DAMBADENIYA (Sri Lanka)

City and seat of a dynasty that ruled most of the island of Ceylon from 1255 to 1330. The Dambadeniya dynasty is of uncertain origin, but it arose in opposition to the Malay usurper Mazha, who in 1215 seized power in the north. Although the city ceased to be the dynasty's capital from c. 1280, the dynasty bearing its name lasted until the accession of the Gampola dynasty in 1340.

DAMBULLA (Sri Lanka)

Village in Central province, 38 mi N of KANDY. Nearby is Dambulla rock, to which Buddhist pilgrims come. The noted Buddhist cave temples here date from the first century B.C. Among the sculptures is a famous reclining Buddha, 47 ft in length.

DAMERY (France)

Village in the Marne department, 4 mi WNW of ÉPERNAY. During World War II Damery's 13th-century church was almost destroyed. The village is the birthplace of the actress Adrienne Lecouvreur (1692–1730), a mistress of Maurice of SAXONY. She was probably poisoned by a rival for Maurice's affections.

DAMGHAN (Iran)

Town in N Iran, S of Elburz Mountains and chief town of Semnan governorate, NW KHORĀSĀN. Once an important medieval town and capital of the Qumis province, it was destroyed by the Afghans in 1723. The ninth-century Tarik Khaneh, possibly the oldest mosque in Iran, stands here, and four medieval towers survive. Nearby is the prehistoric mound of TEPE HISSAR, excavated in the 1930s. Also in the neighborhood are the ruins of HECATOMPYLOS, an ancient city that was for a time the capital of PARTHIA.

DAMIETTA (Egypt)

City and port, on Manzala Lake, near the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. A commercial and strategic center in the Middle Ages, it was pillaged by the Byzantines and the Sicilian Normans and captured and held by the crusaders from 1219 to 1221, and from 1249 to 1250 by Louis IX of FRANCE on his first Crusade. During both Crusades it marked the farthest advance of the Christians. In the latter Louis and his army were surrounded in the city, after heavy losses, and were freed only after surrendering it and paying a heavy and humiliating ransom. It was later destroyed and rebuilt by the Egyptians. Dimity cloth, named for the city, was first made here.

DAMLLOUP (France)

Village in the Meuse department, 5 mi NE of VERDUN. In 1916, during World War I, Damloup was the scene of fierce fighting between Allied and German forces.

DAMMAM (Saudi Arabia)

Town and port on the PERSIAN GULF, opposite BAHRAIN. Now a residential town for oil workers, it had been an ancient port, and the remains of a stone castle here stand on a coral reef. Dammam's modern development began in the late 1940s, when it replaced the old port of Oqair.

DAMME (Belgium)

Village in West Flanders province, on the Bruges-Sluis Canal. Originally on the Zwiijn estuary of the NORTH SEA, Damme was the North Sea port for BRUGES in the 13th and 14th centuries, and merchants of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE were governed by its maritime law. It declined when the Zwiyn silted up in the 15th century, landlocking the port, and is now an agricultural village on reclaimed land.

DAMOH (India)

City, administrative headquarters of Damoh district, MADHYA PRADESH state, 190 mi N of NAGPUR. In the 14th century it rose to importance when occupied by Muslims and became the seat of MARATHA governors. It was overrun by mutineers in the Indian Mutiny of 1857.

DAMPIER LAND (Australia)

Peninsula on the NW coast, in the state of WESTERN AUSTRALIA. Dampier Land was named for the English mariner William Dampier, who explored the coast of Western Australia in the late 17th century.

DAMPOLIS See YAMBOL

DAN [ancient: Laish, Leshem; Arabic: Tell el-Qadi] (Israel)

Ancient village at the northern extremity of Israel. According to the Old Testament, when Dan, founder of one of the 12 tribes of Israel, was allotted a small area SW of JERUSALEM for his group, he found the hostile Amorites living there. Most of the tribe moved N to occupy Laish, or Leshem. In 1939 a modern village of Dan was founded just N of the biblical village, and excavations here have turned up material from the 17th century B.C. Dan was one of the 10 northern "lost tribes of Israel" that disappeared from history after the Assyrians conquered the kingdom of Israel in 721 B.C. and deported them. Samson, the strong man undone by Delilah, was a Danite hero. The expression "from Dan to BEERSHEBA" was a way of stating the northern and southern extremes of Israel. New excavations on the site have recently uncovered remains of massive city gates and guard towers. See also ELTEKEH.

DA NANG [French: Tourane] (Vietnam)

City, autonomous municipality in Quang Nam province. Da Nang was first ceded to FRANCE with the Con Son Islands in 1787, and in 1858 it was occupied briefly by the French. Later its port served as a French concession beyond the jurisdiction of the protectorate. The city grew in importance after the partition of Vietnam in 1954, and it was the site of a major U.S.

air base from the late 1960s until 1973 during the war in Vietnam.

DANASTRIS See DNIESTER RIVER

DANBURY (United States)

City in SW CONNECTICUT, 20 mi NW of BRIDGEPORT. It was first settled in 1685. An early military depot, in 1777 it was the object of a British raid under William Tryon, which resulted in the death nearby of General David Wooster and the burning of part of the village. Danbury's famous hat industry dates from 1780. The Danbury Hatters' Case, originating here, was decided by the Supreme Court in 1908 against a labor union boycott.

DANDARAH See DENDERA

DANDI (India)

Village in the Surat district, N MUMBAI, near the Gulf of Cambay. Here in 1930, after their march from AHMEDABAD, Gandhi and his followers made salt in defiance of the salt monopoly of the British government of India.

DANELAGA See DANELAW

DANELAGH See DANELAW

DANELAW [Danelaga, Danelagh] (England)

Area in N, central, and E Anglo-Saxon England colonized by invading Danish Vikings in the ninth century A.D. After the treaty of King Alfred with the Dane Guthrum in 886, a dividing line between Anglo-Saxon and Danish England was settled along the route of WATLING STREET, an old Roman road running NW from London to the Mersey River. Danish law prevailed in four regions: EAST ANGLIA, ESSEX, and in most of MERCIA and NORTHUMBRIA. These were reclaimed from Danish domination by 954, but many legal, social, and linguistic customs continued.

DANEVIRKE [Danevitke, Danewerk] (Denmark)

Vast system of early medieval earthworks constructed by the Danes across the base of the JUTLAND Peninsula. Building the fortifications, considered the most extensive historic remains in SCANDINAVIA, took more than three centuries. They were important in repelling invaders from the S, including Charlemagne in the late eighth century A.D. See also HEDEBY.

DANEVITKE See DANEVIRKE

DANEWERK See DANEVIRKE

DANGER ATOLL [Pukapuka] (New Zealand)

One of the N COOK ISLANDS, a dependency of New Zealand, in the SW Pacific Ocean. It was first sighted in 1595 by the Spanish explorer Álvaro de Mindaña and rediscovered in 1765 by John Byron, an English navigator. The British annexed the atoll in 1892.

DANMARK See DENMARK

DANNOURA (Japan)

Area at the E end of Shimoneseki Strait, on the SW extremity of HONSHŪ ISLAND. In 1185 Dannoura was the site of a famous naval battle in which Minamoto leaders under Yoshitsune decisively defeated the Taira. Seven years later Minamoto Yoritomo had established the first of the shogunates, or military regimes, which controlled Japan's emperors for more than 600 years.

DANSKOYA [Norwegian: Danskøya] (Norway)

Island in the Spitsbergen group, in the Arctic Ocean, just NW of SPITSBERGEN. From Virgo Harbor in the north, S.A. Andrée began his daring but unsuccessful try at reaching the NORTH POLE by balloon in July 1897.

DANSVILLE (United States)

Village in W central NEW YORK State, SSE of GENESEO. It was founded in 1795 and incorporated in 1845. In 1881 Clara Barton founded the first local chapter of the American Red Cross here.

DANUBE RIVER [ancient: Danubius; Bulgarian: Dunav; Czech: Dunaj; German: Donau; Hungarian: Duna; Romanian: Dunarea; Russian: Dunai; Serbo-Croatian: Dunav]

River of central and E Europe that flows generally ESE from its source in GERMANY to the BLACK SEA. In its lower course it is also known as the Ister. Approximately 1,770 mi long, it is one of the major rivers of the world and has approximately 300 tributaries. The Danube is navigable to ULM, and for centuries it has been an invasion route and thus the scene of numerous battles and the migration of peoples. It has formed the boundaries of empires and influenced the settlement of Europe. The Danube flows through or forms part of the borders of 11 nations: AUSTRIA, BULGARIA, CROATIA, CZECH REPUBLIC, Germany, HUNGARY, MOLDOVA, ROMANIA, SERBIA, SLOVAKIA, and the UKRAINE. Important cities on its banks are BELGRADE, BRAILA, BRATISLAVA, BUDAPEST, LINZ, PASSAU, REGENSBURG, SILISTRA, ULM, and VIENNA. The Iron Gate, on the Serbia-Romania border, is a deep gorge through which the river flows, where swift currents and rocks had formed an obstacle to shipping. The rocks were cleared in the 1860s and in 1896 the Sip Canal was opened, allowing larger ships to use the river. The gorge is now the site of a hydroelectric power plant and dam, built after World War II, the construction of which did away with much evidence of prehistoric inhabitants of the area, such as the Celtic tribes that later moved W across Europe.

Before the Roman period the Danube River valley was inhabited by Illyrians, Thracians, Cimmerians and others whose presence can be adduced from c. 1200 to 700 B.C., while Celts held its upper course. Thereafter and down to c. the fourth century B.C. the Celts, Illyrians, and Thracians were conquered or driven out. Gallic tribes then held its upper course, and Hellenistic successor states to the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE held its lower valley. In Roman times the Danube was the border between its civilization and the barbarian world to the north. Dacians, Sarmatians, and others were in the area, and for a time Rome made DACIA into a Roman province. The Roman boundary of the Danube, however, was first seriously crossed in the fourth century A.D. when the Visigoths raided across the river, and they were followed into the Danube basin in the next century by the Ostrogoths and Huns. In the seventh century the barbarian Avars dominated the Hungarian plain, but were forced westward by the Magyars, who in turn were pressed by the Pechenegs in the 11th century. The Cumans followed, but were defeated by the Mongols, who reached W as far as Hungary and Germany in 1241.

Over the centuries the Danube increased in importance as an artery of transportation, particularly with the growth of medieval commerce and during the ensuing era of the Crusades from the 11th to the 14th centuries, but Turkish control of the lower regions in the

314 Danubian Principalities

15th and 16th centuries hindered western European trade. Growing traffic in the 19th century resulted in the establishment in 1856 of an international commission to control the waterway. This commission lasted until World War II. After the war a new commission was established with headquarters in Budapest. The music of Johann Strauss the Younger continues to remind the world of the bygone days of imperial Vienna on the great river. See also MONGOL EMPIRES, OSTROGOTHIC KINGDOM, VISIGOTHIC KINGDOM.

DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES See MOLDAVIA, ROMANIA, WALACHIA

DANUBIUS See DANUBE RIVER

DANUBYU (Myanmar)

Town in the Maubin district of Lower Burma, on the right bank of the IRRAWADDY RIVER, 65 mi NE of BASSEIN, British forces took the town in 1825 during the First Anglo-Burmese War.

DANVERS (United States)

Town in NE MASSACHUSETTS, just NW of SALEM. Settled in 1636, it was incorporated in 1757. More than half of the victims of the Salem witchcraft trials of c. 1700 came from Danvers. Benedict Arnold's army camped here on its march to QUEBEC during the American Revolution. The Revolutionary officer Israel Putnam was born here, and the poet John Greenleaf Whittier also lived here.

DANVILLE (United States)

City in central KENTUCKY, 32 mi SSW of LEXINGTON. It was settled in 1775, and incorporated in 1836. One of the oldest settlements in Kentucky, Danville was made the local seat of government during 1785–92 by act of the Virginia legislature. Kentucky constitutional conventions were held here, and their setting has been preserved. Today in an agricultural region, it is a thriving industrial center.

DANVILLE (United States)

City in S central VIRGINIA, SE of ROANOKE, on the Dan River. It was founded in 1793. In April 1865, at the end of the Civil War, Confederate president Jefferson Davis and his cabinet fled the RICHMOND area and came here. The Sutherlin mansion here became the last capital of the Confederacy. The city has one of the largest textile mills in the South. See CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA.

DANZHU [Tan-Chu, Tanchuk] (China)

Town in SE GUANXI CHUANG province, 60 mi W of WUZHOU, on the Xi River, SE China. The location of a U.S. air base during World War II, it was abandoned to the Japanese on November 1, 1944. The Chinese recaptured it on July 9, 1945.

DANZIG See GDAŃSK

DAPHNAE [Arabic: Tall al-Dafana; Greek: Daphnai; Hebrew: Tahpanhes] (Egypt)

Ancient fortress town situated near QANTARAH, W of the SUEZ CANAL. Many refugees, including the prophet Jeremiah, fled here c. 585 B.C. after the destruction of JERUSALEM by BABYLON. In the sixth century B.C. it began to decline when Ahmose II gave NAUCRATIS the monopoly of Greek trade.

DAPHNAI See DAPHNAE

DAPITAN (Philippines)

City in N Zamboanga del Norte province, on Dapitan Bay, MINDANAO. Dapitan is one of the oldest towns in the Philippines, as well as a famous trading center because of its fine harbor. Dr. José Rizal, Philippine writer and nationalist, spent three years of his long exile here between 1893 and 1896 before he was arrested and returned to MANILA by the Spanish for his trial and execution.

DAR'Ā [Der'ā] [ancient: Edrei] (Syria)

Old town in the S, a former fortress and market center in N MESOPOTAMIA. It was captured by PERSIA in A.D. 573 during the war of Khosrau I of the Sassanid Empire against Justin II, ruler of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. In 636 the decisive Battle of the YARMUK RIVER, in which the Byzantine forces were overwhelmed and Syria taken by the Arabs, was fought nearby. The town was also the scene of fighting in World War I.

DARAB (Iran)

Village in the SW. Here Shapur I of PERSIA had rocks sculpted in bas-relief to commemorate his victory over the Roman emperor Valerian in A.D. 260, in which the Roman army was destroyed and the emperor taken prisoner.

DARAVADA See DHARWAR

DARBY (United States)

Town in SE PENNSYLVANIA, just W of PHILADELPHIA near the DELAWARE RIVER. Settled in 1682, Darby is one of the oldest towns in the state and has many colonial buildings. Quakers founded the Darby Library Company here in 1743. The town was incorporated in 1853.

DARDANELLES [Hellespont] [ancient: Hellespontus; former: Bahr-Sefed Boghazi; Turkish: Canakkale Boğazi] (Turkey)

Strait running SW to NE, between Europe and Asia, connecting the AEGEAN SEA with the SEA OF MARMARA and the BOSPORUS. It has been of enormous strategic and commercial importance because, together with the Sea of Marmara and the Bosphorus, it links the BLACK SEA and the MEDITERRANEAN SEA and has provided access to ISTANBUL, formerly CONSTANTINOPLE, from the west. Its modern name derives from Dardanus, a city of ancient Greece located on the Asian shore of the strait.

Xerxes of PERSIA used it in 481 B.C. when he constructed a bridge of boats across the strait to invade GREECE, a feat of engineering viewed as sacrilegious by Aeschylus. Alexander the Great emulated Xerxes in 334 B.C. by building a similar bridge to invade ASIA MINOR. Part of the Eastern Roman or BYZANTINE EMPIRE until the 14th century, the strait was taken by the Turks following the capture of Gelibolu in 1356 and has generally remained under their jurisdiction to the present. Sultan Mohammed II, conqueror of Constantinople, first fortified the Dardanelles in 1462.

Its strategic importance increased with Russian expansion into the Black Sea region in the 18th century and the simultaneous weakening of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, contributing to the strait's importance to the Western powers. A treaty of July 1841, reaffirmed by the Peace of PARIS following the Crimean War in 1856, stipulated that foreign warships were prohibited from entering the strait without Turkish permission. This edict remained in effect until World War I, when in 1914 Admiral Sackville Carden commanded an Anglo-French fleet attempting to storm the Dardanelles and take Constantinople. The attempt failed, as did a second assault during the GALLIPOLI campaign of 1915. However, with the Ottoman Empire's collapse near the end of the war, the Allied fleet forced the strait and took Constantinople.

The 1920 Treaty of SÈVRES with Turkey internationalized and demilitarized the straits zone. Later the 1923 Treaty of LAUSANNE confirmed the demilitarization but returned the strait to Turkish jurisdiction. The 1936 MONTREUX Convention acknowledged the refortification of the strait, which Turkey had already carried out in secret. The Montreux arrangements prevailed until January 1945, when further modifications were introduced to permit the Allies to transport supplies to the Soviet Union during World War II. Following the war, attempts by the Soviets to gain additional modifications to their benefit were unsuccessful, and the strait remains under Turkish control.

The mythological feat of Leander, who swam the strait to be with his beloved Hero, was emulated by the poet Lord Byron in the early 19th century.

DARDANIA See SKOPJE

DARDISTAN (India, Pakistan)

Area in N Pakistan and the KASHMIR region of India, inhabited by the Dard people. Mentioned by the classical writers Herodotus, Pliny the Elder, and Ptolemy, the Dard are people of Indo-Aryan origin who ascended the INDUS VALLEY from the PUNJAB plains, reaching as far N as CHITRAL. Converted to Islam in the 14th century A.D., they speak at least three distinct dialects, subgroups of the Indo-Iranian languages.

DAR EL BEIDA See CASABLANCA

DAR-ES-SALAAM (Tanzania)

City and port of Tanzania, 45 mi S of ZANZIBAR, on the INDIAN OCEAN. Founded in 1862 by the sultan of Zanzibar, who built a palace here, it remained a fishing village until 1882, when occupied by the Germans. It became capital of German East Africa in 1891 but passed to GREAT BRITAIN in 1916. The city was made capital of TANGANYIKA when that nation received its independence in 1961, and it remained the capital after Tanganyika merged with Zanzibar in 1964 to become Tanzania. In 1996 the capital was moved to Dodoma. In 1998 one of the deadly U.S. embassy bombings occurred here.

DARFUR (Sudan)

Former sultanate in W Sudan. Founded in the 15th century, it was captured by EGYPT in 1874 and came under Anglo-Egyptian suzerainty with the fall of the Mahdists in 1898. In 1916, during their operations against the Sanusi, the British captured the sultanate and subsequently incorporated it into the Sudan. It became part of the Sudan after that country gained its independence in 1956. The area is divided into three federal states: Gharb Darfur (West Darfur), Janub Darfur (South Darfur), and Shamal Darfur (North Darfur). In 2003 the region was the scene of a bloody rebellion by non-Arab rebel groups against the Arab-dominated government. The area has prehistoric remains that may relate to predynastic Egypt. The region continues to be the site of a humanitarian crisis as the inhabitants are suffering from food shortages and attacks by government-supported militias.

DARGUN (Germany)

Town in MECKLENBURG, 9 mi W of DEMMIN. Dargun's church was built in the 13th century. A Cistercian monastery built here in 1172 was secularized in 1552. In the 17th century it became a castle.

DARIEL See DARYAL PASS

DARIÉN [former: Santa Maria Antigua del Darién] (Panama)

Region on the E Isthmus of Panama, extending into COLOMBIA. It was first reached in 1501 and seen by Columbus on his last voyage two years later. The first European settlement in South America was attempted here in 1510. From here Balboa marched to the Pacific Ocean in 1513. It was abandoned after colonists left in 1519 to found PANAMA CITY. In 1698 another attempt at colonization was made when a Scottish trading company started a settlement halfway between PORTOBELLO and CARTAGENA.

DARIEN (United States)

Town on LONG ISLAND SOUND, Fairfield county, in SW CONNECTICUT. The area was settled in 1641, established as Middlesex parish in 1773, and renamed in 1820 when it was incorporated as a town by Thaddeus Bell, who compared it to the Isthmus of DARIEN in Panama. In 1781, during the American Revolution, Darien was captured by British soldiers and local Tories. It has become an exurb of NEW YORK CITY.

DARIEN [former: New Inverness] (United States)

City in SE GEORGIA. It was founded in 1736 by a group of Scottish Highlanders recruited by James Oglethorpe to counteract Spanish influence in the area. The town was first named New Inverness after the settlers' home in Scotland, and the surrounding area was called Darien. Nearby is the site of Fort King George of 1721–27, the first English settlement in Georgia.

DARIORIGUM See VANNES

DARJEELING [Darjiling] (India)

Town and hill station in Jalpaiguri division, WEST BENGAL state, altitude 7,500 ft. Darjeeling was purchased in 1835 from the raja of SIKKIM and was developed as a sanatorium for British troops. It was constituted a municipality in 1850, and has become noted for its incomparable mountain views, including that of Mt EVEREST, and for its tea. Now many Tibetan refugees live in the surrounding area.

DARJILING See DARJEELING

DARLING RIVER (Australia)

River in the SE, flowing generally SW across NEW SOUTH WALES for approximately 1,700 mi to join the Murray River at Wentworth. From 1815 onward, the headwaters of the Darling, largely in the Great Dividing Range, were gradually discovered by pastoral herders. The river is named for Ralph Darling, governor of New South Wales from 1825 to 1831.

DARLINGTON (England)

Town in DURHAM, on the Skerne River near its junction with the Tees River. The locomotive that in 1825 drew the first passenger train on the Stockton and Darlington Railway is preserved in the Bank Top Station here.

DARLOWO [German: Rügenwalde; Polish: Darlowo] (Poland)

Town in the NW, in Koszalin province, near the BALTIC SEA. Chartered in 1312, it joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1362. Darlowo was long the residence of the dukes of POMERANIA. Its late Gothic basilica contains the grave of King Eric of Pomerania.

DARMSTADT (Germany)

City in S HESSE, 17 mi S of FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN. Chartered in 1330, it was ceded to the landgraves of Hesse in 1479. It became the capital of Hesse-

Darmstadt in 1567 and was burned by French invaders twice in the late 17th century. Darmstadt was badly damaged in World War II and taken by U.S. troops in March 1945.

DARNA See DERNA

DAROCA (Spain)

City in Saragossa province, in the NE, 20 mi SE of CALATAYUD. An old Iberian town, Daroca was known to the Romans and was prosperous under the Moors. In the 12th century it was reconquered by the Christians.

DARTFORD (England)

Town in KENT, 7 mi ESE of LONDON. Edward III founded an Augustinian convent in Dartford in 1355. In June 1381 Wat Tyler's Rebellion started here, and the earliest English paper mill was built in Dartford in 1588 during the reign of Elizabeth I.

DARTMOOR (England)

Upland region in SW DEVON. In the center of this region lies the ancient Royal Forest of Dartmoor. The area was an important tin-mining center during the Middle Ages. Since the 12th century, china clay and granite have been extracted from Dartmoor. There are many remains of Bronze Age settlers. See also DARTMOOR PRISON.

DARTMOOR PRISON (England)

Prison in Princetown, DEVONSHIRE. It was opened in 1809 to hold French soldiers taken in the Napoleonic Wars. During the War of 1812 many U.S. prisoners died here. Their mistreatment was investigated later by an Anglo-American commission. Unoccupied for more than 30 years, Dartmoor was reopened in 1850 as a civilian prison for long-term convicts.

DARTMOUTH (Canada)

Coastal city in S NOVA SCOTIA, on Halifax Harbor, across from HALIFAX. Founded by the British in 1750, it was destroyed by Indians in 1751 and soon rebuilt. Dartmouth experienced enormous industrial growth during and after World War II.

DARTMOUTH (England)

Town and port in DEVON, 27 mi E of PLYMOUTH. In 1190 King Richard I the Lionhearted of England embarked from Dartmouth on the Third Crusade. It was important in the Middle Ages in the wine trade with FRANCE and was a point of debarkation for ships going to the New World in the 16th century. In June 1944 U.S. soldiers sailed from Dartmouth to the D-day landings on the NORMANDY beaches. It is the site of the Royal Naval College.

DARTMOUTH (United States)

Town in SE MASSACHUSETTS, on Buzzard's Bay, adjacent to NEW BEDFORD. The site was part of a land purchase made by William Bradford and Myles Standish from the Indian chief Massasoit. Settled by Quakers in the 1650s it was incorporated in 1664 and named for DARTMOUTH, England. In King Philip's War of 1675–76 it was nearly destroyed. Dartmouth was rebuilt and prospered with the whaling and shipping industries of New Bedford.

DAR-UL-AMAN See DAR-UL-FANUN

DAR-UL-FANUN [former: Dar-ul-Aman] (Afghanistan)

Town, suburb of the capital, KABUL. It was laid out in the 1920s by Amanullah Khan, before his downfall in 1929, to be the modern capital of Afghanistan. Many government buildings are here, including some unfinished ones.

DARWIN [former: Palmerston] (Australia)

City, capital, and chief port of NORTHERN TERRITORY, in Arnhem Land, on Beagle Gulf, an inlet of the Timor Sea. In 1839 John Stark, a surveyor aboard HMS Beagle, discovered the harbor and named it after Charles Darwin, who was on board. The site, not settled until 1869, was called Palmerston until 1911. In World War II Darwin was the headquarters of the Allied armies in northern Australia and was severely bombed by JAPAN in 1942. After being made a city in 1959, Darwin was yet again devastated, this time by Cyclone Tracy in 1974, which killed 50 people and destroyed over 70% of the city's buildings. In 2003 the Adelaide-Darwin Railway was completed.

DARYAL PASS [Dariel] [former: Caucasian Gates, Iberian Gates] (Russia)

Gorge in the CAUCASUS Mts, E of Mt Kazbek. Possibly the only early pass across the mountains, it was fortified as early as 150 B.C. The Georgian Military Road from TBILISI to ORDZHONIKIDZE, completed in 1863, goes through it.

DASHUR See DAHSHÛR

DATIA [Duttia] (India)

Town in the GWALIOR region of MADHYA PRADESH, in the former princely state of the same name. The town takes its name from Danlavakra, a mythological demon-ruler of the area. Surrounded by a stone wall, it was the capital of the former princely state of DATIA and contains a large 17th-century palace and gardens.

DATIA [Duttia] (India)

Former princely state, now a district in N MADHYA PRADESH. Datia was settled in the 10th century by Bundela Rajputs, who controlled the country between the Jumna and Narbada rivers. In the 13th century the area passed under Muslim domination. The Rajput clans returned to power in 1804 under British protection, and in 1948 Datia was ceded to independent India by the ruling maharaja.

DATONG [Ta-T'ung, Tatung] [former: P'ing-Ch'ang] (China)

City in N SHANXI province, 180 mi W of BEIJING, NE China. An important industrial and railway center, it was the capital of the Toba (T'o-pa) Wei Kingdom from the fifth to sixth centuries A.D. Under the Ming dynasty (1368–1644) the city was an important part of the defensive line against Mongol invaders. Nearby are the Yung-Kan limestone grottoes containing fifth- and sixth-century Buddhist art.

DAUGAGRIVA [former: Ust Dvinsk; German: Dünamünde; Russian: Daugava] (Latvia)

City, harbor, and fortress in Latvia, on an island in the Gulf of Riga, at the mouth of the Western Dvina River, 8 mi N of RIGA. Daugagriva developed as a winter port for Riga. It was held by GERMANY during World War I in 1917 and 1918 and in World War II from 1941 to 1944.

DAUGAVA See DAUGAGRIVA

DAUGAVPILS [German: Dünaburg; Russian: Dvinsk] (Latvia)

City in Latvia, 136 mi SE of RIGA. In 1278 the Livonian Knights founded it as a strategic fortress, and it became part of the combined kingdom of LITHUANIA and POLAND in 1561. In the first partition of Poland in 1772 it was ceded to RUSSIA. A prosperous merchant center before World War I, the city fought off attacks by the Germans from 1915 to 1918, but it was occupied by GERMANY in World War II from 1941 to 1944.

DAULATABAD [former: Deogiri, Devagiri] (India)

City in NW central MAHARASHTRA, 10 mi NW of AURANGABAD. A major fortress crowning a rock, and administrative center in the Middle Ages, it was founded c. 1185 and captured in 1296 by Ala-ud-din of the Khilja dynasty. In 1339 it was made capital of India by Mohammed Tughlah, who changed its name from Deogiri to Daulatabad. Later held by various Muslim rulers, it declined in the 17th century and came under HYDERABAD from c. 1710.

DAUPHIN (Canada)

Town in SW MANITOBA, on the Vermilion River, just W of Dauphin Lake. Pierre de la Vérendrye, a French explorer, discovered the lake in 1739 and named it for the dauphin of FRANCE. One of the settlements that developed after 1882, the town adopted the same name.

DAUPHINÉ (France)

Region in the SE, roughly comprising the modern departments of Drôme, Isère, and Haute-Savoie. After being ruled for centuries by Burgundians, Merovingians, Carolingians, and the counts of VIENNE, Dauphiné was acquired by Philip VI of France in 1349. Later it became the traditional appanage of the French king's oldest son and heir apparent, the dauphin.

DAUPHIN ISLAND [former: Massacre Island] (United States)

Island in the Gulf of Mexico, at the entrance to Mobile Bay, off the coast of SW ALABAMA. Discovered by the Canadian explorer, Lemoyne d'Iberville in 1699 and originally called Massacre Island for the human bones found on its shore, it was renamed in 1707 for the Dauphin Louis, duke of Burgundy. In 1803 the United States claimed it as part of the LOUISIANA PURCHASE but did not gain possession of it until 1813. Fort Gaines, built on the island's E point in 1822, was captured in 1864 by Union forces during the Civil War in the Battle of MOBILE BAY.

DAURA (Nigeria)

Town in the Katsina province, North-Central State. The name comes from the Tuareg word for blacksmith.

An ancient settlement, it was founded by a queen and ruled by women in the ninth and 10th centuries. It became a caravan center in the 10th century, and was the seat of a FULANI emirate in the 19th century.

DAURA (Nigeria)

Region in Katsina province, North-Central state. Daura, spiritual home of the Hausa people, was a kingdom stretching in the 10th century across the borders of modern Nigeria and NIGER. In 1805, during the FULANI jihad, or holy war, a Fulani emirate was established here after a successful siege of the town of DAURA. Under the British the Hausa-Fulani political structure was maintained, and in independent Nigeria the Hausa are still a strong influence. See HAUSALAND.

DAVAO (Philippines)

City and port in Davao del Sur province, SE MINDANAO. Founded in 1849, in the 20th century it developed as part of a Japanese colony. Davao was seized by the Japanese navy on December 20, 1941, and was used as a naval base for operations in INDONESIA. It was bombed by U.S. forces in September 1944 and after prolonged struggle, retaken by the Allies in May 1945.

DAVAO (Philippines)

Province, SE MINDANAO, now divided into Davao del Norte, Davao del Sur, and Davao Oriental. Davao was found by the Spanish in the 16th century but remained under the jurisdiction of the sultanate of Mindanao until the mid-19th century. It became a Spanish protectorate in 1849 and a military district in 1860. Under U.S. rule it became part of Moro province in 1903 and was allowed civilian government in 1914. From 1902, the region had a large Japanese population and was taken by JAPAN in December 1941. The Allies retook it in May 1945, and it was partitioned in 1969.

DAVENPORT (United States)

City in E IOWA, on the W bank of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, largest of the Quad cities, which includes Davenport; BETTENDORF, Iowa; and MOLINE and ROCK ISLAND, Illinois, on the opposite bank. Credit Island here was a battlefield in the War of 1812. The land on which the city stands was bought for $150 after a treaty with Chief Blackhawk was signed in 1832 and sold to a group headed by Colonel George Davenport, for whom it is named. The town was founded in 1836. The first railroad bridge to cross the Mississippi was opened here in 1856.

DAVENTRY (England)

Town in NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, 12 mi W of NORTHAMPTON. Created a borough c. 1200 by King John, Daventry received its charter from Elizabeth I in 1578. In 1645 it was the headquarters of Charles I before the Battle of NASEBY. Since 1925 it has been a broadcasting center. A transmitter stands on nearby Borough Hill, once the site of a Roman camp.

DAVID (Panama)

City, capital of Chiriquí province, on the David River. The town was founded in 1738 by gold prospectors. Its San José church has a separate bell tower built for defense against Indian attacks. The town is now a commercial center for local consumer goods.

DAVIS, FORT See FORT DAVIS

DAVIS STRAIT (Greenland and Canada)

Strait leading N into Baffin Bay, with Greenland on the E and BAFFIN ISLAND on the W. It is 200 mi wide at its narrowest point. It was discovered by the English navigator John Davis in 1585 while searching for the NORTHWEST PASSAGE. He explored the eastern side two years later while sailing into Baffin Bay.

DAVOS [Romansch: Tavau] (Switzerland)

Town and winter resort, GRAUBÜNDEN canton, in the ALPS, in Davos Valley. Originally settled by a people speaking Romansch, a linguistic blend of the Roman and native Raetian tongues, since the 13th century Davos has been primarily German-speaking. It became capital of the League of Ten Jurisdictions in 1463 but belonged to AUSTRIA from 1477 to 1649. It is the home of the World Economic Forum and hosts an annual meeting on the world economy.

DAWLISH (England)

Town and holiday resort on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, in DEVON, on the Yeo River estuary, 10 mi SSE of EXETER. In the 19th century Dawlish became a fashionable resort. It is featured in the novels of the English writers Charles Dickens and Jane Austen. In the mid-19th century Isambard Kingdom Brunel, the great engineer, built a railway here that runs through tunnels along the seacoast.

DAWSON [Dawson City] (Canada)

City in W YUKON TERRITORY, at the confluence of the Klondike and Yukon rivers. Named for George N. Dawson, the geologist and explorer, it boomed after the gold strike at nearby Bonanza Creek in 1896. Its population reached approximately 20,000 in 1898, at the height of the KLONDIKE Gold Rush, and declined almost as dramatically when the most readily accessible mines were exhausted. It was the territorial capital from 1896 to 1952, when WHITEHORSE was made capital.

DAWSON CITY See DAWSON

DAWSON CREEK (Canada)

City in E BRITISH COLUMBIA, on Dawson Creek, near the Alberta border. The city, which developed after the completion of the ALASKA HIGHWAY to FAIRBANKS during World War II, was laid out in 1919 and incorporated as a village in 1936.

DAX [Ax] [ancient: Aquae Augustae, Aquae Tarbellicae] (France)

City and spa in Landes department, AQUITAINE, 88 mi SW of BORDEAUX. Since Roman times Dax has been famous for its hot saline springs and mineral baths. It became an early episcopal see. In the Middle Ages it was the capital of a viscountship in BÉARN.

DAYR AL-BAHRI See DEIR AL-BAHRI

DAYR AL-MADINAH See DEIR EL-MEDINA

DAYR AZ ZAWR See DEIR EZ ZOR

DAYTON (United States)

City in SW OHIO, 47 mi NE of CINCINNATI. Dayton was settled in 1796 and grew with the westward building of the canals in the 1830s and 1840s, the railroads in the 1850s, and the industrial needs of the Civil War and the late 19th century. In 1913 the city suffered a disastrous flood. It was the first large U.S. city to adopt the commission-manager form of government, in 1913. Dayton was the home of the pioneer aviators Orville and Wilbur Wright. It became an early and major center of aviation and aeronautical research. Wright-Patterson Air Force Base and Fairfield Air Depot are here. In 1995, negotiations took place at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton to end the wars in the Yugoslavian successor states of BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA, CROATIA, and SERBIA. The negotiations produced a peace accord known as the Dayton Agreement.

DAYTON (United States)

City in E TENNESSEE, NE of CHATTANOOGA. In June 1925 Dayton was the scene of the infamous Scopes Trial, the "monkey trial" in which John T. Scopes, a biology teacher, was convicted of breaking a state law prohibiting the teaching of the scientific theory of evolution, contrary to the fundamentalist biblical version of the creation story. The spirited defense by his attorney, Clarence S. Darrow (1857–1938), gained him national fame.

DAYTONA BEACH (United States)

City in NE FLORIDA, on the coast, 92 mi SSE of JACKSONVILLE. Now a popular resort, it was founded in 1870 but was first settled by Spanish Franciscans in the 16th and 17th centuries. Since 1902 its hard, white beach has been the site of automobile speed trials. The city is now a popular destination for college students for "Spring Break" and is home to the Daytona 500 NASCAR races.

DEAD MAN'S HILL See LE MORT HOMME

DEAD RIVER See KENNEBEC RIVER

DEAD SEA [Arabic: Al-Bahr, Bareht Lut, Al-Mayyit; biblical: East Sea, Salt Sea, Sea of the Plain; Israeli: Yam-Ha-Melah; Latin:: Lacus Asphaltites] (Israel, Palestine, Jordan)

Salt lake on the boundary between Israel, the Palestinian WEST BANK, and Jordan, 51 mi long, 11 mi wide at its greatest breadth. It is fed mainly by the JORDAN RIVER and has no outlet. The lowest point on the earth's surface, approximately 1,300 ft below the level of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, the Dead Sea has had many names and has been prominent in biblical history. Ancient SODOM and GOMORRAH were on the SW side of the lake. The Dead Sea Scrolls, illuminating Jewish Essene and early Christian history, were found in caves near the lake around the monastery of QUMRAN. The fortress of MASADA also overlooks the Dead Sea on the west. Today the sea is the site of mines for potash and other minerals.

DEADWOOD (United States)

City and tourist center, in W SOUTH DAKOTA, in the BLACK HILLS. Founded during the 1876 gold rush, when about 25,000 miners poured into the surrounding hills, the city has boomed and waned with the discovery or abandonment of nearby gold mines. In 1876 the frontier marshall Wild Bill Hickok was murdered in Deadwood, and other famous frontier characters are buried here, including Calamity Jane. It is a mining and lumbering center.

DEAL (England)

Port and town on the Strait of Dover, in KENT, 8 mi NNE of DOVER. Deal is said to be the landing place of Julius Caesar in 55 B.C. It was later one of the CINQUE PORTS, the protective group of Channel communities in the Middle Ages. Walmer Castle, approximately 1 mi S of here, built in 1539 by Henry VIII, was the seat of the lord warden of the ports.

DEAN, FOREST OF (England)

A former royal forest, in W GLOUCESTERSHIRE, covering approximately 30,000 acres between the SEVERN and WYE rivers. The forest contains Roman roads and mines. It became the first of the national forest parks in 1938.

DEARBORN (United States)

City in SE MICHIGAN, 10 mi W of DETROIT. Settled as a stagecoach stop in 1795, it was named in 1833 for the American Revolutionary hero General Henry Dearborn. Dearborn began its industrial development with the building of Henry Ford's River Rouge plant here in 1917. It was incorporated as a city in 1927. It is now the headquarters of research, engineering, and manufacturing for the Ford Motor Company and the site of the Edison Institute of Technology, which includes GREENFIELD VILLAGE, the birthplace of Henry Ford in 1863.

DEARBORN, FORT See FORT DEARBORN

DEARMAN See IRVINGTON

DEATH VALLEY (United States)

Deep and arid basin, approximately 140 mi long, in E CALIFORNIA and SW NEVADA, containing the lowest point in North America, Badwater Pool, approximately 280 ft below sea level. It was named by gold seekers in 1849, many of whom died trying to cross this desolate region on their way to the gold fields. Gold was found in the valley itself in the next decade, but borax later became its chief product. In 1933 the valley became a national monument, and, in 1984, was designated as part of the Mohave and Colorado Deserts Biosphere Reserve.

DEAUVILLE-LES-BAINS (France)

Town and seaside resort in the Calvados department, 55 mi W of ROUEN. Founded in 1866 by the duke of Mornay, it has an international reputation as a fashionable resort. In June 1944 part of the Allied invasion of NORMANDY took place along the coast E of the town.

DEBA See DEBA HABE

DEBA HABE [Deba, Debba Habe, Debe Habe]

(Nigeria)

Town in the Bauchi region of North-Eastern state. Circa 1810 the town was captured by Buba Yero, the first Fulani emir of Gombe; and it is still one of the largest towns in the region. See also FULANI EMPIRE.

DEBAR [ancient: Deborus; Turkish: Dibra] (Macedonia)

Fortified town, W Macedonia, near the Drin River and Albanian border. First mentioned in 1018 as a Slav settlement, Debar was later known as a woodcarving center. In 1913 it became part of SERBIA.

DEBBA HABE See DEBA HABE

DEBE HABE See DEBA HABE

DEBIR See KIRJATH-SEPHER

DEBLIN [Russian: Ivangorod] (Poland)

City in Lublin province, at the junction of the Wieprz and VISTULA rivers. In 1837 Czar Nicholas of RUSSIA founded it as a fortress. During World War I it was captured by the Germans in 1915 but returned to Poland after the war.

DEBORUS See DEBAR

DEBOYNE ISLANDS (Papua New Guinea)

Volcanic island group, LOUISIADE ARCHIPELAGO, SW Pacific Ocean, 110 mi SE of NEW GUINEA. A lagoon in the middle of this island group was the site of a Japanese seaplane base during World War II. It was destroyed by U.S. forces after the battle of the CORAL SEA in May 1942.

DEBRA TABOR (Ethiopia)

Town in Begendir province, E of Lake Tana, 65 mi SE of GONDER. This long established cattle-trading center became the capital of Ethiopia, replacing Gonder, after the death of the emperor Theodore in 1867. It was succeeded as capital in 1896 by ADDIS ABABA. This town has a church and a palace.

DEBRECEN [Debreczen] (Hungary)

City, 120 mi E of BUDAPEST. Debrecen grew in the Middle Ages as a cattle and trading center. Occupied by the Turks in the 16th century, it later became a center of Hungarian Protestantism. In the 19th century it was the core of Hungarian resistance against AUSTRIA. Louis Kossuth proclaimed the independence of Hungary here on April 14, 1849. During World War II it was captured by Soviet troops in September 1944, and it became the temporary seat of the interim Hungarian government.

DEBRECZEN See DEBRECEN

DEBRYANSK See BRYANSK

DECAPOLIS (Israel, Palestine, Syria, Jordan)

Ancient region, beginning W of the JORDAN RIVER at the E end of the PLAIN OF ESDRAELON and extending to the E and NE of the SEA OF GALILEE. It was settled by many Greeks following Alexander the Great's conquests, but took its Greek name, meaning "Ten Cities," from the league of Greek cities formed under Roman rule after Pompey's campaign in JUDAEA and Syria in 64–63 B.C. The most important city of the group was DAMASCUS. See also AMMAN, BETH-SHAN, GADARA, GERASA, KANATHA.

DECATERON See KOTOR

DECATUR [former: Rhodes Ferry] (United States)

City in N ALABAMA, on the TENNESSEE RIVER. In 1820 it was known as Rhodes Ferry. In 1826 it was chartered and named for Stephen Decatur, the naval hero. It grew as a cotton center and became the terminal for Alabama's first railroad. During the Civil War Decatur was occupied by both the Union and the Confederacy and was almost destroyed. It was gradually rebuilt during the Reconstruction era. Nearby is the largest nuclear power plant of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

DECATUR (United States)

City in NW central GEORGIA, 5 mi E of ATLANTA. Named for naval hero Stephen Decatur and incorporated in 1823, it was originally a trading center for small farmers. In July 1864 a Civil War battle was fought here during General William Tecumseh Sherman's Atlanta campaign.

DECATUR (United States)

City in central ILLINOIS on the Sangamon River, 35 mi E of SPRINGFIELD. Founded in 1829, it was named for the naval hero Stephen Decatur. Abraham Lincoln's family lived in Decatur in 1830 and 1831, and he practiced law here. The city was the site of the Republican state convention in 1860, when Lincoln was first endorsed for the presidency.

DECCAN [Dekkan] (India)

Region, sometimes defined as all of India S of the NARBADA RIVER. It is the plateau of the central peninsula, including almost all of the states or former states of MYSORE, S HYDERABAD, SE BOMBAY and NW MADRAS. Aurangzeb, the last of the great Mogul emperors, drained away his empire's resources in an attempt to conquer the region from 1683 to 1707. In the early 18th century the Hindus under the MARATHA CONFEDERATION began to regain political and military power in the Deccan. In the late 18th century GREAT BRITAIN decisively defeated FRANCE in a series of battles here in the struggle for India.

DEČÍN [German: Tetschen] (Czech Republic)

City on the ELBE RIVER, near GERMANY. Founded in 1128, it was strongly German until after World War II. It is dominated by its 17th-century castle.

DECORAH (United States)

City in NE IOWA, on the upper Iowa River, 60 mi NE of WATERLOO. It was settled in 1849 and formally laid out in 1853. The city is named for Chief Waukon Decorah of the Winnebago tribe, who aided settlers during the Black Hawk War. It became famous as the home of Norwegian pioneers.

DEDEAGACH See ALEXANDROÚPOLIS

DEDHAM (United States)

Town in E MASSACHUSETTS, on the Charles River, 9 mi SW of BOSTON. One of the oldest towns in the state, it was settled in 1635. The Fairbanks House, America's oldest frame house, dated 1636, is here. Dedham is said to have had the first public school in America, built in 1649. In 1921 the Dedham county courthouse was the site of the Sacco-Vanzetti trial.

DEEG [Dig] (India)

Town, NE RAJASTHAN, 20 mi NNW of BHARATPUR. Dig has the ruins of a palace and a fort built c. 1730. In 1803 the town was the site of a battle in which British general Gerard Lake defeated the MARATHA CONFEDERACY.

DEEGANIA "A" See DEGANIYA "A"

DEEP RIVER [former: Saybrook] (United States)

Town in S CONNECTICUT, on the CONNECTICUT RIVER, NW of ESSEX. It was settled as Saybrook in 1635 and united with Connecticut in 1644. The town's name was changed in 1947 to distinguish it from Old Saybrook, which lies to the south.

DEERFIELD (United States)

Town in NW MASSACHUSETTS, on the Deerfield River, S of GREENFIELD. The site was settled before 1670, but Indian raids set back the growth of the village. In 1704 a massacre took place here when 50 inhabitants were killed and nearly 100 taken to Canada by the Indians and French, many of them dying on the way. Deerfield Academy was established here in 1797.

DEE RIVER [ancient: Deoua; Welsh: Afon Dyfrdwy] (England, Wales)

River rising in GWYNEDD and flowing through Bala Labe, 70 mi NE, N, and NW to the Irish Sea. The Dee was known to the Greek geographer Ptolemy in the second century A.D. as the Deoua. An aqueduct built by the Scottish engineer Thomas Telford in 1805 for the Shropshire Canal crosses the Dee near Trevor, SW of WREXHAM.

DEER PARK (United States)

City, industrial suburb, in SE TEXAS, 18 mi SE of HOUSTON, near GALVESTON Bay. Deer Park is the location of the SAN JACINTO battleground, where on April 21, 1836, Texans under Sam Houston surprised and defeated a larger force of Mexicans in the final battle of the Texas Revolution.

DEFIANCE (United States)

City in NW OHIO, 50 mi SW of TOLEDO. First settled in 1790, it was the site of Fort Defiance, built by General Anthony Wayne in 1794 for protection against the Indians. General William Henry Harrison built Fort Winchester nearby in 1812. Defiance was incorporated in 1836. Its growth began after the Miami and Erie Canal opened in 1845.

DEGANIYA "A" [Degania "A," Deganya "A"] (Israel)

Kibbutz, in NW Israel, on the S shore of the SEA OF GALILEE, 6 mi SSE of TIBERIAS. The first Israeli kibbutz, it was founded in 1909. In 1948 it was destroyed by Arab forces and later recaptured and rebuilt by Israelis. Near here are the ruins of the Canaanite site of Beth Jerah, scene of major archaeological discoveries. During the Crusades the Bridge of Sennabra crossed the JORDAN RIVER here.

DEGANYA "A" See DEGANIYA "A"

DEGEMA (Nigeria)

City and port, on the Sambrero River, 18 mi W of PORT HARCOURT, Rivers state. Degema was a traditional market center of the Ijau people. It became a center of the palm oil trade after the decline of the slave trade in the 19th century.

DEGGENDORF (Germany)

Town on the DANUBE RIVER in Lower Bavaria. Founded c. 750, it passed to the dukes of BAVARIA in 1242 and was chartered in 1316. The Heilige Grabkirche, built here in 1337 in atonement for a violation of a consecrated host, is the site of an annual pilgrimage.

DEGO (Italy)

Town, in Savona province, W central LIGURIA region, 13 mi NW of SAVONA. On April 14, 1796, Dego was the scene of a defeat of the Austrian army by Napoleon's army during his Italian campaign, which led to the withdrawal of AUSTRIA beyond the Alps.

DE GREY RIVER (Australia)

River in NW WESTERN AUSTRALIA, flowing 190 mi N and NW to the Indian Ocean near Point Larrey. In 1861 it was visited by Francis Gregory, who named it for the third earl De Grey, then president of the Royal Geographic Society. In 1888 the finding of the Pilbara goldfield brought many settlers to its valley, which is today a lush pasturage for livestock.

DEHLI See DELHI

DEHRA See DEHRA DUN

DEHRADUN [Dehra, Dehhra Dun, Dehra Dūn] (India)

Town and district, administrative headquarters, UTTAR PRADESH state, 140 mi NE of DELHI. The town was founded in the 17th century by the heretical Sikh guru, Ram Rai, when driven out of the PUNJAB. He built a Muslim temple here in 1699. In the 18th century the area often suffered from invasions, the last of which was from the Gurkhas. In 1816, at the end of the Gurkha War, it was ceded to GREAT BRITAIN.

DEIDESHEIM (Germany)

Town in RHINELAND PALATINATE, 4 mi NNE of NEUSTADT. Chartered in the 14th century and containing a 15th-century church, the town has long produced a notable wine. The remains of a prehistoric settlement were excavated nearby in 1908.

DEIRA (England)

Old Anglo-Saxon kingdom between the Tees and Humber rivers, now in North Yorkshire and Humberside. Deira emerged in the sixth century and later joined BERNICIA to the N to form the seventh-century kingdom of NORTHUMBRIA. Partitioned in the ninth century by the Danes, it became a separate Anglo-Saxon earldom before the Norman Conquest.

DEIR AL-BAHRI [Dayr al-Bahri] (Egypt)

Temple site, on the W bank of the NILE RIVER, near THEBES, opposite KARNAK. The tombs here, opened by Gaston-Maspero in 1881, form an important archaeological site. The elegant terraced temple of Queen Hatshepsut, dated c. 1500 B.C., was uncovered here starting in 1906. Partly carved out of a towering cliff, it has been considerably restored. Its walls show pictures of an expedition to PUNT, probably SOMALIA.

DEIR EL-MEDINA [Dayr al-Madinah] (Egypt)

Ancient site on the W bank of the NILE RIVER at THEBES, in Upper Egypt. The site is known primarily as the location of a settlement for craftsmen who labored on the royal tombs, especially those in the nearby Valley of the Tombs of the Kings. Its excavation revealed the living conditions of ordinary people in ancient Egypt.

DEIR EZ ZOR [Dayr az Zawr] (Syria)

Town on the right bank of the EUPHRATES RIVER at a junction of important trading routes. The town derives its name from the ancient city of Azaura, the ruins of which lie to the southeast. The present town was built by the Ottoman Turks in 1867 to curb the nomads of the Euphrates region. In 1918 the British occupied it, and Faisal I held it for a short time before 1921, when the French garrisoned it. It was captured by British forces in 1941 and became part of the Republic of Syria in 1946.

DEJ [Hungarian: Dés] (Romania)

City, capital of Cluj province, in TRANSYLVANIA, 200 mi NW of BUCHAREST. One of the oldest Hungarian cities in Transylvania, it was part of HUNGARY from 1940 to 1945. Its people are still partly Hungarian. Two miles south are the Ocna-Dejului saltworks and salt baths, exploited since the 15th century.

DE KALB [former: Buena Vista] (United States)

City in N central ILLINOIS, 60 mi W of CHICAGO. It was founded in 1838 and called Buena Vista until 1856, when it was renamed for Baron Johann de Kalb, an American Revolutionary general. The barbed wire industry, important in fencing the cattle country of the West, was established here in 1874 by Joseph E. Glidden. It accounted for the city's early growth.

DEKKAN See DECCAN

DELAGOA BAY (Mozambique)

Inlet on the Indian Ocean, on the extreme SE coast of Mozambique. At the head of the bay is MAPUTO, formerly Lourenço Marques, the capital city. The bay was discovered by Antonio do Campo, a member of Vasco da Gama's expedition, in 1502 and was first explored by Lourenço Marques, a Portuguese trader, in 1544. The bay has been important as an outlet for ivory and slaves, as a way station for Indian Ocean trade, and as an approach to South African diamond and goldfields. It was heavily contested by the Portuguese, Dutch, English, and Boers; but in 1875 was awarded to PORTUGAL by arbitration. Foreign influence waned with Mozambique's independence in 1975.

DE LAND (United States)

City in E FLORIDA, 93 mi S of JACKSONVILLE. Henry A. De Land, a NEW YORK baking powder manufacturer, founded the city in 1876, and it was incorporated in 1882. The academy that De Land established here in 1883 was financially assisted by John B. Stetson, a Philadelphian hat maker, and was chartered in 1889 as Stetson University.

DELATYN See DELYATIN

DELAWARE (United States)

City in central OHIO, on the Olentangy River, 23 mi N of COLUMBUS. In 1804 the site was first settled by Moses Bixbe on the river's E bank, and the first house on the W bank was built by Joseph Barber in 1807. It was a popular health resort in the early 19th century. President Rutherford B. Hayes was born in Delaware on October 4, 1822.

DELAWARE (United States)

The second smallest state in area, it was one of the original 13 colonies and the first to ratify the federal Constitution, in December 1787. It is located on the East Coast, occupying part of the peninsula between NEW JERSEY and DELAWARE BAY to the E and CHESAPEAKE BAY to the W, with PENNSYLVANIA to the N and MARYLAND to the S and W. It takes its name from that of the first colonial governor of Virginia, Baron De la Warr. The state is a low-lying region with sand dunes in the S and small hills in the N. DOVER is the capital, and WILMINGTON is the largest city. The University of Delaware is at NEWARK.

Before Europeans came, the region was occupied by Indians, to whom the name Delaware was later given. Henry Hudson, on a voyage for the Dutch East India Company, reached Delaware Bay in 1609, and a year later an English sea captain also voyaged to the bay. The region was contested by the Dutch and English, and the former made the first settlement in 1631, where the town of LEWES is today. Although the Indians were for the most part friendly, they attacked and destroyed this settlement in 1632. The Dutch helped the Swedes to settle in Delaware, and an expedition in 1637 and 1638 organized NEW SWEDEN and founded Fort Christina, named for the Swedish queen, on the site of present Wilmington. Later the Dutch fought the Swedes, after establishing Fort Casimir in 1651 at the site of present NEW CASTLE, and won all of New Sweden in 1655. In 1664, however, ENGLAND seized the colony, and although the Dutch retook it in 1673, they had to return it the following year. Delaware became part of William Penn's Pennsylvania in 1682 and remained so until the American Revolution, becoming a separate state in 1776.

Delaware strongly supported the Revolution and was a leader in urging a strong federal government. During and after the Revolution wheat was exported around the world from the flour mills on BRANDYWINE CREEK. Before the Civil War Delaware was a slave state, although the number of slaves was on the decline. However, the state stayed loyal to the Union, though there was some pro-Southern sentiment.

As elsewhere there was racial tension in the 1950s and the 1960s when Delaware's schools underwent the integration process. Wilmington was the scene of rioting after the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. in 1968. Industry is now the backbone of Delaware's economy and is dominated by the E.I. du Pont de Nemours Co., which was begun in 1800 as a manufacturer of gunpowder on Brandywine Creek by the original Du Pont, a native of France. Delaware has lenient laws regarding business taxation, the environment, and other matters concerning corporations, and as a result many large companies have their official headquarters here.

DELAWARE BAY (United States)

Inlet of the Atlantic Ocean, between the SW coast of NEW JERSEY and the E coast of DELAWARE. Henry Hudson reported discovering the bay in 1609, and the following year his compatriot Sir Samuel Argall visited it and named it for Baron De la Warr, early governor of VIRGINIA.

DELAWARE RIVER (United States)

River, 315 mi long, rising in SE NEW YORK State and flowing between New York State and PENNSYLVANIA

SE to PORT JERVIS, and between NEW JERSEY and Pennsylvania generally S to DELAWARE BAY. The lower river was explored in 1616 by Dutch navigator Cornelis Hendrickson. The valley was settled in the 17th century by Dutch and Swedes and taken over in 1664 by the English. George Washington crossed the Delaware three times during the American Revolution to win the battles of TRENTON and PRINCETON.

DELÉMONT [German: Delsberg] (Switzerland)

Town in Bern canton. Delémont is a watchmaking center of the Bernese JURA MOUNTAINS and was the residence of the prince-bishops of BASEL from 1528 to 1792. The 18th-century episcopal palace still stands.

DELESI See DELIUM

DELFI See DELPHI

DELFT (Netherlands)

City in SOUTH HOLLAND province. Delft was founded in 1075 and chartered in 1246. In the 16th and 17th centuries Delft was a trading center famous for its handmade pottery, delftware, but was superseded in importance by ROTTERDAM in the 18th century. In 1584 William the Silent was assassinated here. The city was the birthplace of the painter Jan Vermeer in 1632, and of the jurist Hugo Grotius in 1583.

DELHI [Dehli, Dilli, Shahjahanabad] (India)

Northern city and union territory in the SE PUNJAB. It is now divided into New Delhi, the nation's capital, and Old Delhi. Situated on the JUMNA RIVER, it is bordered by HARYANA and UTTAR PRADESH states. Its surrounding region, replete with historic ruins, is the site of the almost legendary city of Indraprastha, vividly described in the ancient Hindu epic Mahabharata, and of the Rajput citadel with its red fort, Lal Kot of 1052, sometimes mistaken for the Red Fort later built in Old Delhi by Shah Jahan.

Muhammad of GHOR took the Rajput citadel and town in 1192 and established the DELHI SULTANATE, which was disrupted in 1398 when Tamerlane overran the region. The Battle of PANIPAT in 1526 ended the Delhi Sultanate with the Mogul Babur's conquest of the last sultans, the Lodis. Following this victory he founded the mighty MOGUL EMPIRE, making AGRA its first capital. Agra remained its center until Shah

Jahan constructed the walls of Old Delhi and made it his capital in 1638. Within those walls is the famed red sandstone Red Fort containing the Mogul palace with its audience halls, Diwan-i-Am, which housed the peacock throne, and Diwan-i-Khas. Constructed of white marble, the palace bears the inscription "If there is heaven on earth, it is this!"

Delhi is also the site of the Jama Masjid of Great Mosque, also built by Shah Jahan and one of the largest and noblest in Islam. The Rajghat is situated S of the Red Fort on the banks of the Jumna. Since the cremation of the body of Mahatma Gandhi here in 1948, the site has become one of the holiest shrines in India.

The city was ravaged in 1739 by the Persian Nadir Shah who took the famous peacock throne back to PERSIA. Under the MARATHA CONFEDERACY from 1771 to 1803, Delhi was then taken by GREAT BRITAIN under Gerard Lake, the commander-in-chief in India. During the Indian Mutiny in 1857 it was held for five months by the rebels. In 1877, 1901, and 1911 the city was the scene of lavish ceremonies and celebrations when Queen Victoria and her successors, Edward VII and George V, were crowned empress and emperors of India. Delhi replaced CALCUTTA as the capital of British India from 1912 until 1931, when the capital was moved to nearby NEW DELHI. This became the center of the British Indian government and was made capital of an independent India in 1947.

DELHI SULTANATE (India)

Former empire, the first Muslim state of India, which near the start of the 14th century A.D. controlled almost all of the Indian subcontinent. The sultanate was founded by Muhammad of GHOR who invaded India late in the 12th century. Ghor was a region of west central AFGHANISTAN. Muhammad was defeated in 1191 by Prithvi Raj, ruler of the Hindu Rajputs in NW India, but the following year he routed the Rajputs, took DELHI, and made it the capital of the new sultanate. In 1206, after Muhammad's death, one of his generals, Qutb ud-Din, proclaimed himself sultan and established the Slave dynasty, so named because he had once been a military slave. Later sultans, especially Iltutmish and Balban, consolidated the kingdom. In 1290 the Slave dynasty was succeeded by that of the Turkish Khalji, which lasted until 1320. Sultan Ala ud-Din Muhammad Khalji's conquests further expanded the sultanate. By the time of the reign of Muhammad Tughluq, who founded the Tughluq dynasty in 1325, its power reached the far S of India.

Tughluq was a brutal ruler and provoked revolts, among them that of the Hindu VIJAYANAGARA kingdom in the south. By the time he died in 1351 most of the Hindu south was again independent, and in the DECCAN there was a separate Muslim state, the Bahamani Sultanate. When the MONGOL conqueror Tamerlane invaded India in 1398 he captured Delhi, destroyed it, and ended the Delhi Sultanate. Later, some power was recovered by local rulers, but in 1526 the MOGUL leader Babur destroyed the sultanate once and for all. A notable reminder of this kingdom is the Qutb Minar, a minaret near Delhi erected c. 1230 by Sultan Iltutmish and one of the earliest Muslim monuments in India. See also RAJASTHAN.

DELIAN LEAGUE See DELOS

DELITZSCH (Germany)

Town in Saxony, 22 mi SSE of DESSAU. Delitzsch began as a Sorbian, or Wendt, settlement. A city by 1306, it later belonged to the margraves of MEISSEN and to the Saxe-Merseburg family. It was incorporated into electoral SAXONY in 1738 and passed to PRUSSIA in 1815.

DELIUM [later: Delesi] (Greece)

Ancient town and port in E BOEOTIA, named for its temple of Apollo, similar to that at DELOS. In 424 B.C., during the Peloponnesian Wars, Delium was the scene of the defeat of the Athenians by the Boeotians. Socrates fought in the battle.

DELMENHORST (Germany)

City in Lower Saxony, just W of BREMEN. First mentioned in 1254, it developed around a castle of the dukes of OLDENBURG and was chartered in 1371. The city experienced industrial growth in the 19th century. In World War II it was captured by the Allies in April 1945.

DELOS [Greek: Dhílos] (Greece)

Smallest island of the CYCLADES, in the S AEGEAN SEA. The legendary birthplace of Apollo and Artemis, Delos was an ancient center of religious, commercial, and political life. From 478 to 454 B.C. its temple of Apollo held the treasury of the Delian League, which was then removed to ATHENS. The island had a flourishing slave market in the second century B.C., and became a large commercial town. It was sacked by Mithridates VI of PONTUS in 88 B.C. and never recovered. Delos was abandoned toward the end of the first century B.C. Since the late 19th century, excavations by the French have revealed much of its former glory.

DELPHI [Delfi] [Greek: Delphoi; Homeric: Pytho] (Greece)

Sacred site, Greek city-state in PHOCIS, on the lower slopes of Mount Parnassus, above the Gulf of CORINTH. The site, considered the omphalos (navel) or center of the world by the Greeks, was early settled by natives of Lykorea. Traditionally, it was here that Apollo killed the python associated with the earth goddess Gaea, the original deity of the site; and Python was still the name by which Homer referred to the shrine. In the late second millennium B.C. it imported the cult of Apollo Delphinios from CRETE. The association with the dolphin god soon brought about a change in name to Delphi. The Dorians invaded the area c. 1100 B.C., and the city became the center of the Amphietyonic League, an association of many of the cities around it, including ATHENS and SPARTA.

From at least the seventh century B.C. Greeks and other peoples of the Mediterranean, including Lydians, Persians, and Romans, visited here to consult the Delphic oracle. The oracle, a woman thrown into a trance by sulphurous fumes rising from the cave of Pytho, would mutter incoherent phrases. Her priests would then interpret her words into promising, though ambiguous, prophesies. The sanctuary was also the site of the worship of Apollo in the temple first built here over the omphalos in the seventh century B.C. and rebuilt in the Doric style in 505 B.C. The site's many devotees enriched it with offerings; and most of the major city-states maintained rich treasuries within the sanctuary. Delphi had become the religious center of the Greek World.

Circa 585 B.C., after the First Sacred War, the city was made autonomous. From 582 B.C. the Pythian Games, with the Greek city-states as participants, were held here every four years. In 480 B.C., in the Persian Wars, the sanctuary was saved from desecration by King Xerxes of PERSIA by an avalanche that destroyed his army. In 448 B.C., however, it was taken by the Spartans in the Second Sacred War, but was then recaptured by Athens and handed back to Phocis. In 421 B.C. the Peace of Nicias restored it to the Delphians.

From 356 to 346 B.C. the Phocians again occupied the city, but they were driven out by Philip II of MACEDON. The Aetolians succeeded the Macedonians, and in 279 B.C. Brennus and his Gauls were prevented from sacking the sanctuary by another landslide. In 189 B.C. the Aetolians were defeated by the Romans; in 88 B.C. Thracians sacked the site; and in 86 B.C. Sulla also plundered it. Emperor Nero, while a participant in the chariot race, later seized many of the sanctuary's beautiful bronzes and brought them back to Rome. Emperor Constantine also removed many famous works, possibly including the bronze horses of the Chariot of Helios outside the Temple of Apollo. These are believed by some to be the horses seized by the Venetians in the sack of CONSTANTINOPLE in 1204 and placed atop St. Mark's Basilica in Venice. The sanctuary gradually fell into decay under the ROMAN EMPIRE and was several times damaged by earthquakes. The oracle was finally abolished by the Emperor Theodosius in A.D. 385, and the site was abandoned some time after 390.

The present site has been largely excavated and restored in part. It includes the sacred precinct of Apollo with its temple, the cave of the oracle, the treasury houses, especially that of the Athenians, the stadium farther up the mountain slope; the Castalian Fountain below; and still farther down, the Marmaria, or sanctuary of Athena, with its temple to Athena and round Tholos of the fourth century B.C. Delphi is one of the most beautiful sites in the classical world.

DELPHOI See DELPHI

DELRAY BEACH [former: Linton] (United States)

City in SE FLORIDA, on the Atlantic Ocean, 18 mi S of PALM BEACH. In 1895 settlers from MICHIGAN came to this site. In 1896 it was laid out and called Linton for Congressman William S. Linton, who had purchased the land for development. In 1901 the community was renamed Delray for a district of DETROIT and in 1927 became Delray Beach.

DEL RIO [former: San Felipe Del Rio] (United States)

City and port in SW TEXAS, on the RIO GRANDE RIVER, across from Ciudad Acuña, Mexico. The original Spanish mission of San Felipe del Río was destroyed c. 1675 by Indians. The name remained until 1833 when it was shortened to avoid confusion with San Felipe de Austin, and the present community was founded in 1872. In 1969 a large dam for flood control was dedicated here.

DELSBERG See DELÉMONT

DELYATIN [Delatyn] (Ukraine)

Town in SW Ukraine, 19 mi W of KOLOMYYA. Famous for its mineral springs, Delyatin was once part of POLAND. Occupied by RUSSIA in 1916, during World War I it was taken by German forces in 1917. It was returned to the USSR after the war.

DEMAK (Indonesia)

Sultanate in E JAVA and the first Islamic state here. Emerging c. A.D. 1500, it grew with the decline of the Majapahit state. From Demak, Muslim sultans launched efforts in the early 16th century to conquer N and W Java as well as MALACCA. In 1550 the capital was moved from the town of Demak to Pajang. Demak's famous 15th-century mosque still draws pilgrims.

DEMAR See DHAMAR

DEMERARA See GUYANA

DEMETRIAS (Greece)

Ruined ancient city in SE THESSALY, near modern VOLOS. This city, a favorite residence of Macedonian kings, was founded c. 290 B.C. by Demetrius Poliorcetes, one of the successors of Alexander the Great, but declined after 168 B.C.

DEMMIN (Germany)

City in Neubrandenburg district, POMERANIA. Originally an old Slavic settlement, in 1148 it fought off a siege by the Germans. The city was conquered by Henry the Lion in 1164. By 1283 it was a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. It was conquered by SWEDEN in 1648 during the Thirty Years' War. Demmin became part of PRUSSIA in 1720.

DEMONESI INSULAE See KIZIL ISLANDS

DEMOPOLIS (United States)

City in Marengo county, W ALABAMA, 48 mi W of SELMA. In 1818 Bonapartist exiles from FRANCE founded the settlement and unsuccessfully tried to raise olives and grapes. Chartered in 1819, it was given a Greek name meaning "City of the People." From 1830 to 1860 a cotton plantation society flourished here. A large dam and lock complex was started nearby in 1950 on the Tombigbee River.

DEMOTIKA See DIDYMOTTEIKHONDENAIN (France)

Town in the Nord department, 26 mi SE of LILLE. In 1712, during the War of the Spanish Succession, the French here under Marshal Villars defeated Austrian forces under Prince Eugene of SAVOY, forcing him to retreat to the SPANISH NETHERLANDS.

DENBIGH (Wales)

Town in Denbighshire, 10 mi S of Rhyl. On a hill above the town are the remains of the walls of the 13th-century castle built by Henry de Lacy, earl of Lincoln. In 1645 Charles I stayed here after the Battle of Rowton Heath. Sir Henry Stanley, noted explorer of Africa, was born in Denbigh in 1841.

DENDERA [Dandarah] [Greek: Tentyra] (Egypt)

Town in N Egypt on the NILE RIVER. The site of the ancient city of Tentyra is nearby. It was sacred to the goddess Hathor, whose temple of the first century B.C. here contained a zodiacal table now in the Louvre.

DENDERMONDE [French: Termonde] (Belgium)

Town in East FLANDERS province, at the confluence of the Dender and Schelde Rivers. The town repulsed a siege by Louis XIV in 1667 by opening its dikes. It was taken by the duke of Marlborough in 1706. In the German invasion of September 1914 Dendermonde suffered looting and considerable destruction.

DEN HAAG See HAGUE, THEDEN HELDER [Helder] (Netherlands)

Town and port in NORTH HOLLAND province, on the NORTH SEA. It is the main naval base of the country. The Dutch under Admiral Michiel De Ruyter and Cornelis Tromp defeated the English and French fleets in a naval battle here in 1673. Den Helder was also the site of a British and Russian troop landing in 1799. Napoleon fortified the port in 1811.

DENIA [ancient: Dianium] (Spain)

Port town in Alicante province, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 45 mi NE of ALICANTE. The town, probably of Iberian origin, became a flourishing Greek colony in the sixth century B.C. Its name comes from the temple to Diana erected here by the Romans. The town prospered under the Moors from the eighth to 13th centuries. It declined in the 18th century but in recent times has become an important agricultural center. It has Roman and medieval ruins.

DENILQUIN [former: Sandhills] (Australia)

Town in the S Riverina, S central NEW SOUTH WALES, 160 mi N of MELBOURNE. Benjamin Boyd established it in 1845 as a personal holding, and it became a town in 1848 under the name of Sandhills. In 1850 it was named Denilquin, a corruption of the aboriginal term denilocoon, meaning "Wrestler's ground." The town became a busy crossing point for livestock.

DENISON (United States)

City in N TEXAS, near the RED RIVER, NNE of DALLAS. Before the Civil War Denison was a stagecoach station, and it grew to importance with the coming of the railroad. President Dwight D. Eisenhower was born in Denison in 1890, and his early home is preserved here.

DENIZLI [ancient: Laodicea ad Lycum] (Turkey)

City and capital of Denizli province, approximately 112 mi SE of IZMIR. An important center in the Middle Ages, in the 12th century A.D. it replaced ancient Laodicea ad Lycum, whose ruins are nearby. It was founded by Antiochus II (261–246 B.C.) of the SELEUCID EMPIRE, and was the seat of one of the Seven Churches of Asia Minor of the New Testament. HIEROPOLIS, just N of Laodicea, was also a center of early Christianity. Denizli was captured by the Turks of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1389. The city has been ravaged by earthquakes, notably in 1710 and 1899, as was the ancient city of Laodicea.

DENMARK [Danish: Danmark]

A small country of S SCANDINAVIA, it lies on the N border of GERMANY and is surrounded by sea on three sides. Generally low-lying, Denmark comprises the peninsula of JUTLAND, nine large islands, and 450 lesser islands. It is strategically located between the NORTH SEA and the BALTIC SEA, with NORWAY and SWEDEN to the N. It was at one time a major power in the Baltic region. The capital, COPENHAGEN, is also the nation's industrial and trading center, although the country's economy is still heavily reliant on agriculture. GREENLAND and the FAEROE ISLANDS, both semi-autonomous, lie to the NW across the Atlantic Ocean.

The early history of Denmark is obscure, although it is probable that the Danes were settled in Jutland c. A.D. 600, and there is earlier evidence of a Bronze Age culture that flourished here in the second millennium B.C. Between the ninth and 11th centuries A.D., the Danes took part in the Viking raids and settlements of Europe. The country was converted to Christianity in the 10th century. Under Sweyn (986–1014) it briefly conquered ENGLAND. In the 11th century Denmark, England, and NORWAY were united under King Canute, but on his death in 1035 civil war broke out, and the Danish line died out in England in 1042.

Denmark gained control of much of the Baltic area in the 12th and 13th centuries, but at home the rising strength of the nobles weakened the position of the king, who by the Great Charter of 1282 was forced to share his power with a council of nobles. After the Peace of STRALSUND in 1370, the country dominated the N except for the areas of the HANSE-ATIC LEAGUE. In the Union of KALMAR in 1397 Queen Margaret of Denmark united the country to Sweden, Norway, and ICELAND. Denmark gained SCHLESWIG and HOLSTEIN in 1460. Sweden became independent in 1523.

In the 16th century the Reformation spread through the country, and Lutheranism became the established religion. The Thirty Years' War of 1618 to 1648 strengthened Sweden's position in the Baltic region at the expense of Denmark. However, toward the end of the 17th century Denmark gained territories in the WEST INDIES, and shared in Sweden's defeat in the Great Northern War of 1700 to 1721.

During the Napoleonic Wars the Danes sided with the French against the Allies and consequently lost Norway to Sweden by the Treaty of KIEL in 1814. In the early 19th century the foundations of a modern public education system were laid. Danish letters have flourished with the writer Hans Christian Andersen and the philosopher Søren Kierkegaard, physicist Niels Bohr, and composer Carl Nielsen. The absolute monarchy was abolished by the new constitution of 1849. In 1864 war broke out with PRUSSIA and AUSTRIA, as a result of which Denmark was forced to cede SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN to Prussia. This major territorial loss was in part compensated by a dramatic improvement in farming techniques, which bolstered the country's agriculture-based economy.

Denmark remained neutral during World War I and recovered northern Schleswig in 1920. Between 1918 and 1944 it controlled Iceland only nominally under the Danish Crown. In World War II it was occupied by GERMANY from 1940 to 1945, though the national government was permitted to remain in power from 1940 to 1943. It was liberated by the British in 1945. Since 1945 industrial expansion has broadened the base of the economy. In 1945 it joined the United Nations, in 1949 NATO, and in 1972 Denmark became a member of the European Economic Community, or Common Market. Denmark granted autonomy to the Faeroe Islands in 1948 and to Greenland in 1979. In 1982, Denmark elected a Conservative coalition government under Poul Schlüter, after more than 80 years of Social Democratic rule. Denmark has been somewhat unsupportive of European unity measures within the European Union, initially rejecting the Maastricht Treaty in 1992, but approving it the following year with some exemptions. The Social Democrats returned to power in 1993 under Poul Nyrup Rasmussen. In 2000, the Danes rejected membership in the European Monetary Union, and in 2001, the government was replaced by a center-right coalition led by Prime Minister Anders Fogh Rasmussen.

DENMARK STRAIT (Greenland, Iceland)

Channel between SE GREENLAND and ICELAND, 180 mi wide and 300 mi long, connecting the Arctic Ocean with the North Atlantic Ocean. During World War II the British battleship Hood was sunk by the German battleship Bismarck in this strait on May 24, 1941.

DENNEWITZ (Germany)

Village, in BRANDENBURG, 42 mi SSW of BERLIN. On September 6, 1813, Dennewitz was the site of the victory of the Prussians under General von Bülow over the French forces under Marshal Ney during the Napoleonic Wars. See also PRUSSIA.

DENTON (United States)

City in N central TEXAS, 35 mi NNW of DALLAS. By 1857 it was permanently settled and named for John

B. Denton, an early Texas frontiersman and Indian fighter. Denton is now the site of the nation's first federal regional underground control center, headquarters for civil defense operations in a five-state area.

D'ENTRECASTEAUX ISLANDS (Papua New Guinea)

Islands, lying across Ward Hunt Strait from the E tip of NEW GUINEA, in the Solomon Sea, SW Pacific Ocean. The islands were visited and named by the French navigator Bruni d'Entrecasteaux in 1793. The group was more accurately charted in 1873 by English captain John Moresby of HMS Basilisk.

DENVER [former: Auraria] (United States)

City in N central COLORADO, the state capital and its largest city. Denver began as Auraria, founded in 1858 when prospectors sought gold here. It was the first settlement of any importance in the state. In 1860 Auraria united with two other small villages to form Denver, incorporated in 1861. Great prosperity came in the 1870s and 1880s when rich lodes of gold and silver were discovered in the area. The city became the mining center and the home of men whom precious metals had suddenly made millionaires.

Near the end of the 19th century Denver began to develop into the financial, administrative, and business center of the large region it dominates today. Its diverse transportation facilities, its location in the foothills of the ROCKY MOUNTAINS, and its climate also make it a tourist attraction. More recently, the energy situation has turned it into the western headquarters for industries concerned with oil, gas, and coal. The Denver International Airport is one of the world's largest and makes Denver a major hub in the U.S. air network.

DEOBAND (India)

Town in NE UTTAR PRADESH, 75 mi NNE of DELHI. An ancient town with numerous temples, Deoband is the site of an important Muslim college founded in 1867, and second in prestige in the Muslim world only to Al Azhar University of CAIRO.

DEOGARH (India)

Village in Jhansi district, S UTTAR PRADESH. Here are the ruins of a Rajput fort held by the Bundela Rajputs until captured in 1811 by the MARATHAS. There are extensive Jain temple ruins, rock carvings, and inscriptions dating from A.D. 1097.

DEOGHAR See BAIDYANATH DHAM

DEOGIRI See DAULATABAD

DÉOLS (France)

Town, suburb N of Châteauroux, in Indre department. Déols has a famous Romanesque tower with a conical spire and 12th-century arches and columns. It was part of a Cluniac abbey founded here in 917 and destroyed by the Huguenots in 1569. See also CLUNY.

DEORAI (India)

Town and battle site in NE India. Scene of the victory in March 1659 of the Mogul emperor Aurangzeb over his brother and rival, Dara Shikah. The battle confirmed Aurangzeb's possession of the throne.

DEORIA (India)

District in UTTAR PRADESH. It is the reputed place of Buddha's death and cremation and is a noted pilgrimage center in this region.

DEOUA See DEE RIVER

DE PERE (United States)

City in E central WISCONSIN, on the FOX RIVER, SSW of GREEN BAY. In 1671 Father Allouez founded a Jesuit mission on this site. It was burned, rebuilt in 1685, and used until 1717. In the 19th century De Pere grew as a lumber town, port, and commercial center.

DEPEW (United States)

Village in W NEW YORK State, 9 mi E of BUFFALO. It was incorporated in 1894, following the establishment of railroad shops here in 1893. It was named for Chauncey M. Depew, then president of the New York Central Railroad, and U.S. senator from 1899 to 1911.

DEPTFORD (England)

Former borough of SE LONDON, on the S bank of the THAMES RIVER, now an industrial and residential section in the Inner London borough of Lewisham. In Elizabethan times it held a cattle market. A royal dockyard was built here in 1513, which closed in 1869. Here Peter the Great of RUSSIA worked as a shipwright in 1671. The dramatist Christopher Marlowe, who was killed in a barroom brawl in 1593, is buried here.

DER'Ā See DAR'Ā

DERA BABA NANAK See DERA NANAK

DERA GHAZI KHAN (Pakistan)

Town in SW PUNJAB, on the INDUS RIVER. It was founded by Ghazi Khan, son of a Baluch chieftain and vassal of the Langah sultans of MULTAN, who declared independence c. 1480. The town was moved seven miles E after it was damaged by a flood in 1909.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN (Pakistan)

Town in North-West Frontier province, just W of the INDUS RIVER. It was founded in the late 15th century by Ismail Khan, a Baluch chieftain and vassal of the Langah sultans of MULTAN. The old town, four miles E of the present site, was washed away by the river in 1823. The new town was laid out by Durrani chiefs and made a municipality in 1867. In the early 19th century the town was held by the Sikhs under Ranjit Singh.

DERAIYEH [Ad Dir's iyah, Derayah] (Saudi Arabia)

Town in central Saudi Arabia, just W of RIYADH. Former capital of the Wahabi kingdom, in 1818 it was destroyed by an Egyptian punitive expedition led by Ibrahim Pasha. It has been succeeded by Riyadh.

DERA NANAK [Dera Baba Nanak] (India)

Town in the Gurdaspur district, NW PUNJAB, 22 mi W of Gurdaspur. Dera Nanak was built in memory of the guru Nanak (1469–1539), the founder of the Sikh religion. The town is near his home.

DERAYAH See DERA IYEH

DERBENT (Russia)

City in SE Dagestan, in the narrow gap between the CASPIAN SEA and the CAUCASUS MTS. The city was founded by the Persians in the fifth or sixth century A.D. at the Caspian Gates, on a major commercial route. In 728 it passed to the Arabs, who, under Harun al-Rashid, made it a center for arts and commerce. In 1220 it was taken by the Mongols. It was held briefly by Peter the Great in 1722, taken from PERSIA in 1796, and annexed to Russia in 1813. It was severely damaged in the Russian civil war following the Revolution.

DERBY (Australia)

Port on the W arm of King Sound. Declared a town and made a shire in 1883, it was named for Lord Derby, then secretary of state for the colonies. Derby, founded to serve a pastoral district, boomed c. 1885 during the KIMBERLEY Gold Rush.

DERBY (England)

Town in DERBYSHIRE, 14 mi W of NOTTINGHAM, on the Derwent River. Once a Roman settlement, and later in MERCA, in the ninth century it became one of the Five Boroughs of the Danes. In 1718 England's first silk mill was built in Derby, then largely agricultural. Derby is the birthplace of the philosopher Herbert Spencer (1820–1903), and was the home of George Eliot, the 19th-century novelist.

DERBY [former: Paugusset] (United States)

River town in S CONNECTICUT, 8 mi W of NEW HAVEN, on the HOUSATONIC and NAUGATUCK Rivers. In 1642 a trading post named Paugusset was established here. It was made a town in 1675 and renamed for Derby, England. For 200 years the town, incorporated in 1893, was a shipbuilding and fishing center, and its vessels traded with overseas ports.

DERBYSHIRE (England)

County in the English midlands, lying to the S of YORKSHIRE. The NW includes the southern end of the Pennines, with the Peak district. MATLOCK is the administrative headquarters.

DERDEPOORT (South Africa)

Village in North West province, on the BOTSWANA border, 65 mi NNE of ZEERUST. In 1849 Derdepoort was the site of the founding of the Vereenigde Bond, which in 1856 became the SOUTH AFRICAN REPUBLIC.

DEREHAM See EAST DEREHAM

DERG, LOUGH (Ireland)

Lake in SE County DONEGAL. According to tradition, St. Patrick's Purgatory was on Station Island in the lake. It was renowned as a center for an annual Roman Catholic pilgrimage. William Makepeace Thackeray wrote of it in his Irish Sketch Book of 1843.

DERNA [Darna] (Libya)

Fort and caravan center in the CYRENAICA region, on the Mediterranean Sea. In April 1805 William Eaton and his force of U.S. Marines and Arab mercenaries captured Derna, then a stronghold of the Barbary pirates. See also BARBARY STATES.

DERRY See LONDONDERRY

DERRYFIELD See MANCHESTER (United States)

DERTONA See TORTONA

DERTOSA See TORTOSA

DERWENT WATER [Derwentwater] (England)

A lake in the LAKE DISTRICT, CUMBERLAND, on the Derwent River, just S of KESWICK. The falls of Lodore, celebrated in verse by Robert Southey, are at the northern end of the lake. Lords Island, one of several in the lake, was a residence of the earls of Derwent Water.

DÉS See DEJ

DESERET See UTAH

DESFUL See DIZFUL

DESHIMA [Dejima] (Japan)

Former island in NAGASAKI harbor, W KYŪSHŪ. From 1641 to 1858 Dutch traders were restricted to this island after the Japanese closed the nation's borders to foreign merchants. During these years it was the only communication point between Japan and the Western world.

DESIDERII FANUM See SAINT-DIZIER

DESIERTO DE ATAMECA See ATACAMA DESERT

DESIO (Italy)

Town in Milan province, LOMBARDY region, 11 mi NNW of MILAN. Desio's name derives from the Latin ad decimum, the town being 10 Roman miles from Milan on the road to COMO. In 1227 a battle took place here in which the Ghibelline or imperial political faction in Lombardy defeated the Guelph or papal faction. The struggle lasted through the 14th century. In 1857 Achille Ratti, later Pope Pius XI, was born here.

DES MOINES (United States)

City, capital of IOWA, at the junction of the Des Moines and Raccoon rivers. Established as a military post in 1843, it was settled by homesteaders in 1845 and incorporated as Fort Des Moines in 1851. Chartered as Des Moines in 1857, it became the capital of Iowa that same year. The city suffered a severe flood in 1954. It is in the center of the Corn Belt.

DES MOINES RIVER (United States)

River, formed by the junction of the E and W forks in NW central IOWA, rising in SW MINNESOTA. It flows 327 mi SE to the MISSISSIPPI RIVER at KEOKUK, Iowa. It was first navigated in 1837 and served as the major commercial artery for central Iowa until after the Civil War. River traffic declined with the development of the railroads. There is now no commercial navigation here.

DESMOND (Ireland)

Ancient division of MUNSTER province, including the present counties of CORK and KERRY. In the 12th century the king of ENGLAND gave Desmond to the Fitzgeralds. A branch of that family were earls of Desmond from 1329 until 1632. The rebellious Gerald Fitzgerald, the 15th earl, was captured and killed by the English in 1583.

DESNA RIVER (Ukraine, Russia)

River in Russia and the Ukraine, rising E of SMOLENSK and flowing approximately 730 mi S to join the DNIEPER RIVER near KIEV. The river has long been an important center of the lumber trade. In 1943, during World War II, the river saw much fighting on its banks between Soviet and German troops.

DESOLATION ISLANDS See KERGUELEN ISLANDS

DE SOTO (United States)

City in Jefferson county, MISSOURI, 38 mi SW of ST. LOUIS. In 1857 De Soto was founded when the St. Louis, Iron Mountain, and Southern railroads arrived. It was advertised as the Fountain City because of the many artesian wells in the area. The water here was considered so pure that it was selected for use at the LOUISIANA PURCHASE Exposition in St. Louis in 1904.

DESPEÑAPERROS (Spain)

Mountain pass in CIUDAD REAL, in the Sierra Morena, 22 mi NE of LINARES, linking CASTILE on the N with ANDALUSIA on the S. Of strategic importance during the Moorish wars and the Peninsular War, its gorge is now the location of a highway and a railroad between MADRID and SEVILLE.

DES PLAINES RIVER (United States)

River in NE ILLINOIS, 150 mi long, rising in SE WISCONSIN, flowing S to unite with the Kankakee River, to form the Illinois River. In fur-trading days the Chicago River was linked by a short portage to the Des Plaines and Mississippi rivers. Below Lockport the Des Plaines is part of the Illinois Waterway, a GREAT LAKES-TO-MISSISSIPPI RIVER system opened in 1933.

DESSAU (Germany)

City in SAXONY-ANHALT, 71 mi SW of BERLIN. Originally a Wendt or Sorb settlement, it was first mentioned as a German town in 1213. The city was the capital of Anhalt-Dessau by 1603. In 1626 it was the site of the victory of Wallenstein over Count Mansfield during the Thirty Years' War. In 1863 it became capital of ANHALT and was the home of the Bauhaus architectural school from 1925 to 1932. Dessau was bombed heavily in World War II, and many historic buildings here were destroyed.

DESSIE See DESSYEDESSYE [Dessie] (Ethiopia)

Town and capital of Wallo province, on the W escarpment of the Great Rift Valley. During the war between ITALY and Ethiopia in the 1930s, Dessye was captured by the Italians in 1936, but it was restored to Ethiopia in 1941. In the 1950s the town prospered as a market center on the road to ASSAB. It declined after 1958 with the growth of trade through DJIBOUTI.

DESTÊRRO See FLORIANÓPOLISDETMOLD [medieval: Theotmalli] (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE-WESTPHALIA, 54 mi E of MÜNSTER. Capital from the 12th century of the former principality and state of LIPPE, it was chartered c. 1350. Nearby on the Grotenburg is Ernst von Bandel's colossal statue of Arminius, conqueror of the Roman general Varus in the Battle of TEUTOBURG FOREST of A.D. 9. In A.D. 783 Charlemagne defeated the Saxons here.

DÉTOUR DES ANGLAIS See ENGLISH TURNDETROIT (United States)

City in SE MICHIGAN, on the Detroit River. Although acclaimed in the 20th century as synonymous with the industrial assembly line and the mass production of motor vehicles, Detroit has a long history involving struggles among the French, the British, the Indians, and the Americans for control of North America. Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac erected a French fort and trading post here in 1701, calling it Ville d'Étroit (City of the Strait), or Fort Pontchartrain Détroit. The British captured the fort in 1760 during the French and Indian War. In 1763, when the Indians rose against the British in Pontiac's Rebellion, they unsuccessfully besieged the fort. Although Detroit lay in the region ceded to the United States in 1783 at the end of the American Revolution, the British did not actually turn it over until 1796, under the terms of John Jay's Treaty.

From 1805 to 1847 Detroit was successively the territorial and the state capital. The town was nearly destroyed by fire in 1805 and rebuilt to a new design. The American commander William Hull surrendered Detroit to the British in 1812 during the War of 1812, but the next year General William Henry Harrison retook it. In the course of the 19th century, as both land and water transportation systems improved, Detroit grew to be a major shipping and industrial city. In the early 20th century it became the center of motor vehicle manufacturing, led by Henry Ford. The city was torn by race riots in 1943 and 1967, the latter causing some deaths, millions of dollars of property damage, and major tension among the city's groups. Detroit's economy has suffered severely in recent years as the automobile industry has been hard hit by the energy crisis and foreign competition. The late 1970s saw an attempt at economic revival symbolized by the modern Renaissance Center.

DETSKOYE SELO See PUSHKIN

DETTINGEN [Dettingen am Main] (Germany)

Village in lower FRANCONIA region, NW BAVARIA, on the MAIN RIVER. British, Austrian, and Hanoverian troops commanded by George II of ENGLAND defeated the French under Marshall Noailles here in June 1743 in the War of the Austrian Succession.

DETTINGEN AM MAIN See DETTINGEN

DEURNE (Belgium)

Town, suburb E of ANTWERP. Deurne was burned by the Normans in 836, and later came under the bishops of LIÈGE and the dukes of BRABANT. Merchants from Antwerp made the town prosperous, but in 1586 Spanish troops sacked it during the Revolt of the Netherlands. Prosperity returned in the 18th century as commerce and banking grew.

DEUTSCHES REICH See GERMANY

DEUTSCHLAND See GERMANY

DEUTZ (Germany)

City area, now part of COLOGNE, on the right bank of the RHINE RIVER. It has been a bridgehead of Cologne since Roman times. Its riverside castle became a Benedictine monastery in 1002. Until 1888 Deutz was independent.

DEUXPONTS See ZWEIBRÜCKEN

DEVA See CHESTER (England)

DEVA [German: Diemrich; Hungarian: Déva] (Romania)

City, administrative center of the Hunedoara region, 78 mi ESE of ARAD. Formerly a Roman settlement, it grew in the 13th and 14th centuries around a citadel built for defense against Turkish Muslim invaders. In the 15th century it belonged to the Hunyadi family, heroic leaders of HUNGARY against the Turks. In the early 19th century an explosion destroyed the citadel. See OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

DEVAGIRI See DAULATABAD

DEVANA See ABERDEEN

DEVENISH (Northern Ireland)

Island, 1 mi long, in lower Lough Erne, County FERMANAGH, 2 mi NW of ENNISKILLEN. The island is the site of the ruins of the sixth-century abbey of St. Molaise of Devenish, which include the 12th-century Round Tower, 85 ft high, and the foundations of the church.

DEVENTER (Netherlands)

City in Overijssel province, on the Ijssel River. An early member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE, it became a prosperous commercial city and a center of commerce and learning. The city was a center of the important late medieval reform group known as the Brethren of the Common Life. With the approval of the hierarchy they simplified their religious and material life based on the Gospels and devoted themselves to a life of scholarship, book production, and teaching. Thomas à Kempis (c. 1380–1471), the religious writer and author of the Imitation of Christ, and the great scholar, reformer, and humanist, Desiderius Erasmus of Rotterdam (c. 1465–1536) both studied here.

DÉVÉNY See DEVIN

DEVIL'S ISLAND [French: Île du Diable] (French Guiana)

Tiny island, one of the SAFETY ISLANDS off French Guiana. Founded in 1852, this penal colony was used mainly for French political prisoners, of whom the most notable was Alfred Dreyfus, victim of a famous anti-Semitic scandal. The French began to close the prison in 1938, but this was delayed until after World War II. By 1948 all prisoners here had been repatriated.

DEVIL'S LAKE (United States)

City in NE central NORTH DAKOTA, near the lake of the same name. This community, established in 1833 on the shores of the lake, was an early center of steamboat navigation. In 1883 the city's growth was spurred by the opening of a federal land office. It was incorporated in 1887. The shores of the lake have receded from the town.

DEVIN [Czech: Devín; German: Theben; Hungarian: Dévény; Slovak: Devin] (Slovakia)

Village in the SW, on the DANUBE RIVER, 6 mi WNW of BRATISLAVA. The ninth-century castle, destroyed by the French in 1809, is held to be the seat of the short-lived kingdom of Great Moravia. In 1945, after MORAVIA was restored to Czechoslovakia, the village was the site of the first All-Slav rally.

DEVIZES (England)

Town in WILTSHIRE, 15 mi ESE of BATH, on the Kennet and Avon Canal. The site of a Roman fortification, in Henry I's reign it became a political center when Roger, bishop of SALISBURY, built a castle here in 1132. The town was chartered in 1141 and had an important medieval market. The name Devizes probably came from a medieval Latin reference to the castle ad divisus or "at the boundaries." The army of Oliver Cromwell razed the castle in 1645.

DEVON [Devonshire] (England)

County, extending N from the ENGLISH CHANNEL to the BRISTOL CHANNEL, and E from CORNWALL to SOMERSET and DORSET. There are Paleolithic remains here. EXETER, its administrative headquarters, was the western outpost of Roman occupation. Devon was recognized as a shire in the eighth century and suffered from Danish raids between 851 and 1003. Exeter was taken by William the Conqueror in 1068. In Elizabethan times the county achieved its greatest maritime importance. Seadogs Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Francis Drake and many colonists sailed from PLYMOUTH to the Americas. Plymouth and Exeter were damaged heavily in World War II.

DEVONPORT (Australia)

Town in N TASMANIA, on the River Mersey estuary, near the Bass Strait. The state's third-largest community, in 1893 it was formed through the amalgamation of the villages of Torquay and Formby, both founded in the 1850s.

DEVONPORT [North Shore] (New Zealand)

Town, residential suburb of AUCKLAND, NW NORTH ISLAND. Devonport, now a naval base, was made a borough in 1866 and is the site of a monument marking the place where the first Maoris are said to have landed in New Zealand c. A.D. 1350.

DEVONSHIRE See DEVON

DEWANGIRI (Bhutan)

Village, 50 mi NW of GAUHATI, ASSAM. The village was part of an area annexed in 1865 by the British after the Bhutan War. Until 1949, when it was returned to Bhutan by INDIA, it was part of the Kamrup district of Assam.

DEWAS (India)

Town in MADHYA PRADESH, 22 mi NE of INDORE. It is the former capital of the princely state of Dewas founded in 1728 by two MARATHA brothers. After 1841 it was the joint capital of Dewas Senior and Dewas Junior, which were ruled independently under the British Central India Agency. In 1856 the states merged with Madhya Pradesh.

DEW LINE (Canada, United States)

Radar stations of the Distant Early Warning Line near the 69° N parallel, running from NW ALASKA to NE Canada to give warning of hostile aircraft approaching from the north. The DEW Line, built and operated jointly by the United States and Canada, was begun in 1954 and became operational in 1957. It was extended to the ALEUTIAN ISLANDS in 1959 and across GREENLAND in 1961. In 1990, with the end of the cold war, many stations were shut down or automated, and the stations located in Canada were handed over to the Canadian control.

DEWSBURY (England)

Town in West Yorkshire, on the Calder River, 9 mi SW of LEEDS. Dewsbury is mentioned in the Domesday Book of 1086, the record of William the Conqueror's survey of England. It had a woolen industry in the 13th century. During the Industrial Revolution it became a major center for wool production.

DHAKA [Dacca] (Bangladesh)

City and district in central Bangladesh, 80 mi NE of KHULNA. The district includes the national capital, Dhacca, and ruins of the ancient Buddhist center of Vikramapura, former capital of the Pala rulers of BENGAL from the eighth to the 12th centuries A.D. In the 17th century the city was the capital of the MOGUL EMPIRE's province of East Bengal and, later, the site of French, Dutch, and English trading posts. From 1905 to 1912 it was the capital of the British province of Eastern Bengal and of ASSAM. The city was the capital of East Pakistan from 1956 to 1971, when after the surrender of Pakistani forces to INDIA here it became the capital of the new nation of Bangladesh.

DHAMAR [Damar, Demar] (Yemen)

Highland town in the S central section, S of the capital, SANA. The seat of a famous theological school, Dhamar was long a principal center of the Shiite Zaydi sect of Islam, dominant in Yemen for centuries. It was the former capital of the Central, or Dhamar, province under the monarchy and was ruled as an emirate by the al Wazir family until 1944. It became part of Yemen in 1949.

DHAR (India)

Former princely state in W MADHYA PRADESH, SW central India. Founded in the ninth century by Rajputs, Dhar was conquered by Muslims in the 13th century. Its capital, the ancient town of Dhar, was the seat of the medieval MALWA dynasty but was taken by the Muslims in 1305. A fief of the Marathas by 1742, the area came under British rule in 1819. See MARATHA CONFEDERACY.

DHARAMPURI See DHARMAPURI

DHARMAPURI [Dharampuri] (India)

Town in the S, in TAMIL NADU state, capital of its district. Settlement here reaches back to the Neolithic Age. It was the legendary home of the Tamil poetess Avaiyar. British and Muslims fought nearby at Krishnagiri during the MYSORE wars of the 18th century.

DHARMAT (India)

Town, battle site, 15 mi SW of UJJAIN, in modern MADHYA PRADESH. In the battle on April 15, 1658, the Mogul princes Aurangzeb and Murad Baksh defeated the Rajput Raja Jaswant Singh. The battle was the first engagement in the Mogul war for the succession to the empire of Shah Jahan, which led to Aurangzeb's ultimate victory. See MOGUL EMPIRE.

DHARWAR (India)

District in S MUMBAI, on the plateau of DECCAN. In the seventh century A.D. it was ruled by the early CHALUKYA dynasty. From the 14th to 18th centuries it was under the kingdoms of VIJAYANAGARA and BIJAPUR, the MOGUL EMPIRE, and the MARATHA CONFEDERACY before being taken by GREAT BRITAIN in the late 18th century.

DHARWAR [Daravada] (India)

Former city, now combined with HUBLI-DHARWAR city in DHARWAR district, W MYSORE state. It was originally called Daravada, or "gateway town," and was fortified from the 16th century. Dharwar was captured in 1685 by the MOGUL emperor Aurangzeb and in 1778 was taken from the MARATHAS by Hyder Ali.

DHAWALPUR See DHOLPUR

DHIBAN [Diban] [ancient: Dibon] (Jordan)

Ruined city of MOAB, N central Jordan, 32 mi SSW of Amman. In 1868 the Moabite Stone, with an inscription from 850 B.C., was discovered here. In the Moabite alphabet, a branch of Phoenician script, it records the triumph of the king of Moab over the Israelites.

DHIDHIMOTIKHON See DIDYMOTIKHON

DHÍLOS See DELOS

DHODHEKANISOS See DODECANESE

DHOLPUR [Dhawalpur] (India)

City, Bharatpur district, RAJASTHAN state, just N of the Chambal River. Capital of the former princely state of DHOLPUR, the town was founded in the 11th century by Raja Dholan Des. The present site was established N of the original town to avoid flooding.

DHOLPUR [Dhawalpur] (India)

Former princely state, now a part of BHARATPUR district in RAJASTHAN state. Settled by Deswali Jats in the 11th century, it was threatened by Muslims in the 14th century. In 1449, under Surjan Des, the Jats were reestablished. It was ruled by the MOGUL EMPIRE from c. 1530 to c. 1710. In 1885 it was taken by GREAT BRITAIN and merged with India in 1948. A ruined fortress near the Chambal River is the site of its ancient capital, DHOLPUR, moved to avoid flooding.

DHOMOKOS See DOMOKOS

DHONBURI See THON BURI

DHRANGADHRA (India)

Former princely state on the KATHIAWAR PENINSULA, now a part of GUJARAT. In the eighth century it was established by the Jhala-Rajputs, and during most of its existence it was a tributary to either Hindu or Mogul rulers. In 1924 it came under direct British rule and was merged with Saurashtra in 1948.

DHROL (India)

Town in GUJARAT, 23 mi ENE of JĀMNAGAR. Capital of the former princely state of Dhrol, it was captured in the mid-16th century by the Jadeja Rajputs. Later it belonged to the Western India States Agency before merging with SAURASHTRA state.

DHULE [Dhulia] (India)

City on the Panjhra River, in N MAHARASHTRA. It belonged to the Muslims by the early 14th century and later became part of the MOGUL EMPIRE. Dhulia was conquered by the MARATHA CONFEDERACY in the 17th century, and then by the British. It joined the BOMBAY Presidency in 1818.

DHULIA See DHULE

DIAMANTINA [former: Tejuco] (Brazil)

City in Minas Gerais state, 120 mi N of BELO HORIZONTE. Center of an important diamond-mining region, it has been known since the early 18th century, when diamonds were discovered in a nearby river. Called Tejuco in the colonial era, it is built in the shape of an amphitheater.

DIAMOND HEAD [Leahi] (United States)

Cape and landmark in HAWAII, on SE OAHU, SE of HONOLULU. An extinct volcanic crater, it was used as a burial ground by the ancient Hawaiians, who called it Leahi, or "place of fire," because of its association with Pele the fire goddess. It received its present name in the early 19th century, when British sailors mistook some volcanic crystals here for diamonds.

DIAMOND MOUNTAINS [Japanese: Kongosan; Korean: Kumgangsan] (North Korea)

Range of mountain peaks along the SE coast of North Korea, near KOSONG. The area was a famous center of Buddhism for centuries and has many temples and cloisters. Buddhist priests probably came here in the fourth century A.D. In the 16th century the region began to decline.

DIANIUM See DENIA

DIARBEKR See DIYARBAKIR

DIASPOLIS See LOD

DIBAN See DHIBAN

DIBBA See DIBBAH

DIBBAH [Daba, Dibba] (Oman)

Village in Ras al Khaimah sheikdom, on the Gulf of Oman. Dibbah was an important port of pre-Islamic Arabia and was one of the last important places of resistance to Islam at the time of that religion's emergence. The Muslims razed Dibbah in the seventh century. In the 19th century the Qawasim pirate Sultan ibn Saqr gave it as a fiefdom to one of his sons, whose descendants have claimed to be its independent sheiks. See also ARABIAN PENINSULA.

DIBIO See DIJON

DIBON See DHIBAN

DIBRA See DEBAR

DIBRUGARH (India)

Town in ASSAM, at the confluence of the Brahmaputra and Bibru rivers. During World War II an Allied air base here was used by the British against JAPAN's forces in BURMA. In 1950 the town was severely damaged by an earthquake.

DIBSE See THAPSACUS

DICKINSON [former: Pleasant Valley Siding] (United States)

City in SW NORTH DAKOTA, 100 mi W of BISMARCK. Founded when the railroad reached the site in 1880, it was renamed in 1883 for Wells S. Dickinson, a New York State politician. In the following years it was a supply point for the gold fields in the BLACK HILLS.

DIDYMA [Branchidae, Didymi] (Turkey)

Ruins of an ancient temple sanctuary, the seat of an oracle of Apollo, S of MILETUS, on the W coast of ASIA MINOR. The first temple here, built in the sixth century B.C., was destroyed by PERSIA in 494 B.C. The oracle and cult were revived after Alexander the Great captured MILETUS in 334 B.C. A new temple, never completed, was begun c. 300 B.C. The cult survived until late antiquity. See also CARIA.

DIDYMI See DIDYMA

DIDYMOTEIKHON [Dhidhimotikhon, Didymotichon] [Bulgarian: Demotika, Dimotika] (Greece)

Town in Evros department of NE Greece. It flourished under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE as a bishopric. During the Third Crusade Emperor Frederick Barbarossa took the town hostage in 1189 to force concessions from the Byzantines. In 1341 John VI Cantacuzene was proclaimed Byzantine emperor here. In 1361 it was captured by the Ottoman Turks and was briefly their capital until the fall of ADRIANOPOLE in 1365. Charles XII of SWEDEN sought refuge here in 1708 after his defeat at POLTAVA.

DIDYMOTICHON See DIDYMOTEIKHON

DIEDENHOFEN See THIONVILLE

DIEGO GARCIA (Indian Ocean)

Coral atoll, largest and southernmost of the Chagos archipelago, in S INDIAN OCEAN. Discovered by the Portuguese in the early 16th century, it was for centuries a dependency of MAURITIUS. In 1965 it became part of the BRITISH INDIAN OCEAN TERRITORIES. In 1972 workers here were moved to Mauritius, and the United States established a military facility on the island.

DIÉGO-SUAREZ [Antsirana, Antsirane] (Madagascar)

Harbor and town near the N end of the island. One of the world's finest harbors, it was discovered in 1500 by the Portuguese explorer Diégo Dias and named for Diégo Soares, who visited it in 1543. It was occupied by the French in 1841, and the town later became the capital of a French colony. After 1901 it had a French naval base. British troops occupied the port in 1942 during World War II.

DIEMRICH See DEVA

DIEN BIEN PHU [Dienbienphu] (Vietnam)

Village in SW TONKIN. A French military post in the INDOCHINA war, it was the site of a decisive battle between the French and the Viet Minh. All supplies had to be flown in to the post, which was surrounded by 50,000 Viet Minh troops in the nearby hills. After a siege of 56 days the post fell to the Viet Minh on May 7, 1954. By then the UNITED STATES was covering 80 percent of armament costs but took no direct action except for an offer of nuclear weapons to the French, despite appeals from FRANCE. The catastrophic defeat of the French brought an end to the French Indochina War of 1946 to 1954, leading to the GENEVA Conference, the artificial division of Vietnam, and American involvement a decade later in a prolonged war between North and South Vietnam. See also LAOS.

DIEPPE (France)

City, port on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, in the Seine-Maritime department, 34 mi N of ROUEN. The city was an important commercial center from the 15th century. In the 17th century it was an important naval base. Dieppe suffered from outbreaks of plague in 1668 and 1670 and was destroyed by the English and Dutch in 1694. It was occupied by Prussian troops in 1870–71 and by the Germans from 1940 to 1944. On August 19, 1942, during World War II, the city was raided by Allied commandos in an effort to test German defenses. The Germans repulsed the attack and inflicted many casualties on the Allies. Many buildings damaged in World War II have been restored.

DIERNA See TURDA

DIE VIER WALDENSTÄTTER See FOUR FOREST CANTONS, THE

DIG See DEEG

DIGHTON (United States)

Town in SE MASSACHUSETTS, 7 mi N of FALL RIVER. The town was settled in 1678. On the E bank of the Taunton River opposite the town is Dighton Rock, a strangely marked boulder of green stone first observed in 1680. Inscriptions on the rock have led to much speculation, including theories that it marks a Viking landing, a Portuguese landing by the explorer Miguel Corte-Real, or that they are of American Indian origin. The rock is now enclosed in a protective building on the site, which is now a park.

DIGNE [ancient: Dinia] (France)

Town in the Basses-Alpes department, 70 mi NE of MARSEILLES. It is noted for its sulfur springs. An episcopal see since the sixth century A.D., it was ruled by its bishops in the Middle Ages. Digne is located on the Route Napoléon, the road that Napoleon followed over the ALPS in 1815 on his return from ELBA. The town was greatly damaged in World War II.

DI-HUA See URUMCHI

DIJON [ancient: Dibio] (France)

City, capital of the Côte-d'Or department, and former capital of BURGUNDY. Dijon was a town in Roman GAUL and began to flourish after the dukes of Burgundy made it their capital in the 10th century. It remained a cultural center after Burgundy was reunited with France in the late 15th century. It is the birthplace of the priest Jacques-Benigne Bossuet, the musician Jean-Philippe Rameau, and the poet Prosper Crébillon. Twice occupied by GERMANY in 1870, it was severely damaged in World War II. The city contains many stone and half-timbered buildings from the Late Middle Ages, evidence of the cultural life of the Burgundian court.

DIKAERCHIA See POZZUOLI

DIKSMUIDE [Dixmuide] [French: Dixmude] (Belgium)

Town in W FLANDERS, 13 mi N of YPRES. In World War I the town was destroyed during heavy fighting from October 22 to November 10, 1914, when the Allies flooded the area to prevent the Germans from reaching the sea.

DILLI See DELHI

DILMUN See BAHRAIN

DIMASH See DAMASCUS

DIMASHQ See DAMASCUS

DIMOTIKA See DIDYMOTIKHON

DINANT (Belgium)

Town in Namur province in the S, on the MEUSE RIVER. Dinant has been fortified since Merovingian times and was noted in the Middle Ages for its metalware. In the revolt of LIÈGE, it was sacked by Charles the Bold in 1466. Until the French Revolution the town belonged to the prince-bishop of Liège. In the ARDENNES, it was severely damaged by GERMANY during World War I, in August 1914.

DINAR See CELAENAE

DINBYCH-Y-PYSGOD See TENBY

DINIA See DIGNE

DIOSCURIAS See SUKHUMI

DIOSPOLIS See THEBES

DIOSPOLIS MAGNA See THEBES

DIRSCHAU See TCZEW

DISAPPOINTMENT, CAPE (United States)

Point projecting into the Pacific Ocean in SW WASHINGTON, on the N side of the mouth of the COLUMBIA RIVER. In 1788 it was named by Captain John Meares, who found it while searching for the River of the West, rumored to be a part of the NORTHWEST PASSAGE.

DISEART DIARMADA See CASTLEDERMOT

DISMAL SWAMP [Great Dismal Swamp] (United States)

Swamp in SE VIRGINIA and NE NORTH CAROLINA, thought to have earlier covered 2,200 sq mi, now reduced to less than 600 sq miles. In 1728 William Byrd, colonial official, explorer, and author, visited it. George Washington, then a member of a company organized to drain it, surveyed the swamp in 1763. Dismal Swamp is the scene of Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel Dred: A Tale of the Great Dismal Swamp. Regular logging occurred until 1976. In 1974 the Great Dismal Swamp National Wildlife Refuge was created by Congress.

DISPUR (India)

Capital city of ASSAM state in NE India, 30 miles N of SHILLONG. This new capital city was built on the outskirts of GUWAHATI and became the capital of Assam in 1973 after Shillong, the previous capital of Assam, became the capital of the state of MEGHALAYA.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA (United States)

Federal district between MARYLAND and VIRGINIA on the E bank of the POTOMAC RIVER. It is coextensive with the city of WASHINGTON, D.C., the capital of the country. Congress passed legislation in 1790 and 1791 to establish a separate area as the nation's capital and allowed President George Washington to choose the site. Maryland and Virginia donated land, a 10-mile square (100 sq mi) area on both sides of the Potomac, which included the town of GEORGETOWN, Maryland, and ALEXANDRIA (now ARLINGTON) county, Virginia. In 1846 the people of Alexandria county asked to have the area returned to Virginia, which was done. Slavery was abolished in 1862, with owners compensated. Congress took away Washington's charter as a city in 1871, and in 1874 it took direct control of the District government. In 1878 it made Georgetown part of the city.

For the first time in 1961 the 23rd Amendment to the Constitution gave the District three votes in the Electoral College in presidential elections. In 1970 Congress approved the election by the District of a nonvoting delegate to the House of Representatives, and in 1974 it passed legislation allowing the voters to elect their own mayor and city council. Congress, however, still reviews the budget and legislation. There is a movement within the District for statehood. A state constitution was drafted in preparation. With the city facing insolvency in 1995, Congress created a financial control board with a mandate to supervise municipal finances. On September 11, 2001, a terrorist attack by al-Qaeda crashed a passenger jet into the Pentagon.

DITHMARSCHEN [Ditmarsh] [medieval: Nordalbingia] (Germany)

Marshy region in SW SCHLESWIG and HOLSTEIN, between the ELBE and Eider rivers. The region was known as Nordalbingia when it was conquered by Charlemagne and converted to Christianity. In the 13th century it became an independent republic. In 1474 the area passed to DENMARK, but attempts by the Danish king to take possession were repulsed by peasants until 1559. Later a part of SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, it passed to PRUSSIA in 1866.

DITMARSH See DITHMARSCHEN

DIU (India)

Former Portuguese colony in the W that included Diu Island, just S of the KATHIAWAR PENINSULA. The port was established by PORTUGAL in 1535 and had several notable Catholic churches built before its overseas trade declined in the late 18th century. In December 1961 the colony was invaded by India and annexed in 1962. It became part of the union territory of DAMAN AND DIU in 1987.

DIVODURUM See METZ

DIVODURUM MEDIUMMATICUM See METZ

DIVONA See CAHORS

DIX, FORT See FORT DIX

DIXMUDE See DIKSMUIDE

DIXMUIDE See DIKSMUIDE

DIYARBAKIR [Diarbekr] [ancient: Amida] (Turkey)

City in E central ASIA MINOR, on the left bank of the TIGRIS RIVER. A Roman colony from A.D. 230, in A.D. 363 it was taken by Shapur II of PERSIA. The city was seized by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1515. Diyarbakir still has the black basalt fortifications constructed by Constantine I in the fourth century, when it was part of the Eastern ROMAN EMPIRE.

DIZFUL [Desful] (Iran)

City in the W, near the site of ancient SUSA. The city's name, meaning "citadel bridge," is taken from a bridge constructed here by Shapur II, king of PERSIA, from A.D. 309 to 379.

DJADJAPURA [Jayapura] [ancient: Kotabaru, Sukarnapura; former: Hollandia] (Indonesia)

City on the N shore of NEW GUINEA, approximately 25 mi W of the Indonesia–PAPUA NEW GUINEA border, on Humboldt Bay. During the 19th century it was a flourishing trading center. In World War II it was occupied by the Japanese and was finally liberated by U.S. forces in April 1944. Thereafter it served as General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters until he moved north toward JAPAN.

DJAILOLO See HALMAHERA

DJAKARTA See JAKARTA

DJAMBI [Jambi] (Indonesia)

City in SE SUMATRA, 125 mi NW of PALEMBANG. It is a port on the Hari River. In the 17th and 18th centuries it was the capital of a strong Muslim sultanate, whose power declined as the Dutch gained control of Sumatra.

DJAWA See JAVA

DJEBA See EDFU

DJEB-EL-DRUZE See JEBEL ED DRUZ

DJEDDAH See JIDDA

DJENNÉ [Jenné] (Mali)

Town in S central Mali, West Africa, 250 mi NE of BAMAKO. Founded in 765 by the SONGHAI, who built up one of the largest empires of West Africa, Djenné became a prominent trading center from the eighth to 13th centuries, dealing in slaves, gold, and salt. It also attracted Muslim scholars. After long resistance, it fell to the MALI EMPIRE c. 1475 and declined in the 16th century. The French took control in 1893. Djenné boasts a beautiful mosque. The ruins of the large medieval city have been partially excavated on an island nearby.

DJERBA See JERBA

DJIBOUTI [former: French Somaliland, French Territory of Afars and Issas]

Independent state, former French territory of NE Africa, on the Gulf of Aden, N of SOMALIA. An important French colonial possession, it formed the terminus for the railroad to ADDIS ABABA and occupied a strategic position on the strait between the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea, countering the British outpost of ADEN. French interests in the area were established in 1862 when they purchased the port of OBOCK. The region became the protectorate of French Somaliland on May 20, 1896. It became a free port in 1949. After the Suez Canal was closed in 1967, Djibouti's importance declined, but the port and town are now active again with the reopening of the canal. Djibouti became independent in 1977 with Hassan Gouled Aptidon as president. In 1979 the Afar and Issa ethnic groups tried to settle their differences through the formation of the People's Progress Assembly (RPP). In 1981 Gouled made the RPP the only legal political party in the country.

In 1991 there was a rebellion of the Afars against the Issa-dominated government. In 1992, a new constitution was established allowing for some opposing political parties, but most boycotted the 1993 elections and Gouled was reelected. In 1994 most of the Issan rebels reached a peace with the government, but there was some fighting until 2001. Djibouti was the base of operations for French forces during the 1991 Gulf War, and the French remain a strong military and technical presence. In 1999 Ismail Omar Guelleh of the ruling party won the presidency. The United States established a military base in 2002. In 2003 Djibouti moved to expel some 100,000 illegal immigrants, mostly Ethiopians and Somalis, who had come to the country fleeing war and seeking work. In 2005 Guelleh was reelected unopposed as the opposition boycotted the elections.

DJIDJELLI See JIJELLI

DJOKJAKARTA See JOGJAKARTA

DMITROV (Russia)

Port in N central Russia, on the Moscow canal. The city was founded in 1154. In the 13th century it became the capital of a duchy, which in 1742 became part of the grand duchy of MOSCOW. It was held briefly by GERMANY in December 1941.

DNEPR See DNIEPER RIVER

DNEPROGES [former: Dneprostroi] (Ukraine)

Hydroelectric station, in the S central Ukraine, on the DNIEPER RIVER. Before World War II it was the largest dam and power station in the USSR. The dam and plant, built between 1927 and 1932 and first called Dneprostoi, were damaged by retreating Soviets during the German invasion of 1941 in World War II, and destroyed during the German retreat in 1943. The station was rebuilt by the Soviets from 1944 to 1949.

DNEPROPETROVSK See DNIPROPETROVSK

DNEPROSTROI See DNEPROGES

DNESTR See DNIESTER RIVER

DNIEPER RIVER [ancient: Borysthenes; Russian: Dnepr; Ukrainian: Dniro] (Belarus, Ukraine, Russia) One of the longest rivers in Europe, 1,420 mi long, it rises in the Valdai Hills W of MOSCOW, flows generally S, with a long bend to the E between KREMENCHUG and NIKOPOL, and empties into the BLACK SEA. As early as the ninth century A.D. the Dnieper was a busy trade route for the Vikings between the BALTIC SEA in the north and CONSTANTINOPLE in the south. In 1667 it became the frontier between RUSSIA and POLAND, but large areas on the upper Dnieper were secured by Russia in the first partition of Poland in 1772.

Cities on the Dnieper include CHERKASSY, important in Ukrainian life from the 14th to the 17th century; DNIPROPETROVSK; KHERSON, a naval station in the late 18th century; KIEV, a most important ancient city and a trading center between SCANDINAVIA and Constantinople; Kremenchug, a river crossing point for trade with Asia; Nikopol, another crossing point; MOGILEV; ORSHA, a rail and water transportation junction; SMOLENSK, already a commercial city in the ninth century; and ZAPORIRZHYZHA, site of the DNEPROGES dam and power station, one of the largest installations in the USSR, which has made the whole river navigable.

DNIESTER RIVER [ancient: Danastris, Tyras; Polish: Dniestr; Romanian: Nistrul; Russian: Dnestr; Ukrainian: Dnister] (Ukraine, Moldova) River approximately 875 mi long, rising in the CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS, it flows generally SE through the SW UKRAINE and into the BLACK SEA SW of Odessa. It is navigable for part of its distance, and its tributaries include the Sereth and Stry Rivers. The Dniester forms part of the border between Ukraine and Moldova. From 1918 to 1940 it formed the Romanian-Russian border until the USSR took back Bessarabia. Among the cities on its banks are BELGOROD-DNESTROVSKYY at its mouth, a Greek colony in the sixth century B.C. and a Slavic trading center in the ninth century A.D.; BENDERY, a river port and trading center for centuries; KHOTIN, at a strategic crossing, which has changed hands many times; MOHYLIV-PODILSKYY at a busy crossing and an important point on the route from the Ukraine to Turkey; and TIRASPOL, founded in 1792 as a Russian fort.

DNIESTR See DNIESTER RIVER

DNIPRO See DNIEPER RIVER

DNIPROPETROVSK [former: Ekaterinoslav, Katerineslav, Novorosiysk, Yekaterinoslav, Dnepropetrovsk] (Ukraine) City, in the E central UKRAINE, on the DNIEPER RIVER. Founded on the site of a Zaporozhe Cossack village by Marshal Potëmkin in 1787, it was named Ekaterinoslav for Catherine II. It was called Novorosiysk from 1791 to 1802 and Katerineslav until 1926, when it was given its present name. The city's varied industrial growth began late in the 19th century. It was taken by GERMANY in August 1941 and recaptured in October 1943.

DNISTER See DNIESTER RIVER

DOBBS FERRY (United States) Village in WESTCHESTER COUNTY, SE NEW YORK State, 20 mi N of NEW YORK CITY, on the E bank of the HUDSON RIVER. Built on the site of a Mohican Indian village, Dobbs Ferry originated as a ferry terminal in 1698 when Jeremiah Dobbs began rowing people across the Hudson in a hollowed-out log. During the American Revolution Benedict Arnold planned a meeting here with Major John André to betray WEST POINT to the British; and after André's capture British general Sir Henry Clinton met the American general Nathanael Greene in an unsuccessful attempt to save André from being hanged. In 1781 General Washington and French Marshal Rochambeau met in Dobbs Ferry to plan the YORKTOWN campaign before marching their armies S to Virginia. Washington was here again in May 1783 to meet with General Clinton and Sir Guy Carleton to plan the British evacuation of New York. In the colonial era Dobbs Ferry was part of Philipse Manor, the lands of which were confiscated in 1785 and part sold to Philip Livingston and associates. Dobbs Ferry is now chiefly a residential suburb of New York City.

DOBRIČ See TOLBUKHIN

DOBRICH See TOLBUKHIN

DOBROGEA See DOBRUJA

DOBRUDJA See DOBRUJA

DOBRUJA [Dobrudja] [ancient: Dobrogea] (Bulgaria, Romania)

Region between the lower DANUBE RIVER and the BLACK SEA. The region was part of Roman MOESIA and later belonged to the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, to the medieval empire of Bulgaria, and to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE from the 15th century. In 1878 the Congress of BERLIN awarded north Dobruja to Romania and south Dobruja to Bulgaria. In 1913, as a result of the Second Balkan War, Bulgaria ceded south Dobruja to Romania. The area was returned to Bulgaria in 1940.

DOBSCHAU See DOBSINA

DOBSINA [German: Dobschau; Slovak: Dobsiná] (Slovakia)

Village in E central Slovakia, 40 mi WNW of KOSICE. Dobsina has long been an important mining center. A famous ice cavern nearby, discovered in the 19th century, is a popular tourist attraction.

DODECANESE [Dodecanesus] [Greek: Dhodhekanisos] (Greece)

Island group in the AEGEAN SEA, SE of Greece, between CRETE and ASIA MINOR. It makes up most of an island area known as the Southern Sporades. There are approximately 20 islands in all, of which the most important are Kalymnos; KARPATOS, ruled by Venice from 1305 to 1540; Kos, where Hippocrates founded a school of medicine in the fifth century B.C.; PATMOS, where according to the Bible St. John the Divine wrote Revelations; and RHODES, the largest and most important, which the Knights Hospitalers held after their expulsion from PALESTINE in the 13th century and defended against a Turkish onslaught in 1522–23.

The largest city is RHODES, on the island of the same name and first laid out in 408 B.C. These islands were part of the ancient Greek world and have long histories. They became a portion of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE until taken c. 1520 by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, which held them until the Turks lost the islands to ITALY in the Italo-Turkish War of 1911–12. The Germans moved in when Italy collapsed in 1943 during World War II, but the Allies seized the islands in 1945, and by a treaty of March 31, 1947, they were restored to Greece.

DODECANESUS See DODECANESE

DODGE CITY (United States)

City in SW KANSAS, on the Arkansas River. It was laid out in 1872 near Fort Dodge and first served as a trading post for buffalo hunters, later as an important supply base. On the SANTA FE TRAIL, it became a wild and rowdy cow town. Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson fought lawlessness here into the early 20th century.

DODONA (Greece)

Ancient city of S EPIRUS, 13 mi SW of IOANNINA. It was a center of worship before the arrival of the Greeks and the site of the oldest Greek oracle, situated in a grove of oaks, dedicated to Zeus and dating from c. 1500 B.C. The site is mentioned by Homer. The Aetolians destroyed the temple and sacred groves in 219 B.C., but the oracle flourished into the early ROMAN EMPIRE. Excavation began there in 1878. The restored theater is used for an annual drama festival. The site also contains the remains of a stadium, a temple to Aphrodite, and a Christian basilica built during the reign of Justinian.

DOGGER BANK

Sand bank in the central NORTH SEA, between ENGLAND and DENMARK, known for its fisheries. Dogger Bank has been the scene of naval battles between the British and the Dutch in 1781, between the British and the Russians on October 21, 1904, and between the British and the Germans, in the Battle of Dogger Bank, on January 24, 1915.

DOGUBAYAZIT [former: Bayazid, Bayazit; Turkish: Doğubayazit] (Turkey)

Village in Agri province, 15 mi SSW of Mt Ararat, in ARMENIA. Once an important center on an ancient trade route, the village declined as trade shrank, and it was severely damaged during the Russo-Turkish Wars of the 19th century. The village was occupied by the Russians during World War I.

DOHA See QATAR

DOL [Dol-de-Bretagne] (France)

Town in the Ille-et-Vilaine department, SE of ST. MALO. Located on the frontier between NORMANDY and BRITTANY near the ENGLISH CHANNEL, it held an important fortress during the Middle Ages. In 1164 Henry II of ENGLAND captured Dol.

DOL-DE-BRETAGNE See DOL

DÔLE (France)

Town in the Jura department, on the Doubs River. Capital and a fortified stronghold of FRANCHE-COMTÉ, it was conquered in 1674 by Louis XIV, who shifted its parliament to BESANÇON in 1676. Also transferred to Besançon was the university, founded by Philip the Good of BURGUNDY in 1422. The town has Roman ruins. Dôle is the birthplace of the scientist Louis Pasteur.

DOLORES (Argentina)

City in Buenos Aires province, approximately 126 mi SE of BUENOS AIRES. Founded in 1818, it was razed by Indians in 1821. Dolores partook in much revolutionary activity c. 1840, before the federal constitution was adopted in 1853.

DOLORES HIDALGO (Mexico)

Town in central GUANAJUATO state, 30 mi NE of GUANAJUATO. On September 6, 1910, Miguel Hidalgo y Castilla issued the Grito de Dolores here, a manifesto launching the struggle for Mexican independence from SPAIN.

DOLWYDDELAN (Wales)

Village in GWYNEDD, Caernarvon, 4 mi SW of Betws-y-Coed. It is reputed to be the birthplace of Llewelyn the Great, who held his lands against King

John of ENGLAND, ruler of most of Wales by 1216. The remains of Dolwyddelan Castle, built c. 1170, are here.

DOMAZLICE [Czech: Domazlice; German: Taus] (Czech Republic)

Town in SW BOHEMIA, 29 mi SSW of PILSEN, on the border with GERMANY. In 1431, during the Hussite Crusade, the Catholic crusaders were defeated nearby. The town contains famous buildings from the 12th and 13th centuries, including a castle.

DOMBES (France)

Swampy region in the S Ain department, between the Ain, RHÔNE, and SAÔNE Rivers. Once part of the kingdom of ARLES, it passed to the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE in 1032, after which it was ruled by local lords. Dombes came under the authority of France in 1378. Francis I of France took the region in 1523, and Dombes was fully united with the French Crown in 1762.

DOMBRAU See DABROWA GÓRNICZA

DOMBROWA See DABROWA GÓRNICZA

DOMFRONT (France)

Town in the W Orne department, 30 mi E of AVRANCHES. A settlement dating from the sixth century A.D., it was captured by William the Conqueror in the 11th century and remained a Norman stronghold during the Middle Ages. As part of NORMANDY it passed to the kings of England and was later fought over by ENGLAND and France during the reigns of the Norman and Angevin kings and during the Hundred Years' War. During World War II Domfront was finally captured by U.S. forces between August 13 and 15, 1944, after much damage to the town.

DOMINICA

Tiny island nation in the Windward Islands of the WEST INDIES, N of MARTINIQUE and S of GUADELOUPE. Columbus discovered it on a Sunday in 1493 and named it after the Latin, dies dominica, the Lord's Day. In the first half of the 18th century both the English and the French tried to settle Dominica but were fought off by the fierce Carib Indians. An Anglo-French treaty of 1748 left the island to the Indians, but both nations still wanted it. Later the island changed hands several times between the two nations until 1815, when it finally became British. Beginning in 1833 Dominica was administered along with the LEEWARD ISLANDS, and in 1940 administration was transferred to the WINDWARD ISLANDS. The island was a member of the short-lived Federation of the West Indies from 1958 to 1962, was granted internal self-government in 1967, and became independent in 1978. In 1980 Eugenia Charles was elected prime minister. In 1981 there were two failed coup attempts. In 1995 Charles retired as prime minister, and Edison James of the opposition United Workers' Party was elected. In 2000 Rosie Douglas of the Labor Party defeated James, but died shortly afterward, to be succeeded by Pierre Charles. Charles died in 2003, and was succeeded by Roosevelt Skerrit.

Of volcanic origin, Dominica has fertile soil that produces many fruits and vegetables. The majority of the people are descendants of black African slaves transported here in the 18th century. ROSEAU is the capital and chief port.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Island nation in the WEST INDIES, occupying the eastern two-thirds of the island of HISPANIOLA, SE of CUBA. In 1795 the area then known as Santo Domingo, a Spanish colony, was ceded to FRANCE by the Treaty of BASEL. It was conquered in 1801 by Haitians under the leadership of Toussaint Louverture, but in 1809 Spanish rule was reestablished with British aid. A revolt for independence from SPAIN in 1821 resulted in the expulsion of the Spanish governor, but in the following year HAITI again conquered the region. Haiti held it until 1844, when a revolution took place and Pedro Santana became the first president of the Dominican Republic. His dictatorial rule caused revolts, while the Haitians continued to try to reconquer the land. As a result, in 1861 Santana declared the nation a province of Spain, but the reaction to this move was so violent that Spain gave up the arrangement in 1865. In 1869 President Buenaventura Báez negotiated a treaty for annexation by the UNITED STATES, but although the Dominican people approved, the U.S. Senate did not ratify it in spite of President Grant's support of the proposal.

Until the early 20th century the nation suffered political disorders, many changes of government, and growing financial troubles. As a result it was bankrupt by 1905 and threatened with the use of force by European nations to collect debts. U.S. president Theodore Roosevelt intervened, and the United States took over administration of customs receipts. This step improved the financial situation, but made the United States dominant in the country. Disorders continued until the U.S. Marines occupied the country in 1916. The occupation lasted until 1924 and customs administration until 1941. In 1930 Rafael Trujillo Molina overthrew the government and began a 31-year dictatorial rule, one of the cruelest in history. In 1937 Dominican troops, in a move to keep Haitians from entering the country, invaded Haiti and massacred thousands of persons.

After Trujillo was assassinated in 1961, the first free election since 1924 was held in December 1962. Leftist Juan Bosch was elected president, but he was ousted by a right-wing military coup in September 1963. In April 1965 an attempt to restore him to office touched off a civil war, followed by the dispatch of U.S. troops to the country by U.S. president Lyndon B. Johnson. The Organization of American States formed a peacekeeping force that gradually replaced the U.S. troops and in September both sides accepted Héctor García Godoy as provisional president. OAS forces were withdrawn, but the Dominicans continued to be plagued by political unrest and economic difficulties, despite the 1966 election of President Joaquín Balaguer and his 15-year development program. In May 1978 the army suspended voting when it seemed that Balaguer would lose a reelection bid. A strongly worded diplomatic note from U.S. president Carter, however, forced the army to accept the election of leftist president Antonio Guzmán, whose term ended in August 1982.

Balaguer was elected again and served from 1986 through 1995. In the 1996, the Dominican Liberation Party candidate, Leonel Fernández Reyna, was elected. While there was some economic growth under the DLP, it was mainly in the urban areas. In 2000 Hipólito Mejía Domínguez of the Dominican Revolutionary Party took power promising benefits of economic development to all Dominicans, but under his administration, economic conditions worsened, and Fernández was reelected in 2004. In 2004, the Dominican Republic agreed to join in a free-trade area with the United States and many Central American nations. SANTO DOMINGO is the capital city.

DOMODOSSOLA [ancient: Oscela; medieval: Domus Dei] (Italy)

Town in Novara province, in the PIEDMONT region, at the foot of the SIMPLON PASS. Charlemagne established a countship here under the bishop of NOVARA. It was seized by the Swiss in 1416 and ravaged by Upper VALAIS in 1487 during religious upheavals. Domodosola passed to AUSTRIA in 1714 and to SAVOY in 1735. With Piedmont, it was restored to Victor Emmanuel I by the Congress of VIENNA in 1815.

DOMOKOS [Dhomokos] [ancient: Thaumaci] (Greece) Town in central Greece, 17 mi NNW of LAMIA. In 198 B.C. Philip V of MACEDON besieged the town but did not take it. The Roman Acilius Glabrio took it in 191 B.C. For centuries under the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, and then under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, it was united to Greece in 1881. The brief 1897 war between Greece and Turkey ended here. The town's name derives from the wonder (thauma) experienced by the traveler upon first viewing THESSALY from its heights.

DOMUS DEI See DOMODOSSOLA

DONAJOUNA See SAINT-JEAN-PIED-DE-PORT

DONALDSONVILLE (United States) City in SE LOUISIANA, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, approximately 27 mi SSE of BATON ROUGE. It was founded in 1806 as a trading post and was the state capital from 1830 to 1831. Henry Hobson Richardson, the noted architect, was born near here in 1838.

DONAU See DANUBE RIVER

DONAUWÖRTH (Germany) Port in W BAVARIA, on the DANUBE RIVER. A Swabian town originally, it became the seat of the dukes of Upper Bavaria in the 13th century, was made an imperial city in 1348, and adopted the Reformation in 1555. Efforts by Maximilian I of Bavaria to enforce Catholicism in this city in 1607 led to the formation of the Protestant Union, one of the prime forces in the Thirty Years' War of 1618 to 1648.

DONBAS See DONETS BASIN

DONBASS See DONETS BASIN

DONEGAL [Gaelic: Dun Na Ngall] (Ireland) Port, S County Donegal, at the head of Donegal Bay. In 1610 its castle was rebuilt on the earlier stronghold of the O'Donnells, whose headquarters were here. Ruins of a monastery founded in 1474 by Hugh O'Donnell are also here. Between 1632 and 1636 the Annals of Donegal or Annals of the Four Masters, a history of the world up to 1616, was written here.

DONELSON, FORT See FORT DONELSON

DONETS BASIN [Russian: Donbas, Donbass, Donetsk Bassein] (Ukraine) Industrial region N of the Sea of Azov, and SW of the Donets River, located mainly in the SE Ukraine. Circa 1870 the development of the Donets Basin began, and by 1913 the region produced virtually all the coal and half the iron and steel for czarist RUSSIA. Under the Soviet regime it continued to expand and was the scene of severe fighting in World War II.

DONETSK [earlier: Yusovka; former: Stalin, Stalino] (Ukraine)

City, capital of Donetsk oblast, in the SE Ukraine, on the Kalmius River. The largest industrial city of the DONETS BASIN, in 1870 it was founded as Yusovka, a metallurgical settlement named for a Scottish industrialist called Hughes. It was called Stalin from 1924 to 1961. During World War II GERMANY held it from October 1941 to September 1943.

DONETSKI BASSEIN See DONETS BASIN

DON FERNANDO DE TAOS See TAOS

DONGOLA See DUNQULAH

DONNER PASS (United States)

A mountain pass located in the SIERRA NEVADA range of N CALIFORNIA, approximately 35 mi SW of RENO, NEVADA. In the winter of 1846–47 a party of 89 settlers from Illinois and Iowa were en route to California under the leadership of George and Jacob Donner. The party was fatigued from its arduous crossing of the salt flats of Utah and encamped on Alder Creek and the shore of what is now Donner Lake in the Sierra Nevadas to gather strength for the push through an untried trail. They were caught by early winter snows and underwent terrible suffering. By the time a rescue expedition from the Sacramento Valley reached them, 42 had died. It was evident that some of the survivors had practiced cannibalism to preserve themselves. The trail, including the pass named after the Donners, is now the most important rail and highway route connecting San Francisco and Reno.

DON RIVER [ancient: Tanais; Tatar: Duna] (Russia)

River of SW European Russia, approximately 1,200 mi long, flowing into the Sea of Azov. It rises SE of TULA and flows first SE and then SW. At its easternmost bend a canal links the Don with the VOLGA RIVER near VOLGOGRAD, formerly Stalingrad. It is navigable for approximately 850 miles, and its chief tributary is the Donets River, which connects it with the Donets River, which connects it with the heavily industrialized DONETS BASIN. Still an important commercial route, the Don has been a channel of trade since Scythian times. The lower region of the Don is the home of the Don Cossacks, famous warriors who were once independent. This region was also held by the khan of the CRIMEA. ROSTOV-ON-DON, on the Don near where it enters the Sea of Azov, is a center of trade between European Russia and the CAUCASUS.

DOORNIK See TOURNAI

DOR [Dora] (Israel)

Canaanite port in ancient CANAAN, N of CAESAREA. By 1000 B.C. it was the center of a kingdom, later held by the Israelites. A southern outpost of PHOENICIA at its height, it was rebuilt by the Romans, and the ruins of a temple and theater are still visible. Later it was fortified by the crusaders. In 1948 the Israelis built a settlement on the site, which had held the Palestinian village of Tantura.

DORA See DOR

DORCHESTER [ancient: Durnovaria] (England)

Town and administrative headquarters of DORSET, on the Frome River, 8 mi N of WEYMOUTH. In prehistoric times its inhabitants lived on nearby MAIDEN CASTLE, the largest hill fort in England, until moved to Durnovaria by the Romans. It stands upon the Roman site of Durnovaria. Maumbury Rings nearby is the ruin of a Roman amphitheater. Thomas Hardy lived in Dorchester, which is the Casterbridge of his Wessex novels. William Barnes, the 19th-century country poet, also lived here.

DORCHESTER (England)

Village in OXFORDSHIRE, 8 mi SE of OXFORD. Dorchester was the seat of an important bishopric from the seventh to 11th centuries, and the abbey church here dates from the 13th century.

DORDOGNE (France)

Department and historic area in SW France. PÉRIGUEUX is the capital, and the Dordogne and Vézère rivers flow through it. No place in the world is richer in remains of the prehistoric Paleolithic era, in particular the magnificent rock shelter and cave paintings found in the river valleys, whose purpose and meaning are still not clear. The region thus shows evidence of having been the habitat of some of the earliest of human cultural groups. At LE MOUSTIER, near the village of LES EYZIES on the Vézère, human skeletons were found along with shaped flints dating from the Mousterian period of Paleolithic times, which saw the culmination of Neanderthal man's culture. In 1868 other discoveries in the Les Eyzies area revealed the presence of Cro-Magnon Man, who first appeared approximately 35,000 years ago.

In 1901 the caves known as LES COMBARELLES and FONT-DE-GAUME revealed more paintings and engravings. Les Combarelles may have been the center of a hunting cult. The rock shelter of LA MADELEINE on the Vézère, and the carvings and implements found there gave its name to the Magdalenian culture, a final flowering of Paleolithic culture. The most spectacular discovery of all did not take place until 1940, when the LASCAUX cave, near Montignac and also on the Vézère, was found by accident. The spectacular paintings here date from the Aurignacian-Perigordian period, c. 14,000 to 13,500 B.C. The paintings are polychromatic and mostly of the animals that the men of the time hunted for food and furs. Some of them are in almost inaccessible places and possibly had ritual uses. There are also tools and bones.

In the 14th and 15th centuries A.D. the Dordogne was a border area between territories fought over by ENGLAND and France during the Hundred Years' War. As a result there are many castles and fortified towns. Bergerac, for example, was captured by the English in 1345 and retaken by the French in 1450. Monpazier has ramparts that were built by Edward I of England in 1284. See also ALTAMIRA, CHANCEL-ADE, COMBE-CAPELLE.

DORDRECHT [Dordt, Dort] (Netherlands)

City in SOUTH HOLLAND province at the point where the Lower Merwede divides to form the Noord and the MEUSE rivers. Dordrecht was founded in the early 11th century, and in 1572 was the scene of the meeting of the Estates of Holland that proclaimed William the Silent of ORANGE the stadtholder. The Synod of Dort, held here in 1618–19, condemned the Remonstrants. The statesman Jan de Witt was born here in 1625.

DORDT See DORDRECHTDORESTAD [modern: Wijk bij Duurstede] (Netherlands)

Remains of a great trading center in the eighth and ninth centuries A.D., near the mouth of the RHINE RIVER, 13 mi SE of UTRECHT. In its day Dorestad was the largest mercantile town in northern Europe, and here Charlemagne minted his much-imitated Dorestad coin. Excavations in the 1960s revealed that the town, with wooden houses, warehouses and farmsteads, stretched for half a mile along the river front and was protected by palisades with a gate and fort. The town was sacked by the Vikings in A.D. 834, and again four times thereafter. It never recovered.

DORIS (Greece)

Small mountainous district, inland between the Gulf of Corinth and the Malic Gulf. Doris was traditionally the home of the Dorians, an early Hellenic people, who may have paused here during their invasion of Greece, probably between 1100 and 950 B.C. CORINTH and SPARTA were Dorian cities.

DORPAT See TARTUDORSET [Dorsetshire] (England)

County in SW England, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, between HAMPSHIRE and DEVON. Neolithic Age people from northern France settled here before 2000 B.C., and MAIDEN CASTLE dates originally from this era. This prehistoric fortress of earthwork covered approximately 115 acres. The region shows evidence of the Beaker people c. 1800 B.C., the Wessex culture of c. 1600 B.C. to 1350 B.C., and Iron Age inhabitants c. 300 B.C. The Romans, who withdrew from England in the fifth century A.D., left the ruins of an amphitheater, Maumbury Rings, near DORCHESTER. Dorset, with Hampshire, WILTSHIRE, and SOMERSET, formed the nucleus of the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of WESSEX, which may have begun as early as 495 under Cerdic. This kingdom expanded, then declined, but revived under Egbert, who was king from 801 to 839 and overlord of England. After invaders from DENMARK reduced the kingdom, Alfred the Great and Edward the Elder in the late ninth and early 10th centuries regained control and ruled England.

In 1685 the exiled pretender to the throne, the duke of Monmouth, landed at LYME REGIS to attempt to gain the throne but was defeated by the troops of James II. A judge, Jeffreys of Wem, was sent to the region to punish those who had taken part in the rebellion and in the Bloody Assizes ordered nearly 200 people hanged and hundreds of others imprisoned, transported, or whipped. In 1834 Dorset was the site of the affair of the TOLPUDDLE Martyrs, six agricultural laborers who were prosecuted for labor union activities. Dorset is the Wessex that is the setting of Thomas Hardy's novels. Its administrative headquarters is Dorchester.

DORSETSHIRE See DORSETDORT See DORDRECHTDORTMUND [ancient: Throtmanni, Tremonia] (Germany)

City in the heart of the RUHR Valley, approximately 30 mi S of MÜNSTER, at the S end of the Dortmund-Ems Canal. The N end of the canal is at the NORTH SEA and adds to Dortmund's industrial value. Dortmund was first mentioned c. A.D. 885 under the name Throtmanni. In the 12th century it was walled and known as Tremonia, becoming a free imperial city in 1220. It then joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. It had great commercial importance during the 13th and 14th centuries; so much so that in the latter part of that period the English Crown was frequently pledged to its merchants as security for loans. Its importance declined after the Thirty Years' War of 1618 to 1648. In its earlier years many fine buildings were erected, including the Reinoldikirche, with unusual stained-glass windows, the Marienkirche, and the Petrikirche. All were seriously damaged during World War II but have been restored. There are ruins of moated castles and a Saxon and Carolingian fortress. Its modern convention hall, built between 1950 and 1952, is one of the largest in Europe.

DORYLAEUM (Turkey)

Ancient city in NW PHRYGIA, ASIA MINOR. After the death of Alexander the Great in 323 B.C., Dorylaeum was fought over by his generals and was later an important Roman trading center. It also flourished during the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, but then declined. On July 1, 1097, the Christians of the First Crusade defeated the Seljuk Turks on the site. The modern ESKISEHIR is near the site of Dorylaeum.

DOTHAIM [Dothan] [Arabic: Tell Dotham] (Palestine)

Ancient city of central CANAAN, in the uplands N of SAMARIA. It was here, according to the Bible, that Joseph was sold into slavery and that the Syrians were blinded at Elisha's prayer. It was later a stronghold. The site has now been partially excavated.

DOTHAN See DOTHAIMDOUAI [Douay] [ancient: Duacum] (France)

Town in Nord department, in French FLANDERS, on the Scarpe River. A Roman Catholic college for English priests exiled during the Reformation was established here under the patronage of Philip II of SPAIN. In 1609 the Old Testament of the English Douay Bible was prepared at the college. Douai surrendered to the duke of MARLBOROUGH in 1710, was retaken in 1712 by Marshal Villars, and was restored to France by the Peace of UTRECHT. It was rebuilt in the 18th century.

DOUALA [Duala] (Cameroon)

City in West Equatorial Africa, on the Bight of Biafra, 130 mi W of YAOUNDÉ, the capital. It is the largest city in Cameroon. By 1800 the Douala people in the region controlled trade with the Europeans, and in the 1860s German firms established themselves in the area. In 1884 Gustav Nachtigal, a German explorer, made a treaty with the Douala king and proclaimed a protectorate, of which Douala was the capital. In September 1914, during World War I, a British and French force captured Douala from the Germans.

DOUAUMONT (France)

Village in the Meuse department. In World War I it was part of the battlefield of VERDUN, and its important fort was twice lost but recaptured by the French in 1916 after fierce fighting. Destroyed and never rebuilt, Douaumont is now a national monument.

DOUAY See DOUAIDOUGGA See THUGGADOUGLAS (England)

City, port, and capital of the ISLE OF MAN, on the E coast of the island, off the coast of England, in the Irish Sea. Set in an agricultural area, Douglas has been a popular resort for many years. It has a museum with relics of Neolithic settlements and many Celtic artifacts.

DOUGLAS (Scotland)

Village in STRATHCLYDE region, 26 mi SW of GLASGOW, on Douglas Water. It is the site of Douglas Castle, Sir Walter Scott's Castle Dangerous, all but the tower of which was razed and replaced by a colliery by 1948. Until 1761 the 12th-century church of St. Bride was the Douglas family's burial place.

DOURA See DURA-EUROPOSDOUVRES See DOVER (England)DOVER [ancient: Dubris Portus; French: Douvres] (England)

Port and city on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, in KENT, 71 mi SE of LONDON. An important Roman port and the site of an Anglo-Saxon and Norman castle, it was made one of the CINQUE PORTS, the five ports designated as defenders of the English coast after the Norman Conquest. In the 14th century it was important in the long struggle between England and FRANCE. The forces of Parliament captured it in 1642, but it was also here, under the famous white cliffs, that Charles II reached England in 1660. This primary point for crossing the English Channel was a naval base in World War I and suffered considerable damage from German shelling in World War II. It has important Roman remains.

DOVER (United States)

City and state capital of DELAWARE, approximately 7 mi W of Delaware Bay. William Penn, the Quaker proprietor of PENNSYLVANIA, ordered its founding in 1683, and it was laid out in 1717. A building erected in 1722 as a county courthouse has served as the capitol since 1777, when Dover became the seat of state government. There are interesting historic houses. The modern economy is typified by Dover Air Force Base, a large cargo terminal.

DOVER (United States)

City in SE NEW HAMPSHIRE, at the falls of the Cocheo River, near its confluence with the Piscataqua River. Dover was settled in 1623 and organized in 1633, but it grew slowly, partly because of Indian raids that almost destroyed the town. Jeremy Belknap preached in Dover during the American Revolution, and Abraham Lincoln made a speech here in 1860.

DOVER, STRAIT OF [ancient: Fretum Gallicum; French: Pas de Calais] (England, France)

Strait separating England from France, and connecting the ENGLISH CHANNEL with the NORTH SEA. It is 21 mi wide between DOVER and Cape Gris-Nez, near CALAIS. It has seen many naval battles. In the 13th century Hubert de Burgh repulsed a French attack here, and in 1588 the Spanish Armada was first halted in the strait by the English defenders.

DOVIA See PREDAPPPIO

DOWNPATRICK (Northern Ireland)

County seat of County Down, E Northern Ireland. It has long been a religious center, and St. Patrick is said to have founded a church here c. A.D. 440. As the traditional site of the tombs of Ireland's three great saints—Patrick, Columba, and Bridget of Kildare—it has also been a place of pilgrimage.

DRACHENFELS (Germany)

Mountain, 1,053 ft high, in the Siebengebirge, on the RHINE RIVER. In legend it is the scene of Siegfried's triumph over the dragon. The Drachenburg, a fortress now in ruins, was built on it c. 1115 by Archbishop Frederick I of COLOGNE. During the Thirty Years' War of 1618 to 1648 it was captured by SWEDEN in 1632, and by SPAIN in 1633.

DRAKHMANI See ELATEA

DRANGIANA

Ancient region, a part of PERSIA between Aria on the N and GEDROSIA on the S. It is now in W AFGHANISTAN and E IRAN. In 330 B.C. it was conquered by Alexander the Great and incorporated into his empire. See SEISTAN.

DRAYTON-IN-HALES See MARKET DRAYTON

DRAYTON MAGNA See MARKET DRAYTON

DRENOVA See DRYANOV

DRENTHE (Netherlands)

Province in the NE bordering on GERMANY to the E. In 1536 the province, long subject to the bishops of UTRECHT, passed to Emperor Charles V. From 1581 it was part of the UNITED PROVINCES, but until 1596 it sent no delegates to the States-General. FRANCE held it from 1795 to 1813.

DREPANUM See TRAPANI

DRESDEN [early: Drezdane] (Germany)

City, 63 mi ESE of LEIPZIG, on the ELBE RIVER. The margrave of MEISSEN established a German town here in the early 13th century on the site of a former Slavic settlement. BOHEMIA and BRANDENBURG controlled it in the latter part of the century, but it passed back into the hands of the Meissens in 1319. After 1485 the seat of the ruling house of SAXONY, Dresden was leveled by fire in 1491. Rebuilt with fine examples of baroque and rococo architecture, the city was the site of negotiations during the War of the Austrian Succession that led, in 1745, to the Treaty of Dresden, which confirmed Prussian control of SILESIA.

Dresden was heavily damaged in 1756 in the Seven Years' War, and in October 1813 it was the site of yet another battle in which Napoleon defeated the Allies in his last great victory. PRUSSIA took it in 1866. Dresden is known for its music and art collections, its distinctive architecture, and its Dresden china, which has been made in Meissen for the past two centuries. Dresden was all but destroyed in World War II by the infamous Allied fire bombing in February 1945, aimed at the city to shock Germany from its war efforts. Thousands of civilians were killed in the attack. It has been largely rebuilt and restored.

DREWRY'S BLUFF [former: Drury's Bluff] (United States)

Height on the S bank of the JAMES RIVER, S of RICHMOND, Virginia, scene of two engagements in the Civil War. On May 15, 1862, Union gunboats were repulsed here in McClellan's Peninsular campaign. In May 1864 General Butler led the Union Army of the James up the peninsula against Richmond and was defeated here by a greatly inferior Confederate force under General Pierre Beauregard.

DRINAGO See BRAILA

DRISTRA See SILISTRA

DRJENOVO See DRYANOVO

DROBETA See TURNU-SEVERIN

DROBOGLITZA See TRIPOLIS

DROCOURT (France)

Town in the Pas-de-Calais department, 9 mi NE of ARRAS. Drocourt was the N end of the Drocourt-Quéant Line, fortified by GERMANY in World War I. The Allies captured it in September 1918.

DROGHEDA [Gaelic: Droichead Átha] (Ireland)

City and port in County Louth, 4 mi from the mouth of the BOYNE RIVER. A Danish stronghold in the 10th century, in 1152 it was the site of a noted church council. In 1170, along with DUBLIN, it was taken for ENGLAND by the Anglo-Normans under Richard Strongbow. The rebellious Irish princes of LEINSTER and ULSTER submitted to Richard II here in 1394. Poyning's Law, which subjugated the Irish parliament, was enacted here in the late 15th century. In 1649 Oliver Cromwell stormed the town, destroyed its garrison, and dispersed its populace. The Battle of the Boyne was fought nearby in 1690, shortly after which the town surrendered to William III.

DROGOBYCH [Polish: Drohobycz] (Ukraine)

City in Lviv oblast, W Ukraine. An old Ukrainian settlement, it was part of the state of KIEV until the 14th century, when it passed to POLAND. It came under AUSTRIA in 1722 but was returned to Poland in 1919. In September 1939 it became part of the Ukraine, but it was held by GERMANY from June 1941 until the Ukraine was reclaimed by the USSR in 1944.

DROHOBYCH See DROGOBYCH

DROMORE (Northern Ireland)

Town, County Down, on the Lagan River, 16 mi SW of BELFAST. The town's church, built in 1661 by Jeremy Taylor, English prelate and theologian, who is buried in Dromore, replaced an abbey of the canons regular said to have been founded by St. Colman c. 600. It was destroyed in 1641 during the Civil War. Thomas Percy, the author of Percy's Reliques in 1765, was a bishop of Dromore.

DRSTR See SILISTRA

DRUG See DURG

DRUKYUL See BHUTAN

DRUMMOND ISLAND (United States)

Island in N LAKE HURON, part of Chippewa county, NE MICHIGAN, off the SE extremity of the mainland. British troops built a fort here in 1815. In 1828 the island became American.

DRUMMONDVILLE (Canada)

City in SE QUEBEC, on the St. Francis River, 63 mi NE of MONTREAL. The city was founded in 1815 by Major General George Heriot and named for Sir Gordon Drummond, then commander in chief of Canada.

DRUMMOSSIE See CULLODEN MOOR

DRUSTUR See SILISTRA

DRYANOVO [Drenova, Drjenovo] (Bulgaria)

City in the N central region, 10 mi NE of GABROVO. Under Turkish rule Dryanovo was a handicraft center. Dryanovski monastery is the site of a monument to the Bulgarian revolution.

DRY TORTUGAS [Tortugas] (United States)

Island group off S FLORIDA, 60 mi W of Key West. Named by Ponce de León in 1513, the islands later became a pirate base. During the Civil War, there was a prison for Union deserters at Fort Jefferson. The prison later housed Dr. Samuel Mudd who treated Lincoln assassin John Wilkes Boothe. One of the islands, Garden Key, is now the Fort Jefferson National Monument and a bird and marine life refuge.

DUACUM See DOUAI

DUALA See DOUALA

DUBAI See UNITED ARAB EMIRATES

DUBENKA See DUBIENKA

DUBIENKA [Russian: Dubenka] (Poland)

Town in Lublin province, on the BUG RIVER, 19 mi ESE of CHELM. In 1792 the Poles under General Tadeusz Kosciuszko, who had fought in the American Revolution, were defeated here by RUSSIA. The town's population was 50 percent Jewish until World War II, when the Jews were sent by Nazi Germany to extermination camps.

DUBLIN [ancient: Eblana; Gaelic: Baile Átha Cliath] (Ireland)

City and capital of the Irish Republic, in the eastern part of Ireland, at the mouth of the Liffey River. It is one of the best-loved cities in the world, with a unique personality. In the late eighth century A.D. Viking Norsemen from Scandinavia established trading towns in Ireland, including Dublin. In the Dublin suburb of CLONTARF on April 23, 1014, Brian Boru, king of Ireland, defeated the Vikings but was himself killed in the battle. The second Anglo-Norman earl of PEMBROKE, known as Richard Strongbow, captured Dublin for ENGLAND in 1170, and two years later Henry II of England came to Dublin and granted the city to the "men of BRISTOL." Dublin became the seat of English government in Ireland and as such was the center of the Pale, a region around Dublin where English law was in force. In 1209 the English in Dublin were attacked in the Black Monday massacre. Edward Bruce invaded Ireland from SCOTLAND in 1316 but failed in his attempt to capture the city. The city was taken in 1647 by the Parliamentary government of England during the Civil War. Two years later its leader, Oliver Cromwell, landed at Dublin on an expedition to subdue all of Ireland.

Dublin fell to the English again in 1690 when William III arrived after winning the battle of the BOYNE. From 1782 to 1800, when Ireland was free of British rule, Dublin prospered, but after the Act of Union of 1800, the political center shifted to London, and Dublin became the scene of violence in the Irish effort to achieve independence. Robert Emmett, nationalist and revolutionary, headed an abortive uprising in Dublin in 1803, and in 1867 there was a more general uprising led by the Fenian Movement, a secret society dedicated to Irish freedom. In the Phoenix Park murders of May 6, 1882, Lord Frederick Cavendish, British secretary for Ireland, and his undersecretary were murdered by a terrorist group. The assassinations resulted in five hangings. The Easter Rebellion of April 14 to 29, 1916, saw another uprising in Dublin during World War I when a revolutionary band occupied public buildings and held them for a week against the British. The establishment of the Irish Free State on December 6, 1921, which made Ireland a dominion within the BRITISH EMPIRE, resulted in the worst political violence in Dublin's history as large numbers of Irish opposed the arrangement. Dublin finally became the capital of the fully independent Irish Republic on April 18, 1949.

In spite of its political troubles and bloodshed, Dublin has long been a Western cultural center, especially since the founding of the Gaelic League in 1893 and the establishment of the Abbey Theater in 1902. Leaders in this movement were Lady Augusta Gregory, Sean O'Casey, John Millington Synge, and William Butler Yeats. James Joyce is Dublin's best-known literary figure, and the events of his novel Ulysses all take place in Dublin on one day, June 16, 1904. George Bernard Shaw, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Jonathan Swift, and Oscar Wilde were born here, as was the famous military commander, Arthur Wellesley, first duke of Wellington. Trinity College, founded in 1591 on the site of a 12th-century monastery, holds the beautiful Book of Kells, the outstanding example of Irish book illumination and book production of the Irish Middle Ages. Christ Church was founded in 1038 and St. Patrick's Cathedral in 1190.

DUBNO (Ukraine)

Town in Rovno oblast, in the Ukraine, 30 mi SE of LUTSK. Formerly in POLAND, during World War I it was taken by AUSTRIA, and by GERMANY in 1918. In World War II the USSR held it until July 1941, when it was captured in the German advance.

DUBOIS (United States)

City in W central PENNSYLVANIA, 46 mi NNW of ALTOONA. Settled in 1865, it grew with the railroads as a lumber and mining center. Laid out in 1872, it was later named for John E. DuBois, a large local landowner on whose property the DuBois campus of Pennsylvania State University is now located.

DUBOVKA (Russia)

Town in the central Volgograd oblast, on the VOLGA RIVER, 33 mi N of VOLGOGRAD. Founded in the first half of the 18th century, it was an early center of the Volga Cossacks and was chartered in 1803. It became an important center of the Volga-Don trade until the rise of Volgograd, then Tsaritsyn, in the late 19th century.

DUBRÉKA (Guinea)

Village and port near the W coast, just N of CONAKRY. Once a collecting point for slaves, Dubréka became a trading post for Europeans in the 1860s; later it was a center for the export of coffee, peanuts, and rubber.

DUBRIS PORTUS See DOVER (England)DUBROVNIK [Italian: Ragusa; medieval: Arragosa, Ragusium] (Croatia)

City and port on the Dalmatian coast of Croatia, on the S ADRIATIC SEA. Founded by the Byzantines in the seventh century A.D., by the 13th century the city was a dependency of VENICE and a main port on Venetian routes from GREECE, the LEVANT, and the BLACK SEA. In the late 14th century it was an independent maritime republic until the advances of HUNGARY placed it under the rule of the Angevins. In 1409 it again passed to Venice.

Once again independent in the early 15th century, it controlled the overland route from FLORENCE to ANCONA, across the Adriatic, and thence through the Balkans to CONSTANTINOPLE, carrying cloth to the East and spices and luxury goods west. On the sea Ragusa also vied with Venice for control of the lucrative trade with ALEXANDRIA in Egypt. Though nominally subject to the kings of Hungary and then to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE, it retained its neutrality in East-West conflicts and continued to profit from trade. By the 16th century Ragusa's fleets rivaled those of Venice; and from 1537 to 1540, when expelled from the Ottoman Empire, the Venetians were forced to use Ragusan ships. By 1570 its trade had reached its height, and the city acted as a middleman, transferring goods from Alexandria and the Levant as far N as England. Ragusa's ships were widely known in London, and its name, Arragosa, may be the origin of the English word argosy. After 1592 Ragusa's prosperity diminished after Venice established an inland trade route via SPLIT. In 1617 it allied with Spain and Naples against Venice and continued its rivalry until destroyed by an earthquake in 1667, recovering only slowly. It was finally captured by Napoleon in 1808. Part of the ILLYRIAN PROVINCES from 1808 to 1813, it was incorporated into Yugoslavia in 1918. Dubrovnik was attacked and besieged by Serbian forces in 1991–92, and many of the city's ancient buildings were damaged. The old city was rebuilt and is an UNESCO World Heritage Site.

As Dubrovnik, the city today is a miniature Venice with its two harbors, its Lovrjenac Fortress of the 14th to the 16th centuries, its 13th-century synagogue, 14th-century Franciscan convent, 15th-century Dominican convent, and 16th-century bishop's palace.

DUBUQUE (United States)

City in NE IOWA, E of WATERLOO, on bluffs above the MISSISSIPPI RIVER. One of the oldest cities in the state, it was named for Julien Dubuque, who settled nearby c. 1790. After the Black Hawk Treaty of 1833 ended Indian title to the territory, settlers began to pour in, and the town grew, developing first as a mining, then as a lumbering and milling center.

DUCK LAKE (Canada)

Lake in central SASKATCHEWAN, near PRINCE ALBERT. In 1885 Duck Lake was the scene of the first clash in Louis Riel's rebellion. Here a large force under Gabriel Dumont drove back a small force of volunteers and mounted police. See also RED RIVER SETTLEMENT.

DUERO See DURO RIVERDUE WEST (United States)

Town in NW SOUTH CAROLINA, S of GREENVILLE. The Cherokee Indians signed a treaty nearby in 1777, relinquishing large areas of South Carolina after the forces of Andrew Pickens invaded their lands.

DUISBURG [former: Duisburg Hamborn] (Germany)

Inland port in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, bordering on the RUHR and the RHINE Rivers. It is an ancient settlement. Duisburg paid tribute to the dukes of LIMBURG in the 12th and 13th centuries. It passed to the duchy of KLEVE in 1290. In 1614 it was acquired with Kleve by BRANDENBURG. As a center of the German armaments industry, it was heavily bombarded in World War II. See also HANSEATIC LEAGUE.

DUISBURG HAMBORN See DUISBURGDUKE OF YORK ISLANDS [former: Neu Lauenburg] (Papua New Guinea)

Island group, coral formation in the BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO, in the SW Pacific Ocean. The islands were first sighted by Philip Carteret, a British navigator, in 1767. In 1880 the first Methodist mission in the area was established here, and European settlement expanded, eventually spreading to NEW BRITAIN. In 1884 the islands became part of a German protectorate, but were given to AUSTRALIA in 1920 as part of a trust territory. With the rest of the archipelago they were occupied by JAPAN in World War II and often bombed by the Allies.

DUKLA PASS [Polish: Przełęcz Dukielska; Slovak: Průsmyk Dukelský] (Slovakia, Poland)

Border passage through the CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS, 10 mi S of Dukla. In 1849 the Russian army entered HUNGARY through this pass. The Russians used the pass again in 1915 and in January 1945.

DULAG (Philippines)

Town on the E coast of LEYTE ISLAND, on LEYTE GULF, 19 mi S of TACLOBAN. During World War II the town became the southern limit of the beachhead after the UNITED STATES invaded the islands on October 20, 1944, near the end of World War II, seizing the town and its airfield.

DULCIGNO See ULCINJDÜLKEN (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 20 mi WNW of DÜSSELDORF. Dülken received its city charter in the 14th century. In World War II it was taken by the Allies in March 1945 as they advanced across Germany in the final months of World War II.

DÜLMEN (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 16 mi SW of MÜNSTER. Founded in the ninth century, Dülmen became a city in 1311. During World War II it was almost completely destroyed by repeated Allied bombings from 1943 to 1945.

DULUTH (United States)

City in NE MINNESOTA, at the W end of LAKE SUPERIOR. Indian settlements were found here by early explorers and fur traders, including the French Sieur Duluth in 1679, for whom the city was named. Permanent settlement began c. 1850. Duluth first grew as a port for timber and, later, as a shipping point for iron ore and grain.

DULWICH (England)

Suburb of Inner LONDON borough of SOUTHWARK. This district is the site of Dulwich College, founded and endowed in 1619 by the Elizabethan actor Edward Alleyn. The picture gallery of the college was restored after damage from bombings in World War II. It contains a famous collection, including works of Dutch and Flemish masters.

DUMBARTON (Scotland)

Town in STRATHCLYDE region, at the junction of the Leven with the CLYDE RIVER. It was the capital of the medieval kingdom of Strathclyde and of the earldom of Lennox. Sir William Wallace was imprisoned here in 1305 before his trial. Dumbarton Rock, on the bank of the Clyde, was the site of Retish and Norse forts and of a Scottish castle.

DUMBARTON See DUNBARTONDUMBARTON OAKS (United States)

Georgian mansion on a large estate in GEORGETOWN, WASHINGTON, D.C. Here representatives of CHINA, the USSR, the United States, and the UNITED KINGDOM met from August 21 to October 7, 1944, to draw up proposals for a world organization, which later became the basis for the organization of the United Nations. The latter was organized in SAN FRANCISCO in April 1945. The estate was acquired in 1920 by the diplomat R.W. Bliss and given to Harvard University in 1940. The estate now houses famous gardens and a center for Byzantine and pre-Columbian American studies.

DUMBARTONSHIRE See DUNBARTONDUMDUM (India)

Town in S WEST BENGAL, near KOLKATA. A treaty was signed here in 1757 after the victory of Robert Clive over the nawab of BENGAL, which was important in the formation of British India. In the 19th century the town's arsenal first manufactured the lead-nosed bullets that spread on impact, which are named after the town. They were used by GREAT BRITAIN against tribes in the NW. These bullets were outlawed in 1899 by the HAGUE Conference.

DUMFRIES AND GALLOWAY [Dumfriesshire] (Scotland)

Region created in 1975, from Dumfriesshire, Kirkcubright, Wigtown, and S Ayrshire. Its early inhabitants were called Selgovae by the Romans, who built roads and forts in the upper basin of the Annan River. After the Romans withdrew, the Selgovae were ruled by Scots from IRELAND. The area was not thoroughly conquered by the Anglo-Saxons, and it retained its Celtic traditions until the 12th century. From the Middle Ages to the 18th century the county played a role in border warfare. It was also important in the struggle of the Covenanters in the 17th century. Its chief town, Dumfries, was sacked by ENGLAND in 1448, 1536, and 1570 in the perennial border warfare. The poet Robert Burns lived in Dumfries from 1791 to 1796 and is buried in St. Michael's Church. The home of the 19th-century writer Thomas Carlyle is nearby.

DUMFRIESSHIRE See DUMFRIES AND GALLOWAYDUMONT [former: Schraalenburgh] (United States)

Town in NE NEW JERSEY, 9 mi E of PATERSON. Originally settled c. 1680 by the Dutch, the area was known in the 19th century as Palisades Township, part of which was called Schraalenburgh. The Schraalenburgh community became a separate borough in 1894 and was renamed in 1898 to honor Dumont Clarke, its first mayor.

DUNA (Russia) See DON RIVERDUNA (Hungary) See DANUBE RIVERDÜNABURG See DAUGAVPILSDUNAI See DANUBE RIVERDUNAJEC (Poland)

River in the S, flowing 128 mi N from the CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS to the VISTULA River. It was the scene of battles in World War I in the two stages of the Austro-German offensive under General August von Mackensen against RUSSIA from May 1 to 14, 1915. It was crossed early by German armies in World War II. See also MASURIA.

DUNAMASE, ROCK OF (Ireland)

Rocky hill, 200 ft high, in central County Laoighis. Site of the ancient castle of Diarmuid MacMurrough, king of LEINSTER, it later belonged to Richard Strongbow, who invaded IRELAND with Anglo-Normans from ENGLAND, c. 1170. The castle was destroyed in 1650 after changing hands several times in the Civil War.

DÜ NAMÜNDE See DAUGAGRIVADUNAPENTELE See DUNAÚJVÁROSDUNAREA See DANUBE RIVERDUNAÚJVÁROS [Dunapentele] [ancient: Intercisa; former: Sztálinváros] (Hungary)

Industrial port on the DANUBE RIVER, approximately 40 mi downstream from BUDAPEST. The modern town is on both sides of the river and includes the older district of Dunapentele. The original town arose on the site of Intercisa, a Roman army post at a ford in the river, which did not last beyond the fourth century A.D. The ruins of this Roman fort are still visible.

DUNAV See DANUBE RIVERDUNBAR (Scotland)

Port city and resort in LOTHIAN region, on the Firth of FORTH, 27 mi E of EDINBURGH. Dunbar Castle was held by Black Agnes, the countess of Dunbar, for six weeks in a siege by the English in 1339. Mary, Queen of Scots, was taken to the castle by the earl of Bothwell the night before the defeat of her forces in 1567 at CARBERRY HILL. In 1568 the first earl of Murray destroyed the castle. Oliver Cromwell defeated the Scots here in September 1650, establishing the Commonwealth's authority over all Scotland S of the Forth River.

DUNBARTON [Dumbarton, Dumbartonshire, Dunbartonshire] [former: Lennox] (Scotland)

Former county on the N bank of the Clyde estuary, merged in 1975 into the STRATHCLYDE region. There are numerous prehistoric mound graves in the area, as well as the remains of the Roman Antonine Wall that was built from the FORTH RIVER to the CLYDE RIVER. Dumbarton once belonged to the earldom of Lennox. The county's bleaching and dyeing industries date from the 18th century.

DUNBARTONSHIRE See DUNBARTON

DUNBLANE (Scotland)

Town in Central region, on Allan Water, 4 mi N of STIRLING. Its cathedral was begun A.D. 1150 by David I. In 1715 an indecisive battle between the Jacobites under the earl of Mar and English forces under the duke of ARGYLL was fought nearby at the Field of Sheriffmuir.

DUNCAN (United States)

City in S OKLAHOMA, 27 mi E of Lawton. Duncan was originally a cattle-trading post on the CHISHOLM TRAIL. It was founded in 1892 with the arrival of the Rock Island Railroad. The city was named for William Duncan, a pioneer trader from FORT SILL.

DUNDALK [Gaelic: Dún Dealgan] (Ireland)

Port in County Louth, on Dundalk Bay, near the mouth of the Castletown River. Dundalk was in legend the birthplace of Cuchulain, the Gaelic hero who was also killed here. In 1315 Edward Bruce captured it and proclaimed himself king, but in 1318 he was defeated and killed here by the forces of Edward II of ENGLAND. Henry IV walled the town, which was thereafter besieged numerous times until the wall was razed in 1747. In the Irish civil war Dundalk was damaged by fire in 1922–23.

DUNDAS [former: Coote's Paradise] (Canada)

Town in SW ONTARIO, 5 mi W of HAMILTON. In 1801 the town was laid out and called Coote's Paradise. It was named for Henry Dundas, first viscount Melville, then British secretary of state for the colonies. In the early 19th century the town prospered as a transportation center.

DÚN DEALGAN See DUNDALK

DUNDEE (Scotland)

City and administrative headquarters of TAYSIDE region, stretching along the N shore of the Firth of Tay. Called the Scottish GENEVA, Dundee was a center of the Reformation and a stronghold of the Covenanters in the religious wars between Scotland and ENGLAND in the 17th century.

DUNDEE (South Africa)

Town in KWAZULU-NATAL, 120 mi NNW of DURBAN. On October 20, 1899, Dundee was the scene of the Battle of Talana Hill, which opened the Boer War. Many battles of the Zulu and Boer Wars were fought nearby.

DUNDONALD (Scotland)

Village, STRATHCLYDE region, 5 mi WSW of KILMARNOCK. Robert II (1316–90), first Stuart king of Scotland, lived and died here in the castle of Dundonald, now in ruins.

DUNEDIN (New Zealand)

City, SE SOUTH ISLAND, 190 mi SW of CHRISTCHURCH. In 1848 Dunedin was founded by Scottish Presbyterians. Gold was discovered nearby in 1861, and the city boomed. Dunedin was the base for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expeditions of 1928 to 1930 and 1933 to 1935.

DUNEIDEANN See EDINBURGH

DUNFERMLINE (Scotland)

Town in FIFE, near the Firth of FORTH. Dunfermline Abbey, founded by Malcolm III in the 11th century, is his burial place and that of his queen, St. Margaret of Scotland, as well as of Robert Bruce, crowned Robert I of Scotland in 1306. The palace here, long a seat of Scottish kings, was the birthplace of Charles I of ENGLAND. American industrialist Andrew Carnegie was born here in 1835, and Dunfermline is the headquarters of the Carnegie Trusts.

DUNGANNON (Northern Ireland)

Town in County Tyrone. Until the 17th century it was the stronghold of the O'Neill earls of TYRONE, who inaugurated their chiefs at a large rath or earthwork north of the town. In 1782 it was the site of the first proclamation of independence by the Irish parliament.

DUNGARPUR (India)

District in RAJASTHAN. A former princely state, included in Banswara until 1530, it was successively under MOGUL, MARATHA, and—after 1818—British control. In 1948 Dungarpur became part of Rajasthan state. Its capital, of the same name, was founded in the 14th century and named for Dungaria, an independent chieftain of the Bhil people.

DUNGARVAN (Ireland)

Small town and seaport in County WATERFORD, on Dungarvan Bay. It is the site of a castle founded by King John. In Abbeyside, a suburb, are the ruins of a 13th-century Augustinian priory. Only one wall of Abbeyside Castle, built c. 1150, survives.

DUNGENESS [Dunge Ness] (England)

Headland on the S coast of KENT, projecting into the STRAIT OF DOVER. In 1652 the Dutch under Admiral Maarten Tromp defeated the English in a naval battle off here.

DUNHOLME See DURHAMDUNHUANG [Tunhwang] (China)

Town in NW GANSU province of central China. It is of importance and interest both because of its location on the ancient SILK ROAD and because of the Caves of the Thousand Buddhas. The oasis at Dunhuang was an early hub of transportation routes, being the first trading town reached by foreign merchants entering China from the West. Here also the westward road divided into two parts, the South Road that led to INDIA and the North Road to TURKISTAN. Ancient ROME and China exchanged goods and ideas over the road, silk being shipped W, while wool, gold, and silver traveled E. Over the Silk Road Buddhist monks brought Buddhism to China circa the first century A.D.; while Nestorian Christians, Taoists, and Zoroastrians also used it.

Buddhist monks first established communities among the Caves of the Thousand Buddhas in 366.

Many frescoes were painted in these caves between the fifth and 13th centuries. They show Greco-Roman, Indian, and Iranian influences. Later the caves were sealed up, and it was not until 1900 that a Hungarian-British archaeologist, Sir Aurel Stein, reopened them, revealing not only paintings and drawings but nearly 15,000 manuscripts. Among these was the Diamond Sutra, an important monument of Sanskrit literature, which is reputed to be the first printed book, produced in A.D. 868. Today a new highway and a railroad run N of Dunhuang.

DUNKELD (Scotland)

Village in the TAYSIDE region, on the Tay River, 13 mi NNW of PERTH. It was an early center of Celtic Christianity and of the first Scottish kings. Its cathedral, begun in 1107, was destroyed by Protestants in 1560. The village was burned in 1689 in a siege during the Jacobites' resistance to William III. This ended in their defeat in 1670 at the Battle of the BOYNE, in IRELAND. A parish church replaced the cathedral in 1908.

DUNKERQUE See DUNKIRKDUNKIRK [former: Dunquerque; French: Dunkerque] (France)

City and seaport, in Nord department, on the NORTH SEA, 44 mi W of LILLE. Founded before the eighth century, it was an important fortress. As part of FLANDERS, it often changed hands among the major European powers. Ceded briefly to Oliver Cromwell, it was bought from Charles II of ENGLAND for France by Louis XIV in 1662. During the 19th century its commerce grew. During World War II it was the scene of the evacuation by sea, from May 26 to June 4, 1940, of nearly 400,000 Allied troops cut off by GERMANY just before the fall of France—an epic naval retreat accomplished by an armada of regular naval and smaller private craft. The city, almost completely destroyed by the war's end, surrendered to the Allies in May 1945.

DUNKIRK [former: Chadwick's Bay] (United States)

City and port of entry on LAKE ERIE, SW NEW YORK State, 35 mi SW of BUFFALO. It was first settled c. 1805 and called Chadwick's Bay. The city was later renamed for its harbor's similarity to that of DUNKIRK, France. In the 19th century it became important with the construction of the ERIE CANAL and the railroads.

DUNK ISLAND (Australia)

Island near the coast of NE QUEENSLAND, approximately 60 mi S of CAIRNS. The island was named by the British navigator James Cook after George Montagu Dunk, earl of HALIFAX. From 1897 to 1923 it was the home of the Australian naturalist Edward James Banfield, author of The Confessions of a Beachcomber.

DÚN LAOGHAIRE [Dunleary] [former: Kingstown] (Ireland)

Town in County Dublin, on Dublin Bay, just SE of DUBLIN. The town, anglicized to Dunleary, was renamed Kingstown when George IV landed here in 1821. Its harbor, built by Sir John Rennie, was begun in 1821 and finished in 1859.

DUNLEARY See DÚN LAOGHAIRE

DUNMORE [former: Buckstown] (United States)

Borough in NE PENNSYLVANIA, 3 mi E of SCRANTON. Originally settled in 1783 and called Buckstown, in 1840 it was renamed for the visiting grandson of the fourth earl of Dunmore, the colonial governor of VIRGINIA. The visitor promised to construct a railroad through the town, but it was never built.

DUNMOW (England)

Market town in ESSEX, 11 mi NNW of CHELMSFORD. In Little Dunmow, two miles away, are the remains of an Augustinian priory founded in 1104. The 13th-century custom of awarding a flitch of bacon, "the Dunmow flitch," to the couple who could testify that they had not quarreled or regretted their marriage for a year and a day after their wedding, is described in Piers Plowman, written in the late 14th century by William Langland. The custom was revived in 1855.

DUN NA NGALL See DONEGAL

DUNNOTTAR (Scotland)

Town in Grampian region, on the NORTH SEA, 1 mi S of Stonehaven. On a cliff by the sea is the ruin of Dunnottar Castle, on a site first fortified in the seventh century. In 1297 the first castle was destroyed by Sir William Wallace. The castle, rebuilt in the late 14th century, was the hiding place of the Scottish regalia during the Civil War. They were smuggled out on its surrender to the Parliamentarians in 1652. More than 100 Covenanters were imprisoned here in 1685.

DUNNVILLE (Canada)

Town in SE ONTARIO, on the Grand River, near Lake Erie. The town was probably named for John Henry Dunn, receiver general of Upper Canada, and it was settled in the 1820s with the construction of a feeder, no longer operational, to the Welland Canal between Lakes ERIE and ONTARIO.

DUNONIA See VIDIN

DUNOON (Scotland)

Coastal town in STRATHCLYDE region, on the Firth of CLYDE, 27 mi WNW of GLASGOW. On Castle Hill above Dunoon are the remains of a 12th-century castle. A statue of Robert Burns's "Highland Mary" is at the foot of the hill.

DUNQUERQUE See DUNKIRK (France)

DUNQULAH [Dongola] (Sudan)

Town in the Northern province, on the NILE RIVER, 47 mi S of the Third Cataract. Capital of the Christian kingdom of NUBIA from the sixth to the 14th century, it later became a Muslim town and, in the 16th century, the seat of a tributary king whose dominion extended N to the Third Cataract. After the 17th century Dunqulah declined as the trade routes from N to S shifted.

DUNSINANE (Scotland)

Westernmost of the Sidlaw hills, TAYSIDE. On the summit of the hill are the ruins of a fort known as Macbeth's Castle, after Shakespeare's play. Here Macbeth is said to have been defeated by Siward of NORTHUMBRIA in 1054.

DUNSTABLE See NASHUA

DUNSTER (England)

Town in SOMERSET, on the BRISTOL CHANNEL, 32 mi N of EXETER. After the Norman Conquest in 1066, the town's castle became the administrative center of a region that included lands in Somerset, Dorset, Devon, and Wiltshire. It was incorporated in the 12th century. The existing 14th-century castle was built around the original Norman remains. Prehistoric remains have been discovered nearby.

DUNWICH (England)

Village in SUFFOLK, on the NORTH SEA, 26 mi NE of IPSWICH. The most important commercial center in EAST ANGLIA during the Anglo-Saxon period, in the seventh century it became the capital of East Anglia. The first East Anglian bishopric was established here c. 630. The village prospered as a port, but severe coastal erosion after the 14th century brought about its decline and partial destruction.

DUOS PONTES See PONTEVEDRA

DÜPPEL See DYBBOL

DUPPLIN MOOR (Scotland)

Area in TAYSIDE region, 5 mi WSW of PERTH. Here in the Battle of Dupplin Moor on August 12, 1332, Edward de Baliol, aided by Edward III of ENGLAND and the barons disinherited by Robert Bruce, defeated the earl of Mar. See also HALIDON HILL.

DUQUE DE CAXIAS [former: Caxias, Meriti Station] (Brazil)

City, in the SE, suburb of RIO DE JANEIRO. The city was known as Meriti Station until 1931, and as Caxias from 1931 to 1943. Luis Alves de Lima e Silva, for whom the city was named, commanded the Brazilian army in wars against ARGENTINA and PARAGUAY in the mid-19th century. He was named duque de Caxias by the emperor Dom Pedro I of Brazil, later king of PORTUGAL.

DUQUESNE (United States)

City in SW PENNSYLVANIA, on the MONONGAHELA RIVER, 10 mi ESE of PITTSBURGH. In 1755 General Edward Braddock's British army passed through this site on its march to and from the forks of the OHIO RIVER. Settled in 1789, it was laid out in 1885 by the Duquesne Steel Company, later taken over by Andrew Carnegie. It was the site of one of the largest steel plants in the United States, which closed its doors in 1980.

DUQUESNE, FORT See FORT DUQUESNE

DURA-EUROPOS [Doura] [ancient: Dura-Europus] (Syria)

Ancient city in the Syrian desert, on the EUPHRATES RIVER, E of PALMYRA. Dura was founded c. 300 B.C. after the death of Alexander the Great by a general serving under Seleucus I. In the second century B.C. the Parthians conquered it, and it fell under the ROMAN EMPIRE from A.D. 165 until A.D. 257, when it was seized and destroyed by Shapur I, the Sasanian king of PERSIA. After this it was abandoned. It is a rich archaeological site, illuminating life in MESOPOTAMIA from Hellenistic through Roman times. The city is an excellent example of Hellenistic urban planning. Its grid pattern of streets and blocks included several buildings dedicated to Oriental religions in the Roman Empire, including a well-preserved synagogue and Christian church. The village of Salihyeh is now on the site.

DURAND LINE (Afghanistan, Pakistan)

Boundary established in 1893 separating the Afghan and British territories, now marking the border between Pakistan and Afghanistan. The line was named for Sir Henry M. Durand, who persuaded the emir of Afghanistan to agree to a boundary. The drawing of the line marked the settlement of the Indo-Afghan frontier dispute for the duration of the British period.

DURANGO [Ciudad de Victoria] (Mexico)

Capital of DURANGO state, was founded as a mining town by Alonzo Pacheco in 1563 and was important also as a colonial town.

DURANGO (Mexico)

State of NW central Mexico. The region was first explored by Spain in 1562. During the colonial epoch it formed, together with CHIHUAHUA, the province of Nueva Viscaya. In 1823, after the revolution, Durango became a state and was plagued by Indian attacks throughout the 19th century.

DURANGO (United States)

City in SW COLORADO on the Animas River, in the foothills of the La Plata Mts. Founded during a mining boom in 1880 by the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, it was named the following year for DURANGO, MEXICO, a famous mining center. In 1948 mining for uranium caused a boom.

DURANT [former: Durant Junction] (United States)

City, S OKLAHOMA, 46 mi ESE of ARDMORE. The site was settled in 1870 by a Choctaw family named Durant and called Durant Junction when the railroad arrived in 1872. The name was shortened in 1882.

DURANT JUNCTION See DURANT

DURAZNO [San Pedro de Durazno] (Uruguay)

Town on the Yi River, 105 mi N of MONTEVIDEO. Long in a no-man's land between Spanish and Portuguese territories, it was officially founded in 1821 by José Fructuoso Rivera. It was a republican stronghold during the struggle for Uruguayan independence from SPAIN between 1811 and 1814.

DURAZZO See DURRËS

DURBAN [former: Port Natal] (South Africa)

City and major port in KWAZULU-NATAL. The site, on an inlet of the INDIAN OCEAN, was discovered on Christmas 1497 by the Portuguese navigator Vasco da Gama. Known to the English by 1684, it was not settled until 1824. It is the oldest settlement in Natal. Laid out in 1835, it was then named for Sir Benjamin d'Urban, governor of CAPE COLONY. Besieged by Boers in 1842, the British troops were brought relief by Dick King's 600-mile ride to GRAHAMSTOWN. Durban became part of British Natal in 1843. It saw much social unrest, due to its large Indian population, which, along with the blacks, had been severely repressed. Durban is now the second-largest city in South Africa, Africa's busiest container port, and a major center of tourism.

DURBUY (Belgium)

Township in Luxembourg province, on the Ourthe River. The smallest township in Belgium, it was originally a Roman army post. In the 11th century it became the capital of a small county, and remained largely independent until the 14th century. It then was absorbed by the duchy of LUXEMBOURG.

DÜREN [ancient: Marcodurum] (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE-WESTPHALIA, on the Rur River, near Aachen. Charlemagne held two diets here in the late eighth century. In 1242 Emperor Frederick II gave Düren to the duke of JÜLICH. It was captured and burned by the troops of Emperor Charles V in 1543. In 1815 it became part of Rhine province in PRUSSIA. The city was almost totally destroyed in November 1944 by Allied air attacks.

DURG [former: Drug] (India)

Town, SE MADHYA PRADESH, 150 mi E of NAGPUR. The town's name is derived from durga, the Hindu word for fort. In Durg are the remains of an ancient fortress that the MARATHA CONFEDERATION used as a base of operations in subjugating the Chattisgarh plain in the 1740s.

DURHAM [Old English: Dunholme] (England)

Administrative headquarters of DURHAM, county 15 mi S of NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE. The relics of St. Cuthbert were brought to Durham in 995, and a church was constructed as his shrine. The cathedral, among the finest examples of Norman architecture in England, was begun in 1093 on the same site. It contains the tomb of the Venerable Bede, the theologian and historian who died in 735 and was named a saint in 1899.

DURHAM (England)

County on the North Sea, between the Tees and the Tyne rivers. Occupied by the Romans, Durham was later part of the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of NORTHUMBRIA. The county was organized as a palatinate under the bishop of Durham after the Norman Conquest and held this status until 1836.

DURHAM [former: Oyster River] (United States)

Town in SE NEW HAMPSHIRE, on the Oyster River, just S of Dover. Settled in 1635, the town was incorporated and named for DURHAM, ENGLAND, in 1732. It suffered from Indian attacks for more than 20 years before it was burned in 1694. During the American Revolution, gunpowder and weapons stolen from the British were hidden here. It is the site of the University of New Hampshire.

DURHAM (United States)

City in N central NORTH CAROLINA, in the Piedmont region, 28 mi NW of RALEIGH. Although it was settled in 1852, Durham remained a small village until after the Civil War, when the railroads and the tobacco industry stimulated its growth. Duke University, formerly Trinity College, was moved from a nearby county to Durham in 1892 and renamed in 1924 for James B. Duke, a leading tobacco manufacturer. Durham is part of a large educational and research complex called the Research Triangle, which includes the University of North Carolina at CHAPEL HILL and the high-tech industries and research firms of Research Triangle Park. During the Civil War, in a battle nearby, General Joseph Eggleston Johnston surrendered to General William Tecumseh Sherman of the Union.

DURIUS See DURO RIVER

DURLACH (Germany)

Since 1938 it has been the E district of KARLSRUHE, on the Pfingz River. The district's 16th-century castle, now in ruins, was destroyed by the French in 1689. From 1565 to 1715 Durlach was the residence of the margraves of Baden-Durlach.

DÚRLA ÉILA See THURLES

DURNOVARIA See DORCHESTER, MAIDEN CASTLE

DÜRNSTEIN (Austria)

Village in LOWER AUSTRIA, on the DANUBE RIVER, 4 mi WSW of KREMS. Richard I of ENGLAND was imprisoned here in 1192 by Leopold of Austria in now ruined Dürnstein fortress. Tradition has it that the troubadour Blondel de Nesle found him here by singing a familiar melody. Richard was released, for a huge ransom, in 1194.

DUROBRIVAE See ROCHESTER, England

DUROCATALAUNUM See CHÂLONS-SUR-CHAMPAGNE

DUROCORTORUM See RHEIMS

DURO RIVER [ancient: Durius; Spanish: Duero] (Portugal and Spain)

River that rises in N central Spain, flows W and then SW, forming part of the Spanish-Portuguese border, after which it flows W across N Portugal to the Atlantic Ocean. Approximately 475 miles long, it has deep gorges and rapids that make it of no navigable use, but it is valuable for irrigation and hydroelectric power. It is one of the longest rivers of the Iberian Peninsula. The chief crop along its course is grapes. Near its mouth is OPORTO, the center of the Portuguese wine trade, especially port, to which the city gave its name. Colonization and warfare in antiquity and the Middle Ages have marked the history of towns along the Duro. At NUMANTIA, Spain, are the ruins of a city whose inhabitants fought the Romans from 195 to 133 B.C.; while ZAMORA, Spain, was at a strategic site contested in the Middle Ages. Remains of ancient walls are at Aranda de Duero, Spain, and of medieval churches at SORIA and ALMAZA, also in Spain.

DUROSTORUM See SILISTRA

DUROVERNUM See CANTERBURY

DURRËS [ancient: Dyrrachium, Dyrrhacium, Epidamnus; Italian: Durazzo] (Albania)

Port in W Albania on the Adriatic Sea, approximately 20 mi W of TIRANË. It was founded by colonists from Corcyra, now CORFU, and CORINTH c. 625 B.C. The political conflict between the two is one of the probable causes of the Peloponnesian Wars of 431 to 404 B.C. Control passed to the Romans after 229 B.C., and the city's importance as a base for Roman military operations increased. It was here that Pompey made his last successful stand against Caesar in 48 B.C. Its peak of prosperity was in the fourth century A.D. It passed on to the BYZANTINE EMPIRE in the eighth century, thence to NAPLES, SERBIA, and VENICE in succession. In 1501 the Turks conquered it, and thereafter its influence declined rapidly. Durrës has many mosques in the Islamic style and some medieval fortifications erected by VENICE. Some Byzantine towers remain despite heavy damage in World War II, and several Roman arenas have been uncovered.

DURRINGTON (England)

Old farming village in WILTSHIRE, on the Avon River, 9 mi N of SALISBURY. Nearby is a large ceremonial prehistoric earthwork, enclosed by a circular ditch, called Woodhenge. It is thought that the interior held a mammoth circular structure of wood. Close to it is a similar ceremonial earthwork called Durrington Walls. Both date from the late third millennium B.C. and are older than STONEHENGE. See also AVEBURY.

DURROW (Ireland)

Village in N County OFFALY, 4 mi NNW of TULLAMORE. Durrow Abbey was founded in A.D. 553 by St. Columba. The illuminated Book of Durrow, now in Trinity College Library, DUBLIN, was written here in the seventh century.

DUR SHARRUKIN See KHORSABAD

DUR UNTASHI See CHOGA-ZAMBIL

DÜSSELDORF (Germany)

City, capital of NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, on the RHINE RIVER near COLOGNE. An old town, it was chartered in 1288 and was the capital of the duchy of BERG. In 1795 it was captured by FRANCE and held by Napoleon in 1805. The poet Heinrich Heine was born here in 1797. The city's famous art academy, which gave its name in the 19th century to the Düsseldorf School, was founded in 1819. The city was bombed severely in World War II from May 1943 to March 1945 and surrendered on April 17, 1945.

DUST BOWL (United States)

Region comprising SW KANSAS, SE COLORADO, NE NEW MEXICO, and the OKLAHOMA and TEXAS panhandles, stricken by drought from 1933 to 1939. During World War I farmers in the area abandoned stock raising for grain cultivation, and the land subsequently suffered from extensive wind and dust storms during the drought of the 1930s. In the Great Depression the region lost about 60 percent of its population through emigration. The storms have continued year by year, but rainfall and better land management have reduced their size. John Steinbeck's novel The Grapes of Wrath is about a migrating dust-bowl family.

DUTCH EAST INDIES See INDONESIA

DUTCHESS See HYDE PARK

DUTCH GUIANA See SURINAME

DUTCH HARBOR See ALEUTIAN ISLANDS

DUTCH NEW GUINEA See IRIAN BARAT

DUTTIA See DATIA

DVINSK See DAUGAVPILS

DWARKA [Jagat, Jigat] (India)

Town and port, 70 mi SW of JĀMNAGAR in GUJARAT state. Dwarka is one of the seven sacred Hindu cities of India and an important pilgrimage site. It contains famous Vishnuite temples, including one dedicated to Krishna. The eighth-century Vedantic philosopher Shankaracharya founded a school here.

DYAKA See JACA

DYBBOL [German: Düppel] (Denmark)

Town, S JUTLAND, on the coast, 6 mi SW of SØNDERBORG. In 1848 and 1849 the town was contested by the Danes and the Prussians, who took it. After 1860 it was held by Denmark until retaken by PRUSSIA in 1864. After a plebiscite it was returned to Denmark in 1920.

DYFED (Wales)

County in SW Wales established in 1974, on St. George's Channel, Cardigan Bay, and the Bristol Channel. It replaced the separate counties of Cardiganshire, Carmarthenshire, and Pembrokeshire. The administrative headquarters is CARMARTHEN. Dyfed, later Pembrokeshire, was also an ancient region with a history going back to the Stone Age, as witnessed by grave mounds and stone circles. There are also remains of the Iron Age. The Romans were active on the S coastal plain, while Celts later founded many churches, such as ST. DAVID's and Llanbadarn. In Dyfed King Hywel Dda (Hewel the Good) of Wales (d c. A.D. 950) first codified the Welsh laws. In the 11th century the Norman conquerors erected castles on the lowlands of the S coast and brought in English and Flemish settlers. By an act of union in 1536 Henry VIII of England created the three counties that are now combined in Dyfed. In 1994, the Welsh Local Government Act broke up Dyfed into Ceredigion (Cardiganshire), Carmarthenshire, and Pembrokeshire.

DYRRACHIUM See DURRËS

DYRRHACIUM See DURRË

DYSART See KIRCALDY

DZACHU See MEKONG RIVER

DZAUDZHIKAU See VLADIKAVKAS

DZHAMBUL [former: Aulie-Ata, Mirzoyan; medieval: Talas, Taraz, Yani] (Kazakhstan)
City and capital of Dzhambul oblast, on the Talas River. Dating from the seventh century A.D., it was ruled by the Arabs in the eighth and ninth centuries. It was the capital of the Kazakh state from the 10th to the 12th centuries. It passed to RUSSIA in 1864 and was called Auli-Ata until 1938.

DZHIBKHALANTU See ULIASTAY

DZHIDA RIVER [Zidzha] (Russia)
River that rises in the E Sayan Mts and flows 300 mi to the Selenga River, 20 mi S of Selenduma. In its valley are numerous burial mounds that mark the progress of Mongolian Huns westward from the Ordos region of north CHINA in the fourth century B.C. Freezing temperatures helped preserve the mounds' contents, which were first excavated in 1890.

DZHIZAK (Uzbekistan)

City, NE Samarkand oblast, 55 mi NE of SAMARKAND. A trading center on major caravan routes until the late 19th century, Dzhizak declined with the construction of a railroad in the region. The Russians captured the city in 1886.

DZHUNGARIYA See DZUNGARIA

DZIERŻONIÓW [German: Reichenbach] (Poland)

Town, S central Wrocław province, formerly in SILESIA, GERMANY. It was founded in the 13th century. On August 6, 1762, it was the site of the Battle of Reichenbach, in which Frederick the Great threw back the Austrians. A conference between RUSSIA and PRUSSIA was held here in 1813 in which AUSTRIA agreed to side against Napoleon. The POTSDAM Conference of 1945 gave the town to Poland.

DZUNGARIA [Sungaria, Zungaria] [Russian: Dzhungariya] (China)

Region in N XINJIANG. It was a Mongol kingdom from the 11th to 14th centuries that Tamerlane conquered in 1389. The Kalmucks held it until 1759, when China seized it and made it part of Xinjiang province.

E

EACHDHRUIM See AUGHRIM

EAGLAIS BHREAC See FALKIRK

EAGLE PASS (United States)

City and port of entry on the RIO GRANDE River in SW TEXAS, 52 mi SSE of DEL RIO, on the Mexican border. It was originally a garrison town on the old California gold rush trail, used during the Civil War by the Confederacy to ship goods blockaded elsewhere. During Pancho Villa's revolution in Mexico nearby Fort Duncan was a U.S. military base.

EAST AFRICAN PROTECTORATE See KENYA

EAST ANGLIA (England)

Ancient kingdom of E England, between The Wash and the THAMES RIVER estuary, comprising the counties of NORFOLK, SUFFOLK, and parts of CAMBRIDGESHIRE and ESSEX. Part of the Roman SAXON SHORE in the late empire, it was settled by Angles in the late fifth century A.D. It had become one of the most powerful kingdoms of Anglo-Saxon England by the late sixth century due to the protection of the Fens. Raedwald of East Anglia, the overlord of southern England, seized the throne of NORTHUMBRIA, but the power of his kingdom was eclipsed by the rise of MERCA. In 825 East Anglia and WESSEX rebelled against Mercia, following which East Anglia became a dependency of Wessex. Devastated by Danish invasions in the ninth century, it became part of the DANELAW in 886 and only became an earldom of England after Edward the Elder had defeated the Danes in 917.

EAST BERLIN See BERLIN

EASTBOURNE (England)

Seaside resort in SUSSEX, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 19 mi E of BRIGHTON. The city is in an area showing traces of Roman occupation. It was fortified in the early 19th century to meet the threat of invasion from Napoleonic FRANCE. It was developed by the seventh duke of Devonshire as a resort in the late 19th century.

EAST CAPE PROVINCE (South Africa)

Province created in 1994 out of the E part of CAPE PROVINCE and the former black homelands of TRANSKEI and Ciskei. Its capital is Bhisho, the former capital of Ciskei. The largest city is PORT ELIZABETH.

EAST CHELMSFORD See LOWELL

EAST DEREHAM [Dereham] (England)

Town in NORFOLK, 16 mi W of NORWICH. It was the site of a seventh-century convent destroyed by the Danes. The poet William Cowper lived here from 1796 to 1800.

EASTER ISLAND [native: Rapa Nui; Spanish: Isla de Pascua] (Chile)

Island administered as part of VALPARAÍSO province, in S Pacific Ocean, approximately 2,200 mi W of Chile, of which it is a dependency. It was named on Easter 1722 by the Dutchman Jakob Roggeveen. The population had been reduced by European diseases and Spanish slave traders to about 100 by 1887, and in 1888 Chile annexed the island. It is famous for its monolithic stone heads, ranging from 10 to 40 ft high, some weighing more than 50 tons.

EASTERN ROMAN EMPIRE See BYZANTINE EMPIRE, ROMAN EMPIRE

EASTERN RUMELIA (Bulgaria)

Former province including the Rhodope Mts and the MARITSA RIVER valley, with PLOVDIV as the chief town. It was established by TURKEY as an autonomous province at the Congress of Berlin in 1878 but remained under Turkish rule. Its annexation by Bulgaria in 1885 led to SERBIA's declaring war on Bulgaria. Serbia won nothing and in 1886 had to yield greater control to Bulgaria. See also RUMELIA.

EASTERN SAMOA See AMERICAN SAMOA

EASTERN TURKISTAN See XINJIANG

EAST FRIESLAND [German: Ostfriesland] (Germany)

Region and former duchy in Lower SAXONY on the NORTH SEA, including the East FRISIAN ISLANDS, with EMDEN as its chief city. A county of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE from 1454, it became a duchy in 1654 and passed to PRUSSIA in 1744. It was transferred several times during the French Revolutionary Wars and became part of HANOVER in 1815. See also FRIESLAND.

EAST GERMANY See GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC

EAST GRANBY (United States)

Town in N CONNECTICUT, 12 mi N of HARTFORD. Close by is Newgate Prison, which was used during the American Revolution and became one of the first state prisons.

EAST GRINSTEAD (England)

Town in East SUSSEX, 25 mi S of LONDON. A 12th-century market town, it became a center of the iron industry in the Middle Ages. The Queen Victoria Hospital was founded here in 1889 and since 1939 has become world famous for plastic surgery.

EAST HAMPTON [former: Maidstone] (United States)

Town in SE NEW YORK State on the Atlantic Ocean, on LONG ISLAND, 20 mi W of Montauk Point. Settled in 1648, it was part of CONNECTICUT until 1664. John Howard Payne, the author of Home, Sweet Home, lived here. It is now a fashionable and expensive summer resort.

EAST INDIES See INDIA, INDONESIA, MALAYSIA

EAST INDONESIA See INDONESIA, SULAWESI

EAST JERSEY See NEW JERSEY

EAST LONDON [Afrikaans: Oos-Londen; former: Port Rex] (South Africa)

City and port in East CAPE PROVINCE, 150 mi ENE of PORT ELIZABETH, on the Indian Ocean. In 1847 it was a British military base during the Kaffir wars, and it was then annexed to Cape Colony.

EAST PAKISTAN See BANGLADESH

EAST PRUSSIA [German: Ostpreussen] (Poland, Russia, Lithuania)

Former Province of GERMANY, on the SE shore of the Baltic Sea, now partly in Olsztyn province, NE Poland, partly in Russia and partly in Lithuania. Its capital was Königsberg, now KALININGRAD. The indigenous Prussians were ousted in the 13th century by the Teutonic Knights who made MALBORK the headquarters of their grand master in 1309. At the Peace of TORÚN in 1466 East Prussia came under Polish suzerainty and in 1618 was inherited by the elector of BRANDENBURG. It became fully a part of PRUSSIA in 1701, but was separated from Germany after World War I by the POLISH CORRIDOR and the free city of Danzig, now GDAŃSK. Reunited with the German Reich during World War II, it was divided between Poland and the Soviet Union after the war. It was traditionally the stronghold of the Junkers, the Prussian landowning and military aristocracy who represented the core of the old Prussia.

EAST SAGINAW See SAGINAW

EAST SAINT LOUIS [former: Illinoistown] (United States)

City in SW ILLINOIS, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER opposite St. LOUIS. Originally a ferry station, it was laid out as a village in 1812, and it developed as a transportation center in the second half of the 19th century. It was the scene of the most serious outbreak of racial antagonism in the United States in World War I, when on July 2, 1917, whites committed indiscriminate violence against blacks in reaction to the employment of the latter in the war industries. Forty blacks and eight whites were killed.

EAST SEA See DEAD SEA

EAST TIMOR See TIMOR LESTE

EBBSFLEET (England)

Village in NE KENT, on Pegwell Bay on the Strait of DOVER, 2 mi WSW of RAMSGATE, SE England. It was reputedly the landing place in A.D. 449 of Hengist and Horsa, among the earliest Saxon invaders of southern Britain. St. Augustine landed here in 597.

EBERSWALDE (Germany)

City in BRANENBURG, 28 mi NE of BERLIN, on the Finow Canal. Founded in 1254, it was chartered in the early 14th century and settled by Thuringian cutlers during the mid-18th century. In 1913 gold artifacts dating from 1050 to 850 B.C. were found here.

EBLA (Syria)

Archaeological site, locally known as Tell Mardikh, approximately 30 mi SW of ALEPPO. Excavations in the 1960s and 1970s revealed an ancient metropolis of a hitherto unknown pre-Canaanite Semitic culture of c. 2400 to 2000 B.C. At one time the city-state, with perhaps 260,000 people, controlled most of Syria down into CANAAN and as far E as MARI. It was a commercial kingdom, run by an elaborate bureaucracy, and with an elective kingship backed by a council of elders. The Early Bronze Age city was destroyed c. 2250 B.C., probably by Naram-Sin of AKKAD. After a second destruction of c. 2000 B.C., possibly by Amorites, the city was fortified and by the Middle Bronze Age was again a prosperous city. Ebla was finally obliterated by the Hittites c. 1600 B.C. In 1975 an archive of over 15,000 cunei-form clay tablets was found in the ruins of the palace, which throw much light on the administration and literature of the kingdom. Many of the names deciphered on the tablets are curiously reminiscent of late Old Testament biblical names. See HITTITE EMPIRE.

EBLANA See DUBLIN

EBOLI (Italy)

Town in Salerno province, CAMPANIA, 17 mi ESE of SALERNO. Eboli was badly damaged by heavy fighting following the Allied landings at Salerno in World War II.

EBORA See ÉVORA

EBORACUM See YORK

EBOT See ABYDOS

EBRO RIVER [Latin: Hiberus, Iberus] (Spain)

River that rises in the Cantabrian Mts and flows SE for 565 mi to a delta on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, between BARCELONA and VALENCIA. The longest river in Spain, it is navigable for only 15 mi from the sea. During the Spanish civil war it was the scene of a great Loyalist defeat between August and November 1938. Today the hydroelectric power plants in the Ebro system supply about half of Spain's hydroelectricity.

EBUDAE See HEBRIDES, THE

EBURACUM See YORK

EBURODUNENSIS See NEUCHÂTEL, LAKE of

EBURODUNUM (France) See EMBRUN

EBURODUNUM (Switzerland) See YVERDON

EBUSUS See IBIZA

ECBATANA See HAMADAN

ECHMIADZIN [former: Vagarshapat, Vardkesavan] (Armenia)

City in Armenia, 12 mi W of YEREVAN. Dating from the sixth century B.C., it was a capital of PARTHIA under Vologases III c. A.D. 140. It became the residence of the Armenian patriarch c. 300 and ceased to be the capital of Armenia in 344. Circa 300, Gregory the Illuminator founded a monastery here that contains a rich collection of Armenian literature.

ECHTERNACH (Luxembourg)

Town on the Sûre River, 18 mi NE of the city of LUXEMBOURG, on the German border. The mineral springs here were used by the ancient Romans. In A.D. 698, St. Willibrord, missionary to the Germans, founded a Benedictine abbey here, around which the town grew up. Echternach was important in the Battle of the Bulge of 1944–45, during World War II.

ÉCIJA [former: Astigi; Latin: Colonia Augusta Firma; Moorish: Estadja] (Spain)

City in Sevilla province, ANDALUSIA, 48 mi ENE of SEVILLE, on the Genil River. Predating Roman times, the town became a Roman colony and has Roman remains. Ferdinand III of León and CASTILE took the city in 1240.

ECKERNFÖRDE (Germany)

Town and port in SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, on an inlet of the Baltic Sea, 15 mi NW of KIEL. During the revolt of Schleswig-Holstein against DENMARK, two coastal batteries here defeated a Danish fleet in 1849.

ECKMÜHL See EGGMÜHLÉCLUSE See SLUYSECUADOR

Nation in NW South America, on the Pacific Ocean, bordered by COLOMBIA on the N and PERU on the S and E. The equator runs through the country.

Remains of a culture of approximately 5,000 years ago have been found here, and when the first Europeans arrived the region was inhabited by a number of Indian tribes. In the late 15th century they had been conquered by the expanding INCA EMPIRE. A Spanish conquistador, Sebastián de Benalcázar, entered the region in 1533, captured QUITO, then an Indian town, in 1534 and formed a Spanish settlement. The next year he founded GUAYAQUIL. Finding no precious stones or minerals, Benalcázar's party lost interest in the area. Guayaquil was attacked by pirates several times in the 17th century.

Ecuador was made a unit of the colonial empire of SPAIN in 1563. Temporarily in 1717 and again in 1739, Ecuador became part of a viceroyalty called NEW GRANADA. This comprised the present nations of Ecuador, Colombia, VENEZUELA, and PANAMA. An uprising against Spanish rule in 1809 was abortive, but independence was won in 1822. It was achieved through the leadership of Simón Bolívar and Antonio José de Sucre, both born in Venezuela. They defeated Spanish forces on May 24, 1822, on the slopes of the volcano Pichincha. Bolívar became president of GRAN COLOMBIA, made up of the same four areas as the viceroyalty.

Gran Colombia broke up in 1830 when Ecuador and Venezuela seceded. Juan José Flores became Ecuador's president, but he was ousted in 1843, and a period of disorder followed. During his rule Ecuador occupied the GALÁPAGOS ISLANDS, approximately 600 miles W in the Pacific Ocean. The 1860s and 1870s were dominated by Gabriel García Moreno, a religious zealot, who was followed by Antonio Flores, who brought domestic peace. In turn Flavio Eloy Alfaro, who was strongly anticlerical, ruled for approximately 15 years after 1895. From the 1920s through the 1940s there were frequent changes of presidents, a dozen holding the office between 1931 and 1940. José María Velasco Ibarra, a Liberal, was elected president five times between 1934 and 1972 but completed only one term, being ousted from office at other times. Galo Plaza Lasso, a Liberal president from 1948 to 1952, was able to stabilize the political situation. Camilo Ponce Enríquez, elected in 1956, became the first Conservative president in 60 years.

Meanwhile the nation was engaged in a boundary dispute with Peru that went back to 1860. This concerned the Oriente, the part of Ecuador E of the ANDES MOUNTAINS at the headwaters of the Amazon. In 1941 the two nations warred, and the next year Ecuador was forced to cede a large area to Peru, only to have President Velasco Ibarra denounce the treaty in 1960. The 1960s and 1970s were times of frequent coups and changes of president, although between 1961 and 1963 Carlos Julio Arosemena Monroy's policies improved the economic situation. Oil was discovered in the Amazon in 1972, and has been a major force in the development of the economy. After a long period of rule by a military junta, Jaime Roldós Aguilera was elected president in 1979 in a peaceful transfer of power. On Aguilera's death in a plane crash in May 1981 power passed peacefully to his vice president Osvaldo Hurtado, who continued Roldós's reform program. In January 1981 fighting over the Peru-Ecuador boundary broke out once more, but in March both sides agreed to mediation.

In 1990, the indigenous peoples organized a series of boycotts and demonstrations, known as "the Uprising," and in 1992 they were given title to a large area of rain forest in the eastern part of the country. In 1994, Ecuador renegotiated much of its foreign debt. In 1995, Ecuador and Peru again went to war over their border conflict. In 1998, the countries made peace, agreeing to a border settlement that gave Ecuador access to the Amazon River. The late 1990s saw an economic downturn due to lower crude oil prices. In 1999, the military intervened in the government, replacing President Mahuad with Vice President Gustavo Noboa. In 2001, Ecuador replaced its currency with the U.S. dollar to stabilize prices. Unrest in 2004 from government austerity policies sparked protests that led to the removal of another president. Quito is the capital and Guayaquil the largest city.

EDDO See TOKYO

EDENGLASSIE See BRISBANE

EDENTON (United States)

Town in NE NORTH CAROLINA, on Albemarle Sound, 55 mi SSW of NORFOLK, VIRGINIA. Settled in 1658, it was the unofficial capital of the colony from 1722 to 1766. The so-called Edenton Tea Party occurred on October 25, 1774, when 51 local women signed a resolution to abstain from drinking tea or wearing clothing imported from England in protest against the taxes imposed on those items.

EDESSA [ancient: Aegae; Greek: Édhessa; medieval: Vodena] (Greece)

Chief city of Pélá department in W MACEDONIA, 48 mi WNW of THESSALONÍKI. As Aegae, it was the first capital of ancient Macedon, remaining so until after the end of the fifth century B.C., when PELLA replaced it. Philip II of MACEDON was assassinated here in 336 B.C. The ancient Romans used the city as a stopping point on the EGNATIAN WAY, linking the ADRIATIC SEA and the AEGEAN SEA. It was captured by the Turks in the 15th century A.D., and passed to Greece in 1912.

EDESSA (Turkey) See URFA

EDFU [Behdet, Idfu] [Coptic: Atbo; Egyptian: Djeba; Greek: Apollinopolis Magna] (Egypt)

Town in Aswān governorate, on the NILE RIVER, 60 mi N of ASWĀN. It was originally the capital of a pre-dynastic upper Egyptian kingdom that thrived c. 3400 B.C. It contains a classic sandstone Egyptian temple dedicated to the chief god of the city, Horus. Begun by Ptolemy III Euergetes in 237 B.C., the temple was finished in 57 B.C. Coptic and Byzantine remains are also found here.

EDGEHILL [Edge Hill] (England)

Ridge, 7 mi NW of BANBURY, on the Oxfordshire-Warwickshire border. The first great battle of the English Civil War took place here on October 23, 1642, between the forces of King Charles I and Prince Rupert and those of Parliament under the third earl of ESSEX. Oliver Cromwell took part in this battle.

ÉDHESSA See EDESSA (Greece)

EDINBURGH [Gaelic: Duneideann] (Scotland)

City and capital of Scotland, and administrative headquarters of the LOTHIAN region, on the S shore of the Firth of FORTH, 42 mi E of GLASGOW. Occupied by British or Welsh tribes, the site was taken c. 617 by Edwin of NORTHUMBRIA, from whom the town took its name. In the late 11th century, Malcolm III of Scotland built a castle here. The city was chartered by Robert I in 1329 and continued to grow, despite attacks from the English, to become the capital in 1437. After James VI became James I of ENGLAND in 1603 the city lost importance and declined further after the Scottish parliament was dissolved by the Act of Union in 1707. It became famous as the home of the Scottish Enlightenment in the 18th and 19th centuries centering around David Hume, Adam Smith, Robert Burns, and Sir Walter Scott. It remains the cultural, banking, and administrative capital of Scotland and is the site of the prestigious International Festival of Music and Drama, held annually since 1947. The city is divided into the picturesque Old

370 Edinburgh

Town and the handsome 18th-century New Town. The center of Edinburgh is Castle Rock with its castle and St. Margaret's chapel of the 11th century. At the other end of the Royal Mile are the rooms used by Mary, Queen of Scots, in Holyrood House, built in the 15th and 16th centuries.

EDINBURGH See MIDLOTHIAN

EDINBURGHSHIRE See MIDLOTHIAN

EDINGEN See ENGHEN

EDIRNE [former: Adrianople; Latin: Adrianopolis, Hadrianopolis] (Turkey)

City and capital of Edirne province, in THRACE, 130 mi NW of ISTANBUL. Strategically positioned on the main route from ASIA MINOR to the Balkans, it was founded c. A.D. 125 by Hadrian on the site of an old Thracian settlement. In 378 it was the site of the Visigoths' defeat of the Emperor Valens. His death left GREECE and the Eastern Empire open to barbarian invasion. The city was conquered by the Avars in 586 and by Bulgars in the 10th century. It was twice ransacked by crusaders before falling to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1362. Edirne was the residence of the Ottoman sultans until the conquest of CONSTANTINOPLE in 1453. The treaty of Adrianople of September 14, 1829, ended the Russo-Turkish War of 1828. It gave Russia access to the mouths of the DANUBE RIVER and granted Greece its independence. It was captured by the Russians in 1829 and 1878 during the Russo-Turkish Wars. It fell to BULGARIA in 1913 during the First Balkan War but was restored to Turkey after the Second Balkan War.

EDMONTON (Canada)

City and capital of ALBERTA, on the North Saskatchewan River, 190 mi N of CALGARY, in the central part of the province. Founded as a fort in 1807, it grew as an agricultural center after the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1891. It became the capital of Alberta in 1905. The city has oil, gas, and coal fields in the vicinity and is a major center of NW Canada.

EDO See TOKYO

EDOM [Idumaea, Idumea] (Jordan)

Ancient country S of the DEAD SEA, stretching along the Arabah Valley to the Gulf of Aqaba. Its capital was PETRA, later also the capital of NABATAEA. Descendants of Esau according to the Bible, the Edomites occupied Edom in the 13th century B.C. A bellicose people, they were continually at war with their neighbors, the Hebrews, Assyrians, and Syrians, but were finally subdued by the Jewish Maccabees. Edom was a prosperous country because of its copper and iron mines and because it lay on the trade route from the ARABIAN PENINSULA to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. The Edomites were finally driven out by the Nabataeans in the fifth century B.C.

EDREI See DAR'Ä

EDWARDS (United States)

Town in W MISSOURI, 16 mi E of VICKSBURG, MISSISSIPPI. During Grant's Vicksburg Campaign in the Civil War the Battle of CHAMPION'S HILL was fought near Edwards in May 1863.

EESTI See ESTONIA

EESTIMAA See ESTONIA

EGADI ISLANDS [Aegadian Isles] [Italian: Isole Egadi; Latin: Aegates Insulae] (Italy)

Small group of islands in Trapani province, off the W coast of SICILY, in the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. In 241 B.C. the Carthaginian fleet was defeated here by the Romans under Gaius Lutatius Catulus in the Battle of the Aegates, which ended the First Punic War. Some evidence of Paleolithic habitation has been found here. See also CARTHAGE, ROME.

EGASTERIA See LAURIUM

EGBA See ABEOKATA

EGE DENIZ See AEGEAN SEA

EGER See CHEB (Czech Republic)

EGER [German: Erlau] (Hungary)

City and seat of Heves county, on the Eger River, 25 mi SW of MISKOLC. One of the first Magyar tribal cities in eastern Europe, it was made a bishopric by St. Stephen in the 11th century A.D. and was destroyed by the Tatars in the 13th century. Once rebuilt, it was conquered in 1596 by the Turks, who held it until 1687 and made it an important Muslim outpost. It became an archiepiscopal see in 1814 and was called the “Rome of Hungary” because of its many religious buildings. See also OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

EGESTA See SEGESTA

EGGMÜHL [Eckmühl] (Germany)

Village in BAVARIA, S of REGENSBURG. On April 22, 1809, the Austrians under Archduke Charles were defeated here by the combined forces of France, Bavaria, and Württemberg under Napoleon. See also ABENSBERG.

EGNATIAN WAY [ancient: Via Egnatia] (Albania, Greece, Turkey)

Important Roman road. It was used by ROME in consolidating conquests in Greece and ASIA MINOR. It ran from Dyrrhachium, now DURRËS, in Albania through THESSALONÍKI to Byzantium, now ISTANBUL. It was widely used as a trade route in the Middle Ages and as a route for invaders and crusaders from southern Italy. Parts of the ancient road are still in use.

EGYPT [Arabic: Misr; Latin: Aegyptus]

Ancient region and modern nation, one of the earliest great cradles of civilization, located on the NE coast of Africa, along the fertile valley of the NILE RIVER. It is now the Arab Republic of Egypt.

Egypt first coalesced into a nation c. 3100 B.C. when Menes united the two states of Upper and Lower Egypt and made his capital at MEMPHIS. During the next 400 years Egyptian civilization flourished, developing writing, distinctive architecture, and a complex governmental bureaucracy. The period from 2700 to 2200 B.C. is known as the Old Kingdom and was characterized by the erection of massive pyramids honoring the ruling god-kings as well as by the construction of substantial irrigation projects along the Nile. The Old Kingdom ended in disunity and civil war, and Egypt was not reunited until 2050 B.C. when nobles from THEBES created the Middle Kingdom, from 2050 to 1800 B.C. During this epoch Egypt extended its control into present NUBIA, SYRIA, and ISRAEL. The Hyksos, a Semitic people from the NE, invaded Egypt in the 17th century B.C., employing advanced military techniques. They were expelled after a tenure of c. 100 years.

Circa 1570 B.C. the early New Kingdom brought prosperity and expansion to Egypt. Queen Hatshepsut, heiress of Thutmose I, ruled in the late 15th century with her husband and half-brother, Thutmose III, building temples, on one of which is depicted an expedition to PUNT. She was the mother of Amenhotep II. Under Thutmose III Egypt achieved its greatest territorial extent, reaching to Hittite Anatolia and E toward MESOPOTAMIA. In this period, probably under Ramses II, the Hebrews fled Egypt in the biblical Exodus. The kingdom was rocked c. 1370 B.C. when Amenhotep IV ascended the throne. He changed his name to Akhenaton, moved his capital to Akhetaton, now called TELL AL AMARNA, and attempted to transform Egypt's religious structure to the worship of one god, Aton, the sun. After Akhenaton's death the priesthood quickly revived its traditional worship and control and the capital was returned to Thebes. The later New Kingdom, from 1300 to 1090 B.C., was prosperous and successfully fended off attacks by Hittites, Philistines, and other powerful kingdoms. One of the last pharaohs of the New Kingdom was the well-known “boy king,” Tutankhamen, actually an insignificant ruler.

By the beginning of the 11th century B.C. Egypt was a competitor in a world armed with iron weapons. The country had no domestic source of iron and gradually lost its foreign possessions. In 945 B.C. Egypt itself fell under the control of a succession of rulers from LIBYA, SUDAN, ASSYRIA, and PERSIA. In 332 B.C. Alexander the Great of MACEDON took the country, and after his death control passed to the Hellenistic dynasty of the Ptolemies, originating with one of his generals. Egypt flourished under Ptolemaic rule, and the new capital at ALEXANDRIA became the religious and intellectual center of Western civilization. The Ptolemaic dynasty ended with Cleopatra's death after the Battle of ACTIUM in 31 B.C., when Egypt became a province of ROME.

In A.D. 395 the BYZANTINE EMPIRE inherited Egypt and ruled it until 639, when an Arab invasion sponsored by BAGHDAD commenced. Alexandria fell in A.D. 642, and Islam became the dominant religion in a country that had earlier been a center of Coptic Christianity. In 969 the Tunisian Fatimid dynasty conquered Egypt. A new capital was founded at CAIRO, which quickly became a major Islamic center. In 1171 the Muslim warrior Saladin seized the throne, and his successors held it until 1250, when the sultan's bodyguard revolted and founded the MAMLUK EMPIRE. The Mamluks retained practical power in Egypt even after it became a possession of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1517. In 1805 an Albanian officer of the Ottoman army, named Mehmet (Mohammad) Ali, seized the throne and broke the Mamluk power. During his rule he introduced cotton-growing, modernized Egypt's armed forces, and revitalized the commercial and educational systems.

The SUEZ CANAL was built by a French company between 1859 and 1869. Great Britain bought out Egypt's interest in 1875 and in 1881 sent troops to put down a nationalist uprising that threatened their investment. Occupied since 1882, in 1914 Egypt became a British protectorate when the Ottoman Empire sided with Germany in World War I, and in 1922 it was granted independence as a kingdom. British and German troops fought tank battles across western Egypt in World War II. In 1953 the country became a republic, and Gamal Abdel Nasser quickly assumed power. Antagonism toward the new state of ISRAEL was the major influence in modern Egypt's history as it became the leading proponent of non-aligned Arab unity.

In 1958 Syria and YEMEN joined with Egypt to form the United Arab Republic (UAR), but the union dissolved in 1961. In 1967 the Suez Canal was closed when the Six-Day War brought humiliating defeat as Israel outmatched Egyptian, Syrian, and Jordanian forces and seized the SINAI Peninsula and GAZA Strip. Nasser died in 1970 and was succeeded by Anwar el Sadat. Another full-scale war with Israel erupted in 1973, and part of the Sinai was initially recaptured by Egypt. Negotiations brought about a further Israeli withdrawal, and in 1975 the canal was reopened. In 1979 Sadat established friendly relations with Israel, in response to the persuasion of U.S. president Jimmy Carter, breaking with the rest of the Arab world. Sadat was assassinated by a fundamentalist Arab group in 1981, and Hosni Mubarak then became president. In 1989 Israel returned Taba Strip, its last occupied territory in the Sinai. In 1991 Egypt supported the United States in the Gulf War and in return the United States cancelled $7 billion in Egyptian debt. In the 1990s terrorist violence from Islamic fundamentalists killed more than 1,000 Egyptians. In 1997 an attack on tourists visiting the Temple of Hatshepsut at Luxor claimed some 70 lives. The government cracked down on the militants and over 25,000 were jailed and dozens sentenced to death. In 1999, Mubarak was reelected. In the early 2000s, there were calls for political reform, and in 2005 Mubarak called for a constitutional amendment to permit the direct election of the president from among a multiparty slate, but with some restrictions on the candidates. See also HITTITE EMPIRE, PHILISTIA.

EHRENBREITSTEIN (Germany)

Former town in RHINELAND-PALATINATE, now part of KOBLENZ, on a cliff overlooking the RHINE RIVER. Site of an early medieval fortress, it was passed to Emperor Henry II in 1018 and underwent repeated attacks and refortification during the 18th century. It was held by the French during the French Revolution. It was taken by U.S. forces on March 27, 1945, during World War II.

EHRINGSDORF (Germany)

Suburb of S WEIMAR, in THURINGIA. In 1925 a skull and skeletons were found here. The skull dates from the Third Interglacial Period of 75,000 B.C. and is believed by many experts to represent one of the earliest Neanderthal fossils to be found.

EIBAR (Spain)

City in Guipúzcoa province, 27 mi WSW of SAN SEBASTIAN. A Basque city, it was chartered in 1346 by Alfonso XI of CASTILE. A center of armaments production since the 16th century, it suffered heavily from Nationalist bombardment during the Spanish civil war. See also BASQUE PROVINCES.

EICHSTADT See EICHSTÄTT

EICHSTÄTT [Eichstadt] (Germany)

Town in BAVARIA, on the Altmühl River, 67 mi NNW of MUNICH. On the site of a Roman station, it grew after the founding of a bishopric here by St. Boniface in A.D. 741. It continued to be ruled by its prince-bishops until 1802. It was given to Eugène de Beauharnais by the king of Bavaria in 1817 but was reunited with Bavaria in 1855. The site of the tomb of St. Willibald, early missionary to the Germans, it is a pilgrimage center.

EIDSVOLD [Eidsvoll] (Norway)

Town in Akershus county, 30 mi NE of OSLO. The assemblies of Eidsivalag, one of Norway's oldest confederacies, were held here from the first century A.D., and the present constitution of Norway was proclaimed here on May 17, 1814. This provided for a unicameral national assembly and denied the king the power of an absolute veto.

EIDSVOLL See EIDSVOLD

EILAT See ELAT

EILENBURG (Germany)

City in Saxony, on the Mulde River, 13 mi NE of LEIPZIG. In the 10th century it was the site of a fortress used by Henry I in his war with the Sorbs, or Wends. It passed to the margraves of MEISSEN in 1396 and to PRUSSIA in 1815.

EINBECK (Germany)

Town in S LOWER SAXONY, 40 mi S of HANOVER. Developed around the site of a monastery founded in 1080, it was the seat of the princes of Grubenhagen from the 14th century to 1596. It was also a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE.

EINDHOVEN (Netherlands)

City in North Brabant province, on the Dommel River, 55 mi SE of ROTTERDAM. Chartered in 1232, it remained a small village until the foundation of the Philips Electric Company works here in 1891, that caused it to become one of Holland's biggest industrial centers. It saw a large growth in population between 1900 and 1920. Heavily damaged in World War II, it was captured by the Allies in September 1944 in an important airborne operation. It has since been rebuilt.

EIN GEDI See EN-GEDI

EIN GEV (Israel)

Settlement in Northern district, on the E shore of the Lake of GALILEE, six mi E of TIBERIAS. Founded in 1937, it was damaged during the Arab riots during the period 1936–39, and during the Arab invasion of 1948. Hippos, an ancient town of the DECAPOLIS, was situated to the southeast.

EIN HAROD (Israel)

Settlement in Northern district, 7 mi ESE of Afula, in the Plain of ESDRAELON. It was the headquarters of Wingate's special police during Arab riots of 1936 to 1939 and an important Israeli defensive base during the Arab invasion of 1948. The well of Harod, mentioned in the Bible, is nearby.

EINSIEDELN [French: Notre-Dame-des-Ermites] (Switzerland)

Town in Schwyz canton, on the Alp Stream, 9 mi NNE of SCHWYZ. It grew up around a Benedictine abbey that was founded in 934, and it became a principality of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE in 1274. In 1386 it passed to Schwyz and later became an important pilgrimage center because of the wooden statue of the Black Virgin here. Ulrich Zwingli was a priest here from 1516 to 1518 and the Renaissance physician Paracelsus was born nearby.

EIRE See IRELAND

EISENACH [former: Isenache] (Germany)

City in Erfurt district, 31 mi W of ERFURT. Founded c. 1150 by the landgraves of THURINGIA, it was conquered by the Saxon house of Wettin in 1264 and was the seat of a separate Saxon duchy at various times from 1596 to 1741, when it fell to SAXE-WEIMAR. Luther studied here from 1498 to 1501 and in 1521 completed his vernacular translation of the Bible in the ancient Wartburg Castle nearby. Johann Sebastian Bach was born here in 1685. The Social Democratic Workingmen's Party was founded at the Congress of Eisenach in 1869.

EISENBERG (Germany)

City in Gera district, 38 mi E of ERFURT. First mentioned in 1171, it was the capital of the duchy of Saxe-Eisenberg from 1680 to 1707 and passed to SAXE-ALTENBURG in 1826. See also SAXONY.

EISENBURG (Hungary) See VASVÁR

EISENSTADT (Austria)

Town and capital of BURGENLAND, at the foot of the Leitha Mts, 30 mi SSE of VIENNA. First mentioned in 1264, it was a free city of HUNGARY from 1648 to 1920. Joseph Haydn lived here from 1760 to 1790 under the patronage of the Esterházy family, whose 14th-century palace still stands.

EISLEBEN [former: Islebia] (Germany)

City in HALLE district, in the E foothills of the Harz Mts, 22 mi NW of MERSEBURG. Held by the counts of Mansfeld until 1780, it then passed to SAXONY and finally to PRUSSIA in 1815. Martin Luther was born here in 1483 and died here in 1546.

EITAPE See AITAPE

EKATERINBURG [Sverdlovsk] [former: Yekaterinburg] (Russia)

Capital city of Ekaternburg oblast, in the E foothills of the central Urals on the Iset River. Founded in 1721 by Peter the Great as a fort and metallurgical factory, in 1723 it was named Ekaterinburg in honor of Peter the Great's wife, later Empress Catherine I. During the Russian Revolution, Czar Nicholas II and his family were imprisoned here in 1917 and shot by the Bolsheviks on July 16, 1918. The city was renamed in 1924 for the Bolshevik leader Y. M. Sverdlov. In 1991, it was renamed Ekerterinberg.

EKATERINENSTADT See MARKS

EKATERINODAR See KRASNODAR

EKATERINOSLAV See DNEPROPETROVSK

EKHMIM See AKHMIM

EKRON (Israel)

Ancient city of CANAAN, SE of JAFFA, near the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, on the site of the modern settlement of Mazkeret Batya. It was seized by Pharaoh Sheshonk I c. 920 B.C., when he overran Canaan. An important Philistine stronghold in the time of David, it was associated with the worship of Baal during the reign of King Ahaziah of Israel (c. 853–851 B.C.). It had ceased to exist as a city by the Middle Ages.

ELABUGA See YELABUGA

ELAEUS See MESOLÓNGION

ELAM [Susiana] (Iran)

Ancient country of SW Asia, N of the Persian Gulf and E of the TIGRIS RIVER, approximately equivalent to the modern province of KHUZISTAN. SUSA was its capital. The site of a civilization as early as the fourth millennium B.C., it was the home of the Elamites, a warlike people who invaded BABYLONIA at the start of the second millennium B.C.; established a dynasty at LARSA; and conquered BABYLON, ISIN, and ERECH. Elam reached the height of its power in the 13th and 12th centuries B.C. when it enjoyed a cultural renaissance, but it was eclipsed in the seventh century B.C. by the rise of ASSYRIA as Susa fell to Assurbanipal, who sacked the city.

ELAM See KHUZESTAN

ELANCON See QUILON

ELANDSLAAGTE (South Africa)

Settlement in KWAZULU-NATAL, 15 mi NE of LADY-SMITH. During the Boer War the Boers under General Petrus Joubert were temporarily beaten back here on October 21, 1899, by the British under General Sir George White.

ELAT [Eilat, Elath, Eloth] (Israel)

City and port at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba, approximately 120 mi S of BEERSHEBA. It was possibly the site of EZION-GEBER, a port in Solomon's time. The crusaders captured it in A.D. 1116, but Saladin regained it in 1167. After occupying the area at the end of the Arab-Israeli war of 1948–49, Israel created the modern city to gain access to the Red Sea, the Far East, and Africa. Temporarily cut off by Egyptian blockades of the Gulf of Aqaba in the 1956 and 1967 Arab-Israeli wars, the port was enlarged after Israeli victories. As a result, the population grew from 529 in 1959 to over 50,000 in the 1990s.

ELATEA [Elatia] [former: Drakhmani; Greek: Elateia] (Greece)

Ancient city and capital of PHOCIS, 26 mi SE of LAMIA, in Phthiotis and Phocis department. It was most important for its location on the pass between the Sperchio and Cephissus valleys. In 339 B.C. it was captured by Philip II of MACEDON, thereby blocking routes northward from BOEOTIA. The modern town is on the ancient site.

ELATEIA See ELATEA

ELATH See ELAT

ELATIA See ELATEA

ELBA [Latin: Aethalia, Ilva] (Italy)

Island in the Tyrrhenian Sea, in Livorno province, six mi off the coast of TUSCANY. The Etruscans and Romans mined iron ore on Elba, and the island was the site of a Roman naval base. Ruled by PISA in the early Middle Ages, it passed to GENOA in 1290 and to Cosimo I de' Medici, then grand duke of FLORENCE, in 1548. Later ruled by SPAIN, NAPLES, and FRANCE, it was Napoleon's place of exile in 1814–15 and was ruled by him as an independent principality. It was returned to Tuscany following the Battle of WATERLOO, when Napoleon was exiled to St. HELENA.

ELBASAN [ancient: Scampa; former: Elbasani] (Albania)

Town and capital of Elbasan district, 20 mi SE of TIRANË, on the Shkumbin River. Sometimes identified with Albanopolis, the ancient capital of the Albanians, it was a center of Albanian nationalism under Ottoman rule. Early in World War II it was the site of an Italian base. Heavy industrial development during the communist era, including a Chinese-built steel mill in 1974, has left a legacy of pollution to be mitigated.

ELBASANI See ELBASAN

ELBE RIVER [Czech: Labe; Latin: Albis] (Czech Republic, Germany)

River that rises in NW Czech Republic and flows through Germany past DRESDEN and through HAMBURG to the NORTH SEA at CUXHAVEN. A major river of central Europe, it is approximately 725 mi long and is connected by canal with BERLIN, with the RUHR region, with the ODER and RHINE rivers, and with the BALTIC SEA. In the year 9 B.C. it marked the farthest Roman advance into Germany, and it was the eastern limit of Charlemagne's conquests. The internationalization of its course by the Treaty of VERSAILLES in 1919 was repudiated by Germany after the MUNICH Pact of 1938. Near the end of World War II, on April 25, 1945, U.S. and Soviet army units met at TORGAU on the Elbe. Part of the river used to be a border between East and West Germany.

ELBEUF (France)

Town and port on the SEINE RIVER, in the Seine-Maritime department, 12 mi S of ROUEN. Famous as a wool center since the 16th century, it was built on the site of a Roman city and was occupied by the English during the Hundred Years' War. It became a duchy in the 16th century and was badly damaged during World War II.

ELBING See ELBLAG

ELBLĄG [German: Elbing] (Poland)

Town and port on the Elbląg River, near the Vistula Lagoon, in Gdańsk province, 30 mi ESE of GDAŃSK. Founded by the Teutonic Knights in 1237, it joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in the late 13th century. In 1450 it revolted against the knights and became part of Poland. By 1580 it was the chief port of EAST PRUSSIA in trade with ENGLAND. It was ceded to PRUSSIA in 1772. The town was severely damaged in World War II, after which it was returned to Poland.

EL CALLAO (Venezuela)

town in Bolívar state, 135 mi ESE of CIUDAD BOLÍVAR. By 1885 it had become the greatest gold producer in the world. Its mines are still in operation.

EL CANEY [Caney] (Cuba)

Town and battlefield, 4 mi NE of SANTIAGO DE CUBA, in Oriente province. During the Spanish-American War the Americans under General Henry Lawton defeated the Spanish under General Joaquín Vara del Rey here on July 1, 1898. This, together with the victory at SAN JUAN HILL, led to the capture of Santiago.

ELCHE [ancient: Ilici; Arabic: Elx] (Spain)

City in Alicante province, 13 mi SW of ALICANTE, in VALENCIA. Of Iberian origin, it was inhabited by Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, and—from the eighth to the 13th centuries A.D.—by Moors. In 1897 a famous example of fifth century B.C. Iberian sculpture, La Dama de Elche, was found here.

ELDA [ancient: Idella; former: Ella] (Spain)

City in Alicante province, 18 mi NW of ALICANTE, VALENCIA. An ancient Iberian city, it fell to the Moors in the eighth century A.D. and was liberated in 1265 by James I of Aragon. In the 18th century it was granted the name Fidelísima by Philip V for its loyalty to the Crown during the War of the Spanish Succession.

ELDENA (Germany)

Town in MECKLENBURG–WESTERN POMERANIA, 3 mi E of GREIFSWALD. It has the remains of the Cistercian abbey of Hilda, founded by Danish monks in 1199. It was a cultural center of POMERANIA until its destruction during the Thirty Years' War.

ELDORADO (Canada) See PORT RADIUM

EL DORADO

Mythical country meaning "The Gilded One," of incredible wealth, variously located in parts of South America and the United States. The legend probably originated with a Chibcha Indian chief who ceremonially covered his body with gold dust and then rinsed it off in a lake, into which gold objects and jewels were also thrown. In the 16th century Gonzalo Pizarro searched for El Dorado, and his efforts were continued in later periods by Spanish conquistadores and other explorers. The location of the kingdom shifted continuously, and at one time it was thought to be in the western United States. Today the word is used figuratively to denote any place of fabulous wealth or of a utopian dream. See also CIBOLA.

ELEA (Greece) See ELIS

ELEA [Velia] [Greek: Hyele] (Italy)

Ancient town of LUCANIA, 25 mi SE of PAESTUM, in Salerno province, CAMPANIA region. Founded c. 535 B.C. by Greeks from PHOCIS, it alone among the Greek cities in Italy was never taken by the Lucanians. It was the home of the Eleatic school and the philosophers Zeno and Parmenides. In 275 B.C. it became an ally of ROME. It was abandoned in the Middle Ages because of Arab raids.

ELEPHANTA ISLAND [Hindi: Ghārāpuri] (India)

Island in MUMBAI harbor, 7 mi off the coast, in MAHARASHTRA state. A Hindu pilgrimage center, it is famous for the temple caves, which were cut out of solid rock c. 800 to A.D. 1000. They contain colossal statues of Hindu deities.

ELEPHANTINE [ancient: Yeb; Arabic: Jazīrat Aswān] (Egypt)

Island in the NILE RIVER, opposite ASWĀN, and below the dam. In ancient times it was the site of a military post guarding the southern frontier of Egypt. It was also a starting point for Sudanese trade and the site of the Roman nilometer, which gauged the height of the Nile. Papyri dating from the fifth century B.C. were found here that mention a colony of Jewish mercenaries.

EL ESCORIAL [El Escorial] (Spain)

Village in Madrid province, 25 mi NW of MADRID, in the Guadarrama Mts. It is the site of a famous monastery, palace, museum, and mausoleum, one of the finest edifices in the world. It was built between 1563 and 1584 by Philip II as the monastery of San Lorenzo del Escorial as a memorial to Spain's victory over the French at SAINT-QUENTIN in 1557, and later used as his chief palace. The architects were Juan Bautista de Toledo and Juan de Herrera. The palace later also became the dynastic center of the Spanish Hapsburgs. The Escorial has one of the finest art collections in Spain and an outstanding library of rare manuscripts and books.

EL ESCURIAL See EL ESCORIAL

ELEUSIS [Greek: Eleusís] (Greece)

Ancient city in ATTICA, 14 mi NW of ATHENS, on the N shore of the Bay of Eleusis. Athens annexed this independent city in the seventh century B.C. and converted the traditional festivals into a major Athenian religious ceremony, the Eleusinian mysteries. The city was destroyed by the Gothic leader Alaric in A.D. 395. Excavations since 1882 have uncovered the entire sacred area.

ELEUTHERA (Bahamas)

Island in the W Atlantic Ocean, E of NEW PROVIDENCE Island. One of the first places in the Bahama Islands to be colonized by English settlers in the 17th century, it is now the location of a U.S. missile-tracking station.

ELEUTHEROPOLIS [Israeli: Beit Jibrin, Bet Guvrin] (Israel)

Ancient city of CANAAN, approximately 40 mi WNW of HEBRON, in Southern district. It was sacked and destroyed several times and was rebuilt in A.D. 200 by the Roman emperor Septimius Severus. It was still an important town at the time of the Crusades. There are Roman ruins here.

ELEVSÍS See ELEUSIS

ELFELD See ELTVILLE

EL FERROL See FERROL

EL FERROL DEL CAUDILLO See FERROL

ELGIN (Scotland)

Town in Grampian region, on the Lossie River, 36 mi ENE of INVERNESS. Chartered in 1234, it marked the northernmost limit of the English occupation of Scotland in 1291. The cathedral of Moray, the “Lantern of the North” was founded here in 1224. Damaged by fire in 1270 and 1390, it was rebuilt and was one of the finest Gothic churches in Scotland until it was finally ruined in the 18th century. Philip, duke of EDINBURGH, and his son Charles, prince of Wales, attended Gordonstoun School, founded here in 1934.

ELGIN See MORAY

ELGINSHIRE See MORAY

ELICHPUR See ACHALPUR

ELIKÓN See HELICON

ELIMBERRUM See AUCH

ELIOCROCA See LORCA

ELIS [Elea] [Greek: Iliá] (Greece)

Ancient city-state and modern department in the NW corner of the PELOPONNESUS, W of ARCADIA. The Olympic games were held at OLYMPIA in Elis from 776 B.C. Elis was an ally of SPARTA against PERSIA from 572 until c. 470 B.C. when it adopted a democratic constitution. By diplomatic maneuvering and by stressing its neutral role as president of the Olympic games, the state was able to preserve its independence through the Peloponnesian Wars and until the Roman conquest.

ELISABETHVILLE See LUBUMBASHI

ELISAVETPOL See GYANDZHA

ELIZABETH [former: Elizabethtown] (United States)

City and port on Newark Bay, 5 mi S of NEWARK, NE NEW JERSEY. The area was purchased from the Indians in 1664 and was the meeting place of the first colonial assembly from 1668 to 1682. Several engagements were fought here during the American Revolution. It was the original seat of Princeton University, founded in 1746. Industrial development began in the 1830s and was stimulated by the growth of rail traffic. During the last half of the 20th century the Port Newark–Elizabeth Marine Terminal is one of the busiest container ports on the eastern coast of the United States.

ELIZABETH CITY (United States)

Town and port of entry on the Pasquotank River, 40 mi S of NORFOLK, VIRGINIA, NE NORTH CAROLINA. Settled in the mid-17th century, it was the site of the first meeting of the General Assembly of Carolina in 1665. During the Civil War it was occupied and burned by Union troops in 1862.

ELIZABETH CITY CORPORATION See HAMPTON

ELIZABETHTOWN (United States)

City in central KENTUCKY, 40 mi S of LOUISVILLE. It was bombarded during the Civil War by Confederates under General John Morgan in an attempt to destroy the Louisville–Nashville railway. General George A. Custer was stationed here from 1871 to 1873.

ELIZABETHTOWN (United States) See HAGERSTOWN

ELIZABETHTOWN (United States) See ELIZABETH*ELIZAVETGRAD See KIROVOGRAD*ELŁK [German: Lyck] (Poland)

City in Białystok province, 60 mi NW of BIAŁYSTOK, formerly in EAST PRUSSIA. Fortified by the Teutonic Knights in the 14th century, it was a center of action during the Battle of the Masurian Lakes in February 1915 in World War I. Its German population was evacuated in 1945 when it was assigned to Poland. See MASURIA.

ELLA See ELDA*ELLAS See GREECE*ELLASAR See LARSA*ELLICE ISLANDS See TUVALU*ELLICHPUR See ACHALPUR*ELLIS ISLAND (United States)

Island in S NEW YORK State, SW of MANHATTAN Island, in upper New York Bay in NEW YORK CITY. The island itself actually exists on New Jersey's side of the Hudson River, but New York State took possession. In 1834 New Jersey agreed to give New York jurisdiction over the island, but later disputed New York's claim. After decades of legal wrangling both states agreed to share jurisdiction over the island. Originally the site of an arsenal and fort, it was famous from 1892 to 1943 as the chief immigration station of the United States. In 1965 it was made part of the Statue of Liberty National Monument, and in the 1980s a separate Ellis Island National Monument. In 1998, the Supreme Court awarded most of the island to New Jersey, but soon thereafter, New York and New Jersey agreed to share jurisdiction.

ELLORA (India)

Village in E central MAHARASHTRA state, 15 mi NW of AURANGABAD. It is the site of 34 rock and cave temples of Hindu, Jain, and Buddhist origin. The Kailasa temple dates from the eighth century A.D. and is dedicated to Shiva. Carved out of the hillside, it is one of India's greatest architectural treasures.

ELLORE See ELURU*ELMINA (Ghana)

Port and town of Western region, 7 mi W of CAPE COAST, on the Gulf of Guinea, West Africa. Founded in 1482 by Portuguese traders, it was the first important European port on the GOLD COAST and grew as a major gold-trading center. Passed to the Dutch in 1637, it became British in 1872.

ELMIRA (United States)

City in S NEW YORK State, on the Chemung River, 48 mi W of BINGHAMTON. The Treaty of Painted Post was signed here in 1791 to end the war between settlers and the Iroquois Confederation. It was the site of a prison camp for Confederate soldiers during the Civil War and of Elmira Reformatory, which opened in 1876 and pioneered modern penological methods. Elmira College, established in 1855, was one of the earliest institutions of higher learning for women in the United States. Mark Twain spent many summers here and is buried here.

ELMSHORN (Germany)

City in SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, 20 mi NW of HAMBURG. First mentioned in 1141, it was destroyed by the Swedes in 1657. It revived and was chartered in 1870.

ELNE [Latin: Illiberis] (France)

Town in the Pyrénées-Orientales department, 10 mi SSE of PERPIGNAN. Emperor Constans, youngest son of Constantine the Great, was murdered here in A.D. 350 by the soldiers of Magnentius, who succeeded him as emperor.

ELOTH See ELAT*EL PASO (United States)

City and port of entry on the RIO GRANDE River, W TEXAS, opposite CIUDAD JUÁREZ, MEXICO. A mission was established here in 1659 by the Franciscans. El Paso grew as an important frontier town following the establishment of the border in 1848. Today it is the second-largest American city on the Mexican border and an industrial and commercial center.

EL PASO DEL NORTE See CIUDAD JUÁREZ

EL PUEBLO DE SAN JOSÉ DE GUADALUPE See SAN JOSÉ

EL REALEJO (Nicaragua)

Town in Chinandega department, 4 mi N of CORINTO, on bay of the Pacific Ocean. Established in 1534, it became Nicaragua's most important Pacific port and hence was often attacked by pirates. In 1858 it was superseded by Corinto.

EL SALVADOR

Republic of CENTRAL AMERICA, SW of HONDURAS, on the Pacific Ocean. SAN SALVADOR is its capital. Conquered by the Spaniards under Pedro de Alvarado in 1524, it came under the control of GUATEMALA, and in 1821 it became part of the short-lived Mexican Empire of Agustín de Iturbide, following its independence from SPAIN in 1822–23. A member of the CENTRAL AMERICAN CONFEDERATION from 1823 to 1839, it was later disturbed by interference from Guatemala and NICARAGUA. The country was ruled by a dictatorship from 1931 to 1944. It was at war with Honduras for four days in 1969. The country has been plagued recently by severe political instability, government corruption and repression, rebellion, and guerrilla warfare. It is the smallest, most densely populated, and one of the poorest of the republics of Central America. In 1979, General Carlos Humberto Romero was overthrown by a military junta. Murders and other terrorism continued, and the unrest erupted into a full-scale civil war between the government and guerrillas of the leading opposition group, the FMLN. In 1990, José Napoleon Duarte, a Christian Democrat, became president under the junta and called for elections, which he won in 1984. The guerrilla war between FMLN rebels and right-wing death squads continued and got worse after the election in 1989 of President Alfredo Cristiani, leader of the right-wing ARENA party. In 1991, however, the government, with help from the United Nations, negotiated with the FMLN, and in 1992 a peace treaty with the rebels was signed, ending the bloody 12-year civil war that killed more than 70,000 people. The FMLN demobilized and participated in the postwar 1994 elections, and ARENA retained power. The violence from both right and left had subsided, and the government instituted a major land reform program. Economic growth has been slowed by natural disasters—Hurricane Mitch in 1998 and two earthquakes in 2001.

ELSASS See ALSACE

ELSASS-LOTHRINGEN See ALSACE-LORRAINE

EL SINORE See HELSINGØR

ELTEKEH (Israel)

Ancient village of DAN, W of JERUSALEM, near EKRON, in Jerusalem district. Sennacherib, king of ASSYRIA and son of Sargon II, defeated the Egyptians here c. 700 B.C.

ELTON [El'on] (Russia)

Village in Russia, 110 mi ENE of VOLGOGRAD. It was an important Russian supply base during the German siege of Stalingrad of 1942–43 in World War II.

ELTVILLE [former: Eلفeld] (Germany)

Town in HESSE, on the RHINE RIVER, 5 mi SW of WIESBADEN. It received town rights in 1332. Johann Gutenberg, the inventor of printing with movable metal type and responsible for the first printed Bible, established his press here in 1465.

ELURU [former: Ellore] (India)

City in NE ANDHRA PRADESH, 225 mi NNE of CHENNAI. Nearby are the ruins of Pedda Vegi, which is thought to be the site of the capital of the Buddhist kingdom of Vengi of c. 600 to A.D. 1000.

ELVAS [Arabic: Balesh; Latin: Alpessa] (Portugal)

City in Alto Alentejo province, 30 mi SSE of PORTALEGRE, near the Spanish border. A heavily fortified city, it originated in Roman times and was important in the wars following Portugal's revolt against Spanish control in 1640. During the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars it was ceded by the French to the Portuguese at the convention of SINTRA in 1808.

ELVERUM (Norway)

Town in Hedmark county, on the Glåma River, SE of LILLEHAMMER. In April 1940 during World War II the Norwegian parliament held its last meeting here before going into exile in Britain. The town was badly damaged in the German invasion that followed.

ELX See ELCHE

ELY (England)

City in CAMBRIDGESHIRE, 15 mi NNE of CAMBRIDGE, on the Ouses River. On a former island in the fens, it was the site of the last serious resistance under Hereward the Wake to William the Conqueror in 1071. Ely Cathedral is one of the largest in England and was built on the site of an abbey founded in 673 by St. Aetheldreda that was destroyed by the Danes in 870.

ELY, ISLE OF (England)

Region and former administrative county, in N CAMBRIDGESHIRE, once surrounded by fens. Occupied since Neolithic times, it was the refuge of Hereward the Wake after the Norman conquest in 1066. See also ELY.

ELYMIA See LEVIDI

EMBOMMA See BOMA

EMBRUN [Latin: Eburodunum] (France)

Town in the Hautes-Alpes department, 100 mi NE of MARSEILLES, on the Durance River. First significant as the home of the Gallic Caturiges, it became a military stronghold in Roman times. From A.D. 800 to 1791 it was an archiepiscopal see.

EMDEN (Germany)

City and port in LOWER SAXONY, at the mouth of the Ems River, in EAST FRIESLAND, on the NORTH SEA. Founded c. A.D. 800, it developed as a port for trade with the Baltic countries and became capital of East Frisia in the 15th century. In the 16th century it had one of the largest merchant fleets in Europe and passed to PRUSSIA in 1866. Connected to the RUHR by canal in 1899, it is today the third-largest port of Germany. Although it was often bombed by the Allies from 1943 to 1945 and largely destroyed, it has been rebuilt. See also FRIESLAND.

EMESA See HOMS

EMILIA See EMILIA-ROMAGNA

EMILIA-ROMAGNA [former: Emilia; Latin: Aemilia] (Italy)

Agriculturally rich region bordering the ADRIATIC SEA between TUSCANY and the MARCHE on the S and VENETO and LOMBARDY on the N. BOLOGNA is its capital. Emilia and ROMAGNA fell to the Lombards in the fifth century A.D.; then Romagna was retaken by the Byzantines in the sixth century. Emilia fell to the Franks in the eighth century. By the 17th century Emilia was under the duchy of MODENA until the Napoleonic Wars and then passed to the duchy of PARMA and PIACENZA; while Romagna remained a papal possession from the 16th century. The region was held by FRANCE from 1797 to 1814. In 1859 it was joined to PIEDMONT. See also PO RIVER.

EMIRAU ISLAND (Papua New Guinea)

Island in the St. Matthias group of islands, part of the BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO, N of NEW GUINEA. On March 19, 1944, during World War II, the U.S. Marines took the island from the Japanese in their island-hopping campaign toward JAPAN.

EMMAUS [Emmaus Nicopolis] [Israeli: Imwas] (Israel)

Ancient town of CANAAN, now in the Palestinian WEST BANK, 14 mi WNW of JERUSALEM. Judas Maccabeus defeated Gorgias here in the Jewish revolt of the second century B.C.

EMMAUS (Palestine)

Ancient settlement now in the Palestinian WEST BANK possibly 4 mi NW of JERUSALEM, though its exact location is not known. Luke 24:13 narrates that here Cleopas and another disciple met the risen Christ.

EMMAUS NICOPOLIS See EMMAUS (Jordan)

EMMERICH (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA on the RHINE RIVER, 61 mi WSW of MÜNSTER. First mentioned in 697, it passed to KLEVE in 1402 and joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1407. Near the end of World War II the Allies made a Rhine crossing here in 1945.

EMONA See LJUBLJANA

EMPOLI (Italy)

Town in Florence province, 18 mi WSW of FLORENCE, on the ARNO RIVER in TUSCANY region. It was active in the medieval Florentine wars and was the scene of the Ghibelline congress of 1260 during which Farinata degli Uberti successfully opposed the destruction of Florence. This incident is referred to by Dante in the Inferno.

EMPORION See AMPURIAS

EMPORIUM See AMPURIAS

EMPRESS AUGUSTA BAY (Solomon Islands)

Inlet of the Solomon Sea, on the W coast of BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND in the W Pacific Ocean. During World War II the U.S. Marines landed here on November 1, 1943, in the first stage of the invasion of Bougainville.

EMYRNA See IMERINA

EMYRNE See IMERINA

ENARE See INARI

ENCINA See UVALDE

ENDOR ['En Dor] (Israel)

Ancient town of CANAAN, 6 mi SE of NAZARETH, near Mt. Tabor. According to the Bible (1 Samuel, 28:7, Psalms, 83:10) a celebrated witch lived here who was consulted by King Saul before his last battle.

END VILLAGE See YANKTON

ENEWETAK See ENIWETAK

ENEZ See ENOS

ENEZ AR GERVEUR See BELLE-ÎLE-EN-MER

ENFIDA [French: Enfidaville] (Tunisia)

Town near the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, 30 mi SW of HAMMAMET. It was captured by the British in World War II on April 20, 1943, after heavy fighting.

ENFIDAVILLE See ENFIDA

ENGANNIM See JENIN

ENGAÑO, CAPE (Philippines)

Point of NE Cagayan province, on LUZON. An American fleet defeated the Japanese off this point in the Battle of LEYTE GULF on October 25, 1944, during World War II.

EN-GEDI [Ein Gedi, 'En Gedi] [Hebrew: Hazazon-Tamar] (Israel)

Oasis, kibbutz, and archaeological site 17 mi ESE of HEBRON, on the W bank of the DEAD SEA. Site of habitations from the seventh century B.C. to Byzantine times, the site has links with the biblical story of Saul and David. Traces of a sanctuary from the Chalcolithic period, fourth millennium B.C., have been found here. It also has famous hot springs.

ENGELS [former: Pokrovsk, Pokrovskaya Sloboda] (Russia)

City and port of Russian SFSR, on the VOLGA RIVER, opposite SARATOV. Founded by Ukrainian settlers, it was capital of the former VOLGA GERMAN ASSR from 1922 to 1941. It was renamed after Friedrich Engels in 1931.

ENGHIEN [Flemish: Edingen] (Belgium)

Town in Hainaut province, 17 mi SW of BRUSSELS. Established in the 11th century, it was a medieval commercial center noteworthy for its tapestry. It was a part of FRANCE until 1606.

ENGHIEN, FRANCE See MONTMORENCY

ENGLAND (Great Britain)

Island nation of NW Europe, it is the largest political division of the UNITED KINGDOM. Its capital, LONDON, is also the capital of the United Kingdom. Separated from mainland Europe and FRANCE by the ENGLISH CHANNEL, England has a proud historical tradition as a powerful maritime nation and was formerly the nucleus of a worldwide colonial empire. The English have made a substantial contribution to the development of Western civilization, not least in the creation of a parliamentary system of government that has been emulated throughout the world.

Home of a succession of Neolithic, Bronze, and Iron Age cultures, exemplified by STONEHENGE, England was invaded by ROME under Julius Caesar in 55 B.C.; although the Roman conquest of Britain was not begun in earnest until the invasion under Claudius in A.D. 43. By the end of the first century all of England was under Roman control and was to remain so for the next 300 years despite occasional uprisings, of which the most important had been that of the Iceni, a British tribe, under Boadicea in A.D. 61. During the Roman occupation, cities were founded, trade flourished, and a great wall was built by Hadrian to keep out the Picts from the North. As barbarian invasions threatened other parts of the empire, however, Roman troops were withdrawn, and Britain was left unprotected against the invasions of the Anglo-Saxons and Jutes.

By the end of the fifth century A.D., the new invaders had begun to settle and form kingdoms, of which WESSEX was to emerge as the most powerful in the ninth century. At the same time, eastern England was continually threatened by Viking invaders from DENMARK, and although the Danes were initially defeated by Alfred, king of Wessex, by 1016 the Danish king Canute controlled all of England. When the Danish line died out in 1042, the Wessex dynasty was restored with the accession of Edward the Confessor.

England was again invaded in 1066, this time by William the Conqueror, duke of NORMANDY, who defeated the English king Harold at the Battle of HASTINGS, ending the Anglo-Saxon period and beginning the Norman. Under the Norman kings central government was strengthened and the feudal system firmly established to facilitate administration. The accession of the Angevin Henry II Plantagenet in 1154 brought further French lands to the English throne through his marriage to Eleanor of AQUITAINE. In 1171 the conquest of IRELAND was begun. WALES was conquered by Edward I in 1282, and in 1337 England began the long military struggle with France known as the Hundred Years' War. Despite victories at CRÉCY in 1346 and AGINCOURT in 1415, England was unable to retain possession of her French lands after Joan of Arc raised the siege of ORLÉANS in 1428 and helped rally French nationalism, and by 1453 England had withdrawn, except from CALAIS. The collapse of the feudal system was hastened in the 14th century by the new economic and social forces and the new demands of warfare and administration. Between 1455 and 1485 the throne of England was contested by the houses of YORK and LANCASTER in the Wars of the Roses, which decimated the nobility and ended with the accession of the Tudor king Henry VII, after his victory over Richard III at BOSWORTH FIELD.

Under the Tudor kings political stability was restored, and in the 16th century the Protestant Reformation reached England, culminating in Henry VIII's break with the papacy after his marriage to Anne Boleyn in 1533 and the establishment of the Church of England. During the reign of Elizabeth I (1558–1603) English explorers visited the New World, and the eastern Spice Islands and the country's growing commercial and maritime interests led to increased confrontation with SPAIN. The Spanish Armada, sent to invade England, was beaten in the English Channel by Admiral Charles Howard and later destroyed by storms in 1588. At the same time the Elizabethan Age was a period of great intellectual and artistic achievement in drama, poetry, music, and architecture.

The accession of the Stuart king James I united SCOTLAND and England under one crown. However the Stuart kings were beset by financial difficulties. Charles I's insistence on the divine right of kings and his disregard for parliamentary government caused relations between king and Parliament to deteriorate sharply, so that in 1642 civil war broke out between Royalists and Parliamentarians. The decisive battles of the war, MARSTON MOOR of 1644 and NASEBY in 1645, were victories for Parliament, and by 1648 the Royalist cause was lost. Charles I was executed in 1649, and the leader of the Parliamentarians, Oliver Cromwell, was made Lord Protector in 1653.

The Protectorate lasted until 1660, when Parliament invited Charles II to return to the throne from exile, beginning the Restoration Period. However, the old differences between Parliament and the Stuart kings and between Protestants and Catholics, surfaced again and after the Glorious Revolution of 1688, which expelled James II Stuart, the throne was offered to Protestant William of Orange and his wife, Mary, James's daughter. They reigned within the constitutional framework created by the Bill of Rights of 1689, which limited the powers of the monarchy and gave Parliament supremacy. In 1714, after the death of Ann, William and Mary's daughter, Parliament invited George of Hanover to rule, initiating the present Hanoverian dynasty.

In 1707 England and Scotland became the United Kingdom of Great Britain by the Act of Union. Thereafter England's history is largely synonymous with that of Great Britain. Throughout the 18th century Great Britain gradually acquired a vast overseas empire. By the Peace of UTRECHT in 1713, which ended the War of the Spanish Succession, Great Britain gained territory in CANADA from France and GIBRALTAR and MINORCA from Spain. British success continued during the Seven Years' War of 1756 to 1763. In Canada, QUEBEC was captured in 1759 from the French, and in INDIA French power was destroyed at the battles of PLASSEY in 1757 and of PONDICHERY in 1761. The Treaty of PARIS of 1763 confirmed Great Britain as the chief colonial power in the world, and by the end of the 18th century its colonization of AUSTRALIA had begun. Great Britain's military supremacy was, however, effectively challenged during the American Revolution, from 1775 to 1783. In 1775, 13 British colonies of North America revolted against colonial rule and, aided by the French, finally achieved independence after defeating the British at the Battle of YORKTOWN in 1781. The UNITED STATES OF AMERICA was then formed.

During the Napoleonic Wars, British naval supremacy was a decisive factor in the struggle to contain imperial France. Napoleon's plan to invade Great Britain was thwarted by the destruction of his fleet on October 21, 1805, at TRAFALGAR by the British fleet under Admiral Horatio Nelson, who died in the battle. British and other armies under the duke of Wellington were responsible for Napoleon's defeat in the Peninsular War and for the ultimate collapse of Napoleonic France at WATERLOO in 1815.

Meanwhile at home rapid industrialization was transforming Great Britain into the world's first industrial nation. During the Regency period and beyond the restructuring of the country's economic life led to demands for political reform, which were met in 1832 and 1867 by the Reform Bills. These extended the franchise to the middle and urban working classes. During the reign of Queen Victoria, from 1837 to 1901, Great Britain pursued a dynamic and aggressive foreign policy, expanding her Indian empire and fighting in the Crimean War of 1853 to 1856 against RUSSIA. Under the queen's prime minister Disraeli, large parts of Africa and AFGHANISTAN were colonized.

Increasingly, Great Britain's colonial program conflicted with the interests of GERMANY, and in 1914, allied with France and Russia, Great Britain went to war. During World War I, British troops played a major role on the Western Front, but the cost was great, and after the defeat of Germany in 1918, the country was drained of resources and had lost an entire generation. The world recession of the late 1920s and early 1930s aggravated the country's economic difficulties.

After the failure of attempts to appease Hitler's Germany, Great Britain was once again involved in war with Germany in 1939. Threatened with invasion after the fall of France, it achieved air superiority in the Battle of Britain and thus kept the country intact as a base for the eventual Allied offensive against occupied Europe in 1943 and 1944. With Germany defeated in 1945, Great Britain was again faced with the problem of rebuilding a shattered economy. Demands for independence were heard from many parts of the empire, beginning in 1947 when India was divided into the two independent states of PAKISTAN and India. The empire was succeeded by the COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS. At home Labour governments presided over the nationalization of a large sector of the economy, and in 1972 Great Britain became a member of the European Common Market. In the early 1970s oil was discovered in the NORTH SEA and Britain became a major oil producer.

In 1979, after years of economic stagnation, A Conservative government under Margaret Thatcher was elected. Thatcher privatized industry and broke much of the power of the unions. In 1982, ARGENTINA invaded the FALKLAND ISLANDS, citing longstanding territorial claims, but Britain won a quick and decisive naval victory. Thatcher and the Conservatives won elections in 1983 and 1987. In 1984, Britain and France began digging the Channel Tunnel in a project that was completed in 1994. Thatcher resigned in 1990 over issues of European integration and John Major took over as prime minister and led the Conservatives to election victory 1992. Britain was a full participant in the Gulf War of 1991, and continued to station military forces in the PERSIAN GULF. Britain negotiated a peace in Northern Ireland during the 1990s, with cease-fires leading to open elections and some local autonomy. In 1997, the Labour Party returned to power under Tony Blair. The government approved more autonomy in Scotland and Wales, and reduced the privileges of the titled nobility. Labour was reelected in 2001, and Blair supported American military efforts in both AFGHANISTAN and IRAQ.

ENGLISH CHANNEL [The Channel] [French: La Manche; Latin: Oceanus Britannicus]

Arm of the Atlantic Ocean separating the S coast of ENGLAND from the N coast of FRANCE. The channel has always been a route for, and an obstacle to, would-be continental invaders of GREAT BRITAIN and vice versa. It was crossed by the Roman invasion forces of 55 B.C. and A.D. 43 and by William the Conqueror in 1066. The channel was the route of English invasions of France in the Hundred Years' War and in conflicts during the 16th century. It proved an invincible defense against the aggressive intentions of Napoleon in the 19th and of Hitler in the 20th century, both of whom amassed fleets in northern France to attempt invasions of Great Britain. It has been the scene of many important naval actions, including the defeat of the Spanish Armada in 1588, the evacuation at DUNKIRK in 1940, and the launching of the NORMANDY landings in 1944 during World War II. In 1994 the Channel Tunnel was completed, linking France and England by rail.

ENGLISH TURN [French: Détour des Anglais] (United States)

Bend of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, just below NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA. Following a report by the sieur de Bienville, who later founded New Orleans, that there were French forces further up the river, an English expedition turned back here in 1699.

ENGUINEGATTE [former: Guinegaste, Guinegate] (France)

Town in the Pas-de-Calais department, S of SAINT-OMER. It was the scene of two battles. The first occurred on August 7, 1479, when Louis XI of France was defeated by the Hapsburgs under Emperor Maximilian following the French invasion of the NETHERLANDS. The second was fought during the English invasion of France on August 16, 1513, when the English under Henry VIII defeated the French here. This battle is also called the Battle of the Spurs because of the headlong flight of the French.

ENISEI See YENISEI

ENIWETAK [Eniwetok, Enewetak] (Marshall Islands)

Atoll at the NW end of the Ralik chain in the NW Marshall Islands, W Pacific Ocean. Mandated to JAPAN by the League of Nations in 1920, it was captured by U.S. forces in February 1944 during World War II and made a naval base. In the 1940s and 1950s it was used with BIKINI ATOLL as a proving ground for atomic weapons. The people began returning in the 1970s, and in 1977 the U.S. government began removing contaminated soil and other material from the atoll, declaring it safe for habitation in 1980.

ENIWETOK See ENIWETAK

ENKHUIZEN (Netherlands)

Town and port in North Holland province, on the IJsselmeer, 28 mi NE of AMSTERDAM. A thriving commercial and fishing port by the 17th century, it played an important part in the Dutch struggle for independence.

ENKOMI See SALAMIS (Cyprus)

EN-MISHPAT See KADESH-BARNEA

ENNA [former: Castrogiovanni; Latin: Enna, Henna] (Italy)

Town and capital of Enna province, central SICILY, 64 mi SE of PALERMO. Strategically positioned on a plateau, it was an ancient city of the native Siculi and a center of the pre-Hellenic cult of Demeter and Persephone. In the seventh century B.C. it came under Greek influence from GELA and fell to Dionysius I of SYRACUSE c. 395 B.C. It passed to ROME in 258 B.C. and was the center of the great Sicilian slave revolt of 134 to 132 B.C. During the Risorgimento of the 19th century it was one of the first Sicilian cities to rally to the Italian cause. Nearby is the Lake of Pergusa, which figures in mythology as the site of Pluto's rape of Persephone.

EN NASIRA See NAZARETH

ENNISCORTHY [Gaelic: Inis Córthaidh] (Ireland)

Urban district in County Wexford, 13 mi NNW of WEXFORD, on the Slaney River. It is the site of a castle built in 1176 that was captured by Oliver Cromwell in 1649. In 1798 the town was sacked by the United Irishmen.

ENNISKILLEN [Inniskilling] (Northern Ireland)

County town of County FERMANAGH, on an island in the Erne River, just S of Lough Erne, 70 mi WSW of BELFAST, Northern Ireland. The ancient stronghold of the Maguires of Fermanagh, it was the site of a battle in 1689, when William III's troops defeated the army of James II of ENGLAND, after the Glorious Revolution. The renowned Enniskillen Dragoons regiment was formed at this time.

ENNS (Austria)

Town at the confluence of the Enns River and the DANUBE RIVER, SE of LINZ. The oldest chartered city in Austria, dating from 1212, it was established as a fortress in the ninth century. In the Middle Ages it was a prosperous market town on a trade route across the Danube. The famous Augustinian monastery of St. Florian is nearby.

ENOS [Greek: Aenos; Latin: Aenus; Modern Greek: Ainos; Turkish: Enez] (Turkey)

Village in Edirne province, 38 mi NW of GALLIPOLI, on an inlet of the Aegean Sea. Founded by Aeolian colonists, it was a major port in the Greek Classical period. Later it came under the MACEDONIAN and Ptolemaic empires. It was superseded in the late 19th century by ALEXANDROÚPOLIS.

ENSHAM See EYNHAM

ENTEBBE (Uganda)

City, 19 mi SW of KAMPALA, on LAKE VICTORIA. Founded as a garrison post in 1893, it was the center of the British administration of Uganda until 1958. Entebbe airport is remembered for the daring rescue by Israeli paratroopers of several hundred passengers on a Tel Aviv–Paris flight, captured and held hostage by Palestinian guerrillas on July 3, 1976.

ENTOTTO See INTOTTO

EPERJES See PREŠOV

ÉPERNAY [Latin: Sparnacum] (France)

Town in the Marne department, on the MARNE RIVER, 21 mi WNW of CHÂLONS-SUR-MARNE. It has been destroyed or burned more than 20 times. With RHEIMS it is the main center for the bottling and storing of champagne, which is kept in caves in the surrounding hills. It was held by the archbishops of Rheims from the fifth to the 10th centuries. The town was the scene of heavy fighting in World War I.

EPHESUS (Turkey)

Ancient Greek city of W ASIA MINOR, near the AEGEAN SEA, 35 mi SSE of İZMİR, in Izmir province. One of the greatest of the Ionian cities, it was an important port and possessed fabulous wealth. Under the Lydian king Croesus in the sixth century B.C., it passed to PERSIA at that time and was taken by Alexander the Great in 334 B.C. In 133 B.C. it passed to ROME and was the chief city of the province of ASIA. The temple of Artemis at Ephesus was considered one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Later Ephesus became a center of Christianity and was visited by St. Paul. In A.D. 431 it was the seat of the church council that dealt with the problem of Nestorianism. The city was abandoned when its harbor silted up. Extensive remains have been excavated.

EPHRAIM (Israel)

Region held by the tribe of Ephraim, one of the 12 of Israel, in ancient CANAAN. It was in central Palestine and included the Hills of Ephraim. According to the Old Testament, Ephraim, the younger son of Joseph, was born in Egypt where his father lived after having been sold into slavery by his brothers. With his older brother Manasseh, Ephraim formed the two Joseph tribes. When the area was allotted to Ephraim shortly after 1200 B.C., it was occupied by the Canaanites whom the Ephraimites forced to labor for them. The tribe grew powerful, and SHILOH became an important religious center, as did Mizpah, BETHEL, and Shechem (NABLUS). In 930 B.C. the Ephraimites led the 10 northern tribes in revolt against the S and set up the separate kingdom of ISRAEL with Jeroboam I, an Ephraimite, as king. Sometimes the Northern Kingdom of Israel was referred to as Ephraim. In 721 B.C. the Assyrians conquered Israel and deported the people. The tribe of Ephraim became one of the “10 lost tribes.”

EPHRATA [former: Ephrata Cloisters] (United States)

Town in SE PENNSYLVANIA, 13 mi NE of LANCASTER. It was the site of a German Baptist monastic settlement established in 1732 by Johann Conrad Beissel. The colony, known as the Ephrata Cloisters, was famous for its music; and it established one of the earliest printing presses in the country in 1745. The community was decimated by smallpox during the American Revolution. Now it is a thriving agricultural and tourist center.

EPHRATA CLOISTERS See EPHRATA

EPIDAMNUS See DURRÈSEPIDAUROS (Greece)

Ancient city of the NE PELOPONNESUS, on an inlet of the Saronic Gulf, 25 mi E of ARGOS. It is famous as the site of the temple of the god of healing, Asclepius, that dates from the fourth century B.C. It was a semi-independent city until Roman times. Greek dramas are performed today in its ancient theater, one of the loveliest to have survived.

EPIDAUROS (Croatia) See CAVTATÉPINAL (France)

Town and capital of the Vosges department, on the MOSELLE RIVER, 65 mi E of CHAUMONT, in LORRAINE. It grew up around a 10th-century monastery and was ceded to the dukes of Lorraine in 1465. In the 18th and 19th centuries it was famous for the Images d'Épinal, popular illustrations that had been printed there since the 16th century. It was severely damaged during World War II.

EPIPHANIA See HAMAEPIRUS (Albania, Greece)

Ancient country of NW Greece and S Albania, on the Ionian Sea, W of MACEDONIA and THESSALY. Originally inhabited by Epirote tribes who by the fourth century B.C. had been formed into a state by the Molossi tribes, it reached its peak in the third century B.C. under Pyrrhus, who ruled S to ACARNANIA and N as far as central Albania and unsuccessfully invaded Italy. Epirus was weakened following Pyrrhus's successors' attempts to take Macedon. It sided with Macedon in the wars against ROME and was sacked by Aemilius Paullus in 167 B.C. In the Middle Ages the despotate of Epirus was set up following the fall of CONSTANTINOPLE to the crusaders and lasted from 1204 to 1337. An independent state was again set up in Epirus and Albania by Ali Pasha, the pasha of IOANNINA, at the end of the 18th century.

EPISCOPI [ancient: Curium, Kourion] (Cyprus)

Ruins of an ancient city-state overlooking Episcopi Bay on the S coast, 10 mi W of LIMASSOL. The city flourished from Archaic times to the Arab conquest in A.D. 647, and there are remnants of an earlier Bronze Age city on a ridge E of the city. There is a Hellenistic-Roman theater, reconstructed and used for modern entertainments, baths, a series of luxurious Roman houses with late Roman mosaics, a stadium, and the sanctuary of Apollo Hylates outside the city that was once a famous pilgrimage center from the eighth century B.C. to the fourth century A.D.

EPORA See MONTOROEPOREDIA See IVREAEPSOM AND EWELL (England)

Town in SURREY, 14 mi SSW of LONDON. It gained importance c. 1620 when mineral springs were discovered here. From these comes the name "Epsom Salts." It has been the site of horse races run on Epsom Downs since the reign of James I (1603–25). The Derby and the Oaks races have been run here since 1780 and 1779 respectively.

EPSOM DOWNS See EPSOM AND EWELLEQUATOR See MBANDAKAEQUATORIAL GUINEA [former: Spanish Guinea, Territorios Españoles del Golfo de Guinea]

Republic of W central Africa, S of the Republic of CAMEROON. It consists of the islands of Bioko (FERNANDO PO), Annobón, Corisco, Elobey Grande, and Elobey Chico in the Gulf of Guinea and the mainland province of Río Muni. MALABO on Bioko is its capital. Annobón and Fernando Po were ceded to SPAIN in 1778 by PORTUGAL, but the region was abandoned in 1781 because of disease. The British used Malabo and San Carlos for their antislavery patrols from 1827 to 1843. The islands were gradually settled by Spain in the 19th century. Río Muni was awarded to Spain in 1885 by the Congress of BERLIN. Independence from Spain was achieved on October 12, 1968, with Macias Nguema as president, and in 1969 most Europeans were forced from Río Muni by African demonstrations. In 1972, Nguema appointed himself president for life. Equatorial Guinea became a unitary state in 1973 following the adoption of a new constitution. The Nguema dictatorship was characterized by human rights violations, tension with neighboring states, and the deaths of thousands of perceived opponents to the government. In 1979, a military coup executed Nguema and installed his nephew Lieutenant Colonel Teodoro Obiang Nguema Mbasogo as the new president. While there was improvement, Mbasogo was still in power more than 20 years later following a series of elections in the 1990s during which the opposition was suppressed or boycotted the elections.

EQUATORIAL ISLANDS See LINE ISLANDS

ERACLEA See HERACLEA

ERBIL [Arbil, Irbil] [Latin: Arbela] (Iraq)

City in Erbil governorate, 50 mi E of MOSUL. The city has been inhabited continuously since its founding in the third millennium B.C. and was once one of the chief cities of ASSYRIA. It was conquered by Mongols in A.D. 1236. Erbil has been the administrative center of the Kurdish Autonomous Region in Iraq since the 1992 Gulf War. See also GAUGAMELA.

ERDÉLY See TRANSYLVANIA

ERECH [Uruk] [Arabic: Tall al Warna; Greek: Orchoe] (Iraq)

Ancient Sumerian city of S BABYLONIA, NW of UR, on the EUPHRATES RIVER, now in an-Nāsiriyyah governorate. Dating from the fifth millennium B.C., it was the largest city of southern MESOPOTAMIA and an important religious center. It was enclosed by brickwork walls approximately six miles in circumference that reputedly were built by the legendary hero-king Gilgamesh. Many excavated remains reveal the varied architectural contributions of the city's rulers.

EREĞLI [former: Bender-Ereğli; Karadeniz Ereğlisi; Latin: Heraclea Pontica] (Turkey)

Port in Zonguldak province, on the BLACK SEA, 125 mi NNW of ANKARA. It was founded c. 560 B.C. by Greeks from MEGARA and BOEOTIA, who soon gained control of a large part of the coast. In 74 B.C. it sided with Mithridates the Great of PONTUS against ROME, which took the town and burned it. Captured c. A.D. 1360 by the Turks, it then developed as a Genoese trading center. A mythical entrance to Hades is supposed to be close by. It now has the biggest integrated iron and steel mills in the Middle East.

EREĞLI [Latin: Heraclea] (Turkey)

Town in Konya province, near the foot of the TAURUS MOUNTAINS, 85 mi ESE of KONYA. A frontier fortification of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, it frequently stood in the way of invaders as it guarded the Cilician Gates, the only pass in the Taurus Mts. It fell to Arabs in A.D. 806 and 832, however, and later came under the Seljuk Turks and the Mongols.

ERETRIA [Greek: Néa Psará] (Greece)

Ancient city on the S coast of the island of EUBOEA, 15 mi ESE of CHALCIS. With Chalcis, it was an important city of ancient Euboea and colonized many islands and coasts of the AEGEAN SEA, ITALY, and SYRIA in the seventh and sixth centuries B.C. It supported the Ionian cities in their revolt against Persian rule and was consequently devastated in retaliation by Darius I in 490 B.C. Colonized by ATHENS c. 445 B.C., it revolted against Athenian rule in 411 and 349 B.C. Among the remains uncovered are a theater and several temples.

EREVAN See YEREVAN

ERFURT (Germany)

City and capital of the state of THURINGIA, on the Gera River, 64 mi WSW of LEIPZIG. Site of a bishopric founded by St. Boniface in 742, it was a military stronghold on the eastern border of the FRANKISH EMPIRE by 802 and controlled widespread territories during the Middle Ages. A member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE from the 15th century, it was occupied by the Swedes during the Thirty Years' War and became part of the electorate of MAINZ in 1664. It passed to PRUSSIA in 1802. At the Congress of Erfurt in 1808 Alexander I of RUSSIA refused to support Napoleon against AUSTRIA. In 1891 the German Social Democratic Party adopted the Erfurt Program here. The first meeting between East and West Germany's heads of state took place here in 1970. The Reformation leader Martin Luther studied at the university from 1501 to 1505.

ERICE See ERYX

ERIDANUS See PO RIVER

ERIDU [Arabic: Abu Shahrain] (Iraq)

Ancient Sumerian city of MESOPOTAMIA, S of UR, near the EUPHRATES RIVER and the Persian Gulf, now in an-Nāsiriyyah governorate. It is the earliest known settlement in southern MESOPOTAMIA; it was inhabited from the fifth millennium B.C. until 600 B.C. Excavations have shown it to be one of the most important urban centers of southern BABYLONIA. It was dedicated to the water god Ea.

ERIE (United States)

City and port in NW PENNSYLVANIA, on LAKE ERIE, 80 mi SW of BUFFALO. Founded as Fort Presque Isle by the French in 1753, it was left to the British in 1759 but was destroyed by the Indians during Pontiac's Rebellion of 1763. A town was set out in 1795 with large naval yards. Here was built the fleet that defeated the British in the Battle of Lake Erie during the War of 1812. The city is Pennsylvania's only port on the Great Lakes.

ERIE, LAKE (Canada, United States)

Lake bounded to the W and N by ONTARIO, Canada, to the E by NEW YORK State, to the S by PENNSYLVANIA and OHIO, and to the SW by MICHIGAN. It was probably discovered by Louis Joliet in 1669. Trade was developed here in the late 17th century by the English and local Iroquois Indians. It was the site of a battle during the War of 1812, when, on September 10, 1813, a U.S. naval force under Oliver Hazard Perry defeated a British squadron at PUT-IN-BAY. This secured the NORTHWEST TERRITORY for the United States. The fourth-largest of the Great Lakes, it is an important link in the ST. LAWRENCE. In the 1960s and 1970s the lake was severely polluted, leading to recent attempts to clean up the ecosystem. Its ports include BUFFALO, ERIE, CLEVELAND, and TOLEDO.

ERIE CANAL (United States)

Artificial waterway in NEW YORK State connecting LAKE ERIE with the HUDSON RIVER and thus joining the Great Lakes region with the Atlantic Ocean at NEW YORK CITY. The canal was the brainchild of De Witt Clinton, who held many political offices, including that of governor of the state. Work on the canal began on July 4, 1817; and on October 26, 1825, the entire route, 363 mi from BUFFALO in the west to ALBANY in the east, was opened with spectacular ceremonies. Within a very short time the canal helped make New York the "Empire State" by providing the easiest and cheapest route for agricultural produce of the Midwest to reach the eastern seaboard. It also provided convenient transportation for settlers heading for new homes in the Midwest.

A number of branch canals were dug, the most important of which were the Champlain, the Oswego, and the Cayuga and Seneca. The Erie Canal was so successful that it was almost continually enlarged until in 1905 work began on the New York State Barge Canal to modernize it thoroughly. Construction was completed in 1918, by which time the railroads had largely replaced it. With its branches, the Barge Canal is 525 mi long and can handle barges 300 feet long and 42 feet wide, although it is now largely used by pleasure boats. It runs from TONAWANDA in the W to TROY in the E and has branches that connect with lakes ONTARIO, CHAMPLAIN, Cayuga, and Seneca.

ERISKAY (Scotland)

Island in the Outer HEBRIDES, just S of South Uist, NW Scotland. Prince Charles Edward, the Young Pretender, first landed on Scottish soil here in 1745.

ERITH (England)

Town in Kent, on the THAMES RIVER, 14 mi E of LONDON. In 1216 King John signed a peace treaty here with his barons. See RUNNYMEDE.

ERITREA

Nation on the RED SEA, with ASMARA as its capital. It was originally part of the ancient Ethiopian kingdom of AXUM until the seventh century A.D. Much of its coastal region was conquered by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the 16th century. In the late 19th century Ethiopia fought with EGYPT and ITALY for control of the province. Mainly under Italian control after 1890, it was their base from 1935 to 1936 during the conquest of Ethiopia and remained in Italian hands until it was taken by the British in 1941 during World War II. Ruled as a UN Trust Territory until 1952, Eritrea then became independent as a federated part of Ethiopia, which it joined fully in 1962. Beginning in 1962 Eritrean secessionists carried on a guerrilla war against Ethiopia, which broke out into active war in 1975, causing a severe refugee problem. The original rebel group the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) was joined by a second group, the Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF) in the 1970s. The EPLF eliminated the ELF in 1980 and succeeded in routing the Ethiopians from most of the region by 1990. In 1993 the people of Eritrea voted for their own independence. A border conflict with Ethiopia from 1998 through 2000 has slowed development, but peacekeeping forces arrived in 2000, and the HAGUE Tribunal ruled on the boundary in 2002.

ERIVAN See YEREVAN

ERLANGEN (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, 12 mi NNW of NUREMBERG, at the confluence of the Schwabach and Regnitz Rivers. Founded in the eighth century, it was bought by the king of BOHEMIA in 1361 and passed to Nuremberg in 1402. The arrival of Huguenot refugees from France in 1686 brought prosperity to the town. It passed to Bavaria in 1810. It has a famous university where the philosophers Friedrich Schelling and Friedrich Schleiermacher taught in the 19th century.

ERLAU See EGER

ERMELAND [Ermland] [Polish: Warmia] (Poland)

Region in Olsztyn province, extending inland from the BALTIC SEA, formerly part of EAST PRUSSIA. A bishopric under the Teutonic Knights after 1250, it was ceded to Poland in 1466 and passed to PRUSSIA in 1772. It reverted to Poland in 1945.

ERMINE STREET [Ermin Street] (England)

Ancient Roman road from LONDON to YORK. One of the four major roads in Roman Britain, it passed through CAMBRIDGESHIRE, home of the Earningas tribe, for whom it was named. The name has also been applied to the road between SILCHESTER and GLOUCESTER. See also FOSSE WAY, ICKNIELD WAY, and WATLING STREET.

ERMIN STREET See ERMINE STREET

ERMLAND See ERMELAND

ER RAFA See RAFA

ER RAMLE See RAMLA

ER RIAD See RIYADH

ER RIF See RIF MOUNTAINS

ER RIFF See RIF MOUNTAINS

ERSEKUIVAR See NOVÉ ZÁMKY

ERYTHRAE (Turkey)

Ionian city of ancient LYDIA, now in Izmir province, on the Kara Burun Peninsula, opposite CHIOS. It seceded from an alliance with ATHENS in 453 B.C. by refusing to pay tribute. This link was restored by a new government, but the city rebelled again in the Peloponnesian Wars. Liberated from Persian rule in 334 B.C. by Alexander the Great, it became a free city in the Roman province of ASIA after 133 B.C. One of 12 important Ionian cities, it was famous for its sibyls Herophile and Athenais. It remained a wealthy city of the ROMAN EMPIRE and the BYZANTINE EMPIRE but was annexed to Turkey in the 15th century.

ERYX [former: Monte San Guiliano; modern: Erice] (Italy)

Ancient town in SICILY, 4 mi ENE of TRAPANI, originally settled by the Elymi in the Early Iron Age. A part of the Carthaginian Empire from 405 B.C., it was long sought by Greek SYRACUSE. Pyrrhus of EPIRUS took it in 278 B.C., and during the Punic Wars it was destroyed by CARTHAGE c. 260 B.C. and finally ceded to ROME at the end of the First Punic War. The site of the famous temple of Venus Erycina, it also has cyclopean walls and Roman fortifications with towers, a castle dating from the Middle Ages, and an early 14th-century cathedral with a Gothic facade.

ERZGEBIRGE [Ore Mountains] [Czech: Krušnéhory] (Czech Republic, Germany)

Mountain range on the border of BOHEMIA and SAXONY. A densely populated industrial area, it has a wide variety of minerals and was mined for its iron and silver from the 14th to the 19th centuries. Following the SUDETENLAND dispute of 1938 the Czech portion of the mountains was transferred to GERMANY. Klínovec Mt is the highest peak, at 4,080 ft.

ERZINCAN [Erzinjan] (Turkey)

Town and capital of Erzincan province, on the EUPHRATES RIVER, 96 mi W of ERZURUM. Captured from the BYZANTINE EMPIRE by the Seljuk Turks in 1071, it fell to the Mongols in 1243 and was later ruled by local Turkoman dynasties until its incorporation into the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in the early 16th century. In the late 19th century it was an important center of eastern Anatolia but suffered from Armenian riots and Russian occupation in World War I.

ERZURUM [Erzerum] [Greek: Theodosiopolis] (Turkey) City and capital of Erzurum province, 450 mi E of ANKARA. It has been an important commercial and military center since antiquity because of its position on the caravan route from Asia Minor to PERSIA. In the fifth century A.D. it was also an important frontier post of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE but fell to the Arabs in 653. It prospered under the Seljuk Turks in the early 13th century and came under the OTTOMAN EMPIRE in 1515. The Erzurum Congress met here under Kemal Atatürk from July 23 to August 7, 1919, to discuss resistance to the Allied partition of Anatolia following the Ottoman defeat in World War I.

ESCAFELD See SHEFFIELD

ESCAUT See SCHELDE

ESCHOLTZ ATOLL See BIKINI

ESCHWEGE (Germany) City in NE HESSE, 25 mi ESE of KASSEL. First mentioned in 974, it was chartered in 1249 and passed to Hesse in 1436.

ESCHWEILER (Germany) City in NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, 11 mi NE of AACHEN. First mentioned in the ninth century A.D., it passed to the duchy of JÜLICH in 1420 and to PRUSSIA in 1815. It was the scene of severe fighting in 1944 during World War II.

ESCORIAL See EL ESCORIAL

ESDRAELON, PLAIN OF [Valley of Jezreel] [Israeli: 'Emeq Yizre'el, Ha-'Emeq] (Israel) Plain between GALILEE and SAMARIA, W of the JORDAN RIVER. Located on the traditional passage between EGYPT and the FERTILE CRESCENT, it has been an avenue of commerce and the scene of battles from 1500 B.C. until A.D. 1918. It was here that Gideon defeated the Midianites and Amalekites. Drainage of the area began in the early 20th century.

Formerly a swampy malarial lowland, it is now one of Israel's most fertile regions.

ESFAHĀN [Isfahan] [ancient: Aspadana; former: Ispahan] (Iran)

City and capital of Esfahan province, 252 mi S of TEHERAN. An important city in Sassanid times, it fell to the Arabs in A.D. 642 and became capital of the empire of the Seljuk Turks in the 11th century. Captured by the Mongols in the early 13th century, in 1388 it was taken by Tamerlane, who slaughtered 70,000 inhabitants following an insurrection. In 1598 Shah Abbas I made it his capital and erected many fine buildings here so that it then became one of the largest and most beautiful cities in the world. Most of these buildings survive. The city declined rapidly after falling to the Afghans in 1722; most of the inhabitants were massacred and it never fully recovered.

ESHNUNNA See TELL ASMAR

ESHOWE (South Africa)

Town in KWAZULU-NATAL, 70 mi NNE of DURBAN. During the Zulu War it was held by the British against the Zulus for several months until being relieved on April 3, 1879.

ESKI DZHUMAYA See TARGOVISHTA

ESKIJE See XANTHI

ESKISEHIR [Eskishehr] (Turkey)

City and capital of Eskisehir province, 128 mi W of ANKARA. In 1097 the crusaders under Godfrey de Bouillon defeated the Seljuk Turks here. It came under the control of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE at the end of the 13th century. The city was destroyed during the Turkish war of independence, from 1919 to 1922. Its redevelopment was accelerated, however, by its position on the ISTANBUL-BAGHDAD railway. The ruins of ancient DORYLAEUM are nearby.

ESKI-ZAGRA See STARA ZAGORA

ESNA See ISNA

ESOPUS See KINGSTON

ESPAÑA See SPAIN

ESPAÑOLA See HISPANIOLA

ESPARTA [former: Esparza] (Costa Rica)

City in Puntarenas province, 12 mi E of PUNTARENAS. One of the oldest cities in Costa Rica, it was founded in 1574 and was frequently attacked by pirates in the 17th century, when it was a Pacific outpost.

ESPERANCE, CAPE (Solomon Islands)

Cape on the NW coast of GUADALCANAL ISLAND. During World War II Japanese forces landed here in 1942. A naval battle was fought off the cape on October 11 and 12, 1942, between Japanese and U.S. forces. The cape was also the last Japanese foothold on Guadalcanal during the U.S. invasion of the island in 1943.

ESPIRITU SANTO [Santo] [former: Marina] (Vanuatu)

Island in an independent group in the SW Pacific Ocean, formerly the NEW HEBRIDES. Discovered in 1606 by the Portuguese navigator Pedro de Queirós, it was the site of a large U.S. airbase during World War II. Then an Anglo-French condominium, it was the center of a separatist movement in 1980.

ESQUILINE HILL See ROME, SEVEN HILLS

ESQUIMALT (Canada)

Seaport and naval station in SW BRITISH COLUMBIA, at the SE end of VANCOUVER ISLAND, on Juan de Fuca Strait. It has one of the world's largest dry docks and is the Pacific Coast headquarters of the Canadian navy. It originated as a community during the Crimean War, when it served as an Anglo-French naval base for their attack on Russia's KAMCHATKA PENINSULA.

ESQUIPULAS (Guatemala)

Town in Chiquimula department, 20 mi SE of CHIQUIMULA. The colonial church here is the greatest pilgrimage center in CENTRAL AMERICA. It was built by the archbishop of Guatemala in 1737 to house the Black Christ, a figure carved out of dark wood in 1594 for the Spanish conquistadors.

ESQUIVIAS (Spain)

Town in Toledo province, 22 mi S of MADRID. Miguel de Cervantes, author of Don Quixote de la Mancha, was married here and lived here for some time.

ES-SALT See AS-SALT

ESSAOUIRA [former: Mogador] (Morocco)

City and port in Safi province, on the Atlantic Ocean, between SAFI and AGADIR. Occupied in ancient times by Phoenicians and Carthaginians, it decayed, but was refounded and fortified in 1765 as a rival port to Agadir by Sultan Sidi Muhammad ibn' Abdullah. In 1844 it was bombarded by the French to halt Moroccan support for the Algerian resistance movement. During World War II U.S. forces landed here in November 1942.

ESSEG See OSIJEK

ESSEN [Essen an der Ruhr] (Germany)

City in NORTH RHINE-WESTPHALIA, near the Ruhr River, 18 mi NNE of DÜSSELDORF. Essen is the largest industrial city of the RUHR, the seat of the Krupp steel works, and the chief site for the production of electricity in W Germany. It grew up around a Benedictine convent founded in the ninth century A.D., and it remained a small imperial state ruled by the abbess of the convent until 1803, when it passed to PRUSSIA. Industrial expansion came in the latter half of the 19th century. As the center of the German war industry, Essen was heavily bombed in World War II.

ESSEQUIBO See GUYANA

ESSEX (England)

County bounded on the S by the THAMES estuary and on the E by the NORTH SEA. The administrative headquarters is CHELMSFORD.

ESSEX (England)

Early kingdom of SE central England that included the modern counties of ESSEX, and most of HERTFORDSHIRE and LONDON. Probably settled by Saxons in the early sixth century A.D., it was converted to Christianity c. 605 by King Saeberth of Essex and later came under the overlordship of Wulfhere of MERCA. In 825 it submitted to Egbert of WESSEX and became an earldom. It was part of the DANELAW from 886 until 917, when it was retaken from the Danes by Edward the Elder of Wessex.

ESSEX (United States)

Town in S CONNECTICUT, on the W bank of the CONNECTICUT RIVER, 20 mi SE of MIDDLETOWN. Settled in 1690, it developed as a shipping community and was attacked by the British during the War of 1812.

ESSLING [Aspern-Essling] (Austria)

Village within the city of VIENNA, 7 mi E of the city center. Napoleon suffered his first serious defeat here on May 21 and 22, 1809, during the Napoleonic Wars. In the campaign to capture Vienna the French and their Allies were forced back across the DANUBE RIVER by the Austrians under Archduke Charles. Although Austrian casualties were greater, the French had to abandon their valuable bridgehead around the villages of ASPERN and Essling.

ESSLINGEN [Esslingen am Neckar] (Germany)

City in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, on the Neckar River, 6 mi ESE of STUTTGART. Chartered c. 1220, it was a free imperial city from 1360 to 1802, when it passed to WÜRTTEMBERG. The Great Swabian League was founded here in 1488. See also SWABIA.

ES SUR See TYRE

ES-SUWEĪDA See AS-SUWAYDĀ

ES-SUWEIDIYĪ See AS-SUWAYDĀ

ESTADJA See ĒCIJA

ESTADOS UNIDOS MEXICANOS See MEXICO

ESTE [Latin: Ateste] (Italy)

Town in Padova province, VENETO region, 17 mi SW of PADUA. Until its absorption by ROME c. 200 B.C. it was the principal seat of the Veneti people. It was abandoned in the sixth century A.D. when the Adige River altered its usual course away from the town. It became known in the late Middle Ages and the Renaissance as the original home of the famous Este family, rulers of FERRARA and MODENA. In 1405 it passed to VENICE along with Padua.

ESTELLA (Spain)

City in Navarra province, on the Ega River, 22 mi SW of PAMPLONA. In the Middle Ages it was the second city of the kingdom of NAVARRE. It was Don Carlos stronghold during the 19th century's Carlist Wars.

ESTEPA [Latin: Astapa] (Spain)

City in Sevilla province, 14 mi ENE of OSUNA. An ancient city, it was a Roman stronghold during the Second Punic War of 218 to 201 B.C. Ferdinand III of LEÓN and CASTILE recaptured it from the Moors in A.D. 1240.

ESTERWEGEN (Germany)

Village in LOWER SAXONY, 12 mi SE of PAPENBURG. Esterwegen was the site of a concentration camp during the Nazi period.

ESTONIA [former: Estonian Soviet Socialist Republic] [Estonian: Eesti, Eestimaa]

Republic N of LATVIA and E of RUSSIA, bordered on the N by the BALTIC SEA and the Gulfs of Riga and FINLAND. Its capital is TALLINN. Settled by Estonians before recorded history in the area, it was attacked in the 13th century A.D. by Danes and the Livonian Brothers of the Sword who partitioned the country between them. The Livonians bought the Danish portion in 1346 and ruled Estonia until 1561, when their order was dissolved. By the Treaty of Altmark between RUSSIA and SWEDEN in 1629, all Estonia passed to Sweden. In 1721, by the Treaty of NYSTAD, it passed to Russia, though German burghers continued to control the country's urban wealth. In the 19th century many Estonians emigrated to Canada and the United States. Estonia declared herself independent in February 1918 but was immediately occupied by GERMANY. Independence was fully recognized in 1920 by the Peace of TARTU. The Nazi-Soviet Pact of August 1939 again placed Estonia under Russian control; and, though occupied by the Germans during World War II, Estonia was incorporated into the Soviet Union after that war. Estonia became an independent nation again in 1991. In 1994, the Russian army withdrew from the country. Estonia applied to join the European Union in 1995 and a referendum to join was passed by a two-thirds majority of voters. In 2004, Estonia joined NATO.

ESTONIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC See ESTONIA

ESTRECHO DE MAGALLANES See MAGELLAN, STRAIT OF

ESTREMADURA [Extremadura] (Spain)

Central area of the IBERIAN PENINSULA, including the provinces of Cáceres and Badajoz, on the Portuguese border. Reconquered from the Moors in the 12th and 13th centuries, it was frequently a battlefield in Spain's wars with PORTUGAL and in the Peninsular Campaign of the Napoleonic Wars. In the Spanish civil war it fell early to the Nationalists. It is an underprivileged region of Spain, and its inhabitants tend to emigrate to the more prosperous parts of the country.

ESTREMOZ (Portugal)

City in Alto Alentejo province, 25 mi NE of ÉVORA. It was an ancient city renowned for its distinctive pottery. Here St. Isabella of Portugal died in 1336. It was an important military base for Portugal's victories against the Spanish in 1663 and 1665.

ESZÉK See OSIJEKESZTERGOM [German: Gran; Latin: Strigonium; Slovak: Ostrihom] (Hungary)

City and port on the DANUBE RIVER, in Komárom county, 25 mi NW of BUDAPEST. One of the oldest cities in Hungary, it was the capital and royal residence of the early Arpád kings until the 13th century A.D. Sacked by the Mongols in 1241, it was occupied by the Turks in the 16th and 17th centuries. It is the oldest archbishopric in Hungary, dating from 1189, and it has a museum containing the largest collection of ecclesiastical art in the country. The 19th-century cathedral is the largest and perhaps the most beautiful church in Hungary.

ÉTABLISSEMENTS FRANÇAIS DANS L'INDE See FRENCH INDIAETAH (Greenland)

Village on Smith Sound opposite Ellesmere Island. It is frequently used as a base for arctic expeditions.

ÉTAMPES (France)

Town in the Essonne department, 30 mi SSW of PARIS. Dating from the seventh century A.D., it was the site of the church council of 1130 that recognized Innocent II as legitimate pope, ending a papal schism.

ÉTAPLES (France)

Town in the Pas-de-Calais department, S of BOULOGNE. At the Treaty of Étaples in 1492 Henry VII of ENGLAND disclaimed all of England's historic rights to French territory except CALAIS. During World War II Étaples was an important British base.

ETAWAH (India)

Town in SW UTTAR PRADESH, on the Jumna River, 67 mi ESE of AGRA. Held by the Rajputs from the 12th to the 16th centuries A.D., it became the seat of a Muslim governor. The town was a banking and commercial center in the 17th century. It was occupied by the rebels during the Indian Mutiny of 1857.

ETHIOPIA [former: Abyssinia]

A country of East Africa in the central plateau, with the RED SEA to the N, SUDAN to the W, KENYA to the S, and SOMALIA to the E, ringed by mountains, with only one navigable river, the Blue NILE. Its remoteness has preserved a unique identity and culture through most of its history.

The country's first kingdom was AXUM, founded c. 1000 B.C. by Arabian Semites. Traditionally Ethiopia's emperors had traced their lineage to Solomon and Sheba of the Bible. It was the biblical land of KUSH. In the fourth century A.D. Axum was converted to Christianity. The growth of Islam threatened Ethiopia, however, and it withdrew from contact with the outside world, existing in undisturbed seclusion for nearly 1,000 years.

During the late 15th century a number of adventurers from PORTUGAL and other nations rediscovered Ethiopia. They sought the aid of the legendary ruler Prester John, supposedly in a high country to the E, against Islam and the OTTOMAN EMPIRE. In 1527 fierce Muslim attacks caused the Ethiopian emperor to ask for Portuguese aid. The Muslims were repulsed, and the Portuguese then tried to convert the country they called Abyssinia to Roman Catholicism. Jesuit missionaries caused great turmoil in Abyssinia, and in 1633 they were expelled, and the country again withdrew from the outside world. GONDER became the country's capital, but by the mid-18th century imperial rule had weakened, and civil war raged periodically.

Europeans began reentering Abyssinia in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. In July 1867 a British force under Robert Napier entered the country to free British captives. It defeated the Ethiopian army at MAGDALA and then withdrew. By 1885 ITALY, with British approval, had taken the ports of ASEB and MASSAWA and moved inland. The Ethiopian army halted this advance in 1887 at Dogali. In 1889 Menelik II took the throne and concluded a treaty with Italy. Italy used this to claim Abyssinia as a protectorate. Menelik II rejected the claim, and in 1896 his forces crushed the Italians at ADWA. International respect soared, and his new capital at ADDIS ABABA became a diplomatic hotbed. Ethiopia maintained its independence by playing off British and French colonial ambitions against one another.

Italy continued to covet Ethiopia. In 1935 a massive invasion by Benito Mussolini's fascist regime swept into the country but took six months to secure the capital. Emperor Haile Selassie fled to GREAT BRITAIN and returned in triumph five years later with British aid. Great Britain actively worked to modernize the army and bureaucracy of its ally during World War II. In the wake of the war full sovereignty was restored, and Ethiopia gained control of ERITREA and OGADEN. Eritrea proved a troublesome acquisition, and Eritrean nationalist guerrillas fought the Ethiopian government throughout the 1960s and 1970s. In September 1974, following a severe famine, Haile Selassie was deposed by military officers, and in March 1975 the monarchy was abolished. Full-scale war between Eritrean and Ethiopian forces began in 1975 and an armed forces committee declared a socialist state, moving toward close ties with the USSR. Fighting and unrest continued to plague the country, with Eritrea having gained independence, the Ogaden being contested with SOMALIA, and periodic famines sweeping the country. In 1991, a revolution deposed the Marxist military government, in 1994 a new constitution was declared, and in 1995 the first democratically elected government was installed.

ETIL See VOLGA RIVER

ETLA [San Pablo Etla] (Mexico)

Town in Oaxaca state, 11 mi NNW of OAXACA. A place of pilgrimage, it is also an old Aztec town with an ancient aqueduct. With the surrounding valley it was a part of land granted to Hernán Cortés, the conquistador.

ETNA, MOUNT [Latin: Aetna; Sicilian: Mongibello] (Italy)

Active volcano near the E coast of SICILY, in Catania province, NNW of CATANIA. At 10,958 ft Etna is the highest active volcano in Europe. Its first known eruption, in 475 B.C., was described by the Greeks Pindar and Aeschylus. The eruptions of A.D. 1169 and 1669 were the most destructive. The most recent eruption was in 1971.

ETON (England)

Town in BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, on the N bank of the THAMES RIVER, opposite WINDSOR. It is the site of Eton College, the oldest and largest of the British public, or independent, schools. It was founded by Henry VI in 1440–41, simultaneously with King's College, CAMBRIDGE.

ETOWAH RIVER (United States)

River that rises in the Blue Ridge Mts, flows through N GEORGIA and SW to the Oostanaula River at ROME. On the river, 3 mi SE of Cartersville, are the Etowah Mounds, a group of prehistoric Indian earthworks 60 ft high.

ETRURIA (Italy)

Ancient country of central Italy, comprising the modern region of TUSCANY and part of UMBRIA. In ancient times it was the home of the Etruscans, who are now believed to be the native pre-Indo-European people of the area, but also influenced by some waves of migration from ASIA MINOR c. 900–800 B.C. By 500 B.C. they had established an advanced civilization, noted especially for its art, its religion, its trade, and its naval power. Their power extended into southern Italy and a significant part of the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Etruria peaked in power between 600 and 535 B.C. when Etruria allied with CARTHAGE against the Greeks, defeating them at SARDINIA, but declined following a naval defeat off CUMAE in 524 B.C. By the third century B.C. the cities of Etruria had been conquered by ROME. With the fall of Rome Etruria's history became that of Tuscany and Umbria. In the 19th century Napoleon established the kingdom of Etruria in Tuscany for the house of Bourbon-Parma. It lasted from 1801 to 1807.

ETRUSCAN LEAGUE See ETRURIA

ETSCH See ADIGE RIVER

ETTLINGEN (Germany)

City in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, on the Alb River, 6 mi S of KARLSRUHE. Originally a Roman settlement, it passed to BADEN in A.D. 1219 and was severely damaged by fire in 1689.

ETYMANDER See HELMAND RIVER

ETYMANDRUS See HELMAND RIVER

EU (France)

Town in the Seine-Maritime department, 17 mi NE of DIEPPE. An ancient countship, it passed successively to the houses of BRIENNE, ARTOIS, KLEVE, LORRAINE and GUISE, and ORLÉANS. Its 16th-century château was largely destroyed by fire in 1902.

EUBOEIA [English: Negropont; Greek: Έββοια; Italian: Negroponte] (Greece)

Island and department, separated from the Greek mainland by the Ėvripos strait. CHALCIS is its chief city. Settled by Ionian and Thracian colonists, it was divided among seven independent cities of which Chalcis and ERETRIA were the most important. By the eighth century B.C. they had colonized parts of MACEDONIA, southern ITALY, and SICILY. Under the hegemony of ATHENS from 506 to 411 B.C., Euboea was captured by Philip II of Macedon c. 390 B.C. and was annexed by ROME in 194 B.C. It later became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE and a colony of VENICE in the early 13th century. From 1470 it belonged to the OTTOMAN EMPIRE until joining independent Greece in 1830.

EUGUBIUM See GUBBIO

EULOGOMENOPOLIS See CASSINO

EUMOLPIAS See PLOVDIV

EUPATORIA See YĖVPATORIYA

EUPEN (Belgium)

Town in Liège province, on the Vesdre River, 21 mi E of LIÈGE. Together with MALMÉDY, Eupen has always been strategically important in the defense of Belgium. Transferred to PRUSSIA in 1815 by the Congress of VIENNA, it was returned to Belgium after World War I, but it was again temporarily annexed by Germany during World War II.

EUPHRATES RIVER [Arabic: Al Furāt; Turkish: Firat Nehri] (Iraq, Syria, Turkey)

River formed by the confluence of the Kara and Murad rivers in E central Turkey, it flows S into Syria and SE through Iraq until it joins the TIGRIS RIVER to form the Shatt-al-Arab. Ancient MESOPOTAMIA, the cradle of many great civilizations, depended on the waters of the Euphrates and the Tigris Rivers for survival. The cities of SIPPAR, ERECH, UR, and BABYLON flourished on its banks. Virtually unnavigable, it now waters one of Syria's most productive agricultural areas.

EUROPUS (Iran) See RHAGES

EUROPUS (Turkey) See CARCHEMISH

EUTAW SPRINGS (United States)

Locality in SOUTH CAROLINA, 45 mi N of CHARLESTON. During the American Revolution, British forces, although initially successful, were forced to withdraw to Charleston following an engagement here with Americans under Nathanael Greene on September 8, 1781. This was the last important conflict of the war in South Carolina, as Greene continued to force the British in Georgia and the Carolinas back to coastal bases.

EUTIN (Germany)

Town in SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, 20 mi N of LÜBECK. Founded c. 1145 as a frontier post in the wars between the Germans and Wends, c. 1300 it became the residence of the bishops, later the princebishops of Lübeck. It passed to OLDENBURG in 1773 and became part of Schleswig-Holstein in 1937. The composer Carl Maria von Weber was born here in 1786.

EUYUK See HÜYÜK

EUZKADI See BASQUE PROVINCES

EVANGELISTA See PINES, ISLE OF

EVEREST, MOUNT [Tibetan: Chomolungma] (China, Nepal)

Mountain in the central HIMALAYAS, on the border of Nepal and TIBET. At 29,028 ft Everest is the highest mountain in the world. The first eight attempts to climb it were unsuccessful, but it was finally scaled on May 28, 1953, by Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand and Tenzing Norgay of Nepal. Since then it has been climbed by various expeditions. It is named for Sir George Everest, British surveyor of the Himalayas.

EVERGLADES (United States)

Marshy region, approximately 5,000 sq mi, in S FLORIDA, ranging from LAKE OKEECHOBEE in the N to Florida Bay. The highest point is only seven ft above sea level, and the area is a mass of water, saw grass, islands of vegetation, coastal mangrove forests, and black muck. Exploring expeditions of the 16th century found Seminole Indians living here.

In 1832 the United States concluded a treaty with the Seminoles to move them to OKLAHOMA. Some Seminoles, led by a young chief, Osceola, objected and used the Everglades as a hiding place, raiding U.S. troops from here. A long struggle followed, and it was not until 1842, after the Seminoles had been starved out, that they agreed to move west. Approximately 1,500 American soldiers had been killed. It is estimated that more than 1,000 Seminoles and Miccosukee still live in the Everglades.

In the 20th century southern Florida's housing and commercial boom have adversely affected the area. Drainage and construction projects have disrupted the water flow into the Everglades, and plant and animal life are consequently threatened. The area is still a great wildlife refuge, and hunting, fishing, and backwoods life continue unabated in many parts. At the southwestern end is Everglades National Park of 1.4 million acres.

EVESHAM (England)

Town in HEREFORD AND WORCESTER, on the AVON RIVER, 27 mi S of BIRMINGHAM. During his rebellion, Simon de Montfort, earl of LEICESTER, was defeated and killed here on August 4, 1265, by the army of Henry III under Prince Edward.

ÉVIAN See ÉVIAN-LES-BAINS

ÉVIAN-LES-BAINS [Évian] (France)

Town and spa in the Haute-Savoie department, on the S shore of LAKE GENEVA, opposite LAUSANNE. In 1962 a cease-fire agreement was concluded here between the French government and the provisional government of ALGERIA. The town has been famous since the early 18th century for its mineral waters, which are now bottled for export around the world.

ÉVORA [Latin: Ebora, Liberalitas Julia; Moorish: Jabura] (Portugal)

Town and capital of Alto Alentejo province, 68 mi SE of LISBON. An important Roman military center, it was the headquarters of the Roman commander Quintus Sertorius from 80 to 72 B.C. Captured by the Moors in the eighth century A.D., it was retaken by the Portuguese under Gerald the Fearless in 1166. For a long time the town was the favorite residence of the Portuguese court after 1385. It was the scene of a convention in 1832 that banished the pretender to the Portuguese throne, Dom Miguel.

EVPARATORIA See YEVPATORIYA

ÉVREUX [Latin: Civitas Eburovicum, Mediolanum] (France)

Town and capital of the Eure department, NORMANDY, 55 mi WNW of PARIS. One of the oldest towns in France, it was a flourishing city during the Gallo-Roman period and became a bishopric in the fourth century A.D. Sacked or burned down five times between the fifth and 14th centuries, it passed to the French Crown in 1584. In 1940, during World War II, it was severely damaged by German bombing. Much of it was rebuilt later. Its cathedral is one of the largest in France and is noted for its stained-glass windows.

EVRIPOS See KHALKIS

EVROS See MARITSA RIVER

ÉVVOIA See EUBOEA

EXETER [Latin: Isca Damnoniorum] (England)

City and administrative headquarters of DEVON, on the Exe River, 36 mi NE of PLYMOUTH. One of the most important cities of southwestern England, it was originally the chief settlement of the early British Dumnonii tribe before falling to the Romans. During the Middle Ages, it suffered a number of sieges. It was taken by the Anglo-Saxons under Athelstan in A.D. 926 and by William the Conqueror in 1068. The cathedral, restored in the 1870s, was built during 1280–1369. An important woolen center from the 10th to the 18th centuries, it was a Royalist stronghold from 1643 to 1646, during the Civil War. As the largest U.S. Navy supply base in World War II, it was heavily bombed.

EXETER (United States)

Town in SE NEW HAMPSHIRE, 12 mi WSW of PORTSMOUTH, on the Exeter River. Founded in 1638 by exiles from the MASSACHUSETTS BAY Colony, it remained independent of the rest of the colonies until 1643. During the American Revolution it was a patriot stronghold and the capital of New Hampshire. It is the home of the famous school for boys, Phillips Exeter Academy, founded in 1781.

EXMOOR (England)

Moor in W SOMERSET and NE DEVON, generally over 1,200 ft in altitude. It has many prehistoric earthworks. It is the setting for the novel Lorna Doone by Richard Blackmore.

EXTREMADURA See ESTREMADURA

EYNHAM [Ensham] (England)

Ancient village in OXFORDSHIRE, 7 mi NW of OXFORD. There was an Anglo-Saxon hamlet on the site and later a large and famous Benedictine abbey, whose first abbot, in 1005, was Aelfric Grammaticus. Refounded after the Norman Conquest, the abbey effectively dates from 1086. Little of it is left.

EZEL See SAAREMAA

EZIONGABER See EZIONGEBER

EZIONGEBER [Eziongaber] [Arabic: Tall al-Khalifāh] (Jordan)

Ancient town and seaport in Ma'ān governorate, at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba, near AQABA. The site of a fortified settlement from the 10th century until the fourth century B.C., it is mentioned in the Bible (I Kings 9:26) as the place where King Solomon built his navy. It was the site of the largest copper refineries ever to have existed in the ancient world. See also ELAT.

EZRA CHURCH (United States)

Battlefield in SW ATLANTA, GEORGIA. During the Civil War Confederate troops suffered many casualties here on July 28, 1864, when they tried to check General William T. Sherman's advance through the state to the sea.

F

FABRIANO (Italy)

Town, MARCHE region, central Italy, 38 mi SW of ANCONA. Fabriano was the home of a minor 14th-century school of painting founded by Allegretto Nuzi; its leading figure was Gentile da Fabriano (c. 1370–1427), whose Adoration of the Magi is a major example of the Gothic International Style. See also UMBRIA.

FAENZA [ancient: Faventia] (Italy)

City, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, N Italy, 19 mi SW of RAVENNA. At Faenza, Sulla's forces won a victory in the civil war that made him dictator of ROME in 82 B.C. In A.D. 542 Totila the Ostrogoth defeated an army sent by Justinian in hopes of recapturing Italy for the BYZANTINE EMPIRE. Since the Middle Ages Faenza has been noted for the production of a tin-glazed earthenware called, after the town, Faenza majolica, or faïence. During World War II the city was a center of fighting in December 1944.

FAEROE ISLANDS [Faroe Islands] [Danish: Faerøerne, Faeroese: Føroyar] (Denmark)

Island group in N Atlantic, between SHETLANDS Islands and ICELAND. Settled by Norsemen in the eighth century A.D., the Faeroes passed to DENMARK in 1380. Rising nationalism in the 19th century fostered a desire for independence. This increased during World War II when Denmark fell to GERMANY. GREAT BRITAIN established a protectorate over the islands in 1940. After the war, however, the Faeroe Islands were granted only self-government under the authority of Denmark.

FAERØERNE See FAEROE ISLANDS

FAEROESE See FAEROE ISLANDS

FAESULAE See FIESOLE

FAHLUN See FALUN

FAHREJ See IRANSHAHR

FAIAL [Fayal] [former: Fayal; Portuguese: Ilha do Faial] (Portugal)

One of the AZORES in the N Atlantic, W of Portugal. Discovered c. 1430 by an expedition sent out by Prince Henry the Navigator of Portugal, Faial was colonized in the 16th century. It was the scene of great volcanic activity in 1957–58.

FAÏD PASS (Tunisia)

Pass in Atlas Mountains of N Tunisia, E of SBEÏTLA and on the road to the port of SFAX. In the North African campaign of World War II, the Germans under Rommel sought to break through the Tunisian mountains to the W by way of the Faïd and KASSERINE passes on February 14 and 20, 1943. The Americans, after initial defeats, counterattacked and recaptured the Faïd Pass in April, thus ending the last Axis offensive of the campaign.

FAIRBANKS (United States)

City in central ALASKA, at the juncture of the Tanana and Chena Rivers. Founded on the site of a 1902 gold strike and named for a U.S. vice president, Fairbanks benefited from the building of the Alaska Railroad, several major highways, especially the ALASKA HIGHWAY in 1942, and an international airport, the northernmost on the continent, to become the transportation and distribution center of the Alaskan interior.

FAIRFAX [former: Fairfax Court House] (United States)

City, county seat of Fairfax County, VIRGINIA, a few mi SW of WASHINGTON, D.C. Often called Fairfax Court House in its early days, the city developed after 1800. During the Civil War, Confederate colonel John S. Mosby made a daring raid on Fairfax on March 8, 1863, capturing Union general Edwin Stoughton in his bed at headquarters here.

FAIRFAX COURT HOUSE See FAIRFAX

FAIRFIELD (United States)

Town in SW CONNECTICUT, just S of BRIDGEPORT, on LONG ISLAND SOUND. Settled in 1639 on the site of the last battle of the Pequot War of 1637, Fairfield during the American Revolution was burned in a punitive raid on July 9, 1779, by British regulars, Hessians, and Loyalists under General William Tryon.

FAIRFIELD VILLAGE See BRIDGEPORT

FAIRHAVEN [former: Oxford] (United States)

Town in SE MASSACHUSETTS, on Buzzards Bay, across the Acushnet River from NEW BEDFORD. First called Oxford when settled in 1670, Fairhaven was raided by the British during the Revolution, but saw the attackers repulsed by militia on September 7, 1778. Part of New Bedford until 1812, Fairhaven was also a whaling center in the 19th century.

FAIRHOPE (United States)

Town in SW ALABAMA, on E coast of MOBILE BAY. Founded in 1893–94 by followers of Henry George, Fairhope remained a single-tax town until 1937.

FAIR LAWN (United States)

Town in Bergen County, NE NEW JERSEY, across the PASSAIC RIVER from PATERSON. Settled by Dutch colonists in the 1660s, Fair Lawn became noted in the 1920s for community planning, with zoned industrial development and model garden apartments.

FAIRMONT (United States)

City, county seat of Martin County, in S central MINNESOTA, approximately 12 mi N of the IOWA line. A trading and manufacturing center for the surrounding agricultural region, Fairmont preserves pioneer relics in its courthouse, built on the site of a stockade erected in 1862 during the Sioux uprising under Little Crow.

FAIRMONT (United States)

City, county seat of Marion County, in N central WEST VIRGINIA, where Tygart and West Fork rivers join to form the MONONGAHELA. Settled in 1793, Fairmont was created in 1843 out of a merger of Palatine and Middleton. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad reached Fairmont in 1852. This, along with local commercial coal mines, led to its becoming a Union supply depot during the Civil War. In 1919 its unique four-person bipartisan commission government was established.

FAIR OAKS (United States)

Railroad station, 6 mi E of RICHMOND, VIRGINIA, scene of a battle on May 31 and June 1, 1862, in the Civil War's Peninsular campaign. This engagement, sometimes called the Battle of Seven Pines, after a crossroads SE of Fair Oaks, was the closest the Union forces came to Richmond before 1864. The wounding of Confederate general Joseph E. Johnston led to the appointment of Robert E. Lee as commander.

FAIYUM [Fayum, Fayyum] (Egypt)

Governorate in N Egypt, coextensive with large oasis in the Western Desert, 70 mi SW of CAIRO. Inhabited since prehistoric times. Faiyum has been irrigated by canals from the Nile since the 17th century B.C. It is rich in archaeological remains, especially around the capital, al-Faiyum, on the site of the ancient Ptolemaic center of Crocodilopolis, later ARSINOË, and Lake Karun, ancient LAKE MOERIS. Though captured by Arabs in A.D. 640, Faiyum remained a center of Coptic Christianity for centuries.

FAIZABAD [Fyzabad] (Afghanistan)

City, Badakhshan province, NE Afghanistan, on the Kokcha River near the Soviet border. Capital city of Badakhshan province, Faizabad is the administrative and commercial center of a region noted since ancient times for its deposits of lapis lazuli and strategic trade routes. It was visited by Marco Polo on his way to China in 1271.

FAIZABAD [Fyzabad] [former: Faizabad-cum-Ajodhya] (India)

City, in UTTAR PRADESH state, N India, on the Gogra River, 75 mi E of LUCKNOW. Founded in 1730, Faizabad was the capital of the kingdom of OUDH until 1775. Destroyed in 1821 by Murad Beg, it is now a joint municipality with AYODHYA, 6 mi to the E.

FAIZABAD-CUM-AJODHYA See FAIZABAD (India)

FALAISE (France)

Town in the Calvados department, 19 mi SE of CAEN, in Normandy, NW France. A seat of the dukes of Normandy, Falaise was the birthplace of William the Conqueror c. 1025. In World War II the town suffered heavy damage in air raids, then became a center of ground fighting during the Normandy campaign. Six German divisions were trapped and defeated near Falaise between August 18 and 23, 1944.

FALCÓN See CORO (Venezuela)

FALEMUTH See FALMOUTH (England)

FALERII [modern: Civita Castellana] (Italy)

Ancient city, in the LATIUM region, central Italy, just SE of VITERBO. The capital of the Faliscans, a tribe of the Etruscan Confederation, Falerii fell to the Romans in 395 B.C. It was destroyed by them after a revolt in 241 B.C. A necropolis and parts of the walls remain. During the Middle Ages, the site came under papal rule, was repopulated and renamed. See PAPAL STATES.

FALKIRK [Fawkirk] [Gaelic: Eaglais Bhreac; Latin: Varia Capella] (Scotland)

Town in Central region, Scotland, 20 mi ENE of GLASGOW. Strategically located on high ground midway between Glasgow and EDINBURGH, Falkirk was the site of a fort in Roman times. It was the scene of the victory by Edward I of England over the Scots on July 22, 1298, which marked the first successful employment of the longbow. Prince Charles Edward and his followers defeated the English here on January 17, 1746. In the 19th century, Falkirk became a great industrial town, noted for its ironworks.

FALKLAND (Scotland)

Small town in FIFE region. The site of a royal residence since the 12th century, Falkland was also the site of a castle of the earls of Fife in which David, duke of Rothsay, son and heir apparent of Robert III, was imprisoned and starved to death in 1402.

FALKLAND ISLANDS [Spanish: Islas Malvinas] (Great Britain)

Group of some 200 islands in the S Atlantic, 300 mi E of the STRAIT OF MAGELLAN. The Falklands are now a dependency of Great Britain, claimed on the grounds of discovery by John Davis in 1592, early settlement from 1765 to 1774, and continuous occupation since 1833. SPAIN also claimed the islands under the Treaty of TORDESILLAS of 1494 and by right of discovery, alleging they had first been sighted by Magellan's expedition in 1520. As Spain's successor state, ARGENTINA now claims the islands, despite her failure at colonizing them between 1829 and 1833. The islands' strategic value was demonstrated in World War I, when on December 8, 1914, a British naval force in the Falklands destroyed a German squadron that had come through the Strait of Magellan.

In early April 1982 Argentina, pursuing her claim to the islands, seized them by force. Great Britain immediately ordered a large task force to the islands to recover them, and announced a 200-mile blockade around the islands. In late April the British recovered South Georgia, a group of islands some 800 miles east of the Falklands, then moved on to attack the main islands. There were losses on both sides: the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano and the British destroyer Sheffield were sunk with much loss of life. In May a beachhead was secured on East Falkland. Darwin and then Stanley were captured, and by June 22 the British victory was complete. Since then Great Britain, with greatly augmented forces, has continued to hold the islands.

FALKÖPING (Sweden)

City, Skaraborg County, S Sweden, between Lakes Vänern and Vättern. This is the site of numerous prehistoric remains. Falköping was the scene of a battle on February 24, 1389, in which Margaret of DENMARK, seeking to extend her rule over Sweden, defeated and captured its king, Albert of MECKLENBURG.

FALLEN TIMBERS (United States)

Locality on Maumee River, just SW of TOLEDO, in NW OHIO; so named because a storm had felled many trees here. At Fallen Timbers, U.S. troops under Anthony Wayne defeated some 1,300 Indians on August 20, 1794. This victory ended Indian hostility in the area and hastened the evacuation of British forts. It thus secured the NORTHWEST TERRITORY and demonstrated the strength of the new U.S. government.

FALL RIVER [former: Freetown] (United States)

City, Bristol County, in SE MASSACHUSETTS, at the mouth of the Taunton River on Mount Hope Bay. Settled in 1656, Fall River put its water power to use by beginning textile milling in 1811. By 1871 it was the nation's leading textile center. The action of its millworkers set wage levels after the United Textile Workers of America was founded in 1901. The city was also the scene of the celebrated murder trial of Lizzie Borden in 1892.

FALLS CHURCH (United States)

City, NE VIRGINIA, 7 mi W of WASHINGTON, D.C., near the Little Falls of the POTOMAC. Now a residential suburb of Washington, Falls Church grew up around an Episcopal church that dates from colonial days and was used as a recruiting station in the Revolution and a hospital for Union wounded during the Civil War. The parish was established in 1732; the present church was built between 1767 and 1769.

FALLS, THE See TRENTON

FALMOUTH [former: Falemuth, Penny-cum-cuic Pennycomequick, Smithwick] (England)

Town in CORNWALL, SW England, on a peninsula between Falmouth Bay and Carrick Roads estuary on the ENGLISH CHANNEL. Despite the protection of Pendennis and St. Mawes castles at its harbor entrance, Falmouth fell to Parliamentary besiegers in 1646, signaling the end of the Civil War in Cornwall. Still an important port, Falmouth is growing as a tourist destination.

FALMOUTH (United States) See PORTLAND (United States)

FALMOUTH [former: Succanesset] (United States)

Town, SW tip of Barnstable County, SE MASSACHUSETTS, on the E shore of Buzzards Bay. Settled in 1660, Falmouth, once a whaling and boatbuilding center, suffered British bombardment in both the Revolution and the War of 1812. Now a resort, Falmouth includes the community of WOODS HOLE.

FALUN [Fahlun] (Sweden)

City, seat of Kopparberg County, S central Sweden, 130 mi NW of STOCKHOLM. Though the surrounding copper mines are now largely exhausted, Falun is still the headquarters of the powerful Stora Kopparberg Mining Company. Founded in 1347, this is Sweden's, and perhaps the world's, oldest industrial corporation and was a significant source of funding for King Gustav II's campaigns in the Thirty Years' War.

FAMAGUSTA [former: Arsinoë; Greek: Ammochostos; Turkish: Magusa] (Cyprus)

City, E coast of Cyprus, on Famagusta Bay, NW of Cape Greco. Swollen by a flood of refugees after the fall of ACRE in 1291, Famagusta became one of Christendom's richest cities, noted for its medieval military architecture. Capital of Cyprus's Venetian rulers from 1489, Famagusta fell to the Turks in 1571. It passed to the British in 1878. A British naval base in World War II, the city was heavily bombed. After the war, it was the site of an internment camp from 1946 to 1948 for Jews attempting illegal entry into Palestine. In 1994, the Turkish army occupied Famagusta. The Greek population evacuated the modern city, which has been deserted ever since.

FAMIEH See APAMEA AD ORONTEM

FANAFUTI See TUVALU

FANAR See PHANAR

FANO [ancient: Fanum Fortunae] (Italy)

Town in the MARCHE region of central Italy, on the ADRIATIC, 6 mi SE of PESARO. The eastern terminus of the FLAMINIAN WAY, Fano was founded on the site of an ancient temple of Fortune. Here the Romans decisively defeated CARTHAGE in 207 B.C. As part of the Byzantine Pentapolis, it was one of the earlier acquisitions of the PAPAL STATES in A.D. 754.

FANTI CONFEDERACY (Ghana)

Former confederation of the people of a black African group in the GOLD COAST region, West Africa, now part of the nation of Ghana. According to their tradition, they came to this area from the N in the 17th century. They were involved in the commerce between the African interior and the Dutch and English traders active along the coast. By the early 18th century several autonomous Fanti kingdoms formed a confederacy for protection against the ASHANTI, another people of this part of Africa. The Fanti sided with the British in wars with the Ashanti, and their combined forces triumphed in 1874. That same year the British established the Gold Coast colony of which the Fanti were a part. The Fanti, several hundred thousand strong, are one of the Akan people and speak a Twi language.

FANUM FORTUNAE See FANO

FANUM VOLTUMNAE See MONTEFIASCONE

FARA See SHURUPPAK

FARAH [Farrah, Ferah] [ancient: Phrada] (Afghanistan) City, SW Afghanistan, on the Farah Rud River, near the Iranian border. Strategically located on a trade route, Farah flourished from ancient times until destroyed by the Mongols in A.D. 1221. Having recovered, it was devastated in 1737 by the Persians, but has been revitalized in the 20th century.

FAR EASTERN REGION See RUSSIAN FAR EAST

FAR EASTERN REPUBLIC See RUSSIAN FAR EAST

FAR EASTERN TERRITORY See RUSSIAN FAR EAST

FARGO (United States)

City, Cass County, SE NORTH DAKOTA, at head of navigation on the Red River. Founded in 1871 as the Northern Pacific Railroad advanced, Fargo also provided good riverboat and stagecoach connections. It thus became an outfitting center for westward-bound settlers. It was later an important agricultural, trading, and distribution center.

FARMINGTON (United States)

City, San Juan County, NEW MEXICO, 60 mi SE of the state's NW corner. Founded in 1876 when Indian lands were opened to homesteaders, Farmington became the trade and distribution center for its area, including the Navajo (Dineh) Indian Reservation.

FARNBOROUGH (England)

Town, NE HAMPSHIRE, 31 mi WSW of LONDON. As ruins attest, settlement dates back to Norman times. It is now the site of the Royal Aircraft Establishment. Empress Eugénie of France lived in retirement at Farnborough from 1881 to 1920; together with her husband, Napoleon III, and their son; she is buried here.

FARNE ISLANDS [The Staples] (England)

Group of 17 islets and reefs, one and one-half to 6 mi off the coast of NORTHUMBERLAND. The islands were St. Cuthbert's retreat in the seventh century. They were the scene of the celebrated wreck of the Forfarshire in 1838 when the passengers were rescued by Grace Darling, a lighthouse keeper's daughter. The islands now serve as a bird sanctuary.

FARNHAM (England)

Town, in SURREY, 38 mi SW of LONDON. It is the site of a castle that from 1160 to 1926 served as a residence of the bishops of WINCHESTER. At the intersection of the Pilgrim's Way and the Southampton-London Road, Farnham was an important market. Nearby are the ruins of Waverley Abbey, founded in 1128 as the first Cistercian house in England. William Cobbett, the reformer, and a native of Farnham, is buried here.

FARO (Portugal)

Seaport, capital of the ALGARVE district, S Portugal, 137 mi SSE of LISBON. Faro, southernmost town and last Moorish stronghold in Portugal, was reconquered in 1249. In 1596 an English expedition sacked the city, then ruled by Philip II of Spain. Part of their plunder, the bishop of Faro's books, became the nucleus of OXFORD's Bodleian Library. Devastated by earthquakes in the 18th century, Faro recovered to become a modern tourist center.

FAROE ISLANDS See FAEROE ISLANDS

FARRAH See FARAH

FAR ROCKAWAY See QUEENS (United States)

FARRUKHABAD (India)

City, joint municipality with Fategarh, UTTAR PRADESH state, N India, on the GANGES RIVER, 90 mi WNW of LUCKNAU. Founded as a fort by a local ruler in 1714, Farrukhabad was ceded to the British in 1802. During the Indian Mutiny of 1857 the British garrison was massacred here. Several other engagements were fought here. The district of Farrukhabad includes several ancient ruins and important Buddhist sites, notably Sankisa.

FARS [Farsistan] (ancient: Pars) (Iran)

Province, SW Iran, on the Persian Gulf. Fars, so named by conquering Arabs in the seventh century, is almost identical with the historic region of Persis, original home of the Persians and nucleus of their empire. The ruins of their ancient capitals, PERSEPOLIS and PASARGADAE, are in Fars.

FARSISTAN See FARSFAS See FÈSFASHODA [modern: Kodok] (Sudan)

Town in SE Sudan, on the White NILE. In 1898 Fashoda was the scene of an international incident caused by European rivalry for empire in Africa. A French expedition marching N occupied the town ahead of a British expedition coming S and refused to vacate. War was threatened, but the crisis was settled through negotiation, a solution that helped pave the way for the Anglo-French Entente of 1904.

FATEHGARH See JAMRUDFATEHPUR SIKRI [Fathpur Sikri] (India)

Town, SW UTTAR PRADESH state, N India, 23 mi W of AGRA. Founded by the Mogul emperor Akbar in 1570, it remained his capital until the 1580s. Though an inadequate water supply forced abandonment of the city in 1605, Fatehpur Sikri remains largely intact, its buildings treasured examples of Mogul art and architecture.

FATHPUR SIKRI See FATEHPUR SIKRIFÁTIMA (Portugal)

Village, S Beira Litoral province, W Portugal, 18 mi SE of LEIRIA. An important Catholic shrine, Fátima was the scene of six reported visions of the Virgin Mary in 1917.

FATSHAN See FO-SHANFAVENTIA See FAENZAFAVERSHAM [ancient: Favreshant, Fefresham] (England)

City near the River Swale, N central KENT, 45 mi ESE of LONDON. As a port near a major road, WATLING STREET, Faversham was important under both Romans and Saxons. Later it became an associate member of the CINQUE PORTS. The tombs of King Stephen (1135–54) and of his queen are in the Cluniac Abbey that he founded here in 1147.

FAVRESHANT See FAVERSHAMFAWKIRK See FALKIRKFAYAL See FAIALFAYETTEVILLE [former: Washington Court House] (United States)

City, Washington county, NW ARKANSAS, 50 mi N of FORT SMITH. Founded in 1828, and named after Fayetteville, Tennessee in 1829, Fayetteville was strategically located on a postal route through the Ozarks. It was the scene of several Civil War engagements, notably the Battle of Pea Ridge of March 7 and 8, 1862, before falling to Union troops on April 18, 1863. Long known as an educational center, the city became the home of the University of Arkansas in 1871.

FAYETTEVILLE (United States)

City, S central NORTH CAROLINA, at the head of navigation on the Cape Fear River, 50 mi S of RALEIGH. Two adjacent villages, settled by Scottish highlanders in 1739 were united and renamed for Lafayette in 1783. As the state capital from 1789 to 1793, it was the site of the convention that in 1789 finally ratified the U.S. Constitution in North Carolina. This commercial center was occupied by General William T. Sherman toward the end of the Civil War and is today noted for its military installations, especially FORT BRAGG.

FAYUM See FAIYUM

AL-FAYYUM See FAIYUM

FAZOGLI See FAZUGHLI

FAZUGHLI [Fazogli] (Sudan)

District and village in SE Sudan, near the Ethiopian border. It has been inhabited for centuries by Nilotic people. After the FUNJ dynasty conquered the ALWA Kingdom in 1504, the king of Alwa retreated to Fazughli. From here the Alwa fought the Funj until c. 1685 when the Funj took Fazughli. In 1821 Mehmet Ali, pasha of EGYPT, conquered the Sudan, including Fazughli.

FAZZAN See FEZZAN

FÉCAMP [ancient: Fiscamnum] (France)

Town, Seine-Maritime department, NORMANDY, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 40 mi NW of ROUEN. Dating from Roman times, Fécamp was a major port until the 17th century, when it was eclipsed by LE HAVRE. In 658 a convent arose here but was later destroyed by Norsemen. Fécamp's great Abbey of the Trinity was founded in 1003 upon the reestablished monastery. Benedictine liqueur has been produced here since its discovery in the 16th century by monks of the abbey.

FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY [West Germany] (Germany)

A former republic of central Europe, it was bounded on the E by the GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC (East Germany), CZECHOSLOVAKIA, and AUSTRIA; on the S by SWITZERLAND; on the W by FRANCE, LUXEMBOURG, BELGIUM, and the NETHERLANDS; and on the N by DENMARK, the NORTH SEA, and the BALTIC SEA. Its capital was at BONN. It was created in 1949 out of the French, American, and British zones of occupation in Germany. WEST BERLIN was included in the country, but was completely encircled by East Germany. The Christian Democratic Union leader Konrad Adenauer was the first chancellor of West Germany. In 1952, West Germany, the UNITED STATES, France, and GREAT BRITAIN signed the Bonn Convention, which gave West Germany most attributes of national sovereignty. In 1955, West Germany gained full independence from the occupying powers and joined the United Nations and NATO. West Germany enjoyed an economic boom during the late 1950s and early 1960s; the so-called economic miracle when it became one of the world's leading industrial nations.

In 1969 Willie Brandt and the Social Democrats took control of the government in coalition, and in 1972 was reelected. Brandt launched a major program, called the Ostpolitik (eastern policy) that improved relations with East Germany and the Soviet Bloc. Brandt resigned in 1974, after it was learned that one of his staff was an East German spy. He was replaced by Helmut Schmidt, but disputes over nuclear power and defense broke up the center-left coalition, and in 1984, the conservative CDU took over under Helmut Kohl, whose government was reelected in 1987. In 1989, thousands of East Germans fled to West Germany through Czechoslovakia, Poland, and Hungary. Demonstrations erupted in East Berlin, and the government fell, replaced by a new government that removed travel restrictions on foreign travel. All border crossings to West Germany were opened, and the Berlin Wall began to be dismantled. In 1990, after negotiations with the Soviets to withdraw the Red Army from East Germany, West Germany and East Germany were united to re-form Germany.

FEDERATED MALAY STATES See MALAY PENINSULA, MALAYSIA

FEDERATED SHAN STATES See SHAN STATE

FEDERATION OF RHODESIA AND NYASALAND See MALAWI, RHODESIA

FEFRESHAM See FAVERSHAM

FEHRBELLIN (Germany)

Town, Potsdam district, Germany, 35 mi NW of BERLIN. During the Third Dutch War, the elector of BRANDENBURG defeated the king of SWEDEN at Fehrbellin on June 18, 1675, thereby ending the renown enjoyed by the Swedes for their success in battle.

FELDKIRCH [ancient: Clunia] (Austria)

City, extreme W Austria, near the LIECHTENSTEIN border, 20 mi SSW of BREGENZ. Feldkirch, strategically located near the Arlberg Pass, was heavily fortified in medieval times. Sold by its count to Austria in 1375, Feldkirch became noted for its schools, especially the Jesuit college founded here in 1648. Its castle, town walls, and other medieval structures survive.

FELICITAS JULIA See LISBON

FELLIN See VILJANDI

FELSINA See BOLOGNA

FELTRE [ancient: Feltria] (Italy)

Town, VENETO region, NE Italy, 17 mi SW of BELLUNO. Feltre was the birthplace of Vittorino da Feltre (1378–1446), one of the great humanist schoolmasters of the Renaissance. It was severely damaged in 1509 during fighting between the League of CAMBRAI and the Republic of VENICE. Rebuilt since then, it was besieged by Austrian forces in World War I. It is now a small manufacturing and trading center.

FELTRIA See FELTRE

FEN COUNTRY, THE See FENS, THE

FENG-TIEN See MUKDEN

FENLAND See FENS, THE

FENS, THE [The Fen Country, Fenland] (England)

Flat, lowland district, in LINCOLNSHIRE, CAMBRIDGESHIRE, and NORFOLK; S of the Wash. Once the largest swampland in England but now largely reclaimed farmland, the Fens have been subjected to drainage attempts since Roman times. The first effective effort was made by the Dutch engineer Vermuyden in the 1620s; the greatest, by the government in the mid-1960s after serious flooding. It was in the Fens that Hereward the Wake led the last serious Anglo-Saxon resistance to William the Conqueror in 1070–71.

FEODOSIA See FEODOSIYA

FEODOSIYA [Feodosia] [ancient: Theodosia; Italian: Caffa or Kaffa] (Ukraine)

City, SE CRIMEA, on the Black Sea, 60 mi E of SIMFEROPOL. Founded as a Greek colony in the sixth century B.C., Theodosia was a flourishing port until destroyed by the Huns in the fourth century A.D. Revived under Genoese rule during the 13th century, the city was captured by the Crimean Tatars in 1475, then ceded to RUSSIA in 1783. In October 1914 the shelling of Feodosiya in TURKEY's name by a German naval squadron forced Turkey to enter World War I. In World War II, Feodosiya was twice occupied by the Germans in 1941 and from 1942 to 1944.

FERAH See FARAH

FERENTINO [ancient: Ferentinum] (Italy)

Town, LATIUM region, central Italy, 46 mi SE of ROME. The chief city of the ancient Hernici, it was conquered by Rome in 361 B.C. Ferentino was a favorite papal residence in the Middle Ages. It has extensive remains, especially fortifications, from the pre-Roman, Roman, and medieval periods.

FERENTINUM See FERENTINO

FERGANA VALLEY [Ferghana Valley] (Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, Kyrgyzstan)

Region in Central Asia, N of the Pamir and W of the Tien Shan Mountains. A center of population and commerce since the fourth century B.C., the Fergana Valley—fertile, rich, and situated on the ancient SILK ROAD between CHINA and the West—has fallen repeatedly to conquerors, from the Arabs in the eighth century A.D. to the Russians in 1876. Today it is an industrial as well as agricultural area. Its mineral resources contributed greatly to the industrialization of all Soviet Central Asia in the Soviet era. The densely populated valley saw ethnic strife in the 1990s after independence from the Soviet Union. The valley is a center for Islamic opposition to secular government in former Soviet Central Asia.

FERGHANA VALLEY See FERGANA VALLEY

FERMANAGH (Northern Ireland)

County, extreme SW, on the border with the Republic of IRELAND. In 1594 the first skirmish of the Irish uprising against Elizabeth I occurred in Fermanagh. When the rebel leaders fled in 1607, the county was confiscated by the Crown and resettled with Scots and English Protestants. One of the counties included in the partition of ULSTER in 1921, Fermanagh remains under British rule. It has many traces of pre-historic settlement and Celtic Christianity.

FERMO [ancient: Firmum Picenum] (Italy)

Town, MARCHE region, central Italy, 23 mi NNE of ASCOLI PICENO. An ancient stronghold of the Picenes that fell to the Romans in 264 B.C., Fermo has many pre-Roman and Roman remains. Its long history of subjugation culminated in its acquisition by the Church. It was capital of the duchy, later march, of Fermo until it merged with the March of ANCONA in the 12th century. The city was part of the PAPAL STATES from 1549 to 1860, when it joined the Kingdom of Italy.

FERNANDINA BEACH (United States)

City, Nassau County, NE FLORIDA, on the Atlantic Ocean, 25 mi NE of JACKSONVILLE. Founded in 1680 by the Spanish, Fernandina Beach was declared a free port in 1808. It quickly became a haven for pirates, smugglers, and slave traders. Taken by the United States in 1818, it was a center for Confederate blockade-running in the Civil War until captured by a Union naval force in 1862.

FERNANDINA DE JAGUA See CIENFUEGOS

FERNANDO DE NORONHA [Portuguese: Ilha Fernando de Noronha] (Brazil)

Island in the Atlantic Ocean, 225 mi NE of Cape São Roque, Brazil. The easternmost point of South America, Fernando de Noronha was named for the Portuguese who discovered it in 1503. It became Brazil's first hereditary captaincy. Used as a penal colony in the 18th century, it has been a military base since 1942. The island is known as a scuba diving center and was named a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 2001.

FERNANDO PO [Fernando Póo] [modern: Bioko] (Equatorial Guinea)

Island in the Bight of Biafra off West Africa, approximately 100 mi NW of Rio Muni. Named for its Portuguese discoverer in 1469, but ceded to SPAIN in 1778, Fernando Po was used by GREAT BRITAIN as a base for antislavery patrols from 1827 to 1843. In 1968 the island became independent from Spain as part of Equatorial Guinea, but lost its autonomy in 1973 after riotous disputes with the less-developed mainland province of Rio Muni.

FERNANDO PÓO See FERNANDO PO

FERNEY [modern: Ferney-Voltaire] (France)

Town, Ain department, E France, 4 mi from GENEVA. In 1758 the French author Voltaire bought the seigneurie of Ferney, on the borders of France and SWITZERLAND, to escape legal proceedings. Residing there until 1778, he established a colony of craftsmen, notably of potters and watchmakers whose high standards were long maintained. In 1815 the Congress of Vienna halted Swiss annexation of Ferney, awarding it to France in Voltaire's honor.

FERNEY-VOLTAIRE See FERNEY

FEROZEPORE See FIROZPUR

FEROZEPUR See FIROZPUR

FERRARA [ancient: Forum Alieni] (Italy)

City, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, N Italy, 57 mi SW of VENICE. Under the Este family from 1240 to 1598, Ferrara was the seat of a powerful and brilliant court, famous for its patronage of the arts, especially during the Renaissance. The city was the original meeting place of the Council of Ferrara-Florence of 1438–45, which increased cultural contacts between the BYZANTINE EMPIRE and the West, though it failed to reconcile their churches. During World War II, Ferrara was the scene of heavy fighting in April 1945.

FERRO See HIERRO

FERROL [El Ferrol, El Ferrol del Caudillo] (Spain)

City and port in La Coruña province, on a bay of the Atlantic Ocean, 11 mi NE of CORUNNA, in GALICIA. One of Spain's principal naval stations, it was chosen as a naval base by Philip V in 1726. In the later 18th century Spanish kings fortified it, added a royal naval arsenal, and established important shipyards. The city was known as El Ferrol until 1939, when del Caudillo was added to honor Francisco Franco, who was born here. In 1982 the name of the city was changed to Ferrol, and is home to a busy port and an important naval station.

FERRYLAND (Canada)

Town in SE NEWFOUNDLAND, on the Avalon Peninsula, approximately 40 mi S of ST. JOHN. George Calvert, Lord Baltimore, sent settlers from England in 1621 and in 1623 was granted the peninsula. He visited the colony in 1627 and 1628, decided the winters were too cold, and applied for another grant of land that became the colony of MARYLAND.

FERRYVILLE See MENZEL-BOURGUIBA

FERTILE CRESCENT, THE

A term used to describe the semicircle of agricultural and pastoral land in the Middle East where the West's seminal civilizations arose as early as 3000 B.C. It runs from the Persian Gulf NW through the TIGRIS and EUPHRATES valleys, W through SYRIA to the MEDITERRANEAN, and S through CANAAN. Sometimes it is extended to include the NILE Valley.

FERTÖ TÓ See NEUSIEDLER LAKE

FÈS [Fez] [Arabic: Fas; French: Fès] (Morocco)

City, N central Morocco, approximately 150 mi NE of CASABLANCA. A commercial and cultural center founded in A.D. 790, Fès is one of the traditional capitals of Morocco and sacred cities of Islam, long noted for its mosques, the Islamic university founded in 859, and handicrafts, especially the manufacture of the brimless red hat named for the city.

FEVER RIVER See GALENA

FEZ See FÈS

FEZZAN [Fazzan] [ancient: Phazania] (Libya)

Desert region in SW Libya. An area of many oases, strategically located on caravan routes between SUDAN and the MEDITERRANEAN, Fezzan has known many foreign invaders, from the Roman conquest of the Garamantes, an offshoot of an ancient African civilization, in 19 B.C., to the Italians in A.D. 1912. It was the seat of the Beni Mohammed dynasty from the 16th to the 19th centuries. Occupied by the Free

French in World War II, the region became independent in 1951 with the rest of Libya.

FIELD OF CLOTH OF GOLD [Sometimes, incorrectly: Field of the Cloth of Gold] (France)

Between the villages of GUÎNES and ARDRES, near CALAIS. Site of a ceremonial conference in 1520 between England's Henry VIII and France's Francis I, this locality was named by dazzled contemporaries for the material most used in the participants' clothing and tents. The meeting, however, had no important diplomatic consequences.

FIESOLE [ancient: Faesulae] (Italy)

Town in TUSCANY, central Italy, 4 mi NE of FLOR-ENCE. Founded by the Etruscans, possibly in the eighth century B.C., and conquered by the Romans in 283 B.C., Fiesole has remains of both. Long a resort noted for its beauty, the city was annexed by Florence in A.D. 1125. The painter Fra Angelico was a citizen of Fiesole; some of his works are preserved here.

FIFE (Scotland)

A former county, now a region, of E Scotland, between the Firths of Tay and Forth. Once a Pictish stronghold, Fife became one of the seven traditional earldoms of medieval Scotland. It has many places of historic significance, such as the ecclesiastical and university town of ST. ANDREWS and the royal seat of DUNFERMLINE.

FIGUERAS (Spain)

City in Girona province, 24 mi N of GERONA, near the French border. Though strongly fortified in the 18th century, Figueras was occupied by French troops several times between 1794 and 1823. Now a manufacturing and communications center, Figueras was briefly the seat of the Loyalist government until falling to the insurgents in February 1939 during the Spanish civil war.

FIJI [Fiji Islands]

Nation and archipelago in the SW Pacific, 1,300 mi N of NEW ZEALAND. Discovered by Abel Tasman in 1643, it was visited by Captain James Cook in 1774. The Fiji Islands, strategically located and agriculturally rich, were annexed by Great Britain in 1858. An important Allied supply point in World War II, Fiji became an independent dominion of the Commonwealth in 1970 with Sir Ratu Kamisese Mara as prime minister. In 1987 Colonel Sitiveni Rabuka led two coups that took control of the government for the native Fijians from the ethnic Indians. Fiji was declared a republic and left the Commonwealth of Nations. In 1990 a new constitution granted nonurban native Fijians a disproportionate say in the government. In 1992, Rabuka became prime minister, and in 1994 Mara was appointed president. In 1997, the constitution was amended giving nonethnic Fijians a larger voice, and in 1999 Mahendra Chaudhry of the Labor Party became Fiji's first ethnic Indian prime minister. In 2000 a military coup by Fijian nationalists took power, but the coup eventually failed. A new government was elected in 2002, but was ruled illegal when it did not include the opposition party. In 2004, Chaudhry agreed to take a role as head of the opposition and the government crisis was ended, but ethnic conflict continues to be a problem.

FIJI ISLANDS See FIJI

FILIPEA See JOÃO PESSOA

FILIPPOI See PHILIPPI

FINDLAY (United States)

City in Hancock County, NW OHIO, 40 mi S of TOLEDO. Settled in 1821 on the site of a fort built in 1812, Findlay boomed in the 1880s when oil and natural gas were discovered. The city still produces oil. It was in the Findlay Jeffersonian that the satirical antislavery letters of Petroleum V. Nasby (David Ross Locke) first appeared in 1861. The letters attracted a nationwide audience that included Abraham Lincoln.

FINIS TERRAE See FINISTÈRE

FINISTÈRE [ancient: Finis terrae] (France)

The westernmost department of France, at the tip of the BRITTANY peninsula. It was settled by the Celts in the fifth century B.C. and conquered by the Romans in 56 B.C. Finistère, with the rest of Brittany, was absorbed into France in 1491. Finistère's chief port, BREST, has been an important naval base since the 17th century. It remains a stronghold of Breton language and customs.

FINISTERRE, CAPE [ancient: Nerium Promontorium] (Spain)

Cape on the NW coast of Spain in La Coruña province. Two naval battles were fought off Cape Finis-terre during the War of the Austrian Succession. On May 3, 1747, the British under Admiral Lord Anson defeated the French under Admiral de la Jonquière, thus preventing supplies from reaching the French WEST INDIES. On October 2, 1747, the British under Rear Admiral Sir Edward Hawke defeated the French under Desherbiers de l'Étenduère but failed to capture the French convoy. During the Napoleonic Wars the British under Rear Admiral Sir Robert Calder defeated the French and Spanish fleet under Admiral Pierre de Villeneuve, forcing them to sail for CÁDIZ. Calder was court-martialed for not winning a more decisive victory.

FINLAND [Finnish: Suomi]

Republic of NE Europe. It is situated between the Gulf of Bothnia and the Gulf of Finland and borders on SWEDEN and NORWAY on the N and W, RUSSIA on the E, and ESTONIA to the S of the Gulf of Finland. The N of Finland lies above the Arctic Circle in LAPLAND, while the south is dotted with lakes and waterways. An independent state only since 1917, for much of its history Finland has been part of Sweden, and Swedish remains one of the country's two official languages. The capital, HELSINKI, lies on the southern coast.

Finland was originally inhabited by Lapps, who by the eighth century A.D. had been gradually forced northward by the arrival of Finnish-speaking nomads. In this early period the Finns had no sense of nationhood, and political organization was restricted to a clan system. Christian missionaries visited the country in the 11th century, and in the 13th century it was conquered by the Swedes. Under Swedish rule the Finns enjoyed considerable autonomy, and trade improved. Following the Reformation in the 16th century, Lutheranism became the established religion. In 1581 Finland became a grand duchy. The country suffered as a result of the wars between Sweden and Russia and after the Northern War in 1721 and again in 1743 it lost territory to Russia.

During the Napoleonic Wars it was invaded by Russia in 1808 and was formally annexed the following year. The Russians, like the Swedes, permitted Finland considerable autonomy and allowed a quasi-democracy to develop. The capital was moved from TURKU to Helsinki in 1812. Toward the end of the 19th century, Finnish nationalism became a powerful force, and there was considerable unrest when the Russians attempted to impose their culture on the Finns.

After the Russian Revolution in 1917, the Finns declared their independence. Following a five-month civil war in 1918, right-wing forces emerged victorious, and in 1920, the Soviet Union recognized the new Finnish republic in the Treaty of TARTU. However, the scars of the civil war were slow to heal, and Finnish politics were dogged by instability throughout the 1920s and 1930s.

At the start of World War II in 1939–40 Finland was invaded by the USSR, despite a nonaggression pact. The Finns were quickly defeated, but when GERMANY attacked the USSR, they themselves invaded Russia. Initially successful, the Finns were defeated in 1944 and lost the Isthmus of KARELIA, VYBORG, the Finnish shores of LAKE LADOGA, and the PECHENGA area to the Soviet Union.

After World War II, Finland pursued a policy of political neutrality. A Treaty of Friendship, Co-operation and Mutual Assistance was signed with the USSR in 1948 that guaranteed Finland's sovereignty. Détente between East and West in the 1970s resulted in the "Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe" in Helsinki in 1975, the product of which being the Helsinki Accords, which formed an important basis for human rights during the following decades. Finland's economy boomed during the 1980s but faltered with the collapse of the USSR in the early 1990s. Finland joined the European Free Trade Association in 1987, and the European Union in 1995. Finland has recovered from the economic decline of the early 1990s and through the strength of its high-technology industries such as telecommunications now enjoys one of the highest standards of living in Europe.

FINNMARK (Norway)

Norway's most northerly county, bordered on the S and SE by FINLAND and RUSSIA. Containing the northernmost point in Europe, North Cape, and the northernmost town in the world, HAMMERFEST, Finnmark is now a tourist center. During World War II it was the scene of heavy fighting between the Russians and Germans in 1944 and 1945.

FINSCHHAFEN (Papua New Guinea)

Port town on Huon Gulf, NE Papua New Guinea, 65 mi ENE of LAE. Administrative headquarters for GERMANY's New Guinea colony from 1884 until the end of the century, Finschhafen was taken by AUSTRALIA in 1914. During World War II the Japanese developed an airbase here that became an important American base after the Australians recaptured the town in 1943.

FIRAT NEHRI See EUPHRATES RIVER

FIRE ISLAND (United States)

A narrow, sandy island, 30 mi long, off S central LONG ISLAND, in SE NEW YORK State. A summer resort since the 19th century, Fire Island takes its name from the signal fires for ships that were built on the island during the War of 1812. During Prohibition it was a base for rumrunners.

FIRENZE See FLORENCE (Italy)

FIRMUM PICENUM See FERMO

FIROZPUR [Ferozepore, Ferozepur, Firozpur] (India)

City, PUNJAB state, N India, 45 mi SSE of LAHORE, PAKISTAN. Founded in the 14th century and acquired by the British in 1835, Ferozepore became an important frontier post, especially during the First Sikh War of 1845–46, and again after the India-Pakistan partition in 1947.

FIRUZABAD [ancient: Gur or Jur] (Iran)

Town in FARS province, SW Iran, 55 mi SE of SHIRAZ. Supposedly founded by the first Sassanid emperor, Ardashir I, on the site of his victory over the Parthians in A.D. 224, Firuzabad contains extensive remains from his day, including a palace, the oldest Sassanid building in existence. The town claims to be the birthplace of Firuzabadi (1329–1415), the famous Arabic lexicographer. See also PERSIA.

FISCAMNUM See FÉCAMP

FISHBOURNE (England)

Remains of a Roman palace, a little over 1 mi W of CHICHESTER, West SUSSEX. The largest single Roman building found in England, it covers approximately 10 acres and was built c. A.D. 75 as a showplace for a client British king whose capital was at nearby

Chichester. Excavations in the 1960s uncovered the north wing, which, with a replanted garden, are now on show. The site is a complex of halls, colonnades, courtyards, and rooms with splendid mosaics. The palace was occupied until destroyed by fire in A.D. 285.

FISHER, FORT See FORT FISHER

FISHER'S HILL [Fishers Hill] (United States)

A bluff, approximately 2 mi S of STRASBURG, Shenandoah County, N VIRGINIA. During the Civil War, Union troops under Major General Philip H. Sheridan defeated Confederate forces under Major General Jubal H. Early here on September 22, 1864, thus leaving the way open for Sheridan to devastate the SHENANDOAH VALLEY, an important food source for the Confederacy.

FIUME See RIJEKA

FIVE FORKS (United States)

A crossroads near Dinwiddie Courthouse, approximately 14 mi SW of PETERSBURG, SE VIRGINIA. At Five Forks, in the last important battle of the Civil War, Union troops under Major General Philip H. Sheridan defeated Confederate forces under Major General George E. Pickett on April 1, 1865, thereby opening the way for the Union capture of Petersburg, the fall of RICHMOND, and Robert E. Lee's surrender at APPOMATTOX.

FLAMINIAN WAY [ancient: Via Flaminia] (Italy)

A great Roman road, the chief route between ROME and CISALPINE GAUL, the Flaminian Way was built by the censor Gaius Flaminius in 220 B.C. It ran over 200 miles NE from Rome to FANO, then N to RIMINI. It was extended by the AEMILIAN WAY.

FLANDERS [Flemish: Vlaanderen; French: Flandre] (Belgium, France, Netherlands)

Coastal county of the Middle Ages extending from the N of France through Belgium and part of the Netherlands. It is now included in the French departments of Pas-de-Calais and Nord, the Belgian provinces of East and West Flanders, and Zeeland province in the Netherlands. Its strategic location has given it a tumultuous history.

When Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY gave the countship of Flanders in A.D. 862 to his son-in-law Baldwin I, it became a focus of intrigue among the emerging powers of Europe. A distinction was then made between Imperial Flanders, bordering on the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, and Crown Flanders, connected with the French Crown.

From the 10th century the general prosperity of Flanders derived from a flourishing textile industry and its commerce through the ports of GHENT, BRUGES, and later, ANTWERP. The latter two cities became the hubs of northern European commerce and finance in the later Middle Ages and Renaissance. Flemish textile production reached its zenith in the 13th century, but success led to worker unrest and class tumult in the later 13th and 14th centuries. Inter-city rivalry was an important cause of strife; but the principal antagonism lay between the patrician mill owners, or Leliaerts, who were generally supporters of the French kings, and the guild mill workers, or Clauwerts, who supported the Flemish counts or favored democratic city regimes.

The departure of Count Baldwin IX on the Fourth Crusade in the early 13th century signalled decline. In his absence, the European powers intensified their struggle for influence in Flanders. The French kings sought an alliance with the Leliaerts, opposing the English kings, the Holy Roman Empire, and the Clauwerts. A see-saw of authority resulted, continuing through the 13th century and into the 14th. Flemish burghers reached their pinnacle of power when their citizen army destroyed the French nobility at COURTRAI in 1302. A few years later Edward III of ENGLAND, preparing for war against France, halted wool exports to Flanders. The ensuing crisis inspired Flemish unity under the artisan leader Jacob van Artevelde of Ghent against the urban patriciate and the French. Van Artevelde gave his support to England in 1337 and participated in the English navy's victory at SLUIS in 1340. Following van Artevelde's death in a riot in 1345, authority in Flanders was assumed by the pro-French Louis de Maële. But Jacob's son Philip led the Ghent weavers in rebellion against the regime and captured Bruges in 1382. In November, however, he was killed by the French in the Battle of ROOSEBEKE.

With the political linkage of Flanders to Burgundy reestablished in the late 14th century, the region moved toward political stability and saw a flowering of the long artistic heritage that had begun with the expansion of Christianity and the construction of the great abbeys at Ghent and LIÈGE. Artistic activity reached its height in the 15th century with the work of the painters Jan and Hubert van Eyck in Bruges, and Roger van der Weyden in BRUSSELS, all encouraged and supported by Philip the Bold and by Mary of Burgundy. By the 16th century, with Antwerp's commercial development, it replaced Bruges as the artistic and commercial center of Flanders. Its increasing wealth and international stature in the 17th century attracted many artists including the influential Peter Paul Rubens, who developed his cosmopolitan and baroque style in Antwerp.

Meanwhile, the political situation continued to be tumultuous. The late 16th century brought revolt in both the Netherlands and Flanders, in 1576, against Philip II of SPAIN, but by 1584 Spanish forces had recovered Flanders. The Peace of UTRECHT in 1714 assigned it to Hapsburg AUSTRIA. Meanwhile Louis XIV of France, during 1668–78, had absorbed part of West Flanders, which became the present French Flanders. The Treaty of CAMPO FORMIO in 1797 ceded the remainder of West Flanders to France; while at the Congress of VIENNA in 1815 the Netherlands gained Austrian Flanders. With Belgian independence in 1830, a part of ancient Flanders became Belgium's provinces of East and West Flanders, and the second oldest son of the Belgian king gained the title, Count of Flanders. Through World Wars I and II Flanders continued to be a battleground. During the former, fighting was constant in both West and French Flanders. The slaughter here was commemorated in John McCrae's poem, In Flanders Fields. In the latter, the Battle of Flanders began with the Nazi invasion of Belgium in 1940 and ended with the surrender of the Belgian army and the British evacuation at DUNKIRK, from May 26 to June 4, 1940.

FLANDRE See FLANDERS

FLEET STREET (England)

A LONDON thoroughfare, named after the Fleet River, on the main route between Westminster and the City of London. By the end of the 19th century so many newspapers had their offices here that "Fleet Street" became a synonym for the British press.

FLEETWOOD HILL, BATTLE OF See BRANDY STATION

FLensburg [Danish: Flensborg] (Germany)

City, on the Flensburg Fjord of the Baltic Sea, in SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, N Germany. Chartered in 1284 and a prominent port since the 16th century, Flensburg was conquered from DENMARK by PRUSSIA in 1867. A naval base in World War II, it was heavily bombed by the Allies. It was the last seat of government under Admiral Karl Doenitz and was the site of Germany's capitulation to the Allies in May 1945.

FLensburg See FLensburg

FLEURUS (Belgium)

Town, HAINAUT, S central Belgium, approximately 3 mi N of the SAMBRE RIVER. Fleurus has been the scene of several important battles in this frequently invaded region. During the Thirty Years' War the Germans defeated the Spanish at Fleurus and were thus able to relieve the Dutch in 1622. In the War of the Grand Alliance, the French crushed the Dutch and their allies here in 1690, and in the wars of the French Revolution, they defeated the Austrians and Dutch here in 1794. The last victory left the French masters of the Austrian Netherlands.

FLEURY [Fleury-devant-Douaumont] (France)

Village in NE France, 2 mi N of VERDUN. In World War I it was part of the Verdun defensive sector where the bloodiest battle of the war was fought between February and October 1916.

FLEURY-DEVANT-DOUAUMONT See FLEURY

FLEVO LACUS See ZUIDER ZEE

FLINT (United States)

City, Genesee County, SE central MICHIGAN, 58 mi NNW of DETROIT. Founded in 1819 as a fur-trading post, by the late 19th century Flint had become a major producer of carts and carriages. In the early 20th century this industry evolved into automobile manufacturing, so that Flint came to rank second only to Detroit as a center of that industry. Flint became synonymous with deindustrialization in the 1980s as the automobile industry closed long-running factories in Flint.

FLINT (Wales)

Town, in Flintshire, on the Dee estuary, approximately 13 mi SW of LIVERPOOL. Founded as a borough in 1284, Flint grew up around a castle Edward I built while conquering Wales in 1276. It was the scene of Richard II's surrender to Henry IV, Bolingbroke, in 1399. Flint Castle was captured and partially demolished in 1647 by Parliamentary forces during the English Civil War. There are impressive remains of the castle.

FLODDEN (England)

A hill in NORTHUMBERLAND, 3 mi SE of Coldstream. Here the English under Thomas Howard, later duke of Norfolk, stopped an invasion by SCOTLAND's James IV, killing him on September 9, 1513, and almost annihilating the Scottish aristocracy. This loss, one of Scotland's most searing memories, has often been treated in ballads and literary works.

FLORENCE [ancient: Florentia; Italian: Firenze] (Italy)

City in central Italy, 146 mi NW of ROME on the Arno River. In the first century B.C. a Roman colony on the CASSIAN WAY was built near the site of Faesulae (FIE-sole), an Etruscan town. Goths, Byzantines, and Lombards controlled it after the fall of Rome. By the 12th century it was an autonomous commune. Florence was torn by papal-imperial conflict between the Guelphs and Ghibellines for the next 200 years, and generally sided with the papal Guelphs.

In the midst of this turmoil, the foundations of its splendor were being laid. The city's merchants, cloth manufacturers, and bankers soon achieved a paramount position in Europe. Great churches, monasteries, and palaces were built. The Tuscan dialect, the tongue of Dante, Petrarch, and Boccaccio—all Florentine writers—became the basis of the modern Italian language. Among the artists who lived or who came to work here were Leonardo, Donatello, Giotto, the Lippi, Masaccio, Michelangelo, and Botticelli. Florence's Uffizi Gallery is one of the few in the world that can qualify as first rate simply on the basis of its collection of work by local painters. The palaces and churches of the city came to reflect the inventive artistry of the likes of Alberti, Brunelleschi, and Ghiberti.

For 300 years, beginning in 1421, the well-being of Florence became inextricably linked to the Medici. This banking family, whose most notable scions were Cosimo (1389–1464) and Lorenzo the Magnificent (1449–1492), gradually gained power through economic strength and civic reputation. Eventually undeclared princes, they provided political guidance and cultural patronage and made Florence the artistic center of the Renaissance. Except for the period 1494–98, when the Dominican friar Savonarola established a theocracy here, and 1527–30, when they were briefly exiled by the reestablished republic, the Medici controlled Florentine and, at times, Italian life. One of them even became pope as Leo X (1513–21). Florence gradually extended its holdings, conquering PISA, PISTOIA, SIENA, AREZZO, VOLTERRA, and SAN GIMIGNANO, until it dominated all of TUSCANY. It became the capital of the Grand Duchy of Tuscany in 1569.

When the Medici family line finally died out in 1737, power passed to the dukes of LORRAINE. Briefly under AUSTRIA, and the Napoleonic kingdom of ETRURIA, it was made part of the kingdom of SARDEGNA in 1860. Florence served as united Italy's first capital from 1865 to 1871. In World War II, although all of the Arno bridges except the Ponte Vecchio were destroyed, most of this great repository of Western art was left intact. Indeed, the great flood of 1966 did more damage; fortunately, restoration work minimized permanent loss.

FLORENCE (United States)

City, Florence County, NE SOUTH CAROLINA, 75 mi NE of COLUMBIA. Established in 1855 at the junction of three railroad lines, during the Civil War Florence was a shipping center and troop embarkation point as well as the site of a prison camp.

FLORENTIA See FLORENCE (Italy)

FLORES (Guatemala)

Town, on an island in the S of Lake Petén Itzá, EI Petén department, NE Guatemala. Now its region's major trading center, Flores was originally the capital of the Itzá Indians, who resisted Spanish attempts to conquer them until 1697.

FLORES (Indonesia)

Island in the Lesser Sundas in E Indonesia, separated from SULAWESI to the N by the Flores Sea. Originally ruled by the princes of Celebes, now Sulawesi, Flores was opened to trade by the Dutch in 1618, but not until 1907 did they completely subjugate the island. Held by the Japanese during World War II, Flores became part of independent Indonesia in 1949.

FLORES [Portuguese: Ilha das Flores] (Portugal)

Westernmost of the AZORES ISLANDS, in the N Atlantic W of Portugal. Discovered by the Portuguese in 1452, Flores was the rendezvous point of SPAIN's American treasure fleets. The English naval hero, Sir Richard Grenville, was killed off Flores in an attack on one of these convoys in 1591. The island is now the site of a French space-tracking station. In 2003, skeletons were discovered of miniature hominids (home florisiensis). There is continuing debate on whether these are a separate species.

FLORIANÓPOLIS [former: Destêrro] (Brazil)

Capital city of Santa Catarina state, at the S end of Santa Catarina Island, SE Brazil. An important port and administrative center since colonial days, Florianópolis was founded by the Portuguese c. 1700 as Destêrro. In 1893 it was captured by revolutionaries but they failed to overthrow the government of President Floriano Peixoto. The city was then renamed in his honor.

FLORIDA (United States)

In the extreme SE of the country, Florida was admitted to the Union in 1845 as the 27th state. It is a low peninsula, 500 mi long, with the Atlantic Ocean on the E and the Gulf of Mexico on the W and the WEST INDIES to the S. To the N are ALABAMA and GEORGIA.

In 1513 Juan Ponce de León, a Spanish explorer, seeking the Fountain of Youth, was the first European to land here near the site of ST. AUGUSTINE. He named the area Florida because it was the flowery Easter season (Pascua florida). Other Spanish explorers followed—Pánfilo de Narváez and Hernando de Soto—and under the last SPAIN claimed all of what later became the southeastern United States. Later the French arrived, Jean Ribaut discovering the St. John River in 1562 and René de Laudonnière building Fort Caroline at the river's mouth in 1564. Spain then sent Pedro Menéndez de Avilés who drove out the French and in 1565 founded St. Augustine, the oldest city in the United States. The British attacked Florida several times, and in 1742 a force from Georgia defeated the Spanish and made the St. Mary's River Florida's northern boundary.

The British gained Florida by a treaty in 1763 but returned it to Spain under another treaty in 1783. There were boundary disputes with the United States, which claimed West Florida as part of the LOUISIANA PURCHASE of 1803. U.S. troops under General Andrew Jackson invaded Florida in 1818 to retaliate against the Seminole Indians, and the next year Spain ceded the region to the United States. The cession included all Spanish claims to land E of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, while the United States assumed $5 million of American claims against Spain. Florida was organized as a territory in 1822. Warfare with the Seminole Indians went on for years, culminating in the long Second Seminole War of 1835 to 1842, after which most of the Indians were transported W.

Florida seceded from the Union in January 1861, and the most important battle of the Civil War fought here was at OLUSTEE in February 1864, which the Confederacy won. After the war, Florida was put under military rule and was readmitted to the Union in 1868. Republicans held control until 1876, when the Democrats returned to power. African Americans were again placed in an inferior status. A large land sale to developers in 1881 touched off a real estate boom and a bid for tourists. In 1898 Florida profited from the Spanish-American War when TAMPA became the main military base. Another real estate boom ended in 1925 when unrealistic prices caused a sudden collapse. World War II brought prosperity to Florida's industry, and with the return of peace the state's industrial and population growth has been outstanding. CAPE CANAVERAL is the center of much space-flight activity.

After 1954 Florida began to desegregate its schools. In 1958–59 the Cuban Revolution resulted in an influx of refugees, repeated in 1980 when 125,000 Cubans made their way to KEY WEST and since then with the arrival of many Haitian refugees. Race relations have often been strained. After the acquittal in May 1980 of white police officers charged with beating a black man to death, rioting in MIAMI resulted in 18 deaths and property damage of $100 million, still largely unrepaired. Florida was long a Democratic state, but Republican strength has recently grown, and more often than not the state votes Republican in presidential elections. A larger proportion of the population than in any other state consists of elderly and retired people. The state is now plagued with water shortages and conservation problems caused largely by its rapid expansion. The 2000 presidential election between Republican George W. Bush and Democrat Albert Gore ended in a statistical dead heat in the state of Florida with Bush slightly ahead. Irregularities with voting machine malfunctions (the famous "hanging chads") and accusations of barriers to some polling places brought on a recount that was eventually settled by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of President Bush.

TALLAHASSEE is the capital; Miami is the largest city; others are JACKSONVILLE, ST. PETERSBURG, and TAMPA.

FLORIDA ISLAND [N'Gela Island] (Solomon Islands)

Island in the SE Solomons, 15 mi N of GUADALCANAL, in the SW Pacific. Part of a British protectorate since 1893, during World War II Florida Island was occupied by the Japanese from May 4 to August 7, 1942, when it was captured by U.S. forces immediately prior to the battles of Guadalcanal. The Solomons became independent in 1978.

FLÓRINA [Phlórina] (Greece)

City in W MACEDONIA, N Greece, near the border with MACEDONIA. Founded by the Byzantines, conquered in the late 14th century by the Ottoman Turks, and populated by a number of ethnic groups, in the 19th century Flórina became a center of Bulgarian irredentist agitation. Nevertheless, the city passed to Greece after the Balkan Wars of 1912 to 1913.

FLORISSANT (United States)

City in E central MISSOURI, 13 mi NW of ST. LOUIS. It was founded in 1785 by French under Spanish rule. They called the settlement St. Ferdinand. The name Florissant, French for flowering, was adopted in 1939. The site of a Jesuit seminary, in the 19th century Florissant was a center for missions to the Indians. Fr. Pierre De Smet studied and was ordained here in 1827. The city retains several examples of Missouri French architecture.

FLUSHING (Netherlands) See VLISSINGEN

FLUSHING (United States)

A N section of QUEENS borough, at the head of Flushing Bay, NEW YORK CITY, SE NEW YORK State. It was settled in 1645 by Englishmen under charter to the Dutch, and was named for the Dutch city VLISSINGEN. It later became a center of Quakerism in NEW NETHERLANDS. Efforts by Governor Peter Stuyvesant to suppress this faith brought forth the Flushing Remonstrance, a notable document in the development of American religious toleration. Absorbed by New York City in 1898, Flushing has been the site of two world fairs in 1939–40 and 1964–65, and of the headquarters of the UN General Assembly from 1946 to 1949.

FLY FLAT See COOLGARDIE

FOCA See PHOCAEA

FOÇSANI (Romania)

City, E central Romania, 100 mi NNE of BUCHAREST. The administrative and trading center of a noted wine-producing region, Foçsani was the site of an Austrian and Russian victory over the Turks in 1789. The armistice between Germany and Romania in World War I was signed at Foçsani on December 6, 1917, after the city had fallen to German and Austrian forces on January 8 of that year.

FOGGIA (Italy)

City, APULIA region, SE Italy, 162 mi ESE of ROME. An ancient foundation, it was long noted for its grain and wool markets. In the 13th century Foggia was a favorite residence of Emperor Frederick II, whose ruined castle still stands here. Part of the kingdom of the TWO SICILIES in the 19th century, Foggia was a center of the Carbonari and revolted several times. GERMANY's chief air base in southern Italy in World War II, the city was heavily damaged by Allied bombing before being captured in 1943.

FOIX (France)

City in the Ariège department, SW France, 50 mi S of TOULOUSE. Founded in Charlemagne's time, in the 11th century Foix became the seat of powerful counts who eventually enlarged their domain into a nearly independent state in the PYRENEES. Inherited by Henri IV of France through his great grandmother, Catherine de Foix, queen of NAVARRE, the Countship of Foix was added to the French Crown in 1607.

FOKIS See PHOCIS

FOLIGNO [ancient: Fulginium] (Italy)

City, UMBRIA region, central Italy, 18 mi SE of PERUGIA. Dating from pre-Roman times, in the Middle Ages Foligno flourished under the rule of the Trinci family from 1305 to 1439 before becoming part of the PAPAL STATES. Noted as the home of the 13th-century mystic, Angela of Foligno, and a 15th-century school of painting, Foligno is now a rapidly growing commercial and industrial center.

FOLKESTONE (England)

Town on the ENGLISH CHANNEL, 6 mi WSW of DOVER, KENT. Dating back to Roman times, Folkestone prospered in the Middle Ages as an associate of the CINQUE PORTS of Dover. With the coming of the railroad, Folkestone developed as a cross-Channel passenger port and seaside resort. It was badly damaged in World War II by aerial bombing and cross-Channel shelling. The noted physician William Harvey was born here in 1578.

FOLSOM (United States)

Village in NE NEW MEXICO, on the Cimarron River E of Raton, near the COLORADO border. In 1925 Stone Age artifacts were discovered at Folsom. The implements represented the culture of certain prehistoric hunters who lived in North America much earlier than had previously been thought. The Folsom Culture was named after the site.

FOND DU LAC (United States)

City in E central WISCONSIN, at the S end of Lake Winnebago, 65 mi NW of MILWAUKEE. Founded in the 18th century by the French as a fur-trading post, Fond du Lac was newly planned in 1835 by speculators who attracted many German immigrants. The coming of the railroad stimulated Fond du Lac's growth into a manufacturing and distribution center.

FONDI [ancient: Fundi] (Italy)

City, LATIUM region, W Central Italy, 75 mi SE of ROME. This Volscian foundation was conquered by Rome in the fourth century B.C. Strategically located on the APPIAN WAY, it changed hands frequently. Fondi passed under papal rule, nominally in the fifth century, but effectively only in the 17th century A.D. The conclave that elected the antipope Clement VII, thereby setting off the Great Schism, was held in Fondi in 1378. It was badly damaged in World War II. The city is now the commercial center of its agricultural region.

FONTAINEBLEAU (France)

Town in the Seine-et-Marne department, N France, 35 mi SSE of PARIS. Now a resort, Fontainebleau grew up around a royal residence that developed from a medieval hunting lodge into a great Renaissance palace. Here the Edict of NANTES was revoked in 1685, Pope Pius VII was imprisoned from 1812 to 1814, and Napoleon's first abdication was signed in 1814. Fontainebleau was headquarters first for the Germans, then for the Allies, in World War II. It was headquarters for NATO's military branch from 1945 to 1967.

FONTANET See FONTENOYFONTARABIA See FUENTERRABÍAFONT-DE-GAUME (France)

Cave in the DORDOGNE department, SW central France, near LES EYZIES commune, 22 mi SE of PÉRIGUEUX. Discovered in 1901, Font-de-Gaume contains noted examples of Paleolithic painting and engraving.

FONTENOY (Belgium)

Village in HAINAUT province, SW Belgium, 5 mi ESE of TOURNAI. At Fontenoy, in the War of the Austrian Succession, French Marshal Maurice de Saxe won his most famous victory on May 11, 1745, by defeating the English and their allies. He thus opened the way for the French conquest of FLANDERS.

FONTENOY [former: Fontanet] (France)

Village in the Yonne department, N central France, S of SENS. In the battle of Fontenoy in 841, Charles II of France and Louis the German checked the efforts of their brother, Emperor Lothair I, to reunite the Carolingian Empire under his sole rule. This success caused Charles and Louis to renew their alliance in the Oath of STRASBOURG of 842, and to force a territorial division upon Lothair in the Treaty of VERDUN in 843.

FORTEVRAULT-L'ABBAYE (France)

Town, Maine-et-Loire department, W France, 8 mi SE of SAUMUR. The abbey of Fortevrault, nucleus of the town to which it gives its name, was founded in 1099. It is the burial site of Henry II and Richard I of ENGLAND and of Eleanor of AQUITAINE. Suppressed during the French Revolution, the abbey is now a museum.

FOOCHOW See FUZHOUFORBACH (France)

Town, Moselle department, NE France, 32 mi E of METZ. During the Franco-Prussian War, a French army was defeated here on August 6, 1870, and driven back into Metz. After the war, as part of LORRAINE, the town was annexed to GERMANY until 1918 and again during World War II.

FORBIDDEN CITY See LHASA, BEIJING

FOREZ (France)

Region, mostly in the Loire department, around the town of Feurs, to the W of LYONS in E central France. It was the territory of the counts of Forez, ambitious nobles who emerged in the 10th century and contested control of the LYONNAIS with the archbishops of Lyons until forced in 1173 to renounce their claims to all lands except this Western area. Forez was annexed to the French Crown in 1527.

FORFAR (Scotland)

Town, formerly in Forfarshire, and later Angus, but now in TAYSIDE region, 13 mi NNE of DUNDEE. It was the meeting place of several Scottish parliaments from the 11th to the 14th centuries. Forfar was captured by Edward I of ENGLAND, but was recaptured by Robert the Bruce, who burned its castle in 1308. Royalist in the Civil War, Forfar had its charter revoked in 1651 by Oliver Cromwell but restored by Charles II in 1665.

FORLÌ [ancient: Forum Livii] (Italy)

City, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, N central Italy, 48 mi SE of BOLOGNA. Reputedly founded in the second century B.C. by the Roman consul Livius Salinator, Forlì was a trading center on the AEMILIAN WAY. Becoming a free commune in A.D. 1058, Forlì was heavily involved in the Guelph-Ghibelline conflict, becoming part of the PAPAL STATES in 1504. It was the birthplace of the artist Melozzo da Forlì (1438–94), noted for advancing the technique of foreshortening.

FORMIA [ancient: Formiae] (Italy)

Town, LATIUM region, S central Italy, on the Gulf of Gaeta. A Volscian foundation, Formia came under the Romans in the fourth century B.C. It became a popular resort. Cicero, whose villa may be among the town's many Roman remains, was killed nearby; his reputed mausoleum is here. The town was seriously damaged in World War II before falling to U.S. forces on May 18, 1944.

FORMIAE See FORMIA

FORMIGNY (France)

Village, Calvados department, NORMANDY, NW France, approximately 27 mi WNW of CAEN. On April 15, 1450, the French, using field artillery for the first time, defeated the English at Formigny in the next-to-the-last battle of the Hundred Years' War.

FORMOSA See TAIWAN

FØROYAR See FAEROE ISLANDS

FORRES (Scotland)

Town in GRAMPIAN region, 11 mi SW of ELGIN. Chartered in 1150, Forres is the site of the castle in which, according to the tradition followed by Shakespeare, Macbeth murdered Duncan.

FORT ABERCROMBIE (United States)

Army post in SE NORTH DAKOTA on the RED RIVER, established in 1858 to protect settlers from the Dakota Indians. The post was important in opening the Dakota Territory to settlement. In 1862 the Sioux Indians twice attacked it without success. After a treaty was signed here in 1870 with the Ojibwa and the Sioux, the Indian danger declined, and in 1877 the fort was abandoned.

FORT ALBANY (Canada)

Trading post on JAMES BAY at the mouth of the Albany River, NE ONTARIO, S central Canada. Still an important fur-trading center, Fort Albany was founded in the 1670s. It was among the first posts established by the Hudson's Bay Company. Temporarily occupied by the French during 1686–93, between 1697 and 1713 Fort Albany was the only post in the region still in the company's possession.

FORTALEZA [Ceará] (Brazil)

City, chief port, and capital of Ceará state, NE Brazil, on the Atlantic coast, approximately 400 mi NW of RECIFE. Founded by the Portuguese in 1609, it was occupied by the Dutch from 1637 to 1654. Fortaleza has been a center of sugar plantations since the colonial era. The city grew after being opened to international trade in 1808. Its greatest growth, however,

418 Fort Archangel Gabriel has come since 1957, when Fortaleza became headquarters for the Brazilian government's efforts to develop the poverty-stricken Northeast.

FORT ARCHANGEL GABRIEL See SITKA (United States)

FORT ASTORIA See ASTORIA, COLUMBIA RIVER

FORT ATKINSON See NEBRASKA

FORT BAKER See LAS VEGAS

FORT BEAUSÉJOUR (Canada)

Military post built by the French in 1751 to control the Chignecto isthmus, which connects NEW BRUNSWICK and NOVA SCOTIA. British and American troops captured it in 1755 and renamed it Fort Cumberland. Between 1772 and 1775 about 1,000 families came from YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND, to settle the region. American raiders tried unsuccessfully to capture it during the American Revolution. The fort was abandoned after the War of 1812. The site is now a national park.

FORT BENNING (United States)

Army post in W GEORGIA, 8 mi S of COLUMBUS. One of the largest army bases in the United States, from within a year of its establishment in 1918, Fort Benning has been the infantry's chief training center.

FORT BENTON (United States)

City, Chouteau County, N central MONTANA, on the MISSOURI RIVER NE of GREAT FALLS. Growing up around an American Fur Company post founded in 1846, at the head of navigation on the Missouri, Fort Benton was reached by steamboat in 1859. Boom years followed, as it became a supply and disembarkation point for the westward-bound. Its importance diminished with the coming of the railroads.

FORT BLISS (United States)

Army post in W TEXAS, just E of EL PASO. Strategically located near the Mexican border and the only ice-free pass through the ROCKY MOUNTAINS, Fort Bliss was established in 1849 to protect CALIFORNIA-bound wagon trains from Indian attacks. It was the base for General John Pershing's 1916 expedition in pursuit of Pancho Villa. Since World War II Fort Bliss has been a training center for antiaircraft artillery and missilery.

FORT BOWIE (United States)

Army post in SE ARIZONA, established in 1862. In the 1880s it was a base for military operations against Geronimo, a leader of the Apache Indians. It is now a national historic site.

FORT BRADY See SAULT-STE-MARIE (United States)

FORT BRAGG (United States)

Army post in S central NORTH CAROLINA, 10 mi NW of FAYETTEVILLE. Founded in 1918 on the site of the 1865 Civil War battle of Monroe's Crossroads, Fort Bragg is now the principal training center for airborne troops, including Special Forces (Green Berets) and antiterrorist units.

FORT BRIDGER (United States)

Village on Blacks Fork of the Green River, Uinta County, SW WYOMING. Founded as a supply post by mountain man Jim Bridger in 1843, Fort Bridger became an important station on the OREGON TRAIL. UTAH's Mormons took the post in 1853, holding it until federal troops were sent against them in 1857. Fort Bridger was then an army post until 1890. Its site, in the village of Fort Bridger, is now a state park.

FORT BUENAVENTURA See OGDEN (United States)

FORT CALGARY See CALGARY

FORT CAMOSUN See VICTORIA (Canada)

FORT CARILLON See TICONDEROGA

FORT CAROLINE (United States)

Settlement in NE FLORIDA, near the mouth of the St. Johns River, established in 1564 by French Huguenots led by René de Laudonnière. It was named for King Charles IX. On September 21, 1565, the Spanish under Pedro Menéndez de Avilés, a naval officer and colonizer, attacked the fort, killing nearly all the inhabitants. The Spanish renamed it San Mateo. The French took revenge in 1568 when a force led by Dominique de Gourgues attacked the fort and put all the Spaniards to death.

FORT CASIMIR See DELAWARE

FORT CASPAR See CASPER

FORT CENTER See FORT RILEY

FORT CHARLES See RUPERT HOUSE

FORT CHARNISAY (Canada)

Fort on the Bay of Fundy, across the St. John River from SAINT JOHN, S NEW BRUNSWICK. Originally constructed in 1645 by the French, it was rebuilt in 1758 and burned by Americans in 1775 during the American Revolution. Rebuilt in 1778, it was abandoned in 1821.

FORT CHRISTINA See DELAWARE

FORT CHURCHILL See CHURCHILL

FORT CLARK See PEORIA

FORT CLATSOP (United States)

Winter encampment of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, in 1805–06, at the mouth of the COLUMBIA RIVER in NW OREGON. Led by Captain Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, the expedition was sent by President Thomas Jefferson to explore the recently acquired LOUISIANA PURCHASE. The explorers reached here on November 7, 1805, and spent the second winter of their trip here before returning E in the spring of 1806. The site is now a national memorial.

FORT COLLINS (United States)

City, Larimer County, N COLORADO, 65 mi N of DENVER. Its nucleus, an army post, was established on the site in 1864 to protect the OVERLAND TRAIL but was abandoned in 1867. The city has grown to be the commercial, shipping, and industrial center of a rich agricultural area.

FORT CONCHO See SAN ANGELO (United States)

FORT CRÈVECOEUR See PEORIA

FORT CUMBERLAND (Canada) See FORT BEAUSÉJOUR

FORT CUMBERLAND (United States) See CUMBERLAND (United States)

FORT DAKOTA See SIOUX FALLS

FORT DALLAS See MIAMI

FORT DAVIS (United States)

Border outpost of the army in SW TEXAS, established in 1854 to guard the road through the Davis Mts between EL PASO in the extreme SW of Texas and SAN ANTONIO to the E in the S-central part of the state. Soldiers stationed here fought the Comanche and Apache Indians. The fort was abandoned in 1891 and is now a national historic site.

FORT DEARBORN (United States)

Former army post in NE ILLINOIS, on the bank of the Chicago River near LAKE MICHIGAN. Built in 1804, Fort Dearborn suffered an Indian attack on August 15, 1812, in which 52 of the 93 people in the fort were killed, the rest made prisoner, and the fort destroyed. A second Fort Dearborn, built nearby in 1816, was demolished in 1856, but by then the city of CHICAGO had grown up around it.

FORT DEFIANCE See DEFIANCE (United States)

FORT-DE-FRANCE (France)

City, on the SW side of MARTINIQUE, at the N entrance to Fort-de-France Bay. Founded in 1672 as Fort Royal, despite its excellent harbor, Fort-de-France developed slowly, until scientific advances reduced the prevalence of yellow fever on the site. After SAINT-PIERRE, Martinique's chief city, was destroyed by volcanic eruption in 1902, Fort-de-France became the island's capital and the French Antilles's principal cultural and commercial center.

FORT DES MOINES See DES MOINES (United States)

FORT DIX (United States)

Army training center in central NEW JERSEY, approximately 15 mi SE of TRENTON. It was established in 1917 during World War I as Camp Dix, named for John A. Dix, statesman and Civil War general. It was renamed Fort Dix in 1939 and made a permanent installation. During World War II it was a very large induction and training center. McGuire Air Force Base, the most important military flight facility on the East Coast, is adjacent to it.

FORT DODGE (United States)

City, Webster County, N central IOWA on the Des Moines River, 68 mi NW of DES MOINES. The army post of Fort Dodge was established in 1850 and closed in 1853. The city of Fort Dodge, laid out in 1854 on the site, is now the commercial and industrial center of an extensive agricultural region. It is near some of the world's largest gypsum beds and is a noted producer of that mineral.

FORT DONELSON (United States)

A Civil War fortification on the Cumberland River in NW TENNESSEE, near the KENTUCKY border, approximately 70 mi NW of NASHVILLE. Invested by Union forces under Ulysses S. Grant who had taken FORT HENRY on February 7, and unable to break out, Confederate troops in Fort Donelson met Grant's demand for unconditional surrender on February 16, 1862. This double victory, the first Union success, brought Grant into prominence and forced the Confederate evacuation of Kentucky and most of Tennessee. Fort Donelson is now a national historical park.

FORT DOUGLAS See SALT LAKE CITY

FORT DUFFERIN See MANDALAY

FORT DUMMER See VERMONT

FORT DUNCAN See EAGLE PASS

FORT DUQUESNE (United States)

Colonial fortification, built where the ALLEGHENY and MONONGAHELA Rivers join to form the OHIO, in SW PENNSYLVANIA. The building of Fort Duquesne by the French in April 1754 was the immediate cause of the French and Indian War. Though they defeated two expeditions against them, a Virginian under George Washington and a British under Edward Braddock, at or near FORT NECESSITY, the French were eventually forced to abandon Fort Duquesne, burning it on November 24, 1758. The British then rebuilt it as Fort Pitt, around which PITTSBURGH grew.

FORT EDWARD (United States)

Village in E NEW YORK State on the HUDSON RIVER, 50 mi N of ALBANY. On the route between LAKE GEORGE and the Hudson, Fort Edward takes its name from the fortification built there in 1755 to protect the Anglo-American advance against CROWN POINT in the French and Indian War. During the Revolution, Fort Edward was abandoned by the Americans and briefly occupied by General John Burgoyne.

FORT ERIE (Canada)

Town in SE ONTARIO, a manufacturing center at the juncture of the NIAGARA RIVER and LAKE ERIE, opposite BUFFALO. Fort Erie, which gave its name to the town on its site, was built by the British in 1764. In the War of 1812 the fort fell to the Americans, who withstood a British siege before abandoning and destroying the fort in November 1814. Restored in the 1930s, the fort is now a museum.

FORT FISHER (United States)

Confederate fort in SE NORTH CAROLINA, on the peninsula between the Atlantic Ocean and Cape Fear River, near WILMINGTON. Built in 1862 to protect Wilmington, a center for blockade-runners, Fort Fisher was captured by a Union amphibious force in January 1865 in one of the last large battles of the Civil War. Wilmington fell soon after. Fort Fisher is now a state historical site.

FORT FREDERICA (United States)

Ruins of fortification on St. Simons Island, one of the SEA ISLANDS, off the coast of SE GEORGIA. The fort was built, beginning in 1736, by James Oglethorpe, military officer, philanthropist, and founder of Georgia. It was constructed for protection against SPAIN during the struggle between that country and GREAT BRITAIN for possession of the present southeastern United States. Near the fort Oglethorpe defeated the Spanish in the Battle of Bloody Marsh, on June 9, 1742, a decisive engagement. The ruins are now a national monument.

FORT FREDERICK See ST. JOHN (Canada)

FORT FRONTENAC See KINGSTON (Canada)

FORT GAINES See DAUPHIN ISLAND, MOBILE

FORT GARRY See WINNIPEG

FORT GEORGE (Canada) See PRINCE GEORGE, (Canada)

FORT GEORGE (United States) See LAKE GEORGE

FORT GIBSON See MUSKOGEE (United States)

FORT GRATIOT See PORT HURON

FORT GREENVILLE See GREENVILLE (United States)

FORT GRISWOLD See GROTON (United States)

FORTH (Scotland)

River in SE Scotland, flowing E from Stirlingshire to a North Sea estuary, the Firth of Forth. The River Forth passes a number of historic places, such as the city of STIRLING and the battlefield of BANNOCKBURN. At Queensferry, the Firth of Forth was spanned by the world's first cantilever bridge, the Forth Railway Bridge, in 1890.

FORT HALL (United States)

Trading post, SE IDAHO, on the SNAKE RIVER just W of the present village of Fort Hall. Established in 1834 by frontier trader Nathaniel Wyeth, Fort Hall was a Hudson's Bay Company post between 1836 and 1856 and was the main stopping point on the OREGON TRAIL west of FORT BRIDGER. A U.S. Army post during the Indian wars of the 1850s, Fort Hall was destroyed by floods in the 1860s.

FORT HANCOCK See SANDY HOOK

FORT HARVIE See FORT MYERS

FORT HAYS See HAYS (United States)

FORT HENRY (United States)

Confederate fort on the TENNESSEE RIVER near the TENNESSEE-KENTUCKY border. The Union won its first major victory of the Civil War here when troops commanded by Ulysses S. Grant and gunboats led by Andrew Foote captured it on February 7, 1862. Most of the Confederate troops escaped to FORT DONELSON before the surrender. Fort Donelson fell on February 16.

FORT HENRY See PETERSBURG

FORT HUGHES See CABALLO

FORTÍN BOQUERÓN See CHACO BOREAL

FORT INDUSTRY See TOLEDO (United States)

FORT JEFFERSON See DRY TORTUGAS

FORT JOHNSON See AMSTERDAM (United States)

FORT KEARNEY (United States)

Fort in Buffalo County, S central NEBRASKA. It protected the OREGON TRAIL from 1848 to 1871. The remains of the fort now lie in a state park containing a museum in Kearney, Nebraska.

FORT KING GEORGE See DARIEN (United States)

FORT KNOX (United States)

Army post in N central KENTUCKY, 31 mi SW of LOUISVILLE. Established as a training camp in 1917, Fort Knox became the center for the army's armored divisions in 1940. It has been the U.S. Treasury Department's chief depository for gold bullion since 1936.

FORT-LAMY See N'DJAMENA

FORT LARAMIE (United States)

Former frontier post on the Laramie River in SE WYOMING, approximately 80 mi NE of CHEYENNE. An important fur-trading post from its founding in 1834, Fort Laramie became a major stopover on the OVERLAND TRAIL. An army post between 1849 and 1890, Fort Laramie was headquarters for campaigns against the Indians. It saw the signing of two treaties with the Sioux in 1851 and 1868. It is now a national historic site.

FORT LARNED (United States)

Former army post in central KANSAS, approximately 25 mi SW of Great Bend. Established in 1859, the fort guarded the SANTA FE TRAIL and was a base of operations during the Plains Wars with the Indians in the 1860s. It was abandoned in 1878 and is now a national historic site.

FORT LAUDERDALE (United States)

City, SE FLORIDA, on the Atlantic coast, 25 mi N of MIAMI. Established in 1895 on the site of a fort built during the Seminole War in 1838, Fort Lauderdale has become a popular resort. Since the building of the nearby artificial harbor of Port Everglades it has become an important deepwater port.

FORT LEAVENWORTH (United States)

Army post, on the MISSOURI RIVER, adjoining the city of LEAVENWORTH, in NE KANSAS. One of the oldest military posts W of the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, it was founded in 1827 to protect the SANTA FE TRAIL. Fort Leavenworth is the site of the oldest U.S. military prison, founded 1874, and of the Army Command and General Staff College, established in 1881.

FORT LEE (United States)

Town in NE NEW JERSEY, on the HUDSON RIVER opposite NEW YORK CITY. Fort Lee, an early center of the motion picture industry from 1907 to 1919, became a residential community after the building of the George Washington Bridge, of which it is the western terminus, in 1931. The town is named for the Revolutionary War fort built here to guard the Hudson. When FORT WASHINGTON across the river fell, the Americans abandoned Fort Lee on November 20, 1776.

FORT LEE See CHARLESTON (United States)

FORT MACLEOD (Canada)

Town in SW ALBERTA, W Canada, on the Oldman River, 28 mi W of LETHBRIDGE. Established in 1874, Fort Macleod was the first headquarters of the Northwest Mounted Police, now the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Around it grew the settlement of Fort Macleod, the first town in S Alberta. It is now the commercial center for an agricultural and coal-mining area.

FORT MADISON (United States)

City in Lee County, extreme SE IOWA, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER below BURLINGTON. The trading post of Fort Madison, founded in 1808, was the first U.S. fort W of the Mississippi. Attacked by Indians, it was abandoned and burned in 1813. On its site in 1833 was founded the city of Fort Madison, an important rail center since 1879 and the commercial and industrial center for an agricultural region.

FORT MALDEN See AMHERSTBURG (United States)

FORT MANTANZAS See ST. AUGUSTINE (United States)

FORT McHENRY (United States)

Fort at the mouth of BALTIMORE's Inner Harbor, on the Patapsco River near CHESAPEAKE BAY, N MARYLAND. It was begun in 1794. Fort McHenry suffered British bombardment during the War of 1812. Observing this attack on the night of September 13–14, 1814, Francis Scott Key was moved by the fort's successful resistance to write "The Star-Spangled Banner." A Union prison camp during the Civil War, Fort McHenry is now a national monument and historic shrine.

FORT MEIGS (United States)

Former fort at the rapids of the Maumee River in NW OHIO, near PERRYSBURG. Established by General William Henry Harrison during the War of 1812, Fort Meigs successfully resisted sieges by the British and their Indian allies in May and July 1813. The actions greatly lifted American morale.

FORT MIAMI See SAINT JOSEPH (United States)

FORT MIMS (United States)

Temporary stockade near the confluence of the Alabama and Tombigbee rivers, not far N of MOBILE, in S ALABAMA. On August 30, 1813, during the Creek War, a large party of Creeks attacked and burned Fort Mims, killing over 500 settlers in a famous frontier massacre.

FORT MIRÓ See MONROE

FORT MITCHELL See SCOTTSBLUFF (United States)

FORT MONROE [former: Fortress Monroe] (United States)

Army base on the N side of the entrance to HAMPTON ROADS, opposite NORFOLK, in SE VIRGINIA. Occupying a site so strategic that it has been fortified since the colonial era, the present Fort Monroe was built between 1819 and 1834. In the Civil War it was an important Union base before which the Monitor and Merrimac fought in 1862 and in which Jefferson Davis was imprisoned from 1865 to 1867.

FORT MORGAN See MOBILE (United States)

FORT MOULTRIE (United States)

Fortification on Sullivan's Island, at the entrance to CHARLESTON's harbor, in SE SOUTH CAROLINA. It was named for its builder, Colonel William Moultrie, whose repulse of a British attack on the fort in June 1776 was one of the Revolution's decisive battles. Fort Moultrie served as prison and burial place for the Seminole leader Osceola in 1838. After its garrison was evacuated to strengthen FORT SUMTER in December 1860, Fort Moultrie was seized and held by the Confederates until they evacuated Charleston in February 1865. It is now part of Fort Sumter National Monument.

FORT MYERS (United States)

City, Lee County, SW FLORIDA, on the Caloosahatchee River, 15 mi from the Gulf of Mexico. Fort Harvie was established on the site in 1841 to protect settlers from Seminole raids. Its name was changed to Fort Myers in 1850. The post was held by Union troops throughout the Civil War, despite a Confederate attack in February 1865. Around it grew the city of Fort Myers, a resort and shipping center for the surrounding agricultural region. Here Thomas A. Edison established his winter home and laboratory in 1885.

FORT NASHBOROUGH See NASHVILLE (United States)

FORT NASSAU See ALBANY (United States)

FORT NECESSITY (United States)

A temporary fortification at Great Meadows, approximately 10 mi SE of Uniontown, in SW PENNSYLVANIA. In July 1754 Virginia militia under George Washington, advancing against the French at FORT DUQUESNE, built an entrenched camp here. The French attacked, forcing Washington to surrender in the opening engagement of the French and Indian War. In 1755, a British expedition against Fort Duquesne was defeated and its slain leader, Edward Braddock, buried near Fort Necessity. It is now a national battlefield site.

FORT NIAGARA (United States)

Frontier post on the E bank of the Niagara River at its junction with LAKE ONTARIO, in NW NEW YORK State. Completed by the French in 1726 on a strategic site first fortified in 1679, Fort Niagara fell to the British in 1759 during the French and Indian War. A British and Loyalist stronghold during the Revolution, it was surrendered to the United States only after the Jay Treaty in 1796. Recaptured by the British in 1813 during the War of 1812, Fort Niagara was returned to the Americans in 1815. A military post until 1946, it is now a state park.

FORT NOGALES See VICKSBURG (United States)

FORT NONSENSE See MORRISTOWN (United States)

FORT ORANGE See ALBANY (United States)

FORT OSWEGO See OSWEGO (United States)

FORT PEMBERTON See GREENWOOD (United States)

FORT PHIL KEARNEY See MASSACRE HILL

FORT PICKENS (United States)

Fortification on Santa Rosa Island, at the mouth of Pensacola Bay, in NW FLORIDA. Fort Pickens was completed in 1834. In January 1861, after Florida seceded from the Union and took over its mainland forts, some Union garrisons withdrew here. Repulsing a Confederate attack in October 1861, it remained in Union hands throughout the Civil War. Geronimo's prison from 1886 to 1887, Fort Pickens was decommissioned and made a state park after World War II.

FORT PIERCE (United States)

City in St. Lucie County, on the Indian River lagoon, SE FLORIDA, 105 mi N of MIAMI. An army post was built here in 1838 for defense against the Seminoles. The city was settled in the 1860s. Fort Pierce is now the commercial and distributing center for an agricultural region. Since 1959 it has been the site of offshore salvaging operations on a Spanish silver fleet sunk in a hurricane in 1715.

FORT PILLOW (United States)

Civil War fortification in SW TENNESSEE, on the MISSISSIPPI RIVER, 40 mi N of MEMPHIS. Built by the Confederates in 1862 but soon evacuated, Fort Pillow was occupied by Union troops in June 1862. In April 1864 Nathan B. Forrest recaptured it. There was such great loss of life among black Union soldiers that it was charged they had been deliberately massacred because of Southern hostility toward the North's black troops. Forrest denied this. Nonetheless, "Remember Fort Pillow!" became a battle cry in black Union regiments.

FORT PITT See FORT DUQUESNE, PITTSBURGH

FORT PONTCHARTRAIN See DETROIT

FORT PRINCE OF WALES See CHURCHILL

FORT PULASKI (United States)

Fortification on Cockspur Island, at the mouth of the Savannah River, 17 mi E of SAVANNAH, GEORGIA. Built between 1829 and 1847, Fort Pulaski was seized by Confederate forces in January 1861. In April 1862 Union troops retook it after two days of shelling had shown the effectiveness of rifled cannon, used here for the first time in the Civil War, against masonry fortifications. Utilized in the Union blockade of Savannah Harbor, Fort Pulaski is now a national monument.

FORTRESS MONROE See FORT MONROE

FORT RILEY (United States)

Military post in NE KANSAS on the Kansas River, near JUNCTION CITY. When established in 1852 it was called Fort Center because its location was near the geographical center of the United States. The name was changed in 1853 to honor General Bennett Riley. The fort protected traders and settlers using the SANTA FE TRAIL. It became a cavalry post and training center until 1917 when it was used to train reserve officers for World War I. It is still an active installation.

FORT ROSS See CALIFORNIA

FORT ROUILLÉ See TORONTO (Canada)

FORT RUPERT See RUPERT HOUSE

FORT SAGINAW See SAGINAW

FORT SAINT DAVID (India)

Ruins just N of KUDALUR, on the COROMANDEL COAST of SE India, 100 mi S of CHENNAI. An early and important stronghold of the British in India, it was purchased from a native ruler in 1690. Fort Saint David was captured in 1758 by the French, who destroyed its fortifications. These were never effectively restored, even though the British recovered the site in 1760.

FORT SAINTE ANNE See VERMONT

FORT SAINT GEORGE See SAINT GEORGE (United States)

FORT ST. JEAN See SAINT JEAN

FORT SAINT JOHN (Canada)

Town on the Peace River, approximately 40 mi NW of DAWSON CREEK, in NE BRITISH COLUMBIA. Founded by the North West Company in 1805, the trading post of Fort Saint John has been operated by the Hudson's Bay Company since 1821. Around it developed the town of Fort Saint John, its growth stimulated by the bridging of the Peace River for the ALASKA HIGHWAY here in 1943 and the discovery of oil and gas nearby in 1955.

FORT SAINT JOSEPH See NILES (United States)

FORT SAINT LOUIS See STARVED ROCK (United States)

FORT SAM HOUSTON (United States)

Army post in SAN ANTONIO, S TEXAS. Though San Antonio had been garrisoned since 1846, the present Fort Sam Houston was not begun till 1876. Here Geronimo surrendered in 1886, the Rough Riders trained in 1898, and U.S. military aviation began in 1910. Within Fort Sam Houston is Brooke Army Medical Center, a pioneer in the treatment of burn victims.

FORT SAN PEDRO See ZAMBOANGA (Philippines)

FORT SCOTT (United States)

City in SE KANSAS, near the MISSOURI border, 85 mi S of KANSAS CITY. Founded in 1855 on the site of an abandoned army post, Fort Scott saw such armed conflict over slavery in the 1850s that in 1862 Congress established the first national cemetery here for casualties of that struggle and the Civil War. Now the commercial and manufacturing center of an agricultural region, Fort Scott has been declared a national historic area.

FORT SELKIRK See YUKON TERRITORY (Canada)

FORT SHELBY See PRAIRIE DU CHIEN (United States)

FORT SHERIDAN See HIGHLAND PARK (United States)

FORT SHERMAN See COEUR D'ALENE (United States)

FORT SILL (United States)

Army post in Comanche county, SW OKLAHOMA, 75 mi SW of OKLAHOMA CITY. Established as a cavalry base in 1869, Fort Still figured prominently in operations against the region's Indians. Several tribes, notably the Comanche in 1875, surrendered and were settled at Fort Sill. Geronimo, once a prisoner here, also settled on the post. He was buried here in 1909. Fort Sill now houses the Army's Field Artillery Center and School.

FORT SMITH (United States)

City in NW ARKANSAS near the OKLAHOMA line, at the junction of the Arkansas and Poteau Rivers. Growing up around an army post founded in 1817, Fort Smith was an important supply point in the 1848 gold rush. Between 1875 and 1896 Isaac Parker, a famous frontier "hanging judge," presided over the U.S. district court here. His courthouse, along with the old fort, is included in the Fort Smith National Historic Site. Trade center and transportation hub for an agricultural and mining area, Fort Smith is Arkansas's chief industrial city.

FORT SNELLING See MINNESOTA

FORT STANWIX (United States)

Former fortification on the site of ROME, on the MOHAWK RIVER, approximately 100 mi W of Albany, in central NEW YORK State. Strategically located, Fort Stanwix was built in 1758. It was the scene of several Indian conferences, at two of which the Iroquois made large land cessions to Britain in 1768 and the United States in 1784. In American hands during the Revolution, Fort Stanwix was besieged in 1777 by the British under Barry St. Leger. It was relieved by an expedition under Benedict Arnold after troops under Nicholas Herkimer were defeated at ORISKANY.

FORT STEVENSON See FREMONT

FORT SUMTER (United States)

Fortification on a shoal in CHARLESTON harbor, in SE SOUTH CAROLINA. Upon seceding in December 1860, South Carolina demanded the surrender of the Union forts in Charleston harbor, but their commander, Major Robert Anderson, refused, withdrawing his men to Fort Sumter. In April 1861, to forestall the Union government's plan to provision the garrison, the Confederates demanded Fort Sumter's immediate capitulation. Refused again, they fired on the fort in the opening engagement of the Civil War, forcing Anderson's surrender on April 14. The Confederates held the fort until they evacuated Charleston in February 1865. On April 14, 1865, Anderson returned to raise the U.S. flag over Fort Sumter once again. Together with nearby FORT MOULTRIE, it is now a national monument.

FORT SUTTER See SACRAMENTO

FORT TICONDEROGA See TICONDEROGA (United States)

FORT TOWNSEND See PORT TOWNSEND (United States)

FORT UMTALI See UMTALI

FORTUNATE ISLANDS See CANARY ISLANDS

FORT UNION (United States)

Trading post at the junction of the YELLOWSTONE and MISSOURI Rivers in NE MONTANA, near the NORTH DAKOTA line. Built in 1828 by the American Fur Company where ROCKY MOUNTAIN routes converged, for four decades Fort Union was the most important trading post in U.S. fur country. An army post after 1867, it is now a national historic site.

FORT UNION (United States)

Former army post in Mora County, NE NEW MEXICO, approximately 60 mi NE of SANTA FE. Built in 1851 to protect settlers on the SANTA FE TRAIL as a military headquarters and supply base, Fort Union was important in the Southwest's development. It was the objective of the 1862 Confederate invasion of New Mexico that was repulsed at Glorieta. Fort Union was abandoned in 1891. Its ruins are now a national monument.

FORT VANCOUVER See VANCOUVER (United States)

FORT VICTORIA See BRITISH COLUMBIA, VICTORIA (Canada)

FORT WASHINGTON (United States)

Former fortification on the NW heights of MANHATTAN Island, overlooking the HUDSON RIVER opposite FORT LEE. Built early in the Revolution to guard the Hudson, Fort Washington, though weak, was so strategic that the Americans tried to hold it even after Washington retreated to NEW JERSEY following the battle of WHITE PLAINS. But the British captured it on November 16, 1776, forcing the Americans to evacuate Fort Lee across the river also and costing them control of the lower Hudson.

FORT WAYNE (United States)

City in NE INDIANA, where the St. Joseph and St. Marys rivers join to form the Maumee, 105 mi NE of INDIANAPOLIS. Fort Wayne's site, once the location of the Miami Indians' chief town, was fortified by the French in the 1680s, captured by the British in 1760 and by Pontiac in 1763, and occupied by the Americans after the battle of FALLEN TIMBERS in 1794. A settlement grew around the fort built by and named for Major General Anthony Wayne. After an Indian attack during the War of 1812, it developed peacefully into an important commercial, transportation, and industrial center.

FORT WELLINGTON See PRESCOTT, CANADA

FORT WILLIAM, INDIA See CALCUTTA

FORT WILLIAM, UNITED STATES See OREGON, THUNDER BAY

FORT WILLIAM AND MARY See NEW HAMPSHIRE

FORT WILLIAM HENRY (United States)

Former fortification at the S end of LAKE GEORGE, in E NEW YORK, approximately 60 mi N of ALBANY. In August 1757, during the French and Indian War, Fort William Henry's British garrison surrendered to French general Montcalm but was massacred by Indians under him. The fort was burned. Its site served as a troop staging area later in that war and during the American Revolution. In the 1950s the fort was rebuilt as a museum. It figures prominently in James Fenimore Cooper's novel The Last of the Mohicans.

FORT WINCHESTER See DEFIANCE (United States)

FORT WINNEBAGO See PORTAGE (United States)

FORT WORTH (United States)

City in N central TEXAS, 30 mi W of DALLAS, with which it forms a metropolitan area. Growing up around a cavalry outpost founded in 1849 and abandoned in 1853, Fort Worth was once a stopover on the CHISHOLM TRAIL. It became a cattle boomtown after the coming of the railroad in 1876. By 1902 it was the meatpacking center of the Southwest. Today the city is also noted for its petroleum industry, established in the 1920s, and for its aircraft industry founded after World War II.

FORT YUMA See YUMA (United States)

FORUM ALIENI See FERRARA

FORUM CORNELII See IMOLA

FORUM JULII, FRANCE See FRÉJUS

FORUM JULII (Italy, Slovenia) See CIVIDALE DEL FRIULI, FRIULI

FORUM LIVII See FORLÌ

FOSHAN [Cantonese: Fatshan; former: Namhoi] (China) City, 10 mi SW of GUANGZHOU in the Pearl (Xi) River Delta, S GUANGDONG province, SE China. Its good location and many handicraft industries made Foshan one of China's four greatest commercial centers by the 18th century. Guangzhou later outstripped it. In 1949 the Communist government ended its long history as a popular religious center.

FOSSA CLAUDA See CHIOGGIA

FOSSE WAY [Foss Way] (England)

Roman Britain's principal NE-SW road, running approximately 200 mi from LINCOLN to EXETER. Probably first laid down by the Romans as a military road along the frontier reached by A.D. 47, Fosse Way intersected two other ancient thoroughfares, WATLING STREET SW of LEICESTER and ERMINE STREET just S of Lincoln.

FOSS WAY See FOSSE WAY

FOTHERINGHAY (England)

Village in NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, on the Nene River, 9 mi SW of PETERBOROUGH. At Fotheringhay are the ruins of the 12th-century Norman castle in which Richard III was born in 1452 and Mary, Queen of Scots, was imprisoned and executed in 1587.

FOUGÈRES (France)

Town in BRITTANY near the NORMANDY border, in NW France, 29 mi SW of Rennes. During the Middle Ages it was the site of an important border fortress of which extensive ruins remain. It was captured by the English in 1166 and again in 1449. During the French Revolution it was a center of the Chouans, a peasant resistance movement. In the 19th century Fougères figured in the works of several famous authors, including Victor Hugo and Gustave Flaubert, who lived here for a while. The town was occupied by German forces from 1940 to 1944.

FOULA (Scotland)

Westernmost of the SHETLAND ISLANDS, N of Scotland. Small and sparsely populated, Foula preserved Common Scandinavian, the Norse of the Vikings, as a spoken language until the early 19th century.

FOUNTAIN COLONY See COLORADO SPRINGS

FOUR FOREST CANTONS, THE [German: Die Vier Waldenstätter] (Switzerland)

The cantons of SCHWYZ, URI, UNTERWALDEN, and LUCERNE, in central Switzerland around the LAKE OF LUCERNE, or the Lake of the Four Forest Cantons. These were the first cantons to unite against Hapsburg rule in 1291 and thus were the core of the Swiss Confederation. In the 16th century the Four Forest Cantons headed the Catholic side in the conflicts engendered in Switzerland by the Reformation.

FOWEY [modern: Saint Austell with Fowey] (England)

Town in CORNWALL, on the ENGLISH CHANNEL at the mouth of the Fowey River, 23 mi W of PLYMOUTH. A leading Cornish port in medieval times, since the 18th century Fowey has been a center of kaolin production. Site of a U.S. naval training base in World War II, Fowey was amalgamated with nearby Saint Austell in 1968.

FOWLIANG See JINGDEZHEN

FOX RIVER (United States)

River in E central WISCONSIN, flowing 175 mi from N Columbia county SW to near PORTAGE, then N and NE through Lake Winnebago to LAKE MICHIGAN at GREEN BAY. With the Wisconsin River, which at Portage comes within one and one-half mi of the Fox, to which it is now connected by ship canal, the Fox River forms an historic route between the GREAT LAKES and the MISSISSIPPI RIVER system. The first whites to use this route were Louis Jolliet and Jacques Marquette in 1673; many other explorers, traders, missionaries, and settlers followed them.

FRANCE [ancient: Gallia; French: République française; German: Frankreich; Italian: Francia]

Republic of W Europe, a major European nation and an important international power. It has a population of approximately 60 million, it is a predominantly Roman Catholic country, and it boasts an exceptionally rich cultural heritage. PARIS, the capital and traditional nucleus of the country, has for many centuries been a principal cultural center of Europe. France's position at the heart of western Europe has ensured that, ever since the country's emergence as part of the FRANKISH EMPIRE in the eighth century under Charlemagne, it has played a crucial role in the history of the continent. The country has benefited from the protection afforded by the ALPS and the PYRENEES along its southern and eastern borders, by the RHINE and other rivers to the E, and by the ENGLISH CHANNEL and Atlantic Ocean to the N and W.

Originally inhabited by Celtic tribes, France was known as GAUL to the Romans, who had subdued it under Julius Caesar by 51 B.C. The country greatly benefited from the Roman occupation, which saw the emergence of many new cities, including Lugdunum, now LYONS, the Roman capital. Following the disintegration of the ROMAN EMPIRE in the fifth century A.D., Gaul was ravaged by barbarian invaders. Of these, the Franks under Clovis I emerged as the most powerful and united the country; but in the ensuing dynastic struggles many achievements of the Roman period were lost. Under this Frankish Merovingian dynasty, however, a process of growth was consolidated which survived with the emergence of the Carolingian dynasty.

Under Charlemagne (768–814) a great new Frankish Empire was established, stretching from the EBRO RIVER in SPAIN to the ELBE RIVER in GERMANY. Charlemagne encouraged the arts, letters, education, and religion, and developed an efficient administrative system; but after his death his enormous empire gradually collapsed, and power passed increasingly into the hands of local feudal lords.

The history of France as a modern nation begins traditionally in the 10th century with the reign of Hugh Capet, elected king by the French nobles and clergy in 987. The Capetian dynasty gradually widened out its dominions from the centrally located ÎLE DE FRANCE, containing Paris and ORLÉANS. By subduing local lords and pressing the traditional rights of the French Crown it created a climate in which trade could flourish and justice could be administered. In the 13th century France established itself as a major European power, playing a leading role in the Crusades, and under Philip II winning a decisive victory over ENGLAND and the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE at BOUVINES in 1214. However, following the death of Charles IV, the last Capetian, in 1328, English claims to the French Crown, resolutely pursued in the face of French territorial and feudal claims, led to the Hundred Years' War of 1337 to 1453. Although the great battles of this protracted and exhausting war—CRÉCY in 1346, POITIERS in 1356, and AGINCOURT in 1415—were English victories, by 1453 France had regained all her lost territories except CALAIS. By the end of the 15th century most of modern France had been united under Louis XII.

With the spread of the Reformation throughout France in the 16th century, the country fell into a bitter civil war, the Wars of Religion, between 1560 and 1589. The wars were resolved by the able Henri IV, first of the Bourbon dynasty, who secured the rights of the Protestants by the Edict of NANTES in 1598. But these rights were gradually eroded, and many of the Protestant Huguenots were forced to emigrate, depriving the nation of able talent.

The 17th century, however, can be considered the Golden Age of France. Under Louis XIV, king from 1643 to 1715, French classical culture, inspired by the Italian Renaissance, reached its peak; and Louis's court at VERSAILLES was the richest and most splendid in Europe. It attracted the nobility but also bankrupted them with the required life of lavish display. Under Cardinal Richelieu, the chief minister, military successes abroad in the Thirty Years' War of 1618–48 were repeated in the War of Devolution of 1667–68 and in the Dutch War of 1672–78. But the cost was excessive, and when France was defeated at BLENHEIM in the War of the Spanish Succession of 1701–14, the country was left on the verge of financial and social ruin.

Though Louis XIV's finance minister, Colbert, had attempted to centralize economic life under a mercantilist policy, the economic situation was further aggravated in the 18th century by costly and unsuccessful colonial wars. In competition mostly with GREAT BRITAIN, France had built up enormous imperial holdings in CANADA and INDIA in particular, but it lost them in the mid-18th century. France's anachronistic administrative system, moreover, hampered the attempts of Louis XVI's ministers to remedy a situation inherited from the past and known historically as the ancien régime. There was a growing demand for radical reforms of the central government, as well as the correcting of local grievances in the countryside against manorial abuses. These led eventually to the French Revolution in 1789 and the execution of the king and queen in 1793. Once started, the revolution quickly evolved into the episodes of the Terror, in which thousands lost their lives on the guillotine, Thermidore, and the Directory.

In the meantime in the French Revolutionary Wars, brought about by the efforts of reactionary European states, notably AUSTRIA, to crush the new French republic, Napoleon Bonaparte emerged as a military leader of genius. He was appointed head of the revolutionary armies in 1797 in the wake of an attempt at a coup d'état and was named dictator. He crowned himself emperor of France in 1804. Under Napoleon French armies were triumphant throughout Europe, winning famous victories at AUSTERLITZ in 1805 and JENA in 1806; but after a disastrous campaign in RUSSIA and defeat on the IBERIAN PENINSULA the French empire crumbled, and Napoleon was exiled to ELBA. His brief return in 1815 ended in a final defeat at WATERLOO. At the subsequent Congress of VIENNA of 1815 the Bourbon dynasty was restored in France. The new regime, unable to cope with the social changes accompanying widespread industrialization and the extension of civil rights, was rocked by two further revolutions, in 1830 and in 1848. The Second Empire of Louis Napoleon was brought to an end by an ignominious defeat in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870–71, with the loss of ALSACE and LORRAINE to the newly unified Germany.

In the 20th century France has borne the brunt of two world wars arising from its traditional rivalry with Germany. During World War I most of the bitter trench warfare on the Western Front, including the great battles of the SOMME and MARNE, took place in northeastern France, and many towns and villages were almost completely obliterated. After an early and sudden defeat in World War II, northern France was occupied by the victorious Germans, while the south, under the Vichy regime, collaborated with the Germans in exchange for independence. Liberated in 1944 following the invasions of NORMANDY and southern France by the Allies and insurrections by the French underground, France soon recovered to play a major role in the reconstruction of Europe and in recent European affairs. A nuclear power since 1960, France was a founding member of the European Economic Community.

A threatened military coup in 1958 over French losses in ALGERIA led to the National Assembly's setting up of the Fifth Republic under President Charles de Gaulle, World War II leader of the Free French. France is still governed today under this Fifth Republic. Since the end of World War II France has lost or has given up most of her former colonial empire, including INDOCHINA in 1954 and the possessions in N and central Africa by 1977. In 1981 France elected a Socialist government under François Mitterrand that nationalized many industries and expanded social benefits, but the economy soon soured. In 1986 a conservative government under Jacques Chirac started privatizing French corporations, but Mitterrand returned to power in 1988, signing a nuclear nonproliferation agreement in 1991. In the 1993 elections, high unemployment pushed the government back to the conservative Gaullists. The Gaullists raised taxes and cut spending in order to join the European Currency Union in 1999. The Socialists won the 1997 election, but a slow economy and terrorist violence brought back Chirac and the Gaullists. In 2003, France was outspoken against U.S. involvement in IRAQ, straining relations, but in 2007 the more pro-American Nicolas Sarkozy was elected president.

FRANCHE-COMTÉ (France)

Former province in E France, now divided among the Haute-Saône, Doubs, and Jura departments, on the Swiss border. Won from the Celts by Julius Caesar in 52 B.C., it was made part of the first kingdom of BURGUNDY in the fifth century A.D. In the ninth century it was first united as a fief of Burgundy. Franche-Comté or the Free County, was fought over by many powers during the next seven centuries. In 1369 it became a possession of Philip the Bold of Burgundy; through his great grandson, Charles V, it passed to SPAIN. It was ravaged during the Thirty Years' War. Long desired and sometimes conquered by the French, Franche-Comté was ceded permanently to them in 1678.

FRANCIA See FRANCE

FRANCONIA [German: Franken] (Germany)

Region in S central Germany, now covered by the states of BAVARIA, BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, and HESSE.

Created by the Franks, for whom it was named, in the ninth century A.D. as part of AUSTRASIA, Franconia was one of medieval Germany's five stem duchies. It produced several rulers of Germany including Conrad I (911–918) and the Salian dynasty (1024–1125). Franconia was gradually fragmented, undergoing its first partition in 939. Two nominal duchies emerged: Western, of Rhenish, Franconia, which eventually broke up into a patchwork of free cities, bishoprics, and other states; and Eastern Franconia, long dominated by the ruling bishops of WÜRZBURG. In 1512 Eastern Franconia became the center of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE's Franconian circle. Early in the 19th century, it passed to Bavaria, which in 1837 revived the name for three districts: Upper, Middle, and Lower Franconia.

FRANCONODAL See FRANKENTHAL

FRANKEN See FRANCONIA

FRANKENTHAL [former: Franconodal] (Germany)

City in RHINELAND-PALATINATE state, SW Germany, 28 mi SSW of DARMSTADT. First mentioned as Franconodal in A.D. 772, it was the site of a 12th-century Augustinian monastery. It suffered greatly in the Thirty Years' War and was destroyed by the French in 1689. The rebuilt city, noted for its porcelain manufacture, was ruled by the French from 1796 to 1814. Industrialized after 1870, Frankenthal was rebuilt again after being heavily damaged in World War II.

FRANKFORT [former: Frank's Ford] (United States)

City on the Kentucky River in N central KENTUCKY, 52 mi E of LOUISVILLE. The site, visited in 1770 by Daniel Boone, who is buried here, was granted in 1786 to General James Wilkinson, under the name Frank's Ford. It became Kentucky's capital in 1792. In 1862 it was briefly occupied by Confederates under General Braxton Bragg. The city, which has preserved many old buildings, is the Bluegrass region's trading center.

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN See FRANKFURT

FRANKFURT [English: Frankfort on the Main; German: Frankfurt am Main] (Germany)

City in HESSE, central Germany, on the Main River, 17 mi N of DARMSTADT. Founded as a Roman fort in the first century A.D., Frankfurt was a Carolingian royal seat and became a free city in 1245. It was the site of imperial elections after 1356 and of imperial coronations from the 16th century on. The city was seized by Napoleon, but had its autonomy restored by the Congress of Vienna, which made it the seat of the GERMAN CONFEDERATION's Diet. In 1848 the city became the meeting place of the Frankfurt Parliament, the assembly produced by that year's revolution. It was occupied by PRUSSIA in 1866. Frankfurt was somewhat damaged in the first and greatly damaged in the second world war. In 1945 it became headquarters for U.S. occupation forces. Long a cultural center, the city is Goethe's birthplace. It is a financial and banking center, the Rothschilds' native city, and has been famous since 1240 for its fairs, especially its modern book fair. Frankfurt is also a great manufacturing city, Germany's air and transportation hub, and particularly noted for its chemical industry. See also HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE.

FRANKFURT AM MAIN See FRANKFURT

FRANKFURT AN DER ODER (Germany)

City in BRANDENBURG, E Germany, on the ODER RIVER, 50 mi ESE of BERLIN. An important trading center founded by settlers from FRANCONIA, Frankfurt was chartered in 1253. It joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE in 1368. Often besieged, it was sacked by the Swedes in 1631 and occupied by the Russians in 1945. After World War II, Frankfurt declined in size and importance, losing its suburb, Slubice, to Poland. It remained an industrial center, particularly noted for the production of frankfurter sausages. It is a major trading link to Eastern bloc nations.

FRANKISH EMPIRE

Empire of NW Europe, it came to control the land between the EBRO RIVER in SPAIN and the ELBE RIVER in GERMANY and stretched deep into central ITALY. Reaching its peak under Charlemagne, it restored the political and ideological cohesion that had been lost after the collapse of the ROMAN EMPIRE, laid the foundations of medieval FRANCE and Germany, and gave birth to the ideas of Europe and Christendom.

Originally a confederation of Germanic tribes who by the 3rd century A.D. had settled along the middle and lower RHINE RIVER, the Franks were divided into Salians and Ripuarians. Circa A.D. 350 their territory was brought within the Roman Empire, but in the following century, under Clovis I (481–511), they expanded deep into GAUL and defeated the remnants of the Romans there in 486. Clovis united the Salian and Ripuarian Franks under the Merovingian dynasty, founded the Frankish Empire, and converted to Christianity, setting the precedent for the empire's support of the Roman Church.

After the death of Clovis, the Merovingians expanded into Germany, though the empire itself was divided into the smaller kingdoms of NEUSTRIA, AUSTRASIA, and BURGUNDY. In 751 the Carolingians under Pepin the Short (r. 751–68) replaced the Merovingian dynasty and under Charlemagne (768–814) a great empire was formed. Internal disunity was ironed out, the empire was extended into Spain and Italy, BAVARIA was annexed, and the Saxons and Avars were defeated. Charlemagne and his successors, most notably Louis the Pious (814–40), based their empire on the model of Rome, encouraged learning and education, the arts and architecture. Their achievement was known as the “Carolingian Renaissance.” After Louis's death the empire was divided three times, most importantly by the Treaty of VERDUN in 843 and the Treaty of MERSEN in 870, into three kingdoms: the kingdom of the West Franks, later to become France; the middle kingdom of LOTHARINGIA, later to fragment into the Burgundies and Low Countries; and the kingdom of the East Franks, later to become Germany.

FRANKLIN (United States)

City in Venango county, NW PENNSYLVANIA, approximately 70 mi N of PITTSBURGH. Laid out in 1795 on a site successively occupied by French, British, and American forts between 1752 and 1796, Franklin is named after the American fort honoring Benjamin Franklin. In 1753 Washington delivered Governor Robert Dinwiddie's challenge to the French commander of Fort Machault here. It became a boom town after an oil strike nearby in 1859. After 1900 competition from southwestern fields lessened Franklin's importance as an oil producer, but the petroleum industry still dominates the city's economy.

FRANKLIN (United States)

Town in Williamson county, central TENNESSEE, 19 mi S of NASHVILLE. Here on November 30, 1864, Union troops under Major General John M. Schofield, defending General William T. Sherman's lines of communication, severely defeated Confederate forces under General John B. Hood despite one of the greatest Confederate charges of the Civil War. Nevertheless, Hood pressed on until completely defeated shortly afterward at Nashville.

FRANKLIN, STATE OF (United States)

Would-be state, covering present Washington, Sullivan, and Greene counties in E TENNESSEE. After NORTH CAROLINA ceded its western lands to the United States in June 1784, settlers in the area established a government, elected officers, passed laws, and sought to enter the Union as the State of Franklin. But Congress withheld recognition, while North Carolina, repealing its act of cession, sought to regain jurisdiction. In 1788, when its officers' terms expired, Franklin passed out of existence, its territory reverting to North Carolina until incorporated into the new state of Tennessee in 1796.

FRANKREICH See FRANCE

FRANK'S FORD See FRANKFORT

FRANZ JOSEF LAND [Fridtjof Nansen Land]

[Russian: Zemlya Frantsa Iosifa] (Russia)

Archipelago N of NOVAYA ZEMLYA in Russia, forming the N boundary of the Barents Sea. Discovered and named in 1873 by an Austrian expedition, Franz Josef Land was explored by several other polar expeditions including Nansen's. Claimed by Russia in 1914, the archipelago was officially annexed in 1926 by the Soviet Union. Russia maintains the world's most northerly weather station here.

FRASCATI (Italy)

Town in LATIUM region, central Italy, 11 mi SE of ROME. A noted resort and wine-producing center since ancient times, Frascati contains many Roman ruins and Renaissance villas. Headquarters for Field Marshall Albert Kesselring during World War II, the town was heavily damaged in Allied bombing.

FRASER RIVER (Canada)

Chief river of BRITISH COLUMBIA, flowing 850 mi SW from the ROCKY MOUNTAINS to the Strait of Georgia, just S of VANCOUVER. It was discovered by Alexander Mackenzie in 1793 and explored by Simon Fraser in 1808. The Fraser River was the scene of an 1858 gold rush. It is now a center of ranching and forestry. Its delta has become western Canada's most densely populated area, with many pipelines following sections of its course.

FRAUENFELD (Switzerland)

Capital city of THURGAU canton, NE Switzerland, 21 mi NE of ZURICH. First mentioned in 1246, Frauenfeld passed to the Hapsburgs in 1264. Seized by the Swiss Confederation in 1460, the city was the seat of the Federal Diet between 1712 and 1798. Though now an industrial center, Frauenfeld is particularly noted for the 11th-century castle, which along with a church and one house is all of the old town that survived fires in 1771 and 1788.

FRAYSER'S FARM [Glendale] (United States)

Civil War battle site, approximately 12 mi SE of RICHMOND, VIRGINIA. At Frayser's Farm, sometimes called Glendale, on June 30, 1862, Confederate forces under Generals James Longstreet and A.P. Hill clashed with Union troops under General George McClellan in the Seven Days Battles, which ended the Union's Peninsular campaign and the threat it had posed to Richmond.

FREDERICA, FORT See FORT FREDERICA

FREDERICIA (Denmark)

City on the SE coast of the JUTLAND Peninsula, central Denmark. Founded as a fortress in 1650, Fredericia was besieged by the Prussians in the first Prusso-Danish War. It was the scene on July 6, 1849, of a Danish victory that brought about a truce. Since the closing of the fort in 1909, the city of Fredericia has developed into a transportation hub and a manufacturing and oil-refining center.

FREDERICK (United States)

City in NW MARYLAND, approximately 45 mi NW of WASHINGTON, D.C. Laid out in 1745, Frederick was Francis Scott Key's birthplace and burial site. In September 1862, during the Civil War, Confederate troops, passing through Frederick, were defied by Barbara Fritchie, as commemorated in John Greenleaf Whittier's poem of the same name. In July 1864, just before the battle at nearby MONOCACY, Confederate general Jubal Early accepted a $200,000 ransom to spare Frederick.

FREDERICKSBURG (United States)

Independent city in Spotsylvania County, NE VIRGINIA, 50 mi S of WASHINGTON, D.C. First settled in 1691 and replanned in 1727, Fredericksburg was strongly associated with George Washington's family. During the Civil War, Robert E. Lee crushingly defeated the Union army under Ambrose Burnside here on December 13, 1862. The defeat led to Burnside's dismissal. Parts of this battlefield and three others nearby, CHANCELLORSVILLE, THE WILDERNESS, and SPOTSYLVANIA COURTHOUSE, are now preserved in a national military park. The city retains many colonial buildings.

FREDERICKSTADT See JOÃO PESSOA

FREDERICTON [former: Ste. Anne's Point] (Canada)

City in S central NEW BRUNSWICK, E Canada, on the St. John River, 54 mi SW of St. JOHN. It was founded as Ste. Anne's Point in 1785 by United Empire Loyalists. The refugee Tory satirist of the American Revolution, Jonathan Odell, was one of the city's founders, while several other literary figures, such as poets Sir Charles Roberts and Bliss Carman, were born in Fredericton. Fredericton is now the administrative, educational, and cultural capital of New Brunswick.

FREDERIKSNAGAR See SERAMPUR

FREDONIA (United States)

Village near LAKE ERIE, 23 mi N of JAMESTOWN, in W NEW YORK State. Settled in 1804, Fredonia is the site of the first natural gas well in the United States. In 1821 it became the first American community to use gas for street lighting. Among the earliest branches of the Grange and the Women's Christian Temperance Union were those founded in Fredonia in 1868 and 1873. Shortly before the premier of the Marx Bros. movie Duck Soup (1933), the city of Fredonia complained about the use of its name with an additional "e". The Marx Brothers' response was: "Change the name of your town, it's hurting our picture."

FREDRIKSHALD See HALDEN

FREDRIKSHAMN See HAMINA

FREEHOLD [Monmouth Courthouse] (United States)

Town, seat of Monmouth County, E central NEW JERSEY, 27 mi E of TRENTON. First settled in 1650,

Freehold was called Monmouth Courthouse until 1801. It was the site of the Revolutionary War battle of Monmouth on June 28, 1778, when von Steuben's intervention prevented an American debacle. The legend of Molly Pitcher subsequently grew around accounts of the help provided by an American soldier's wife. The poet Philip Freneau's last home was here.

FREEMAN'S FARM (United States)

Old farmstead on the W bank of the HUDSON RIVER, in Saratoga County, N of ALBANY, in E NEW YORK. During the American Revolution, Freeman's Farm became a center of fighting in the critical SARATOGA campaign when the British general John Burgoyne tried and failed to break through American lines here on September 19, 1777. The site is now part of Saratoga National Historical Park.

FREEPORT [former: Winneshiek] (United States)

City in Stephenson County, NW ILLINOIS, 28 mi W of ROCKFORD. Settled in 1835, Freeport was first reached by railroad in 1853. It became the trading and shipping center of the surrounding agricultural area. Here on August 27, 1858, Stephen Douglas, while debating Abraham Lincoln, set forth his "Freeport Doctrine" on the ability of territories to exclude slavery despite Supreme Court rulings that they could not.

FREE STATE (South Africa)

Province created in 1994 out of the ORANGE FREE STATE province and the Qwa Qwa black homeland. The capital and largest city in Free State is BLOEM-FONTEIN.

FREETOWN (Sierra Leone)

City and capital of Sierra Leone, on the Atlantic Ocean at the mouth of the Sierra Leone River, in West Africa. It was founded in 1787 by former slaves aided by British abolitionists. After 1808 Freetown became an important administrative center for Britain's West African colonies and the main base for Royal Navy patrols against slavers. A British naval base again in World War II, Freetown became independent Sierra Leone's capital in 1961. A civil war from 1991 to 2002 has left the city in ruins, while UN and regional peacekeeping troops try to maintain order under the strain of local gang violence and an influx of refugees from conflict in neighboring LIBERIA.

FREETOWN (United States) See FALL RIVER

FREIBERG (Germany)

City in E Germany, 21 mi SW of DRESDEN, at the foot of the ERZGEBIRGE, or Ore Mountains. Settled c. A.D. 1190 by free miners, Freiberg is home of the world's oldest mining academy, founded in 1765. It was long SAXONY's chief commercial center. During the Thirty Years' War, the Swedes besieged Freiberg in 1642–43; during the Seven Years' War the Prussians defeated the Austrians here in 1762. Still an important mining center, even though the original silver mines gave out in 1913, Freiberg contributed greatly to East Germany's industrial development.

FREIBURG See FRIBOURG

FREIBURG IM BREISGAU (Germany)

City in the BREISGAU region of BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, SW Germany, on the W edge of the BLACK FOREST, 80 mi SW of STUTTGART. Founded as a free market town in A.D. 1120, Freiburg came under Hapsburg rule in 1368. In the Thirty Years' War Freiburg was captured by the Swedes in 1632 and 1638. It saw a French victory over the Bavarians on August 3 and 4, 1644. Twice held by the French, from 1677 to 1697 and from 1744 to 1748, Freiburg passed to BADEN in 1805. It was badly damaged in World War II. The city, noted for its university founded in 1457, is the cultural and commercial center of much of SW Germany.

FREIDRICH WILHELMSHAFEN See MADANG

FREISING (Germany)

City in BAVARIA, S Germany, 20 mi NNE of MUNICH. Bavaria's first ecclesiastical and cultural capital, Freising was founded by St. Corbinian in A.D. 724. It became a bishopric in 739. The temporal rule of its bishops, one of whom was the 12th-century chronicler, Otto of Freising, ended in 1803. In 1821 the see was absorbed by the archbishopric of Munich. Among Freising's products is beer made in a brewery first licensed in 1146.

FRÉJUS [Latin: Forum Julii] (France)

Town in Var department, SE France, on the MEDITERRANEAN SW of CANNES. Founded by Julius Caesar in 49 B.C., Fréjus was an important port in Roman times. It has many ancient remains, notably an amphitheater that is ancient GAUL's oldest surviving arena. The French revolutionary Emmanuel-Joseph Sieyès was born in Fréjus in 1748.

FREMANTLE (Australia)

City in SW Western Australia, on the Indian Ocean at the mouth of the Swan River, 10 mi downstream from PERTH, whose port it is. The first Australian landfall for ships from Europe, Fremantle was laid out in 1829. It grew in the late 19th century as port for the COOLGARDIE-KALGOORLIE goldfield. During World War II Fremantle was the Allies' chief submarine base in the Southern Hemisphere. It is now an industrial center at one end of the trans-Australian railroad.

FREMONT [Irvington, Mission San José, Niles, Centerville, Warm Springs] (United States)

City in Alameda County in CALIFORNIA founded in 1954 from the merger of five smaller cities—Irvington, Mission San José, Niles, Centerville, and Warm Springs. Fremont was originally an industrial center but the economy moved into high technology as the SILICON VALLEY expanded N. Fremont has one of the larger East Indian communities in the United States, with the nation's largest Afghan community.

FREMONT [former: Lower Sandusky] (United States)

City in Sandusky County, N OHIO, on the Sandusky River, 30 mi SE of TOLEDO. It was settled on the site of Fort Stevenson, an American post in the War of 1812 successfully defended against the British on August 2 and 3, 1813. Lower Sandusky was renamed for John Charles Frémont in 1849. The industrial and trading center of an agricultural region, Fremont is near Spiegel Grove State Park, President Rutherford B. Hayes's home and burial place.

FRENCH COMMUNITY [French: La Communauté française]

An association of nations created in 1958 to replace the FRENCH UNION, the French Community consisted of FRANCE, its overseas departments and territories, and 12 African colonies granted autonomy at that time. (In 1958 Guinea had voted for immediate independence.) In 1960 these were given independence and the choice of leaving the Community: SENEGAL, GABON, CHAD, CONGO (BRAZZAVILLE), the CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC, and MADAGASCAR stayed; MALI, MAURITANIA, UPPER VOLTA, DAHOMEY, NIGER, and the IVORY COAST gave up formal membership but remained associated through special agreements. The community's administration was intended to formulate common foreign, economic, and military policies for the members, but during the 1960s its operations withered. They were replaced by bilateral agreements, bolstered by strong economic and cultural ties, between France and the other community members.

FRENCH CONGO See FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA, GABON

FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA [former: French Congo] (Africa)

A federation of French colonies in West Africa, now the states of GABON, CONGO, CHAD, and the CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC. A grouping created in 1910, French Equatorial Africa was a unified colony between 1934 and 1946. It declared its independence from the Vichy regime of France in 1940. Its capital, BRAZZAVILLE, became the African center of operations for the Free French in World War II. In 1958 French Equatorial Africa was dissolved when its constituent territories became autonomous members of the FRENCH COMMUNITY. See also FRANCE.

FRENCH GUIANA [French: Guyane française] (France)

In NE South America on the Atlantic Ocean, it is an overseas department of France. The French first came here in 1604, and CAYENNE was founded in 1643. Destroyed by Indians, the town was resettled in 1664. The French, English, and Dutch contested the area in the 17th century; and during the Dutch Wars of Louis XIV the Dutch captured Cayenne in 1676; but the French later retook it. From 1808 to 1816, during the Napoleonic Wars, the British and Portuguese occupied French Guiana, but the Congress of VIENNA in 1815 restored it to France.

DEVIL'S ISLAND, one of the three SAFETY ISLANDS or Îles du Salut, off the coast, was first used as a place of exile in the late 18th century during the French Revolution. In 1852, under Napoleon III, the island became a penal colony, chiefly for political prisoners. Devil's Island became notorious as a prison of extreme hardship and brutality. After World War II the penal colony was gradually phased out and closed by 1951.

During World War II, French Guiana sided with the Vichy government after the Nazi occupation of France, but in 1943 the Free French took control. In 1958 French Guiana accepted the constitution of the French Fifth Republic and elected to continue as an overseas department. Thus it sends its own representatives to the French parliament. In 1968, the French built a rocket-launching base at KOUROU, which is used by the European Space Agency for communication satellites. Cayenne is the capital. See also GUYANA.

FRENCH INDIA [French: Établissements français dans l'Inde] (India)

A former overseas territory of France in India consisting of enclaves at MAHÉ on the SW coast; PONDICHERY, KARIKAL, and YANAM on the SE coast; and CHANDANNAGAR on the Hooghly River N of CALCUTTA. Founded by the French East India Company and often captured by the British during the 18th century, these commercial settlements were recognized as French possessions after the Napoleonic Wars but were ceded to independent India between 1949 and 1954.

FRENCH INDOCHINA See INDOCHINA

FRENCH OCEANIA See FRENCH POLYNESIA

FRENCH POLYNESIA [former: French Oceania; French: Polynésie française] (France)

Overseas country of France consisting of approximately 105 islands in the S Pacific Ocean. The five main groups are: the GAMBIE ISLANDS, MARQUESAS ISLANDS, SOCIETY ISLANDS, TUAMOTU ISLANDS, and TUBUAI, or Austral, Islands. Uninhabited CLIPPERTON ISLAND, 670 mi SW of MEXICO, is administratively part of the territory. TAHITI is the most important island, and the capital of the territory is PAPEETE on Tahiti. Some of the islands are volcanic, while others are coral atolls. The inhabitants are mainly Polynesian, and tropical fruits and copra are the main products.

European discovery of the island groups and individual islands extended over some 200 years, beginning with the Spanish Álvaro de Mendaña de Neira, who reached part of the Marquesas group in 1595, and Pedro Fernandes de Queirós, a Portuguese pilot in Spanish service, who reached the Tuamotu group in 1606. The Society Islands were discovered by an Englishman, Samuel Wallis, in 1767 but were claimed the next year by the French explorer, Louis de Bougainville. Captain James Cook named them the Society Islands in 1769 after the Royal Society that had sponsored his voyage. The Gambier and Tubuai islands were first visited by the British.

The French laid claim to, and annexed, the island groups between 1842 and 1881. In 1903 all the groups were placed under a single administration as French Oceania, or Établissements français de l'Océanie. In 1946 they were reorganized as an overseas territory and renamed French Polynesia. By a vote taken in 1957 the inhabitants chose to remain a part of the French Community with representation in the French parliament. Nuclear tests were carried out in the islands by France from 1966 to 1968. Many in the islands wanted more independence from France, and limited autonomy was awarded in 1984. In 2004, the territory became a French overseas territory. France granted French Polynesia more autonomy in most local affairs and regional relations, but has retained control of law enforcement, defense, and the money supply.

FRENCH SOMALILAND See DJIBOUTI

FRENCH SUDAN See MALI

FRENCH TERRITORY OF AFARS AND ISSAS See DJIBOUTI

FRENCH TOGO See TOGO

FRENCHTOWN See MONROE

FRENCH UNION (France)

A federation of France, its overseas departments and territories, and the associated states of INDOCHINA, MOROCCO, and TUNISIA, created by the French Constitution of 1946. By giving more autonomy to territories and protectorates, the French Union prepared a number of them for independence. It was thus a transitional stage in the development of France's colonial empire into the FRENCH COMMUNITY, which replaced the union in 1958.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA

A former federation of France's colonies in West Africa, now the states of BENIN, BURKINA FASO,

GUINEA, IVORY COAST, MALI, MAURITANIA, NIGER, and SENEGAL. Created in 1895, the federation ended in 1958 when Guinea voted for immediate independence, while the other constituent territories of French West Africa became autonomous members of the FRENCH COMMUNITY, gaining independence in 1960. See also FRANCE.

FRESNILLO [Spanish: Fresnillo de González Echeverría] (Mexico)

City in central ZACATECAS state, N central Mexico. Founded in 1554 by Francisco de Ibarra, conquistador of northern Mexico, Fresnillo has been an important mining center, especially for silver, since 1569.

FRESNILLO DE GONZÁLEZ ECHEVERRÍA See FRESNILLO

FRESNO (United States)

City in Fresno county, central CALIFORNIA, 185 mi SE of SAN FRANCISCO. It was founded in 1872 as a station on the Central Pacific Railroad and made the county seat in 1874. After the introduction of irrigation in the 1880s made the San Joaquin Valley a great agricultural center, Fresno became that region's processing, marketing, and shipping hub. Birthplace and boyhood home of William Saroyan, Fresno figures in many of that writer's stories.

FRÉTEVAL (France)

Village and battle site, Loire-et-Cher department, on the Loire River, 9 mi NE of VENDÔME. Here Richard I the Lionhearted of ENGLAND, recently released from captivity under the Emperor Henry VI, defeated his enemy Philippe-Auguste II of France in A.D. 1194 on one of his forays into France. Richard had gone on the Third Crusade with Philip, but their dynastic rivalries made them enemies.

FRETUM GALLICUM See DOVER, STRAIT OF

FRIAUL See FRIULI

FRIBOURG [German: Freiburg] (Switzerland)

City and capital of Fribourg canton, on the Saone River, 17 mi SW of BERN, W Switzerland. In a region settled by Helvetii in ancient times and conquered in the sixth century A.D. by Franks, the city of Fribourg was founded in 1157 to protect a river ford. While nominally controlled by various ruling houses, such as the Hapsburgs from 1277 to 1452, it extended its own control over the surrounding region. Having helped defeat Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY, the city and territory joined the Swiss Confederation in 1481. Fribourg, burial site of St. Peter Canisius, is the center of Swiss Catholicism.

FRIDTJOF NANSEN LAND See FRANZ JOSEF LAND

FRIEDLAND See PRAVDINSK

FRIEDLAND, BATTLE OF See PRAVDINSK

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN (Germany)

City in SE BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, SW Germany, on LAKE CONSTANCE. Here the ninth-century foundation of Buchhorn became a free imperial city in 1275 and passed to WÜRTTEMBERG in 1810. In 1811 it was united with the lands of Hofen monastery, founded in 1050, to form Friedrichshafen. In 1908 this became the site of the Zeppelin dirigible works. These were destroyed in World War II, during which Friedrichshafen was heavily bombed.

FRIENDLY ISLANDS See TONGA

FRIESCHE EILANDEN See FRISIAN ISLANDS

FRIESLAND [Vriesland] [ancient: Frisia] (Netherlands)

Northwesternmost province of the Netherlands, bounded on the W and N by the IJSELMEER and NORTH SEA. It was the homeland of the Frisians, a Germanic people known to the Romans and conquered by the Franks in the eighth century A.D. Frisia extended eastward to GERMANY's Weser River until 1454, when the eastern portion became the county of East Friesland. The western part, Friesland, was nominally a dependency of the counts of HOLLAND. It was claimed by the dukes of BURGUNDY after they acquired Holland in 1433, but not until 1523 did their heir, the Hapsburg Charles V, subdue the province. In 1579 Friesland joined the other Dutch provinces in the revolt that established the independent Netherlands. It still maintains a certain cultural separatism, preserving its own tongue, Frisian, the language most like English.

FRISIA See FRIESLAND

FRISIAN ISLANDS [Dutch: Friesche Eilanden]
(Denmark, the Netherlands, Germany)

Chain of islands in the NORTH SEA, off the coasts of Denmark, the Netherlands, and Germany. The West Frisians, one of three groupings, belong to the Netherlands. Texel is the largest and others are Vlieland, Terschelling, Ameland, and Rottum. A crucial battle in the English-Dutch Wars was fought off Texel on August 21, 1673, during which the Dutch, under the great Admiral De Ruyter, fought off an Anglo-French invasion force. The East Frisians are part of Germany and include Borkum and Norderney. The North Frisians belong partly to Germany and partly to Denmark. Sylt, the largest of the North Frisians, is connected to the German mainland by a causeway. Fortified in the early 1930s, it became a target for Allied bombers in World War II. Until 1864 Fohr was part of the Danish duchy of SCHLESWIG. Romo, off SW Denmark, was a whaling center in the 18th century and was held by PRUSSIA from 1864 to 1920. The islands raise livestock; they are fishery bases; and many are popular seaside resorts. Inhabited largely by Frisians, these people, including those on the mainland (see FRIESLAND), were in the Middle Ages industrious merchants, shipowners, fishermen, and famous makers of cloth.

FRIULI [ancient: Forum Julii; German: Friaul] (Italy and Slovenia)

Region S of AUSTRIA on the ADRIATIC SEA, now divided between Slovenia and the FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA region of NE Italy. Occupied by the Romans in the second century B.C. and the Lombards and Franks in the sixth and eighth centuries A.D., by 1000 Friuli was divided into the counties of GORIZIA in the E, acquired by Austria in 1500, and of Friuli in the W. The latter soon passed to the patriarchs of AQUILEIA, then to VENICE in 1420, Austria in 1815, and Italy in 1866. After World War I, in which the region was a battlefield, Italy acquired all of ancient Friuli, but had to cede the eastern part to YUGOSLAVIA after World War II. The remainder was combined with VENEZIA GIULIA as a region in 1947. In 1954 TRIESTE became its capital.

FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA See FRIULI

FRONT ROYAL (United States)

Town, seat of Warren County, N VIRGINIA, at the forks of the Shenandoah River, 20 mi S of WINCHESTER. Incorporated in 1788, Front Royal, home of Confederate spy Belle Boyd, saw the defeat of Union troops by Stonewall Jackson on May 23, 1862. The town, at the entrance to SHENANDOAH VALLEY National Park, began growing in the 1940s when the Skyline Drive along the Blue Ridge Mountains to the park was completed.

FROSCHWILLER See WÖRTH (France)

FROSINONE [ancient: Frusino] (Italy)

Town in LATIUM region, central Italy, 48 mi ESE of ROME. First a Volscian town, then a Roman colony, Frosinone has a number of ancient remains. But most of Frosinone is new, having been rebuilt after heavy damage in World War II.

FRUNZE See BISHKEK

FRUSINO See FROSINONE

FU-CHAU See FUZHOU

FU-CHIEN See FUJIAN

FU-CHOU See FUZHOU

FUENTE OBEJUNA [former: Fuenteovejuna] (Spain)

Town in Córdoba province, S Spain, 46 mi NW of CÓRDOVA. Granted in 1430 to the Knights of CALATRAVA, a Spanish military order, Fuente Obejuna preserves their seat, which was once a Moorish castle. The town, an agricultural and mining center, gave its name to a play by the Golden Age dramatist Lope de Vega. The work deals with a revolt by Fuente Obejuna against a tyrannical governor.

FUENTE OVEJUNA See FUENTE OBEJUNA

FUENTERRABÍA [Fontarabia] (Spain)

Town in Guipúzcoa province, N Spain, near the BAY OF BISCAY on the frontier with FRANCE. A border fortress since the Middle Ages, Fuenterrabia was often attacked by the French during wars with Spain, most notably in 1638, when the prince de Condé unsuccessfully besieged the town.

FUENTES DE OÑORO (Spain)

Village in Salamanca province near the border with PORTUGAL. It was the site on May 3 and 5, 1811, of battles between the French led by Marshal André Masséna and the British under the duke of Wellington. The British triumphed in these engagements, part of the Peninsular Campaign that eventually led to the invasion of FRANCE and the downfall of Napoleon.

FUERTE FEDERACIÓN See JUNIN

FUHKIEN See FUJIAN

FU-HSING-CHEN See SIMAO

FUJAIRAH See UNITED ARAB EMIRATES

FUJI, MOUNT [Japanese: Fuji-no-Yama, Fujisan, Fujiyama] (Japan)

Mountain near the Pacific coast in S central HONSHŪ, Japan, approximately 70 mi WSW of TOKYO. Honshū's highest mountain, a dormant volcano that last erupted in A.D. 1707 and a sacred place of pilgrimage for centuries, Mount Fuji has long been celebrated by Japan's poets and artists, notably Hokusai, whose prints depicting the mountain have influenced a number of Western artists.

FUJIAN [Fukian, Fuhkien Fu-Chien] (China)

Province in SE China, on the East China Sea and Taiwan Strait. Fujian, remnants of whose non-Chinese aborigines remain, had few Chinese settlers before the fourth century A.D. After coming under China's control in the fifth century, however, the province received many immigrants from northern China during hard times there. It has long been a center of maritime trade. Marco Polo recorded activity under Kublai Khan. Its capital, FUZHOU, was among the first treaty ports in 1842. Since the 17th century Fukien, overpopulated for its resources, has been a chief source of Chinese emigrants, particularly to Southeast Asia. Since 1950, the province, opposite TAIWAN, has been heavily militarized.

FUJI-NO-YAMA See FUJI, MOUNT

FUJISAN See FUJI, MOUNT

FUJIYAMA See FUJI, MOUNT

FUKIEN See FUJIAN

FUKUOKA [former: Hakata] (Japan)

City in N KYŪSHŪ, Japan, on Hakata Bay. Kyūshū's largest city commercial and cultural center, it has been an important port since ancient times, and one of Japan's chief sources of contact with CHINA and KOREA. Fukuoka was the site of two attempted Mongol invasions, in A.D. 1274 and 1281, that were repulsed with heavy fighting. The city was severely bombed in World War II. The city was damaged by an earthquake on March 20, 2005, on a previously unknown faultline.

FUKUYAMA See MATSUMAE

FULAH EMPIRE See FULANI EMPIRE, SOKOTO (Nigeria)

FULANI EMPIRE (Nigeria)

In the late 18th century a large and devoutly fundamentalist Muslim class of town-dwelling Fulani were active in trade and government throughout HAUSALAND, in what is now northern Nigeria. The increasingly slack adherence to Islamic ritual observed by the Hausa kings led a noted Fulani scholar and administrator named Usman Dan Fodio to criticize the Hausa king of his native Gobir. Exiled, he then proclaimed a jihad, or holy war, in 1804 and attracted widespread support against the king. Within four years all Hausaland had been conquered by the Fulani.

Other states to the S and SE were added to the emergent empire, which brought a unified system of Islamic law and government to an area stretching from the Atlantic Ocean to easternmost Hausaland. Active Fulani missionary work succeeded in making Islam the dominant religion of most of the region. In the early 20th century British colonial forces defeated the Fulani and incorporated their territory into the BRITISH EMPIRE.

FULDA (Germany)

City on the Fulda River, E HESSE, 54 mi NE of FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN. Founded as a monastery in A.D. 744 with the support of St. Boniface, who is buried here, Fulda was seat of the primate of Germany. It became an important ecclesiastical and cultural center in the Middle Ages. Its abbots, made princes of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE in the 12th century and prince-bishops in 1752, exercised great temporal rule until 1802, when the bishopric was secularized. The city that grew up around the abbey achieved self-government in the early 12th century. Assigned to HESSE-KASSEL in 1816, it passed to PRUSSIA in 1866. An agricultural market and manufacturing center, in World War II Fulda fell to U.S. troops on April 4, 1945.

FULGINIUM See FOLIGNOFULHAM See HAMMERSMITH, LondonFULTON [former: Volney] (United States)

City, Callaway county, central MISSOURI, 25 mi NNE of JEFFERSON CITY. Laid out as the county seat in 1825, Fulton is the site of Westminster College, where Winston Churchill delivered his "Iron Curtain" speech on March 5, 1946. In commemoration, the college reconstructed on its campus the London church of St. Mary the Virgin, Aldermanbury, designed by Christopher Wren in 1677, as the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library.

FULTON (United States)

City at the Falls of the Oswego River, approximately 11 mi S of LAKE ONTARIO and 24 mi NNW of SYRACUSE, in central NEW YORK State. Fulton was settled after the American Revolution at what had long been a point of portage on a strategic route. It began growing in the 1820s when the OSWEGO Canal linked it with Lake Ontario and the ERIE CANAL. The harnessing of the falls for power further stimulated Fulton's development as a manufacturing city.

FUNAFUTI (Tuvalu)

Chief atoll and capital of Tuvalu, formerly the Ellice Islands, in the W central Pacific. Discovered in 1819 and made part of the British colony of the Gilbert and Ellice Islands in 1915, in 1897 Funafuti was the scene of scientific experiments proving Darwin's theory of atoll formation. Occupied by U.S. forces in World War II, in 1975 Funafuti became the capital of the new state of Tuvalu.

FUNAN See CAMBODIAFUNCHAL (Portugal)

City, capital of Portugal's MADEIRA ISLANDS, on the SE coast of Madeira, approximately 650 mi SW of Lisbon. It was founded in 1421 by Madeira's discoverer, João Gonçalves Zarco, who is buried here. Funchal was held by the British during the Napoleonic Wars. The Madeiras' industrial and commercial center and a popular resort since the 19th century, thanks to improvements begun in the 1960s, Funchal has become increasingly important as a port of call.

FUNDI See FONDIFÜNEN See FYNFÜNFKIRCHEN See PÉCSFUNG See FUNJFUNJ [Fung] (Sudan)

Former kingdom of NE Africa, which ruled most of the N and E Sudan from the 16th to 19th centuries. The Funj were originally a Nilotic people of eastern Sudan who were converted to Islam. At its greatest extent the Funj kingdom, known as the Black Sultanate, extended across the GEZIRA region in E-central Sudan and Kordofan, a province of central Sudan. It reached as far S as FAZUGHLI near the Ethiopian border. SENNAR, approximately 150 mi SE of present KHARTOUM, was founded in 1504 as the Funj capital by the Sultan Amārḥ Dunqas. This marked the downfall of the ALWA kingdom. In attempting to expand northward, the Funj clashed with the Abdallabi dynasty, defeated it, and ruled as far as the Third Cataract of the NILE RIVER. In the 18th century the Funj conquered the Muslim state of Kordofan and defeated ETHIOPIA in 1744. There were, however, internal conflicts; and c. 1760 Sultan Bādi IV was overthrown, and the dynasty lost its power. In 1820–21, Mehmet Ali, pasha of EGYPT, invaded the Sudan and deposed the Funj sultan.

FURNES See VEURNE

FURNESS (England)

A district in NE England, formerly in LANCASHIRE, now in CUMBRIA county, stretching from Morecambe Bay and the Duddon River estuary N into the LAKE DISTRICT. Once the site of England's largest Cistercian monastery, Furness Abbey was originally founded by Benedictines in 1127. Furness, an iron-producing region, became heavily industrialized in the 19th century.

FUR SEAL ISLANDS See PRIBILOF ISLANDSFÜRSTENBERG, DUCHY OF (Germany)

Former land of a noble German family of Swabian origin, in the BLACK FOREST region of present SW Germany. The family took its name from its castle, which is S of the town of Donaueschingen. In the late 13th century the family styled itself counts of Fürstenberg and in 1664 became princes of the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE. In the 18th century Prince Joseph Wilhelm Ernst improved the governmental organization of the family lands. However, the Furstenbergs lost their political independence in 1806 when the CONFEDERATION OF THE RHINE was founded. The famous Furstenberg library includes 500 items of incunabula (pre-1500 printing).

FÜRSTENWALDE (Germany)

City on the Spree River, E Germany, 24 mi ESE of BERLIN. Founded by the margraves of BRANDENBURG, Fürstenwalde was chartered in A.D. 1285. It was the seat of the bishops of Lebus from 1385 to 1571. A center of heavy industry, the city was severely bombed in World War II.

FÜRTH (Germany)

City on the Regnitz River, BAVARIA, S Germany, 5 mi NW of NUREMBERG, with which it forms a metropolitan area. Founded in the eighth century A.D. as part of FRANCONIA, Fürth rose to prominence in the 14th century when Jews denied entrance to Nuremberg settled here and made it a center of trade and handicrafts. Headquarters for Gustavus Adolphus, who fought an inconclusive battle with Wallenstein here in 1632, Fürth was largely destroyed in the Thirty Years' War. It passed to Bavaria in 1806. The city was linked to Nuremberg by the first German railroad in 1835 and became an important rail and industrial center. The site of airplane factories in World War II, it was heavily bombed.

AL FURŪT See EUPHRATES RIVERFUSAN See BUSANFUSHIH See YENANFUSHUN (China)

City in SE MANCHURIA, NE China, 25 mi E of SHENYANG. Made a frontier customs post in the eighth century A.D., Fushun is China's leading coal producer. Its deposits, worked since the 12th century, were taken over and their modern development begun by the Russians in 1902. Passing under Japanese control in 1905, Fushun was returned to China after World War II. It is now a center of metal, chemical, and coal production.

FÜSSEN (Germany)

Town on the Lech River in S BAVARIA, S Germany, on the border with AUSTRIA. On the site of a Roman frontier station, Füssen grew up around a monastery founded in A.D. 628. It was chartered c. 1295. On April 22, 1745, the treaty marking Bavaria's withdrawal from the War of the Austrian Succession was signed here. A manufacturing town, it is also a tourist center, noted for its castles.

FUSTĀT See CAIROFUZHOU [Foochow, Fu-Chau, Fu-chou] [former: Minhow] (China)

City, FUJIAN province, SE China, on the Min River upstream from its mouth at the N end of the Taiwan Strait. The area was settled in the second century B.C. Fuzhou was among the first Chinese ports opened to foreigners by the Treaty of NANJING in 1842. By 1850 it was China's chief port and the world's leading tea exporter, but it declined as the tea trade slackened and the river silted. Held by the Japanese during World War II, since 1949 Fuzhou has revived greatly as an educational and commercial center and, somewhat, as a port.

FYN [German: Fünen] (Denmark)

Second largest of Denmark's islands, in the BALTIC SEA W of SJAELLAND and E of the lower JUTLAND Peninsula. Long a stronghold of the Danish aristocracy, Fyn is noted not only for its many castles and manor houses, but also for its important archaeological remains, particularly Stone Age and Viking burial sites.

FYRKAT (Denmark)

Ruins of a Viking fort or encampment built c. A.D. 1000 in NE Denmark, near Hobro, in JUTLAND. Vikings, probably under Sweyn I Forkbeard, king of Denmark (c. 985–1014) and father of Canute the Great, sallied from such encampments to raid England. The fort was surrounded by moated circular ramparts enclosing 16 barrack-type buildings. A fjord close by gave the Vikings ready access to the sea. Three other huge Danish forts, built on a similar plan, are known. Such organization allowed the Danes to win England and explained, in part, the battle successes of the Vikings elsewhere as well. See also SLAGELSE.

FYZABAD (Afghanistan) See FAIZABAD (Afghanistan)

FYZABAD (India) See FAIZABAD (India)

G

GABERONES See GABORONE

GABÈS [ancient: Tacape; Tunisian: Qabis] (Tunisia)

Town, at the head of the Gulf of Gabès, 200 mi S of TUNIS, on the site of the Roman Tacape. It was briefly held by the Normans in the 12th century. Built in an oasis of date palms at the head of the shat, or salt lake, country, it is a former military base for southern Tunisia. It was integral in the scheme of Commandant Roudaire in the second half of the 19th century to create a sea in the SAHARA DESERT by making a channel from the Mediterranean Sea to the shat. Gabès was taken by the Allies in March 1943, after bypassing the MARETH LINE.

GABII (Italy)

Ancient city of LATIUM, approximately 13 mi E of ROME, on the Via Praenestina, early known as the Via Gabina. Important in the early history of Rome, the city withstood a siege by the Etruscan Tarquins but was taken by Tarquinius Superbus (534–510 B.C.) through a ruse. The town lost any importance with the rise of the ROMAN EMPIRE. The baths were well known, and Hadrian was a liberal patron; he also built a senate house and an aqueduct. Many remains from Gabii were moved to the Villa Borghese in Rome and were taken from there by Napoleon I for the Louvre in PARIS. Legend says that Romulus, one of the legendary founders of Rome, was reared here. Much of the stone used to build ancient Rome was quarried near this site. The ruins of the temple of Juno Gabina are here.

GABLONZ See JABLONEC NAD NISOU

GABLONZ AN DER NEISSE See JABLONEC NAD NISOU

GABON [Gabun] [French: République gabonaise]

African republic, on the equator, bordered to the W by the Atlantic Ocean, and clockwise by EQUATORIAL GUINEA and CAMEROON to the N and the CONGO REPUBLIC to the E and S. The coastline of Gabon was first explored by PORTUGAL in the 15th century, but the equatorial jungle made the interior an unreachable and unattractive prospect for colonization. In the middle of the 19th century FRANCE began to expand its colonial dominion in the region and founded LIBREVILLE, the capital, in 1849. In 1890 Gabon was officially incorporated into the French Congo. Twenty years later it became a distinct colony of FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA.

The French exploited the tropical hardwoods of Gabon, but the country became more famous for the medical mission at LAMBARÉNÉ founded by the Swiss doctor Albert Schweitzer in 1913. In 1958 Gabon became a republic and a member of the FRENCH COMMUNITY and in 1960 achieved full independence. Gabon was spared the poverty and disruption that have plagued many of the newly emerging African nations; the discovery of immense deposits of manganese, iron ore, uranium, and oil has enriched it. Gabon's explorations for these and the continued profitable export of tropical hardwoods has made the country economically robust. It has the highest per capita income in Africa due to its rich oil reserves and low population. Omar Bongo has held power since 1968, although opposition parties have been legal in the country since 1990.

GABORONE [former: Gaberones] (Botswana)

Capital city, approximately 180 mi NW of PRETORIA, South Africa. Founded c. 1890 by Gaborone Matlapin, a black African chief, in 1965 Gaborone replaced MAFEKING, as the capital of Bechuanaland Protectorate. It remained the capital when Botswana, formerly Bechuanaland, became independent in 1966.

GABROVO See SHIPKA PASS

GABUN See GABON

GADÀMES See GHUDAMIS

GADARA [Arabic: Umm Kais, Umm Qays] (Jordan)

Ancient town of the Syrian DECAPOLIS, 50 mi N of AMMAN, and political center of the district of Gadaris. It was a Hellenistic city; its earliest recorded event is its capture by Antiochus III of SYRIA in 218 B.C. Circa 200 B.C. it was besieged for 10 months by Alexander Jannaeus. It was later restored by Pompey and in 30 B.C. was presented by Augustus to Herod the Great. On Herod's death, Gadara was reunited with Syria. Today there exist the remains of some fine tombs with carved sarcophagi, two theaters, a temple, and bath houses, excavated in the modern city.

GADES See CÁDIZ

GADIER See CÁDIZ

GADIR See CÁDIZ

GADSDEN PURCHASE (United States)

A tract of land 29,640 sq mi, S of the Gila River in what is now NEW MEXICO and ARIZONA. Negotiated in 1853 by James Gadsden, a railroad promoter and U.S. minister to MEXICO, the purchase cost $10 million, and it assured the United States of a good southern railroad route to the Pacific coast. Gadsden negotiated the treaty of sale with Santa Anna, the Mexican president, and it was approved by Congress on June 30, 1854. Opposition to the sale within Mexico was one of the reasons for Santa Anna's banishment in 1855.

GAETULIA

Ancient region in North Africa extending as far as the NIGER RIVER and the Ethiopian frontier. Considered by ROME a part of the ROMAN EMPIRE, for Roman writers Gaetulia comprised the wandering tribes of the southern slopes of Mt Aures and the Atlas Mts. Its people belonged to the Numidian or Berber group. During the Jugurthine War of 111 to 106 B.C., they fought with Jugurtha against Rome, then a short time later allied with Caesar against Juba I. In 25 B.C. Augustus gave part of Gaetulia to Juba II to help control its turbulent tribes.

GAFSA See QAFSAH

GAILLAC (France)

Town on the right bank of the Tarn River, 15 mi W of ALBI, on the route to TOULOUSE. Gaillac grew up around the Benedictine abbey of St. Michel, founded in the 10th century. There are some interesting Renaissance houses in the town, particularly the Maison Yversen, notable for the rich carving of its doors.

GAINES'S MILL See COLD HARBOR

GAINESVILLE (United States)

City in N FLORIDA, and county seat of Alachua county, 65 mi SW of JACKSONVILLE, in the heart of the former Seminole Indian country. It is the seat of the University of Florida, founded at Lake City in 1905 and removed to Gainesville in 1906.

GALÁPAGOS ISLANDS [Tortoise Islands] [Spanish: Archipelago de Colón] (Ecuador)

Island group, in the Pacific Ocean, 650 mi W of Ecuador. These 15 islands, known to pirates as the Enchanted Isles, are noted for their remarkable varieties of wildlife, particularly their giant turtles. Discovered in 1535 by explorers from SPAIN, they were taken by Ecuador in 1832. The fictional Robinson Crusoe is said to have visited the islands. In 1835 Charles Darwin, on the voyage on the British ship Beagle, made observations of their wildlife that were to form the basis of his On the Origin of the Species. The islands served as a U.S. naval base to protect the Panama Canal during World War II from 1942 and were returned to Ecuador in 1946. The islands were made an Ecuadorian national park in 1959. The islands are recognized as a world treasure, in 1978 as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, in 1985 as a World Biosphere Reserve, in 1990 as a whole sanctuary, and in 2001, the Biosphere Reserve, in 1990 as a whole sanctuary, and in 2001, the Biosphere Reserve was expanded to the surrounding ocean.

GALATI See GALATZ

GALATIA (Turkey)

Region around Ankara, once called PHRYGIA. The area was named for the Gauls, called Galatai by the Greeks, after they crossed into Asia from Europe in 278 B.C. Attalus, king of the Greek city of PERGAMUM, defeated the Gauls in 239 B.C., forcing them into eastern Phrygia, from which they raided Greek cities until their defeat by the Romans in 189 B.C. Emperor Augustus made Galatia a Roman province in 25 B.C., with its capital city at Ancyra, now ANKARA. The Apostle Paul twice visited the Christians here, and addressed his Epistle to the Galatians to them.

GALATINA (Italy)

Town, on the Salentine Peninsula, 10 mi S of LECCE, in Lecce province, APULIA region. The town was a Byzantine colony during the Middle Ages and retained its Greek-speaking culture into early modern times. It is the site of the remarkable Franciscan church of Santa Caterina d'Alessandria, begun in 1384 by Raimondello del Balzo Orsini and completed in 1460. A fine mausoleum and some outstanding interior frescoes, painted by Francesco d'Arezzo in 1435, make this church a place of special interest.

GALATZ [former: Galati] (Romania)

City on the left bank of the DANUBE RIVER, 115 mi NE of BUCHAREST. From 1856 to 1945 it served as the headquarters for the international commission for the control of the Danube River, although the commission's functions were disrupted by World War II. There are many old Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholic churches, the most interesting of which is the 17th-century cathedral of St. George that houses the tomb of the famous Cossack chief Mazeppa.

GALENA [former: Fever River, La Pointe] (United States)

Town in ILLINOIS, 165 mi WNW of CHICAGO. Originally a trading post called Fever River after Le Fèvre, a French trader who settled near the Galena River mouth, Galena was incorporated as a town in 1835. It was the home of the Civil War general and later president, Ulysses S. Grant. In 1838 a theater was opened here by Joseph Jefferson, father of the American actor of the same name.

GALESBURG (United States)

Town, 160 mi SW of CHICAGO, in a rich farming region of ILLINOIS. Galesburg and its Knox College were founded in 1837 by a group of settlers from ONEIDA, NEW YORK State. It is important in American political history as the site of the fifth Lincoln-Douglas debate, held at Knox College in 1858. The poet Carl Sandburg was born here in 1878.

GALICIA [German: Galizien; Polish: Halicz; Russian:

Gallich, Galitsiya] (Poland, Ukraine)

Region in central Europe, consisting of the W of the Ukraine and Poland. An area of approximately 32,300 sq mi, its major cities are KRACÓW and LVIV. More than half the people in the eastern region are Ruthenians, with Poles inhabiting the western part. Galicia was an independent principality by 1175 but was absorbed by the principality of VOLHYNIA by 1230. It fell to the khanate of the GOLDEN HORDE in 1241–42 but was not permanently conquered. It became part of Poland by 1360, and fell to AUSTRIA at the time of the first division of Poland in 1772. It then became part of the AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRE and gained some control over its internal affairs with the establishment of Austria-Hungary in 1867. After World War II the USSR took control of eastern Galicia and Poland of western Galicia.

GALICIA [ancient: Gallaecia] (Spain)

Former kingdom in NW region of Spain, encompassing the provinces of La Coruña, Lugo, Orense, and Pontevedra. Galicia was first occupied by Rome in 137–36 B.C. and subjugated by the Romans during the time of Augustus (31 B.C.–A.D. 14). SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA is the medieval capital and site of the magnificent cathedral named for the apostle St. James, whose grave was reputedly found here. The present church was begun in 1075 and completed by 1122. In the Middle Ages it was, and is still, a great pilgrimage goal. In 734 Galicia was occupied by the Moors, who were driven out by Alfonso I of ASTURIAS in 739. From 1072, when it was reannexed by Alfonso VI of CASTILE, it remained part of either the kingdom of Castile or of LEÓN. Its coasts were ravaged by the Normans in the ninth and 10th centuries.

GALILEE (Israel)

Region in N Israel, bounded on the E by the JORDAN RIVER and on the S by the Plain of ESDRAELON. It was the chief scene of the ministry of Jesus of NAZARETH, often called the Galilean. In the first century B.C. it was a Roman province divided into Upper and Lower Galilee. It formed a tetrarchy under the Herodian dynasty. Its ancient capital was SEPPHORIS, its Roman capital TIBERIAS. The important town of Nazareth became the main center of Judaism in PALESTINE after the destruction of JERUSALEM in A.D. 70. The area also held large Christian communities that survived through the Middle Ages and into the modern period. The Crusader castle of BELVOIR is here. At the battlefield of HATTIN, Saladin destroyed the Crusader army in 1187 and ended the LATIN KINGDOM OF JERUSALEM. Zionist colonization of the area began in the late 19th century. Israel gained full control of the region after the 1948 war. SYRIA shelled the area intermittently until Israel captured the GOLAN HEIGHTS above the region in 1967. Israel invaded LEBANON in 1979 and fought to create a buffer zone in S Lebanon. The Israelis withdrew in 2000.

GALILEE, SEA OF [Bahr Tabarija, Lake Kinneret, Lake Tiberias] [biblical: Chinnesaret, Sea of Chinnereth] (Israel)

Freshwater lake, 14 mi long and 8 mi wide, 700 ft below sea level, in NE Israel. The Syrian border follows part of its eastern shore. Rich in biblical associations, the lake today is the archaeological site of the ancient cities of MAGDALA, CAPERNAUM, and the lost city of Bethsaida.

GALITA See YALTA

GALITSIYA See GALICIA

GALIZIEN See GALICIA

GALLAECIA See GALICIA (Spain)

GALLE [French: Point de Galle] (Sri Lanka)

Port city on the Indian Ocean, on the SW coast, 55 mi SE of COLOMBO. Famous by 100 B.C. as a trading center for the Chinese and Arabs, it was occupied by the Portuguese in A.D. 1597 and taken by the Dutch in 1643. There are many old Buddhist monasteries in the city, as well as an old church and fort dating from the Dutch East Indies settlement in 1687. Galle's importance as a port was eclipsed by the opening of the SUEZ CANAL in 1869 and the subsequent construction of a breakwater at Colombo.

GALLIA See FRANCE, GAUL

GALLIA CISALPINA See CISALPINE GAUL

GALLIA CITERIOR See CISALPINE GAUL

GALLIA NARBONENSIS See NARBONENSIS

GALLICH See GALICIA

GALLIPOLI [Greek: Callipolis, Kallipolis; Latin: Anxa] (Italy)

Port and episcopal see in Lecce province, APULIA region, on the Gulf of Taranto, 21 mi SW of LECCE. The town was taken from the BYZANTINE EMPIRE by the Normans in 1071. Heavily fortified and protected by a castle built by Charles I of ANJOU, king of NAPLES from 1266 to 1285, it was sacked by VENICE in 1484. The modern town is located on a rocky island connected by a bridge to the mainland. A handsome cathedral dates from 1629. Gallipoli became a part of Italy when Apulia joined the kingdom in 1861. Parts of the Byzantine fortress survive in the fabric of the castle.

GALLIPOLI [ancient: Callipolis; Turkish: Gelibolu] (Turkey)

Port and city, at the NW extremity of the DARDANELLES, 132 mi WSW of ISTANBUL, and 90 mi S of ADRIANOPLE. The modern town is uninteresting, but there are many fine Roman and Byzantine ruins, including the magazine of Emperor Justinian (483–565) and a square castle and tower attributed to Bayezid I (1389–1403). As the key to the Dardanelles in the Crimean War, it was occupied by the British and French armies in 1854. It was also the site of the World War I Allied campaign in 1915 to try to gain control of the Dardanelles; but failure brought Allied withdrawal in January 1916.

GALLIPOLI PENINSULA [Greek: Chersonesus Thracia] (Turkey)

Long narrow point of land on the DARDANELLES, important because of its strategic position on the waterway leading from the MEDITERRANEAN SEA to the BLACK SEA. The peninsula saw action during the Crimean War, from 1854 to 1856. In World War I British, Australian, French, and New Zealand troops unsuccessfully attacked the Turkish Dardanelles forts in this area in 1915–16. The military disaster resulted in Winston Churchill's dismissal as first lord of the Admiralty, as well as the cashiering of officers responsible such as General Ian Hamilton who directed the land operations. The losses at Gallipoli are memorialized in AUSTRALIA and NEW ZEALAND on Anzac Day (April 25). One of the Turkish commanders, Kemel Atatürk, became father of the modern Turkish state after the war.

GALLOWAY [ancient: Novantia] (Scotland)

District in DUMFRIES AND GALLOWAY region, 70 mi S of GLASGOW. Britons lived in Galloway until the Anglo-Saxons overran the area in the seventh century A.D. Invaders from IRELAND settled here in the ninth century and gave the country its name, which means "country of the Gael." It became a permanent part of Scotland in the 12th century, under Alexander II. The earldom of Galloway was established in 1623 and held by the Stuarts.

GALLUP (United States)

Town in NEW MEXICO, 135 mi W of ALBUQUERQUE. Called the Indian capital, it is the trading center of the southwestern tribes and is surrounded by the Navajo (Dineh), Zuni, and Hopi reservations. The ancient ruins of Hawikuh, one of the legendary Seven Cities of CIBOLA, visited by Coronado in 1540, lie S of Gallup. An intertribal Indian ceremony is held here each August.

GALVESTON (United States)

Port city in TEXAS, 48 mi SSE of HOUSTON, and 2 mi off the coast on the eastern end of Galveston Island. Named for Count Bernardo de Gálvez, viceroy of MEXICO in 1785, Galveston served as a naval base during the Texan revolt against Mexico in 1835. It was the temporary capital of the REPUBLIC OF TEXAS before and after the Battle of SAN JACINTO in 1836. It was occupied briefly by Union troops in 1862. It is now one of the main ports of Texas. The hurricane of 1900 was the worst natural disaster in U.S. history during which 8,000 people lost their lives—6,000 on Galveston island and 2,000 around Galveston Bay.

GALWAY [Gailliah] (Ireland)

Port, town, and county seat in W Ireland, approximately 120 mi W of DUBLIN, on the N shore of Galway Bay. It has an old section of narrow streets and buildings in the Spanish style, which derive from Galway's extensive trade with SPAIN, beginning in the late Middle Ages. It was incorporated in the late 14th century by Richard II of England. The town was taken by Parliamentary forces in 1651 and by William III in 1691 after the Battle of AUGHRIM. The 14th-century church of St. Nicholas and the Tudor Gothic building that houses University College are notable.

GALWAY (Ireland)

County in W Ireland formed in 1579. According to popular tradition, in 1588 part of the Spanish Armada was wrecked on its coast, leaving survivors who settled in the area. In reality most of the castaways were slaughtered by order of Queen Elizabeth I. The event, however, has given rise to the tradition of the "Black Irish," descendants of these Spanish visitors. The decisive battle of the English Glorious Revolution was fought at AUGHRIM in 1691. Ruins of encampments, monastic buildings, and ancient castles of Anglo-Norman settlers abound in the area. Of particular interest are an unusual round castle between Gort and Kilmacdaugh and the church at CLONFERT with its fine Romanesque doorway.

GAMAROON See BANDAR ABBASGAMBIA [The Gambia]

The smallest independent country in Africa, extending 180 mi inland along the Gambia River, and constituting an enclave in SENEGAL. From the 13th to the 15th centuries, it was part of the MALI EMPIRE. Portuguese explorers reached the region in 1455, and the English won trading rights from the Portuguese in 1588. The English maintained a weak hold until the 17th century, when they founded settlements for trade. British claims to the region were recognized in the Treaty of Versailles of 1783, and in 1816 Great Britain established Bathurst as a base against the slave trade. Gambia remained under British protection until it achieved self-government in 1963 and independence in 1965. It became a republic in 1970, with its capital city at Bathurst, now BANJUL. Gambia became well known as the ancestral home of author Alex Haley in his book Roots. In 1981, a coup was put down with assistance from Senegal. In 1982, Gambia and Senegal formed a confederation of SENEGAMBIA that lasted until its dissolution in 1989. In 1994, the military took over the government in a coup led by Yahya Jammeh, who was elected in 1996 and 2002 in elections without the participation of opposing parties.

GAMBIER ISLANDS (France)

Island group in the South Pacific, near the SE end of the TUAMOTU ARCHIPELAGO. Discovered in 1797 by British captain Henry Wilson, the islands were claimed by France in 1844 and annexed by it in 1881. Today they form part of FRENCH POLYNESIA, with the capital of Rikitea located on the main island of Mangareva. French nuclear tests have been carried out on certain atolls of the group.

GAMLAKARLEBY See KOKKOLA

GAMRU See BANDAR ABBAS

GAN See GHANA EMPIRE

GAND See GHENT

GANDER (Canada)

Site of an international airport in NEWFOUNDLAND. Built by the British government in 1939, it was the chief take-off point in World War II for aircraft being sent from the UNITED STATES and Canada for the offensive against GERMANY.

GANDERSHEIM (Germany)

Town, 48 mi SW of BRUNSWICK, noted for the abbey of Gandersheim, established in A.D. 856 by Duke Ludolf of SAXONY. His daughters were the first abbesses and were granted a privilege whereby the position would continue within the ducal family of Saxony. After some controversy within the church hierarchy, the abbey was ultimately declared as holding directly to the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, with the abbess having a vote in the imperial diet. Protestantism was introduced in 1568, and Protestant abbesses were appointed. The 10th-century Latin poet and dramatist Hroswitha was a member of the abbey. She is famed for her classical style, based on Terence, but made to serve Christian moral purposes.

GANDHARA (Pakistan)

Border area astride the middle INDUS RIVER. Originally belonging to ancient PERSIA, it was reached in 327 B.C. by Alexander the Great of MACEDON. It passed to Chandragupta, founder of the MAURYA EMPIRE, in the late fourth century B.C. and was converted to Buddhism under Asoka in the third century B.C. It was part of Hellenistic BACTRIA from the third to the first centuries B.C. From the first to third centuries A.D. it had a noted school of Buddhist sculpture, incorporating Buddhist styles with those of Greco Roman art. This art flourished until the fifth-century conquest of the area by the White Huns.

GANDÍA (Spain)

Port town, 38 mi SSE of VALENCIA. A Jesuit college founded by San Francisco de Borgia in the 16th century is housed in the palace of the Borgias, later of ITALY, who were the dukes of Gandía. Also of interest are a Gothic church and other buildings.

GANDJA See GANJA

GANDZHA See GANJA

GANGA See GANGES RIVER

GANG-DI-SU See KAILAS

GANGES RIVER [Hindi and Sanskrit: Ganga]
(Bangladesh, India)

River, approximately 1,500 mi long, flowing from the Himalayas to the Bay of Bengal. Its agriculturally rich plain is the core of HINDUSTĀN, from which the great Hindu Indian civilizations, ranging from the third-century B.C. MAURYA EMPIRE to the 16th-century A.D. MOGUL EMPIRE, have sprung. The Ganges has always been the most sacred river for Hindus. Upwards of several hundred thousand Hindus may be seen immersing themselves in the holy water at any one of several locations—ALLAHABAD, VARANASI, or HARDWAR—at a time. Hindus also frequently set their dead adrift down the river, feeling that this is the most direct route to heaven.

GANGRA See CANKIRI

GANG RIMPOSHE See KAILAS

GANGS-RI TI-SE See KAILAS

GANGTOK See SIKKIM

GANJA [1934–1993: Kirovabad, originally and 1920–1934: Gandja, Gandzha; 1813–1920: Elisavetpol, Yelizavetpol] (Azerbaijan)

City in W Azerbaijan 110 mi SE of TBILISI. Founded nearby in the sixth century and moved after an earthquake in 1139, it prospered in trade, particularly textiles and wine, but fell to the Mongols in 1231. Capital of the khanate of Gandzha, it was taken in 1804 by the Russians, who defeated the Persians here in 1826. The Persian poet Nizami was born and lived here in the 12th century. The city contains his tomb and a 17th-century mosque. In 1988, a pogrom against the Armenian population of the city occurred as a result of rumors of anti-Azeri activity in Karabakh. See also PERSIA.

GANSU [Kansu, Kan-su] (China)

Province forming a long wedge between NINGXIA HUIZU on the N and QINGHAI on the S. Serving as a corridor for the SILK ROAD to TURKISTAN, INDIA, and PERSIA, it was long isolated from the center of Chinese power and traditionally independent of most governments. The ancient kingdom of WEI held it for several centuries. Kubla Khan controlled it during the 13th century, and it was part of SHAANXI under the Mings from 1368 to 1644. It was devastated by earthquake in 1920 and by famine from 1929 to 1930. See also LANZHOU.

GANZHOU [Kanchow] [former: Kanhsien, Kan-Chou] (China)

Town in SW JIANGXI province 200 mi NNE of GUANGZHOU. A U.S. air base in World War II, it was taken by the Japanese in 1945 and recaptured by the Chinese later that year.

GAO See MALI EMPIRE

GAOCHANG [Khocho, Kao-Ch'ang] [modern: Karakhoja, Kara Khoja] (China)

City approximately 105 mi SW of URUMCHI, the capital of XINJIANG province. It was capital of a stable and prosperous UIGUR Kingdom from c. 850 to A.D. 1250. Many buildings, wall paintings, and manuscripts in various languages have been preserved here because of the region's dry climate.

GAP [ancient: Vapincum] (France)

Town, 96 mi NNE of MARSEILLES. Founded by Emperor Augustus in 14 B.C., it served as the capital of medieval Gapençais and was annexed by the French Crown in 1512. It was sacked by the Huguenots in 1567 and 1577 during the French Wars of Religion. A 17th-century cathedral and a sculptured tomb by Jacob Richier, done in 1613, are of interest.

GAPENÇAIS See GAP

GARDAIA See GHARDAĪA

GARDA, LAKE [Italian: Lago di Garda] (Italy)

Lake, in E LOMBARDY, with its E shore on the VENETO region boundary. Numerous remains of buildings from Roman and medieval periods make this an area of historic as well as scenic interest. SIRMIONE (Sirmio) on the lake was the home of Catullus, the Roman poet, who celebrated its beauties. Also on the lake are Saló, capital of Mussolini's short-lived republic after his deposition by the Italians, Toscolano-Maderno and Riva, both Roman colonies, and the medieval centers of Gargnano and Bardolino, which gives its name to the famous wine. Garda itself has remains from Celtic, Roman, and Lombard periods.

GARDAR See IGALIKO

GARDINAS See GRODNO

GARDINERS ISLAND (United States)

Island in Gardiner's Bay, an inlet of LONG ISLAND SOUND, NEW YORK State, approximately 115 mi E of NEW YORK CITY, and NW of Montauk Point. Bought by Lion Gardiner in 1639, it was the first permanent settlement by the English in New York State. The island remains the private property of the Gardiner family.

GARHWAL [Gurhwal] (India)

Mountainous district in N UTTAR PRADESH of N India, originally comprised of 52 petty chieftainships. They were reduced to a single political entity c. 1450 by Ajai Pal, the chief who founded the Garhwal kingdom.

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN (Germany)

Picturesque town and international resort, 50 mi SW of MUNICH, in the Bavarian Alps. It was the site of the 1936 Winter Olympics. Reputedly a last retreat for Nazi leaders, it fell to the Allies on April 30, 1945.

GARONNE RIVER [Spanish: Rio Garona] (France)

River, mostly in SW France, approximately 357 mi long. The Garonne rises on the slopes of the PYRENEES in Spain and flows northwesterly. Approximately 14 miles N of BORDEAUX it is joined by the DORDOGNE River, and the two form the Gironde estuary. Bordeaux and TOULOUSE are the most important cities on the river. In its lower course the river flows through the famous Bordeaux vineyard region, and the wine trade is the most important aspect of the city's commercial life. Toulouse was especially important in the Middle Ages. The Canal du Midi, starting at Toulouse, connects the Garonne with the MEDITERRANEAN SEA to the E.

GARSDON See MALMESBURYGARY (United States)

City in INDIANA, on the S shore of LAKE MICHIGAN 30 mi SE of CHICAGO. One of the most important steel centers in the world, it is named after Judge Elbert H. Gary, founder and chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation. Gary was planned in 1905 and built by that company.

GASCOGNE See GASCONYGASCONY [former: Wasconia; French: Gascogne; Latin: Vasconia] (France)

Region in SW France, originally a part of AQUITAIN, bounded on the N by Guienne, E by Languedoc, SE by Foix, S by the PYRENEES Mts and W by the Atlantic Ocean. Settled in the sixth century A.D. by Basques or Vascones, a Spanish people who crossed the Pyrenees and invaded Roman territory, the region was named VASCONIA and eventually recognized the sovereignty of the Merovingian Frankish kings. Charlemagne fought against the Gascons, and they submitted in 819. The Carolingians then established Frankish dukedoms of Gascony. Until the 11th century Gascony was still loosely attached to Aquitaine. By that time the original kingdom of Aquitaine began to split into several smaller units, of which the duchy of Gascony was one. By 950 it had been absorbed by the counts of POITIERS. In 1151 Eleanor of Aquitaine married Henry of ANJOU, who became Henry II of ENGLAND. The English house of Plantagenet was thus introduced to Gascony, since it was a fief held from the king of France by the king of England. Both the English and French fortified its borders with a series of bastides, strongholds and trading centers, that survive today. Between 1294 and 1303 the two countries waged an indecisive war along its borders, which led to the Hundred Years' War in 1337 when King Philip of France declared the title of King Edward III of England to the region invalid. It was a major battlefield during the Hundred Years' War. In 1451 the final stages of the war saw the retreat of the English. See also FRANKISH EMPIRE.

GASPÉ PENINSULA (Canada)

Mountainous SE part of the province of QUEBEC, extending approximately 150 mi E into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, NE of QUEBEC CITY. Jacques Cartier landed on the peninsula in 1534. It has many colorful fishing villages along 450 miles of coastline and is noted as a tourist area.

GASTEIN See BAD GASTEINGATCHINA [former: Krasnogvardeisk, Trotskoye] (Russia)

Town, 25 mi SSW of ST. PETERSBURG. It developed around the imperial palace built between 1766 and 1781 and was used as a summer residence by Paul I in the 18th century. It was favored as a summer residence by the czars in the 19th century as well. The palace has been partially restored from World War II damage and now serves as a museum.

GATH (Israel)

Ancient royal city of the Philistines on the borders of JUDAH, 12 mi E of ASHDOD. It was the birthplace of Goliath, the residence of the Anakim, and a place of refuge for David in his outlaw years. Later, King David had a bodyguard of Gittites, who had come from Gath. See PHILISTIA.

GAUGAMELA (Iraq)

Village, 18 mi NE of the site of NINEVEH, and 32 mi W of Arbela, now ERBIL. It was the scene of the battle in which Alexander the Great of MACEDON defeated PERSIA under Darius III in 331 B.C. The battle has also been called the Battle of Arbela.

GAUHATI [Gauhati] (India)

Town on the BRAHMAPUTRA RIVER, in NW ASSAM, 335 mi NE of CALCUTTA. It was ceded to the British in 1826 and served as the seat of the British administration for Assam from 1826 to 1874. It is identified with Pragjyoushapura, capital of King Bhavadatta, who is mentioned in the Sanskrit epic, the Mahabharata. The temple of Kamakhya and an island in the Brahmaputra River are places of Hindu pilgrimage. The town was overrun by Muslims in the 17th century. See GUWAHATI.

GAUL [ancient: Gallia] (Belgium, France, Germany)

Region of western Europe inhabited from c. 1850 B.C. by the Celto-Ligurians, and beginning c. 1200 B.C. by the Urnfield Celts, by 560 B.C. by the HALLSTATT Celts, and by 400 B.C. by the LA TÈNE Celts, or the Gauls, from which the ancient region drew its name. These Gauls were a Celtic people whose language formed part of the group that includes modern Gaelic, Welsh, and Breton. The Gauls suddenly appeared all over the ancient world, crossing the ALPS into ITALY between 410 and 390 B.C. and sacking ROME. They also appeared in GREECE and in ASIA MINOR in 278 B.C., where they established the kingdom of GALATIA. Their main center, however, remained northwestern Europe, where they held sway into the first century B.C.

The Gauls formed a loose confederation of tribes, focused on ceremonial and religious centers called oppida, walled towns similar to Mediterranean cities. Their religious leaders were priests called Druids, who worshiped gods of the oak forest and sky and exercised great influence. Legends of the Druidic fairies and elves survive today. By the third century B.C. the Romans had conquered the Gauls in northern Italy and had formed the province of Gallia Cisalpina, or Gaul-this-side-of-the-Alps. Between 58 and 52 B.C. the Romans under Julius Caesar moved N from their province of Gallia NARBONENSIS, in modern PROVENCE, and conquered all of Gaul. According to Caesar's Gallic Wars this was until then divided into three parts: the areas of the Belgae of the N, the Aquitani of the W, and the Celtae of central and NW Gaul. Caesar's conquest was consolidated in 52 B.C. with his defeat of Vercingetorix at ALESIA.

Roman Gaul was re-formed into several provinces: Gallia Narbonensis; AQUITANIA S of the LOIRE RIVER; LUGDUNENSIS, stretching from LYONS on the RHÔNE RIVER to BRITTANY and the ENGLISH CHANNEL; and Belgica, modern northern France and the Low Countries W of the RHINE RIVER. The native Gauls were gradually won over by Roman law and religion and by the attractions of the new Roman towns, each a miniature of the amenities of the classical city. It remained a rich agricultural region, a source of soldiers, and a cultural center for the ROMAN EMPIRE for centuries. In A.D. 258 Marcus Cassius Latinus Postumus took advantage of the anarchy of the empire and broke Gaul away in order to establish the province's defenses against the barbarians to the N and E. The revolt was short-lived, and in the fourth century Gaul was united into the diocese of Gaul within the larger prefecture of Gaul, one of the four divisions of the Roman Empire. During the barbarian invasions of the fifth and sixth centuries, Gaul was divided into the VISIGOTHIC KINGDOM in the SW, the territories of the Burgundians in the SE, the Alemanni in the E around the upper Rhine, and the Franks around the lower Rhine. Following the collapse of Roman rule, the chief ancient cities—Lyons, TRIER, and METZ in the NE, AUTUN in BURGUNDY, and VIENNE and NARBONNE in the S—fell into nearly total eclipse. With the rise of the Franks and the FRANKISH EMPIRE by the ninth century A.D., Gaul had begun to evolve into modern France. Many French names and words reflect their Gallic origin, while French itself is a direct descendant of the speech of Gaul's Roman centuries.

GAUNT See GHENT

GAUR (India)

Ruined city of WEST BENGAL state, an ancient Hindu capital of BENGAL. It was captured c. A.D. 1200 by Muslims and remained a Muslim cultural center until its abandonment in the late 16th century. In 1537–38 the city was besieged and burned by the Afghan ruler Sher Khan. The Kadam Rasul mosque, erected in 1530 over relics supposedly belonging to Muhammad, is still a place of worship. Best preserved are the Bara Sona mosque and the finely embellished Golden mosque.

GAUTENG (South Africa)

Province created in 1994 out of the central part of TRANSVAAL. The capital and largest city is JOHANNESBURG.

GAYA (India)

City in BIHAR state, NE India, 57 mi S of PATNA. There are numerous Hindu temples, the most important being the temple of Vishnupad, Sanskrit for Vishnu's footstep. BODH GAYA, the site of Buddha's enlightenment and one of the most sacred of Buddhist places, is located approximately six miles south of Gaya.

GAZA [Arabic: Ghazzah, Ghazze, Ghuzzeh] (Palestine)

Port and commercial and administrative center for the Palestinian GAZA STRIP, approximately 50 mi SW of JERUSALEM. The modern city, originally founded by Herod the Great, was from 1917 to 1948 part of Palestine under the British Mandate and from 1949 to 1967 under Egypt except for a brief Israeli occupation in 1956–57. Since 1967 it has been occupied by Israel but has many camps for Palestinian refugees run by the United Nations.

The location of ancient Gaza is disputed. It was an Egyptian military post and one of the cities of PHILISTIA. According to the Bible, it was here that Samson brought down the temple. It was taken by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. and was prominent in the wars of the Maccabees.

AL-GAZALA [Ei Gazala] (Libya)

Village in Derna province, on the MEDITERRANEAN SEA, W of TOBRUK. An Axis supply point during World War II, it formed part of the British defense line during the first half of 1942 after the Allied invasion of North Africa.

GAZA STRIP (Palestine)

The Gaza Strip is a narrow strip of land on the Mediterranean coast NE of the SINAI Peninsula. After the 1948 Arab-Israeli War it was occupied by EGYPT. In the Six-Day War of 1967, ISRAEL occupied the territory. The strip was a center for Palestinian unrest with its dense population, many of whom continued to live in permanent refugee camps. In 1987, the Intifada uprisings began, bringing a renewed cycle of violence between the people of Gaza and Israeli authorities. In 1993 Israel and the PLO signed an agreement providing for joint recognition and for limited Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip. The strip, together with parts of the WEST BANK, is run by the Palestinian Authority, but inclusions of Israeli settlements are controlled by Israeli authorities. In February 2005 the Israeli government voted to withdraw Israel's presence from the Gaza Strip during the summer of 2005, including dismantling all the Israeli settlements and removing all Israeli settlers from the strip. The government still faces significant opposition to the plan.

GDAŃSK [French: Dantzig; German: Danzig] (Poland)

City, prominent port on the BALTIC SEA, and capital of Gdańsk province, on the Gulf of Danzig, just W of the mouth of the VISTULA RIVER. Founded by Slavs c. A.D. 925, it was known under its present Polish name from the late 10th century. It became the seat of the dukes of POMERANIA, then Pomerelia, in the 13th century, before passing to the Teutonic Order in 1309. Following the arrival of merchants from GERMANY in the mid-14th century, Gdańsk became a member of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE and during the later Middle Ages was one of the league's four chief commercial ports, dominating Poland's foreign trade. With the corruption and decline of the league, and following a revolt in western PRUSSIA in 1466, it became an independent city under the guidance of the Polish crown. Fiercely proud of its independent status, it withstood a siege attempt by Stephen Báthory in 1576, thereby preserving its municipal independence against full domination by the Polish Crown.

Intense suffering and the city's decline accompanied the wars of the 17th and 18th centuries, beginning with the Thirty Years' War and continuing through the War of the Polish Succession. During the latter, Gdańsk provided protection for King Stanislaus, but after a courageous defense it fell to RUSSIA and SAXONY in 1734. With the first partition of Poland in 1772, Gdańsk became a free city. With the second partition in 1793, it passed to PRUSSIA. With Napoleon's advance to the E, it regained its status as a free city in 1807. But with his defeat in 1814, Gdańsk passed again to Prussia, was renamed Danzig, and was made the provincial capital of West Prussia.

At the conclusion of World War I the Treaty of Versailles restored its status as a free city with its own legislature. But to provide a seaport for Poland, it was made part of a customs territory under the jurisdiction of a high commissioner designated by the League of Nations. However, with the erosion of the League's authority after 1935, it came under the control of Nazi Germany. Ultimately, Hitler's call for the return of Gdańsk to Germany was a principal excuse for the German attack on Poland and a cause of the outbreak of World War II. Danzig was annexed to Germany as the Hanseatic City of Danzig on September 1, 1939, but a small Polish garrison resisted the Germans until September 7. It was retaken by the Soviet army early in 1945. Soon after, the Allies returned it to Poland, and its original name was restored. It has been largely rebuilt after almost total destruction in World War II. With neighboring Gdynia, it is now one of the world's principal shipbuilding centers.

In late 1970 rioting by workers here led to the fall of Polish premier Gomulka. Serious food shortages and labor discontent led to further actions in 1980, most notably a strike at Gdańsk's Lenin shipyards that led to the formation of the Solidarity Labor Union led by Lech Walesa, movements to reform the Polish economy and political system, and the breakup of the union and the imposition of martial law, after a Solidarity congress here in December 1981 called for a national vote of no confidence in the present government. Gdańsk remains a symbol of the Polish nation's desire for self-determination. The city's landmark Gothic church of St. Mary, one of the largest Protestant churches in existence, dates from 1343 and is built entirely of brick. The Golden Gate, the Gothic town hall, and the restored Renaissance Długa Street are all noteworthy.

GDYNIA See GDAŃSK

GEBAL See BYBLOS

GEBEL-AL TARIK See GIBRALTAR

GEDDA See JIDDA

GEDI See MALINDI (Kenya)

GEDROSIA (Iran; Pakistan)

Ancient country of SW Asia, a province of PERSIA and of the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE N of the Arabian Sea, and W of INDIA. The country was known for the hardships suffered by Alexander's army in 325–24 B.C. as it crossed the desert area on its return from India.

GEHENNA See HINNOM

GELA [former: Terranova di Sicilia] (Italy)

City on the S coast of SICILY, 30 mi SSE of CALTANISSETTA. Founded in 688 B.C. by Greek colonists from CRETE and RHODES, it attained its greatest prosperity in the fifth century B.C. under the tyrants Hippocrates and Gelon. It was sacked by CARTHAGE in 405 B.C. and destroyed again in 282 B.C. by Mamertine mercenaries. Emperor Frederick II founded the modern city in A.D. 1230. Until 1927 it was known as Terranova di Sicilia. Excavations begun in 1901 uncovered the Greek wall of Gela and two temples. In 1943 it was a landing point for the Allied invasion of Sicily.

GELDER See GELDERLAND

GELDERLAND [Guelderland] [former: Gelder, Gelre] (Netherlands)

Province in E central Netherlands bordering on GERMANY. Established as a duchy in 1339, it was conquered by Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY in 1473. The duchy regained its independence in 1477 after Charles's death, but in 1543 it joined the house of Hapsburg of AUSTRIA. In 1579 it joined the Union of UTRECHT of the Netherlands against SPAIN. In 1715 part of Gelderland was ceded by the Netherlands to PRUSSIA and was divided permanently between the Netherlands and Prussia in 1815. The capital city of ARNHEM was the scene of a major battle during World War II.

GELIBOLU See GALLIPOLI

GELRE See GELDERLAND

GEMINA AAMLET See JUMILLA

GEMINALET See JUMILLA

GEMINA URBANORUM See OSUNA

GENABUM See ORLÉANSGENADENDAL (South Africa)

Town in Western CAPE Province, 68 mi E of CAPE-TOWN. The site of a Moravian mission station founded in 1737, it is the oldest town in the republic.

GENEVA [French: Genève; German: Genf; Italian: Ginevra] (Switzerland)

A pivotal city of Europe; capital of Geneva canton, at the SW end of LAKE GENEVA and divided by the RHÔNE RIVER, which flows E to W through the city. One of the smallest of the country's cantons and proud of its long independence, Geneva became part of the Swiss Confederation only after the Congress of VIENNA in 1815.

Originally settled by the Celtic Allobroges, it was conquered by ROME and remained part of Roman GAUL until A.D. 440, when it passed to the Burgundians. Taken by the Franks in A.D. 534, it remained under their control until the ninth century when it was conquered by Transjurane BURGUNDY. It then passed to the German or HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, and in 1124 Conrad II named the bishops of Geneva rulers of the city. This action aroused the antagonism of the merchants, who in 1285 placed themselves under the counts, later dukes, of SAVOY. The Savoyards threatened the city's independence until the 16th century brought an alliance with BERN and FRIBOURG. The year 1536 saw the arrival of John Calvin. With Calvin's establishment of a theocratic state in 1541 and the founding of his Academy in 1559, Geneva became the intellectual center of Protestant Europe. It also became a city of refuge for persecuted Protestants, mainly Huguenots from France. It achieved its highest point as an intellectual center in the 18th century, when Voltaire resided here and J. J. Rousseau emerged as a talented native son. The international spirit here, which began with its role in the Protestant movement, evolved during the 19th century, resulting in the Geneva Convention in 1864, which established the International Red Cross. It was the seat of the League of Nations from 1920 to 1946, when the League buildings were taken over by the United Nations. They presently form the United Nation's European headquarters, as well as the international headquarters for the International Labor Organization (ILO), the World Health Organization (WHO), the European Atomic Energy Agency (Euratom), and other international organizations. The city continues as the locus of numerous international conferences.

Historic buildings include the 12th- to 14th-century cathedral of St. Pierre, where John Knox once preached, a 16th-century town hall, and an 18th-century palace of justice. John Calvin's noted Academy became the University of Geneva in 1873.

GENEVA, LAKE [ancient: Lemannus, Lemanus; French: Lac Léman] (Switzerland)

Principal lake in the SW, on the French-Swiss border, between the ALPS and the JURA MOUNTAINS. Traversed from E to W by the RHÔNE RIVER, which reemerges at GENEVA, it is known for the beauty of its color and situation and has long attracted artists and writers to its shores. Its principal cities, apart from Geneva, include MONTREUX and LAUSANNE. The latter once provided a home to Voltaire, Rousseau, and Gibbon. The Château de Chillon at Montreux served as a prison between 1530 and 1536 for François de Bonnavard, the illustrious principal in Lord Byron's poem, The Prisoner of Chillon. Montreux was also the site of the signing of the 1936 international Straits Convention with TURKEY.

GENÈVE See GENEVAGENF See GENEVAGENNESARET See GALILEE, SEA OFGENOA [ancient: Genua; Italian: Genova] (Italy)

Port and city, 71 mi SSW of MILAN, at the head of the Gulf of Genoa, in Genoa province, Liguria region. Excavations on the site have revealed evidence of trade between the native Ligurians and the Phoenicians and Greeks as early as the sixth century B.C. The city was first mentioned by the Romans in 218 B.C. as the trading center of LIGURIA. It was destroyed by CARTHAGE in 205 B.C. but was rebuilt by the Roman praetor Cassius soon after.

With the collapse of the ROMAN EMPIRE the city was captured by the Burgundians in A.D. 539 and by the Lombards in 641. During the early Middle Ages the city freed itself from local lords and became a leading maritime city of northern Italy, carrying on trade in the western Mediterranean and rivalling AMALFI to the south. The city was an ally of PISA in defeating the Muslims in the waters around Italy, in the conquest of SARDINIA from them between 1016 and 1022, in the taking of CORSICA, and in attacks on Muslim North Africa in the late 11th century. By the late Middle Ages Genoa held a monopoly of trade with the BLACK SEA and Central Asia via CONSTANTINOPLE, and its colony at Tana in the CRIMEA. It was apparently from Tana that the Black Death was imported to Europe in 1347.

Genoa was also a major crusading power and contributed men, money, and ships, especially to the Third Crusade and the conquest of ACRE and other ports in the LEVANT. In the late 14th century, however, its fortunes began to wane. ARAGON took Sardinia from it, and in the War of Chioggia of 1378 to 1381 it lost its long struggle with VENICE for control of the trade to the Levant.

As a medieval republic, Genoa was ruled by elected consuls until 1191, when power was given to mayors and then to Captains of the People who attempted to quell party strife between 1258 and 1340. In that year Genoa elected its first doge, Simone Boccanegra, and thereafter gave power to a series of great families, including the Doria and the Spinola. Genoa fell under French rule from 1396 to 1409, then to MONTFERRAT from 1409 to 1413, the Visconti of Milan from 1421 to 1435, the Sforza of Milan from 1466 to 1499, and to FRANCE again during the Italian Wars between 1499 and 1512. Andrea Doria established an autocratic principate from 1528. King Louis XIV of France took the city in 1684, and from 1734 it was ruled by AUSTRIA until an uprising reestablished the republic. In 1768 CORSICA revolted from the city and was sold to France.

In 1796 Napoleon entered the city and the next year set up the LIGURIAN REPUBLIC, which was incorporated into France in 1805. In 1814–15 at the end of the Napoleonic Wars, it was given to the kingdom of SARDINIA and thus to PIEDMONT. Through the fortunes of Piedmont it soon became a center of the Italian Risorgimento and thus a part of modern Italy. The city suffered heavy damage from bombing and naval shelling in World War II.

The city retains many of its historic monuments, including the old harbor, the Palazzo San Giorgio, the palace of the captains, and from 1408 its central bank, the 16th-century cathedral of San Lorenzo, the church of San Ambrogio, the Palazzo Doria, and the university, founded in 1471. Genoa was the birthplace of Christopher Columbus in 1447, of two popes, of the statesman Giuseppe Mazzini in 1805, and of the musician Nicolo Paganini in 1784.

GENOVA See GENOA

GENT See GHENT

GENUA See GENOA

GENZAN See WÖNSAN

GEOK-TEPE See CENTRAL ASIA

GEORGE, LAKE [French: Lac du St. Sacrement] (United States)

Glacial lake, approximately 200 mi N of NEW YORK CITY in the foothills of the Adirondack Mts, NEW YORK STATE. Discovered by 1646 by Isaac Jogues, a French Jesuit priest who originally named it, the lake was renamed in 1755 for George II, king of GREAT BRITAIN, by British colonial leader Sir William Johnson. The lake served as a major north-south route for both Indians and colonists. It was the scene of many battles during the French and Indian War of 1756 to 1763 and during the American Revolution in 1775–76. At the southern end are the ruins of Fort George and FORT WILLIAM HENRY, and at the northern end stands FORT TICONDEROGA, now a national monument. Fort George and the lake are the setting for James Fenimore Cooper's The Last of the Mohicans.

GEORGETOWN [Dutch: Stabroek] (Guyana)

Capital city of Guyana, approximately 600 mi ESE of CARACAS, VENEZUELA, at the mouth of the Demerara River. Founded by the British in 1781, it was called Stabroek during the Dutch occupation, which began in 1784. During this period the older colonies of Essequibo and Demerara were combined. It was renamed Georgetown in 1812 after the British reoccupied the colony during the Napoleonic Wars. The city has lily-covered canals reminiscent of the Dutch period and is the site of one of the finest tropical botanical gardens in the world.

GEORGE TOWN (Malaysia) See PENANG ISLAND

GEORGETOWN (United States)

A historic residential district, now part of WASHINGTON, D.C., Georgetown was first settled in 1665. Incorporated in 1789, it was at first the site of slave quarters and of small tradesmen. The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal extends from here 185 miles to Cumberland, Maryland, along the Potomac Valley. The district was annexed to Washington in 1878. Much of it had become an area of rooming houses and slums until the late 1950s when it saw one of the first “gentrification” processes in the United States. It is still the site of many historic and picturesque old houses and a favored residential area, and is now a national historic district. It is also the home of Georgetown University.

GEORGIA (United States)

The last of the 13 American colonies to be founded, it is in the SE, bordered by the Atlantic Ocean, by SOUTH CAROLINA on the NE, by NORTH CAROLINA on the N, and on the S by FLORIDA. ALABAMA is to the W and TENNESSEE to the NW. Georgia was the first southern state and the fourth overall to ratify the Constitution, in January 1788. The southern half is a low coastal plain, the north is mountainous, and the middle section is a plateau. ATLANTA is the capital.

Before the arrival of Europeans, Creek and Cherokee Indians inhabited the area. Hernando de Soto of SPAIN passed through here in 1540, and the Spanish later established missions and garrisons on the SEA ISLANDS. When Charles II of England made a grant to the proprietors of CAROLINA that included Georgia, the Spanish protested, and the two countries contested the area for nearly a century. Wanting a buffer between South Carolina and Spanish Florida, George II, for whom the colony was named, gave a charter in 1732 to a group headed by the philanthropist James E. Oglethorpe. Oglethorpe saw Georgia as a place to give debtors a new start in life. Accordingly, he arrived with the first group in February 1733 to found SAVANNAH.

Slavery was prohibited, but this and other restrictions hindered Georgia’s ruling class and in 1752 it was turned over to the Crown and began to show profits. In the American Revolution the populace was about evenly divided between Loyalists and Patriots. The British captured Savannah in December 1778 and within a year held all the important towns. After the Revolution, the Yazoo Land Fraud of 1795–96 involved the state legislature in lawsuits, claims, and counterclaims that were settled in 1802, when Georgia ceded the land W of the Chattahoochee River, comprising most of Alabama and MISSISSIPPI, to the government. In the 1830s, in spite of a ruling by the Supreme Court, Georgians harassed the Cherokees and in 1838 forced them to move W.

The invention of the cotton gin in 1793 spurred cotton cultivation, and by the 1840s there was substantial textile manufacturing here. When the Civil War came, Georgia seceded in January 1861 and was spared much warfare. Then in May 1864 General William T. Sherman began his March to the Sea from northern Georgia. In early September Atlanta fell and was burned down in November, after which Sherman’s army destroyed everything in its 60-mile-wide path as it marched on to capture Savannah in December. After the war Georgia refused to ratify the 14th amendment and was put under military rule. Radical Republicans ran the government, but in 1870 Georgia was finally readmitted to the Union. The breakup of the plantation system as a result of the war, the destruction caused by the war, and the economic troubles of tenant farming and sharecropping set the state back economically, but by the 1880s textile production began to expand. Times were bad again after World War I as a result of the destruction of cotton by the boll weevil and by soil exhaustion.

The early 1940s brought racial conflict as blacks sought equality and met with white resistance, but in 1946 blacks voted in the Democratic primary for the first time. The federal ruling against segregated schools in 1954 was fought bitterly, but the struggle ended in 1961, and integration began. There were, however, racial disorders in Augusta in May 1970. Georgia’s economy has long shown a struggle between old ways and modernization. The importance of cotton has declined, but the value of manufacturing, new farm products, and forest products has increased. Georgia and its capital, Atlanta, are also centers of the Sun Belt, a new region of rapid economic growth in light industry that continues to attract investment and population from the N. Atlanta is the largest city and has been the capital since 1868, succeeding MILLEDGEVILLE. Other cities include ALBANY, AUGUSTA, COLUMBUS, MACON, and Savannah.

GEORGIA, REPUBLIC OF [Georgian: Sakartvelo; Russian: Gruzija] [formerly: Georgian Soviet Socialist Republic]

One of the 15 republics of the Soviet Union, now an independent republic in the CAUCASUS MTS S of RUSSIA, on the SE coast of the BLACK SEA. It contains the ancient kingdoms of COLCHIS and IBERIA, which were part of the kingdom of PONTUS from c. 110 B.C. to 64 B.C. when it was taken by Pompey. The region was converted to Christianity in the fourth century A.D.

The eastern part became Persian c. 555, and in the eighth century it was conquered by the Muslims. It was reunited with the western part in the 11th century and was then under successive Armenian (in the late ninth century) and (after 1071), Turkish control. The kingdom of Georgia reemerged c. 1090 and allied with the Crusader states. It retained its autonomy under and against the Persians until absorbed by the OTTOMAN EMPIRE by 1600. It sought Russian protection in the early 19th century. Georgia was declared an independent republic in 1918; it established a Soviet government in 1921 and became a republic of the Soviet Union in 1936. An extensive literary tradition began in the 12th and 13th centuries under Queen Tamar.

Georgia became an independent republic in 1991 after the fall of the Soviet Union with Zviad Gamsakhurdia as the first president. Gamsakhurdia was deposed in 1992, and replaced by former Soviet foreign minister Eduard Shevardnadze. A rebellion in W Georgia led by Gamsakhurdia was put down with the help of RUSSIA. In 1993, the autonomous Republic of ABKHAZIA revolted and achieved de facto independence. Shevardnadze was reelected in 1995 and 2000, but international observers reported voter fraud in the latter election. After parliamentary elections in 2003 were seen to be fraudulent, the "Rose Revolution" deposed Shevardnadze, and opposition leader Mikhail Saakashvili was elected president. Under Saakashvili, Georgia established firmer control after limited fighting in the provinces of ADJARIA and South OSSETIA. Relations have also been strained with the Russians over support of Georgian separatist groups, but the nations have cooperated on actions against Chechen separatists on the border. See also CAUCASIA, PERSIA.

GEORGIAN MILITARY ROAD See ORDZHONIKIDZE

GERA (Germany)

City in THURINGIA in SE Germany, 35 mi SSW of LEIPZIG. It was first mentioned in A.D. 995 and was chartered in the early 13th century. In 1547 Gera became part of the principality of MEISSEN, and in 1562 it passed to the Reuss family, which held it until 1918. A notable structure here is the Osterstein Palace, built between 1686 and 1735. There is also an 18th century town hall.

GERAARDSBERGEN [French: Gramont] (Belgium)

Town in E FLANDERS province, approximately 25 mi from GHENT. The charter granted to this town in 1068 is called the Magna Carta of Flanders. The town has a noteworthy 15th-century Gothic town hall.

GERASA [Gerash, Jarosh, Jerash] (Jordan)

Ancient city of the DECAPOLIS, 22 mi N of AMMAN. Probably the best-preserved Palestinian city of Roman times, according to the historian Josephus it was captured in 83 B.C. by Alexander Jannaeus, king of the Hasmonean dynasty. Rebuilt by the Romans in A.D. 65, it was twice destroyed thereafter but was a flourishing city in the second and third centuries. Roman ruins include a long, colonnaded street, great and small theaters, a triumphal arch and many temples. Its importance in the development of early Christianity is indicated by the presence of several churches of the period.

GERASH See GERASA

GERGOVIA See GERGOVIE

GERGOVIE [ancient: Gergovia] (France)

Ancient settlement of the Gallic Averni, in the Puy de Dôme department, S of CLERMONT-FERRAND. In 52 B.C. the Averni, whose name survives in the Auvergne region, repulsed Julius Caesar's forces under the leadership of Vercingetorix. They were later subdued by Caesar at ALESIA and their leader imprisoned and executed in ROME.

GERIZIM [Arabic: Jabal at Tur] (Palestine)

Mountain in the Samaritan Hills of the Palestinian WEST BANK, 25 mi N of JERUSALEM. It was sacred to the Samaritans, a Jewish sect whose tradition held that Abraham's offer to sacrifice Isaac took place here. In 128 B.C. a 300-year-old Samaritan temple on the mountain was destroyed by the Jewish Maccabean leader, John Hyrcanus. The region was occupied by Israel in 1967. See SABASTIYAH, SAMARIA.

GERMAN CONFEDERATION (Austria; Germany)

From 1815 to 1866 a union of states existed in central and eastern Europe, created at the Congress of Vienna in 1815 to replace the old HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE, which had disintegrated during the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars. It comprised 35 monarchies and four free cities and was dominated by the Austrian statesman Count Metternich until the Austro-Prussian War of 1866 led to its dissolution and the establishment of the NORTH GERMAN CONFEDERATION under the domination of PRUSSIA. See GERMANY.

GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC [East Germany] (Germany)

A republic of central Europe from 1949 through 1990, it lay between the FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY (West Germany) on the W, POLAND to the E, the former CZECHOSLOVAKIA to the S, and the BALTIC SEA to the N. Politically part of the communist Eastern bloc, it was created in 1949 out of the Soviet zone of occupation in GERMANY, including the regions of MECKLENBURG, Western POMERANIA, BRANDENBURG, SAXONY, and THURINGIA. With its capital at East BERLIN, it transformed itself after World War II from a chiefly agricultural country into one of the most important industrial nations of the Warsaw Pact. In 1950 a treaty was signed with Poland recognizing the Oder-Neisse line as East Germany's permanent eastern boundary. However, under communism, East Germany failed to match the economic prosperity attained by neighboring West Germany, and for many years illegal emigration W posed a serious problem to the authorities until the building of the Berlin Wall in 1961. Rioting against food shortages in 1953 was only suppressed after the forcible intervention of the Soviet Union.

Under Walter Ulbricht, East Germany joined the Warsaw Pact and played down the more obvious aspects of Soviet occupation. A certain prosperity came with the 1960s and continued into the 1970s and 1980s. Normal relations with West Germany were concluded in 1973, and both it and the West entered the United Nations as separate states. The East German constitution, ratified in 1974, omitted any reference to eventual German reunification. East Germany remained a Soviet puppet in its foreign policy and continued to restrict access to West Berlin. Under chairman Erich Honecker, however, East Germany again opened the possibility of German reunification and eased travel restrictions to the West. The opening of the Hungarian border to Austria in August, 1989 allowed more than 13,000 East Germans to escape to the West. Chairman Honecker resigned in October 1989 to be replaced by Egon Krenz. On November 7th, it was announced that all travel restrictions were lifted, and thousands of East Berliners passed through the gates of the Berlin Wall. An agreement was reached in February of 1990 for German reunification, and on October 3, 1990, Germany again became a unified country.

The ELBE and the ODER were the chief rivers of East Germany. Major cities of East Germany included Berlin, LEIPZIG, Karl-Marx-Stadt (now CHEMNITZ), DRESDEN, MAGDEBURG, HALLE, and ROSTOCK.

GERMAN EAST AFRICA See RUANDA-URUNDI, TANGANYIKA, TANZANIA

GERMAN EMPIRE

Former empire of central Europe, it stretched from ALSACE and LORRAINE to EAST PRUSSIA and from the ALPS to DENMARK. It was created after the defeat of FRANCE in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870–71 and with the coronation of Wilhelm I as emperor in VERSAILLES. Dominated by PRUSSIA, the empire was guided until 1890 by Chancellor Otto von Bismarck and underwent extensive industrialization in the latter half of the 19th century.

In the 1890s the empire acquired colonial territory in Africa and elsewhere and developed commercial and maritime interests that conflicted with those of GREAT BRITAIN. The early 20th century saw a succession of international crises, which caused the countries of Europe to polarize into the Triple Alliance (AUSTRIA, ITALY, GERMANY) and the Triple Entente (RUSSIA, France, Great Britain). The climax of this situation was World War I of 1914 to 1918, in which Germany was defeated and the empire replaced by the smaller WEIMAR Republic of Germany.

GERMAN FLATS See HERKIMER

GERMANIA

Ancient region in central Europe, N of the DANUBE RIVER and E of the RHINE RIVER. The name was applied to lands that were not conquered by the ROMAN EMPIRE. Germanic tribes began to expand S and W, at the expense of the Celts, in the second century B.C., but in the first century B.C. and the first century A.D. the Romans were able to confine them to this region. When the Romans conquered GAUL, W of the Rhine, they included in it Germania Superior (Upper Germany) and Germania Inferior (Lower Germany). Germania Superior took in the upper Rhine, the FRANCHE-COMTÉ, ALSACE, and western SWITZERLAND; Germania Inferior was comprised of the southern NETHERLANDS, eastern BELGIUM, and the Rhineland. They were administered separately from Gaul.

GERMANICOPOLIS See CANKIRI

GERMANÍKEIA-CAESARA See MARAS

GERMANIKEÏA-MARASÍON See MARAS

GERMAN NEW GUINEA See NEW GUINEA, PAPUA NEW GUINEA

GERMAN OCEAN See NORTH SEA

GERMAN SOUTH-WEST AFRICA See NAMIBIA

GERMANTOWN (United States)

Historic district and American Revolutionary battle site in PENNSYLVANIA, now a residential section of PHILADELPHIA. It was settled by Dutch and German immigrants in 1683 and became one of the earliest printing and publishing centers in the country. During the British occupation of Philadelphia by General William Howe in the American Revolution, Germantown was unsuccessfully attacked by Washington on October 4, 1777, before he moved his army to VALLEY FORGE for the winter. Howe House and several colonial inns and churches still stand; Germantown Avenue is a national historic landmark.

GERMAN VOLGA REPUBLIC See VOLGA GERMAN ASSR

GERMANY [German: Deutsches Reich, Deutschland]

Country of central Europe, stretching roughly from the RHINE RIVER on the W to the ODER RIVER on the E, with the BALTIC SEA and DENMARK to the N, FRANCE to the W, the NETHERLANDS, BELGIUM, and LUXEMBOURG to the NW, SWITZERLAND to the S, AUSTRIA and the CZECH REPUBLIC to the SE, and POLAND to the E. It was divided politically between 1949 and 1990 into the FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY (West Germany) and the GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC (East Germany). Germany has been a unified modern state only since the 19th century. Its history is largely that of the many independent cities and states that existed prior to German unification in 1871. Nevertheless the contribution of the Germans to Western civilization, especially in music, literature, science, philosophy, and the visual arts, has been considerable.

By the first century B.C. Germany was inhabited by the Teutons of Scandinavia in the N, by the Celts in the S, and by the Slavs and Balts in the E. Their forest life, customs, and institutions were described by Tacitus in his Germania and by Caesar in the Gallic Wars. By the first century A.D. these groups had formed into several distinct peoples: the Burgundians, Goths, and Gepids in the N and E; the Sennones and Hermanduri in the center; and the Marcomanni and Quadi in the S. Only the southwestern part of modern Germany was included in the ROMAN EMPIRE, in the provinces of GERMANIA. During the late empire period the northern peoples were pushed S by the Frisians, Saxons, Franks, and Alemanni in the W and by the Lombards and Burgundians in the E. By the fourth century A.D. the Thuringians had occupied central Germany.

In the fifth and sixth centuries A.D. these peoples began moving W, pushed out by other barbarians to the E, in the great Movement of Peoples known as the Barbarian Invasions. The Germans overran much of the western Roman Empire, while western Germany itself was occupied by the Franks from the lower Rhine. By c. 560 the Franks had occupied all of Germany except for the regions of the Frisians and the Saxons. Under Charlemagne (742–814) the Carolingian or FRANKISH EMPIRE pushed E to the ELBE RIVER and subdued the Saxons brutally, converting the region to Christianity by force. On the death of Charles's son, Louis the Pious, in 840 his lands were divided between his sons. By the Treaty of VERDUN in 843 the Frankish Empire was split into the kingdom of the West Franks, or France; the middle kingdom of LOTHARINGIA; and the kingdom of the East Franks. This division was confirmed by the Treaty of MERSEN in 870. Although what emerged in the E as Germany remained united under a king, the local dukes of the original tribes still held the real power. From these peoples emerged the Stem (Stamm-tribe) duchies of SAXONY, LORRAINE, FRANCONIA, SWABIA, and BAVARIA. On these, and on the later acquisitions of BURGUNDY and BOHEMIA, the power of the German kings rested.

The last Carolingian king died in 911, and the dukes in Germany eventually elected the duke of Saxony their king. This Saxon or Ottonian dynasty extended two basic principles: the elective nature of German kingship and its reliance on the Stem duchies for power. The Saxons ruled from 919 to 1002. They checked the advance of the barbarian Magyars at the Battle of LECHFELD in 955, extended their power over the Slavs to the E with a series of forts or burgs, and built the power of the monarchy. With the crowning of Otto I in 962 the medieval or German Empire was born. Otto extended German power to ITALY and thus laid the groundwork for the HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Saxon kings and emperors were replaced by the Salian dukes of Swabia. The dynasty ruled from 1024 to 1125 and brought the medieval empire to its height. Henry III (1039–56) was the first German emperor to succeed without having to suppress a major ducal revolt. His dynasty was one of church reformers, patrons of the arts, and strong rulers who based the imperial government on the ecclesiastical princes—the bishops and abbots who held huge fiefs—and on a new class of lower nobility or commoners, the ministeriales, who owed everything to the kings. The Salians also built up their territorial holdings, adding Poland, Bohemia, and HUNGARY to their fiefs and securing rule over Burgundy and Italy. In 1034 the first use of the term Roman Empire appears in German documents. The Salians' desire for reform, however, brought them into conflict with the papacy, itself bent on reform and freedom. The cataclysmic struggle between the emperors and popes, known as the Investiture Conflict, dated from 1075 and brought anarchy to Germany as the pope deposed the emperor and encouraged rebellion. The struggle, personified in Emperor Henry IV (1056–1106) and Pope Gregory VII (1073–85) ended in compromise, with the Concordat of WORMS in 1122. By its end, however, Italy and Burgundy had become largely independent, and civil war raged.

In 1125 Conrad II Hohenstaufen, duke of Swabia, was elected emperor. The Hohenstaufen dynasty, which lasted until 1254, brought an even more exalted idea of kingship and government to Germany. Under Frederick I Barbarossa (1152–1190) Roman law became standard, and at the Diet of BESANCON in 1157 Frederick first called his realm the Holy Roman Empire. Frederick's Waibling family, however, was soon opposed in civil war by the Welfs of Bavaria and Saxony. Frederick was also opposed by the cities and the churchmen in both Germany and in Italy, where the papacy allied with the Welfs or Guelfs against the imperial Waiblings or Ghibellines. Frederick's campaigns in Italy were opposed by the LOMBARD LEAGUE, which defeated him at LEGNANO in 1176. By the Peace of CONSTANCE in 1183 the papacy and the Italian towns became independent, but in 1186 the emperor's son married the last heir of the Normans in southern Italy, and the Hohenstaufens were soon established there to the detriment of their German interests.

Frederick II (1215–50) considered Italy the better part of his kingdom and ignored Germany. Thus the Golden Bull of EGER in 1213 confirming the rights of the German princes, nobles, and cities was reconfirmed in 1231 by the Constitution in Favor of the Princes, insuring German disunity. With the excommunication and condemnation of Frederick II as the Antichrist and his death in 1250, a revolt against the Hohenstaufen broke out all over their empire. They lost southern Italy and SICILY to the French Angevins at the Battle of BENEVENTO and the death of Manfred, in 1266, the last Hohenstaufen. Germany settled into the anarchy of the Great Interregnum until 1273, during which the imperial crown went up for sale to the princes of Europe, the towns gained strength, and power shifted to the E, to AUSTRIA, Bohemia, and BRANDENBURG. What was to become PRUSSIA in the E was conquered by the Teutonic Knights in the 13th century.

Various houses vied for power in Germany, granting away major imperial rights for support. Rudolf of HAPSBURG was elected emperor in 1273 with the aid of the imperial towns; Henry VII of LUXEMBOURG (1309–13) abandoned any idea of centralization and ruled as a great feudal lord. Charles IV of Luxembourg and Bohemia (1347–78) strengthened the power of the great princes in Germany in the Golden Bull of 1356. He confirmed for the future the role of the Seven Electors in the choice of the emperors, and thus in German politics. Thus the bishop-princes of MAINZ, TRIER, and COLOGNE, the count Palatine of the Rhine, the duke of Saxony, the margrave of Brandenburg, and the king of Bohemia were recognized as the independent rulers of Germany.

With the election of Albert III (1438–39) the Hapsburgs took the imperial crown for three centuries and confirmed the policy of the New Monarchy, allowing the growth of smaller, but more centralized monarchies in Brandenburg, Saxony, Bavaria, and WÜRTTEMBERG and emphasizing a shift of power to the E, to Austria. Power was also held by the free imperial cities and by groupings such as the HANSEATIC LEAGUE and the Swabian League, which came together for trade and protection. Trade and wealth intensified in the 15th century as the old centers of LÜBECK and Cologne were joined by the towns of AUGSBURG, NUREMBERG, FREIBURG and VIENNA, which grew rich on trade and banking with the E and S.

Hapsburg power saw its greatest extent under Charles V (1519–56). He made the German kingdom a thriving part of his empire, which stretched from North Africa to the Baltic, Vienna to ANTWERP, and SPAIN to PERU. He led the Germans against the Turks in the E and patronized a great age of German learning, begun under Maximilian I, which saw the talents of Erasmus, Agricola, Wessel, Celtis, von Hutten, Dürer, Brant, Pirckheimer and many others. The early 16th century also saw the rise of the Protestant Reformation in Germany, begun by Martin Luther in 1517. The reform movement quickly spread through northern Germany and in Switzerland under the leadership of Bucer, Zwingli, and Calvin. Charles V soon faced an alliance of Protestant princes, the League of SCHMALKALDEN. Between 1546 and 1555 religious war brought further anarchy to Germany. The Peace of AUGSBURG in 1555 finally recognized the end of the imperial ideal, with the formulation that each prince would determine the religion of his state. The Reformation progressed and caused a polarization of religious attitudes in Germany that resulted in the Thirty Years' War of 1618–48. This brutal struggle destroyed the country's economy, saw the intervention of Spain, SWEDEN, Denmark, and France, and wiped out fully one-third of Germany's population. The siege of MAGDEBURG and its brutal sack in 1631 was typical.

From this devastation emerged the state of Brandenburg-Prussia, which during the reign of Frederick the Great (1740–96) successfully challenged Hapsburg Austria and established itself as a European power. The cause of German unity was well served by the Napoleonic Wars, which saw the collapse of the Holy Roman Empire in 1806 and the setting up of the CONFEDERATION OF THE RHINE. In the years following the Congress of Vienna of 1815, German nationalism, under the GERMAN CONFEDERATION of Germany and Austria, was to become a powerful force, finding expression in the revolutions of 1848. However, due to the influence of conservative Austria, these were abortive everywhere. The Austrians, nevertheless, were defeated in 1866 by Prussia, now heading the NORTH GERMAN CONFEDERATION; and after France's humiliating defeat in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870–71, the major German states, including HANOVER, Württemberg, and Bavaria, with the S German states, were finally united in the GERMAN EMPIRE under Kaiser William I and his "iron" chancellor, Otto von Bismarck. Bismarck was forced to resign in 1890 by William II.

Toward the end of the 19th century industrialization transformed Germany into Europe's leading manufacturing nation, while abroad an aggressive colonial policy in Africa and the Pacific and trade competition led to a gradual worsening of relations with France and Great Britain that involved Germany in a web of alliances. In World War I, between 1914 and 1918, Germany, although never invaded, was forced to fight on two fronts. She surrendered to the Allied powers of France, Great Britain, Italy, and the UNITED STATES following the collapse of her economy and under the threat of revolution at home. Peace with RUSSIA had come in 1917, following the Russian Revolution. In the postwar years the democratic WEIMAR Republic was established following an attempted leftist revolution in 1919, but German politics were bedeviled by an insurmountable war debt, expropriation of its industries, and fighting between extremist groups that flourished as the economy continued to flounder—especially after the great inflation period of 1923. Nevertheless, by 1926 Germany had joined the League of Nations. The Great Depression of 1929 hit Germany hard. In 1933 the right wing National Socialist, or Nazi, Party under Adolf Hitler (1889–1945) came to power via legal elections and quickly transformed Germany into a totalitarian state, with economic nationalism, repressive anti-Semitic policies, a contempt for the Western democracies, and an expansionist and aggressive foreign policy.

Following Germany's invasion of Poland in 1939, World War II broke out. Germany was initially successful, with its alliance with Italy, absorption of Austria and CZECHOSLOVAKIA, and conquest of France, the Low Countries, and the Slavic East. Her fortunes changed, however, following the misguided invasion of the USSR. The tide turned with the battle of STALINGRAD in 1943 and the Allied invasion of Italy. Massive bombing destroyed her cities and damaged her industry, and she surrendered in 1945 as Allied forces moved on Berlin from E and W. After the war Germany was divided into four zones of Allied occupation, the French, British, and United States in the W, and the Soviet in the E. In 1949 the Soviet sector broke away to form the German Democratic Republic, while in the W the Federal Republic of Germany was formed from the three remaining occupation zones.

In 1990, East Germany and West Germany were reunified. In 1999, the capital of Germany was officially moved from BONN back to Berlin. Germany supported the United States in its invasion of AFGHANISTAN, but opposed American military action in IRAQ in 2003, straining relations between the two countries. The German economy has been stagnant in the early 2000s with high unemployment, an ageing expensive workforce, high social welfare costs, and competition from Asian and Eastern European manufacturers. In 2005 Angela Merkel was elected as the first female chancellor of Germany.

GERONA [ancient: Oppidum; Arabic: Jerunda] (Spain) Fortified town and capital of Gerona province, 52 mi NE of BARCELONA. Dating from pre-Roman times, but under Moorish domination from A.D. 713 to 785 and 795 to 1015, it became a principality of the kingdom of ARAGON. A 14th- to 16th-century Gothic cathedral with a Romanesque cloister, and a 13th-century collegiate church still stand. It was besieged by the French in 1809 during the Peninsular campaign.

GESHUR [Geshuri] (Israel)

Ancient kingdom that occupied the NE shore of the SEA OF GALILEE E to Bashan. It became part of the Aramaic kingdom of DAMASCUS. In the time of David it was an Aramaean kingdom.

GESHURI See GESHUR

GESORACUM See BOULOGNE

GETHSEMANE (Israel)

Biblical site on the Mt of Olives, close to JERUSALEM. It was the scene of the agony, betrayal, and arrest of Jesus. The ruins of a fourth-century church and of a church as old as the Crusades have been found here.

GETTYSBURG (United States)

Town in PENNSYLVANIA, 35 mi SW of HARRISBURG. It was the site of one of the most famous battles in the history of the United States. On July 1, 1863, the Confederate army under General Robert E. Lee met the Union army under General George G. Meade in what is considered the turning point of the Civil War. After a three-day battle, Lee's army retreated. On November 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg Address here. The battlefield is now Gettysburg National Military Park.

GEZER (Israel)

Ancient city, approximately 6 mi S of LOD, at Tell Jezar on the coastal PLAIN OF SHARON, NW of JERUSALEM. It was important in the Old Testament wars of Joshua, David, and the Maccabees and in the Crusades of the Middle Ages. Excavations have revealed that it was an Egyptian outpost c. 1900 B.C. There is also evidence of troglodyte dwellings from the mid-Bronze Age. A water tunnel and agricultural calendar from the late 17th century B.C. have been found as well. In 1945 a communal settlement of the same name was founded here.

GEZIRA See AL-JAZIRAH

GHADAMES See GHUDAMIS

GHANA [former: Gold Coast]

Republic in West Africa, N of the Gulf of Guinea, bordered on the E by TOGO, on the W by Ivory Coast, and on the N by BURKINA FASO. Ghana's earliest history is unknown. The peoples currently inhabiting the country arrived in waves of migration from the N and E. The coast was taken over by Akan arrivals in the 15th century, and small chiefdoms developed that continually jostled each other. In the 17th century a powerful ASHANTI state had begun to rise and control the inland forest regions. European traders began visiting the GUINEA coast in the late 15th century searching for ivory, spices, and gold; but black slaves quickly became the major export commodity. Ashanti prospered as it supplied captives to the European slavers who held fortified trading posts along the coast. GREAT BRITAIN dominated the coastline by 1800, and a string of conflicts with the inland Ashanti began. In 1873–74 Great Britain finally managed to gain the upper hand when a force under Sir Garnet Wolseley burned the Ashanti capital at KUMASI. Ashanti was made a colony in 1874, and in 1901 Great Britain claimed the northern hinterlands as a protectorate after it had decisively put down the last of several Ashanti uprisings. In 1914 Western TOGOLAND was added to complete the British rule of the GOLD COAST.

Ghana's national identity slowly coalesced during the 20th century as Great Britain allowed local rulers to participate in the colonial government and as cocoa farming supported the economy. In 1948 the nationalistic process was spurred by widespread urban rioting supported by a broad spectrum of the population. Kwame Nkrumah led the nationalist movement, and on March 6, 1957, independence was attained as Ghana was formed from the union of the Gold Coast and British Togoland.

The new country faced serious internal division as different sectional parties resisted integration. In 1960 a new constitution, establishing a presidential republic, was adopted. Nkrumah was elected head of state. Stability eluded Ghana, however, and several assassination attempts were made on Nkrumah. In 1966 the military seized power by a coup while Nkrumah was out of the country and ruled until 1969, when a civilian government was reestablished. In 1972 another military coup took place, and a series of military leaders ran the nation until 1979. After a coup by Flight Lieutenant

Jerry Rawlings, Hilla Linmann was elected president of the Third Republic of Ghana, restoring civilian rule to the country. Rawlings seized power again in 1981, and tightened his political control throughout the 1980s. Ghana borrowed from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank, and in the late 1980s the economy began to show significant growth. In 1992 under a new constitution, multiparty elections were held, and Rawlings won the presidency. In 1994, ethnic warfare in northern Ghana killed thousands and displaced many more as refugees from the fighting. In the 1996 elections, Rawlings was reelected. Under Ghana's constitution, Rawlings could not run for reelection in 2000, and opposition candidate John Agyekum Kufuor, of the New Patriot Party was elected president, and was reelected in 2004 as the economy improved somewhat.

GHANA EMPIRE [Gana] [Ghanese: Wagadu]

Ancient empire of West Africa that controlled an area between the SAHARA DESERT and the headwaters of the NIGER and SENEGAL rivers, approximately 500 mi N of its namesake, the modern Republic of GHANA.

Ghana was the first great medieval African empire to prosper because of its control of the lucrative trans-Saharan trade route that ran between the Arab and Berber salt traders to the N, and the gold, slave, and ivory-producing nations of the S. Tradition places Ghana's founding in the fourth century A.D., but its earliest history is unknown. By the ninth century the empire, known to its rulers as Wagadu, had a massive iron-weaponed army that allowed Ghana's kings to impose taxes on the trans-Saharan traders and to collect tribute from the many lesser states it dominated. Not content with Ghana's pivotal position as an entrepôt, its kings pushed the boundaries of their empire northward to claim the southern Sahara city of AUDAGHOST and expanded southward to take direct control of the gold-producing regions.

The rise of Islam after the Arab conquest of North Africa in the eighth century had dire consequences for Ghana. At first, the Arab and Berber traders continued to enjoy warm commercial relations with Ghana, but in the 11th century the Muslim ALMORAVID Caliphate launched a holy war against its unconverted neighbors. Audaghost fell to a Muslim attack in 1054, and a relentless advance overcame fierce resistance and seized the capital city of KUMBI in 1076. Ghana was able to maintain the struggle against the Muslim invaders, but the effort weakened its control over its subjugated populations. The empire began to fall apart, and in 1203 Kumbi was taken by the Sosso, a former vassal tribe. Ghana's destruction was completed in 1240 when the Mande emperor Sundiata razed the battered capital and added the remnants of the empire of Ghana to his possessions as part of the growing and powerful MALI EMPIRE.

GHĀRĀPURI See ELEPHANTA ISLAND

AL-GHARB See ALGARVE

AL-GHARBĪ See LEBANON MOUNTAINS

GHARDAÏA [Gardaia] (Algeria)

Ancient city, 300 mi S of ALGIERS. It was founded in the 11th century by Muslim Khàrijite sectaries fleeing orthodox Muslims in the N. It was occupied by the French in 1854, and annexed to FRANCE in 1882.

GHARNATAH See GRANADA

GHAZIPUR (India)

City in UTTAR PRADESH 50 mi NE of VARANASI. Lord Cornwallis, governor-general of British India, died in Ghazipur and is buried there.

GHAZNI (Afghanistan)

City, 92 mi SW of KABUL. This old city was flourishing by the seventh century A.D. as one of Asia's most glorious centers. It reached its peak between 962 and 1155 under the Turkish Ghaznevid dynasty. Mahmud of Ghazni built a magnificent mosque called the Celestial Bride here. The city was sacked in 1173 by the kings of GHOR, and in 1221 the Mongol Ogadai, a son of Genghis Khan, completed its downfall. In 1737 it became part of the new kingdom of Afghanistan. It was taken by the British in 1839 and 1842 during the Afghan Wars. Mahmud's tomb and two high columns outside the city have escaped destruction.

GHAZZAH See GAZA

GHAZZE See GAZA

GHELUVELT (Belgium)

Town and battle site in W FLANDERS province, approximately 5 mi E of YPRES. Battles were fought here in World War I in both 1914 and 1917.

GHEENT [Gent] [French: Gand; Middle English: Gaunt] (Belgium)

River port, city, and capital of FLANDERS province, 31 mi NW of BRUSSELS. The city's origins date from the seventh century A.D. when two monasteries were built here. It developed further around a fortress built on a small island in the 10th century by the first count of Flanders. By the 13th century Ghent had become a major wool producer and by the 14th century was the scene of intense labor-management disputes between the capitalist class of merchants and shippers, the poorterie, and the craftsmen allied in their four major guilds. The craftsmen sometimes allied with a growing proletariat of wage-earners, who owned no tools or workplaces.

The city played a major role in the revolt of Flanders from FRANCE in the 1340s, under the leadership of Jacob van Artevelde. In alliance with Edward III of ENGLAND he made Ghent a leader in the struggle against France during the Hundred Years' War, until his death in battle in 1345. Edward's son, John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, was born here in 1359. From the 1340s until its defeat at ROOSEBEKE in 1382, Ghent continued to lead the Flemish people. "Long live Ghent!" became a familiar war cry against foreign rule and the rule of the rich, as the "dreadful weavers" led the craft guilds in social revolutions imitated throughout Flanders. Ghent itself maintained its regional power through military force and staples, monopolies over the trade of essential commodities.

The city remained a strong power until its defeat by Philip the Good, duke of BURGUNDY, in July 1453 at Gavere, a defeat which led to economic decline. This was heightened under the harsh rule of Duke Charles the Bold. Repression led to renewed revolt against Burgundy in 1477 with the aid of France. By the Peace of Cadzand in July 1492, however, Ghent finally conceded defeat to Burgundy. The city became the captive seat of the Hapsburgs in the Low Countries when Mary of Burgundy married Archduke Maximilian, later Holy Roman Emperor, of AUSTRIA. Their son, Philip I of CASTILE, was kept a virtual prisoner here after his mother's death until 1485, when Maximilian took the city. Philip's son, Charles V, was born and reared at Ghent, where he received instruction from the pen of Erasmus.

After the revolt of the city in 1539, against Charles's regent, Mary of HUNGARY, its liberties were abolished. The Caroline Concession of April 1540 placed the city and its economy under the direct control of the emperor. Ironically, this destruction of its traditional economy opened it to the new European prosperity, and by 1550 Ghent was again thriving. The late Middle Ages saw a flourishing of the arts at Ghent in book illumination and in painting. The Ghent Altarpiece in St. Bavo's here by the van Eyck brothers is a masterpiece of Dutch art. Joos van Ghent is also famous for his painting. The 16th-century town hall is considered one of the finest examples of Gothic secular architecture.

Ghent shared the fate of the SPANISH NETHERLANDS in the 16th and 17th centuries. By the Pacification of Ghent in November 1576 the UNITED PROVINCES cemented their revolt against Spain. The city was absorbed, along with the Spanish Netherlands, by France with the Spanish succession of the Bourbons in 1701. It passed to Austria in 1713 with the Peace of UTRECHT, to France with the Napoleonic Wars, and became part of the NETHERLANDS in 1815 at the Congress of VIENNA. It became part of independent Belgium in 1830.

GHILAN See GILAN

GHOLOS See VOLOS

GHOR [Ghur] (Afghanistan)

Ancient kingdom in what is now NW Afghanistan. It was first mentioned in the 11th century A.D. with regard to certain princes closely connected with the Ghaznevid dynasty. The powerful Muslim Ghorid dynasty was established here in the 12th century, only to be overthrown in 1215 by Muhammad of Khorezm. In 1221 the Mongols under Genghis Khan took Ghor, and from c. 1245 to 1379 it was ruled by the Karts, a Mongol client tribe. It then lapsed into obscurity. Its greatest ruler, Muhammad of Ghor, captured GHAZNI in 1173 and conquered all of northern India from 1186 to 1206.

GHUDAMIS [Gadàmes, Ghadàmes, Rhadàmes] (Libya)

Town in W Libya, near its borders with ALGERIA and TUNISIA, in a SAHARA DESERT oasis. An important caravan center on the route from TRIPOLI to the SUDAN, it was held by the Romans and was captured by Arabs in the seventh century A.D. In 1830 it submitted to the bey of Tripoli. In 1924 it was occupied by the Italians. The French occupied it in 1943 during World War II.

GHUR See GHOR

GHUZZEH See GAZA

GIARABUB See JAGHBUB

GIBEAH [Arabic: Tall al Ful] (Palestine)

Old town, 3 mi N of JERUSALEM in the Palestinian WEST BANK. It was the hometown and capital of Saul, the first king of ancient Israel, and it became its first political center. It is mentioned in the biblical books of Judges, Samuel, and Isaiah. A fortress excavated here may have been Saul's residence.

GIBEON [Arabic: Al-Jib] (Palestine)

City, 6 mi NW of JERUSALEM, in the Palestinian WEST BANK. A city of CANAAN, it is mentioned in the biblical book of Joshua as one whose alliance with Israel saved it from destruction but not from slavery. Modern excavations have discovered an interesting ancient water system.

GIBIL-HABIB See CALTANISSETTA

GIBRALTAR [Arabic: Gebel-al-Tarik, Jabal-al-Tarik] (Great Britain)

Town, British Crown colony, and rocky promontory of the Rock of Gibraltar, off the S coast of SPAIN. It was known to the Greeks and other early peoples as one of the two Pillars of Hercules and marked the boundary of the known world. In A.D. 711 it was captured and fortified by Tariq, the Moorish invader of Spain, and took his name, the Rock or Mountain (Jabal) of Tariq. It was taken by the Spanish in 1462 during the Reconquista. It was captured by Great Britain in 1704 during the War of the Spanish Succession and was retained by them in the peace Treaty of UTRECHT of 1713. From 1779 to 1783 it was unsuccessfully besieged by the French and the Spanish; and in 1830 it became a British Crown colony. Spanish claims to the colony were rejected. Its historic fortress commands the western or Atlantic approach to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. Spain still asserts a claim to it. During World War II it was heavily fortified and garrisoned by the British. Spain has recently agreed to end its isolation of the colony and to permit free movement across its borders. The Rock of Gibraltar has long been a symbol of stability.

GIESSEN (Germany)

City, on the Lahn River, in Hesse, 35 mi N of FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN. It was formed in the 12th century from the villages of Selters, Aster, and Kroppach, for whose protection the castle of Giessen, now in ruins, was built. Through marriage it passed to Rudolph of TÜBINGEN in 1203; he sold it to Henry of HESSE in 1265. The university, chartered in 1607, by Louis V, landgrave of Hesse, has a large and valuable library.

GIFELCESTRE See ILCHESTER

GIFU (Japan)

City, 20 mi NNW of NAGOYA, on the Nagara River. A castle town of medieval Japan, it was a center of civil conflict until c. 1600. In 1564 it was captured by Oda Nobunaga and served as his headquarters owing to its strategic location between KYOTO and TOKYO. It is the seat of three universities and the Nawa Entomology Institute, founded in 1896.

GIGIA See GIJÓN

GIGLIO [ancient: Igilium, Italian: Isola del Giglio] (Italy)

Island off the SW coast, 11 mi W of Monte Argentario, in the province of Grosseto, TUSCANY region. Julius Caesar mentions its sailors in the fleet of Ahenobarbus. In late Roman times it served as a refuge from barbarian invaders. Charlemagne gave it to the abbey of Tre Fontane in ROME. In the 14th century it belonged to PISA, then to FLORENCE, and was later ceded to Antonio Piccolomini, a nephew of Pope Pius II, in the 15th century. In 1558 it was sold to the wife of Cosimo I of Florence. The island is connected by boat to Orbetello and the towns of the Argentario, including COSA. It contains a fortress from early modern times.

GIJÓN [ancient: Gigia] (Spain)

Port city, on the BAY OF BISCAY, 16 mi NE of OVIEDO. Founded before Roman times, it was captured by the Moors in the eighth century A.D. The harbor was built in 1552 by Emperor Charles V. It served as the port of refuge for the Spanish Armada after its defeat by the English in 1588. Ruins include the Roman baths, and there are 14th-, 15th-, and 16th-century palaces built during a flourishing period under the first Asturian kings.

GILA CLIFF DWELLINGS NATIONAL MONUMENT*(United States)*

Ancient ruins of cliff-dwelling Indians, in the Gila Wilderness Area of SW NEW MEXICO, 30 mi N of Silver City. The dwellings are located approximately 150 feet up in the sheer walls of a small wooded canyon. Between the eight and the 12th centuries A.D. the Indians farmed the rich bottomlands in the canyon. Their culture was disrupted by invasions of Paiute tribes from the NW c. 1300. The site is the center of the Mogollon area, whose culture dates back to A.D. 200. See also CHACO CANYON.

GILAN [Ghilan, Guilan] (Iran)

Province in the NW, bounded by the CASPIAN SEA and the Elburz Mts on the N. RASHT is the capital and chief city. Ruled by the Mongols in the 13th and 14th centuries, the region was incorporated into PERSIA by the Safavid dynasty in the late 16th century. In 1722 it was ceded to Peter the Great of RUSSIA by Tahmasp III, the 10th Safavid shah. The Russians ruled here until 1732 when they were forced to evacuate the area. Gilan became a Soviet republic briefly in 1920–21.

GILBERT AND ELLICE ISLANDS COLONY See KIRIBATI, TUVALUGILBERT ISLANDS See KIRIBATIGILBOA, MOUNT (Israel)

Mountain, W of JORDAN and S of the PLAIN OF ESDRAELON, near the source of the Qishon River. According to the Old Testament, this historic site in the eastern spur of the Samarian Hills is the place where Saul was defeated by the Philistines. He was severely wounded and slew himself.

GILEAD (Jordan)

Ancient city near Mizpah and region S of the Zarqa, NE of the DEAD SEA. According to the Old Testament, King David found refuge from his rebellious son Absalom here. It became part of the northern kingdom after the partition of ISRAEL. It was denounced by Hosea and was eventually captured by ASSYRIA.

GILGAL [Arabic: Ariha] (Palestine)

Encampment, near JERICHO, in ancient CANAAN, now in Palestinian WEST BANK, it is one of several places named Gilgal in the Old Testament. The name is not found E of the JORDAN RIVER. It was the site of the first encampment of the Israelites W of the Jordan and N of LOD. According to the Old Testament, it was the scene of Elijah's flight to heaven in a fiery chariot.

GILGENBURG See DABROWNOGILGIT (Pakistan)

Region in the NW HIMALAYA MOUNTAINS, with its principal town on the Gilgit River, a tributary of the INDUS RIVER. Once a Buddhist center, it is now an important strategic station on the highway to CHITRAL on the W and to the HUNZA and HINDU KUSH passes on the N. The Dards and the Shins are the two main peoples of the area. The Dards were placed accurately by the ancient geographer, Claudius Ptolemy in the second century A.D. as inhabiting the western side of the upper Indus River.

GILLINGHAM (England)

Town, in KENT, on the MEDWAY RIVER, immediately E of CHATHAM. A great battle between Edmund Ironside and the Danish king Canute c. 1015 took place here. There was formerly a palace of the archbishops of CANTERBURY, and St. Mary Magdalene Church here ranges from Early English to perpendicular Gothic architectural style. It has some traces of Norman work.

GILOLO See HALMAHERAGINEVRA See GENEVAGINGEE See GINGIGINGI [Gingee] (India)

Fortress, in the S Arcot district of CHENNAI. Its origins are shrouded in legend, but when occupied by the MARATHAS at the end of the 17th century, it withstood a siege of eight years by the armies of the Mogul emperor Aurangzeb. It consists of three hills connected by walls enclosing an area of seven square miles. It was captured by the French in 1750 and held for 11 years before being surrendered to the British in 1761 during the Seven Years' War. The surrender removed French influence from most of India. See also MOGUL EMPIRE.

GIORNICO (Switzerland)

Village in the TICINO canton, in the SE, on the Ticino River. It was the scene of the victory of greatly outnumbered Swiss forces over the Milanese on December 28, 1478.

GIPESWIC See IPSWICH

GIRESUN [Kerasun, Kerasunt] [ancient: Cerasus, Pharnucia] (Turkey)

Port city, on the BLACK SEA, in NE Turkey, 70 mi W of TRABZON. The Roman general Lucullus is said to have introduced the cherry tree to Italy from here in the first century B.C. According to some authorities, the English word cherry is derived through French, Latin, and Greek from Cerasus, also Kerasun. The word's appearance in classical Greek and the common derivation of Latin and Teutonic words for cherry put this story in some doubt, however.

GIRGA [Girgeh, Jirja] (Egypt)

Town, SE of SAWHAJ, on the NILE RIVER. The seat of a Coptic bishop, it derives its name from the Mara Girgis Coptic monastery, dedicated to St. George. There is also a Roman Catholic monastery here, said to be the oldest in Egypt. The ancient Egyptian city of ABYDOS is nearby.

GIRGEH See GIRGA

GIRGENTI See AGRIGENTO, SICILY

GIRIN See KIRIN

GIRNAR [Junaga, Junagadh, Junagarh] (India)

Sacred hill, on the peninsula of KATHIAWAR, 240 mi NW of MUMBAI. It is the site of numerous old Jain temples, an old fort, cave dwellings, and other remains from early Hindu and Muslim times. The Neminath, restored in A.D. 1278, is the largest and possibly the oldest of the Jain temples on the mountain. An inscription of Asoka dates from the second century B.C., and two other historically significant inscriptions date from A.D. 150 and 455. See MAURYA EMPIRE.

GISEIFU See UIJONGBU

GISORS (France)

Town, in the department of Eure, 20 mi NW of PARIS. As the medieval capital of the VEXIN district on the frontier of NORMANDY, it was the subject of many disputes between FRANCE and ENGLAND. The ruins of a castle begun in 1097 by William II, Rufus, king of England are here.

GITHSLEPE See ISLIP

GITSCHIN [Czech: Jičín] (Czech Republic)

Town and battle site, 65 mi NE of PRAGUE. The town was established in 1302 by Wenceslaus II. Here in 1813 Francis I of AUSTRIA signed the treaty by which he joined the Allies against Napoleon. On June 29, 1866, PRUSSIA defeated the Austrians at this site. A church modeled after SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA in Spain was completed here in 1655.

GIURGEVO See GIURGIU

GIURGIU [ancient: Theodorapolis; Bulgarian; Giurgevo] (Romania)

City, on the DANUBE RIVER, opposite RUSE, BULGARIA. It was founded in the 10th century by Genoese merchants on the Roman site of Theodorapolis, a city built by the Emperor Justinian (A.D. 483–565). It was conquered by the Turks in 1417. It subsequently played an important role in the 16th-century wars between WALACHIA and the OTTOMAN EMPIRE and in the later Russo-Turkish wars. There are the remains of the old town walls and the ruins of a medieval fortress.

GIVET (France)

Town in the ARDENNES, 40 mi NE of CHARLEVILLE-MÉZIÈRES, near the Belgian frontier. The fortress of Charlmont, founded by the Emperor Charles V, is situated atop a rock 705 feet high here. The church and town hall were built by Marshal Vauban in the late 17th century.

GIZA [Al-Gizeh, Al-Jizah] (Egypt)

Administrative district and its capital city, a suburb of CAIRO, on the W bank of the NILE RIVER. The enigmatic Great Sphinx and the great pyramids, which include the pyramid of Khufu, or Cheops, and the tombs of his mother and daughter, are located five miles W of the city. It is also the site of the University of Cairo.

AL-GIZEH See GIZA

GJINOKASTËR [Gjirokastër] [Greek: Argyrokastron; Italian: Argirocastro] (Albania)

Town and provincial capital in the S, approximately 85 mi from TIRANË. It probably dates from the fourth century A.D. It was under Turkish rule from 1420 to 1913. Captured in 1811 by Ali Pasha, it was a center of anti-Turkish resistance in the late 19th century. In 1940–41, during World War II, it was held by the Greeks in their war with ITALY. The town was the birthplace of Enver Hoxha, the modern Albanian political leader.

GJIROKASTËR See GJINOKASTËR

GLAMIS (Scotland)

Village in TAYSIDE region, 10 mi N of DUNDEE. King Malcolm II died nearby in 1034, and a cross in the village is known as King Malcolm's gravestone. Shakespeare's Macbeth was thane of Glamis. The castle, built in the 17th century on the site of an 11th-century structure, was the seat of the earl of Strathmore. It was wrongly claimed to be the scene of Duncan's murder in Shakespeare's play. Actually, Duncan was slain in a battle against Macbeth.

GLAMORGAN See MID-GLAMORGAN, SOUTH GLAMORGAN, WEST GLAMORGAN, VALE OF GLAMORGAN

GLANUM See SAINT-RÉMY (France)

GLARUS See GLARUS

GLARUS [French: Glaris] (Switzerland)

Mountain canton and its capital town, situated on the Linth River, in the E central region, 36 mi E of LUCERNE. The site was sparsely settled by the Romans c. 15 B.C. The Alemanni established consistent habitation here from c. A.D. 500. In the sixth century, too, the Irish monk Fridolin converted the Glarus district to Christianity. Although Glarus became a member of the Swiss Confederation in 1352, its inhabitants earned their independence only after defeating a Hapsburg army at the Battle of NÄFELS in 1388. During the Reformation, the Glarus district turned early to Protestantism. However, when the leading Tschudi family remained Roman Catholic, a schism prevailed until 1798, when the Protestants accepted the Gregorian calendar and other Roman Catholic practices. That same year brought further regional unity with the popular resistance to Napoleon's French invaders.

The Landsgemeinde, a centuries-old, rudimentary democratic assembly, which included every male citizen over 20 years of age, still holds an annual outdoor meeting here on the first Sunday in May. A notable parish church, shared by both Protestants and Catholics, was once presided over by the reformer Zwingli, who served as the parish priest here from 1506 to 1516, until becoming a leader of the Protestant Reformation.

GLAS CHU See GLASGOW

GLASGOW [Gaelic: Glas Chu] (Scotland)

City in STRATHCLYDE region, on the River Clyde, approximately 20 mi from its mouth and 42 mi WSW of EDINBURGH. Scotland's largest city and one of the most industrialized cities in the world, Glasgow was an early center of the Industrial Revolution, beginning in the late 18th century. At one time it was probably the greatest shipbuilding port in the world. Although it has declined as Great Britain has declined industrially, it remains a city of wealth but also of notorious slums, many of which, however, have been eliminated in recent years. The site of Glasgow was occupied by Stone and Bronze Age people long before its settlement in the late sixth century A.D. by St. Kentigern (also known as St. Mungo), an early Christian missionary who built a chapel and founded a religious community.

In 1115 Glasgow was revitalized by David I before he became king of Scotland, and c. 1180 William the Lion, king from 1165 to 1214, granted it a charter. It became a royal town in 1450. On May 13, 1568, in the present suburb of LANGSIDE, the first earl of Murray, siding with the English and the Protestants, defeated the forces of Mary, Queen of Scots, who was attempting to regain the throne. During the English Civil War the marquess of Montrose, royalist supporter of Charles I, captured Glasgow in 1645, and just a century later it was held briefly by Charles Edward Stuart, the "Young Pretender" to the English throne.

Meanwhile, the city had long been a trading center by virtue of its position on routes to the HIGHLANDS and the Lowlands. In the early 18th century it prospered further when trade with the American colonies became important. The American Revolution disrupted this trade, but in the early 19th century shipbuilding, harbor improvements, and the growth of the cotton trade brought prosperity. Its shipyards and other facilities made it a prime target of German bombers in World War II. The city has redeveloped at the end of the 20th century as a center of business, finance, culture, and tourism. Of interest are St. Mun-go's Cathedral, dating in part from the 12th century; Provand's Lordship, the oldest house in the city, built in 1471; and the University of Glasgow, founded in 1451.

GLASTONBURY (England)

Old town of many legends, 22 mi SW of BATH in SOMERSET. It is said that St. Joseph of Arimathea founded the first English Christian church here: on Wearyall Hill he rested his staff, which rooted and became the Glastonbury thorn, blooming every year on Christmas Eve. Another story identifies Glastonbury as the Isle of Avalon of Arthurian legend. The famed Glastonbury Abbey, now in ruins, was a center of learning and an object of pilgrimages in the Middle Ages. The remains of an Iron Age lake village are nearby, and there have been extensive finds of pre-Roman objects, indicating earlier Celtic settlement.

GLATZ See KŁODZKO

GLEIWITZ See GLIWICE

GLENCOE [Glen Coe] (Scotland)

Valley in HIGHLANDS region, 65 mi NNW of GLASGOW. It was the site of the notorious massacre of the MacDonald clan of Glencoe by soldiers of Campbell of GLENLYON under John Campbell, first earl of Breadalbane, and John Dalrymple, first earl of Stair, in February 1692.

GLENDALE (United States)

City in the San Fernando Valley of CALIFORNIA, approximately 8 mi NE of LOS ANGELES. It occupies part of the first Spanish land grant in California, which consisted of 30,000 acres given to the Verdugo family in 1784. It was operated for many years as a ranch and was the site of the signing of the Cahuenga Capitulation Treaty that ended California's participation in the Mexican War on January 13, 1847. Only 13 Anglo families lived on the site when the Southern Pacific Railroad reached it in 1883.

GLENDALE (United States) See FRAYSER'S FARM

GLENDALOUGH, VALE OF (Ireland)

Valley in County Wicklow, E Ireland, W of WICKLOW. It is of particular interest because of the ruins of several early ecclesiastical structures, especially those of a monastery founded by St. Kevin in the sixth century A.D. In addition, there are the remains of several 11th- and 12th-century churches, a round tower, and Kevin's Cross. A ledge in the face of a rocky mountainside above the lake in the vale is Kevin's legendary retreat.

GLENFINNAN See SHIEL, LOCH

GLENLYON (Scotland)

Valley and family seat in TAYSIDE region, 37 mi WNW of PERTH. At the E end of the valley is Glenlyon House, ancient seat of the Campbells of Glenlyon.

GLENS FALLS (United States)

Town in E NEW YORK State, 38 mi NE of AMSTERDAM, at the site of 60-ft falls in the upper HUDSON RIVER. Settled in 1762–63, it was destroyed in the American Revolution in 1780 by the British. Cooper's Cave at the foot of the falls is named for James Fenimore Cooper and is the setting for an episode in his novel The Last of the Mohicans.

GLEVUM See GLOUCESTER

GLIWICE [German: Gleiwitz] (Poland)

City, 14 mi W of KATOWICE. Chartered in 1276, it was ceded by AUSTRIA to PRUSSIA in 1742. In World War II it was occupied by GERMANY, then taken by the USSR on January 25, 1945. Ultimately it was assigned to Poland by the POTSDAM Conference in 1945.

GLOGAU See GŁOGÓW

GLOGÓW [German: Glogau] (Poland)

City of Zielona Góra province, on the ODER RIVER. Founded c. 1010, it was ceded to PRUSSIA by AUSTRIA in 1742. Taken by the USSR in World War II in February 1945, it was assigned to Poland by the POTSDAM Conference later in 1945.

GLOUCESTER [ancient: Glevum] (England)

City and administrative headquarters of GLOUCESTERSHIRE, on the SEVERN RIVER, 94 mi WNW of LONDON. The present town stands on the site of the Roman city of Glevum, founded by the Roman emperor Nerva between A.D. 96 and 98. In Anglo-Saxon times it was the capital of the kingdom of MERCA. Its notable cathedral, begun in 1089 on the site of an abbey dating from 681, is the burial place of Edward II. The cathedral tower dates from the 1450s. The world's first Sunday school was founded in Gloucester by Robert Raikes in 1780.

GLOUCESTER (United States)

Town and fishing port, 27 mi NE of BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS. It was visited by Samuel de Champlain in 1605 and was settled in 1623. The first American schooner is said to have been built here in 1713. The town has remained a fishing port since that time. It developed as a resort and artists' colony in the late 19th century. There are also numerous well-preserved pre-Revolutionary houses here.

GLOUCESTER CITY (United States)

City in SW NEW JERSEY, on the DELAWARE RIVER, opposite PHILADELPHIA. The Dutch built Fort Nassau here in 1623, abandoned it, and then reoccupied it when SWEDEN tried to colonize the area. For a time the Dutch and Swedes united against the English, but in 1655 Peter Stuyvesant, director general of NEW NETHERLAND, seized all the Swedish forts on the Delaware, fearing their competition in the fur trade. After the Swedes left, the Dutch destroyed Fort Nassau. In 1682 Quakers settled here. Some skirmishes took place in the area during the American Revolution.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE (England)

Midland county crossed by the Cotswold Hills. Predominantly agricultural, it has some mining in the Forest of Dean. Its administrative headquarters is GLOUCESTER, and its chief river the SEVERN. Renowned for its many abbeys and churches, it also shows much evidence of Roman settlement.

GMÜND [Schwabisch-Gmünd] (Germany)

City in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, 28 mi E of STUTTGART, on the Rems River. Chartered in 1162, it remained a free imperial city from 1268 until 1803, when it passed to WÜRTTEMBERG. Of historic interest are the city hall of 1783–85 and the late Romanesque St. John's Church of 1210–30.

GNADENHUTTEN (United States)

Village in Tuscarawas county, E OHIO, on the Tuscarawas River. It was founded in 1772 by Christian Indians under the leadership of Moravians. On March 7, 1782, white men massacred a group of these Indians. The massacre is now memorialized in a state park.

GNARLBINE See COOLGARDIEGNESEN See GNIEZNOGNIEZNO [German: Gnesen] (Poland)

Legendary cradle of the Polish nation and first capital of Poland, 28 mi ENE of POZNÁN. With the crowning of Boleslav the Mighty, first king of Poland, for the second time in 1025, it became the coronation place of the kings of Poland until 1320. From 1572 until the late 19th century the archbishops of Gniezno acted as protectors of Poland. Ceded to PRUSSIA in 1793, the town was returned to Poland in 1919. The 14th-century Gothic cathedral contains relics of St. Adelbert, the patron saint of Poland. A 10th-century rotunda as well as many medieval art objects enrich the town.

GNOSSUS See KNOSSOSGOA See GOA, DAMAN AND DIUGOA [Portuguese: Gôa] (India)

Former Portuguese colony, now a state on the W coast of India, approximately 250 mi S of MUMBAI. In 1312 Muslims conquered Goa, and in 1370 it became part of the Hindu empire of VIJAYANAGARA. It was recaptured by Muslims in 1470. The Portuguese under Alfonso de Albuquerque, a founder of the Portuguese Empire, took it from the sultan of BIJAPUR in 1510, and it remained a part of the Portuguese Empire until India invaded the territory in 1961, seized control, and annexed it in 1962. Goa became a state in 1987 and DAMAN and DIU became a separate territory. St. Francis Xavier began his missionary labors here in 1542. He died in 1552 and is buried in the church of Bom Jesus in the capital city of Nova Goa, or PANAJI.

GOBABIS (Namibia)

Town in the E central part of the country, 130 mi E of WINDHOEK. Founded in 1840 as a German missionary station, it was the scene of a battle in 1904 during the war between the Herero tribe and the Germans.

GOBANNIUM See ABERGAVENNY

GOCH (Germany)

Town of NORTH RHINE–WESTPHALIA, on the Dutch border, 66 mi WSW of MÜNSTER. Chartered in 1250, it belonged to the dukes of Gelder for many years. During World War II it was the scene of severe fighting during the period February 18–21, 1945. See also GELDERLAND.

GÖDÖLLÖ See SCHWECHAT (Austria)

GODTHAAB See GODTHÅB

GODTHÅB [Godthaab] [Inuit: Nuuk] (Denmark)

Largest town and capital of GREENLAND, in the W, on Godthåb fjord. It began as a mission founded by the Danish-Norwegian missionary Hans Egede, in 1721. The oldest Danish settlement in Greenland, founded in 1728, it has a year-round ice-free harbor. At the head of the fjord are the remains of the 10th-century Norse settlement of VESTERBYGD.

GOLAN HEIGHTS (Israel)

Hilly region of SW SYRIA, overlooking Israel. Mentioned in the Old Testament books of Deuteronomy, Chronicles, and Joshua as an area of refuge, it has long been a disputed territory in the Middle East. A home of the Druse people, Syria used the heights to advantage as an artillery platform in its wars with Israel. Israel took the Golan Heights in the 1967 War, and annexed the region in 1981. This annexation was not recognized by much of the international community. The return of the Heights to Syria is complicated by both the military strategic value of these highlands and the value as headwaters of the Jordan River.

GOLASECCA (Italy)

Village in W LOMBARDY, near the S end of LAKE MAGGIORE, near MILAN. Nearby is an important archeological site, a rich Urnfield cemetery that belonged to the Iron Age Golasecca culture of Lombardy and PIEDMONT in the upper PO RIVER valley.

GOLCONDA (India)

Ancient city and ruins in ANDHRA PRADESH state, SE India, 5 mi W of HYDERABAD. From c. 1365 to 1512 it was the capital of the Bahmani kingdom. It became capital of the Muslim sultanate of Golconda, an ancient kingdom ruled by the Kutb Shahi dynasty and one of the five Muslim kingdoms of the DECCAN. A city famed for its diamonds, with a fort on a hill 400 feet above the plain, it was conquered along with the entire Deccan by the Mogul emperor Aurangzeb in 1687–88 and was annexed to the MOGUL EMPIRE. It fell into ruins after this.

GOLD COAST (Ghana)

Region in West Africa, on the Gulf of GUINEA, running approximately from AXIM on the W to the VOLTA RIVER on the E. As its name implies, it was once valued for the gold found here. In 1482 the Portuguese, the first Europeans in the area, established ELMINA on the coast to trade in gold and slaves. They were joined by the English, Danes, and Dutch. When the slave trade declined, however, the Danes withdrew in 1850 and the Dutch in 1872. The British remained, allying themselves with the FANTE states, and in 1874 they defeated the ASHANTI. The coast region became a colony known as the Gold Coast, but fighting with the Ashanti did not end until 1896. On March 6, 1957, the Gold Coast became part of the independent nation of Ghana.

GOLDEN (United States)

Town, in COLORADO, 10 mi W of DENVER. Settled in 1859 as a mining camp, it served as the capital of the Colorado Territory from 1862 to 1867. It is now the home of the Colorado School of Mines, founded in 1874, the National Renewable Energy Laboratory, and the Coors Brewery.

GOLDEN CHERSONESE See MALAY PENINSULA

GOLDEN GATE (United States)

CALIFORNIA strait leading from the Pacific Ocean into SAN FRANCISCO BAY. While Sir Francis Drake passed by in 1579, the Spanish were the first Europeans to see the Golden Gate in 1772. The American explorer John C. Frémont claims to have named it. Although known as the Golden Gate before the Gold Rush, the name became formal in 1849 during that time, when it gained a new connotation.

GOLDEN HORDE, KHANATE OF [Kipchak Khanate] (Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan)

Ancient Mongol kingdom comprising most of later Russia. It was given as an appanage to Genghis Khan's (1162–1227) oldest son, Juchi, but was actually conquered and founded by Juchi's son, Batu Khan (d. 1255), after the Mongol conquest of Russia. Its first capital, Sarai Batu, approximately 70 mi N of ASTRAKHAN, was later moved to Sarai Berke on the Volga River, near present VOLGOGRAD.

The kingdom's ascendancy terminated the rise of Kievan Russia. KIEV was razed in 1240. Ultimately this conquest contributed to the rise of Muscovite Russia. The kingdom adopted Islam as its official religion in the 14th century. It began to decline in the late 14th century and was conquered by the Mongol Tamerlane in 1395 with the sacking of Sarai Berke. With Tamerlane's death the kingdom broke up into small independent khanates. See also MONGOL EMPIRES.

GOLDEN SPIKE NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE See BRIGHAM CITY (United States)GOLDFIELD (United States)

Town and county seat of Esmeralda county, NEVADA, and the scene of one of history's greatest gold rushes. With the discovery of gold in 1902, the rush had by 1903 built a city of exuberant elegance with a theater, a large hotel, and various fine residences. Production reached its height in 1910, but by 1918 the boom had ended, and rapid decline set in.

GOLFE DE GASCOGNE See BISCAY, BAY OFGOLFO DE VIZCAYA See BISCAY, BAY OFGOLFO DULCE See IZABAL, LAKEGOLGOTHA See CALVARYGOLIAD [former: La Bahia] (United States)

Resort in TEXAS, centering around a mission and presidio founded in 1749 by the Spanish missionaries. It was important, in the Mexican revolt against SPAIN in 1812–13 and in the revolt by TEXAS against MEXICO, which began in 1835. In 1836 it was seized by forces led by Colonel J.W. Fannin, who then evacuated the place, and eventually surrendered to the Mexicans on March 20, 1836. On March 27 many of the prisoners were shot by the Mexicans. The Goliad figured in the battle cry of victorious Texans at San Jacinto: "Remember the Alamo! Remember Goliad!" The restored mission and ruins of the old presidio are in a state park today.

GOMBROON See BANDAR ABBASGOMBRUN See BANDAR ABBASGOMEL See HOMYELGOMIY See HOMYELGOMORRAH [Gomorrha] (Israel)

Ancient biblical city on the plain of the JORDAN RIVER in ancient CANAAN. Its exact location is unknown, though it may well have existed in early times, and may possibly now be beneath the waters of the DEAD SEA. With SODOM, it was notorious for its wickedness and was destroyed by fire from heaven.

GOMORRHA See GOMORRAHGONAÏVES [French: Les Gonaïves] (Haiti)

Port town on the Gulf of Gonave, 68 mi NNW of PORT-AU-PRINCE. The independence of Haiti was proclaimed in Gonaïves on January 1, 1804. In 2004, opponents to President Aristide took control of the city in a rebellion that spread across the nation. In September 2004, Hurricane Jeanne destroyed much of the city, killing more than 3,000 and leaving more than 250,000 homeless.

GONDAR See GONDER

GONDER [Gondar] (Ethiopia)

City of Begemdir and Simen province, 21 mi N of Lake Tana. Once Ethiopia's largest city, it served as the nation's capital from c. 1635 to 1837, reaching the height of its power in the mid-18th century. A center of religion and art, it was often sacked and in the 19th century underwent a decline. It was last attacked and raided in 1887 by Sudanese Mahdists. Ruins include castles and other buildings that through earlier Portuguese influence resemble European medieval fortresses.

GONDOKORO (Sudan)

Town, on the E bank of the White Nile River, S of Mongalla. It became an ivory- and slave-trading center after the first visit of Europeans in 1841. The British occupied it in 1898 and made it part of the UGANDA Protectorate. In 1914 it became part of the Sudan. See also NILE RIVER.

GONDWANA [Gondaranya] (India)

An ancient region in India that lay in the area of ANDHRA PRADESH, MADHYA PRADESH, and MAHARASHTRA states. It was named for the Gonds, an early people who formed a succession of minor states here beginning in the 12th century A.D. The name is used in geology as Gondwana Land to designate a former continent believed to have existed in the geological period of continent formation.

GONZALES (United States)

City in S central TEXAS, 60 mi E of SAN ANTONIO. It was the scene of the first battle in the Texas revolution of 1835.

GOOD HOPE, CAPE OF [Portuguese: Cabo da Boa Esperança, Cabo Tormentoso] (South Africa)

Cape on the SW coast of WESTERN CAPE Province, W of False Bay, 30 mi S of CAPE TOWN, between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It was well known to early European, particularly Portuguese, explorers. Bartholomew Dias first rounded it and named it in 1488. According to an early account by João de Barros, Dias first named it the Cape of Storms (Cabo Tormentoso), but King John renamed it for public relations purposes. In any event, the discovery was not made known outside PORTUGAL for many years to protect Portuguese trade routes to the East. Vasco da Gama followed on his voyage to INDIA in 1497. In 1652 the first Dutch colonists in South Africa settled nearby at Table Bay.

GOOSE BAY (Canada)

Town and site of a military air base in SE LABRADOR province at the head of Lake Melville. Built in 1942, the base was a major take-off point for U.S. military planes bound for Europe during World War II.

GÖPPINGEN (Germany)

City in BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG, 24 mi ESE of STUTTGART. It was chartered by the Hohenstaufen emperors in the mid-12th century. The city was twice devastated by fire, in 1425 and 1782. Surviving buildings include a notable 15th-century church and a castle that dates from between 1559 and 1569.

GORA ZAOZERNAYA See CHANG-KU FENGGORDIUM (Turkey)

Ruins of an ancient city, 50 mi WSW of ANKARA, on the right bank of the Sakarya River. It was the capital of PHRYGIA from 1000 to 800 B.C. Tradition says it was founded by Gordius, legendary king of Phrygia and father of King Midas. It was here that Alexander the Great is said to have cut the Gordian knot with his sword. According to legend, anyone who untied this complex knot would rule all Asia. Alexander's action thus prophesied his conquest of the known Eastern world. Excavations since 1950 have uncovered Hittite, Phrygian, Persian, and Greco Roman remains.

GORÉE (Senegal)

Town and island, in a harbor formed by the peninsula of Cape Vert, West Africa. First occupied by the Dutch, it was captured by the French in behalf of the Senegal Company in 1677, and it became a slave-trading center and the first capital of FRENCH WEST AFRICA. Held by the British during the Napoleonic Wars, it was returned to FRANCE in 1817. It lost its importance with the founding of DAKAR and eventually became a part of Dakar and Dependencies. It was united with Senegal in 1946.

GORGAN [Gurgan, Jurjan] [former: Astarabad, Asterabad, Astrabad; Persian: Varkana] (Iran)

City and province of N Iran, 23 mi inland from the CASPIAN SEA. In ancient Hyrcania, the town was captured by the Arabs in 716. It was conquered by the Mongols in the 13th century and was the birthplace of Aga Muhammad Khan, founder of the Kajar dynasty of PERSIA. The town gained importance c. 1800 with the rise of this dynasty. See also MONGOL EMPIRES.

GORGEANA See YORK

GORI [former: Tontio] (Georgia)

Town in Georgia, on the Kura River, 40 mi NW of TBILISI. Known in the seventh century A.D. as Tontio, in the 12th century it became a fortress for Armenian refugees, with its present name. It was destroyed in the 18th century by Nadir Shah of PERSIA. Now a summer resort, it was the birthplace of Joseph Stalin (1879–1953), dictator of the USSR.

GORINCHEM [Gorkum] (Netherlands)

Town in South Holland province, at the confluence of the Waal and Meuse rivers. Hugo Grotius, the 17th-century Dutch legist and humanist, was imprisoned from 1619 to 1621 in a castle nearby.

GORIZIA [German: Görz] (Italy)

Capital of Gorizia province, FRIULI VENEZIA GIULIA region, on the Isonzo River, on the Slovenian border, 74 mi ENE of VENICE. Situated in the historic region of FRUILLI, it was the seat of a duchy from c. A.D. 1000 to 1500. In 1508 it came under the Hapsburgs but preserved virtual autonomy into the 18th century, serving as the capital of the former Austrian crownland of GÖRZ-GRADISCA. From 1815 to 1918 Görz-Gradisca was included in Küstenland province. During World War I the Italians took Gorizia in 1916, evacuated it in 1917, and took it again in 1918 in bloody battles. A 16th-century fortress, a Gothic cathedral of the 14th century and St. Ignatius church of 1680 to 1725 are of interest.

GORKI See NIZHNI NOVGOROD

GORKUM See GORINCHEM

GORKY See NIZHNI NOVGOROD

GORLICE (Poland)

Town and battle site, in SW Rzeszów province, 58 mi SE of KRACÓW. The center of the Polish petroleum industry, it was the scene of a battle in May 1915 during World War I, in the Dunajec Campaign. Here the Russians were driven back by the Austro-German armies.

GÖRLITZ (Germany)

City, in SAXONY, 54 mi E of DRESDEN, chiefly on the W bank of the Neisse River, near the Polish border. Formerly a major city of LUSATIA, it was founded c. 1200 and in 1377 became capital of the duchy of Görlitz. In 1526 it passed to the Hapsburgs, in 1635 to SAXONY, and in 1815 it was annexed by PRUSSIA. Jakob Boehme (1575–1624), the Christian mystic, lived here during the Hapsburg period. After World War II a section of the city on the right bank of the Neisse was placed in Poland and is called Zgorzelec. The town contains numerous well-preserved 18th-century baroque houses.

GORNO-ALTAI AUTONOMOUS OBLAST [Mountain Altai] [former: Oirod Autonomous Oblast] (Russia)

Region of SE Siberia, bordering on Mongolia, with its capital at Gorno Altaysk. The region contains most of the Altai Mts. There is evidence here for the existence of a primitive communal society as early as 3000 B.C. From the fifth century B.C. it was inhabited by Mongols, and from the sixth to the 10th centuries A.D. it was ruled by a Turkish khanate. From the 13th to the 18th centuries it was under various Mongolian khans, coming under the hegemony of Russia in 1756. Civil war battles were fought here after the Russian Revolution from 1918 to 1922 between the mountain people and the Bolsheviks. It became a republic in 1991 and joined the Russian Federation.

GORNO-BADAKHSHAN [Mountain Badakhshan] (Tajikistan)

Region of Tajikistan in the PAMIR MOUNTAINS, bordering on AFGHANISTAN and CHINA. Formerly under both Mongols and Arabs, it passed to Russian control in 1895. An autonomous oblast formed in 1925, its capital city is Khorog.

GORODOK [Polish: Gródeck Jagielloński] (Ukraine)

Town in the Lviv oblast, Ukraine, 16 mi WSW of LVIV. Formerly in POLAND, it was an important Russian fortification in World War I. It was the scene of a battle on June 12, 1915, in which the Russians were defeated.

GORTYNA [Gortyn] (Greece)

Ancient city in S central CRETE, SW of ancient KNOSOS, approximately 33 mi SSW of IRÁKLION. Its acropolis was inhabited from the Neolithic period and in the late Bronze Age. Homer refers to it as walled. In the Hellenistic period it was a member of the Cretan Koinon League. In 189 B.C. it harbored Hannibal during his flight E. The Romans conquered it in 67 B.C. and made it the capital of Crete and Cyrenaica province. St. Paul's disciple Titus was its first Christian bishop. The Saracens took it from the BYZANTINE EMPIRE c. A.D. 825. Its legal code, found in 1884, is the longest existing Greek inscription and dates from 450 B.C. Many temples and ruins survive from the Roman period, especially from the second century A.D.

GÖRZ See GORIZIAGÖRZ-GRADISCA [Italian: Gorizia] (Italy)

Former county and crownland of AUSTRIA, now Gorizia province, in Friuli-Venezia Giulia region, in the NE of Italy on the Isonzo River, bordering on Slovenia. GORIZIA is its capital. The Holy Roman Emperor gave it to John of Aquileia in the 10th century; it became the seat of the Eppenstein family in the 11th century. Controlled by the Lurngau family from the 12th to the 16th centuries, the estate of Görz then reverted to the Hapsburg dynasty in 1500 and was united with Gradisca in 1754 to establish the Görz-Gradisca countship. Following the Napoleonic Wars, it was part of Küstenland province until 1861, when it became a separate Austrian crownland.

It was the scene of severe fighting during the ISONZO RIVER campaign in World War I. Taken by the Italians in 1916, it was recaptured during the Austro-German Karst drive in 1917, and was taken again by Italy in 1918. The 1919 Treaty of St. Germain ceded it to Italy. Following World War II, eastern FRIULI was ceded to Yugoslavia in 1947, but Gorizia remained Italian.

GORZÓW WIELKOPOLSKI [German: Landsberg]

(Poland)

City of Zielona Góra province, on the Warta River. Founded as a German city in 1257, it was destroyed by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War. It rose again in the 18th century as part of the Prussian province of BRANDENBURG. The city was the scene of a battle in February 1813, during the Napoleonic Wars, in which the Russians defeated the French and the Poles. In World War II it again suffered great destruction. It was assigned to Poland by the POTSDAM Conference of 1945. See also PRUSSIA, SWEDEN.

GOSHEN (Egypt)

Fertile region in Egypt, E of the NILE RIVER delta. According to the Old Testament it was given to Jacob and his family by the king of Egypt. It was the place where Jacob's descendants lived until the Exodus. Goshen was also an unidentified region of southern CANAAN conquered by Joshua, according to the book of Joshua 10:41 and 11:16. It was also a town of JUDAH, according to Joshua 15:51.

GOSHEN [Stellaland] (South Africa)

A former Boer republic in the W TRANSVAAL. Established in 1882 it represented part of the westward expansion of the Boers. The republic became part of British BECHUANALAND in 1885 and is now part of CAPE PROVINCE.

GOSLAR (Germany)

City of SE LOWER SAXONY, 23 mi S of BRUNSWICK, in the N Harz Mts. Founded in 922, it joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE c. 1350 and remained a free imperial city until 1802, when it passed to PRUSSIA. In 1807 it became part of WESTPHALIA and was returned to Prussia in 1866. In the mid-14th century the city promulgated a famous code of laws, the Goslar Statutes. Long a favorite residence of the early German emperors, it was also the scene of several imperial diets. The city retains much medieval character with the Kaiserpfalz, a large Romanesque palace built in the mid-11th century for Emperor Henry III, Romanesque and Gothic churches, a Gothic city hall and many half-timbered houses, including the well-known Brustuch, built in 1526.

GOSPORT (England)

Town in HAMPSHIRE on Portsmouth Harbor, opposite PORTSMOUTH, 67 mi SW of LONDON. A major port, it was an embarkation point for the invasion of FRANCE in 1944. The Holy Trinity Church has an organ on which George Frederick Handel played.

GÖTEBORG [Gothenburg] (Sweden)

Second-largest city and chief port, in SW Sweden, at the mouth of the Gota River, on the KATTEGAT.

Originally founded in 1604 by Charles IX, it was destroyed by the Danes in the Kalmar War and was reestablished in 1619 by Gustavus Adolphus. It became a major commercial center in the 18th century, with large colonies of Dutch and British merchants. The Swedish East India Company was founded here in 1731. A cathedral dating from 1633 was restored in 1956–57.

GOTHA (Germany)

City in THURINGIA, 15 mi W of ERFURT. Known by the late 12th century, in 1485 the city passed to the Ernestine line of the house of Wettin and in 1640 became capital of the duchy of SAXE-GOTHA, which from 1826 to 1918 was the duchy of SAXE-COBURG-GOTHA. It has long been a center of geographical research and publishing, as exemplified by the publishing house of Justus Perthes, founded in 1785 and now called Hermann Haack, which was responsible for the Almanach de Gotha. Outstanding historic buildings include a 15th-century church, a 17th-century ducal palace, and the 18th-century Friedrichstal Palace.

GOTHAM (England)

Village in NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, seven mi SSW of NOTTINGHAM. The inhabitants of this village were reputedly “simple” when King John I visited the village to select a site for a palace. The residents feigned stupidity because they did not want to support a royal residence.

Gotham was also used as a name for New York City, first by Washington Irving and others in the Salmagundi Papers, with satirical allusion to the English village. It and New Yorkers were satirized because they were thought such wiseacres. See also NEW YORK CITY.

GOTHAM, UNITED STATES See NEW YORK CITY

GOTHENBURG See GÖTEBORG

GOTHLAND See GOTLAND

GOTLAND [Gothland, Gottland] (Sweden)

An island in the BALTIC SEA, off the SE coast of Sweden that, with several other islands, constitutes a county. VISBY is the capital. Archaeological remains indicate that it has been inhabited since the Stone Age. It is known to have had wide commercial contacts under the Vikings from the ninth to the 11th centuries, and large numbers of Roman, Byzantine, and Arabic coins have been found here, evidence of this trade. From the 11th to 14th centuries it prospered as a major trading center of northern Europe. In the 12th century German merchants settled at Visby, which became one of the chief cities of the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. But internal strife between the Hanse merchants and the local tradesmen weakened it. In 1280 the Swedish King Magnus I conquered it, in 1361 it was taken by Waldemar IV of DENMARK, and again in 1370 it was taken by the Hanseatic League. By the Treaty of Stettin in 1570 it passed under Danish rule; and the Peace of Brömsebro of 1645 returned it to Swedish rule. It has many fine churches and the ruins of numerous castles. The walls of Visby still stand largely intact.

GÖTTINGEN (Germany)

City in S LOWER SAXONY, on the Leine River, 55 mi SSW of BRUNSWICK. Known from the 10th century, it was chartered in 1210 and joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE. Its noted university was opened in 1737 by Elector George Augustus, later George II of Great Britain. In 1837 King Ernest Augustus revoked the liberal constitution of HANOVER, under whose jurisdiction Göttingen fell, and seven professors were summarily dismissed after issuing a strong protest. They included Jakob and Karl Grimm, the founders of comparative philology and authors of the fairy tales, and the historians G.G. Gervinius and F.C. Dahlman. This action led to the university's decline, but it revived in the 19th century with the growth of renowned departments in mathematics and physics. Recently, the university has attracted attention as the academic home of the Roman Catholic theologian Hans Küng. The city was virtually undamaged in World War II, and numerous historic buildings remain, including a 14th-century town hall, half-timbered houses, student taverns, and several museums.

GOTTLAND See GOTLAND

GOTTORF See GOTTORP

GOTTORP [Gottorf] (Germany)

A castle just NW of the city of SCHLESWIG, the residence of the dukes of Schleswig from 1268. It gave its name to the Holstein-Gottorp line of the Oldenburg family, founded in 1586 by Duke Adolf, a younger son of King Frederick I of DENMARK. In 1948 it was made into a museum. See also HOLSTEIN.

GOUDA (Netherlands)

Town, NE of ROTTERDAM, at the confluence of the Gouwe and Hollandsche IJssel Rivers. It received its charter in 1272 and became a center of the medieval cloth trade. Erasmus studied in Gouda prior to 1475 and entered a nearby Augustinian monastery in 1486. The home of Gouda cheese, it is also known for the 16th-century Groote Kerk, also Sint Janskerk, famous for its 40 stained glass windows, one of the largest churches in the Netherlands.

GOURNIA (Greece)

Ancient Minoan town on the NE coast of CRETE, at the head of Mirabella Bay. Set on a low hill, it has streets five feet wide, some of them with steps. The ruins of a palace, of c. 1600 B.C., and a shrine are of further interest. It was excavated between 1901 and 1904.

GOUROCK (Scotland)

Town in STRATHCLYDE region, 25 mi WNW of GLASGOW, on the S shore of the Firth of CLYDE. Now a seaport, summer resort, and yachting center, it served in World War II as a major debarkation point for U.S. forces. From May 1942 to the end of 1943 approximately 1,317,000 Americans landed here.

GOVERNORS ISLAND (United States)

Island on the inner part of BOSTON Harbor, MASSACHUSETTS. It is the site of Fort Winthrop, a colonial fortress named for John Winthrop, first governor of the Massachusetts Colony.

GOVERNORS ISLAND [Nutten Island] [Dutch: Nooten Eylandt] (United States)

Island in NEW YORK, off the S end of MANHATTAN in the East River, NEW YORK CITY. It was originally named Nooten Eylandt by the Dutch who settled it between 1625 and 1664, when NEW AMSTERDAM fell to the English. The English set the island aside for the governors of New York in 1698. Fort Jay, at the N end, was built in 1798, rebuilt in 1806, and renamed Fort Columbus from 1808 to 1904. Castle Williams, overlooking the harbor on the W, was built between 1807 and 1811 but was never used in war. It was converted to a military prison in 1912.

The island was turned over to the U.S. Coast Guard by the army in 1966. It contains several other buildings of historical interest, including the Governor's House of 1708, the Admiral's House of 1840, and the chapel of St. Cornelius of 1905. In 2003 control over most of the island reverted to the State of New York, however the Governors Island National Monument is managed by the U.S. Department of the Interior.

GOWER (Wales)

Peninsula of West GLAMORGAN, W of SWANSEA, between Swansea Bay and Carmarthen Bay. Numerous caves here contain Paleolithic and Bronze Age relics. Known for its scenic splendor, the peninsula has been officially designated a natural beauty area.

GOZAN (Syria)

Region now in NE Syria, bordering on the Khabur River. It was a fertile country to which the Assyrians carried off over 27,000 inhabitants of ISRAEL, the northern kingdom, into exile in 722 B.C., as recounted in the Old Testament books of Kings and Isaiah. They were thereafter known as the Lost Tribes of Israel.

GRAAFF REINET (South Africa)

Town in EASTERN CAPE Province, on the Great Karroo River. Founded in 1786, it served as the capital of a short-lived Boer republic in 1795–96. Andries Pretorius, the Boer leader, was born here in 1799.

GRADISCA D'ISONZO (Italy)

Town in Gorizia province, FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA, region SW of GORIZIA, on the opposite side of the Isonzo River. It was founded as a town by VENICE in the late 15th century to serve as a fortress against the Turks. The Venetian fortress was ceded to AUSTRIA in 1511 and became part of the Austrian crownland of GÖRZ-GRADISCA in the province of Küstenland from 1754 to 1918. During World War I it was taken by the Italians in 1915, and it became part of Italy in 1918.

GRADO (Italy)

Town in Udine province, FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA region, on a small island in the NW part of the Gulf of Trieste, N ADRIATIC SEA, approximately 18 mi W

478 Graecia

of TRIESTE. Founded by refugees from AQUILEIA in the time of Attila the Hun on the site of an outer port of Aquileia, it became the seat of the patriarchate of Nova Aquileia from c. 570 until 1451, when the title was abolished in favor of Venice. It has a fine cathedral with elements of fourth-century building and a mosaic pavement, rebuilt between 571 and 586. The church of Santa Maria delle Grazie dates to the sixth century.

GRAECIA See GREECE

GRAECIA MAGNA See MAGNA GRAECIA

GRAFENWÖHR (Germany)

Village in BAVARIA, approximately 21 mi SE of BAYREUTH. It was the site of a Nazi concentration camp.

GRAFTON (United States)

Town in Worcester county, central MASSACHUSETTS, 6 mi ESE of WORCESTER. It was the site of an Indian village established in 1654 by John Eliot, known as the Apostle to the Indians.

GRAHAM COAST See GRAHAM LAND

GRAHAM LAND [former: Graham Coast, North Graham Island, South Graham Island] (Great Britain) Peninsula in ANTARCTICA belonging to British Antarctic Territory, extending 65° S to 16° 15' S. Annexed to Great Britain by John Biscoe in 1831–32, and also claimed by ARGENTINA and CHILE, it was originally thought to be separate islands, but further exploration revealed it to be part of the Antarctic mainland.

GRAHAMSTAD See GRAHAMSTOWN

GRAHAMSTOWN [Afrikaans: Grahamstad] (South Africa)

Town in EASTERN CAPE Province, 75 mi ENE of PORT ELIZABETH. Founded in 1812 as a military post, it was repeatedly attacked by the Xhosa and other peoples in the early 19th century. Besieged by the Kafirs in 1819, it became the chief town of the British settlers of 1820. In the 20th century it has become an important legal and educational center, with the founding of Rhodes University in 1904 and the Albany Museum, which has extensive collections of prehistoric and natural history materials.

GRAIN COAST (Liberia)

Coastal region of Upper Guinea, West Africa, now Liberia, extending from Cape Palmas to the SIERRA LEONE border. In the 15th century, grains of paradise, i.e., seeds of melegueta pepper, became a major export item, and the area became known as the Grain Coast.

GRAMONT See GERAARDSBERGEN

GRAMPIAN (Scotland)

Region from 1975–96 incorporating the former counties of Aberdeenshire, Kincardine, and parts of Banff and Moray. The administrative headquarters was ABERDEEN. It was divided in 1996 into council areas of Moray, Aberdeenshire, and the City of Aberdeen.

GRAMPIUS, MOUNT See GRAUPIUS, MOUNT

GRAN See ESZTERGOM

GRANADA (Nicaragua)

Oldest city in the country, in the SW, on the NW shore of Lake Nicaragua. It was founded by Francisco de Córdoba in 1523–24. In its early days it was the object of repeated raids by pirates. After 1821 and independence from SPAIN, it became a conservative center and stronghold of the landed aristocracy, engaging in constant warfare with LEÓN, a city of liberals. This struggle led to the founding of MANAGUA in 1885. It was captured in 1855 and burned in 1856 by the U.S. freebooter William Walker. Many beautiful old buildings, including a cathedral, survived the burning and are still standing.

GRANADA [ancient: Illiberis; Arabic: Gharnatah, Karnattah (Hill of Strangers)] (Spain)

City and province of old ANDALUSIA, the city lies at the foot of the Sierra Nevada, 80 mi SE of CÓRDOVA, at the confluence of the Darro and Genil Rivers. A Roman center, it was conquered by the Moors in the eighth century A.D. The city rose to prominence in the ALMORAVID and ALMOHAD dynasties. In 1238 it became the seat of a kingdom founded by the Nasrid dynasty. It was the last refuge of Moors driven S by the Christian reconquest and remained a center of Muslim learning and civilization after other Moorish strongholds had fallen. The kingdom occupied the present provinces of ALMERÍA and MÁLAGA and parts of JAÉN and CÁDIZ. Constant feuds among the noble families, notably the Zegrís and Alenceraes, weakened it, and it was finally conquered by Ferdinand and Isabella between 1481 and 1492 for Christian Spain during the reign of Boabdil. The famous Moorish citadel and palace of the Alhambra, begun in 1238 and a masterpiece of the Moorish arts, dominates the city from a hill, and a palace of Emperor Charles V is on the same hill. A 16th-century Carthusian monastery and a Gothic cathedral, with an adjoining chapel containing the tombs of Ferdinand and Isabella, are here, as are the gardens of the Palacio del Generalife, the summer residence of the Moorish rulers.

GRAN CHACO [Chaco] (Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay)

Plains region W of the Paraguay and Paraná rivers, mostly in N Argentina and W Paraguay but also in S Bolivia. The area was the subject of the bloody Chaco War of 1932–35 between Bolivia and Paraguay. The boundary was finally settled in 1938.

GRAN COLOMBIA

Former nation made up of the present countries of COLOMBIA, ECUADOR, PANAMA, and VENEZUELA in South America. The region they comprised was part of the Spanish viceroyalty of NEW GRANADA from 1739 until independence in 1821. The area then became the nation of Gran (or Great) Colombia with Simón Bolívar as president. Known as the Liberator, Bolívar had done more than any other leader to secure freedom from Spain for South and Central America. In 1830 Ecuador and Venezuela withdrew from the grouping, and Colombia, including what is now Panama, became New Granada before changing its name to the present one in 1863.

GRAND BANKS (Canada)

Ocean shoal or banks within the 100-fathom line, E and S of NEWFOUNDLAND. It constitutes the greatest cod-fishing region in the world. Located in waters made dangerous by fog and icebergs, the area has for centuries been frequented by the fishing fleets of Canada, the UNITED STATES, FRANCE, and GREAT BRITAIN. The banks were known to European fishermen, especially the Portuguese, by the time of John Cabot's voyage in 1497–98. At present it is a center of controversy over proposed ocean drilling for oil in the area that could endanger the fisheries.

GRAND CANAL [Chinese: Yun He (Transport River); Yu He (Imperial River)] (China)

Important N-S waterway on the China plain extending approximately 1,000 mi from BEIJING to HANGZHOU in E China. Begun in the sixth century B.C. and built by dredging and linking existing canals, it was constructed over a 2,000-year period. The largest section was completed in A.D. 610 under Emperor Yangdi of the Sui dynasty. From the 10th to the 13th centuries it fell into disrepair, but was reconstructed by Kublai Khan from 1282 to 1292 and extended to Beijing. Further improvements were made during the Ming dynasty of 1368–44. Today it follows the river S from the Tong Xian section of Beijing to TIANJIN through SHANDONG, JIANGSU, and ZHEJIANG provinces but has been superseded in some measure by coastal transport and railroads.

GRAND CANYON (United States)

Gorge in the COLORADO RIVER where it flows across the NW corner of ARIZONA. It is the product of 8 million years of erosion. Hundreds of ancient Indian pueblos are on the lower canyon walls and the rim. In 1540 the Spanish explorer García López de Cárdenas became the first European to lay eyes on it. In 1869 the U.S. explorer John Powell led a party through the canyon in a boat, and in 1908 the canyon was set aside as a national monument. The area was expanded and made a national park in 1919.

GRAND CHUTE See APPLETON

GRAND COURONNÉ (France)

Region E and NE of NANCY. In a battle here during World War I, from September 5 to 12, 1914, the Germans attempted to capture Nancy, but were driven back by troops under French general de Castelnau.

GRANDCOURT (France)

Village of the Somme department, N of ALBERT. It was the scene of severe fighting during the Battle of the SOMME in 1916, during World War I. It was taken by the British on February 7, 1917.

GRAND FORKS (United States)

City in E NORTH DAKOTA, approximately 75 mi N of FARGO. It was first settled in 1801 as a campsite and fur-trading post by French traders, who gave it its name because it is at the confluence of the Red River of the North and Red Lake River. In the 1880s Grand Forks became an important station on the Great Northern Railway, and it continues to be an active shipping and trading center for a large farming area. Much of the city was flooded in 1997.

GRAND PRÉ (Canada)

Village of NOVA SCOTIA province, on the S shore of the Minas Basin, near Wolfville, on an arm of the Bay of Fundy. Founded c. 1675, it was the site of an early settlement by the French Acadians, whose expulsion in 1755 by the British is the subject of Henry Longfellow's poem, Evangeline. It was also the birthplace of Sir Robert Borden, prime minister of Canada from 1911 to 1920. See also ACADIA.

GRAND PRÉ (France)

Village and battle site in the ARDENNES department, on the Aire River, 10 mi SE of VOUIERS. It was a center of fighting in October 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive of World War I. See also ARGONNE RIVER, MEUSE RIVER.

GRAND RAPIDS (United States)

City and county seat of Kent county, W MICHIGAN, on the Grand River, 61 mi WNW of LANSING. Originally the site of an Ottawa Indian village, it became a trading post in 1826 and was chartered as a city in 1850, after which it became an important lumbering and furniture center.

GRAND RIVER See OTTAWA RIVERGRANDSEE See GRANDSONGRANDSON [Granson] [German: Grandsee] (Switzerland)

Town of the VAUD canton, W Switzerland, at the SW end of the Lake of NEUCHÂTEL. An important town in the Middle Ages, it is known chiefly as the scene of the defeat in 1476 of Charles the Bold of BURGUNDY by the Swiss Confederates, shortly after he had slaughtered the garrison there. See also MORAT, NANCY.

GRANGEMOUTH (Scotland)

Town and port in Central region, 21 mi WNW of EDINBURGH, on the FORTH Estuary, at the terminus of the Forth and Clyde Canal. Founded in 1777 to be the terminus of the canal, which opened in 1790, it was the scene of many experiments in steam navigation. The Charlotte Dundas, a pioneer steamboat, was launched here in 1802.

GRANICUS [modern: Kocabas] (Turkey)

Short river flowing N into the SEA OF MARMARA, which gave its ancient name to the first major victory of Alexander the Great against the Persians at the beginning of his epic conquest of the entire Persian Empire. The battle took place in 334 B.C. at the mouth of the river. Facing Alexander's forces of 32,000 infantry and 5,000 cavalry supported by a navy, Memnon of RHODES, Greek commander of Darius of PERSIA, was utterly routed. See also MACEDONIAN EMPIRE.

GRAN QUIVIRA NATIONAL MONUMENT (United States)

An area encompassing approximately 610 acres in central NEW MEXICO, approximately 70 mi SE of ALBUQUERQUE. It contains Indian pueblo ruins and one of the most important of the earliest Spanish mission ruins in the Southwest.

GRANSON See GRANDSONGRANTABRIDGE See CAMBRIDGEGRANTEBRYEGE See CAMBRIDGEGRANTHAM (England)

Town and battle site in LINCOLNSHIRE on the Witham River, 23 mi E of NOTTINGHAM. Here in March 1643, Oliver Cromwell won his first victory over the Royalists. Landmarks include St. Wulfram's Church, mainly of the 13th century, Angel Inn, where in 1483 Richard III condemned the duke of BUCKINGHAM to death, a bronze statue of Sir Isaac Newton on St. Peter's Hill, who attended King's School in Grantham, and the George Hotel, described by Dickens in his novel Nicholas Nickleby.

GRANVILLE (Canada) See VANCOUVER

GRANVILLE (France)

Fortified port and town in the Manche department, on the Gulf of St. Malo, 30 mi SW of SAINT-LÔ, and 85 mi SW of CHERBOURG. Fortified by the English in 1437, it was taken by the French in 1441, during the Hundred Years' War. It was bombarded and burned by the English in 1695 and was besieged by the Vendéans in 1793. It was bombarded again by the British in 1803 and 1808, during the Napoleonic Wars. In World War II it was taken by U.S. forces on July 30, 1944. It contains a 12th-century church, partly Romanesque and partly late Gothic. See VENDÉE.

GRAPPA, MOUNT [Italian: Monte Grappa] (Italy)

Mountain peak at the meeting of Vicenza, Belluno, and Treviso provinces, in the VENETO region, NE Italy, 10 mi N of BASSANO. It was the scene of severe fighting from October 24 to 30, 1918, during World War I.

GRASMERE (England)

Village in the LAKE DISTRICT, CUMBRIA, 29 mi NNW of LANCASTER. It is in an area beloved by a number of English poets and writers. Dove Cottage was the home of William Wordsworth from 1799 to 1808 and now contains a Wordsworth museum. The Wordsworth family is buried in the churchyard of St. Oswald's Church here. Thomas De Quincey and Samuel Taylor Coleridge also lived in Grasmere.

GRASSE (France)

Town in the Alpes-Maritimes department, 17 mi W of NICE. Probably founded in Roman times, it was a commercial center during the Middle Ages. Destroyed many times by the Saracens, it was an independent republic from the 12th century until its union with the earldom of PROVENCE in 1226–27. The town was destroyed again by French king François I in 1536 to prevent the advance of Hapsburg emperor Charles V. It is now the center of the French perfume industry. Of particular historic interest are an early Gothic cathedral, a town hall built partially in the Middle Ages, and a museum containing paintings by Jean-Honoré Fragonard (1732–1806), French painter who was born here.

GRATZ See GRAZGRAUBÜNDEN [French: Grisons] (Switzerland)

A canton of E Switzerland with its capital at CHUR, it includes the Engadine Valley and the sources of the Rhine and Inn rivers. Forming the largest part of the ancient Roman province of RAETIA, it was conquered by the Franks in the sixth century A.D. It became part of GERMANY in the early 10th century. The region accepted the Reformation in 1526 and joined the Swiss Confederation in 1803.

GRAUDENZ See GRUDZIADZGRAUPIUS, MOUNT [Grampius, Mount] [ancient: Mons Graupius] (Scotland)

Mountain and battle site of unknown location in ancient Caledonia, now Scotland. The scene of a battle in which Galgacus was defeated in A.D. 84 by the Romans under Agricola, it is mentioned by Tacitus in his Agricola. It has also been called erroneously Mount Grampius, the name that became applied to the Grampian Hills of Scotland.

GRAVELOTTE (France)

Village in the Moselle department, near METZ. In 1870 it was the scene of one of the most important battles of the Franco-Prussian War. Here the French under Marshal Bazaine were forced to retreat into Metz by the Germans under King William I of PRUSSIA.

GRAVESEND (England)

Town in KENT, on the THAMES RIVER estuary, 22 mi E of LONDON. Known as the Gateway to the Port of London, it was for centuries the place of official reception for London's distinguished visitors and the starting point of expeditions. The Indian princess Pocahontas died here in 1617 and is buried in the parish churchyard.

GRAVINA IN PUGLIA [ancient: Sidion, Silvium] (Italy)

Town of Bari province, APULIA region, in the SE, 30 mi SW of BARI. Surrounded by walls and towers, it is probably medieval, but there is some conjecture that it occupies the site of ancient Blera, a post station on the APPIAN WAY. It was originally a town of the Peuceti, which the Romans took and renamed Silvium. According to tradition the inhabitants took refuge in nearby ravines (gravine) during the barbarian invasions. Many of these were inhabited until A.D. 983 when the town was destroyed by Saracens. It fell to the Normans in the 11th century. In 1420 it became a fief of the Orsini of ROME, who held it until 1807. Catacombs, the cathedral, a 15th-century basilica, are of interest.

GRAY (France)

Town and river port on the SAÔNE RIVER, Haute-Saône department, 30 mi W of VESOUL. Founded in the seventh century, the town and its fortifications were destroyed by Louis XIV. During the Franco-Prussian War, Gray was a quartering center for German troops under General August von Werder in his drives toward DIJON, LANGRES, and BESANÇON. A Gothic church from the 13th to the 15th centuries and a 17th-century château remain.

GRAZ [Gratz] (Austria)

Second-largest city in Austria, on the left bank of the Mur River, 87 mi SSW of VIENNA, in the Styrian Alps. Probably founded in the 12th century, it was built around the Schlossberg, a mountain peak on which are the ruins of a 15th-century fortress and the famous Uhrturm (clock tower). The astronomer Johannes Kepler (1571–1630) taught from 1594 to 1600 at the university here, founded in the 16th century. Notable buildings in the city include a 15th-century Gothic cathedral built by Emperor Frederick III, several medieval churches, and a twin-naved Gothic parish church that contains Tintoretto's Assumption of the Virgin. The Landhaus or provincial parliament dates from the 16th century. Graz is the burial place of Emperor Ferdinand II.

GREAT ADMIRALTY ISLAND See MANUSGREAT BARRINGTON (United States)

Town in MASSACHUSETTS, on the HOUSATONIC RIVER, 18 mi S of PITTSFIELD, named in honor of John Shute, Viscount Barrington of Ardglass (1678–1734). It was a center of disaffection during Shay's Rebellion. A riot here prevented the sitting of court on September 12, 1786. From 1758 to 1765 it was the home of Joseph Dwight (1703–65), a merchant, lawyer, and brigadier general of the Massachusetts militia who took part in the LOUISBOURG expedition of 1745 in the French and Indian War. William Cullen Bryant, the American poet and newspaper editor, was a lawyer and town clerk here from 1815 to 1825.

GREAT BEAR LAKE (Canada)

Largest lake in Canada and the fourth-largest in North America, in the NW central Mackenzie district, NORTHWEST TERRITORIES. It was discovered c.

1800 by traders of the North West Company who established a trading post here. The British explorer Sir John Franklin built Fort Franklin on the southwestern shore in 1825. It was noted for the radium ores, now exhausted, discovered on its eastern shore in 1929.

GREAT BRITAIN

The largest island of the British Isles, with its adjacent islands, in NE Europe, it now forms part of the UNITED KINGDOM. The history of Great Britain is that of ENGLAND, WALES, and SCOTLAND. It was united under one king in 1603 when the Scottish and English Crowns were joined under James VI of Scotland. Great Britain became a single political unit in 1707, following the Act of Union. After the union of the British and Irish parliaments in 1801, Great Britain became part of the larger national unit of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

GREAT DISMAL SWAMP See DISMAL SWAMPGREATER WALACHIA See MUNTENIAGREAT FALLS (United States)

City in central MONTANA, on the MISSOURI RIVER, 12 mi N of the Great Falls of the Missouri. The log cabin of Charles M. Russell, the noted painter of the American West, is preserved here as a museum.

GREAT GRIMSBY See GRIMSBYGREAT LAKES, THE

See Lakes ERIE, HURON, MICHIGAN, ONTARIO, SUPERIOR

GREAT MARLOW See MARLOWGREAT MORAVIAN EMPIRE See MORAVIAGREAT PLAINS (Canada, United States)

High grassland area extending S from central Canada through the W central United States into TEXAS, and from the MISSISSIPPI RIVER W to the foothills of the ROCKY MOUNTAINS. First explored by Spain in the 17th century, the Great Plains had long been inhabited by American Indians. Obtaining the horse and the gun from the European settlers, the Indians of the area evolved a new, bison-hunting culture that lasted until the West was overwhelmed by the pioneers and settlers from the East. Well into the 19th century, however, the area was called the Great American Desert. It was traversed only by hunters, trappers, and pioneers on their way to the West Coast.

It was the invention of the steel plow by John Deere and its introduction in 1837, followed by many other agricultural improvements, and the building of the railroads across the Great Plains in the second half of the 19th century that enabled settlers and farmers to take root in a hitherto hostile environment. The settlers moved in as the Indians were subdued and placed on reservations in the Indian wars of the 1860s and 1870s and their aftermath. Soon bitter conflicts developed between ranchers and farmers, contesting the use of the same land. To tend the cattle the famous cowboy culture developed, culminating in the Long Drive of fattened herds NW across the Great Plains to the railheads for shipment E. The Long Drive came to an end with the introduction of barbed wire in 1874 to fence the cattle ranges.

In the end the farmers won out, and by the early 20th century the Great Plains had become the Bread Basket of the United States. It was soon to start feeding much of the rest of the world as huge mechanized farms developed. In the 1930s, however, the Wheat Belt suffered disaster from overextension, as a period of drought created the DUST BOWL, enormous clouds of dust blown by the prairie winds, engulfing much of the area. With a more cautious approach, the Plains area soon revived and is once again a world supplier of wheat, though now dangerously subject to sudden shifts in the world market and falling prices.

GREAT SALTEE ISLAND See SALTEE ISLANDS

GREAT SALT LAKE (United States)

Lake, in N UTAH. This famous lake, which has no outlet, is approximately 83 mi long and 51 mi wide. It was discovered by James Bridger in 1824. John C. Frémont was the first explorer to cross the salt desert surrounding it. SALT LAKE CITY was founded near the eastern end of the lake by the Mormons in 1847.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY See SALT LAKE CITY

GREAT SERPENT MOUND (United States)

Prehistoric Indian earthwork, in Adams county, S OHIO, in Serpent Mound State Park. It is 1,330 ft long, 20 ft wide at the base, and approximately 3 ft high; its exact purpose remains a mystery. It may have been used for defense or for religious ceremonies.

GREAT SLAVE LAKE (Canada)

Second-largest lake in Canada and the deepest in North America, in the S Mackenzie district, NORTHWEST TERRITORIES. It is named for the Slave, or Dogrib, Indians. Discovered in 1771 by Samuel Hearne, a British fur trader, it attracted public attention in the 1930s with the discovery of gold, and it is still an important gold-mining area. The town of YELLOWKNIFE, named for the area Indians, was established on the lakeshore as a mining center. It is now the capital of the Northwest Territories.

GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS (United States)

Mountain region that forms one of the main sections of the Appalachian Mountain system, between ASHEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, on the E and KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE on the W. Geologically this is one of the oldest upland regions in the world, with more than 25 peaks of over 6,000 feet, a great variety of flora and fauna, and the largest tracts of virgin hardwood and red spruce in the United States. The mountains take their name from the smokelike haze that hangs over them.

They were a barrier to the westward expansion of the United States, although a road now goes through Newfound Gap at 5,048 feet. The land was originally in the domain of the Cherokee Indians and their formation is a central myth in their beliefs. Hernando De Soto first penetrated the southern reaches of the chain in the 1540s. Later white pioneers settled in the valleys and the remains of some of their primitive dwellings have been preserved. In 1761 Colonel Grant, with an army of Chickasaw and Catawba Indians invaded Cherokee territory, destroyed their highly developed towns, and drove the Indians from the area. The Cherokees were finally removed by Supreme Court decision in 1838–39. The mountains first gained fame in William Bartram's account published in 1791. The Great Smokies were explored and made known to a wider public in the 19th century by Thomas L. Clingman, a U.S. senator from North Carolina, and Arnold H. Guyot, a Swiss-born geographer. In 1828 GEORGIA annexed all Cherokee territory in the mountains. Part of the region became the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in 1930 in a step taken to preserve the primeval forests. The popular hiking path, the Appalachian Trail, which runs from MAINE to Georgia, traverses the region. Strip-mining and forestry industries still threaten large portions of the region.

GREAT SWAMP See SOUTH KINGSTOWN

GREAT TRAIL (United States)

An Indian trail extending from FORT PITT at the junction of the ALLEGHENY and MONONGAHELA rivers to the present site of DETROIT. The trail was used by settlers in the westward movement until the CUMBERLAND ROAD was opened.

GREAT WALL [Chinese Wall] [Chinese: Chang Chêng] (China)

Defensive wall in N China extending approximately 1,500 mi from its start from Shanhaiguan Pass in the E to Jiayuguan Pass in the W traversing provinces of LIAONING, HEBEI, BEIJING, TIANJIN, SHANXI, INNER MONGOLIA, NINGXIA, SHAANXI, and GANSU. Built for defense by Emperor Qin Shihuang in the third century B.C., its purpose was to protect China from northern nomads. Completed in 204 B.C., its actual length, including branches, is more than 2,000 miles. It was constructed by more than 300,000 men, mostly prisoners, and has many important gates including SHANHAIGUAN at the eastern end; Juyongguan in Hebei NW of Beijing; NANKOU, leading to Kalgan; Yenmenguan, Pianguan, and Ningwuguan in northern Shanxi; and Jiayuguan at the extreme W in Gansu. Its present form dates from the Ming dynasty of 1368 to 1644, and is actually an amalgamation of many walls built in ancient times. Successive invasions from the N have demonstrated that the wall had little military utility.

GREAT YARMOUTH See YARMOUTH

GREAT ZIMBABWE (Zimbabwe)

Magnificent ruin in what was formerly called RHODESIA, 17 mi SE of VICTORIA. The two great enclosures here and other ruins date from the Shona ascendancy in the late 14th and early 15th centuries. They gave their name, which simply means "stone enclosure," to the present independent African state of Zimbabwe. The earliest settlement at Zimbabwe came circa the 11th century A.D. By the 14th century the Shona, possessing a stable culture based on agriculture, the herding of cattle, and the use of iron, had grown wealthy on the exporting of gold to the coast, to such towns as KILWA and SOFALA, which reexported it through the INDIAN OCEAN trade throughout the East.

Great Zimbabwe was not a palace, a fort, or a city, but a ceremonial series of stone-built enclosures erected as a center for their chieftdom. The workmanship of these remarkable walls and towers was purely native, although as late as the early 20th century Europeans refused to believe that they had been built by Africans and attributed them, variously, to the Phoenicians, Arabs, or the Queen of Sheba. Recent intensive archaeological work, however, has clarified their date and origin. When the Portuguese arrived in the early 16th century the culture was already in decline, though the northern state of MWANAMUTAPA was still powerful. The remnants of this native culture were finally destroyed by the fierce Nguni nomads, who had pushed N to evade the militant Zulus. The Nguni caught the last Shona king and flayed him alive.

GREECE [ancient: Hellas; Greek: Ellas; Latin: Graecia]

Mountainous nation of SE Europe, occupying the southernmost part of the BALKAN PENINSULA. Its neighbors to the N are ALBANIA, MACEDONIA, BULGARIA, and TURKEY. Three seas form parts of its borders: The IONIAN on the W, MEDITERRANEAN on the S, and AEGEAN on the E. Greece includes many islands, among them CRETE, the IONIANS, the CYCLADES, the DODECANESE (including RHODES), LESBOS, SAMOS, and SAMOTHRACE. Modern Greece encompasses all or part of a number of historic regions: ATTICA, BOEOTIA, EPIRUS, MACEDONIA, the PELOPONNESUS, THESALY, and THRACE. The capital of Greece is ATHENS. The high culture that developed in Greece by the seventh century B.C. was a primary source of today's Western civilization, especially in politics, literature, philosophy, the arts, and architecture.

Traces of settlement have been dated to 40,000 B.C. Greece's known history began during the Neolithic Age of c. 7000 B.C. By the Bronze Age, beginning c. 2800 B.C., several notable cultures had developed, known collectively as the Aegean Civilization. This first flowering of civilization in Europe included the Minoan Civilization on Crete, which reached its peak c. 1600 B.C., and on the mainland the Mycenaean, developed under the influence of the Minoans by people who entered Greece from the N or NE c. 2000 B.C. These invaders have been shown to be the earliest Greeks (the Cretans were not). The Mycenaean were centered on the PELOPONNESUS at MYCENAE, TIRYNS, ARGOS, and PYLOS and at Athens. They reached their height c. 1400 B.C., their influence increasing after the Minoan Empire collapsed c. 1450 B.C.—possibly owing to the effects of an earthquake and tidal wave after the explosion of the island of THERA in the Aegean Sea. The Mycenaean settlements, like the Minoan, centered around massive stone palaces that dominated the agrarian society around them. Both societies also engaged heavily in trade, much of it by sea.

The Mycenaean Empire in turn disintegrated c. 1200 B.C., possibly through internal dissension, but more probably because of attacks by renewed waves of barbarian Greek tribes from the N, notably the Dorians, the last to enter Greece, between c. 1100 and 950 B.C. All the Mycenaean centers but Athens fell to them. In the early Dark Ages that followed, civilization was all but lost, but under the influence of the older cultures what we know as the age of Classical Greece began to emerge as early as the eighth century B.C., when Homer wrote his epics. These are full of the memories of the earlier Aegean age and its collapse, which included the attack on TROY by the Achaeans and other Greek peoples.

Because of its geography, broken into numerous valleys with deep inlets of the sea and its many islands, Greece had seldom been united under one ruler but consisted of several hundred city-states, each occupying a relatively small territory. Chief among these were Athens, CORINTH, SPARTA, and THEBES and Mycenae in the earlier period. As the number and power of these city-states increased, their populations multiplied, and their land resources diminished. They therefore used the sea lanes on which they lived to found widespread colonies, largely between 750 and 650 B.C. Those in the West were often known as MAGNA GRAECIA. Greek colonies were founded not only on the Mediterranean islands but on the shores of the BLACK SEA, in ASIA MINOR and off SYRIA, in ITALY, SICILY, and North Africa. SYRACUSE in Sicily, NAPLES and TARANTO in Italy, CYRENE on the N African shore, SAGUNTO and MALAGA in Spain, and MARSEILLES in France were Greek colonies.

The epic series of wars with the great empire of PERSIA, fought between 500 and 449 B.C., began with a series of revolts by the Greek cities in IONIA in Asia Minor, followed by two Persian invasions. The first under King Darius in 490 B.C. was defeated at MARATHON. The second, under Xerxes in 480 B.C., wiped out the Spartan defenders at THERMOPYLAE and destroyed Athens; but the Greeks rallied and defeated Persia at PLATAEA by land and SALAMIS by sea that year. Victory over Persia ushered in the Classical Age in Greece, when its civilization reached its first great flowering. Athens played a leading role in the war and emerged as the head of a loose maritime empire, called the Delian League, and the leading city in Greece. The following period marked the apogee of Athenian culture, which under Pericles and in later years saw the emergence of such great masters of the arts and philosophy as Socrates and Plato, Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, Pindar, Herodotus, Thucydides, Pheidias, and Polykleitos. Sparta had become Athens's great rival, and in the Peloponnesian Wars of 431 to 404, culminating in Athens's defeat at Syracuse in 413 B.C., Athens was vanquished and never again was so important—except as a cultural center.

In later years Corinth joined Athens, Thebes, and Argos in the Corinthian War of 395 to 387 B.C. and defeated Sparta. Thebes supplanted Sparta at LEUCTRA in 371 B.C. Each had its period of hegemony in Greece. But the constant internecine warfare weakened the city-states of Greece, which fell prey to Philip II of MACEDON. After the Battle of CHAERONEA in 338 B.C. he ruled all Greece and organized a federal system of states. Some measure of independence from the ever powerful dominance of Macedon, however, was gained by the formation of the Achaean and Aetolian military leagues. Philip was succeeded by his son, Alexander the Great (356–323 B.C.), who continued his father's work in building the MACEDONIAN EMPIRE, which through his extraordinary conquests carried Greek, or Hellenistic, civilization throughout the Mediterranean and eastern world to the borders of INDIA. His successors founded large empires: the Ptolemies in EGYPT, and the Seleucids in Syria in 305 B.C., and the Macedonians in Macedon. They disputed the possession of the known civilized world among them.

In the meantime ROME in the West, which was less prey to the divisive weaknesses of the Greeks, was growing stronger. In 197 B.C. it defeated Philip V of Macedon at CYNOSCEPHALAE and again in 168 B.C. at PYDNA. By 146 B.C. with the destruction of Corinth it had conquered the Greek states, but in so doing it absorbed the culture and even the Greek language of Hellenism, which thereafter formed a strong element in the ROMAN EMPIRE. The thought and writings, philosophy, and architecture of the Greek world was carried on through Rome to our present civilization. Another legacy from Greece is that of the Olympic Games, occurring every four years, the first having been held at OLYMPIA as early as 776 B.C. The games were discontinued in the very late Roman Empire, but were revived in 1896 in Athens. Greece became an impotent, but revered, province of the empire, granted some favor under Hadrian (A.D. 117–138).

Greece suffered several times during the barbarian invasions. In A.D. 267 the Goths entered the province, and attacked Athens, and in 396 Alaric overran it. After the Roman Empire had been divided in 395 into the East and West, Greece became part of the BYZANTINE EMPIRE, in which Hellenic civilization and language combined with Christianity and the Roman and Eastern traditions in government to produce a long-lasting and powerful entity. It managed to survive until 1453. Its capital, formerly the Greek city of Byzantium, was renamed CONSTANTINOPLE by Constantine the Great in A.D. 330.

The history of Greece in the Middle Ages is largely that of the Byzantine Empire. With the shift of the capital to Constantinople, Athens lost its cultural leadership, and in 529 Justinian closed its pagan schools. The Slavs and Avars overran the province in the sixth century, and between 810 and 961 the Saracens controlled Crete. The fortunes of Greece reached a high point under the Macedonian dynasty of 867 to 1059; but with the Crusades came disaster, as the Fourth Crusade captured Constantinople in 1204 and carved up the empire among its leaders to form the Latin Empire. Greece was divided into several states. In the NE the kingdom of THESSALONIKI became a Latin principality, as did the duchy of Athens and the principality of ACHAEA, which ruled the Peloponnesus from Andravidha. VENICE took substantial portions of Constantinople, the Ionian Islands, and several fortresses around the coast, including CANDIA in Crete and Naupactus.

The Greeks themselves retained footholds in the despotate (province) of Epirus on the NW, and after 1262 the Paleologi dynasty took MISTRA in the Peloponnesus from the Franks and founded a despotate that was to give them their base for the reconquest of the empire, including the Peloponnesus, by 1430. By 1311 the Latin duchy of Athens had fallen to the Catalan Company, and by 1360 all of Greece N of the Isthmus of Corinth belonged to the SERBIAN EMPIRE.

Venice retained many of its outposts, including MONEMVASIA, Corone, and METHONE, even under Turkish advances.

After the fall of Constantinople, Greece came under the Turkish and Islamic rule of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE by 1460 and suffered in its economy and in other ways for centuries. Venice lost Crete by 1669 and only managed to reconquer the Peloponnesus between 1690 and 1715. The Greek War of Independence began in 1821, and with the support of Western nations autonomy was finally won by the Treaty of Adrianople, now EDIRNE. During the fighting much of Greece's medieval heritage was destroyed. Full independence was granted in 1832, and Greece became a monarchy under Otto I, a Bavarian prince chosen at a conference of the powers in London. He was deposed in 1862. The Greco-Turkish War of 1897 arose out of attempts to free Crete from Turkish rule, but Greece was defeated. However, the island became Greek again in 1913.

As a result of the two Balkan wars of 1912 and 1913, Greece acquired SE Macedonia, western Thessaly, and part of Epirus. In World War I the government allowed the Allies to land troops at Thessaloniki (Salonika) for the Salonika campaign, and in 1917 Greece joined the Allies. From the war it gained territory in Bulgaria and Turkey, but an invasion of Turkey in 1921 resulted in defeat and the establishment of the Maritsa River as the boundary between the two countries. In a subsequent exchange of populations, long-resident Greeks in Turkey suffered heavily when they were repatriated. The 1920s and 1930s were years of political turmoil, with several coups and countercoups, ending in 1936 with the establishment of a dictatorship under John Metaxas as premier. Greece helped form the Balkan Entente in 1934 with YUGOSLAVIA, ROMANIA, and Turkey as a defense against Bulgarian territorial claims.

In October 1940, during World War II, Italy invaded Greece but was thrown back. German troops then replaced the Italians, and although the Greeks allowed British troops to land in March 1941 to assist them, by the end of April the country was in Nazi hands. A strong resistance movement appeared, but by 1943 there was civil war between communist and pro-royalist guerrilla groups. Fighting between British troops and the communists followed in December 1944. After the war, between 1946 and 1949, civil war continued, but the communists were eventually defeated, partly as a result of support given the government by the UNITED STATES. Nevertheless, economic conditions remained poor and the government unstable. An army coup in 1967 brought a repressive right-wing dictatorship to power, which lasted until November 1973. The monarchy, which had been in and out of power since the early 1920s, was abolished in June 1973. The nation then became a republic with a civilian government. In October 1981 the Pan Hellenic Socialist Party (PASOK) won a general election under Andreas Papandreou, ending 35 years of conservative rule. Greece also joined the European Union in 1981. Papandreou won reelection in 1994, but PASOK lost the elections in 1989, and in 1990 Constantine Karamanlis returned as president for a second time as leader of a conservative coalition. Facing deficits and inflation, the government applied austerity measures and privatized many government industries.

In 1995 Papandreou was reelected and the government reversed its privatization program. In 1995 Greece resolved a longstanding dispute with neighboring Macedonia, where Macedonia would modify its flag and renounce territorial claims on Greece, and Greece would recognize the new nation. In 1996, Papandreou resigned and was replaced by a moderate Socialist, Costas Simitis. Simitis continued economic reforms aimed at shrinking Greece's welfare state in order for Greece to qualify for the European Union's single currency (the euro). Greece converted to the euro in 2001. PASOK won the 2000 elections, but a poor economy led to a New Democratic Party win in 2004 under Costas Karamanlis, nephew of the former president. Greece continues to be an outspoken opponent of Turkish membership in the European Union.

GREELEY (United States)

City in N central COLORADO, approximately 50 mi N of DENVER. It was founded in 1870 as a temperance and cooperative farming community at the instigation of Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune and the leading journalist of his day. Greeley's agent who carried out the founding was Nathan C. Meeker, who died in the Ute Indian revolt of 1879. The city is now the trading center of a productive irrigated agricultural area.

GREEN BAY (United States)

Inlet and port city in E WISCONSIN on LAKE MICHIGAN, at the S end of Green Bay, at the mouth of the FOX RIVER. A trading post was established on the site by Jean Nicolet in 1634. The inlet lies at the head of an important portage route between the GREAT LAKES and the MISSISSIPPI RIVER by way of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers. Settled in 1745 by Langlade, the settlement is the oldest in Wisconsin and was a fur-trading center. Its region was controlled by the British in 1763 after the French and Indian War and was ceded to the United States in 1783. It was again occupied by the British in the War of 1812. Fort Howard, a U.S. military post, was built here in 1816. The city has one of the best of the Great Lakes harbors. Tank Cottage in Washington Park is the city's oldest house.

GREENEVILLE (United States)

Town, in NE TENNESSEE, 30 mi WSW of JOHNSON CITY. It succeeded JONESBORO as the capital of the state of FRANKLIN from 1785 to 1787. It was a scene of Civil War fighting. There are monuments here to General John H. Morgan, who was killed here, and to the Union soldiers who died here. It was the home of President Andrew Johnson. His homestead, tailor shop, and burial place have been set aside as a national historic site.

GREENFIELD (United States)

Town in NW MASSACHUSETTS, on the CONNECTICUT RIVER, 34 mi N of SPRINGFIELD. Founded in 1686, it was also the eastern terminus of the MOHAWK TRAIL and was ravaged by Indian attacks in 1735. Originally a part of DEERFIELD, it was set off from Deerfield and incorporated in 1753. The colonial architect Asher Benjamin was born here, and several buildings designed by him remain.

GREENFIELD VILLAGE (United States)

Reproduction of an early American village, in DEARBORN, MICHIGAN, part of the Edison Institute. Established in 1933 by Henry Ford, it has a white-spined church, a town hall, and an inn, school, courthouse, general store, and other buildings grouped about a typical New England green. Many original structures were brought to the location, including Thomas Edison's MENLO PARK workshop and his FORT MYERS laboratory, Noah Webster's birthplace, Stephen Foster's home, Luther Burbank's birthplace and office, and the Wright brothers' cycle shop and home. Nearby is the Henry Ford museum with a large collection of Americana.

GREENLAND [Grønland, Kalaalit Nunaat] (Denmark)

Largest island in the world, off NE North America, the greater part lying within the ARCTIC Circle. It was possibly known in ancient times by the Greeks (Pythaeas of Massila), by geographers in the Middle Ages, and by Irish wandering monks. It was discovered and colonized c. A.D. 980 by Eric the Red, a Norse Viking leader who named it Greenland to attract settlers. His son, Leif Ericson, is the traditional discoverer of North America. It became a bishopric c. 1110, and ruins of 12th-century churches remain. By then the population numbered 10,000, and the community became self-governing with its own Althing. In 1261 it came directly under NORWAY, but in the 14th and 15th centuries it was ignored, and the colonists perished or were assimilated with the Inuit as the climate grew steadily colder. A final papal letter to seek out the lost Christians here was drawn up by Innocent VIII (1484–92), who appointed a bishop but heard no news of the island. Physical evidence indicates that the last colonists died of starvation. The British explorers Martin Frobisher and John Davis rediscovered Greenland in the 16th century, and it was visited by Henry Hudson and William Baffin at that time too, but they found no trace of the colonists.

Modern colonization was begun in 1721 by the Norwegian missionary Hans Egede. Danish trading posts were established shortly thereafter, and colonization was furthered by deporting undesirable subjects to Greenland. At the Congress of Vienna in 1815, Denmark retained the colony through an oversight of the delegates, who detached Norway from DENMARK but did not mention the Norwegian possessions. The island was explored and mapped by many explorers in the 19th and 20th centuries. The Danish East Greenland Company was founded in 1919, and it established posts in Greenland. Denmark made Greenland a Crown colony in 1924, but eastern Greenland was annexed by Norway in 1931. However, a decision by the World Court in 1933 returned it to Denmark. An Allied base during World War II, Greenland's status was changed by Denmark to that of province in 1953, and a major development program was begun in 1966. GODTHÅB (Nuuk) is the capital. Greenland has two seats in the Danish parliament but retains autonomy over most internal matters.

GREENOCK (Scotland)

Port in STRATHCLYDE region, 20 mi NNW of GLASGOW, on the S shore of the Firth of CLYDE. It is the birthplace of inventor James Watt and the burial place of Robert Burns's "Highland Mary" (Mary Campbell), who lies in the cemetery of North Kirk, founded in 1591. The church has windows by William Morris, Sir Edward Burne-Jones, D. G. Rossetti, and Ford Madox Brown. It has been moved to nearby Seafield because of expanding shipyards.

GREENSBORO (United States)

City in N central NORTH CAROLINA, 26 mi E of WINSTON-SALEM. It was settled in 1749. Nearby is the site of the American Revolutionary battle of GUILDFORD COURTHOUSE, now a national military park. Dolly Madison, wife of the president, and the writer O. Henry (William S. Porter) were born in Greensboro. In 1979 the city was the scene of an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally during which five demonstrators were shot to death, allegedly by members of the Klan and the American Nazi Party. The city is the site of several colleges.

GREENSBURG (United States)

City and battle site, in SW PENNSYLVANIA, 27 mi ESE of PITTSBURGH. Near here in 1763 Colonel Henry Bouquet defeated an Indian force under Chief Pontiac and opened up western Pennsylvania for white settlement. Founded c. 1770, the city is located midway between Fort Ligonier and FORT PITT.

GREENVILLE (United States)

City and county seat of Darke county, W OHIO, 32 mi W of DAYTON. It is on the site of Fort Greenville, built in 1793, where Anthony Wayne's treaty with the Indians was signed in 1795, and of the Shawnee Indian village that was the home of Tecumseh. It was also the base for Wayne's Indian campaign. After his victory at FALLEN TIMBERS in 1794, he negotiated the treaty with the Indians, who ceded a large part of the Old Northwest to the United States. The fort was then abandoned, and in 1805 Tecumseh and his brother, the Shawnee Prophet, still lived here. When they were forced out, white settlement began. A memorial marks the site of the signing of the treaty. A mural by Howard Chandler Christy in the state capitol's rotunda at COLUMBUS depicts the event. A similar treaty was signed here in 1814, during the War of 1812.

GREENWICH (England)

Inner London borough, SE LONDON, on the SE bank of the THAMES RIVER. First noted in the reign of Ethelred, it was a station of the Danish fleet from 1011 to 1014. It was the site of the Royal Greenwich Observatory from 1675 to 1958; the Greenwich Meridian serves as the basis for standard time throughout the world and for reckonings of longitude. The functions of the observatory have now been transferred to Herstmonceau, SUSSEX. Strongly linked with the sea, Greenwich is the site of Greenwich Hospital, now the Royal Naval College, which is housed in a building partially designed by Sir Christopher Wren. On the site of the present structure stood the Palace of Placentia built by Humphrey, duke of GLOUCESTER, between 1426 and 1434. It was a favorite residence of the Tudor monarchs and the birthplace of Henry VIII, Mary I, and Elizabeth I; Edward VI died here. Greenwich is also the site of the National Maritime Museum, part of which is housed in the Queen's House, designed by Inigo Jones for Anne of DENMARK in the very early 17th century. The clipper ship Cutty Sark, the last sailing clipper, is also berthed here as a Merchant Marine school and museum. Greenwich Park, first created by Duke Humphrey, leads into BLACKHEATH where peasant rebels under Wat Tyler in 1381 and Jack Cade in 1450 assembled for their attacks on London.

GREENWICH (United States)

Town, in SW Fairfield County, CONNECTICUT, on the NEW YORK State border. It was settled in 1640 by members of the NEW HAVEN colony, but the Dutch laid claim to Greenwich on the basis of LONG ISLAND SOUND exploration by Adriaen Block in 1614. New Haven did nothing to assist the settlers, so they consented to union with NEW NETHERLAND in 1642, and Greenwich became a Dutch manor. By the treaty of 1650, the Dutch relinquished claim to Greenwich, but the town refused to submit to the New Haven colony until 1656. Plundered by the British under General Tryon in the American Revolution, Greenwich suffered heavily due to the frequent quartering of American troops within its borders. It also had a strong Loyalist sentiment. A house, built in 1731, from which General Israel Putnam supposedly made a dramatic escape, is still preserved.

GREENWICH VILLAGE (United States)

Residential district in Lower MANHATTAN, NEW YORK CITY, extending S from 14th St. to Houston St. and W from Washington Square to the HUDSON RIVER. In recent decades Greenwich Village has come to signify three distinct areas: the West Village, roughly west of Seventh Avenue, Greenwich Village proper, west of Broadway, and the East Village, east of Broadway, once called the Lower East Side. It was once a village of the Sapokanikan tribe of the Algonquin, expelled by the Dutch in 1626. A separate village in colonial times, it became an exclusive residential section after 1730. An influx of foreign immigrants settled here after 1880, and after 1910 and especially in the 1950s Beat Era and the 1960s it gained renown as the home and workshop of artists, poets, writers, and free-thinkers and a center of cafés, galleries, and clubs for jazz, folk music, and rock. Numerous interesting old buildings remain, dating from the early and mid-19th century. Among its residents have been Aaron Burr, Alexander Hamilton, and John Adams; writers Poe, Melville, Twain, James, Millay, Wharton, Howells, Dos Passos, Auden, Thomas; and painters Hopper, Kent, Sloan. Others as diverse as John Reed, Eugene O'Neill, the Astors, Vanderbilts, and Delanos have lived here.

GREENWOOD (United States)

County seat of Leflore County, W MISSISSIPPI, 50 mi E of Greenville. Trading center for one of the largest cotton markets in the world, it was originally settled by Choctaw Indians. The city and county derive their names from the Choctaw chief and cotton planter, Greenwood Leflore. An area ceded to the United States in 1830 by the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, it was also the site of a Civil War battle fought at nearby Fort Pemberton from February 24 to April 8, 1863.

GREIFSWALD (Germany)

City in MECKLENBURG–WESTERN POMERANIA, 19 mi SE of STRALSUND, near the BALTIC SEA. Founded in 1240 by traders from the NETHERLANDS, it was chartered in 1250, and in 1270 it joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE towns of Stralsund, ROSTOCK, WISMAR, and LÜBECK and took part in the wars they carried on against the kings of DENMARK and NORWAY. During the Thirty Years' War it became a fortress for the Hapsburgs and Catholic side, who vacated it in 1631 to the Swedes, and it remained in their possession after the Peace of WESTPHALIA. It was captured by the Elector of BRANDENBURG in 1678 but was restored to the Swedes the following year. In 1715 it was possessed by Denmark, then returned to SWEDEN until 1815 when, with all of Swedish POMERANIA, it came into the possession of PRUSSIA.

GREIZ [former: Grewcz] (Germany)

City in THURINGIA, 14 mi WSW of ZWICKAU. A town apparently of Slav origin, from the 12th century it was governed by local officials. In 1236 it came into the possession of GERA and in 1550 of the younger line of the house of PLAUEN. Until 1918 it was the capital of the principality of REUSS-GREIZ. The old castle, residence of the former prince of Reuss, remains from this period. The city was destroyed by fire in 1494 and again almost totally in 1802.

GRENADA [Spanish: Concepción]

Island and independent state in the Windward Islands, WEST INDIES, including the southern Grenadines with Carriacou. Grenada itself is 90 mi N of TRINIDAD. It was discovered in 1498 and named by Columbus, but the hostility of the native Carib Indians prevented colonization until 1650, when it was settled under the French governor of MARTINIQUE. In 1674 it passed to the French Crown but was captured by the British in 1762 and ceded to them in 1763. Again from 1779 to 1783 it was held by the French but then returned to British control. After the British colonization of 1783, the importation of African slaves and the establishment of sugar plantations began. In 1795 it was the scene of a native rising, suppressed by the British. A member of the West Indian Federation from 1958 to 1962, in 1967 it became, with its dependent islands, an associated state of GREAT BRITAIN, becoming fully independent in 1974. In October of 1983, a military coup installed a Marxist and Cuban-allied government. Concern for 1,000 American medical students on the island as well as Cuban improvements to the main airstrip were deemed cause for an invasion of the island by the UNITED STATES with the support of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States. After some initial resistance, the government was replaced and the Cuban advisers ejected. In elections in 1994, Herbert Blaize was elected prime minister. In the 1995 elections, Keith Mitchell, leader of the New National Party, became prime minister, and was reelected in 1999. In 2004, the island was devastated by Hurricane Ivan.

GRENOBLE [ancient: Cularo, Gratianopolis] (France)

City in the SE, on the Isère River, 133 mi NNE of MARSEILLES and 60 mi SE of LYONS, at the foot of the ALPS. An ancient city of the Allobroges, it became a Roman city. It came under BURGUNDY in the fifth century, under the Franks in the sixth century and was part of the kingdom of PROVENCE from the 9th to the 11th centuries. When Provence broke up, Grenoble became the possession of the dauphins of Viennois. It remained the capital of the DAUPHINÉ until 1450, but both the Dauphiné and its capital passed to the French Crown in 1349. The parliament of Grenoble was strongly antiroyalist during the French Revolution.

Notable buildings include the university, founded in 1339; the cathedral of Nôtre Dame of the 12th to the 13th centuries; the church of St. André of the 13th and 14th centuries, which houses the tomb of the military hero, Pierre Bayard; the Renaissance palace of the dauphins, now the courthouse; and the art museum. Grenoble has the birthplace of Stendhal and a museum devoted to him. Near the city is GRANDE CHARTREUSE, a monastery founded in 1084 and the motherhouse of the Carthusian Order.

GRETNA GREEN (Scotland)

Village in DUMFRIES AND GALLOWAY region, on the Sark River, near the English border, 9 mi NNW of CARLISLE. It was famous as a place for runaway marriages from 1754, when the English marriage laws tightened, until 1856, when a law was passed requiring that one of the parties to the marriage reside in Scotland for at least 21 days before the issuance of a license.

GREWCZ See GREIZGREYERZ See GRUYÈRESGREYTOWN See SAN JUAN DEL NORTE (Nicaragua)GRIJALVA [Río Grande de Chiapas] (Mexico)

River that rises in SW GUATEMALA and flows NW into S Mexico and N through CHIAPAS and TABASCO states to the Gulf of CAMPECHE. It is named for the Spanish explorer Juan de Grijalva, who discovered it in 1518 while leading an expedition to further the explorations of Gonzalo de Córdoba. Grijalva himself was the first Spaniard to hear of the AZTEC EMPIRE of Montezuma.

GRIMALDI (Italy)

Caves in Imperia province, W LIGURIA region, in the NW region, just across the border from Menton, France. The remains of the prehistoric Grimaldi man, a Negroid type from the late Paleolithic period, have been discovered here. There is a small museum on the site.

GRIMMA (Germany)

City, on the left bank of the Mulde River, 16 mi SE of LEIPZIG, in the former kingdom of SAXONY. Founded c. 1170, it was long a residence of the margraves of MEISSEN and the electors of Saxony. Of Sorbian origin, the city is first mentioned in 1203, passed soon after to Saxony, and remained part of that kingdom. It contains a 13th-century castle and a 15th-century town hall.

GRIMSBY [Great Grimsby] (England)

Town in Humberside, near the mouth of the Humber River, 16 mi SE of HULL. Supposedly the landing place of the Danes on their first invasion of Britain toward the end of the eighth century, it was one of the largest fishing ports in the world in the 1950s.

GRINDELWALD (Switzerland)

Valley and town in the Bernese Alps, N of the Wetterhorn and E of INTERLAKEN. The original church here was a chapel in a cave. This was superseded in 1146 by a wooden church, replaced in 1180 by a stone building that in turn was pulled down in 1793 to erect the present church. The town was one of the first of the winter resorts and is still a popular one.

GRIQUALAND EAST (South Africa)

Historical division in the S region, Eastern CAPE province. Settled in 1862 by the Griquas, a people of Bushman and Hottentot descent, under their leader Adam Kok, it was annexed to Cape Colony in 1879. Its chief town is Kokstad.

GRIQUALAND WEST (South Africa)

Historical division in the S region, Northern CAPE province, N of the Orange River and W of FREE STATE; a dry, desert country settled earlier by the Griquas. Following the discovery of diamonds in 1867 it became the subject of a dispute between the Orange Free State and the British, who annexed it in 1871. It was joined to Cape Colony in 1880. Its chief town and former capital is KIMBERLEY, the diamond center.

GRIQUATOWN (South Africa)

Town in NORTHERN CAPE province, 90 mi W of KIMBERLEY. It was occupied several times by the Boers during the Boer War. An old fort from that period remains.

GRISONS See GRAUBÜNDEN

GROCHÓW (Poland)

A suburb E of WARSAW, on the right bank of the VISTULA RIVER. It was the scene of a battle on February 25, 1831, between the Poles and the Russians under Count Hans von Diebitsch during the Polish Revolution.

GRÓDECK JAGIELLOŃSKI See GORODOK

GRODNO See HRODNA

GRONINGEN (Netherlands)

City and provincial capital in the NE. In the 11th century it came under the bishops of UTRECHT, under whose authority it soon rose to prominence. In the 12th century the city supplied ships for the Crusades. In 1284 it joined the HANSEATIC LEAGUE and later took over the central section of FRIESLAND that is now Groningen province. At the beginning of the Netherlands revolt against SPAIN, the city remained loyal to the Hapsburgs but was taken by the Dutch under Maurice of Nassau in 1594.

Groningen has several fine churches, among them the Martinikerk and the Nieuwe Kerk, and many museums. It is also the site of the University of Groningen, established in 1614.

GRONINGEN (Netherlands)

Province in the NE, bordering on GERMANY in the E and the NORTH SEA in the N. In 1536 Emperor Charles V, the Hapsburg ruler, added Groningen to his Netherlands possessions. During the revolt of the Netherlands against SPAIN, the nobles living in the province's countryside signed the Union of UTRECHT in 1579. The capital city, GRONINGEN, however, remained loyal to the Hapsburgs until 1594, when it was forcibly taken by the Dutch under Maurice of Nassau.

GROOTE SCHUUR (South Africa)

An estate in the SW near CAPE TOWN, in Western CAPE province, meaning "large barn." Once the home of Cecil Rhodes, the present building is on the site of a barn dating from 1657. Representative of Dutch colonial architecture, it is now a governmental residence for the prime minister. The University of Cape Town is also on the estate. Dr. Christiaan Barnard performed the world's first human heart transplant operation here in 1967.

GROSSBEEREN (Germany)

Village in Brandenburg central region. Here on August 23, 1813, during the Napoleonic Wars, Friedrich Wilhelm von Bülow, using the Prussian militia for the first time, defeated the French under Marshal Nicolas Oudinot, thus protecting BERLIN.

GROSSENHAIN (Germany)

Town and battle site in SAXONY, 20 mi N of DRESDEN. It has suffered considerably in all the German wars. Originally a Sorb or Wend settlement, it was next occupied by the Bohemians, who fortified it heavily. It then passed into the possession of the margraves of MEISSEN, from whom it was taken in 1312 by the margraves of BRANDENBURG. In 1744 it was nearly destroyed by fire, and on May 16, 1813, during the Napoleonic Wars, it was the scene of a battle between the French and the Russians.

GROSSETO (Italy)

Town and provincial capital in Grosseto province, TUSCANY region, 94 mi NW of ROME, on the Ombrone River, near the Tyrrhenian Sea. Nearby are the ruins of Russellae, an ancient Etruscan town sacked by the Saracens in 935 and deserted by the 12th century. Grosseto's site was once in a shallow gulf, which had since become the Maremma Toscana, a marshy desert infested by malaria during the Middle Ages. The Maremma is now a cattle-grazing and agricultural region. Of additional interest in the town are a 13th-century Gothic cathedral, a fortified citadel, and a museum of Etruscan antiquities.

The town is still enclosed by its brick ramparts and bastions built by the Medici grand dukes of Tuscany between 1574 and 1593. Like those at LUCCA, they have been converted into a public park.

GROSSGÖRCHEN [Gross Görschen] (Germany)

Village in SAXONY, near LÜTZEN. It was the scene of a battle, often mistakenly called the Battle of Lützen, where on May 2, 1813, Napoleon defeated the Russian and Prussian forces.

GROSSWARDEIN See ORADEA

GROTON (United States)

Town in S New London county, SE CONNECTICUT, on LONG ISLAND SOUND, at the mouth of the Thames River. Settled in 1649, it is the site, with NEW LONDON, of the huge New London Naval Submarine Base on the Thames River. The first nuclear submarine, the Nautilus, was launched here in 1954. It is also the site of Fort Griswold, which was attacked and taken by the British under Benedict Arnold in 1781. Colonial leader Silas Deane was born here.

GROTTAFERRATA (Italy)

Village, 13 mi SE of ROME, and approximately 2 mi S of FRASCATI, in the Alban Hills. It is the site of the Greek monastery of the Basilians, founded by St. Nilus in 1002 under Emperor Otto III, which in turn is on the site of a large Roman villa, possibly that of Cicero. The monastery was fortified in the late 15th century by Cardinal Giuliano della Rovere, later Pope Julius II, and has massive towers added by him. The church belongs to the 12th century, and the chapel of St. Nilus contains important frescoes completed in 1610 by Domenico Zampieri.

Also here is the Franciscan college of San Bonaventura, the Franciscan library, and the Franciscan press of the Archivum Franciscanum Historicum, moved from Florence (Quaracchi) after the Arno floods there of November 1966, which inundated FLORENCE.

GROTTE DES COMBARELLES See LES COMBARELLES

GROYNE, THE See CORUNNA

GROZNYI [Groznyi] (Russia)

Capital city of Chechnya, in the N foothills of the Greater CAUCASUS MTS, on a tributary of the Terek River, 50 mi ENE of ORDZHONIKIDZE. It was originally a Russian frontier fortress established in 1818. The discovery here of oil in 1893 placed it in one of Russia's oldest oil-producing areas. It was therefore a major strategic goal of the invading German armies in World War II. Their advance was halted by Soviet troops just short of the city. In the 1990s the city was capital of the breakaway Republic of Chechnya, and has been a battleground between Russian and separatist forces.

GROZNYI See GROZNY

GRUBESHOV See HRUBIESZÓW

GRUDZIADZ [German: Graudenz] (Poland)

River port and city in the province of Bydgoszcz, N central region, on the VISTULA RIVER 30 mi N of TORUŃ. Founded and fortified by the Teutonic Knights, it was chartered in 1233. In 1466 it passed to Poland, in 1772 to PRUSSIA, and in 1919 it was restored to Poland. Notable buildings include a Gothic church and an 18th-century Jesuit collegium. It was held by Germany in World War II.

GRUMANTBYEN (Norway)

Town, on SPITSBERGEN ISLAND, Svalbard county, on the Isfjorden. A coal-mining settlement established in 1919 by an Anglo-Russian company, its mines have been worked by the Russians since 1931. Destroyed by German battleships in 1943, it was quickly rebuilt.

GRUMENTUM (Italy)

Ancient town in LUCANIA region, 33 mi S of POTENZA. In 215 B.C. the Carthaginian general Hanno was defeated here by ROME, and in 207 B.C. Hannibal made it his headquarters. Roman ruins include a large amphitheater. It may have been a Roman colony by the time of Sulla, but it certainly was one under Augustus.

GRÜNBERG See ZIELONA GÓRA

GRÜNBERG IN SCHLESSEN See ZIELONA GÓRA

GRÜTLI See RÜTLI

GRUYÈRES [German: Greyerz] (Switzerland)

Town, in the Fribourg canton, 16 mi SW of FRIBOURG. It is the site of an old castle, the seat of the counts of Gruyère. The Gruyère district of the canton is noted especially for Gruyère cheese, which originated here. The picturesque town is a favorite locale for Swiss weddings.

GRUZIYA See GEORGIA

GRYNEION (Turkey)

Ancient Aeolian town on the NW coast of ASIA MINOR near CYME. It was primarily a religious center devoted to the worship of Apollo. See also AEOLIS.

GUADALAJARA (Mexico)

Capital of JALISCO state, 280 mi WNW of MEXICO CITY. The second-largest city in Mexico, it has many survivals of the Spanish colonial era and is often called La Perla del Occidente (the Pearl of the West) because of its charm. Founded by Cristóbal de Oñate c. 1530, it was moved twice, before and during the Mixtón War, because of Indian raids. It was finally established in 1542. It became the seat of the audien- cia (court) of NUEVA GALICIA.

Captured in 1810 by Hidalgo y Costilla during the war against Spain, the city then became a center of reform movements. Again in 1858, in the War of Reform, it was occupied by the liberals under Benito Juárez. Important buildings include the cathedral, completed in 1618, and the governor's palace, a fine example of Spanish colonial architecture begun in 1643, now with murals by J. C. Orozco. The cathedral also contains Murillo's Assumption of the Blessed Virgin.

GUADALAJARA [ancient: Arriaca; Arabic: Wādī al-Hijārah] (Spain)

Capital city and province in central New Castile on the Henares River, 34 mi NE of MADRID. It flourished as a Roman colony and was a major station on the Via Augusta or Via Maxima from the Ebro Valley SW to Toledo. It belonged to the Moors from A.D. 714 to 1081. The palace of the Mendoza family and a Roman bridge and aqueduct are here.

GUADALCANAL (Solomon Islands)

Volcanic island in the W Pacific Ocean, approximately 100 mi SE of NEW GEORGIA. First visited by a British navigator in 1788, it was settled by European traders after 1860 and was taken as part of a protectorate by GREAT BRITAIN in 1893. It was occupied by JAPAN in 1942 in World War II. The U.S. Marines seized an airfield built by the Japanese here on August 7, 1942, in the first of a series of land and naval battles known as the Battle of Guadalcanal, from August 7 to November 13, 1942. Henderson Field, the object of the bitter battle and invasion, is now an international airport.

GUADALETE, BATTLE OF (Spain)

River in Cádiz province, SW Spain, running into the Atlantic Ocean opposite CÁDIZ. Here in A.D. 711 in a decisive battle, presumably at the Laguna de Janda on the river, Tarik, the slave of the Moor Musa ibn Nusair, defeated Roderick, the last Visigothic king of Spain. His victory led to the Moorish conquest of the peninsula. See also VISIGOTHIC KINGDOM.

GUADALOUPE (France)

An overseas department in the LEEWARD ISLANDS, WEST INDIES, which includes two islands, Basse-Terre and Grande Terre, and a number of island dependencies, including half of St. MARTIN to the N. The capital is also called Basse-Terre.

Discovered by Columbus in 1493, the area was briefly colonized by SPAIN. In 1635 settlement was begun by the French, who drove out the native Carib Indians and imported slaves from Africa to work their plantations. By the end of the 17th century it was a major sugar producer and one of France's most valuable colonies. The islands were held by the British from 1759 to 1763 during the Seven Years' War, in 1794, and from 1810 to 1813 during the Napoleonic Wars. They were transferred to SWEDEN in 1813 and returned to France in 1816. In World War II they were under French Vichy control until July 1943. They became an overseas department of France in 1946, and in 1974, an administrative center.

GUADALUPE (Mexico) See GUADALUPE HIDALGOGUADALUPE (Spain)

Town of Cáceres province, in the ESTREMADURA, noted for its monastery, formerly Hieronymite, now Franciscan, and the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, whose cult was transferred in the 16th century to GUADALUPE HIDALGO, Mexico.

GUADALUPE HIDALGO [Guadalupe] (Mexico)

City in NUEVO LEÓN state, 10 mi E of MONTERREY. It is the site of an 18th-century basilica containing the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the site of the most famous pilgrimage in the Western Hemisphere. Based on the reports of a series of miraculous visions of the Virgin Mary on the hill of Tepeyacac by an Indian, Juan Diego, in 1531, the spot was renamed Guadalupe in honor of the shrine of Our Lady of GUADALUPE, SPAIN. To this was added later the name of the revolutionary priest, Hidalgo y Costilla, who displayed her banner as his standard. The city was also the site of the signing of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo on February 2, 1848, ending the war between the UNITED STATES and Mexico.

GUADIX [ancient: Acci; Arabic: Wādī-Ash] (Spain)

City of old ANDALUSIA, 26 mi ENE of GRANADA. It was a Roman colony and is one of the oldest episcopal sees in Spain, established under the Visigoths. Roman remains, a Moorish citadel, and an 18th-century cathedral are of note. Just outside the city are the famous cave dwelling of the Barrio Troglodyte.

GUAHAN See GUAMGUAM [Guahan] (United States)

Unincorporated U.S. territory in the MARIANA ISLANDS, W Pacific Ocean. Guam is the largest and southernmost of the group. Discovered by Magellan in 1521, it was occupied by SPAIN in 1565 but not completely subjected until 130 years later. It remained a Spanish possession until it was taken by the United States in the Spanish-American War. Attacked and taken by JAPAN in 1941 in World War II, it was retaken by U.S. forces in 1944 and became the base for assaults on the Japanese mainland. In the 1960s it was a U.S. base for operations against VIETNAM and LAOS. Guam was hit by devastating typhoons in 1976 and 1992, and in 1993, it suffered a severe earthquake. After World War II Guam was invaded by the brown tree snake, a slightly venomous predator, that has wiped out most of the native bird population.

GUANAHANI See SAN SALVADORGUANAJUATO (Mexico)

State and city in a mountainous region, 170 mi NW of MEXICO CITY. It was noted for centuries for its gold and silver mines. Its geographical position and economic importance as one of Spanish America's chief silver-producing centers gave the city a key role in the wars and revolutions that racked Mexico in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Several noteworthy colonial churches and buildings include the Alhóndiga de Granaditas, originally a granary, that was besieged and captured in 1810 by Hidalgo y Costilla at the outset of the war against SPAIN.

GUANGDONG [Canton, Kuang-chou, Kwangchow] (China)

City and port of GUANGZHOU province on the Pearl (Xi) River, 700 mi SW of NANJING and 80 mi from the sea. Guangdong became part of China in the third century B.C. and was capital of Guangzhou under the Mings. It was visited by European traders for centuries. The Portuguese trade monopoly, which was established here in 1511, was broken by the British in the late 17th century. The Treaty of Nanking in 1842 opened the city to foreign trade following the Opium War. From 1856 to 1861, Canton was occupied by the French and English. In 1911 it was the center of the revolutionary movement of Sun Yat-Sen and the site of the proclamation of the Republic of China. It was briefly the seat of one of the first communist communes in China in 1927. Beginning in 1938 and throughout World War II it was occupied by the Japanese. Its final fall to the communists in October 1949 signaled the communist takeover of China. Today it is the most important city of southern China.

GUANGHUA [Laohokow, Kuang-Hua] (China)

City in N HEBEI province, 200 mi NW of HANKOU. The site of the important U.S. 14th Air Force base during World War II, it was captured by the Japanese after considerable fighting between March 26 and April 8, 1945.

GUANGZHOU [Guangdong, Kwantung, Kuang-Tung] (China)

China's southernmost province including the mouth of the Xi River and Hainan Island. Under Chinese control since the Qin dynasty c. 210 B.C., it was created a province by the Ming dynasty who ruled from 1368 to 1644. For centuries it was the main contact area for outside trade with the Roman Empire, Arabs, and, in the 16th century, the first Europeans, mainly through GUANGDONG, the only port open until 1842. The introduction of opium here in that year led to war with the British and the cession of other ports to European countries. The Kuomintang was formed here in 1912 by Sun Yat-sen, and Chiang Kai-shek started his movement here in the 1920s.

GUANTÁNAMO [Guantánamo Bay] (Cuba)

City and harbor in SE Oriente province. The town is approximately 10 mi N of Guantánamo Bay. During the Spanish-American War its shores were the landing place of U.S. naval units in June 1898. It is often called the Pearl Harbor of the Atlantic, because the bay is the strategic site of a U.S. naval station leased in 1903 and renewed in 1934. Since 1960 it has been a bone of contention with the Castro government of Cuba, which has refused the $5,000 token annual rent from the UNITED STATES and has pressed for surrender of the base. The town, founded in the early 19th century by French fleeing the slave rebellion in HAITI, retains many vestiges of French architecture. After the 9-11 terrorist attacks in 2001, the United States has used Guantánamo as a special military prison. Foreign terrorist suspects and prisoners captured in AFGHANISTAN and IRAQ have been incarcerated there. Guantánamo was chosen for this because the Bush administration believed that federal constitutional protections do not apply to the base, which legally is not part of the United States. In 2004, that argument was rejected by the U.S. Supreme Court.

GUANTÁNAMO BAY See GUANTÁNAMOGUANXI ZHUANGZU [Kwangsi Chuang, Guang-xi Zhuang-zu] (China)

Autonomous province in SE China, S of GUIZHOU and HUNAN provinces. It is bordered on the SW by VIETNAM. The region was made autonomous in 1958. There is a large ethnic minority of the Chuang, a subgroup of the Tai people. They were conquered by the Qin dynasty in 214 B.C.; but an independent state, known as Nan Yueh, rose at the end of that dynasty. However, the Han dynasty annexed the region in 112-111 B.C. When the Ming dynasty tried to change the people's tribal way of life, the result was the bloodiest battle in the region's history, at Giant Rat-tan Gorge in 1465.

In 1650 Guangxi came under the rule of the Manchu dynasty. The area was a center of the Taiping Rebellion, a political and religious upheaval that began in 1850 and did not end until 1864. From 1906 to 1916 local leaders supported the establishment of the Chinese Republic, but after 1927 they opposed the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek. The Japanese invaded southern Kwangsi in 1939 and in 1944 briefly held GUILIN, which had been a U.S. air base. In 1949 the region came under the control of the Chinese communist forces. NANNING, capital of the region, was a supply base for communist forces fighting the French in INDOCHINA in the early 1950s.

GUASTALLA [medieval: Wardastalla] (Italy)

Town in Reggio nell'Emilia province, EMILIA-ROMAGNA region, on the PO RIVER, 14 mi NNW of REGGIO NELL'EMILIA. Founded by the Lombards in the seventh century A.D., it belonged successively to REGGIO, CREMONA, and MILAN. In 1406 it became the center of a countship of the same name, and in 1538–39 it was bought by Ferrante Gonzaga of MANTUA. In 1621 it became the center of a duchy, but after the Guastalla branch of the Gonzagas became extinct in 1746, the duchy passed to the Spanish duke of PARMA. In 1805–06 Napoleon conferred Guastalla on his sister, Pauline Borghese, and it was ruled by members of the Napoleonic family until 1847 and by the duke of MODENA from 1847 to 1860, when it became a part of the kingdom of Italy. Of historic interest are the palace of the Gonzaga family and the cathedral.

GUATEMALA

Nation in N CENTRAL AMERICA, with a short coast on the CARIBBEAN SEA on the E and a longer coast on the Pacific Ocean, with MEXICO to the N, BELIZE to the E, HONDURAS to the SE, and EL SALVADOR to the S. Most of the population, a little more than half Indian and the rest mestizo or mixed, lives in the highland region, which runs from E to W. There are tropical areas along the coasts. The economy is largely agricultural. Before Europeans arrived, Guatemala was a main center of the MAYA EMPIRE, especially the PETÉN region in the northern part of the country. A Spanish conquistador, Pedro de Alvarado, was sent here in 1523 to seek a passage to the Pacific, and in 1524 he defeated the Quiché Indians, southern Mayans.

In 1527 Santiago de los Caballeros de Guatemala, better known as Ciudad Vieja, was founded as the capital of what became the captaincy general of Guatemala, which also included the present countries of El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, and COSTA RICA. In 1541 Ciudad Vieja was destroyed by a volcanic flood, and a new capital was established nearby in 1542 at ANTIQUA. Antigua became one of the richest cities in the New World, but in 1773 it was destroyed by earthquakes, and in 1776 GUATEMALA CITY was founded as the new capital, which it has remained.

When the region achieved independence from SPAIN in 1821, Guatemala became part of the Mexican Empire, but this lasted only until 1823. In 1825, along with the same lands that had once been the captaincy general, Guatemala became part of the Central American Federation, which lasted until 1838, when the various countries separated. Government from c. 1840 to 1909 was marked by the propensity of Guatemalan presidents to interfere in the affairs of neighbors and to attempt to reestablish the Central American Federation. After President José Santos Zelaya of Nicaragua made another attempt, a conference in WASHINGTON, D.C., in 1907 resulted in the establishment of the Central American Court of Justice to deal with such disputes.

For the most part, 20th-century governments have been dictatorial, although some have brought a measure of material progress and, at times, reforms to the country. Under President Jacobo Arbenz Guzmán, starting in 1951, Guatemala turned toward the left, and large foreign-owned estates were expropriated. Arbenz Guzmán's regime was overthrown in 1954 with the UNITED STATES's assistance. The 1960s were marked by greater violence from both the left and the right, the U.S. ambassador being assassinated in August 1968. In February 1976 a devastating earthquake killed or wounded up to 100,000 people.

Under President Fernando Romeo Lucas García, who took office in 1978, violence has increased, and the government has used repressive methods against leftists and moderates, according to one estimate, murdering as many as 5,000 opponents. In 1982 General Efraín Ríos Montt took power in a coup, but was deposed in 1983 by another general, Óscar Mejía Victores. Under a new constitution in 1985, Marco Vinicio Cerezo Arévalo was elected president, but the military continued to hold power while fighting the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Union (URNG) leftist guerrillas in the countryside. In 1990 Jorge Serrano Elías was elected president, but was forced to resign by the military in 1993. Ramiro de León Carpio, the attorney general for human rights, was elected by the congress to succeed Serrano and won passage of anticorruption reforms.

In the 1996 elections, Álvaro Arzú Irigoyen, a former mayor of Guatemala City and foreign minister, won the presidency. He conducted a purge of top military officers and signed a UN-supervised peace accord with the URNG guerrillas. In 1999, Alfonso Portillo Cabrera, a conservative lawyer associated with former dictator Ríos Montt, was elected president. In 2002 Guatemala and Belize reached an agreement on a longstanding border dispute. In 2003 Óscar Berger Perdomo won the presidency, while Montt came in third despite violence and intimidation by some of his supporters. In 2004 former president Portillo was accused of corruption and fled to Mexico. Guatemala continues to reduce its military as the peace process in the country continues.

GUATEMALA CITY [Santiago de los Caballeros de Guatemala La Nueva] (Guatemala)

The nation's capital and the largest city in CENTRAL AMERICA, in the S central part of the country. The present city is the third permanent capital of Guatemala; founded in 1776 after ANTIGUA was abandoned, it became the capital in 1779. In 1917–18 an earthquake destroyed Guatemala City, but it was rebuilt on the same site. Many interesting remains of Mayan civilization have been unearthed in the vicinity. The University of San Carlos de Guatemala was founded in 1676.

GUAYANA See GUIANA

GUAYAQUIL [Santiago de Guayaquil] (Ecuador)

Chief seaport of the country and provincial capital, on the Guayas River, approximately 40 mi from the Pacific coast. Founded by the Spanish conquistador Sebastian de Benalcázar in 1535, it was subjected to attacks by buccaneers in the 17th century and was destroyed by frequent fires in the 18th and 19th centuries. Occupied in 1821 by patriotic forces under Antonio José de Sucre in a major step toward Ecuador's independence, it was a historic meeting place for Simón Bolívar and José de San Martín in 1822. Several colonial landmarks and the university are of interest.

GUAYMAS (Mexico)

Port city of SONORA State in the NW, on the Gulf of California. In an area explored in 1539, the city was founded in the early 18th century by Jesuit missionaries. It was occupied by U.S. forces in 1846 during the Mexican War and was held by the French in 1865–66 under the puppet emperor Maximilian. It is an outlet for the river port of HERMOSILLO.

GUBBIO [ancient: Eugubium, Iguvium] (Italy)

Town in Perugia province, UMBRIA region, 23 mi NE of PERUGIA. Originally an Umbrian town, many coins and the pre-Roman Iguvine Tables have been found here. It later flourished under the Romans until sacked by the Goths in the fifth century A.D. It was a powerful free town in the 11th and 12th centuries A.D. It came under the dukes of URBINO in 1384 and was held by the papacy from 1624 to 1860. In the 14th and 15th centuries a renowned local school of painting flourished here.

The town retains a medieval character with its outstanding 13th-century cathedral and church of St. Francis. The Gothic Palazzo de Consoli and the massive Palazzo Ducale are notable. A Roman amphitheater and mausoleum date from the first century B.C. See also PAPAL STATES.

GUBEN See GUBIN

GUBIN [German: Guben] (Poland)

City of Zielona Gorá province, in the W, on the Nysa River. In origin a Wendish or Sorb town, it was successively in the possession of BRANDENBURG from 1311, BOHEMIA from 1367, SAXONY from 1635, and PRUSSIA from 1815. In World War II it was a scene of much fighting from February to April 1945. Following the POTSDAM Conference of 1945 it became part of Poland.

GUDBRANDSDAL [Gudbrandsdalen] (Norway)

Valley in Oppland county, S central section, approximately 140 mi long, extending NW and SE above Lake Mjøsa and LILLEHAMMER. It saw much fighting in April 1940, when the British were driven N by the Germans through southern Norway along an important trade and invasion route. It is an area rich in history. Many Gudbrandsdal farmers trace their ancestry back to the time of the sagas. Much of Ibsen's Peer Gynt is set here.

GUDBRANDSDALEN See GUDBRANDSDAL

GUEI-LIN See GUILIN

GUELDERLAND See GELDERLAND

GUELPH (Canada)

City in S ONTARIO, on the Speed River. It was founded in 1827 by the Scottish novelist John Galt. There is the University of Guelph here, dating from 1964. It is also the site of Ontario Reformatory, founded in 1827.

GUÉMAPPE (France)

Village in the Pas-de-Calais department, 7 mi ESE of ARRAS. Battles took place in the region from April to May 1917 and in March 1918, during World War I.

GUÉRANDE (France)

Ancient market town in the Loire-Atlantique department, approximately 10 mi W of ST. NAZAIRE. Its medieval walls, surprisingly well preserved, were built by John V of BRITTANY in 1431 during the Hundred Years' War. The church of St. Aubin, much of it dating from the 12th century, and a 15th-century castle are also of interest.

GUÉRET (France)

Town and capital of the Creuse department, 124 mi S of ORLÉANS. In the 13th century it became capital of the county of MARCHE. Points of interest include the 16th-century Hôtel de Moneyroux, now an archive, and the church of St. Peter and St. Paul, built from the 13th to the 16th centuries and reconstructed in the 19th century.

GUERNICA [Guernica y Luno] (Spain)

Town in E Vizcaya province, approximately 27 mi NE of BILBAO. Once the seat of the Basque parliament, it was bombed in 1937 by German planes during the Spanish civil war. The bombing served no military purpose and indiscriminately killed men, women, and children. This early use of blanket air attack on civilian targets with no other purpose than terrifying the enemy into submission shocked the world. Its destruction was the subject of the great painting of the same name by Pablo Picasso. By Picasso's will, after his death the painting was returned from the Museum of Modern Art in New York City in September 1981 to the Prado Museum in Madrid, once Spain had shaken off the fascist regime responsible for the bombing.

GUERNICA Y LUNO See GUERNICAGUERRERO (Mexico)

State in the S region, on the Pacific Ocean. The region was originally divided among the states of MICHOACÁN, MEXICO, PUEBLA, and OAXACA. From 1810 to 1821 some of the heaviest fighting in the Mexican war against SPAIN took place in this area, which was later named for the revolutionary leader Vicente Guerrero. It became a state in 1849.

AL-GUETTAR [El-Guettar] (Tunisia)

Town in Gafsa district, approximately 100 mi W of SFAX. On March 19, 1943, the Allies took the town from the Germans on their march to the MARETH LINE during World War II.

GUEUDECOURT (France)

Village in the Somme department of the N, 3 mi SSW of BAPAUME. It was the site of a battle in which it was taken by the British in September 1916, during World War I.

GUIANA [Guayana]

Region in the NE of South America that includes SE VENEZUELA, part of N BRAZIL, FRENCH GUIANA, SURINAME, and GUYANA. The coast was discovered by Columbus in 1498, and was surveyed by other Spanish explorers between 1499 and 1500. The region was originally thought to include El Dorado, the fabled kingdom of the land of gold. It was also that legend that drew Sir Walter Raleigh to the area in 1595. Voltaire uses the legend in his Candide. The length of the Amazon from the Peruvian ANDES was explored by Lope de Aguirre from 1559 to 1561 in search of El Dorado, after his mutiny. His pirate troupe plundered and massacred as they went. The Dutch were the first to settle the area, but ownership changed hands many times. The interior is peopled by Indians and bush blacks, descendants of freed slaves or Maroons.

GUIENNE [Guyenne] [ancient: Aquitania Secunda] (France)

Region in the SW, formerly bounded on the N by LIMOUSIN, on the NE by AUVERGNE, on the ESE by LANGUEDOC, on the S by GASCONY, on the W by the Atlantic Ocean. The capital was at BORDEAUX. Once a part of AQUITAINE, it was synonymous with Aquitaine until the Hundred Years' War, which ended in 1453. It was then reestablished as a duchy separate from Gascony. From the 17th century until 1789 it was part of the French gouvernement of Guienne and Gascony under the jurisdiction of the parlement of Bordeaux. After the Revolution it disappeared as a political entity.

GUILAN See GILAN

GUILDFORD (England)

County town of SURREY, on the Wey River, 28 mi SW of LONDON. It includes the ruins of a Norman castle. A grammar school was founded in 1509, and the University of Surrey was established here in 1966. It is the burial place of writer Lewis Carroll.

GUILDFORD COURTHOUSE (United States)

Battle site in NORTH CAROLINA, near Greensboro. Here on March 15, 1781, during the American Revolution, the Americans under General Nathanael Greene were defeated by the British under General Charles Cornwallis. British control of the Carolinas was soon lost, and the decisive battle of YORKTOWN, which ended the war with an American victory, followed shortly. The site is now set aside as a national military park.

GUILFORD (United States)

Town in S CONNECTICUT, on LONG ISLAND SOUND, E of NEW HAVEN. Settled in 1639, it is the site of some of the oldest houses in the state, including the stone Whitfield House of 1639–40, restored in 1936 and now a state historical museum; Hyland House of 1660; and Thomas Griswold House Museum of 1735.

GUILIN [Kuei-Lin, Kweilin, Lin-Guei, LinKuei] (China)

City 235 mi NW of GUANGZHOU. An administrative center from the third century A.D., in the seventh century it was a center of Buddhism famous for its monasteries. It is famous for its tower karst scenery and it is a major tourist destination.

GUILLEMONT (France)

Village in the N, in the Somme department. Captured by the Germans in 1914, it became a center of German resistance during World War I until it was taken by the British on September 3, 1916.

GUIMARÃES [Guimarãis] (Portugal)

Town in the Braga district of the NW, 12 mi SE of BRAGA. It was the seat of Duke Henry of BURGUNDY, a leader in the Crusade against the Moors, and the birthplace of his son, Alfonso, the first king of Portugal. It was besieged and taken in 1127 by Alfonso VII, who forced Alfonso of Portugal to swear fealty. The Portuguese later reestablished its independence. Guimarães was a favorite royal residence and has sev-

